China says need “balanced” UN resolution on N Korea

TOKYO, 8 June—Japan’s Foreign Minister on Sunday called for a strong UN Security Council resolution against North Korea after its latest nuclear test, but his Chinese counterpart said a “balanced” resolution must be adopted.

Japan’s Hirofumi Nakasone and China’s Yang Jiechi met in Tokyo amid rising tension after North Korea fired a long-range rocket over Japan in April followed by a nuclear test in May.

UN diplomats in New York have been in closed-door negotiations for over a week, but the five permanent Security Council members—including China—and Japan had yet to produce a deal on the sanctions resolution against North Korea. “The Security Council must adopt a resolution with a strong content that will make North Korea understand that a nuclear test is not acceptable,” a Japanese Foreign Ministry official quoted Nakasone as telling Yang.

17 Bodies retrieved from Air France crash

BRASILIA, 8 June—Fifteen more bodies were recovered on Sunday in the Atlantic Ocean near the site where an Air France jetliner was believed to have crashed a week ago, bringing the number of bodies retrieved to 17, Brazilian military officials said.

The 15 bodies were found in a sea area some 1,150 kilometres off Brazil’s northeastern coastal city Recife, Air Force spokesman Lieutenant Colonel Henry Munhoz told reporters in Recife. The Brazilian military said eight bodies were picked up by a French Navy ship on Sunday, but gave no further details.

Brazilian ships retrieved two corpses on Saturday and seven others on Sunday. Among the nine, Munhoz said, four were male and four female, while the gender of the other body could not be identified.

He added that the Brazilian military were transporting the 17 bodies to the islands of Fernando de Noronha, 370 kilometres off the coast of Brazil, from where the corpses and debris would be eventually brought to Recife.

Saudi Arabia urges Obama to impose Mideast solution

RIYADH, 8 June—King Abdullah of Saudi Arabia has urged US President Barack Obama to impose a solution on the festering Arab-Israeli conflict if necessary, a Saudi newspaper said on Sunday.

Saudi Arabia and other Arab states want Obama to get tough with Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu who has balked at Palestinian statehood and defied US calls to halt the expansion of Jewish settlements.

King Abdullah told Obama during his visit to Riyadh last week that Arab patience was wearing thin and that a solution of the Arab-Israeli conflict would be the “magic key” to all issues in the region, al-Hayat said, quoting what it called informed sources.

“We want from you a serious participation to solve the Palestinian issue and impose the solution if necessary,” the Saudi monarch told Obama, according to the paper, which is owned by a nephew of the monarch. It did not elaborate. Saudi Arabia was the driving force behind an Arab peace initiative first put forward by Arab states in 2002 offering Israel recognition in return for withdrawal from Arab land occupied in 1967 and a Palestinian state.

Britain’s Brown faces revolt after poll rout

LONDON, 8 June—Britain’s Prime Minister Gordon Brown faced a renewed challenge to his leadership on Monday after support for the ruling Labour Party plunged to its lowest level in a century in European elections.

Compounding Labour’s woes, the far-right British National Party won two seats in the European Parliament for the first time. The BNP gained the seats in two regions of northern England at the expense of Brown’s Labour Party, which has been hurt by a scandal over politicians’ expenses.

Brown, who reshuffled his government after six ministers resigned last week, was set to meet on Monday evening with Labour members of Parliament, a number of whom have called on him to quit ahead of a general election due within a year.

Rocket or mortar hits Baghdad Green Zone

BAGHDAD, 8 June—The US military says a rocket or mortar has slammed into Baghdad’s guarded Green Zone. Siteins wailed and the public address system warned people to “duck and cover” and stay away from windows shortly before the blast. The military said the Green Zone was hit by indirect fire, a term referring to rocket or mortar fire. But it provided no information about casualties. Sunday’s attack comes just over two weeks after an American was killed when a rocket struck the sprawling area that houses the US Embassy and much of the Iraqi government.

The Iraqis assumed control of the Green Zone from the Americans on 1 January under a new security agreement and have begun removing some of the protective blast walls around the area.—INTERNET

Netanyahu wants “maximum understanding” with US

JERUSALEM, 8 June — Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu said on Sunday he would strive for “maximum understanding” with Washington on peace issues but gave no sign he intends to bow to its demand to halt settlement expansion.

Under pressure from US President Barack Obama over settlements in the occupied West Bank and Palestinian statehood, which Netanyahu has not endorsed, the Israeli leader said he would set out his policies in a major speech later this month.

“I want to make clear, it is our intention to achieve peace with the Palestinians and with the countries of the Arab world while attempting to reach maximum understanding with the United States and our friends in the world,” Netanyahu said.

“I aspire to a stable peace based on the solid foundations of the security of the state of Israel and its citizens,” he told his right-wing cabinet at its weekly meeting.

By mentioning security, Netanyahu again highlighted an issue he has called paramount to Israel’s approach to peace with the Palestinians, whom he has said should have self-government but only limited powers of sovereignty. MNA/Reuters

Eighteen killed in Acapulco drug shootout

ACAPULCO, 8 June—Eighteen people were killed in a shootout between drug gangs and soldiers in the Mexican beach resort of Acapulco, the Army said on Sunday.

The gun battle, near tourist hotels in the Pacific Ocean resort, was a further blow to Mexico’s tourism industry, already reeling from cancellations by foreigners scared away by the swine flu epidemic.

Gunmen battled troops from a cartel safe house, throwing hand grenades at soldiers who had surrounded them and spraying gunfire into military vehicles and nearby homes.

The shooting began late on Saturday and went on until after midnight. “There were grenade and rocket explosions, and weapons like AK-47s,” said an employee of a neighbouring hotel. “The fight lasted almost two hours.”

Royal family stung by theft of beehives

Thieves have stolen hundreds of thousands of bees along with their hives destined for the royal family, police said.

Disease and dwindling bee numbers have led to a sharp rise in the value of hives and the cost of honey, tempting thieves to carry out audacious raids. Thefts worth thousands of pounds (dollars) have been reported across the country in recent months, with the latest and most high profile taking place on hives run by royal beekeeper Murray McGregor in West Lothian, Scotland.

About 11 hives, containing up to 500,000 bees, many destined for the Balmoral royal estate in Scotland to make honey for Prince Charles’s Duchy Originals luxury food label, were taken in the raid last month.

“There have been a number of thefts going on,” said McGregor. “It appears to be happening quite often. We are very vulnerable to it because the hives are left unattended.”

Timely fish tale: Hawaii fish coughs up gold watch

A 10-inch reef fish he caught by hand in shallow water coughed up a ticking gold watch.

Hawaii resident Curt Carish boasts a timely fish tale: a 10-inch reef fish he caught by hand in shallow water coughed up a ticking gold watch.

Carish says he was enjoying a picnic on Port Allen beach when he saw the 10-inch fish awkwardly swimming close to the shore.

He says a friend gave him a bamboo stick and told him to get the fish. So he jumped into the waist-high water and hit the 10-inch reef fish with a bamboo stick and caught it.

He noticed the fish had an abnormally large belly as he tossed it into a cooler.

A friend opened the cooler later to find a gold watch next to the fish’s large belly. He managed to escape unhurt.

“Jeju Island, how splendid!”
When I had a bird’s-eye view of Jeju Island from the plane, I exclaimed so.

Jeju Island, 450 km south of Seoul, is romantically dubbed as the “Jewel of the Pacific”. Roughly an oval shape, it is 74 km from east to west and 32 km from north to south. It is located southwest of the Korean Peninsula.

It is a gateway between Japan and China and located in the centre of Northeast Asia and is known for its beautiful scenery that draws crowds of tourists to the island. It is a volcanic island, the largest island of Korea and its surface area is 1824. 9 km. At the heart of the island, Mt Halla towers magnificently over Jeju.

Jeju is the island where ASEAN-Republic of Korea Commemorative Summit was held on June 1-2 this year. It is also a land where those responsible for film industries, poets and musicians from ten ASEAN member countries met. The programmes were aimed at bringing ASEAN countries together in the cultural fields, including film, art and literature.

It is for this reason, that Myanmar musicians from the Ministry of Culture reached Jeju Island to take part in the ASEAN Traditional music Orchestra Performance. Likewise, U Aung Myo Myint (Managing Director of Myanmar Motion Picuture Enterprise) also participated in the film development discussions and had to read the poems I composed at the ASEAN-Korea Poetry Night hosted by Korea Literature Translation Institute (LTI Korea).

When we arrived in Jeju on the evening of 31 May, Kim Shin-Young, one of the organizers of the Poetry Night event, met us at the Jeju Airport and took us to Shine Ville Resort where we were accommodated.

Soon after we were entertained to dinner at the hotel, we were invited to the ASEAN Traditional Music Orchestra Performance which would play at 8 pm on the fifth floor of the International Convention Centre Jeju (ICC Jeju). It was attended by the Heads of State and Government of ASEAN member nations as well as the President of the Republic of Korea.

This event was proposed to bring about collective cultural awareness of traditional music within the Asian artistic community. It was said that the ASEAN-Korea Traditional Music Orchestra Performance is the world’s first orchestra performance consisting of traditional musical instruments from Korea and the ASEAN countries. Indeed seeing is believing.

The 80 musicians comprised 20 Koreans and five members from each ASEAN State. The orchestra featured its unique performance on the day before the commencement of the commemorative summit, with delegations from all the ASEAN countries and the people of Jeju Island attending.

When I read at the farewell lunch.
Following poem entitled “On the Island Jeju,” which I wrote down the bug’ in my soul stimulated me, I wrote down the following poem entitled “May the Golden Dove Melodiously Coo!”

The event aimed to bring Asian poems and literary works together at one venue, and it was indeed a great chance for us to learn and appreciate the works of foreign writers,” Kim Shin-Young, one of the organizers said.

“It’s not easy to bring poets from all over Asia to one venue, and so this is indeed a memorable and important event for all of us. We believe Korea will be on the forefront in expanding collaborations and programmes, and by working together with artists from various cultures and countries, we will be able to enrich Asian literature to the utmost,” said Kwon Se-hoon, the team manager for International Communications at the Korea Literature Translation Institute.

The 80 musicians comprised 30 Koreans and five members from each ASEAN State. The orchestra featured its unique performance on the day before the commencement of the commemorative summit, with delegations from all the ASEAN countries and the people of Jeju Island attending.

Night event, met us at the Jeju Airport and took us to Shine Ville Resort where we were accommodated.

The event was proposed to bring about collective cultural awareness of traditional music within the Asian artistic community. It was said that the ASEAN-Korea Traditional Music Orchestra Performance is the world’s first orchestra performance consisting of traditional musical instruments from Korea and the ASEAN countries. Indeed seeing is believing.

The 80 musicians comprised 30 Koreans and five members from each ASEAN State. The orchestra featured its unique performance on the day before the commencement of the commemorative summit, with delegations from all the ASEAN countries and the people of Jeju Island attending.

When I had a bird’s-eye view of Jeju Island from the plane, I exclaimed so.

Jeju Island, 450 km south of Seoul, is romantically dubbed as the “Jewel of the Pacific”. Roughly an oval shape, it is 74 km from east to west and 32 km from north to south. It is located southwest of the Korean Peninsula.

It is a gateway between Japan and China and located in the centre of Northeast Asia and is known for its beautiful scenery that draws crowds of tourists to the island. It is a volcanic island, the largest island of Korea and its surface area is 1824. 9 km. At the heart of the island, Mt Halla towers magnificently over Jeju.

Jeju is the island where ASEAN-Republic of Korea Commemorative Summit was held on June 1-2 this year. It is also a land where those responsible for film industries, poets and musicians from ten ASEAN member countries met. The programmes were aimed at bringing ASEAN countries together in the cultural fields, including film, art and literature.

It is for this reason, that Myanmar musicians from the Ministry of Culture reached Jeju Island to take part in the ASEAN Traditional music Orchestra Performance. Likewise, U Aung Myo Myint (Managing Director of Myanmar Motion Picuture Enterprise) also participated in the film development discussions and had to read the poems I composed at the ASEAN-Korea Poetry Night hosted by Korea Literature Translation Institute (LTI Korea).

When we arrived in Jeju on the evening of 31 May, Kim Shin-Young, one of the organizers of the Poetry Night event, met us at the Jeju Airport and took us to Shine Ville Resort where we were accommodated.

Soon after we were entertained to dinner at the hotel, we were invited to the ASEAN Traditional Music Orchestra Performance which would play at 8 pm on the fifth floor of the International Convention Centre Jeju (ICC Jeju). It was attended by the Heads of State and Government of ASEAN member nations as well as the President of the Republic of Korea.

Women’s and Children’s Specialist Hospital of Taunggyi providing health care

Article: Win Kyaw; Photos: Tin Soe (Myanma Alin)

While visiting Taunggyi, we, the news crew of the Myanma Alin Daily, gazed at the new Women’s and Children’s Specialist Hospital for some time.

We saw a three-storey building painted with pink colour, and the building is decorated with beautiful designs. It was the annexe of Women’s and Children’s Hospital of Taunggyi.

With the assistance of U Naing Tun of Taunggyi Sub-printing House, we met Medical Superintendent Dr Daw Than Than Htay to observe the health care services of the hospital for women and children in Taunggyi.

In the interview, the medical superintendent said, “The original hospital was built in August 1945. At that time, the hospital was called Taunggyi Township People’s Hospital. In 1981, the hospital was designated as Women’s and Children’s Hospital (200-bed). Construction of the three-storey extended building of the hospital commenced on 3-3-2005 by laying down the cornerstones, and it was opened on 22-7-2007.”

She continued to explain, “The hospital is constituted with the maternity ward, the infant care ward, the operation theatre, the child care ward, the anesthetic department, the pathology department and the X-ray department. The hospital gives medical treatment to the patients referred by districts and townships of Shan State (South). Moreover, it is also a nurse/midwife training hospital. Women from Magway and Mandalay divisions are attending the nurse/midwife training course.”

“In 2008, the hospital gave health care services to over 1,600 expectant mothers. If the infants have any complaint at birth, doctors and nurses closely supervise the providing of medical treatment to them at the infant care ward full time. To do so, the hospital has been facilitated with modern medical equipment,” she added.

“The hospital provides the medical treatment to the patients with common diseases and dengue hemorrhagic fever. Especially, health care service is being given to the women with ureic complaint which is common when djenkol beans are put on sale in abundance. With regard to the DHF, it is necessary to provide the patients with blood transfusion. The hospital uses the Beckman Coulter Centrifuge for serum for convenient treatments to the child patients. An adequate number of doctors and nurses at the hospital can give full care services to women and children,” explained Dr Daw Than Than Htay.

After the interview, the news crew toured the hospital. We witnessed modern medical equipment at the operation theatre, full treatments at the infant care ward, and neat and tidy patient wards. Moreover, we saw the doctors and nurses comforting and giving treatment to the patients.

Indeed, good health is a great reward. Health is the most important for the life of human beings. As part of efforts to fulfill the health requirements of the local people, Women’s and Children’s Specialist Hospital in Taunggyi of Shan State (South) is providing treatments to the local women and children with the use of modern medicines and equipment.

When we found stockpiles of tomato and cabbages at Miba Myitta Brokerage House, we asked Ko Moe Kyaw, in-charge of the brokerage house about their trade. He said that they distributed seasonal vegetables all-year round; that they transported their goods to Yangon, Mandalay and Nay Pyi Taw; and that the brokerage houses of Aungban transported 10 to 15 trucks of fruit and vegetables to the markets in Nay Pyi Taw once a week.

Owing to fertile soil, Aungban makes significant progress in growing fruit and vegetables, and local people enjoy economic growth and high living standard.

Beehive fence deters elephant raiders

London, 8 June — A fence made out of beehives wired together has been shown to significantly reduce crop raids by elephants, a research says.

The fence is constructed of log beehives suspended on poles beneath tiny thatched roofs (to keep off the sun). The hives are connected by eight metre lengths of fencing wire. Elephants avoid the hives and will attempt to push through the wire but this causes the hives to swing violently causing the elephants to fear an attack of angry bees.

The results of a pilot study in Kenya, published in the African Journal of Ecology, show that a farm protected by the beehive fence had 86 percent fewer successful crop raids by elephants and 150 percent fewer raiding elephants than a control farm without the fence. The reduction occurred despite the fact that none of the hives were occupied at the time suggesting that elephants remember painful past encounters with African honeybees and avoid the sights and smells associated with them.

Cantabrian Cornice in Spain experienced 7 cooling and warming phases over past 41,000 years

Madrid, 8 June — The examination of the fossil remains of rodents and insectivores from deposits in the cave of El Mirón, Cantabria, has made it possible to determine the climatic conditions of this region between the late Pleistocene and the present day. In total, researchers have pinpointed seven periods of climatic change, with glacial cold dominating during some of them, and heat in others.

In 1996, an international team of scientists led by the University of Zaragoza (UNIZAR) started to carry out a paleontological survey in the cave of El Mirón. Since then they have focused on analysing the fossil remains of the bones and teeth of small vertebrates that lived in the Cantabrian region over the past 41,000 years, at the end of the Quaternary.

Swedish oppsn. Social Democrats top European parl. elections

STOCKHOLM, 8 June—Sweden’s main opposition Social Democrats retained its position as the biggest winner in Sunday’s European Parliament elections, according to preliminary results. The party garnered 24.5 per cent of votes, the same as the previous elections, the Swedish public broadcaster SVT reported.

It was followed by Prime Minister Fredrik Reinfeldt’s conservative Moderate Party, which got 18.8 per cent of votes. The other two big winners are the Green Party and the Liberal Party. They won 10.9 per cent and 13.6 per cent of votes, higher than the 6.0 per cent and 9.9 per cent they gained in the 2004 European elections. Their seats in the European Parliament will rise to two and three from one and two.

Fielding candidates for the first time, the Pirate Party, which supports shortening the duration of copyright protection and allowing noncommercial sharing of files on the Internet, won 7.1 per cent of votes and will occupy one of the 18 Swedish seats in the European Parliament.

The party has been rather popular among the 18-30 age group, and won most of the support from this group in the elections. The big loser was the June List, an eurosceptic party. The votes it grabbed dropped some 10 percentage points to 3.6 per cent, which means it will lose all of its seats in the European Parliament.

The opposition Left Party also saw its support dwindling as its share of the votes has halved to only 5.6 per cent. Sweden will take over the rotating six-month presidency of the European Union from 1 July.

Spain’s opposition Popular Party wins Euro election

MADRID, 8 June—Spain’s opposition conservatives as expected won Sunday’s European election, marking its first triumph in a national vote since 2000, but not by the landslide margin some had predicted during the economic crisis.

Spain’s Popular Party gained 42.2 per cent of votes to the ruling Socialist Party’s 38.5 per cent, drawing its highest ever support in a European parliamentary election, based on a preliminary count.

“This result calls for a change in government economic policy and many other things because the majority of Spaniards have spoken,” PP leader Mariano Rajoy told supporters outside the party’s Madrid headquarters. The victory reinforced Rajoy’s leadership, which has been shaken by internal power struggles and corruption scandals.

But the PP lead of 3.7 percentage points was below the 5 point margin analysts said could seriously weaken Socialist Prime Minister Jose Luis Rodriguez Zapatero, and even lead to early national elections.—INTERNET

Lebanese oppsn. votes against corruption ruling coalition Govt

BEIRUT, 8 June—Lebanese voters went on Sunday to cast their ballots amid sharp divisions between supporters of the opposition who are calling for a change to stop corruption and the ruling coalition who are against Hizbollah arms.

“We want a strong state not a state inside a state,” Sami, a Christian Lebanese Forces (LF) supporter told Xinhua after he voted for the pro-government list in the Maten area which is witnessing a fierce competition between the two rival groups, he added that his party is voting against the arms of Hizbollah in order to have a strong sovereign and free state.

In Beirut’s third predominantly Christian district of Ashrafieh, streets were crowded and voters were in long lines waiting for their turn to cast their ballots, Izabel Titizian, an Armenian Lebanese lawyer said that she is voting for the opposition because they are “honest and have the interest of Lebanon and its people above anything else.” “We have 18 different sects in Lebanon, we can not win alone, we need to be allied and united with other Lebanese sects and the Shiites are honest allies,” Anna stressed.

Sakozy triumphs in EU socialists wilt

PARIS, 8 June—President Nicolas Sarkozy’s UMP Party triumphed in Sunday’s European parliamentary elections handing the opposition Socialists a stinging defeat and bucking an EU-wide trend that saw ruling parties penalized in the vote.

Partial results indicated the centre-right UMP would win 28 per cent of the vote with the Socialists slumping to 16.8 per cent, an almost exact reversal of their performance in the last EU ballot in 2004.

The biggest surprise was provided by a coalition of Green politicians, led by 1968 student leader Daniel Cohn-Bendit, who took some 16 per cent of the vote, ensuring that environmental issues will jump up the political agenda.

Centrist Francois Bayrou, who came third in the 2007 presidential election, saw support for his MoDem Party slump to some 8.5 per cent, wrecking his hopes of building strong electoral momentum for another assault on Sarkozy.

The UMP’s strong showing comes despite the economic downturn, which had hit Sarkozy’s popularity, and is the first time a sitting President’s party had come out ahead in a European election since 1979.

Government ministers said the result showed the country supported Sarkozy’s reform programme, aimed at strengthening the economy and making its industry more competitive.

“We will continue to modernize France and we will need everyone,” said Prime Minister Francois Fillon.

However, the record abstention rate of some 60 per cent took some of the shine of the result, with pollsters saying such a low turnout was always likely to favour the right.—MNA/Reuters

Nsofor scores twice as Nigeria beat Kenya 3-0

Abuja, 8 June—Obinna Nsofor snatched two second-half goals to help ensure a comfortable 3-0 win for Nigeria over Kenya in their World Cup African zone Group B qualifier in Abuja on Sunday.

The Inter Milan forward, who saw little league action this season, converted a 72nd-minute penalty and then hit home a thundering shot five minutes later.

The Super Eagles started the game with a goal inside the opening two minutes as Ike Uche took advantage of a defensive slip to run through the defence and expertly finish.

But Kenya used superior physical strength to set up several chances to get back into the game, notably from pacey striker Denis Ollich.

Twice they had an open goal yawning in front of them but failed to take the opportunity.

Anti-Syrian bloc celebrates Lebanon election win

Beirut, 8 June—An anti-Syrian coalition defeated Hizbollah in Lebanon’s parliamentary election on Sunday in a blow to Syria and Iran and a boost to the United States.

“Congratulations to Lebanon, congratulations to democracy, congratulations to freedom,” the coalition’s leader Saad al-Hariri said in a victory speech at his mansion in Beirut. The outcome was also welcome news for Saudi Arabia and Egypt, which back Hariri’s “14 March” alliance—the date of a 2005 rally against Syria’s military presence in Lebanon. “We have lost the election,” conceded a senior politician close to the bloc of Shi’ite groups Hizbollah and Amal and Christian ally Michel Aoun.

“We accept the result as the will of the people.”

Indian students in Australia living in fear

Canberra, 8 June—The Indian community had been targeted by a spate of violent attacks that threatened young students residing in Australia, the Australian Associated Press reported on Monday.

Indian students living in Melbourne said a car that was set alight on Sunday was another example of “hate crime” that makes the community living in fear.

Police said the car was deliberately lit in a common car parking area for a block of units which houses many Indian students.

Spokesman for the Federation of Indian Students in Australia Gautam Gupta said students had been threatened by drug dealers in the area before the car was destroyed.

“One of the residents of that block of flats had been asked for money by drug dealers and he had to seal himself inside his apartment,” Gupta said.

Meanwhile, a crowd of angry international students assembled at the Sydney Town Hall on Sunday to protest about the series of violent attacks against their peers.—MNA/Xinhua

Aungban enjoys economic growth through agricultural farming

Article: Win Kyaw; Photos: Tin Soe

Fine buildings and houses of Aungban serve as a testament to its economic development due to commercial growth.

Aungban has become the commercial hub of Shan State, purchasing fruit and vegetables from around Shan State and distributing them to other regions across the nation.

Aungban is in Kalaw Township, Taunggyi District. It is constituted with 12 wards and 4176 houses, and has a population of over 28,000. It not only grows crops on a commercial scale but also buys and sells them from its surrounding townships.

Recently, our media group from the Myanma Alinn paid a visit to wholesale centres of vegetables in Pyithaya Market in Aungban. We found the centres and brokers as busy as a bee, arranging, loading and unloading vegetables and crops.

In an interview, U Shwe Thi, in-charge of U Hmat Gyi Brokerage House, said that they purchased gingers from the farms in Kalaw Township; that they also exported ginger to Bangladesh through Sittway, Yangon and Mandalay and that at that time, they were distributing 10 to 15 tons of whitish ginger a day.

On arrival at Tun Tauk Brokerage House, we saw stockpiles of garlic to be loaded onto trucks. We learnt that the brokerage house was trading various species of garlic; that the garlic prices went down or up slightly on the ground of the size of commodity flows into the town.

We also visited Naung-ye Brokerage House and saw workers classifying tomatoes into green and ripe ones. We learnt that the tomatoes were from Kalaw; that they classified the fruit into two groups: green and ripe ones; that when tomato was in season, they distributed around 10,000 tons of tomato to various regions including Yangon and Mandalay a day; and they also traded cabbages and cauliflower.

Ko Moe Thar, in-charge of Shan Hteik Tan Brokerage House, where we found many stockpiles of potato, said that they collected potato from Heho, Kalaw, Pinlaung and Pintaya; that in season, they got

Basket weaving may have taught humans to count

The event, which takes place today and tomorrow (June 5-6), is part of Beyond the Basket, a major new research project led by the university exploring the development and use of basketry in human culture over 10,000 years.

Basketry has been practised for millennia and ranges from mats for sitting on, containers and traps for hunting, to fencing and barriers for animals or land, partitions and walls - all of which have been central to culture.

Beyond the Basket is a two-and-a-half year project funded by the Arts and Humanities Research Council as part of its Beyond Text programme. The research will explore the role of basketry in human culture and focus on various parts of the world, both in the past and present, from Europe to Amazonia, central Africa and Papua New Guinea. The aim is to identify the mechanical traditions of making and the ways in which basketry is implicated in wider patterns of understanding, for example the order of society or the design of the universe. It will also show the impact of woven forms on other media, such as pottery, painting, and stone sculpture and architecture, and look at the future of basketry and the solutions it could offer to current issues, whether technical or social.

Project leader Sandy Heslop, of the School of World Art and Museology at UEA, said: “Basketry is a worldwide technology and is the interaction between human ingenuity and the environment.” —Internet
