Boost production of quality agro-based foodstuff

The Myanmar Agro-Based Food Processors and Exporters Association is organizing the First Myanmar Foodstuff Exhibition–2009 at the Tatmadaw Convention Hall on U Wisara Road in Yangon from 26 to 28 June.

The exhibition is aimed at staging international standard domestic agro-based foodstuff at a single place, introducing locally-produced agro-based foodstuff to the people, promoting the economic relations between businessmen and helping them gain greater market shares, and helping improve the quality of domestic foodstuff by providing opportunities for producers to observe advanced food processing methods and advantages of use of modern equipment.

The foodstuff industry boosts not only local industrial development but also export of goods.

Myanmar is gifted with a variety of natural resources and it produces agricultural produce and marine products in abundance. That generates good opportunities for entrepreneurs to gain a foothold in the international market.

The Myanmar Agro-Based Food Processors and Exporters Association is making significant contributions to improving the quality of local agro-based foodstuff to international level.

Progress of Myanmar agro-based foodstuff called for improvement of the processes of distributing and exporting foodstuff, and disseminating advanced methods of producing foodstuff to producers.

So, more foodstuff exhibitions should be organized to help the nation enjoy further industrial development and earn greater foreign exchange.

Israel reduces control of four West Bank towns

JERUSALEM, 27 June — Bowing to pressure from Washington, Israel granted US-trained Palestinian security forces greater autonomy in four main West Bank towns, Israeli and Palestinian defence officials said on Thursday.

The ability of Palestinian security forces to maintain law and order is key to Mideast peacemaking because Israel needs to be convinced that a future Palestinian state won’t threaten its security. Israel already has turned over limited security control to Palestinians in three other West Bank towns, but the military said that forces in Qalqilya, Bethlehem, Jericho and Ramallah would be the first to operate around the clock without Israeli clearance.

Hamas leader welcomes Obama’s new Mideast approach

DAMASCUS, 27 June — The top Hamas leader on Thursday welcomed what he said is “new language” by President Barack Obama toward the Islamic militant group — part of Hamas’ cautious outreach to Washington in recent weeks. In a televised speech, Hamas chief Khaled Mas’ud avoided any mention of the recent turmoil in Iran, even though the Islamic militant group is backed by the Teheran regime.

Earlier on Thursday, Iran’s hardline president, Mahmoud Ahmadinejad, accused Obama of meddling because of growing US criticism of Iran’s clampdown on opposition protesters. Iran’s other militant ally, the Lebanese Hezbollah group, has sided with Iran’s ruling clerics.

Brazil sees high-level UN meeting as historic opportunity for change

UNITED NATIONS, 27 June — Brazil said here on Friday the ongoing high-level UN conference is “an historic opportunity for change,” and the world must listen to the voices of the developing countries, which “bear no responsibility for the current crisis.”

The statement came as Ambassador Celso Amorim of the Brazilian Foreign Ministry was speaking at the high-level conclave, which entered its third day on Friday.

“This Conference is an historic opportunity for change,” he said. “It has brought the UN membership closer together to strengthen, improve and reform global economic governance.”

“The fact that we have been able to agree on balanced and ambitious outcome document is a testament to the vitality of the UN,” he said. “It has disproved many of the sceptics.”

“This conference should not be a final point. Nor should it be an end in itself,” he said. “It is incumbent upon us, UN Members, to ensure that it is the beginning of a process by means of which the whole of mankind, and not just a few, take ownership of their own destiny.”

12 killed in shootout in central Mexico

MEXICO CITY, 27 June — A shootout between police and suspected cartel hit men in central Mexico on Friday left at least 12 people dead and one police officer wounded, officials said.

Guanajuato state Attorney General Carlos Zamarrpia said police and soldiers were checking a report of armed men at a building in the town of Apaseo el Alto when assailants opened fire and lobbed grenades at them. All the 12 dead were gunmen, Zamarrpia said. Twelve suspects were detained.

Gov. Juan Manuel Oliva said one police officer was wounded in the shootout in Guanajuato.

The group was allegedly working for the Zetas, a gang of assassins tied to the Gulf cartel. Mexico is suffering a wave of gang violence that has killed more than 10,800 people since President Felipe Calderon took office in December 2006 and launched a military-led crackdown on drug traffickers.

In the northern state of Sonora, assailants opened fire on a car carrying a congressional candidate for Calderon’s National Action Party, or PAN, killing two people who were with the candidate, party officials said on Friday. —INTERNET

Officials said the talks in Corfu will reflect the trend toward improved relations.

Gazprom: Deals near with Azerbaijan

MOSCOW, 27 June—Gazprom, the world’s largest natural gas producer, said on Friday it hoped to sign key deals in Azerbaijan next week, raising the possibility that Russia will secure Azeri gas to feed pipelines to Europe.

“We enjoy good relations with Azerbaijan,” chief executive Alexei Miller said at a shareholders’ meeting at the company’s Moscow headquarters. “And we hope that during next week’s trip to Baku we will reach important agreements.”

State-run Gazprom has sought in recent years to corner the Central Asian gas supply, and reached preliminary agreement in March to buy Azerbaijani gas from 2010. According to Miller, Russian President Dmitry Medvedev will oversee the signing of a deal in Baku next week which would allow Russia to buy Azerbaijan’s gas “as soon as 1 Jan, 2010.”

Miller said Russia and Azerbaijan are discussing “relatively small amounts” of gas so far, but Russia could start buying more in the future.

“We have very good trumps compared to any potential buyer of Azerbaijani gas,” he said in a televised news conference after the company’s shareholders meeting.—Internet

Food, energy demands to skyrocket

MADISON, 27 June—Food and energy demand will soar in the coming years because of population growth, says a US report that urges more investment in global agriculture.

The report, by Deutsche Bank and the Nelson Institute for Environmental Studies at the University of Wisconsin, Madison, says the population growth will sharply increase demand for food, fiber and fuel.

“We are at a crossroads in terms of our investments in agriculture and what we will need to do to feed the world’s population by 2050,” wrote report co-author David Zaks, a researcher at the institute.

In the next four decades, the world’s population is expected to mushroom from 6.5 billion to 9 billion, and a gap is already developing between agricultural production and demand, the report said.—Internet

Slower winds mean pollution, crop damage

AMES, 27 June — Declining wind speeds could damage crops, increase pollution and raise temperatures in cities, Iowa State University researchers say.

Wind speeds across the country have decreased an average of 0.5 percent to 1 percent each year since 1973, with the biggest declines in the Midwest, the Northeast and the Great Lakes, the study said. The study, to be published in the Journal of Geophysical Research — Atmospheres, confirmed the researchers’ previous findings that lower wind speeds could reduce potential wind-generated electricity.

But slower winds also could mean higher temperatures in fields and, thus, less-productive crops, which depend on wind for cooling, said Gene Takle, an Iowa State professor of geological and atmospheric sciences and agronomy.

Takle said slower winds also could cause more crops to be covered in dew, making them susceptible to fungus and plant disease.—Internet
Ecuador, Venezuela start joint gas exploitation in Gulf of Guayaquil

QUITO, 27 June—Ecuador and Venezuela on Friday started their joint exploration for natural gas in the Gulf of Guayaquil, a large body of water in the Pacific Ocean in western South America. The exploration, which is expected to last 90 days, will be done by Venezuela’s state-owned oil firm Petroleos de Venezuela (PDVSA), said the company’s Ecuadorian counterpart Petroecuador.

Under a plan, the PDVSA will drill a well of 3 km in depth in Punta Island, which is off the coast of southern Ecuador at the head of the Gulf of Guayaquil. The investment for the exploration, totaling 32 million US dollars, will be covered by the PDVSA, which has a strategic alliance with Petroecuador in hydrocarbon projects in both countries. Petroecuador said oil might also be found during the exploration as seismic research indicates. —Xinhua

A total of 730,000 tourists visited Singapore in May. The country’s tourism sector saw sharper declines in visitor arrivals from markets such as China and Japan which can be attributed in part to the global outbreak of A/H1N1 flu, the Singapore Tourism Board (STB) said.

Egypt to reopen crossing to Gaza

CAIRO, 27 June — Egypt plans to again temporarily open its Rafah border crossing with the Gaza Strip, allowing some Palestinians to leave the blockaded territory. It is exactly six months since the start of Israel’s military offensive in Gaza.

Relations with the Palestinian Islamic group Hamas which controls it remain extremely tense. The crossing—set to open for the next three days—is Gaza’s main route to the outside world.

Orange ambulances, taxis and extra security forces have been making their way to the border in preparation for the latest opening of the Rafah crossing.

Among those who have been given permission to pass through are students and Palestinian patients needing medical treatment. Officials attending the latest round of Palestinian unity talks will also make their way to Cairo.

Despite considerable criticism in the Arab world, the Egyptian government has kept Rafah largely shut since the Hamas takeover of Gaza in June 2007. However it is continuing to play a significant diplomatic role.

This includes acting as a go-between for Israel and Hamas.

In recent days there has been increased speculation about a possible deal to exchange captured Israeli soldier Gilad Shalit for Palestinian prisoners.—Internet

China has the world’s largest population of Internet users, with 298 million people online by the end of last year.

Media reports showed the virtual money trade topped several billion yuan last year after rising around 20 per cent annually.

northeast of Paungde. The dam is 4,170 feet long and 115 feet high. Its catchment area is 202 square miles and water storage capacity 252,000 acre feet. It is of earthen type. Construction of the dam started in 1998-1999 fiscal year and it was opened on 22 August 1999. The dam was built with the aim of benefitting 45,000 acres of farmlands.

Wegyi Dam is irrigating 28 village-tracts in Paungde and Watpok townships for growing not only summer paddy but also monsoon paddy. For villages with difficulty in irrigating, they are being supplied with water under the system of blocking creeks and ditches.

With the emergence of Wegyi Dam, Paungde Township has been able to cultivate monsoon and summer paddy as well as edible oil crops, vegetables and kitchen crops under mixed and double cropping. It was able to grow 89,483 acres of monsoon paddy and 38,709 acres of summer paddy exceeding the target. Project for Greening 30-mile Radius of Yangon moves into high gear

Assistant Director U Kyaw Soe told to the Myanma Alin that the water surplus from the reservoirs and the dams to be constructed soon in the eastern part of Bago Yoma mountain range would be channeled into 37.70-mile-long Bago-Sittoung Canal linking the Bago River and the Sittoung River, and then to the Kayan Creek in Yangon Division.

The canal is now filled with rainwater. Through another canal; that the areas on the east bank of the Bago River are plains standing at an average altitude of only 13 feet, so it was impossible to construct dams there; that so the water to be supplied to the eastern bank of the Bago River was channeled into the Bago-Sittoung Canal; and that 10,000 acres of farmland in Bago Division and 55,000 acres of farmland in Yangon Division needed more than 300,000 acre feet of water for agricultural purpose.

He added that in the first phase, the water surplus of 117,000 acre feet from Kawliya, Baidah and Bawni dams would be channeled into Bago-Sittoung Canal through Nagapauk Sluice Gate and Pagaingda Sluice Gate; that in the second phase, about 32,000 acre feet from Wagadok Dam would be channeled into Bago-Sittoung Canal through Moeyungyi Gate; that in the third phase, the stored water of three dams under construction and to be constructed: Salu, Shwelaung and Zamayi (Kodukwe) would be added to the water surplus of 15,000 acre feet of Zaungtu Dam, and would be channeled into Bago-Sittoung Canal; and that so average annual inflow water to Bago-Sittoung Canal would be 370,700 acre feet and that was far more than enough to meet the demand of 300,000 acre feet of water needed for the Project for Greening 30-mile Radius of Yangon (East).

As to how to supply water from Bago-Sittoung Channel to the eastern part of the project area, he said that they were digging the 28.41 miles long canal linking with Bagan-Nyaungbin Diversion Gate across the channel near Thanatpin, and the programme had been completed by about 90 per cent; that the water from the new canal would be channeled into the Kayan Creek for supply of water; and that the water from the new canal would be channeled into the Baw Creek through Bagantaung, Hla Balu and Kyonu sluice gates and the water would be supplied to Thowinga, Thalyny and Kyauktan and Kayan sluices had been constructed along the Bago River to protect the areas from saltwater floods and store the freshwater.

Staff Office U Aung Kyi of Construction-6 said that the 28.41-mile earthen canal had been dug since 2003-2004; that on completion, the inner canal would be 19.89 miles long between Bagan-Nyaungbin Village to Thakala, and the outer canal, 8.52 miles long; that six of the seven bridges had been constructed across the canals.

Australian surfer attacked by shark

SYDNEY, 27 June—A surfer was attacked by a shark off a deserted Australian beach on Saturday, prompting calls for patrols during the winter season.

The man suffered a small laceration to his leg and was taken to hospital with shock after being bitten during a morning surf at Seven Mile Beach, south of Sydney, emergency officials said.

“We believe he was in a stable condition and may have been helped to shore by fellow surfers,” an ambulance service spokesman said.

The beach was closed and unpatrolled because it was the winter off-season, but a lifesaving official said the incident had prompted him to request future surveillance, including use of shark-spotting aircraft.

“I’ve activated our surf lifesaving team duty officer down there (to) see what they can do, and work with police to make sure they maintain some safety in the area,” he told Australian Associated Press.

There was a spate of shark attacks in the harbour city during the southern hemisphere summer earlier this year, including the savaging of a navy diver near the iconic Opera House.

A surfer lost his hand in an attack just 36 hours later at Bondi Beach.

According to records, 194 people have been killed in shark strikes in Australia over the past two centuries, but researchers are quick to point out that more people die from bee stings and lightning strikes. —INTERNET

Sony eyes cellphone/game gear hybrid - Nikkei

TOKYO, 27 June—Sony Corp is considering developing a cellphone/game gear hybrid in a bid to better compete with Apple Inc’s highly popular iPod and iPhone, the Nikkei business daily said on Saturday.

The Japanese electronics and entertainment conglomerate launched its first Walkman three decades ago, dominating the portable music player market, but it has been running far behind the iPod and iPhone in recent years.

Sony plans to set up a project team as early as July to develop a new product that combines functions of its portable game player and Sony Ericsson’s mobile phones, the Nikkei said.

Sony Ericsson is a cellphone joint venture between Sony and Sweden’s Ericsson.

A growing number of game-makers including Capcom Co Ltd and Square Enix Holdings are now offering software for the iPod and iPhone to take advantage of the Apple products’ popularity, posing a threat to Sony’s PlayStation Portable and Nintendo Co Ltd’s DS.

A Sony spokesman declined to comment on the report. —INTERNET

Global crunch unlikely to affect WC2010 tourists

JOHANNESBURG, 27 June—The global economic crisis is unlikely to affect projections of 480,000 World Cup tourists who are expected to spend one billion dollars in South Africa next year, a FIFA briefing heard on Saturday.

Africa’s first World Cup is expected to contribute 55.7 billion rand (five billion euro) to South Africa’s economy, 19.3 billion rand in taxes and create 415,400 jobs in pre-recession figures that researchers say still apply.

“We are still confident that we know what we’ve done is fairly conservative,” said Gillian Saunders of consulting firm Grant Thornton ahead of Sunday’s final of the 2010 Confederations Cup.

The firm estimates that 483,257 foreign tourists—including fans, teams, and media—will spend 8.5 billion rand during the month-long tournament to be played in nine host cities.

“Soccer or football travellers are fairly fanatical. They’ve made plans a number of years in advance to come to an event like this and they tend not to change their mind,” said Saunders. —INTERNET
India’s older population to quadruple by 2050

WASHINGTON, 27 June — India’s older population is projected to quadruple by mid-century, while that of the world is expected to triple, the US Census Bureau has said. In its latest report, the Census Bureau said the world’s 65-and-older population is projected to increase from 516 million in 2009 to 1.53 billion in 2050. The older population of the US is projected to double by that time.

“Although China and India are the world’s most populous countries, their older populations do not represent large percentages of their total populations today,” the report said. However, these countries do have the largest number of older people, 109 million and 62 million, respectively. Both countries are projected to undergo more rapid ageing, and by 2050, will have about 350 million and 240 million people 65 and older, respectively, the US census Bureau said.

From 2009 to 2050, the world’s 85 and older population is projected to increase more than fivefold, from 40 million to 219 million. Because women generally live longer than men, they account for slightly more than half of the 85 and older population and represent nearly two-thirds of the 85 and older population.

Light goes out on solar mission

LONDON, 27 June — After more than 18 years studying the Sun, the plug is finally being pulled on the ailing spacecraft Ulysses. Final communication with the joint European-US satellite will take place on 30 June. The long-serving craft, launched in October 1990, has already served four times its expected design life.

The ESA-NASA mission was the first to survey the environment in space above and below the poles of the Sun. Data from the craft, published last year, also suggested that the solar wind - the stream of charged particles billowing away from the Sun - is at its weakest for 50 years.

“We expected the spacecraft to cease functioning much earlier,” said Paolo Ferri of the European Space Agency (ESA). “Although it is always hard to take the decision to terminate a mission, we have to accept that the satellite is running out of resources and a controlled switch-off is the best ending.” — Internet

Swiss adventurer unveils solar-powered plane for global flight

GENEVA, 27 June — Swiss adventurer Béatrice Pinard on Friday unveiled the prototype of his Solar Impulse airplane, with which he later plans to make the first ever sun-powered global flight, the official Swissinfo.ch news website reported.

“Yesterday it was a dream. Today it is a plane. Tomorrow it will be an ambassador of renewable energy,” Pinard said at a special ceremony held near Zurich to unveil the aircraft, which has taken six years to design and build.

The sleek Solar Impulse has a huge wingspan, the equivalent of a Boeing 747, but weighs less than the average car, according to the report.

More than 12,000 solar cells are mounted onto the wing, supplying energy to four electric motors. During the day the cells will also charge polymer lithium batteries, allowing the aircraft to fly at night. The prototype should soon start its test flights. A first complete flight is planned for 2010.

Based on the results of these test flights, a new plane will be constructed for the big worldwide launch, scheduled for 2012.

The total budget for the project is about 107 million Swiss francs (some 99 million US dollars). Project partners include watchmaker Omega, Deutsche Bank, etc.

Pinard, 51, is famous for co-piloting the first non-stop hot air balloon flight around the world in 1999. In addition to his aeronautical activities, he also trained as a psychiatrist. — Internet

‘Stoned wallabies make crop circles’

LONDON, 27 June — Australian wallabies are eating opium poppies and creating crop circles as they hop around “as high as a kite”, a government official has said.

Lara Giddings, the attorney general for the island state of Tasmania, said the kangaroo-like marsupials were getting into poppy fields grown for medicine. She was reporting to a parliamentary hearing on security for poppy crops. Australia supplies about 50% of the world’s legally grown opium used to make morphine and other pankillers.

“The one interesting bit that I found recently in one of my briefs on the poppy industry was that we have a problem with wallabies entering poppy fields, getting as high as a kite and going around in circles,” Lara Giddings told the hearing. “Then they crash,” she added. “We see crop circles in the poppy industry from wallabies that are high.” — Internet

Roger Federer of Switzerland returns the ball to Philip Kohlschreiber of Germany during the men's singles third round match at 2009 Wimbledon Tennis Championships in Wimbledon of London, on 26 June, 2009.—INTERNET

Federer was a break up in the fourth set before losing his focus, and two errant forehands cost him the tiebreaker. That merely extended his Centre Court workout by half an hour, and he earned a berth in the fourth round Monday against a familiar foe — Robyn Soderling. Federer beat the Swede in the French Open final this month to complete a career grand slam and win his 14th major title, tying Pete Sampras' record. Now Federer, who has a 10-0 record against Soderling, seeks his sixth Wimbledon title. Federer played with the new workout by half an hour, and he earned a berth in the tiebreaker. That merely extended his Centre Court course in suburban Rochester. “I would like to keep this feeling through tomorrow and the final round.”

Play was interrupted by thunderstorms for nearly five hours, then called off at 8:37 pm as darkness fell. In all, 71 players will complete their second round Saturday morning, including Tiger Woods’ niece, Cheyenne, who was battling to make the cut.

Morgan Pressel was in second place at 8 under through 13 holes. That was one better than Kristy McPherson on the same hole, Michelle Wie through 10 holes and Stacy Lewis through 14 holes. Jiayi Shin leads Wegmans LPGA

ROCHESTER, 27 June—South Korean star Jiayi Shin, seeking her fifth win in 11 months, shot a 4-under 68 on Friday to vault into a three-stroke lead at the storm-plagued Wegmans LPGA. “I really am happy with my putter — it’s really good,” the 21-year-old Shin said after moving to 11-under 133, a record low at the demanding Locust Hill course in suburban Rochester. “I would like to keep this feeling through tomorrow and the final round.”

Play was interrupted by thunderstorms for nearly five hours, then called off at 8:37 pm as darkness fell. In all, 71 players will complete their second round Saturday morning, including Tiger Woods’ niece, Cheyenne, who was battling to make the cut.

Morgan Pressel was in second place at 8 under through 13 holes. That was one better than Kristy McPherson on the same hole, Michelle Wie through 10 holes and Stacy Lewis through 14 holes. First-round leader Sandra Gal of Germany, blaming fatigue for a string of wayward tee shots on the back nine, shot a 1-over 73 to drop to 7 under.—INTERNET

The Project for Greening 30-mile Radius of Yangon being undertaken by related ministries and departments is ongoing at high momentum. The fundamental requirement of the project is irrigation water. In order to fulfil the requirement, the Irrigation Department under the Ministry of Agriculture and Irrigation is applying three of the five ways it has laid down for supply of water to the farmlands of the eastern part of the project area.

Inspired by the information during our recent trip to Nagabaun Sluice Gate in Waw Township, Bago Division, that many programmes were in full swing for greening 30-mile radius of Yangon Division, we conducted an interview with Assistant Director U Kyaw Soe and Staff Officer U Aung Kyi from Construction-6 under the Irrigation Department.
