Farm owner was an active national race youth. He welcomed us with a warm smile and we asked him about the farm all we wanted to know.

Strictly abide by laws, rules and regulations in building a modern and developed nation

The government is making all-out efforts day in, day out for the emergence of a peaceful, modern and developed nation. Legislative, executive and judicial pillars play a pivotal role in marching towards a peaceful, modern and developed nation. Legislative and executive pillars are as important as judicial pillar. Law means the discipline as well as rules and regulations of a nation, and every citizen is to strictly follow them. Only when there is prevalence of law and order, will there be peace and security. And only if there is peace and security, will the building of a modern and developed nation be possible. Law officers who safeguard and serve the interest of the State and the people through the law need to be well-versed in their specific subjects in order to keep pace with changes and developments.

Community peace and tranquility and prevalence of law and order are indispensable for a nation. To ensure this, efforts are to be made to bring about a strong judicial pillar based on the noblest and worthiest of worldly values such as justice, liberty and equality. At a time when relentless efforts are being made for the emergence of a modern and developed nation the entire national people are to strictly abide by laws, rules and regulations on the basis of legislative, executive and judicial pillars. Only then, will a peaceful, modern and developed nation emerge.

Series of blasts kills 75, wounds 300 in Baghdad

Baghdad, 19 Aug—A series of explosions killed at least 75 people and wounded more than 300 in central Baghdad on Wednesday, the deadliest day in the Iraqi capital since US troops withdrew from urban centers in June. At least six bombs and mortar rounds struck near government ministries and other sensitive targets in quick succession, the latest in a series of attacks in the capital that raised doubts about the ability of Iraqi security forces to cope without US help. One blast shattered windows in Iraq's parliament building in the heavily guarded Green Zone government and diplomatic complex, television footage showed. It occurred near the Foreign Ministry, just outside the Green Zone. Wednesday's violence undermined confidence in the government's ability to ensure security, on which Prime Minister Nouri al-Maliki has staked his reputation.—Internet

21 killed in attacks as Afghan vote looms

Kabul, 19 Aug—Taliban attacks rocked Afghanistan on Tuesday two days before landmark presidential elections, claiming at least 21 lives as a rocket slammed into the presidential compound in Kabul. The violence, striking at the heart of the capital, followed renewed Taliban threats to sabotage on Thursday's ballot in which 17 million Afghans are eligible to vote, amid heightened fears they could stay away. But the NATO-led coalition said despite a spike in militants strikes, less than one percent of polling stations are at risk of being attacked.

A suicide car bomb on Tuesday targeted a NATO convoy on a busy road near a US military base and a market, killing 10 people including a NATO soldier, and wounding more than 50, officials said. “Updated reports indicate that those killed were one ISAF service member, seven Afghan civilians and two Afghan civilian employees of the United Nations Assistance Mission in Afghanistan,” the NATO alliance said in a statement.

“Two ISAF service members and 53 Afghan civilians were also wounded in the incident,” the International Security Assistance Force said.

UN Secretary General Ban Ki-moon expressed distress over the death of two UN staff in the second deadly suicide attack targeting NATO in Kabul in two days.

Study warns Asia faces food shortages by 2050

STOCKHOLM, 19 Aug—A study of Asian irrigation patterns and developing nations face food shortages by 2050 without major reforms in the way agriculture uses water.

The study, conducted by the International Water Management Institute and the United Nations Food and Agriculture Organization, warns many developing nations face the politically risky prospect of having to import more than a quarter of the rice, wheat and maize they will need by 2050.

Colin Chartres, director general of the IWMI, said, “Relying on trade to meet a large part of this demand will impose a huge and politically untenable burden on the economies of many developing countries.”

The report does not factor in climate change, which will likely make rainfall more erratic, modeling experts said, perhaps making even the study’s pessimistic assumptions prove overly optimistic.—Internet

Dump truck overturns, killing 25 Indonesians

JAKARTA, 19 Aug—A dump truck packed with more than 60 Indonesian plantation workers and their families overturned, killing at least 25 and injuring dozens, police and a doctor said on Wednesday.

The passengers were riding in the back of the open truck on Tuesday night when the driver swerved to avoid damage in the road, which was under construction, and the vehicle flipped over near Sampit town in central Kalimantan, police spokesman Made Ardana said.

The employees of PT Tanah Mas, a palm oil producer, were returning from a local market, Ardana said. The driver was detained and faces charges of negligence, he said.

“People were trapped underneath the dump truck and they could not get out,” he said, adding that the company had loaned each of the employees $15 for the outing.

A local hospital was “overwhelmed with the victims,” including 26 people who were admitted for treatment, mostly of broken bones, Dr Ratna Yunarti said. An unknown number of children were in the truck.—Internet

MOSSOW, 19 Aug—Russia said on Tuesday it had arrested eight people for hijacking a merchant ship off the Swedish coast and diverting it to the Atlantic Ocean — while maritime authorities pretended they had lost track of it.

Press reports said the Maltese-registered, Russian-owned vessel had disappeared from radar screens in a maritime mystery, but the Malta Maritime Authority said on Tuesday that the Arctic Sea had “never really disappeared.”

The arrests ended weeks of official silence over the ship and its $1.3 million cargo of timber, giving rise to speculation about a secret cargo and involvement in espionage.—Internet

Australia signs record trade deal with China

Canberra, 19 Aug—The Australian government announced on Wednesday a record 50 billion Australian dollar (41.3 billion US dollar) gas deal with China.

Putin says aircraft industry, space exploration as priority

Moscow, 19 Aug—Russia gives priority to the development of aerospace industry and will continue to invest in the sector, Prime Minister Vladimir Putin said on Tuesday.

“The development of the aircraft industry and space exploration is certainly one of our priorities,” Putin said at the opening ceremony of the MAKS-2009 air show in Zhukovsky outside Moscow.

Statistics show state investment in the aircraft industry has grown 20 times in the past five years. The government spent about 80 billion rubles (2.5 billion US dollars) on the industry in 2009.

“We are planning to continue investing heavily in these branches of the economy, to set up competitive enterprises capable of capturing their niches in the market, and to generate resources for the modernization of existing assets,” Putin was quoted by the RIA Novosti news agency.

During the aerospace show, the Russian Defence Ministry and aircraft manufacturer Sukhoi signed a contract, under which the Russian Air Force will buy 48 of the newest Su-35C multi-role super-manoeuvrable fighters, 12 Su-27CM and four Su-30M2.

Indonesia plans to build world’s longest bridge

Jakarta, 19 Aug—Indonesian President Susilo Bambang Yudhoyono said on Wednesday that his country has planned to build a bridge at Sundra straits, which will be the world’s longest.

The government has received the result of pre-feasibility study of the bridge that would connect the country’s two main islands of Java and Sumatra, which host over 80 percent of Indonesia’s 230 million population. “Should this is materialized, the distribution of the output of the development which is now being concentrated in Java island will be distributed to Sumatra island appropriately,” he said.

According to the pre-feasibility study the bridge would be 30 kilometres long and had 220 metres span, the longest in the world.

EU launches investigation into exploding iPhones, iPods

Brussels, 19 Aug—The European Commission said on Tuesday it had launched an investigation after a series of alleged cases of exploding iPhones and iPod music players.

Commission spokeswoman Helen Kearns told reporters that the commission, which is responsible for safety of consumer products across the European Union (EU), had asked the US manufacturer Apple for more information last week.

“Apple has come back to us this morning. They consider that these are isolated incidents,” she told reporters in Brussels.

The investigation was launched after at least three cases of exploding iPhones and iPods were reported in a handful of EU member states. In one case, a French teenager was hurt by pieces of iPhones’ screen glass after the phone suddenly began to “crackle and pop like a deep-frier”.

The commission also asked EU member states where the incidents occurred to provide information.

Strep throat may have killed Mozart

AMSTERDAM, 19 Aug—

British and European researchers say Wolfgang Amadeus Mozart likely died from a strep throat epidemic that appeared to have occurred in Vienna in 1791.

Many theories, including mercury poisoning, syphilis, trichinosis and other conditions, have been suggested over the years as the cause of Mozart’s death but an epidemiological analysis published in the 18 Aug issue of The Annals of Internal Medicine says the young composer was likely a victim of an epidemic streptococcal infection. The New York Times reported on Tuesday. Lead author Dr. Richard HC Zegers of the University of Amsterdam said researchers looked at what people were dying from in Vienna around the time of Mozart’s death.

In addition to edema, Mozart had back pain, a rash and other symptoms of streptococcal infection. Streptococcus can lead to glomerulonephritis, a kidney disease that would explain the swelling, the report said. Zegers said deaths from edema were markedly increased among younger men in the weeks surrounding Mozart’s death. — Internet

Italian resort to fine smoking minors

CAPOLIVERI, 19 Aug—

A resort town on the Italian island of Elba has adopted an ordinance penalizing children under 16 who smoke or carry tobacco on municipal property.

The Capoliveri ordinance takes effect on 25 Aug, the Italian news agency ANSA reported on Tuesday. Minors who break the law could be fined 200 to 300 euros ($283 to $424).

“Our aim is not to repress, but to protect the health of our young people,” Mayor Ruggero Barbeti told Il Terrreno, a newspaper on Elba. “The ordinance has an educational value. As far as we know, we are the first in Italy to take such an initiative.”

Capoliveri was also one of the first towns in Italy to fine those under 16 spotted drinking in public. The town has a population of about 4,000 and a year-round police force of six. In summer, the population triples, and the number of police officers swells to 15. — Internet

Ariz reports wildfire progress

FLAGSTAFF, 19 Aug—

Arizona firefighters reported progress in the 3,500-acre Taylor wildfire southwest of Flagstaff, saying they had achieved 65 percent containment.

Almost 600 firefighters were involved in the operation in the Sycamore Canyon Wilderness area 22 miles southwest of Flagstaff and they got a break when winds that had blown smoke into Flagstaff on Monday shifted on Tuesday, the Arizona Daily Sun reported.

The newspaper said that among the equipment deployed against the blaze were four air tankers, three helicopters, three small airplanes and numerous bulldozers, as well as “hotshot” crews — specially trained teams from the US Forest Service.

In California, firefighters on Tuesday said they were nearly finished putting containment lines around the La Brea fire after 10 days of operations, the Los Angeles Times reported. Firefighters said there were still hot spots and the operation still required aerial efforts. — Internet

Terracotta Warriors not Emperor Qin’s?

Recently published findings have put the origin of China’s famous Terracotta Warriors into question.

Considered an “Eighth Wonder of the World,” the army of thousands of hand crafted life-size soldiers has longed to be constructed as Emperor Qin Shihuang’s (259-210BC) guardians for the afterlife.

However, historian and architect Chen Jingyuan believes that Qin’s ancestor, Empress Xian (?-265BC), who died 55 years before Qin, was in fact the mastermind behind the army.

Chen’s book, The Truth of Terracotta Warriors, outlines 63 examples illustrating his belief. “For instance, the distance between the Terracotta Warriors and the mausoleum of Emperor Qin Shihuang is as long as 1.5 kilometres and the distance between the centers of the two places is even further.”

It is strange that the funeral objects are so far away from the mausoleum,” Chen told the Global Times.

4,000-year-old dagger found in Scotland

A gold-banded dagger still wrapped in an animal-skin sheath was found in a grave dating from the early Bronze Age, Scottish archaeologists said.

Kenneth Brophy of the University of Glasgow said archaeologists were even more amazed by other objects in the grave, The Scotsman reported. These were organic materials preserved for 4,000 to 5,000 years, including a wooden bowl, a skin bag and bits of bark and remains of plants.

“The high quality of preservation is of exceptional importance for understanding the centuries when metals were first introduced into Scotland,” Brophy said.

Brophy is co-director of the Strathearn Environ’s & Royal Forteviot project, which is excavating the grave near Forfioth, a village in Perthshire.

Last week, a crane was used to remove the capstone of the tomb, allowing archaeologists to reach the grave. The tomb is believed to be that of an important chief.

The Kyemon news team then proceeded to plots of livestock breeding zone. We interviewed Staff Officer Dr Nay Lin, Joint-Secretary of Supervisory Committee for Implementation of Livestock Breeding Zone, giving accounts on implementation of Livestock Breeding Zone Project.

The breeding zone was set up at a place, three miles from a junction in industrial zone which is situated on the right side of motorway linking Nyaungshwe and Ayeyaya Industrial Zone in Tilawka village-tract, Nyaungshwe Township, Taunggyi District, Shan State (South). Chickens, goats and cows will be raised mainly at the zone. The surplus will be distributed to other states and divisions. The establishment of breeding zone is aimed at creating job opportunities in the region and raising income of the locals.

A total of 82 entrepreneurs had already applied to buy 299 plots. One of the applicants bought 22 plots. Altogether 5000 chickens, 30 cows and 50 goats can be bred at a plot. Upon completion, 1.5 million chickens can be kept at the zone.

"The breeding zone will contribute to greening of the region and its environs. On our tour of the zone, we saw a network of roads, some of them completed and some under construction. We saw national entrepreneurs building their farms to open in time and workers setting up lampposts and communication towers in the zone."

Dr Nay Lin said, "At present, 70 goats have been kept at the zone. Work on infrastructure is nearing completion and the zone will be opened at the end of this year. Now, the nation sees development momentum in many aspects. The government is establishing industrial zones and livestock breeding zones throughout the nation in cooperation with the national entrepreneurs for the improvement of health standard of the people. The breeding zone in Nyaungshwe Township of Shan State (South), which will be of great benefit to national people, will emerge in the not too distant future."

"I got 20 plots in the breeding zone which is underway. I have a plan to raise 100,000 chickens as one plot can keep 500 chickens," he added.

"In response to my question on the aim of the establishment of the breeding zone, he explained, "Tasks are being carried out with the aim of ensuring food sufficiency in the country in accord with the government's policy. The surplus will be distributed to other states and divisions."

"We started the project in January, 2009. So far, 429.67 acres of vacant land have been reclaimed. Up to now, 322 200-square-foot plots have been reclaimed. Land reclamation is being undertaken for the remaining 33 plots."

The final judgment on Daw Aung San Suu Kyi attracted widespread reactions from the groups inside and outside the nation. As usual, the West Bloc was dissatisfied with the final judgment and said they would tighten economic sanctions against the nation. It is regrettable to learn that the European Union imposed more sanctions against Myanmar on 13 August. For what are Western powers imposing unfair sanctions against Myanmar?

The majority of the victims of such unjust economic sanctions against the country are ordinary people, whose interest the western countries are claiming they favour. The trade embargo against Myanmar resulted in tens of thousands of redundancies of female workers, thus pushing them to hardship. In addition, the trade embargo had a strong negative impact on the industrial sector and tourism that are gathering momentum. The number of job opportunities available at home is on the decrease, whereas the number of Myanmar illegal workers abroad is on the increase. In consequence, there has been a growing number of cases in which Myanmar illegal workers suffer oppression, discrimination and exploitation. Many countries with less population and fewer natural resources are trying for their development with foreign investments and foreign laborers, but many young Myanmar people work abroad as labourers, which is very disheartening.

No one can deny that ordinary people fall victim to the evil consequences of the trade embargo. However, those who favour trade embargo against Myanmar give lame excuses that Myanmar people are already impoverished, so they do not suffer extra hardships despite the trade embargo. I would say that is an inhumane attitude. They are deepening the poverty of the people, instead of alleviating their poverty. What is more disheartening is that those who say so are Myanmar expatriates and Myanmar anti-government elements at home. Their words imply that what is important is trade and relations with Myanmar. According to Statistical Yearbook 2007, during the period between 1985-86 and 2006-2007, the annual turnover of Myanmar’s exports jumped from 2.6 billion to 30 billion kyats and that of imports from 4.8 billion to 16.8 billion kyats, accounting for dramatic increase in trade volume. In respect to the State’s security, armed groups tried to undermine the nation facing political unrest through bringing the Naing Oo Mthawthaw battle around 1988-89. Nonetheless, the Tatmataw managed to safeguard the territory and maintain sovereignty of the nation amidst various forms of armed insurgency. So, no sweat, the Tatmataw government can manage to restore State security because peace and stability have returned to normal throughout the country. It is the same in ensuring the rule of law and restoration of peace. Therefore, it is vividly apparent that economic sanctions cannot make a regime change in Myanmar.

Economic sanctions have adverse effects on democratic process, and the drive to inculcate the people with a democratic sense and expedite the democratization. If the nation lags behind other countries in economic development, the rate of cognitive development of the public will be slow. If all what the people understand regarding democracy is that the decision of the majority is always right, without realizing the real consequence of democracy, the nation will lead to mobocracy, in which the people decide on cases according to mob rules, and to anarchy.

Then, why are hardliners in the West Bloc, Myanmar renegades and local anti-government groups supporting economic sanctions, and calling for renewal and tightening of the economic sanctions against Myanmar. They seem to assume that economic sanctions cannot make a regime change in Myanmar. They are trying to stroke the people to a democratic sense and expedite the democratization. If the nation lags behind other countries in economic development, the rate of cognitive development of the public will be slow.

Economic sanctions have adverse effects on democratic process, and the drive to inculcate the people with a democratic sense and expedite the democratization. If the nation lags behind other countries in economic development, the rate of cognitive development of the public will be slow.

The more anti-government groups exercise economic sanctions as a means to put pressure on the government, the further the goal of democracy aspire by the people will divert from its route, the less opportunity Myanmar people will have to enjoy further social and economic development, and the less public support they will win.

Economic sanctions have adverse effects on democratic process, and the drive to inculcate the people with a democratic sense and expedite the democratization. If the nation lags behind other countries in economic development, the rate of cognitive development of the public will be slow.

According to his announcement, Senator Webb had to take time to hold discussions about economic sanctions in his 45-minute meeting with Daw Aung San Suu Kyi under the arrangements made by Myanmar authorities. He said that the meeting focused on when economic sanctions worked and when they did not. He expressed his opinion that economic sanctions did not work in a situation like Myanmar issue; that the nation could easily overcome economic sanctions by keeping on trading with neighbouring countries; that he did not agree much with Daw Aung San Suu Kyi in that regard; and that but he thought that Daw Aung San Suu Kyi did not oppose the programme to lift some economic sanctions.

Anti-government groups at home and abroad opposed Senator Jim Webb’s visit to Myanmar, but that is not strange because constructive and destructive attitudes go together in every case.

Whatever it is, fortune has somewhat smiled on Myanmar people as there are several visionary officials in the US’s top political area like Senator Webb and he is serving as the head of East Asian and Pacific Affairs Subcommittee that is important for Myanmar-US relations. Surely, the majority of Myanmar people welcomed his fruitful visit to Myanmar.

As a Myanmar citizen who has witnessed the Myanmar political issues, I would like to say from the bottom of my heart that the more anti-government groups exercise economic sanctions as a means to put pressure on the government, the further the goal of democracy aspired by the people will divert from its intended route, the less opportunity Myanmar people will have to enjoy further social and economic development, and the less public support they will win. So, I would like to urge all political forces to give up the tactic of economic sanctions and collectively open the golden door to a modern, developed and peaceful democratic nation.

China holds medical support drill

YINCHUAN, 19 Aug—China held a medical support drill on Wednesday in the remote northwestern Helan Mountains simulating a strong earthquake and secondary disasters. The exercise involved servicemen from the People’s Liberation Army’s (PLA) General Logistics Department, the Air Force, the Military Area Commands of Lanzhou and Jinan and professionals from the health department in Gansu Province.

The drill “Mission of Medical Support-2009” aimed to examine and improve the organization and direction of medical support after major disasters, a spokesman for the drill said. It is the first time the PLA has held a medical support exercise for non-military purposes, said Zhang Shuhua, professor with the Logistics Command Academy of PLA. Participants carried out first aid, medical treatment, health epidemic prevention, transfer of patients and other simulations during the drill on Wednesday morning. They set up more than 10 field hospitals within 10 minutes and the field tele-medicine consultation system within 15 minutes. Rescue helicopters and field ambulances were used in the drill. Zhang said experiences gained from the massive Wenchuan earthquake last year were adopted in the drill. The 8.0-magnitude earthquake jolted southwest China’s Sichuan Province and the neighboring provinces of Shanxi and Gansu on May 12 last year, leaving about 87,000 people dead or missing and more than 370,000 injured.

Heart valves get silver linings

WASHINGTON, 19 Aug—Physicists at Alabama A&M University hope to improve the safety of artificial heart valves by forming them from a material bombarded with silver ions from a particle accelerator.

Artificial valves should last a lifetime, so they have to be made from durable material. In the 1970s, physicist Gwyn Jenkins at Alabama A&M University developed a robust material similar to the one NASA uses to protect space shuttles during reentry. Called glassy polymeric carbon, its light, withstands high temperatures, and is well-tolerated by the human body. Jenkins started a company to make artificial heart valves from GPC, and was soon joined by physicists Daryush Ilia and Robert Zimmerman.

Even though GPC is body-friendly, it faces the same problem as other implant materials: The body treats them as invaders and surrounds them with tissue to seal them off. “Say a rose thorn gets under your skin,” Zimmerman says. “If you don’t pull it out, it will be encapsulated and come out later. There are even cases of soldiers who have been shot having the bullet encapsulated enough that the person isn’t exposed to toxic lead.” This tissue build-up is dangerous only if pieces of tissue come loose; some cardiologists worry that they might block an artery, causing a distressing or fatal problem. So Ilia, Jenkins, and Zimmerman set out to modify GPC so it would hold tight to the tissue around it.

First they bombarded it with gold particles from an accelerator to make it rougher and easier for cells to grip. Doctors use this sort of rough material for dental implants and artificial hips, to help new bone attach. But the gold ions just made the carbon smoother.

Vietnam, Japan vow to boost cooperation

HANOI, 19 Aug—Vietnam and Japan vowed to tighten cooperation in the area of supporting industries, crucial for the final assembly in each industry, the local newspaper Vietnam Economic Times reported on Wednesday.

The will to further boost cooperation was made at a recently-ended forum on Vietnam-Japan Economic Cooperation in central Da Nang province of Vietnam. The forum drew participation of both Vietnamese and Japanese economic agencies.

At the forum, Japan said that it will transfer technology of manufacturing products for the supporting industries to Vietnam's companies. These products include spare parts, electronics, metal processing, precise mechanics, high-grade plastics, and packaging.

Japan is eyeing the central Da Nang Province of Vietnam as the number one destination for its investments to pour investment in the development of the supporting industries, said Mitsuo Sakaba, a Japanese ambassador at the forum.—Xinhua

Some 30,000 pot plants seized near California fire

SANTA BARBARA, 19 Aug—Some 30,000 marijuana plants were seized from a pot farm run for a Mexican drug cartel in a remote corner of a national forest charred by an 88,000-acre (35.6 hectare) wildfire, California officials said on Tuesday.

Authorities have said the blaze was sparked August 8 by a cooking fire lit by marijuana growers camped out in the mountains of Los Padres National Forest, about 150 miles northwest of Los Angeles.

The suspects, believed to number between two and six, fled the immediate area and remain at large, officials said. Investigators discovered the site days later while seeking the origin of the fire.

The marijuana was linked to Mexican drug traffickers in part because of the size and sophistication of the cultivation, Santa Barbara County sheriff's officials said.—Internet

Air Zimbabwe to cut 500 jobs to stay afloat

HARARE, 19 Aug—Zimbabwe's national carrier said on Tuesday it will cut 500 jobs, one-third of its workforce, in a bid to prevent the embattled airline from going under.

"We have no option other but to right-size or else we will go under," Air Zimbabwe chief executive Peter Chikumba told AFP.

Nearly a decade of economic and political crisis has seen passenger numbers for the struggling airline drop from a peak of one million in 1996 to just 300,000 now, the company said.

The state-owned airline formed in 1980 after the country's independence has been beset by a string of financial problems.

The company currently has a 30 million US dollar debt, and has asked the government to sell its stake in the airline in a bid to raise desperately needed cash from private investors.

"If we do not do anything about it, the business will collapse and it will be very unfortunate if this happens," Chikumba told AFP. Last year at the height of the country's hyperinflation, which officially hit 231 million percent but was believed many times higher, the airline in a bid to stay afloat laid off some 400 workers.

"Air Zimbabwe was forced to sell tickets in the virtually worthless local currency.—Internet

Smoking can worsen multiple sclerosis

BUFFALO, 19 Aug—People with multiple sclerosis who smoked — as little as six months — experienced more brain shrinkage than those who never smoked, US researchers said.

The study, published in Neurology, showed “ever-smokers” had more brain lesions and greater loss of brain volume, as well as higher scores on the Expanded Disability Status Scale than MS patients who had no history of smoking.

First author Dr Robert Zivadinov of the University at Buffalo said the study involved 368 patients, 128 had a history of smoking; 96 were active smokers who had smoked more than 10 cigarettes-per-day prior to the study and 32 were former smokers who had smoked at least six months in their lifetime. The remaining 240 were lifelong non-smokers. Zivadinov said the findings showed smokers with MS had nearly 17 percent more brain lesions — patches of inflammation in the sheath surrounding the nerve fibers that impair function — than non-smokers with MS, and also had less brain volume.

Italian scientists make breakthrough in supercomputer

ROME, 19 Aug—Scientists from northern Italian University of Trento confirmed on Tuesday that they have taken a major step forward in the development of super-fast quantum computers.

Quantum computers rely on the properties of sub-atomic particles to relay information and perform calculations using units of information called “qubits.” Unlike bits used in conventional computing, which can only represent one of two possible values, qubits can represent up to four, allowing for vastly reduced computing time.

The electrons used to convey information in quantum computing travel inside particles called quantum bits which, however, are easily scrambled by outside interference.

Professor Iacopo Carusotto, a physicist with the Boc-Infm centre who also teaches at the University of Trento, said the solution to quantum bit interference is to polarize qubits. Unlike bits used in conventional computing, which can only represent one of two possible values, qubits can represent up to four, allowing for vastly reduced computing time.
O'Shea says winning start must continue at Claretts

BURNLEY, 19 Aug—Manchester United have traditionally made a habit of having to wrestle control of a title race in the second half of the campaign. Last season they had to wait until returning from the Club World Cup to leapfrog Liverpool on their way to winning a third straight title.

But, having beaten Birmingham 1-0 in their opening match of the season at Old Trafford, defender John O'Shea insists United are planning to lead from the front this season. Ancelotti impressed by resilient Chelsea

SUNDERLAND, 19 Aug—Carlo Ancelotti believes Chelsea’s 3-1 win at Sunderland gave an indication that his stars are determined to fight for the Premier League title.

Just as they did against Hull on Saturday, Chelsea showed admirable resilience on Tuesday to recover after Sunderland poured forward in the opening 45 minutes at the Stadium of Light and took a surprise lead through Darren Bent.

Ancelotti insisted that he was not worried at any stage of the first half, although his gestures on the touchline occasionally suggested otherwise.—Internet

Keogh ruins Martínez’s Wigan return

WIGAN, 19 Aug—Wolverhampton forward Andrew Keogh ruined Wigan boss Roberto Martínez’s first home match in charge of the Latics as his early goal clinched a 1-0 win on Tuesday.

Former Wigan midfielder Martínez saw his side win 2-0 at Aston Villa in Saturday’s Premier League opener, but his homecoming at the DW Stadium ended in disappointment thanks to Keogh’s headed goal in the 35th minute.

Wigan pressed hard for an equaliser but the visitors battled gamely to hold onto their first victory since promotion from the Championship last season. Hull midfielder Ashbee out for nine months

HULL, 19 Aug—Hull captain Ian Ashbee will be sidelined for nine months after suffering a setback in his recovery from a knee injury.

Ashbee aggravated the long-term problem playing against Aston Villa in a Premier League match in May and missed the final three games of last season.

It had been feared that the 32-year-old may be forced to retire, but he will travel to the United States for surgery next week in the hope of curing the problem.

Tigers boss Phil Brown said: “He has had a setback with regards to his long-term problem, he had an operation on his knee three or four years ago.

“He is flying across to Colorado to undergo that surgery. Hopefully the scenario will be rehabilitation and back within eight or nine months.

Wenger wants focus when beaten Celtic return

GLASGOW, 19 Aug—Arsenal manager Arsène Wenger says he wants his side to finish the job at the Emirates Stadium after watching his side defeat Celtic 2-0 in the first leg of their Champions League play-off at Parkhead.

The Gunners find themselves in a commanding position in the tie after becoming the first English side to win at Celtic Park in 26 years.

But with a place in the group stages of the Champions League at stake, Wenger warned his players not to get complacent ahead of the return in London in a fortnight’s time.

“We have a good advantage but it is 180 minutes. We are in front after 90 but when you want to go through you want to play well for 180 and that is our purpose,” the Arsenal manager said.—Internet

Seeds Venus, Kuznetsova ousted in WTA Toronto

TORONTO, 19 Aug—Kateryna Bondarenko of Ukraine upset third-ranked Venus Williams 6-7 (7-5), 6-4 in the second round of a two million-dollar WTA hardcourt tournament here.

Williams, who enjoyed a first-round bye, roared to a quick victory in the opening set but by the finish had fallen to 0-3 all-time in the Canadian WTA event, the final major tuneup for many players ahead of the US Open.

“I was definitely expecting to play well and to go very far in the tournament,” Williams said. “It is disappointing.”

Williams was not the only seed sent packing. Australian Samantha Stosur defeated Russian sixth seed Svetlana Kuznetsova 6-4, 6-3. The Aussie will next face either France’s Virginie Razzano or Italy’s Flavia Pennetta.—Internet

AC Milan relying on ‘Brazilian Bolt’

ROME, 19 Aug—It has been a frustrating summer for AC Milan fans but the club’s owner is urging them to put their faith in the Brazilian footballing version of 100m rocket Usain Bolt for the coming season.

Silvio Berlusconi, who is also the Italian Prime Minister, believes that in former Barcelona ace Ronaldinho, the seven-time European champions have a man capable of wowing the world in the way that sprint world record holder Bolt has these last two years.

That is roughly the same period of time during which Ronadlinho has stopped shining like a star in the sky but Berlusconi believes he could do so again.

Seeds Venus, Kuznetsova ousted in WTA Toronto

TORONTO, 19 Aug—Kateryna Bondarenko of Ukraine upset third-ranked Venus Williams 6-7 (7-5), 6-4 in the second round of a two million-dollar WTA hardcourt tournament here.

Williams, who enjoyed a first-round bye, roared to a quick victory in the opening set but by the finish had fallen to 0-3 all-time in the Canadian WTA event, the final major tuneup for many players ahead of the US Open.

“I was definitely expecting to play well and to go very far in the tournament,” Williams said. “It is disappointing.”

Williams was not the only seed sent packing. Australian Samantha Stosur defeated Russian sixth seed Svetlana Kuznetsova 6-4, 6-3. The Aussie will next face either France’s Virginie Razzano or Italy’s Flavia Pennetta.—Internet

New DNA test uses nanotechnology to find early signs of cancer

In this illustration by Yi Zhang, quantum dots are depicted as gold spheres that attract DNA strands linked to cancer risks. When the quantum dots are exposed to certain types of light, they transfer the energy to fluorescent molecules, shown as pink globes, that emit a glow.

SCIENCE DAILY, 19 Aug—Using tiny crystals called quantum dots, Johns Hopkins researchers have developed a highly sensitive test to look for DNA attachments that often are early warning signs of cancer. This test, which detects both the presence and the quantity of certain DNA changes, could alert people who are at risk of developing the disease and could tell doctors how well a particular cancer treatment is working.

The new test was reported in a paper called “MS-qFRET: a quantum dot-based method for analysis of DNA methylation,” published in the August issue of the journal Genome Research. The work also was presented at a conference of the American Association of Cancer Research.

If it leads to early detection of cancer, this test could have huge clinical implications, said Jeff Tza-Huei Wang, an associate professor of mechanical engineering whose lab team played a leading role in developing the technique. “Doctors usually have the greatest success in fighting cancer if they can treat it in its early stage.”

Wang and his students developed the test over the past three years with colleagues at the Johns Hopkins Kimmel Cancer Center. Stephen B. Baylin, deputy director of the center and a co-author of the Genome Research study, said the test represents “a very promising platform” to help doctors detect cancer at an early stage and to predict which patients are most likely to benefit from a particular therapy.

Let’s open golden door in unison

No sweat, the Tatmadaw government can manage to restore State security because peace and stability have returned to normal throughout the country. It is the same in ensuring the rule of law and restoration of peace. Therefore, it is vividly apparent that economic sanctions cannot make a regime change in Myanmar.
