Peasantry to take more active part in building modern, developed nation

In Myanmar, agriculture is so successful that it makes substantial contribution towards the socio-economic life of the peasantry and national economic growth. As a gesture of honouring the important role the peasantry play in ensuring food security through agricultural production, the 2nd of March is designated as the Peasants Day.

The message sent by Chairman of the State Peace and Development Council Senior General Than Shwe on the occasion of the Peasants Day (2010) says, “The role you the peasantry have played in the Myanmar politics is very important. So, you have to elect representatives capable of building a peaceful, modern and developed nation and exercising the democracy correctly. You also have to ward off potential dangers of those who will disrupt State stability and community peace with assistance of aliens in the background.”

The government constantly provides all possible assistance for greater development in the agricultural sector. In the process, it has so far constructed 200 dams, 31 sluice gates, 322 river water pumping stations, along with a great number of tube-wells, small-scale rural dams and lakes. The irrigation facilities have benefited farmlands of various crops.

Using advanced agricultural methods and high-yield quality strains, farmers have been able to increase total sown acreage of monsoon and summer paddy to over 20 million. Now, the nation’s paddy output has touched more than 1500 million baskets, which is enough for the population of the nation in future. Regions concerned across the nation have achieved great success in growing such major crops as corn, black gram, green gram, pigeon pea, groundnut, sesame, sunflower, long staple cotton and sugarcane.

With rapid development in the agricultural sector, farmers have to stay in touch with modern agricultural machinery, advanced agricultural methods, and advanced post-harvesting technologies for further development of their business.

13 killed in Haiti floods, 3,000 more evacuated

PORT-AU-PRINCE, 2 March — Floods and mudslides last weekend claimed at least 13 Haitians’ lives, said the country’s emergency officials on Monday.

Iraqi civilian deaths jump in February

BAGHDAD, 2 March—The civilian death toll in Iraq jumped to 211 people compared with the previous month, officials said on Monday, a sign of rising violence in the run-up to a 7 March parliamentary election.

Overall violence in Iraq has fallen in the last two years, but a series of blasts in recent months shattered the peace before a national vote, seen as a crucial test as Iraq emerges from years of war, sanctions and sectarian slaughter. In January, 135 people died violent deaths.

On 3 February, twin car bombs killed at least 40 people and wounded 145 others in Iraq’s holy city of Kerbala as hundreds of thousands of Shi’ite pilgrims observed a religious rite. Sunni Islamist insurgents such as al-Qaeda and members of Saddam Hussein’s outlawed Baath party are still capable of staging devastating attacks.

The attacks appear aimed to undermine Prime Minister Nuri al-Maliki’s Shi’ite-led government before the parliamentary election and highlight the shortcomings of the security forces. At least 100,000 Iraqis have been killed in the more than 6–1½ years since the US-led invasion in 2003, according to www.iraqbodycount.org. Some groups put the toll much higher.

Beijing, 2 March — Chinese economists are speculating that the government will rein in some of its expansive monetary policies this year.

“Stimulus policies have done much in the crisis, but it is time to consider when and how to withdraw them,” said Qin Xiao, chairman of China Merchants Bank Co Ltd, the country’s sixth-largest commercial bank.

Overcapacity in the steel industry and redundant infrastructure construction caused by too much lending could lead to high inflation, he said.

Chinese banks lent an unprecedented 9.6 trillion yuan (1.4 trillion US dollars) in 2009, almost double that of 2008, and almost half the 2009 gross domestic product, according to People’s Bank of China, the central bank.

To cool bank lending, the government began tightening the credit market by raising the capital adequacy ratio, provision coverage ratio, deposit-loan ratio and reserve ratio in the second half of last year.

China Banking Regulatory Commission chairman Liu Mingkang said the government planned to restrict credit supply to 7.5 trillion yuan in 2010.

Boeing seeks foreign buyers for C-17 planes to keep plant running

LOS ANGELES, 2 March—Boeing has been engaged in an intensified sales campaign to seek foreign buyers for its mammoth cargo plane C-17 in hopes of keeping its sprawling assembly line in Long Beach, California from closing in two years, the Los Angeles Times said on Monday.

Although each plane sells at a staggering asking price of 240 million US dollars, India has shown its interest and has tentatively agreed to buy 10.

The sale “could help the line stay open an additional year,” the newspaper said.

However, India’s purchase request must first pass muster with the State Department and Congress in a complicated process, the report said. The transaction is a potential game changer because it showed that there was a robust international market for the plane, analysts were quoted as saying.—Xinhua

Putin instructs air force to upgrade arms

MOSCOW, 2 March—Prime Minister Vladimir Putin on Monday urged the Russian Air Force to speed up the modernization of its equipment, with new arms accounting for less than 80 percent of its military arsenal in the coming decade.

Russia’s Armed Forces will receive more than 1,500 airplanes and helicopters and about 200 air defense systems within the next decade under the state armaments programme, Putin said in televised remarks.

New hardware will make up at least 80 percent of the Air Force’s weapons and 75 percent of the air defense arms, Putin said at a government meeting on military aviation.

Long-term contracts to supply the Air Force with 130 warplanes were signed in 2008 and 2009, he said. “In 2010, 27 planes, more than 50 helicopters and five S-400 missile systems will be purchased for the army.”

Putin believed that Russia’s fifth-generation fighter jet fighter would be put into service with the Air Force from 2015 as planned, although the jet should complete over 2,000 test flights before it goes into serial production.

He also pressed the aviation industry to start work on a new-generation long-range strategic bomber.

RFP urges Britain to discuss Malvinas issue

BUENOS AIRES, 2 March—Argentina’s Cristina Fernandez de Kirchner on Monday called on Britain to discuss the contentious issue of the Malvinas Islands, also known as the Falklands.

“We want to sit down to discuss with the United Kingdom about the issue, taking into account the islands’ interests,” Fernandez said during the inauguration of the 128th ordinary period of the Congress Sessions. She made this proposal following the suggestion of the United Nations.

Fernandez said her country “will continue complying with the diplomatic line and the international law to condemn the colonial occupation that the United Kingdom wants to keep in the Malvinas Islands.”

Britain cannot continue having sovereignty over that area, because the United Kingdom is located 14,000 km away from the Malvinas Islands, the President argued.

Fernandez also expressed her thanks for the support given by the recent Latin America and Caribbean Unity Summit. “I am proud of having got the strongest support to our issue of the Malvinas,” she said.—Xinhua

Russia launches three navigation satellites

MOSCOW, 2 March—Russia launched a carrier rocket early Tuesday to send three Glonass navigation satellites into orbit.

The Proton-M rocket lifted off at 00:20 Moscow Time (2120 GMT on Monday) from the Baikonur cosmodrome in Kazakhstan, a live TV broadcast showed.

The satellites are expected to separate from the DM-2 booster and take planned positions about three and a half hours after the launch, according to the Khrunichev Aerospace Center.

This is the first launch of the Glonass satellite this year. Anatoly Perminov, head of Russia’s Federal Space Agency, said late last year that a total of nine Glonass satellites would be delivered to space this year, bringing the number of the network’s satellites to 24 by the end of 2010.

Glonass, the Global Navigation Satellite System, is the Russian equivalent of the US Global Positioning System (GPS). Both satellite systems allow users to determine their positions to within a few metres. The Glonass satellite cluster is now composed of 20 satellites, including 19 in use and one under temporary technical maintenance. The system requires 18 satellites to cover the entire Russian territory, while another six are needed to provide navigation services worldwide.

Man, daughter fall 13 floors in Chile quake

When their 13th-floor apartment began to shake, Alberto Rozas pulled his 7-year-old daughter into the bathroom doorway and waited for it to stop.

Instead, they fell. Plummeting as their brand-new apartment building toppled like a felled tree, they hugged each other all the way down.

Rozas had no idea which way was up until he looked through his apartment’s shattered window and spotted light — “the light of the full moon.”

Rozas and his daughter, Fernanda, clung to each other and to safety with nothing more than a few cuts, scraps and bruises. “The earthquake and the fall were one single, horrible thing,” Rozas told The Associated Press on Sunday. “I held onto her and she never let me go.”

Rozas’ neighbours who lived on the other side of the hall found themselves trapped beneath the structure, while rescuers painstakingly used electric saws and a generator-powered hammer to cut into the concrete.

Rebels say more than 200 civilians dead in Darfur fighting

KHARTOUM, 2 March — Darfur rebels said on Monday that more than 200 civilians had been killed in clashes with Sudanese government troops over the past week in the war-torn western region’s central Jebel Marra plateau.

The Sudanese army rejected the death toll and a UN officials said they could not confirm civilian casualties as their personnel were unable to access the battle zone.

“We have counted at least 237 civilians dead during fighting over the past week,” said Ibrahim al-Hilu, a senior commander of the Sudan Liberation Army faction of Abdelwahid Nour, one of the main rebel factions still holding out against a peace deal with the government.

“Clashes have been continuing today (Monday),” Hilu told AFP.

“(Sudanese government) Antonov aircraft have been bombing the area night and day.”

A spokesman for the Sudanese army said the death toll cited by the rebels was “wrong” and denied that troops were engaged in sustained fighting with Nour’s SLA faction.

“SLA-Abdelwahid has no organized base in Jebel Marra.

There are just a few fighters who attempt ambushes or hijack vehicles... so sometimes there are a few engagements between these men and the armed forces,” the spokesman told AFP.

Iran to test new smart bombs

TEHRAN, 2 March — Iran’s Air Force commander Hassan Shashafani said on Monday that his country will test new generation of smart bombs in near future, the semi-official Fars news agency reported.

The new bombs, dubbed Qased-2, are the upgraded generation of earlier-made 2000-pound Qased-1 bombs, the report said, adding that the new generation has advantages of farther-reaching capabilities, more accuracy and more destructive power.

The Qased-1 bomb was test-fired in 2006.

The Qased-1 has already been mass produced and it will be used in the military units in case they need it, Shashafani was quoted as saying.

Somali pirates release 18 Filipino sailors

MANILA, 2 March—Eighteen Filipino sailors of a Greek vessel were released by Somali pirates after two months in captivity, the European Union Naval Force (EU NAVFOR) said on Monday. This development brings down to five the total number of Filipino seafarers in the custody of ransom-seeking pirates off Somalia.

The 52,073-ton Greek owned Panama-registered Bulk Carrier MV Navios Apollon was hijacked on 28 December and released on 28 February. The vessel is now heading to Oman.

EU NAVFOR Somalia’s main tasks include escorting merchant vessels carrying humanitarian aid of the World Food Programme (WFP) and vessels of African Union Mission in Somalia (AMISOM); protecting vulnerable ships in the Gulf of Aden and Indian Ocean, and deterring and disrupting piracy. EU NAVFOR also monitors fishing activity off the coast of Somalia.

The Philippines is the world’s leading supplier of ship crew with over 350,000 sailors, or about a fifth of the world’s seafarers, manning oil tankers, luxury liners, and passenger vessels worldwide, exposing them to piracy attacks.

Mexican police say drug hit men killed journalist

VILLAHermosa, 2 March—A long-missing journalist in the Gulf coast state of Tabasco was killed by a drug cartel’s hit men who dissolved his body in acid, Mexican authorities said.

Rodolfo Rincon, 54, who worked for the newspaper Tabasco Hoy, was last seen on 20 January, 2007, after he reported on local drug dealers. Silvia Gil, a spokeswoman for the Tabasco’s state prosecutor, told reporters late Sunday that Rincon’s fate was learned from an arrested hit man.

Gil said the man, who was not identified, admitted belonging to a gang of hit men known as the Zetas. The man said the gang killed Rincon over his articles and then dissolved his body, she said.

Mexico is one of the world’s most dangerous countries for journalists. Watchdog groups say that more than 60 have been slain since 2000.

BEIJING, 2 March—Railroad operator Beijing-Shanghai High-Speed Railway Co Ltd is planning to raise 30 to 50 billion yuan ($4.4-$7.3 billion) through an initial public offering (IPO) this year, a source with the Ministry of Railways told China Daily on Monday.

Nigeria’s foreign debt edges up to 4 billion dollars

LAGOS, 2 March—Nigeria’s foreign debt rose by about 87 million dollars to just under four billion dollars in the last quarter of 2009, Junior Finance Minister Remi Babalola said on Monday.

Tsunami sweeps away entire towns on Chilean coast

TALCAHUANO, 2 March—When the shaking stopped, Marisol Gatica and her extended family huddled in a circle on the floor of their seaside wooden home in this gritty port town, listening to the radio by a lantern’s light. They heard fire-fighters urging Talcahuano’s citizens to stay calm and stay inside.

They heard nothing of a tsunami — until it slammed into their house with an unearthly roar about an hour after Saturday’s magnitude 8.8 quake. Gatica’s house exploded with water. She and her family were swept below the surface, swirling amid loose ship containers and other massive debris that smashed buildings into oblivion all around them.

“We were sitting there one moment and the next I looked up into the water and saw cables and furniture floating,” Gatica said.

A red-letter day in Katha...

Ei from Yangon Myint Myint eatery, a shop near Katha Myoma Market which is famed for its delicious curries, did not fail to attend the opening ceremony. She said, “The pace of economic development in Katha will gain momentum as it is accessible by both waterway and railway.”

“Thanks to the emergence of the railroad, Katha will become developed. The place was like a forest in the past, but it becomes populated by new wards and housing estates following the economic development. Now, the wards by the railroad will also become urbanized almost overnight.” Katha Township War Veterans Organization Chairman Col Maung Toe (Retd) explained to me.

Hlaing Bookshop owner U Chit Hlaing described the day as an auspicious one because of the dramatic emergence of transport facility which will expedite the commodity flow and ensure swift and smooth travel.

The construction of 16.68 miles long Katha-Moetalay railroad section of Katha-Bhamo railroad construction project started on 16 May 2007. There are 59 bridges and four block railway stations—Katha, Pawmawgye, Minle and Moetalay railway stations—among the railroad which has 27 turnings. It is the first inaugurated facility on 98 miles long Katha-Bhamo railroad project.

So, the day 20 February is worthy of note as an unforgettable red-letter day in Katha history. *****

German high-tech sector flat in 2010

HANOVER, 2 March—Germany’s high-tech industry is not expected to return to growth until 2011 after a devastating recession in 2009, its chief lobby group said on Monday ahead of the giant CeBIT trade fair.

Turnover this year will be at around the same level as last year, but in 2011, the sector is poised to grow by 1.6 percent to 142 billion euros (193 billion dollars), the BITKOM industry organisation said.

“Demand is taking off significantly, especially in the IT sector,” said BITKOM President August-Wilhelm Scheer.

“The barriers for firms to invest in IT solutions are slowly disappearing. We expect a dramatic push from the CeBIT,” Scheer told reporters in the northern German city of Hanover.

In 2009, the sector suffered a slump of 4.3 percent, Scheer said, as Germany, Europe’s biggest economy, suffered its worst recession since World War II.

“As before, demand is coming from individual consumers,” Scheer said, adding that smartphones, mobile computers and flat screen televisions were the most sought-after.

VW aims to be electric car leader by 2018

FRANKFURT, 2 March—The biggest European carmaker, Volkswagen, said on Monday that electric car sales should represent three percent of all sales by 2018, five years after the launch of its first production series.

“The goal is to become the market leader in electric mobility by the year 2018,” boss Martin Winterkorn said in a statement, the same year it hopes to become the world’s leading car maker, ahead of Japanese rival Toyota.

“We want to attain an electric vehicle market share of three percent within our entire range of products,” he added.

VW has trailed behind Toyota in the launch of hybrid and electric cars but now plans to market the all electric E-UP model in 2013, the statement said.

In the coming months, VW will test vehicles with a range of up to 150 kilometres (94 miles), “in key strategic markets of Europe, North America and China,” it added.

VW will begin to market a hybrid version of the Jetta in the United States in 2012.

US seeks China, India, Brazil info on Doha deal

WASHINGTON, 2 March—The United States asked nations like China, India and Brazil on Monday to clarify their market-access measures in a bid to break the deadlock on the long-stalled Doha Round of global trade talks.

President Barack Obama’s top trade envoy Ron Kirk said that while the United States was forthcoming about its market-opening commitments, it was unsure how much Americans would benefit from reciprocal steps by advanced developing nations.

“The value of new opportunities for our businesses, workers, farmers and ranchers remains vague because of the broad flexibilities available to key emerging markets, like China, India, and Brazil, that are fast-growing economics and important markets of the future,” he said.

“To achieve further progress, it is essential to gain more clarity in the level of market-access contributions by advanced developing countries, and ensure that the results provide significant market opportunities for American entrepreneurs and workers in agriculture, goods and services.”

Such market-access contributions would also underpin the development goals of the Doha talks, given that 70 percent of the tariffs imposed on developing countries had to be paid to other developing countries.

CHILEAN EARTHQUAKE 800 TO 900 TIMES MORE POWERFUL THAN HAITI'S

MEXICO CITY, 2 March — The 8.8-magnitude earthquake that rocked Chile early Saturday were 800 to 900 times more powerful than the 7.3-magnitude quake that shook Haiti on 12 Jan, chief of the Mexican National Seismologic Service (SSN) said on Monday.

Carlos Valdez Gonzalez told local radio station “Radio Red” that the earthquakes released energy, which allows to measure their intensity.

Meanwhile, he noted the rare destructiveness of the Haiti quake, which killed some 300,000 people. “We have not seen severe damages as those we saw in Haiti,” Valdez said.

Cholesterol screening should begin at 20

DALLAS, 2 March — Although many may think heart disease is a middle-age worry a US cardiologist suggests cholesterol screening should begin at age 20.

Dr Anand Rohatgi, a cardiologist at the University of Texas Southwestern Medical Centre in Dallas, says atherosclerosis — hardening of the arteries — begins early and young adults, and even teens, can show evidence of atherosclerosis.

If early screening reveals low levels of good high-density lipoproteins, or the “good” cholesterol, or moderately high levels of low-density lipoproteins, or the “bad” cholesterol, counseling can provide help to modify lifestyles. Those who fall into this category should be re-evaluated every one or two years, Rohatgi says.

Simple measures that can reduce cholesterol levels include decreasing the amount of saturated fat to less than 7 percent of total calories consumed each day,” Rohatgi says in a statement. “Also, increasing the amount of soluble fiber by just 5-10 grammes daily and limiting cholesterol intake to less than 200 milligrams per day are helpful.”

NASA pioneer Aaron Cohen dies at 79

WASHINGTON, 2 March — Spaceflight pioneer Aaron Cohen, former director of the Johnson Space Centre in Houston, died following a lengthy illness, the US space agency said.

NASA said Cohen, who was 79, spent 33 years with the space agency before leaving in 1993 to accept an appointment as a professor at Texas A&M University. At the time he was serving as acting deputy administrator of NASA, Cohen, who joined NASA in 1962, died on Thursday.

“Aaron Cohen was one of my early mentors here in NASA and he was instrumental in the success of numerous pivotal achievements in human space flight,” said NASA Administrator Charles Bolden. “His engineering expertise and rigor were tremendous assets to our nation and NASA. Aaron provided the critical and calm guidance needed at the Johnson Space Centre to successfully recover from the Challenger accident and return the space shuttle to flight. We will miss him as a colleague, mentor and a friend.”

Italy’s GDP suffered five percent fall in 2009

ROME, 2 March — Italy’s gross domestic product (GDP) suffered a contraction of 5 percent in the year 2009, which is the highest record since January 2004.

In the report Istat also revised its revised GDP data for 2007 and 2008, reducing the 1.6 percent rise in 2007 to 1.5 percent and raising the 1 percent decline in 2008 to 1.3 percent.

In another reported published also on Monday, Istat said that Italy’s jobless rate rose from 8.5 percent in the end of 2009 to 8.6 percent in January, which is the highest record since January 2004.

A total of 2.144 million people are seeking for their position in the end of January, while youth unemployment, which is one of the most important social problems in Italy, rose to 26.8 percent with a 0.3 percent increase from last December and a 2.6 percent up in January 2009.
Brain images suggest Alzheimer’s drug is working

LONDON, 2 March—New imaging technology suggests an experimental drug for Alzheimer’s reduces clumps of plaque in the brain by around 25 percent, lifting hopes for a medicine that disappointed in clinical tests two years ago.

Bapineuzumab—being developed by Pfizer Inc., Irish drugmaker Elan Corp and Johnson & Johnson—is a potential game-changer because it could be the first drug to treat the underlying cause of degenerative brain disease. Investor confidence in the antibody medicine, however, took a big hit in July 2008 when it failed to meet its main goal in a mid-stage trial and caused brain swelling at higher doses.

The new study, which only involved 28 patients, is modest fillip.” It demonstrated that the drug has an effect on the pathological hallmark of Alzheimer’s disease,” said researcher Juha Rinne from Finland’s University of Turku.

The researchers used a novel imaging substance called carbon-11-labelled Pittsburgh compound B, which sticks to areas of the brain where there is a lot of beta amyloid plaque.

After 78 weeks, they found that patients given bapineuzumab had about a 25 percent reduction in plaque compared with those on placebo.

Gene links to celiac disease may help drug search

LONDON, 2 March—Scientists have identified new genetic links to celiac disease and say their findings could speed the search for better ways to diagnose and treat the gluten-intolerance disorder.

British researchers scanned the genetic maps of more than 9,400 celiac patients and found areas of immune system disturbance which lead to the development of the auto-immune disease, which affects around one percent of people.

The researchers also found “substantial evidence” that genes associated with celiac disease may also be linked to many other common chronic immune diseases, such as type 1 diabetes and rheumatoid arthritis. They can now shed light on some of the precise immune disturbances leading to celiac disease,” said David van Heel, a professor of gastrointestinal genetics at Barts and The London School of Medicine and Dentistry, who led an international team of researchers in conducting the study.

Study looks at nanoplankton extinction

STATE COLLEGE, 2 March—A US study suggests an asteroid strike may not only have killed ocean and land life 65 million years ago, but it may also have caused extinction unevenness.

Researchers at Pennsylvania State University said such a fireball’s strike might explain the geographic unevenness of extinctions and recovery.

Using samples from 17 Northern and Southern Hemisphere drilling sites, the scientists analyzed the community structure of calcareous, or shelled, nanoplankton. Included in their study were two sites—one in the Pacific and one in the South Atlantic.

“At the Cretaceous-Paleogene boundary, 93 percent of the nanoplankton went extinct,” said Professor Timothy Bralower, who led the project. "Nanoplankton are a base of the food chain in the ocean. If they go extinct, other, larger organisms that feed on them have problems.”

Fit Rooney urges England fans to stand by Terry

LONDON, 2 March— Wayne Rooney has urged fans to give John Terry “a good reception” during the international friendly against Egypt and lay-off booing the defender.

Wednesday’s match at Wembley will be the national side’s first since Chelsea skipper Terry was stripped of the England captaincy by manager Fabio Capello following the fall-out from revelations of an alleged affair with the ex-girlfriend of former team-mate Wayne Bridge.

Now with Manchester City, Bridge recently ruled himself out of international duty ahead of this year’s World Cup in South Africa even though, with Chelsea’s Ashley Cole injured, he would be England’s first-choice left back if available.

Meanwhile Chelsea skipper Terry has endured taunts from opposition fans, notably during last weekend’s 4-2 loss to Manchester City where Bridge refused to shake the central defender’s hand before kick-off.

Warnock takes charge at QPR

London, 2 March— Veteran manager Neil Warnock became the latest man to be given the job of guiding the fortunes of English second division side Queens Park Rangers (QPR) when he was appointed as their manager on Monday.

The 61-year-old Englishman has moved across from Rangers’ Championship rivals Crystal Palace, after they agreed a compensation package, and has signed a three-and-a-half year contract with the Loftus Road club.

Warnock, who in 2006 led Sheffield United to promotion to the lucrative Premier League, now hopes to do the same for QPR, who last played in English football’s top flight in 1996.

“As a manager, Loftus Road is always a place I loved because of the fantastic atmosphere there,” Warnock told Rangers’ official website.

“Looking from afar, I believe this is the perfect time for me to come in, with the new structure and chairman in place. Together we can give the club the stability it needs.”

Milner fears England could suffer from pitch battle

London, 2 March— Aston Villa midfielder James Milner admits Wembley’s poor-quality pitch could cause problems for England’s World Cup preparations.

Milner got a close look at the surface during Sunday’s League Cup final against Manchester United and found it was difficult to produce the kind of quick passing game that England coach Fabio Capello wants to play.

The pitch cut up badly and was so heavy that players were getting cramps just an hour into the match.

With England hosting African Cup of Nations winners Egypt at Wembley on Wednesday and then facing Mexico at the national stadium in May, Milner fears Capello’s team could struggle to find their rhythm ahead of the finals in South Africa unless the surface is improved.

“It was very difficult actually. It was very slippery and was cutting up. I hope it can improve,” Milner said.—Internet

Spain seek World Cup revenge against France

Madrid, 2 March— Spain will be going all out to avenge their defeat at the hands of France in the last World Cup when the two sides meet again at the Stade de France in Paris on Wednesday.

Torres, whose goal won the Euro 2008 for Spain against Germany in Vienna, is set to return to the side after more than a month out with a knee injury.—Internet

Real Madrid break 400 million euro revenue barrier

London, 2 March— Real Madrid have become the first sports team in the world to generate annual revenue in excess of 400 million euros (362 million pounds, 543 million dollars), according to figures compiled by accountancy firm Deloitte.

The latest edition of the Deloitte Football Money League published on Tuesday also shows Spanish giants Real as the world’s largest revenue generating football club, for the fifth consecutive year.

Real’s broadcast income of 161 million euros was greater than the total revenue of all but the top ten clubs in the Deloitte table.

Their arch domestic rivals Barcelona moved up into second place, primarily as a result of winning last year’s Champions League final while Barca’s beaten opponents Manchester United dropped down into third position, partly as a result of sterling’s depreciation against the Euro.—Internet

Portsmouth face new court threat as HMRC challenge club’s decision to go into administration

Portsmouth, 2 March— Four days after they thought they had staved off liquidation, Portsmouth will be back in the High Court on Tuesday fighting for their lives after Her Majesty’s Revenue and Customs challenged their decision to go into administration.

HMRC, whose claim rises to £19.5 million this month, want proof of the sums claimed to be owed to the club’s owner Balram Chainrai before he made the decision to call in the administrator.

In a second blow to Pompey, Andrew Andronikou, the smooth talking accountant now controlling the club, had his meeting with Premier League officials postponed, when he planned to fight a nine-point deduction. Andronikou insisted last night that the return to court was routine. ‘I don’t understand the exact reason why this is, but we are not unduly worried,’ he said. ‘There is an element of brinkmanship.’

Disillusioned PSG fans turn on each other

Paris, 2 March— The Beautiful Game has turned ugly at Paris Saint-Germain this season both on and off the pitch after the capital club’s own fans fought amongst themselves following the weekend’s game against Marseille.

Supporters of the southern club boycotted the trip north in protest at tough security measures and restrictions on ticket sales, but that failed to stop trouble flaring up outside the Parc des Princes after Sunday’s ‘Le Classico’.

A bitter power struggle between two groups of PSG hardcore supporters, the Boulogne Boys and the Tigris Mystic, clashed after the 3-0 defeat to Marseille in the latest twist of a long-running feud between the two camps.—Internet

S Africa celebrates 100 day countdown to World Cup

Durban, 2 March— Schoolchildren will ditch their uniforms for football jerseys, while dancers will take to the streets on Tuesday as South Africa celebrates the 100-day countdown to the World Cup.

Top FIFA officials, including the world football body president Sepp Blatter and secretary general Jerome Valcke, will mark the occasion in Durban with a press conference aimed at dispelling doubts about South Africa’s readiness for the June 11 to July 11 tournament.

They’ll be winding up a tour of the 10 stadiums that will host the matches, aiming to reassure naysayers that despite some work being done on the pitches and the surrounding grounds, all the venues are on track for the kick-off.—Internet

A lovely town in northern Shan State: Nawngkhio

As a media man, I have to make frequent trips to hunt news. The most recent one was to northern Shan State to present the readers latest developments of the region. Nawngkhio was one of the places I visited on my tour. Nawngkhio Township is located in northern Shan State. The township covers an area of 1265.61 square miles and Nawngkhio town has an area of 1.3766 square miles.

Nawngkhio shares border with Kyaukme in the east and north, PyinOoLwin in the west, Yaksawk in the south. The town which stands at an altitude of 2750 feet is formed with two opposite geographical features, one hilly and the other valley.

Goke Hteik Viaduct on Nawngkhio-Kyaukme Road is the familiar landmark of Nawngkhio Township. The bridge still plays an important part of Mandalay-Lashio railroad. The maximum temperature of the township is 32.3°C, minimum temperature 7.8°C, average annual rainfall 51.7 inches, and average annual raining days 88.

Nawngkhio was called In-sein Station in the past due to a green lake in the town. Nawngkhio is a Shan word, Nawng means lake and Khio means green. But, now the green lake is no more. The town was named Nawngkhio after the emergence of Goke Hteik viaduct in 1899. The viaduct and Tenandaw, ShwesanU and Thanthaya Aye pagodas are famous in the town.
