First direct recording made of mirror neurons in human brain

SCIENCE DAILY 14 April— Mirror neurons, many say, are what make us human. They are the cells in the brain that fire not only when we perform a particular action but also when we watch someone else perform that same action. Neuroscientists believe this “mirroring” is the mechanism by which we can “read” the minds of others and empathize with them. It’s how we “feel” someone’s pain, how we discern a grimace from a grin, a smirk from a smile.

Problem was, there was no proof that mirror neurons existed — only suspicion and indirect evidence. Now, reporting in the April edition of the journal Current Biology, Dr. Izhak Fried, a UCLA professor of neurosurgery and of psychiatry and biobehavioral sciences, and multiple-cell activity, not only in motor regions of the brain where mirror neurons were thought to exist but also in regions involved in vision and memory.

Further, they showed that specific subsets of mirror cells increased their activity during the execution of an action but decreased their activity when an action was only being observed.

Monique Lhuillier bride: short and sleek for Spring 2011

NEW YORK, 14 April—The Spring 2011 Monique Lhuillier Bride collection, titled “A Field of Dreams,” was all about bringing the garden party indoors.

Shown in the lofty heights of an airy two-level penthouse in the London Hotel on Sunday, 11 April, in New York, models stood alongside picture windows with stunning Manhattan views in equally jaw-dropping gowns, where elements of nature added whimsical details to the dresses. Romantic embellishments like butterflies, branches, twigs, wheat stalks and feathers were woven into soft layers of tulle and organza and floral embroideries were appliqued onto sheer corsets.

“I thought this season was about showing your figure off,” said Lhuillier after the presentation.

To that end, Lhuillier introduced some shorter dress lengths, one of which was a convertible dress that could go from long to short.

“Instead of changing dresses, why not have one dress?” said Lhuillier, noting that more and more her customer was asking for all-purpose wedding ceremonies and reception option.

Nine dead as suspected rebels attack Philippine town

MANILA, 14 April—Suspected Muslim rebels wearing police and military uniforms detonated bombs and opened fire Tuesday in a southern Philippine town, triggering clashes that killed at least nine people, officials said.

The attack began with a series of simultaneous bomb blasts that hit a sports center, near a Roman Catholic cathedral and the residence of a local judge on Basilan Island, a militant stronghold where rebels and troops have repeatedly clashed, said marine commander Maj. Gen. Juancho Sabban.

He said at least three marines were killed and one was wounded while trying to secure the provincial capital of Isabela city. Four civilians and two police officers also were among the dead, said Basilan police chief Tony Mendoza.

Regional military commander, Lt. Gen. Benjamin Dolorida, said the attackers were disguised in police and military uniforms. They set a vehicle on fire and fired at anyone “who looked like military or police” as they fled the scene, Mendoza said.

Security forces were in control of Isabela and the city was cordoned off, Sabban said.

“We are advising the civilians to stay calm and not to panic and let the security forces cordon the area,” Sabban said.

They walk among us: 1 in 5 believe in aliens?

Aliens exist and they live in our midst — at least, that’s what 20 percent of people polled in a global survey believe.

The Reuters Ipsos poll of 23,000 adults in 22 countries showed that more than 40 percent of people from India and China believe that aliens walk among us disguised as humans, while those least likely to believe in this are from Belgium, Sweden and the Netherlands (8 percent each).

However, the majority of people polled, or 80 percent, don’t believe aliens in our midst.

“It would appear that there’s a modest correlation between the most populated countries and those more likely to indicate there may be aliens disguised amongst them compared with those countries with the smaller populations,” said John Wright, Senior Vice President of market research firm Ipsos.

“Maybe it’s a simple case that in a less populated country you are more likely to know your next door neighbor better,” he said.

More men than women — 22 percent vs 17 percent — believe that alien beings are on earth.

Most of those believers are under the age of 35, and across all income classes, the survey showed. Of those who do not believe, most are women.

Spanking links to kids’ aggression

BEIJING, 14 April — Kids who were spanked often were twice as likely as those who weren’t spanked to develop aggressive behaviors such as getting into fights, destroying things or being mean to others, as the Reuters said quoting a latest study.

The research, published in the journal Pediatrics, was led by Catherine A. Taylor, of Tulane University School of Public Health and Tropical Medicine in New Orleans.

For the study, researchers had interviewed mothers when their children were three years old and again when they were five.

More than half of the nearly 2,500 kids had been spanked in the month before the interview, and those who had been swatted more than twice at age three had twice as high odds of being highly aggressive at age five.

Although the new study doesn’t prove that spanking causes aggression by itself, it shows that the link remains even after excluding a broad range of possible explanations.

“Causality is extremely difficult to prove,” Taylor told Reuters Health. Still, she added, “the evidence is at a point where we want to encourage parents to use techniques other than spanking that can actually lower children’s risk for being more aggressive.”

“Children need guidance and discipline,” said Taylor. “However, parents should focus on positive, non-physical forms of discipline and avoid the use of spanking.”

Malaysia can be global halal cosmetics, toiletries hub

KUALA LUMPUR, 14 April — Malaysia has great potential in becoming the global hub for halal cosmetics and toiletries, a Malaysian official said here on Tuesday.

Malaysian Deputy International Trade and Industry Minister Mukhriz Mahathir made this remark after opening the International Conference on Halal Cosmetics and Toiletries 2010 here.

Mukhriz said that Malaysia was rich in unique herbs that could be used for cosmetics production, adding that the country had been successful in creating awareness about its halal standard.

According to Mukhriz, the global cosmetics market is worth 334 billion U.S. dollars, with the halal segment estimated at 13 billion U.S. dollars.

As Malaysia has been striving to develop its sectors of halal food and Islamic Finance, Mukhriz said that halal cosmetics could emerge as the next sector of the country’s halal industry.

On market demand, Mukhriz said that 57.6 percent of Muslims in Singapore and 37.7 percent in Indonesia were aware of the product but more than half of them claimed that they had difficulties finding the products in the market.

Citing the result of a market survey, Mukhriz said that those aware of the halal cosmetics would make their purchase if the products were available to them. —Xinhua

Israel emergency room to be built over graves

JERUSALEM, 14 April — Israel’s prime minister has decided a new emergency room for a hospital near Gaza will be built on its original site, despite the discovery of graves there.

Benjamin Netanyahu reversed an earlier decision by his Cabinet to move the new facility more than 100 meters away because of the ancient pagan graves.

Monday’s announcement is sure to win praise from doctors. They warned that if rockets hit Ashkelon again, the trip from a separate emergency room to Barzilai Hospital could be fatal. Ashkelon, a southern coastal city of 100,000, has been hit often.

But this could spark political trouble. An ultra-Orthodox Jewish party in Netanyahu’s ruling coalition had originally insisted on the move. There was no immediate comment from the party, whose leader serves as deputy health minister. —Internet

Kidney cancer urine test might be possible

ST LOUIS, 14 April — US medical researchers say they have identified a pair of proteins secreted in the urine that might lead to a urine test for kidney cancer.

Washington University School of Medicine scientists in St. Louis said their study is the first to identify proteins secreted in urine that appear to accurately reveal the presence of about 90 percent of all kidney cancers. Currently, there is no diagnostic test for kidney cancer, with about 80 percent of kidney tumors discovered incidentally, during a CT scan or ultrasound test that has been ordered for an unrelated abdominal complaint.

“Kidney cancer is a silent and frequently fatal cancer,” said Dr. Evan Kharasch, who led the study. “More than 80 percent of patients die within two years of diagnosis, and more than 95 percent die within five years because by the time the cancer is detected, it often has spread beyond the kidney. When it is identified early, however, kidney cancer is curable in a very high percentage of individuals.”

Kids with more fat have arteries of adults

AUGUSTA, 14 April — Children who are overweight or obese and have less endurance had stiffer arteries compared to leaner and fitter children, U.S. researchers found.

Principal investigator Dr. Catherine L. Davis, a clinical health psychologist at Medical College of Georgia, said stiff arteries are an indicator of atherosclerosis, an adult condition in which blood vessels become clogged.

“When children at such a young age start getting diseases only adults used to get, it’s like the sky is falling,” Davis said in a statement.

The study involved overweight or obese children ages 8-11, half of whom participated in physical activity like jumping rope and playing basketball after school. The other half were involved in sedentary activities like board games and crafts.

The researchers used a non-invasive measure of pulse wave velocity — a measure of arterial stiffness — and found children with a greater body mass index, more body fat and less endurance had stiffer central arteries compared to leaner and fitter children.

The findings were presented during the 31st Annual Society of Behavioral Medicine Meeting in Seattle.

Med diet may help reduce Alzheimer’s risk

NEW YORK, 14 April — The Mediterranean diet is not only good for the heart, it may also help reduce the risk of Alzheimer’s disease, U.S. researchers found.

Yian Gu of Columbia University Medical Center in New York and colleagues tracked 2,148 older adults in New York City age 65 and older, who did not have dementia, for four years.

At the follow-up, 253 of the study participant were diagnosed with Alzheimer’s disease.

The study, published online ahead of print in the June issue of the Archives of Neurology, found those who ate a diet high in salad dressing, nuts, fish, tomatoes, poultry, fruits, vegetables and eating low amounts of high-fat dairy, red meat, organ meat and butter had less risk of developing Alzheimer’s disease.

“Our findings provide support for further exploration of food combination-based dietary behavior for the prevention of this important public health problem,” the study authors said in a statement.

Exoplanet theory is proven wrong

GLASGOW, 14 April — A Swiss-led team of astronomers said it’s discovered the theory that all exoplanets orbit on the same plane and in the same direction as their star is false.

Scientists said the discovery of nine new transiting exoplanets, combined with earlier observations, found six of a larger sample of 27 were orbiting in the opposite direction to the rotation of their host star — the reverse of what is seen in our own solar system.

“This is a real bomb we are dropping into the field of exoplanets,” said doctoral student Amaury Triaud of the Geneva Observatory who, with Andrew Cameron and Didier Queloz, led a major part of the observational campaign.

Millions of women, babies die annually

GENEVA, 14 April — An analysis shows 3.6 million newborns fail to survive their first month of life worldwide, a global scientific and advocacy group based in Switzerland found.

Countdown to 2015, a global scientific and advocacy movement formed in 2005 that tracks maternal and child deaths worldwide, found an estimated 350,000 to 500,000 women die in childbirth annually, 3.6 million newborns do not survive the first month, and an additional 5.2 million children die before age 5.

In sub-Saharan Africa and South Asia an estimated 82 percent of pregnant women, newborns and child die annually.

“Because we know what causes these deaths and what would prevent them, major progress is possible,” Jennifer Bryce, a child health researcher at Johns Hopkins University in Baltimore and a member of the Countdown group, said in a statement.

“The Countdown analysis provides a road map, helping countries focus on their own data and take action to meet their specific needs.”
Panic disorder, depression can be treated over Internet: Swedish research

Stockholm, 14 April—Cognitive behavior therapy (CBT) via the Internet is just as effective in treating panic disorder (recurring panic attacks) as traditional group-based CBT, according to a new research from the Swedish medical university Karolinska Institute (KI). “The results therefore support the introduction of Internet treatment into regular psychiatry, which is also what the National Board of Health and Welfare recommends in its new guidelines for the treatment of depression and anxiety,” Bergstrom said in a statement.

It is estimated that depression affects some 15 percent and panic disorder 4 percent of all people during their lifetime. Depression can include a number of symptoms, such as low mood, lack of joy, guilt, lethargy, concentration difficulties, insomnia and a low zest for life, the research said.

Lingering drought threatens endangered bird species in SW China

NANNING, 14 April—The persistent drought in China’s southwest is eroding the habitat of the Hume’s Bar-tailed Pheasant, one of the world’s endangered bird species.

In Guangxi Zhuang Autonomous Region, 45 percent of the vegetation in the nature reserve boasting the world’s largest population of the pheasant, as known as Syrmaticus humiae, has deteriorated as the dry weather continues.

“More than 200 birds in our nature reserve are short of drinking water and food,” said Lu Zhenyuan, a senior researcher with the Jinzhongshan National Nature Reserve in Guangxi. The rare bird species, which live on plant seeds, berries and insects, are only found in forested ravines in China, India, Myanmar and Thailand.

Their homes in southwest China’s Guangxi and neighbouring Guangdong Province are short of drinking water and food, said Lu Zhenyuan, a senior researcher with the Jinzhongshan National Nature Reserve in Guangxi. The rare bird species, which live on plant seeds, berries and insects, are only found in forested ravines in China, India, Myanmar and Thailand.

“Ironically,” the statement said. “Several years of drought is the reason of their situation.

Malaysian gets flogging for acid attack on wife

Kuala Lumpur, 14 April—A court sentenced a Malaysian man to six years in prison and ordered him to be flogged with a rattan cane after he splashed acid on his wife for refusing to have sex with him, an official said.

Supian Hani Ismail began serving the prison term Monday after a district court judge in eastern Pahang state issued the sentence, a court official said on condition of anonymity because he was not authorized to make public statements.

The unemployed 47-year-old has pleaded guilty to a charge of “causing grievous hurt” to his wife by splashing a bottle of acid on her after she rebuffed his demands for sex on the night of 7 April at their home, the official said.

Supian will also receive two lashes of a thick rattan stick, which generally leaves lifelong scars.

Supian’s wife was recovering in a hospital after suffering burns on her face, hands and other parts of her body, the national news agency Bernama said.

Australian Aborigines declare reserve to save wallaby

Sydney, 14 April—Australian Aborigines Tuesday declared a huge swath of land — more than twice the size of Luxembourg — a conservation corridor to help protect an endangered rock wallaby.

The leaders of the area, called the Anangu Pitjantjatjara Yankunytjatjara, said $80,000 hectares (2,240 square miles) of the remote land near the vast country’s centre would be managed by its traditional owners for conservation.

Environment Minister Peter Garrett said the move would help protect the endangered “warru” or black-footed rock wallaby.

“The ranges in the north provide a safe haven for one of the few remaining colonies of black-footed rock wallaby, with experts 100 of the mammals are left,” Garrett said. The new reserve connects with other indigenous protected areas to form a 12-million-hectare conservation corridor which stretches from South Australia to Western Australia and the Northern Territory.

Community leader and ranger Kenneth Ken said the declaration would provide employment for other indigenous peoples — the country’s most disadvantaged, with shorter life expectancies than other Australians.
Inter beat Fiorentina to keep treble hopes alive

Rose, 14 April—Inter Milan kept their treble hopes alive with a 1-0 victory away to Fiorentina in the Italian Cup semi-final, second leg on Tuesday to reach May’s final 2-0 on aggregate. Samuel Eto’o scored the only goal of the game 12 minutes into the second half to ensure Inter reached their fifth Italian Cup final in six years. If AS Roma manage to hold onto their 2-0 first-leg lead over Udinese next week, it will also be the fifth final between the two sides in those last six years.

Inter assistant coach Daniele Bernazzani told Rai TV he was satisfied. “We played the game we needed to, we didn’t take many risks, we defended in the first half and Eto’o’s goal finished the tie,” he said. “In these months we’re playing for everything but fortunately that means we’re improving. I’d give anything to be in this situation.” Fiorentina coach Cesare Prandelli said the goal had knocked the stuffing out of his team. — Internet

Ancelotti expects Chelsea to hold nerve for title run-in London, 14 April—Carlo Ancelotti insists there is no chance Chelsea will lose their nerve as they approach the final furlong of the race for the Premier League title. Ancelotti’s side are within touching distance of winning the league for the first time since 2006 after Tuesday’s 1-0 win over Bolton left the Blues four points clear of second placed Manchester United with four games to go. The leaders looked anxious at times as they laboured to kill off stubborn Bolton and Owen Coyle’s struggling team could even have snatched a shock draw if referee Lee Probert had awarded either of two strong penalty claims.

With a trip to London rivals Tottenham next on the agenda and another tricky away game at Liverpool still to come, it seems likely Chelsea will have plenty more opportunities to show their resolve before the champagne corks start popping around west London. But Ancelotti is adamant his players’ ability to grind out wins from tense encounters like the Bolton game shows they are made of the right stuff to end United’s three-year reign as champions. — Internet

Clic passes Russian test at Monte Carlo tennis

Monte Carlo, 14 April—Croatian fourth seed Marin Cilic flirted with danger on Tuesday against Russian Igor Andreev in his first clay court match of the season before prevailing 6-7 (4/7), 6-1, 6-4 in their second round clash. Valladolid stun Champions League chasing Sevilla

Madrid, 14 April—Valladolid coach Javier Clemente enjoys a winning home debut as the relegation-threatened side beat Champions League hopefuls Sevilla 2-1 at home on Tuesday to boost their hopes of staying up, moving three points from safety. It is a major setback for Sevilla and their Champions League hopes with the club staying fourth although Real Mallorca can go three points ahead of them with victory over Real Zaragoza on Wednesday.

Valladolid had just one win in the last 16 games before the game but 60-year-old veteran coach Clemente—who coached Spain from 1992 to 1998—has made it four points from his two games at the helm to enhance their chances of beating the drop. Attacker Diego Costa headed his eighth goal of the season on 41 minutes to put Valladolid ahead and Angeloni striker Mateus Munacho, briefly on Manchester United’s books, struck a second on 53 minutes. — Internet

Surgeon says Torres could be back next week

Merseysiders’ hopes of finishing fourth in the table and so securing a place in next season’s Champions League which Spanish manager Rafael Benitez “guaranteed” earlier in the campaign, the former world number one Jelena Jankovic survived a scare by rallying to beat unseeded Edina Gallovits 7-6 (4/7), 6-1, 6-3 in the second round of the WTA Family Circle Cup. The Serb had to go the distance, needing two hours to beat Edina Gallovits of Romania at the 700,000 dollar clay court event on Tuesday.

The former winner and second seed received a bye into the round of 16. “She’s been a bit short of something. She can just play freely and go after her shots,” said Jankovic, who won the tournament in 2007, and along with Nadia Petrova are the only lone ex-champions in the field. It was first match on clay this season for Jankovic who is ranked seventh in the world.

Kahne to drive for Hendrick in 2012

Charlotte, 14 April—Kasey Kahne has completed a deal to drive for Hendrick Motorsports in 2012 but still needs to iron out his plans for next season.

The Associated Press has learned. A person familiar with Kahne’s plans spoke to the AP on the condition of anonymity on Tuesday because portions of Kahne’s deal are still being worked out.

Most notably, it’s not clear where Kahne will drive in 2011. HMS is currently at NASCAR’s four-car limit, and Kahne is working out a deal to succeed Mark Martin in the No. 5 car in 2012. Martin has one more season left on an extension he signed last year, and owner Rick Hendrick plans to honor him.
