Inland Water Transport at the service of people

The Inland Water Transport has good reputation for saving cost and transporting larger volume of commodities in the domestic transport sector. Proper water level in the rainy season facilitates proper flow of commodities through water courses.

Therefore, people rely more on waterway transport for trading commodities and travelling. The department ships passengers and commodities by watercraft and vessels along rivers across the nation for ensuring smooth transport in the waterway and for saving expenses.

IWT is constituted with Delta Branch, Ayeyawady Branch, Chindwin Branch, Thanlwin Branch, Rakhine Branch and Commodity Transport Branch.

Delta Branch is located on Mawtin (Lanthit) Street in Seikkan Township, Yangon, and it is operating waterway transport from Yangon to Pyay and to Delta region along 2292 nautical miles. A total of 80 vessels and 22 pontoons of the branch are providing transport service in three seasons.

Ayeyawady Branch located in Mandalay is giving 2028 miles long transport services from Pyay to Bhamo, Myitkyina and Waingmaw along Ayeyawady River.

The branch uses 48 vessels, 10 pontoons and 15 watercrafts without engines. The vessels can run their trips to Bhamo at proper water level beginning the first or the second week of June every year. In the open season with lower water level, the vessels can dock at Tatkalay Port three miles downstream of Bhamo and Gabani Port five miles downstream of Bhamo.

Cultural heritage — the National Pride

Myanmar culture has been flourishing throughout the history for years countable by the thousand. Since the origin of mankind, progress could be made in all fields of culture sector. The cultural heritage aboveground and cultural artifacts excavated firmly reflect the high standard of Myanmar culture.

The government is preserving Myanmar cultural heritage systematically. As antiques can be ruined with the passage of time efforts are being made to excavate cultural artifacts and preserve them followed by research.

In preserving cultural heritage Myanmar archaeologists made a giant step towards excavating ancient cities, palaces and walls, gathering historical objects, stone inscriptions, palm-leaf and parabeik manuscripts and renovating religious monuments. Occasionally, experts present their findings of historical evidence at paper-reading sessions.

As a result of making field trips to various regions of the nation and conducting research on cultural heritage, there have been found so many firm evidences that the middle stone age flourished in central Myanmar. The research works are in progress after finding cultural evidences of bronze and iron ages in Meiktila and Yamethin districts.

Staff of the Archaeology, National Museum and Library Department and the Historical Research Department are excavating ancient Pinde city located in Myittha Township of Kyaukse District. In June and July this year, they found the artifacts from mound No. 20 and saw brick works similar to that of ancient Beikthanoe and Srikestra cities.

Cherishing one's own culture means defending the motherland. So, let's preserve the national pride left to us by our forefathers.

1st LD: Death toll from Russian wildfires rises to 48

MOSCOW, 4 Aug—The death toll from forest fires raging across central Russia has risen to at least 48, as some 400 new blazes broke out over the past 24 hours, the Emergency Situations Ministry said on Wednesday.

“Eight bodies were found under the debris of burnt houses—three in the Moscow region, two in the Nizhny Novgorod region, and one each in the Voronezh, Ryazan and Ivanovo regions,” the ministry was quoted by ITar-Tass news agency as saying.

The ministry said that 403 new forest fires had sparked up over the past 24 hours, and so far a total of 813 fires continued burning over an area of 188,500 hectares.

Russian Prosecutor General’s Office Wednesday filed a lawsuit on negligence charges against local officials in the Nizhny Novgorod region, where at least 21 persons died and 1,400 others have been left homeless. Temperatures across much of western and central Russia hit 35 degrees Celsius (95 degrees Fahrenheit) in the past five weeks, triggering forest fires and the worst drought in the country since 1972.

Car bomb kills 15 south of Baghdad

BAGHDAD, 4 Aug—A car bomb ripped through an outdoor market Tuesday in a mainly Shiite city southeast of Baghdad in the deadliest of a series of attacks that killed at least 22 people nationwide, officials said.

The blast in Kut, 100 miles (160 kilometres) southeast of Baghdad, targeted a popular outdoor market that sells food and clothes at about 5.30 pm, killing at least 15 people and wounding 60, according to police and health officials.

The attack came hours after suspected al-Qaeda militants killed five Iraqi soldiers at a western Baghdad checkpoint, planting the terror group’s black banner before fleeing. It was the second time in less than a week that al-Qaeda’s flag has appeared at the scene of an attack.—Xinhua

Solar storm to hit the earth, sparking northern lights

BEIJING, 4 Aug—NASA scientists warned that a mighty eruption of superhot plasma blasted out of the sun could hit the earth as early as Tuesday (London time), sparking spectacular displays of the aurora or northern and southern lights, according to media reports on Tuesday.

It appears that the sunspot may have triggered a huge “coronal mass ejection” in which huge amounts of superhot plasma were spurted towards the earth, which then sent a “solar tsunami” racing 93 million miles across space.

Fortunately, the earth’s magnetic field protects us from the blast of radiation like this, which is normally expected to wipe out much of the human race.

The deadly solar plasma is likely to stream down the planetary field lines towards the poles, crashing into oxygen and nitrogen atoms in the atmosphere and so lighting them up to form aurorae—the so-called Northern Lights.

Scientists warned that a really big solar eruption could destroy satellites and wreck power and communications grids around the globe, after the earth is hit by a once-in-a-generation “space storm”.

The Daily Telegraph disclosed in June that senior space agency scientists believed the earth will be hit with unprecedented levels of magnetic energy from solar flares after the sun wakes “from a deep slumber” sometime around 2013.

High Resolution Stereo Colour Imager selected for Mars mission

SCIENCE DAILY, 4 Aug—NASA and the European Space Agency, or ESA, have embarked on a joint program to explore Mars in the coming decades and have selected five science instruments—including one from the University of Arizona—for the first mission.

The ExoMars Trace Gas Orbiter, scheduled to launch in 2016, is the first of three joint robotic missions to the Red Planet.

It will study the chemical makeup of the martian atmosphere with a 1,000-fold increase in sensitivity over previous Mars orbiters.

The mission will focus on trace gases, including methane, which could be potentially geochemical or biological in origin and be indicators for the existence of life on Mars.

It also will serve as an additional communications relay for Mars surface missions beginning in 2018.

A stereo camera called the High Resolution Stereo Colour Imager, or HiSCI, operated by the UA, will be a part of the orbiter.

New tool for improving switchgrass

CALIFORNIA, 4 Aug—Agricultural Research Service (ARS) scientists have developed a new tool for deciphering the genetics of a native prairie grass being widely studied for its potential as a biofuel. The genetic map of switchgrass, published by Christian Tobias, a molecular biologist at the ARS Western Regional Research Center in Albany, Calif., and his colleagues, is expected to speed up the search for genes that will make the perennial plant a more viable source of bioenergy.

Switchgrass is now grown as a cattle feed and to restore depleted soils. But interest in using it as a biofuel has intensified in recent years because it can be burned to produce electricity and, like corn stalks, can be converted to ethanol. It also grows on marginal lands, is adaptable to different regions, and—as a perennial—does not need to be replanted each year, which means lower energy costs and less runoff.

To assemble the genetic map, the team crossed a commercial variety of switchgrass known as Kanlow with an ARS-developed variety known as Alamo to produce 238 plants. They extracted DNA from that population and assembled a map based on more than 1,000 genetic markers that could each be attributed to one parent or the other.

Astronauts to repair cooling system at ISS on Friday

NASA image shows the International Space Station in 2009. A failure of the cooling system on the International Space Station forced astronauts to route power Sunday as NASA planned emergency spacewalks to fix the problem.

WASHINGTON, 4 Aug—Two astronauts aboard the International Space Station will conduct the first of two spacewalks on Friday to replace a failed ammonia pump module at the station, NASA said on Tuesday.

The pump failed over the weekend and took down the operation of the mission’s cooling system, which keeps electronic equipment from overheating.

The spacewalk was originally planned for Thursday. But after continuing to analyze and refine engineering requirements, and reviewing the results of an underwater practice session, NASA rescheduled it.

The second spacewalk is set for Monday. During the spacewalks, astronauts Doug Wheelock and Tracy Caldwell Dyson, both flight engineers, will replace the pump module, hook up electrical connections and fluid lines.
Sri Lanka to introduce national policy on non-communicable diseases

COLOMBO, 4 Aug— The Sri Lankan government will introduce a national policy on non-communicable diseases shortly, a senior government minister said on Tuesday. Maithripala Sirisena, minister of Health told reporters that the government has decided to introduce national policy for non-communicable diseases at 70 percent of death is caused by it.

“According to ministry surveys, 225 persons die every day by non-communicable diseases such as diabetes, high blood pressure, heart attacks and strokes,” Sirisena said, adding that the ministry will create awareness among people to cut down the death. He said smoking, taking alcohol, eating unhealthy food and lack of physical exercises have led to non-communicable diseases in Sri Lanka.

Sperm may be harmed by exposure to BPA

WASHINGTON, 4 Aug— In one of the first human studies of its kind, researchers have found that urinary concentrations of the controversial chemical Bisphenol A, or BPA, may be related to decreased sperm quality and sperm concentration, the University of Michigan said Tuesday in a statement. The new study suggests that more research should focus on BPA and health effects in adults, says John Meeker, assistant professor of Environmental Health Sciences at the University of Michigan School of Public Health. Mercojur summit vows to reduce economic inequality in L.America

SAN JUAN, 4 Aug— South American Leaders agreed on an integral approach of development Tuesday at the 39th summit of the Common Market of the South (Mercosur).

They voiced support for a vision for development that reduces poverty and inequality while placing equality at the center of all the efforts to bring more benefits to the Latin American people, according to a document signed at the summit. The document, prepared by the Economic Commission for Latin America and the Caribbean (ECLAC) and titled “The Time of Equality, Gaps to close, roads to open...” was signed by Argentine President Cristina Fernandez, Brazilian President Luiz Inacio Lula da Silva, Paraguayan President Fernando Lugo and Uruguayan President Jose Mujica, as well as Venezuelan Foreign Minister Nicolas Maduro who was representing Venezuelan President Hugo Chavez.

At the 2-3 Aug Mercojur event in San Juan, Argentina, ECLAC Executive Secretary Alicia Barcena stressed the importance of closing the historical gaps of inequality still existing in the region. —Xinhua

Wall Street dips, dollar falls on weak economic data

NEW YORK, 4 Aug— Wall Street dipped on Tuesday as the latest earnings and economic data failed to impress investors. The Commerce Department reported that personal spending and incomes were flat in June, while the personal savings rate rose to the highest level in nearly a year. The lack of growth for spending and incomes added to evidence that US consumers were more reluctant to spend amid high unemployment and an “unusually uncertain” economic outlook.

Meanwhile, another report from the Commerce Department showed factory orders dropped 1.2 percent in June, more than economists had predicted.

Data on housing market continued to disappoint. The National Association of Realtors said pending home sales fell 2.6 percent in June as fewer buyers appeared to be in the market after the expiration of federal tax incentives.

June’s figure represented an 18.6-per cent drop from the same month a year earlier. Economists had expected a gain of 4 percent. —Xinhua

Are Americans now more honest about their weight?

ATLANTA, 4 Aug— Are Americans becoming more honest about their weight? That theory could explain why the gap appears to be closing in what people say they weigh and what actual measurements report. A new government telephone survey released on Tuesday puts the adult obesity rate at nearly 27 percent and rising. A more scientific survey has already said the rate is 34 percent and holding steady. Experts believe the 27 percent is probably an underestimate because it’s based on what people say. People tend to say they weigh less than they actually do and say they are taller than they are.

“It is possible people are paying more attention to their weight and reporting it more accurately,” said Dietz, director of the CDC’s Division of Nutrition, Physical Activity and Obesity. —Internet

A panel of experts advising the US Food and Drug Administration voted Thursday against approving for sale a new obesity treatment called Qnexa, citing safety risks. While a high percentage of Americans are overweight or obese, there are few medical treatments.

Data sorting world record falls: Computer scientists break terabyte sort barrier in 60 seconds

SAN DIEGO, 4 Aug—Computer scientists from the University of California, San Diego broke “the terabyte barrier”— and a world record — when they sorted more than one terabyte of data (1,000 gigabytes or 1 million megabytes) in just 60 seconds. During this 2010 “Sort Benchmark” competition — the “World Cup of data sorting” — the computer scientists from the UC San Diego Jacobs School of Engineering also tied a world record for fastest data sorting rate. They sorted one trillion data records in 172 minutes — and did so using just a quarter of the computing resources of the other record holder.

Companies looking for trends, efficiencies and other competitive advantages have turned to the kind of heavy duty data sorting that requires the hardware muscle typical of data centers. The Internet has also created many scenarios where data sorting is critical. —Internet

To break the terabyte barrier for the Indy Minute Sort, the computer science researchers built a system made up of 52 computer nodes. Each node is a commodity server with two quad-core processors, 24 gigabytes (GB) memory and sixteen 500 GB disks — all inter-connected by a Cisco Nexus 5020 switch. Cisco donated the switches as a part of their research engagement with the UC San Diego Center for Networked Systems. The compute cluster is hosted at Calit2. INTERNET

Two Chinese firms win Nepal Telecom’s NGN contract

KATHMANDU, 4 Aug—Nepal Telecom (NT) has awarded a contract to ZTE and Huawei to work on a package basis to supply equipment to install the Next Generation Network (NGN) in the country, according to local media on Wednesday.

The two Chinese firms will start work on 19 million US dollars project soon to make the service available by setting up the necessary infrastructure probably within the next six months. “A board meeting held on Monday decided to award the contract to ZTE and Huawei on a package basis,” said Pramod Kumar Gurung, an NT board member.

“Under Package A, ZTE will work to make the NGN service available in the Kathmandu Valley while Huawei will work elsewhere in the country under Package B.” As many as 10 international firms had submitted proposals to supply equipment for the NGN. However, the bids of only four including ZTE and Huawei had been studied by NT’s evaluation committee.

Japan to fund five new libraries in Colombia

BOGOTA, 4 Aug—Japan will fund the construction of five new libraries in Colombia, the Culture Ministry said on Tuesday.

Under an agreement signed by Culture Minister Paula Moreno and Japanese ambassador Tatsumaro Terazawa, Japan will donate 481,000 US dollars to Colombia to build five libraries in different regions of the country.

The Japanese envoy said he hopes the libraries will help Colombian children “cultivate a reading habit and enjoy reading.”

Moreno said the government has carried out at least 100 similar projects in recent years, which has helped reduce the country’s illiteracy population.

According to Travesia, a website detailing Colombia’s library network, 20 percent of Colombians are completely illiterate partly due to the lack of materials for public reading in urban and rural communities.

Record rainfall hit China’s NE border river basins

CHANGCHUN, 4 Aug—China’s border rivers with the Democratic People’s Republic of Korea (DPRK) and Russia have received record-high rainfall, and more rains forecast would worsen the flooding, the weather bureau in northeast Jilin Province said Wednesday.

The Yalu and Tumen rivers have received the highest precipitation in local meteorological history, reaching 256.5 millimeters and 147 millimeters, respectively, in the past two weeks. The figures were 213 and 230 percent more, respectively, than normal years, said the weather station.

More rains would further inundate the river basins over the next two days.

Floods since July 20 have left 74 people dead and 71 missing in Jilin. Torrential rains have disrupted the lives of nearly 4.6 million people in the province, forcing the evacuation of more than 784,000 people.

Thousands affected by floods in S Philippines

COTABATO, 4 Aug—Thousands of people have been displaced following a flash flood caused by heavy downpour over the past few days in southern Philippines, a local official said on Wednesday.

Over 14,000 people have evacuated in the town of Pagalungan as floods caused by continuous heavy rains hit their villages, said mayor Norodin Matalam.

“As of Now, there were no reported casualties. Farm crops in some regions were destroyed. The Department of Social Welfare and Development have already provided people with relief assistance,” Matalam said.

Earlier this week, at least 8,200 families were also affected by floods in Sultan Kudarat town.

The local disaster control department is closely monitoring the situation and preparing for mass evacuation of the affected residents if the situation worsens.

Pakistani flood survivors salvage little they have

AMPAROONA, 4 Aug—Relief efforts in Paki-stan’s flood-ravaged northwest picked up pace on Monday, but survivors complained about govern-ment inaction — a worrying sign for authori-ties seeking public sup-port for the fight against militants in the region. Around 300 people blocked a major road in the hard-hit Nowshera district to protest at receiving little or no aid, witnesses said. Other sur-vivors returned to devas-tated villages, wading through waist-high waters to salvage chairs, plates and other possessions — a wall clock, a battered fridge — from beneath mud and debris.

Gulf seafood declared safe; fishermen not so sure

VENICE, 4 Aug—Seafood from some parts of the oil-louled Gulf of Mexico has been declared safe to eat by the government, based in part on human smell tests. But even some Gulf fishermen are questioning whether the fish and shrimp are OK to feed to their own families. Some are turning up their noses at the smell tests — in which inspectors sniff seafood for chemical odors — and are demanding more thorough testing to reassure the buying public about the effects of the oil and the dispersants used to fight the slick.

“If I put fish in a barrel of water and poured oil and Dove detergent over that, and mixed it up, would you eat that fish?” asked Rusty Graybill, an oysterman and shrimp and crab fisherman from Louisiana’s St Bernard Parish. “I wouldn’t feed it to you or my fam-ily. I’m afraid someone’s going to get sick.”

Coast Guard intercepts 323 migrants from Haiti

MIAMI, 4 Aug—The US Coast Guard repatriated 323 Haitian migrants on Mon-day after intercepting them aboard two overloaded sailboats in Bahamian waters, northwest of Haiti’s northern coast, a Coast Guard officer said. The operations since Friday were the largest interceptions at sea of would-be migrants from the poor Caribbean state since it was devastated by an earthquake on 12 January that wrecked the capital Port-au-Prince and killed up to 300,000 people.

Attempts by Haitians to reach the United States illegally in small unsanitary boats had appeared to drop off following the earthquake, both because of the impact of the disaster and because of the presence of US military warships supporting a huge international relief effort during several months.—Internet

Two Germans set out on an unusual summer holiday, beginning a 500 km (311 miles) swim down a river from central Germany to the North Sea with seven pet ducks.

Sharp curve in Maine nets another big fish spill

There’s something fishy in Whiting, Maine.

For the third time, a fish truck has accidently dumped its load in Esther MacLaughlin’s front yard, located on a sharp turn near the intersection of Route 189 and Route 1.

Maine State Police say a truck carrying at least 22,000 pounds of lobster-bait herring overturned on the curve Saturday, spilling its cargo and injuring the driver.

Trooper Andrew Foss tells the Bangor Daily News the driver blew a tire as he drove through the curve, causing the truck to flip on its side. The driver was hospitalized with leg injuries. The truck sustained $25,000 in damage.

Robin McPhail says her mother lives near a bad intersection, calling it “a really bad corner” with many accidents.

Bayern hit by Robben injury blow

BERLIN, 4 Aug—German champions Bayern Munich suffered a major blow on Tuesday when star Dutchman and Bundesliga player of last season Arjen Robben was ruled out for two months because of a left thigh injury.

Bayern could seek compensation as they believe it is an aggravation of the injury the 26-year-old suffered prior to the World Cup finals playing in a friendly for Holland against Hungary—though he recovered sufficiently to play a decisive part in the Netherlands’ march to the final.

“This diagnosis came as a shock,” said Robben, following the diagnosis by team doctor Hans-Wilhelm Muller-Wohlfahrt which along with an MRI revealed a hole of about five centimetres in the muscle.

Money can’t buy the title, Kalou warns City

LONDON, 4 Aug—Chelsea forward Salomon Kalou on Tuesday warned rivals Manchester City that their spending spree will not guarantee them the Premier League title.

City boss Roberto Mancini spent £70 million pounds (84 million euros) on signing Yaya Toure, Jerome Boateng, Alexander Kolarov and David Silva as he looks to take the league title from Chelsea.

Kalou thinks City will improve on their fifth place last season, but insists their new arrivals will take time to find their feet before the team can win the championship.

“It doesn’t mean because you bring in 10 new players that you will be top of the table,” the 24-year-old said on chelseafc.com.

“There are teams like Man United, Chelsea and Arsenal who will always be near the top.

“Manchester City will do great because they have brought some good players in but at the end of the day it’s what happens on the pitch, and having new players doesn’t guarantee a win.”—Internet

Chili peppers may come with blood pressure benefits

“We found that long-term dietary consumption of capsaicin, one of the most abundant components in chili peppers, could reduce blood pressure in genetically hypertensive rats,” said Zhiming Zhu of Third Military Medical University in Chongqing, China.

Those effects depend on the chronic activation of something called the transient receptor potential vanilloid 1 (TRPV1) channel found in the lining of blood vessels. Activation of the channel leads to an increase in production of nitric oxide, a gaseous molecule known to protect blood vessels against inflammation and dysfunction, Zhu explained.—Internet
