Hot summer increases electricity use in Toronto

Toronto, 8 Aug—Residents in Canada’s largest city have been using much more electricity this summer than in the same period of last year, according to a report released by Toronto Hydro-Electric System Limited (Toronto Hydro) on Friday. Electricity consumption is up largely due to air conditioning loads. As a result, people in Toronto overall have used more than 12 percent more power this summer than last. Consumption for residential customers is up more than 18 percent. The highest temperature of the year was recorded in the evening of June 15, which was 36.8 degrees Celsius. For comparison, the 30-year average for the highest June temperature is 30.6 degrees Celsius.

Apple to set up Japan Web warning on problem iPods

Tokyo, 8 Aug—After prodding from the Japanese government, Apple Inc will post prominent notices on its website warning that some iPod Nano music players may overheat. Sixty-one cases of batteries overheating have been reported in first-generation iPod Nano machines sold in 2005 and 2006, according to Japan’s Ministry of Economy, Trade and Industry. Some units were warped by the heat that caused minor burns when people touched them, but no serious injuries or damage have been reported, it said. Apple spokesman Tom Neumayr said an easily accessible webpage will be set up by early next week that outlines how to get a battery replacement.

Apple will also send e-mails to registered owners, he said in a telephone interview from Cupertino, Calif. “Safety is the highest priority for Apple,” said Neumayr. The ministry said 1.8 million first-generation iPod Nano players have been sold in Japan, but it is unclear how many of those have the problem battery.

HP CEO ouster leaves leadership hole

San Francisco, 8 Aug—The ouster of Hewlett-Packard Co’s CEO leaves a hole in the world’s largest technology company.

Mark Hurd engineered a stunning turnaround of the Silicon Valley stalwart. Under Hurd, HP has spent more than $20 billion on acquisitions to transform itself from a computer and printer maker dependent on ink sales for profits to a well-rounded seller of hardware and lucrative business services.

HP’s market value nearly doubled during his five years. The company is suddenly leaderless as it stands at a turning point to integrate some of those acquisitions, the most recent of which was the purchase of smart phone maker Palm Inc. for $1.4 billion in June.

Hurd was forced to resign on Friday after HP’s board of directors said Hurd falsified expenses to hide numerous private dinners with a woman who was paid up to $5,000 per event to greet people and make introductions among executives attending HP events that she helped organize.

Paraguayan President Fernando Lugo has cancer

Paraguayan President Fernando Lugo, front, leaves a hospital after a surgery in one of his legs in Asuncion, Paraguay, on Wednesday, 4 Aug, 2010.

PARAGUAY, 4 Aug — Paraguayan President Fernando Lugo has been diagnosed with cancer but his prognosis is good, doctors said Saturday. Physicians found non-Hodgkin lymphoma in a growth they removed from Lugo’s groin last week, hematologist Alfredo Boccia said. The cancer affects the lymphocytes, or white blood cells. Lugo will likely have to undergo chemotherapy treatments every three weeks, Boccia said, adding that the cancer “is absolutely treatable and curable.”

Doctors found a second tumor but due to its location near Lugo’s lungs and other vital organs, at the moment they consider it too risky to remove. Boccia said. He said Lugo will be admitted to a hospital in Sao Paulo for more thorough tests on Tuesday. Brazilian President Luiz Inacio Lula da Silva is sending a plane for Lugo, his personal physician, Nestor Martinez, told a news conference on Saturday.

“He will be able to continue performing his duties ... even as he is receiving treatment.”

Public Health Minister Esperanza Martinez told reporters on Friday night.

Exports of traditional Chinese medicine reaches 1.46 billion US dollars

BEIJING, 8 Aug — Exports of traditional Chinese medicine (TCM) in the global market were valued at 1.46 billion US dollars, Wang Guoqiang, director of the State Administration of TCM , said on Saturday.

Wang, also vice minister of the health ministry, said the number of countries and regions which recognize the advantages and special features of TCM in treating modern diseases were on the rise and many countries were seeking cooperation with China on TCM.

Traditional Chinese medicines are mostly mixtures of a number of ingredients or medical plants such as herbs, which makes them much more difficult to explain and analyze in a quantitative sense than western drugs.

One major obstacle Chinese drug firms face when obtaining market approval in the US and European countries is how to explain how traditional Chinese medicines work using a scientific language that appeals to Westerners.

EU’s $580 billion safety fund up and running

BRUSSELS, 8 Aug— A European Union financial stability fund with the potential to raise up to 440 billion euros ($580 billion) to help EU countries weather debt problems is now fully operational, officials said on Friday.

With financial markets stabilising after the worst of the Greek-inspired debt crisis and Athens itself getting a positive report from European Union and International Monetary Fund officials this week, it is hoped the fund will never be tapped.

The fund — officially called the European Financial Stability Facility — was agreed by EU leaders in June and is effectively underwritten by all 27 EU member states.

It became fully operational on 2-4 August when Italy committed its 2010 budget to providing guarantees, EFSF officials said.

“I am pleased that the euro zone member states have taken the final step to set up the EFSF,” Klaus Regling, the chief executive of the fund, said in a statement.

The EFSF is fully operational now and can, if necessary, issue bonds with the help of the German Debt Office, which would be guaranteed by the euro area member states.

While the fund, headquartered in Luxembourg, is operational, it has still not received a credit rating, which will be critical to determining how much it has to pay when issuing debt — if it ever has to do so.

The bill will be sold to the public from 9 to 11 Aug, and become tradable in the exchange markets since 13 Aug, according to the statement. The interest is to be calculated on 9 August.

This is the 10th batch of its kind launched by the ministry this year.

Net income falls 40 percent at Buffett’s company

OMAHA, 8 Aug— Warren Buffett’s company reported a 40 percent drop in second-quarter profit on Friday because the improvement of Berkshire Hathaway Inc.’s operating companies couldn’t overcome $1.4 billion in paper losses on derivative contracts. Berkshire’s strong performances from its railroad, insurance and manufacturing businesses was overshadowed by the plummeting value of the Omaha company’s derivatives — many of which are tied to the value of four major stock markets. “To me, the overall picture is strong,” said Andy Kilpatrick, the stockbroker-author of “Of Permanent Value, the Story of Warren Buffett.”

“I do think the derivatives mask the underlying thing a lot.”

Berkshire reported $1.97 billion net income, or $1.195 per Class A share. That’s down from $3.123 billion, or $2.123 per share, a year ago.

Its revenue grew 7 percent to $31.7 billion.

Health tips: Three tips for choosing a health-care plan

With health-care reform one of the hot-button issues of the year, many consumers are searching for answers about what the changes will mean when it comes to choosing the right plan.

FOXBusiness.com asked Laura Casey, author of “How to Get the Health Care You Want,” for some tips on selecting the perfect fit.

FOXBusiness.com: What should people look for when shopping for new plans?

Casey: Do the math involved in figuring out potential costs for each plan. Figure out what is the worst-of-the-worst total pocket outlay. Figure out for each plan: “If I get really sick, how much money will that cost me and my family for a calendar year?”

FOXBusiness.com: What are some things often wrongly overlooked when one is choosing a new plan?

Casey: If you have your doctor already, you want to make sure they are in the network associated with [your new] plan. If not, you need to see if that the plan is broad enough to include doctors where you live. In general, if you pick a major player, their networks are going to be big enough. It costs you a lot more if they are not in the network. You have to read the fine print as boring as it is. You have to pay attention to what the plan excludes.

FOXBusiness.com: Where do you see the general direction of health care in the future, in terms of choice level?

Casey: I am hoping it is easier [to navigate] ... and more transparent for the consumer, but I still have to pay attention to what the plan excludes.

Worst-case assumption in property risk tests does not signal policy

BEIJING, 8 Aug—China’s banking regulator on late Thursday said the hypothetical situations in the risk tests of banks, such as a possible slump in property prices, does not indicate the regulator’s judgment on the property market nor possible changes in government property policies.

The China Banking Regulatory Commission (CBRC) reaffirmed in an online statement that it allows banks in regions with soaring property prices to suspend loans for third homes according to their assessment on credit risks.

The CBRC also said the down payment and the lending rate for third homes mortgage loans should be raised, but the specific amount should be determined by banks.

The declaration was made in response to domestic reports that the CBRC had ordered banks in Beijing, Shanghai, Shenzhen, and Hangzhou to stop issuing loans to third home buyers.

According to Bloomberg’s Thursday report, the banking regulator had told lenders to include worst-case scenarios of prices dropping 50 to 60 percent in cities where they have risen excessively, which signaled that the government might be growing more concerned about the health of the real estate market.

Apple exec leaving in wake of iPhone four problems

SAN FRANCISCO, 8 Aug—An Apple Inc. executive whose responsibilities include iPhone hardware is leaving the company in the wake of antenna problems with the latest version of the smartphone.

Apple was forced to offer a free fix after consumers complained and numerous media outlets reported a problem with dropped calls.

Mark Papermaster, Apple’s senior vice president of iPhone and iPod hardware engineering, is leaving the company, according to Apple spokesman Steve Dowling.

Dowling wouldn’t comment beyond a brief statement or say whether Papermaster was fired or is leaving voluntarily.

Papermaster’s departure comes weeks after Apple announced it will give free protective cases to buyers of its latest iPhone model to alleviate the so-called “death grip” problem: holding the phone with a bare hand can muffle the wireless signal.

APEC ascertains reforms for balanced growth in the region

TOKYO, 8 Aug—The Asia-Pacific Economic Cooperation (APEC) forum highlighted the need for structural reforms and cooperation with the Group of 20 major economies to realize balanced growth in the region during a high-level meeting in Beppu in southwestern Japan, local media reported on Saturday.

The idea was agreed on by the representatives of the 21-member economies as they gathered in Oita Prefecture for a two-day discussion on a long-term comprehensive growth strategy, which is aimed to secure balanced and sustainable economic growth in the region following the global financial crisis triggered in 2008, Kyodo News reported.

Balanced growth aims to unwind imbalances within and across APEC economies through macroeconomic policies and structural reforms and is part of the five aspects the strategy would focus on. The four other pillars are inclusive, sustainable, innovative and secure growth, according to Kyodo News. APEC involves such members as Australia, China, Japan and the United States. It accounts for more than half the world’s economic output and 44 percent of its trade by value.

Google buys social networking application maker Slide

SAN FRANCISCO, 8 Aug—Google on Friday announced that it has bought hot online networking application maker Slide as part of a drive to “make Google services socially aware.”

Slide is the San Francisco-based startup behind playful or practical applications such as SuperPoke and FunSpace that have become hits on Facebook and other social networking websites.

“This is a really exciting day for me and my team, but this also marks an exciting development for the social Web,” Slide founder Max Levchin said in a message posted on the home page of the firm’s website.

“This is a tremendous opportunity for the two companies to come together and change the way people socialize on the Web.”

Levchin, a co-founder of PayPal online financial transactions service, launched Slide in 2005.

“As the Slide team joins Google, we’ll be investing even more to make Google services socially aware and expand these capabilities for our users across the web,” Google engineering director David Glazer said in a blog post.

“We’re working to develop open, transparent and interesting (and fun!) ways to allow our users to take full advantage of how technology can bring them closer to friends and family and provide useful information just for them.”

Financial terms of the deal were not disclosed.

Myanmar and ASEAN

Myanmar became member of ASEAN on 23 July 1997 after 30 years when ASEAN was founded on 8 August, 1967. Myanmar has signed TAC in July 1995 before its full membership. By signing TAC, which is the most important Treaty of ASEAN, Myanmar participated in ASEAN as observer.

Myanmar, before its full membership to ASEAN, also signed SEANWFZ Treaty at the 5th ASEAN Summit held in Bangkok in December 1995 along with other Southeast Asian countries.

After its membership, Myanmar actively participated in ASEAN activities, including political, social and security areas.

With the realization of an ASEAN Community by 2015 in accordance with the ASEAN Charter, the three main pillars—ASEAN Political-Security Community (APSC), ASEAN Economic Community (AEC) and ASEAN Socio-Cultural Community (ASCC)—action plans are being actively implemented by ASEAN Member States. Myanmar along with other ASEAN family member countries is also striving for the achievement of these noble objectives.

Oakland airman’s remains to be buried in SF

OAKLAND, 8 Aug — The remains of an American service member from Oakland, missing in action from World War II, have been identified and will be returned to his family for burial with full military honors in San Francisco next week, the Department of Defense announced on Friday.

No need to delay pregnancy after miscarriage

LONDON, 8 Aug — Women who have had a miscarriage do not need to wait before trying to get pregnant again, say doctors. A study by the University of Aberdeen of 30,000 women found that conceiving within six months offered the best chance for a healthy pregnancy. The findings, published in the British Medical Journal, counter international guidelines that women should wait at least six months before trying again. Doctors said the study would help them reassure and advise patients.

The researchers looked at data between 1981 and 2000 relating to women who had a miscarriage in their first pregnancy before going on to become pregnant again. Women who conceived within six months were less likely to have another miscarriage, termination or ectopic pregnancy, the figures showed. — Internet

An attempted burglary at a California supply store was thwarted when the manager threw hot coffee in the face of a masked intruder.

Chris Hegnes, manager of the Englund Marine and Industrial Supply, was going into work early Monday morning when he encountered a man in a mask charging at him with a hammer. Hegnes says he hurled his hot mocha at the man’s face and ran for it.

Hegnes says the man apparently had been trying to break into a safe using the store’s hardware tools. The man didn’t get away with much, but damaged some tools.

Brazen black bear breaks into Montana houses

A brazen black bear with a late-night hankering for supreme pizza surprised a Montana resident last week, and it’s not the first time the animal has eluded capture.

The bear is believed responsible for about 21 break-ins in the Red Lodge area in south-central Montana over the past few weeks.

In the most recent heist, Marek Rosin said he awoke at 1:30 am on 29 July to find the bear had pushed open the door to his back porch and was raiding his chest freezer.

“He was about four feet from me with his head in the freezer munching on a pizza,” Rosin said. “It was almost comical if it wouldn’t have been that close.” Rosin scared the bear off before it could eat anything more.

Most of the break-ins involve the bear climbing through a screened window or breaking through a screen door to access refrigerators or freezers, said Shawn Stewart, a Fish, Wildlife and Parks biologist.

Stewart said he thinks a single adult black bear is causing most of the problems. Two culvert traps were set up, but the bear has avoided them. Another bear was captured and relocated.

Stewart said he thinks a single adult black bear is causing most of the problems. Two culvert traps were set up, but the bear has avoided them. Another bear was captured and relocated.

Tony Judt, author of ‘Postwar,’ dies at 62

New York, 8 Aug — Tony Judt, highly praised and controversial historian who wrote with sharp persistence about the changing world at large and the tragic world within—the fatal disease that paralyzed him—died on Friday at his home in New York City. Judt, a native of London who in recent years was a professor of European studies at New York University, was 62. His death, caused by complications of amyotrophic lateral sclerosis, known as Lou Gehrig’s Disease, was confirmed by a university spokesman.

A Pulitzer Prize finalist in 2006 for his nearly 900-page history of modern Europe, “Postwar,” Judt was diagnosed two years later with ALS, which attacks nerve cells in the brain and the spinal cord and destroys the ability to move and speak.

Emma Thompson receives star on Walk of Fame

Los Angeles, 8 Aug—British actress, comedienne and screenwriter Emma Thompson has become the latest addition to the landmark Hollywood Walk of Fame, receiving the 2,416th star in a ceremony held on Friday.

“IT’s so appropriate this is outside of a pub,” Thompson said of her star on Hollywood Boulevard-rd. “It’s the last thing you step on before you get your first drink and the last thing you step on when you reel out.”

The Oscar-winning actress, 51, dedicated her star to her late father, Eric Thompson, an English actor, writer and director. “He was a wonderful man and a great inspiration to me,” Thompson noted. “He inspired me to write for children without writing for children.”

Premiership survival the goal for promoted teams

London, 8 Aug—Newcastle, West Bromwich Albion and Blackpool face a baptism of fire in their return to the Premier League and all three promoted clubs enter the new season with survival on their minds.

After a single-season absence, Championship winners Newcastle will have little time to find their feet as they travel to Manchester United on 16 August, where they have not won in the league for almost 40 years.

Chris Hughton’s side look the best-equipped of the three Premier League new boys to survive this season, although the manager’s task has been made more difficult by the refusal of Mike Ashley, the club’s multi-millionaire owner, to spend significant amounts in the transfer market.—Internet

Ferguson casts his eye over Oxlade-Chamberlain

London, 8 Aug—Manchester United manager Sir Alex Ferguson cast an eye over Germany midfielder Mesut Oxlade-Chamberlain in a friendly defeat against Fulham on Saturday.

Ferguson has claimed he is happy to give his youngsters a chance this season but the Scot, in London for Sunday’s Community Shield clash with Chelsea, still turned up at Craven Cottage to look at potential transfer targets.

The Scot has been linked with Oxlade since his impressive displays for Unseeded at the World Cup, but he didn’t have much opportunity to look at the 21-year-old at his best as Fulham cruised home thanks to Zoltan Gera’s hat-trick. Arsenal won an extraordinary friendly clash with Legia Warsaw in Poland as the Gunners came from 3-0 down to win 6-5.—Internet

Champions Marseille slump as PSG ride high

Paris, 8 Aug—French champions Marseille slumped to a shock defeat to newcomers Caen as Paris Saint Germain got off to a flying start to sit top of Ligue 1 after the first day of the season on Saturday.

Marseille landed their first title success since 1992 last term but Didier Deschamps’ side were reeling after falling 2-1 at home to the Normandy side.

Lyon, last season’s runners-up, also failed to sparkle as they were held to a goalless draw at home to Monaco, as Auxerre, third last time out, were held 2-2 by Lorient.

By contrast Paris Saint Germain came through 3-1 winners against visiting St Etienne to give the side from the shadow of the side that won the Ligue 1 title last season, with Ligue 2 winners Caen looking more dangerous as Nicolas Seube gave them the lead after 53 minutes at the Stade Velodrome.—Internet

Kuznetsova, Radwanska to square off in San Diego final

Carlsbad, 8 Aug—Two-time Grand Slam champion Svetlana Kuznetsova beat fifth-seeded Flavia Pennetta 6-4, 6-0 to reach the final of the 700,000-dollar San Diego Open final.

The Russian will be playing in her first WTA final since a victory in Beijing last October, and she’ll face the same opponent as she did then: Poland’s Agnieszka Radwanska.

Radwanska, the fourth seed, defeated Slovakian Daniela Hantuchova 6-2, 6-2 to earn her first trip to a final since Beijing 10 months ago.

Kuznetsova, who won the BNP Paribas Open in Indian Wells after failing to number 21 in the world, Kuznetsova displayed her powerful forehand and capitalized on Pennetta’s unprepossessing service game to win nine of the last 10 games.—Internet

Namkyan Dam in Lashio Township to supply irrigation and potable water

As part of the drive for expeditious harness of land and water sources in the public interest, the Ministry of Agriculture and Irrigation has been building dams and multipurpose dams to scale up agricultural work.

Lashio Township in Shan State (North) faces scarcity of potable water in summer. So, it is in greater need of irrigation water for extensive agricultural farming and adequate freshwater supply for growing urban population. In order to help address the issue, Namkyan Dam Project is being implemented by damming the Namkyan Creek, about two and a half miles south of the township.

Lashio Township gets an average annual rainfall of 50 inches. So, the project is designed to store as much rainwater as it can get in the rainy season for ensuring uninterruptible supply of irrigation water to farmlands and safe water to urban people.

Therefore, it will have to supply water to 20 water tanks whenever urban areas are in need of safe water. With a catchment area of three square miles, the dam will have to irrigate about 180 acres of farmlands. So, double cropping pattern will be launched soon in the irrigated areas.

On completion, the facility will be able to supply 92 million gallons of potable water to urban people, and prevent floods on the highway, in the precinct of the Yantaingaung Pagoda, and in low-lying areas of Kyauktaung Ward and Ward (1).
