Nigerian military rescue 19 oil delta hostages

LAGOS, 18 Nov—Nigeria’s military rescued 19 hostages including foreigners being held by militants in the Niger Delta oil region in a land, air and sea operation on Wednesday, security sources said.

Those freed included two Americans, two Frenchmen, two Indonesians and a Canadian taken from an Afron oil rig, eight Nigerians abducted from an Exxon Mobil platform and four others, two sources involved in the operation said.

“It was a land, air and marine assault. They have told Reuters, asking not to be named due to the sensitive nature of the operation.

The release of the hostages is a boost for President Goodluck Jonathan ahead of elections next April. As the first Nigerian head of state from the Niger Delta and the man who brokered an amnesty with militants in the region last year, resurgent unrest risked undermining his credibility.

The military taskforce responsible for security in the vast wetlands region, the heartland of Africa’s biggest oil and gas industry, said earlier it was carrying out several operations simultaneously across the Niger Delta but gave no details.

A military spokesman declined to comment further on the operation or confirm whether the hostages had been freed, saying a statement would be issued on Thursday.

There was no immediate comment from the companies whose employees were abducted.

South Korean military boat sinks, three dead

SEOUL, 18 Nov—A South Korean Army boat capsized during a training exercise on Wednesday, killing three soldiers, in the third fatal accident involving a military craft inside a week.

A Defence Ministry official said the small boat with eight soldiers on board overturned in the Namhan River near Yeoju, about 100 kilometers (60 miles) southeast of Seoul.

Last Friday a South Korean surveillance plane crashed near the southeastern city of Jeonju, killing the two pilots.

A day earlier, a South Korean navy ship sank after colliding with a fishing boat, leaving one sailor dead.

Germany raises security alert after attack warnings

BERLIN, 18 Nov—Germany said on Wednesday it had strong evidence militants were planning attacks in the next two weeks and ordered security at potential targets such as train stations and airports to be tightened.

Interior Minister Thomas de Maiziere said details of the plot emerged after parcel bombs were dispatched from Yemen to US targets at the end of October, and separate postal bombs by suspected Greek militants were sent to prominent figures including Chancellor Angela Merkel.

At a news conference hastily convened at his ministry in Berlin, de Maiziere said the security threat in Germany had risen and that intelligence services had received concrete indications that attacks were planned at the end of November.

“There are grounds for concern but not for hysteria,” said the minister. “We have obtained further relevant information in addition to the previous findings which justify the view that we are now dealing with a new situation.”

The government did not give details, but security officials in the capital said three suspected threats had arisen. Speaking on condition of anonymity, they said one involved senior al-Qaeda leader Younis al-Maaretani, who was planning an operation against Europe and the United States. However, it was not clear whether this involved specific attacks.

Gunmen kill five guarding Perenco oil site off Cameroon

YAOUNDE, 18 Nov—Suspected pirates in a speedboat killed five Cameroonian soldiers and security contractors in an attack near an oil facility in the Gulf of Guinea operated by French oil and gas firm Perenco, the company said on Wednesday.

The overnight attack near the company’s Moudi floating storage and offloading unit (FSO) comes after a series of recent raids on offshore oil facilities in neighbouring Nigeria, home to Africa’s biggest oil and gas industry.

“The incident tragically led to the deaths of five Cameroonian personnel, three from the Bataillon d’Intervention Rapide (BIR), a national defence force involved in the security of offshore oil and gas installations, and two civilian security contractors,” Perenco said in a statement. It said the attack was still being investigated. “People suspected to be pirates waylaid the BIR boat shortly after midnight, took them completely unaware and opened fire on them immediately,” said a local security source at the BIR office in the port town of Douala. “Before they could react, five people were already killed,” he said, adding the attack took place off the coast of the Bakassi peninsula, which lies on the border with Nigeria.

Intel Capital unveils $77 million in start-up stakes

HUNTINGTON BEACH, 18 Nov—Chipmaker Intel Corp has invested $77 million in start-ups whose focuses include cloud computing and Web-enabled television. Intel Capital, charged with backing business models that complement its Santa Clara, California parent’s long-term strategy, said it has taken new equity stakes in 18 companies.

“One of the most exciting areas that is emerging is TV being connected to the Internet,” Intel Capital president Arvind Sodhani told reporters. “We have a number of investments announced today as well as previously done that are bringing the power and the capability of the Internet, combined with TV, which allows you to watch what you want when you want it, as opposed to watching what the cable company or the network operators want you to watch when they want you to watch it,” he said.

One of Intel Capital’s new investments is in Malaysian start-up Select-TV, which sells to hotels web-enabled set-top boxes that use Intel’s Atom processor.

China and South Africa sign energy deal

CAPE TOWN, 18 Nov—Chinese Vice President Xi Jinping signed an energy deal with resource-rich South Africa on Wednesday in a visit aimed at obtaining minerals the Asian giant needs to fuel its blistering growth.

China is South Africa’s biggest bilateral trading partner and the focal point of its plan to divert more trade and investment from traditional markets in Europe and North America to the world’s fastest growing economies.

Xi, touted as China’s next president, on Tuesday began a three-day visit to Africa’s largest economy, which is seeking to reduce a deficit in trade with China that hit 2.7 billion US dollars last year, skewed in Beijing’s favour.

South African Deputy President Kgalema Motlanthe and Xi co-chaired the 4th China-South Africa bilateral commission and signed a number of agreements, including an energy deal.

No monetary details were released.

China’s government undertook to encourage more imports from South Africa, especially value added products and will urge Chinese companies to invest in infrastructure development, automotive manufacturing, energy and information and communication technology,” Motlanthe said in a statement.

South Africa has also signed a deal with China’s Yingli Solar to build a 435 million US dollars manufacturing plant with a local partner, a senior government official said.

Yingli will partner with a local company and aimed to start building the plant within 12 months.

South African exports about 5.5 billion US dollars a year in minerals to the state and has been increasingly a destination of Chinese foreign direct investment.

Food faces ‘huge’ cyber threat in the future

WASHINGTON, 18 Nov—Defence Secretary Robert Gates warned Tuesday that potential cyber attacks posed a “huge” future threat that had to be tackled through joint efforts by US military and civilian agencies. Asked to assess the danger posed to digital networks, Gates said “There is a huge future threat and there is a considerable current threat. “And that’s just the reality that we all face.”

He said the Pentagon had bolstered security for the military’s networks and hoped to do the same for defence industry contractors.

“We are working with our partners in the defense industrial base to bring them under that umbrella, to provide them with protection,” he said at a Wall Street Journal conference of chief executives. Gates said the challenge for cyber security efforts inside the United States is that resources and expertise are concentrated in the military and the National Security Agency (NSA), which raises thorny legal questions about civil liberties. —Internet

Beetles’ songs are finally available on iTunes

LOS ANGELES, 18 Nov—Nearly 50 years after the Beatles took television by storm, the Fab Four’s songs became available on iTunes on Tuesday, setting the stage for a possible new outbreak of Beatlemania — this one online.

After many a hard day’s night of negotiations, Apple announced a deal Tuesday to immediately begin selling the Beatles’ music by the song or the album. Until now, the biggest-selling, most influential group in rock history has been glaringly absent from iTunes and other legal online music services.

“The Beatles are one of those groups that parents and young people can kind of come together on, no pun intended,” said Craig Marks, editor of Billboard magazine. “There are kids and there are baby boomers and people in between who, for whatever reason, never did download those Beatles songs because they weren’t on iTunes, and now they’re going to have the opportunity to do so.”

Within hours of their availability Tuesday, eight Beatles recordings were at one point among the top 25 albums sold on iTunes, including a $149 boxed set at No 13. The eight also included “Abbey Road,” “The White Album” and “Sgt Pepper’s Lonely Hearts Club Band.”

Facebook swats bug that disabled accounts

WASHINGTON, 18 Nov—Facebook said a bug in a system designed to detect fake profiles had disabled a number of legitimate accounts on the social network.

Facebook did not say how many accounts were disabled by the bug, which primarily affected women’s accounts, according to technology blogs.

“Earlier today, we discovered a bug in a system designed to detect and disable likely fake accounts,” a Facebook spokesman said on Tuesday.

The bug, which was live for a short period of time, caused a very small percentage of Facebook accounts to be mistakenly disabled,” the spokesman said in a statement.

“Upon discovering the bug, we immediately worked to resolve it,” he said. “It’s now been fixed, and we’re in the process of reactivating and notifying the people who were affected.”

Facebook has more than 500 million members around the world.

Economy splits for Wal-Mart, Saks clientele

NEW YORK, 18 Nov—Third-quarter earnings reports from Wal-Mart Stores Inc and Saks Fifth Avenue show the far different streets their customers are living on.

Wal-Mart’s third-quarter sales in the US got squeezed as its financially strapped customers dealt with dire economic straits. Saks’ affluent clientele, encouraged by a rallying stock market, is starting to spend again, albeit in a cost-cutting programme, amounting to around six percent of its workforce.

As well as the job losses, it said it was transferring another 800 posts from its Swiss headquarters to other parts of the group and outsourcing another 700 jobs.

In total, 6,300 jobs are affected by the cost-cutting exercise which Roche first announced in September and hopes will generate 1.8 billion Swiss francs ($1.3 billion) of savings next year and 2.4 billion from 2012.

The restructuring will cost around 2.7 billion.

CHARLOTTE, 18 Nov—A quick settlement of the 50-state probe of the mortgage foreclosure crisis would be the best solution for all involved, the chief executive of Bank of America said on Tuesday.

The call for a settlement by Bank of America CEO Brian Moynihan was followed by comments from Iowa Attorney General Tom Miller, who told a Senate hearing that a settlement with lenders was still months off.

“We’re thinking in terms of months rather than a year or longer but it depends really on how far we get,” said Miller, who is heading up a probe by all 50 state attorneys general.

Banks are accused of having used “robo-signers” to sign hundreds of foreclosure documents per day without proper legal review. The allegations that banks’ use of shoddy paperwork resulted in struggling borrowers being illegally evicted from their homes reignited public anger with banks that received billions of dollars in taxpayer aid.

Experts rare earths headed for 2011 supply crunch

SYDNEY, 18 Nov—Global demand for the increasingly important “rare earth” minerals that power a range of digital products could outstrip supply by next year as dominant producer China slashes exports, analysts warn.

Australian experts say the world must find new technologies or prioritise use of the glowing or highly magnetic metals behind iPhones and flat-screen TVs, as well as eco-friendly hybrid cars, solar panels and wind turbines. “We have a classic supply and demand crisis. Under normal conditions the global demand exceeds supply in about 2011,” Professor Brent McIntyre from Curtin University in Western Australia told an online briefing last week. “In 2016, it’s quite evident that the Chinese demand itself will exceed the global supply of rare earth elements.” Demand for rare earths has soared with the popularity of smartphones and low-power light bulbs, at the same time that China, which produces 95 percent of the world’s total, is limiting exports to feed its domestic market.—Internet

Europe, IMF launch ‘urgent’ Irish rescue mission

BRUSSELS, 18 Nov—Europe and the International Monetary Fund announced the launch of an urgent mission to Dublin to finalise emergency support for Ireland’s devastated banking sector.

The arrival of experts from the European Commission, the European Central Bank and the IMF represents a further blow to Irish hopes it can ride out its debt crisis alone, although Dublin has yet to accept money.

It underlines fears among euro partners for the broader stability of the soon-to-be 17-nation currency area after a bottomless banking bailout pushed Ireland’s public deficit beyond 30 percent of output this year. As late as Monday evening, when fog-bound Irish Finance Minister Brian Lenihan arrived two hours late for crunch Brussels talks, following days of pressure driven by the ECB, his Prime Minister Brian Cowen was insisting there was no request for emergency funding.

US, China launch clean energy research initiative

SAN FRANCISCO, 18 Nov — The head of BlackBerry maker Research In Motion (RIM) fired a shot at rival Apple, slamming the notion that smartphones need “apps.”

“You don’t need an app for the Web,” RIM chief executive Jim Balsillie said during an on-stage interview at a Web 2.0 Summit in San Francisco.

“We believe you can bring the mobile to the Web,” he said, adding that the Web is “three to four times more efficient” than smartphone applications would “pass real quick.”

Balsillie gave as an example the multitude of online videos done in Flash software shunned by Apple and publicly ridiculed by Apple chief executive Steve Jobs. He predicted that the era of smartphone applications would “pass real quick.”

Applications must get Apple’s approval before being allowed into the App Store at iTunes that serves as an exclusive shop for programs for iPhones, iPads, and iPod touch media players.

“It is really not about a set of proprietary rules or about applying the Web,” Balsillie said. “The Web needs a platform that allows you to use your existing Web content, not apps.”

Bluefin tuna showdown pits economy vs ecology

PARIS, 18 Nov — Dozens of nations gathered in Paris to decide catch quotas for Atlantic bluefin tuna, a highly-prized luxury food consumed raw in Japan as sashimi or sushi.

The 10-day meeting of the International Commission for the Conservation of Atlantic Tunas (ICCAT), starting Wednesday, will seek an elusive compromise between boosting stocks of the dwindling species and salvaging a multi-billion dollar industry spread around the Mediterranean rim.

Conservationists argue that no real compromise is possible. “Bluefin tuna fishing does not have a future unless ICCAT shuts down purse-seine fishing and farming,” said Maria-Jose Cornas, an expert with advocacy group Oceana.

False killer whales are found in tropical and temperate waters worldwide. But scientists estimate only about 150 or 170 live in waters up to 87 miles off Hawaii.

HONOLULU, 18 Nov — The federal government is recommending that a small population of dolphins living near Hawaii be placed on the endangered species list.

The National Marine Fisheries Service said Tuesday it’s identified 29 threats to the population’s survival.

The agency is due to post its recommendation in the Federal Register on Wednesday.

The species is called the “false killer whale” even though it’s a dolphin and doesn’t look like a killer whale.

An agency study published in August says the small population is in danger of inbreeding and of getting caught on fishing lines.

Anti-cholesterol statin drugs may be over-prescribed

WASHINGTON, 18 Nov — Cholesterol-lowering statin medications, miracle drugs for those suffering from heart disease, may be over-prescribed as a preventative measure for healthy adults, a new study said Tuesday.

The study by cardiologists at Johns Hopkins University found that, among healthy adults, only those with measurable buildup of artery-hardening calcium would significantly benefit from the treatment.

“Our results tell us that only those with calcium buildup in their arteries have a clear benefit from statin therapy,” the study’s lead investigator Michael Blaha said in a statement.

“Those who are otherwise healthy and have no significant calcification should, with their physician, focus on aggressive lifestyle improvements instead of early initiation of statin medications,” he added.

The statin class of pharmaceuticals, including the popular cholesterol-lowering drugs Lipitor and Crestor, lowers cholesterol by blocking an enzyme in the liver.

FDA panel recommends first lupus drug in 50 years

WASHINGTON, 18 Nov — An advisory panel for the US Food and Drug Administration recommended a new drug treatment Tuesday for lupus that if approved would be the first for the disease in over 50 years.

An FDA spokeswoman said the committee voted 13-2 in favour of Benlysta, an experimental drug therapy developed by pharmaceutical companies Human Genome Sciences and GlaxoSmithKline.

The full FDA must next consider whether to approve the drug for the market, likely in December.

Typically, the agency follows the advisory panel’s recommendations.

“It is possible that BENLYSTA could receive regulatory approval in the United States before the end of 2010,” Human Genome Sciences said on its website, noting that the FDA was scheduled to take up the matter on 9 December.

There have been no new treatments in the last several decades for lupus, a disease in which the body’s immune system attacks its own organs and tissues and is most often seen in women of child-bearing age.

Symptoms can include fever, swollen joints, skin rashes and severe damage of the kidneys, lungs or central nervous system.—Internet

Child ear infections not helped much by antibiotics

WASHINGTON, 18 Nov — Using antibiotics to treat ear infections in children is only slightly more effective than offering no treatment at all, said a study published on Tuesday.

Infections of the middle ear are the most common childhood infection for which antibiotics are prescribed in the United States, said the study published in the Journal of the American Medical Association.

A 2006 study showed that an average of 350 dollars per child is spent on treating such ear infections, known as acute otitis media (AOM), for a total of 2.8 billion dollars spent per year.

But giving young ones the drugs offered only minimal benefits. “Our findings reinforce the existing knowledge that the best antibiotic treatment for common childhood ear infections may be no antibiotic treatment at all,” said lead author of the study Tumaini Coker.—Internet

Spain seeking donor for world’s first leg transplant

MADRID, 18 Nov — Doctors in Spain are looking for a suitable match from a dead donor to carry out the world’s first leg transplant, the health ministry said Tuesday.

The ministry’s transplant commission last May authorised Valencia’s Hospital de la Fe to carry out the procedure, which will involve both legs, a spokesman said.

If successful, the operation would be the first leg transplant in the world, she said, and could offer hope to millions of amputees and injured war veterans.

“They are looking for a suitable donor. We still don’t know the months or six months, it all depends on when an adequate donor is found,” the spokeswoman said.

The recipient will be a unidentified man who had both legs amputated above the knee after an accident. He faces life in a wheelchair because prosthetic limbs are not suitable for him.

Pakistan filmmakers dream of post-Taleban renaissance

Lahore, 18 Nov—Spinning tales of love and revenge packed with testosterone, filmmakers from Pakistan’s Taleban-hit northwest dream of stamping out militancy and restoring their culture to a bygone era. Coming from an area known as a Taleban stronghold infamous for Al-Qaeda and topi prayer cap, director Ajab Gul says he uses cinema to promote pride in his warrior culture and provide an outlet for young men at risk of being lured by militant mullahs.

“The young generation is illiterate and unemployed and having a lot of problems. They need to be involved,” says the 45-year-old former actor. “If you do not entertain and pay attention to the youth they will end up into terrorism.”

Filmmakers brush aside fears of militant attacks, but working with ageing equipment and desperate to keep their loss-hit industry alive, they admit the sector is in financial crisis. But it was not always that way.

Japanese spacecraft captured dust from asteroid

Tokyo, 18 Nov—A Japanese spacecraft that returned to Earth in June successfully captured dust from an asteroid for the first time in history, scientists said Tuesday.

They said an analysis of samples brought back by the Hayabusa spacecraft showed some came from an asteroid called Itokawa, which could offer insight into the creation and makeup of the solar system. It is only the fourth set of samples to be returned from space in history — including moon matter collected by the Apollo missions, comet material by Stardust, and solar matter from the Genesis mission.

The spacecraft’s capsule landed successfully in the Australian Outback in June after a seven-year, 4 billion-mile (6 billion-kilometre) journey, despite a series of technical glitches that threatened the mission.

“These results have exceeded our expectations. I’m not sure how you express something that surpasses your dreams, but I’m filled with emotion,” project chief Junichiro Kawaguchi said.

The craft was designed to shoot a bullet into the surface of the asteroid that would crush and propel material through a long tube into a sample collection container. There is no certainty the bullet actually fired, scientists say, but they believe the impact of the tube’s landing would have forced some material upward and into the collection chamber.

JAXA, the Japanese space agency, said the aim of the $200 million project was to understand more about the origin and evolution of the solar system. Scientists hope to study how and when the asteroid was formed, its physical properties, what other bodies it may have been in contact with, and how solar wind and radiation have affected it.

Experts from NASA and Australia were also involved in the mission.

Eight detained after Shanghai apartment fire kills 53

Shanghai, 18 Nov—Chinese police held eight suspects on Tuesday after a Shanghai apartment fire that killed at least 53 people was blamed on unlicensed welding, in a jolt for the growing number of people who live in high-rises in China. The fire gutted a 28-storey high-rise in China’s busy commercial hub, sending plumes of black smoke over the city.

“The fire started because someone was illegally welding on the 10th floor and the spark led to the big fire. The sparks hit the nylon mesh on the outside of the building,” Cheng Julong, deputy head of the Shanghai police, told a news conference.

He said eight people would be charged with “responsibility for a major accident”, declining to answer repeated questions about who exactly had been detained.

Pilots among those dismayed at scanners, pat-downs

Chicago, 18 Nov—Airport security stops one airline pilot because he’s carrying a butter knife. Elsewhere, crews opt for pat-down searches because they fear low-level radiation from body scanners could be harmful. And Annoyance at security hassles has been on the rise among airline crews and passengers for years, but the widespread use of full-body image detectors this year and the simultaneous introduction of more intrusive pat-downs seems to have ramped up the frustration.

As passengers have simmered over being forced to choose scans by full-body image detectors or rigorous pat-downs inspections, some airline pilots are pushing back. Much of the criticism is directed at the Transportation Security Administration.

“I would say that pilots are beyond fed up,” said Tom Walsh, a pilot and sometimes aviation security consultant. “The TSA is wasting valuable time and money searching the crew — who are not a threat.” Even one of the nation’s most celebrated pilots, Capt Chesley “Sully” Sullenberger, has detected the growing unease.

UK starts world’s first stroke stem cell trial

London, 18 Nov—Doctors in Scotland working with British biotech company ReNeuron have injected stem cells into the brain of a man in a pioneering clinical trial to test the safety of a therapy for patients disabled by stroke.

The trial is the first in the world to use neural stem cell therapy in stroke patients, its organizers said on Tuesday, and external experts said it was grounds for “cautious optimism”.

Nissan Motor employees are seen on a production line at the company’s Tochigi Plant close to Tokyo. Japan is considering joining negotiations for a free trade partnership among Asia-Pacific nations in a bid to bolster its ailing economy, the foreign minister said.

Vows of EU support but no bailout yet for Ireland

Brussels, 18 Nov — An anxiously awaited meeting of European finance ministers ended on Tuesday without an agreement to bail out Ireland’s debt-stricken government, though both Irish and EU officials vowed to stabilize the banks at the centre of the crisis and keep it from spreading to other fragile economies connected by the euro.

Ireland has taken over three banks and is expected to take over more in a bailout that has already reached euro45 billion ($61 billion) and likely will push the nation’s 2010 deficit to a staggering 32 percent of GDP. The government in Dublin insists that it doesn’t need a bailout from Europe, but growing doubts about Ireland’s ability to pay its bills have sent interest rates soaring on Irish bonds.

Representatives of the European Union, the European Central Bank and the International Monetary Fund will travel to Ireland this week to determine what to do about the banks, Irish Finance Minister Brian Lenihan said.

“Ireland is now engaging in an intensive, and disclosed, engagement in relation to the problems in the banking sector,” said Lenihan. “We will take whatever decisive measures that are required to stabilize our banking system as part of the stability of the wider eurozone.”

China fire-safety push

Shanghai, 18 Nov — China has ordered a nationwide overhaul of fire-control measures after a blaze at a Shanghai high-rise killed 53 people and highlighted the country’s chronic problem with lax safety enforcement.

The inferno in the 28-storey apartment block raged for several hours on Monday, causing panicked residents to jump or seek refuge on rickety scaffolding surrounding the building, which was being renovated.

The State Council, China’s cabinet, issued an order late Tuesday calling for a crackdown on lax observation and enforcement of fire-safety measures to “resolutely prevent and curb the occurrence of major fires.”

The Shanghai blaze was the country’s worst since a shopping mall fire in the northeastern city of Jilin also killed 53 people in February 2004, according to state media.

Australian airline Qantas hit by bird strike

Sydney, 18 Nov — A Qantas Boeing 747 had to turn back to Johannesburg after one of its engines suffered a bird strike, the airline said on Wednesday, the latest in a string of incidents to beset the Australian carrier.

Qantas said the plane’s number two engine lost power after sucking in a bird shortly after takeoff late Tuesday, with damaged turbines forcing an unplanned landing.

There were 171 passengers on board.

“The aircraft is being worked on by engineers,” a Qantas spokesman told AFP. “It’s just a bit of damage to some of the turbine blades, it’s not a huge thing.” One of Qantas’ smaller Boeing 717s was hit by lightning on a regional flight between the Australian destinations of Alice Springs and Darwin hours earlier, causing “minor damage” to the exterior.

“It’s very special to me,” William told reporters on Tuesday. “It’s my way of making sure my mother didn’t miss out on today and the excitement and the fact we are going to spend the rest of our lives together.”

The two 28-year-olds will marry in the spring or summer of 2011, 30 years after Charles and Diana’s spectacular but ultimately ill-fated wedding.

Barron returns from doping ban at Q-school

HUMBLE, 18 Nov — Doug Barron shot a 2-under 74 in the first round of the second stage of qualifying school Tuesday, his first round on the PGA Tour since his ban for violating the tour’s anti-doping policy was lifted.

“It felt great out there, the juices were flowing this morning,” Barron said. “The first couple of holes felt like the final round of a PGA Tour event. I felt totally in control of my body. Which is a good thing.”

Barron was the first player suspended under the drug policy, missing part of 2009 and most of 2010. The one-year suspension was lifted in September, with Barron granted a therapeutic use exemption for low testosterone. His lawsuit against the PGA Tour has been settled.

Euro 2012 mascots unveiled in Poland

WARSAW, 18 Nov — The mascots for the Euro 2012 football championships to be hosted by Poland and Ukraine were officially unveiled on Tuesday at a Warsaw ceremony attended by senior UEFA officials and the two national football federations.

Like Euro-2008 co-hosted by Austria and Switzerland which had their twins Trix and Flix, the 2012 mascot also features footballing brothers, each wearing a jersey in their national colours, white and red for Poland, blue and yellow for Ukraine.

As in the 2008 championship, the names of the mascots will be decided in a vote open to the public on UEFA’s official website www.uefa.com. The result will be announced on 4 December.

Capello hopes for positive end to painful 2010

LONDON, 18 Nov — Fabio Capello will bring the curtain down on a painful year for England by offering hope of a brighter future in Wednesday’s friendly against France at Wembley.

Capello ends 2010 with his previously unblemished reputation significantly tarnished by England’s abject failure at the World Cup.

The Italian appeared completely devoid of ideas as England crashed out with just one win from their four matches in South Africa, but he held onto his job despite an angry reaction from the English public and has been attempting to win back support with a cautious overhaul of his squad.

England’s manager, Fabio Capello, hosts a press conference following a team training session at Wembley.

Portugal fired up for Spain football friendly

PARIS, 18 Nov — Portugal host world champions and neighbours Spain Wednesday in a friendly match aimed at promoting the countries’ joint bid for the 2018 World Cup.

The fixture is one of many being held in mid-week as Europe’s national sides, in particular, look to maintain form and test tactics for the current qualifiers for the 2012 European Championships.

But despite the gloss, fans of Portugal will be looking forward to a good old grudge match.

The last time the sides met was at the World Cup in South Africa where a second half goal from David Villa separated the sides and sent Spain on their way to a triumphant final against the Netherlands.

Spain’s football friendly

LONDON, 18 Nov — The catalyst for Fabio Capello’s future will be the opening 2012 World Cup fixture against France at Wembley.

The new England manager successfully steered his side to a 1-0 win against the Africans in the World Cup play-off second leg last weekend and will be looking to avoid a third successive loss to the French.

The game is his debut in English football and he is keen to prove the critics wrong who have lambasted his team selection, tactics and lack of flair.

US investigation comes to France

LYON, 18 Nov — US investigators interviewed French anti-doping officials at Interpol headquarters Tuesday as part of a probe into allegations of drug use by cyclists, including Lance Armstrong, a French official told The Associated Press.

The investigation shifted its focus to France, with an American delegation seeking information from police officials and the national anti-doping agency (AFLD) that has stored some of Armstrong’s samples from the Tour de France. Armstrong won cycling’s storied race seven straight times, from 1999 to 2005.

Francoise Lasne, director of the AFLD lab, and testing director Jean-Pierre Verdy were heard as witnesses Tuesday at Interpol, an official with knowledge of the meeting told the AP. The official spoke on condition of anonymity because he was not authorized to speak publicly on the case.
