Donate blood

Blood donation is a kind of noble donation by giving one’s own blood to another for the latter’s survival.

Donating blood to those who are in need out of goodwill and sympathy means doing meritorious deeds.

Those who donate blood do so of their own accord and they never expect anything in return. They donate blood only out of pure goodwill.

Out of blood donors ages between 18 and 60, the number of those aged between 18 and 29 has increased year by year. This year, blood donations have been made by more and more young people. As a result of this, there can be benefits such as more unity among the youth, the spirit of helping sick people, taking care of personal hygiene and avoidance of unhealthy living style.

All are therefore urged to donate blood, and by doing so, it means they are fit and healthy and they can get the benefits from the noble donation.

RAMADI, 13 Dec — Suicide attacks targeting a police checkpoint and a Shiite Muslim procession in western and central Iraq killed up to 14 people on Sunday, including six policemen and a journalist.

The violence comes two weeks ahead of a deadline for premier-designate Nuri al-Maliki to form a cabinet in a bid to end months of government impasse, and days before the climax of the Shiite commemoration of Ashura. In the western city of Ramadi, a suicide bomber detonated a car packed with explosives near Anbar provincial government offices, killing 11 people, including six policemen, a doctor said.

"Lots of people were waiting to go into the governorate building when the car exploded close to the checkpoint," said Ahmed al-Dulaimi, a police officer who suffered a leg injury in the attack.

PESHAWAR, 13 Dec — A roadside bomb exploded near a school bus in northwestern Pakistan’s main city on Monday, killing the driver and wounded at least two children, police said.

The city of Peshawar lies near the militant-riddled tribal regions of Pakistan and the Afghan border, and it has long been a favourite target of Taliban attacks. Militants in the northwest have frequently attacked schools — especially those for girls — but usually when children are not at the scene.

Police did not rule out the possibility that the bomb may have missed its intended target.

The bus was hit near a private school in the Bhana Mari neighbourhood, police official Shakir Khan said. Senior police official Ejaz Khan confirmed the death and wounded tolls.

The blast ripped through the vehicle, leaving a charred shell and a crater on the ground nearby. The words, painted in English, “Islamia Model High School” were still visible on the side of the green bus.

WELLINGTON, 13 Dec — A South Korean trawler sank suddenly and without warning off Antarctica Monday, killing up to 22 fishermen, with its owners saying it may have collided with an iceberg. Rescuers said the 22 men from the No.1 Insaung had no chance to don protective gear as they scrambled to escape the trawler and were presumed dead as they had only 10 minutes’ survival time in the icy waters.

The trawler went down so fast it did not even have a chance to send an SOS before plunging to the depths of the Southern Ocean, Maritime New Zealand said.

"We believe the vessel might have hit by an iceberg or a strong wave, although we have yet to secure any evidence of this."

Midwest in deep freeze after storm cancels flights

CHICAGO, 13 Dec — A powerful storm that unleashed snow and strong winds across the upper Midwest left behind dangerously cold temperatures, promising a new set of challenges for people working to dig out.

The weekend storm closed major highways in several states, canceled more than 1,600 flights in Chicago and collapsed the roof of the Minnesota Vikings’ stadium. At least six weather-related deaths were reported. Nearly 2 feet of snow fell in parts of Minnesota and Wisconsin before marching east into Illinois, Indiana and Michigan.

The storm was headed northeast toward Canada, according to the National Weather Service, with some snow possible Monday in Michigan, northern Indiana through parts of Pennsylvania and New York. Nearly 2 feet of snow fell in parts of Minnesota and Wisconsin during the weekend.

Officials said plunging temperatures and winds could make clearing roads even more difficult and could lead to a slow morning commute, even in places where the storm had passed. With the wind chill, temperatures in some areas were expected to be well below zero.

"With the snow, pretty much the worst of it’s over, but we’re going to get cold temperatures through Tuesday," said Jim Taggart, National Weather Service meteorologist in Chanhassen, Minn.

He said the weather the region is experiencing is what it “normally would get in January” but not December.

In Minneapolis, heavy snow caused the inflatable roof of the Metrodome to collapse Sunday.

Video inside the stadium aired by Fox Sports showed the inflatable Teflon roof sagging before it tore open, dumping massive amounts of snow across one end of the playing field.

SHANGHAI, 13 Dec—Shanghai plans to be Asia’s top stock market by 2013 and launch 24-hour trading by the end of the decade as it works towards setting up an international board, state media said Monday.

“Based on our current technology, it is very likely that we will launch it within 10 years. We are devoting great efforts to achieve that goal.” Liu said the 24-hour trading service would help facilitate transactions on the country’s planned international board, helping overseas traders overcome time differences.

Authorities in the city plan to make it Asia’s top stock market by 2013 and launch 24-hour trading by the end of the decade as it works towards setting up an international board, state media said Monday. Internet

Oil rises above $88 as OPEC leaves output stable

SINGAPORE, 13 Dec—Oil prices rose above $88 a barrel Monday in Asia after OPEC left its crude output quotas unchanged, citing slowing demand and abundant supplies.

A benchmark oil for January delivery was up 53 cents to $88.32 a barrel at late afternoon Singapore time in electronic trading on the New York Mercantile Exchange. The contract lost 58 cents to settle at $87.79 on Friday.

Ministers from the 12-nation Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries said at a meeting in Quito, Ecuador on Saturday that a “fragile global economic recovery” and “fears of a second banking crisis in Europe” kept the cartel from raising oil production.

Many OPEC nations depend on oil sales for foreign currency reserves and government spending and are reluctant to take measures to undermine prices. However, a jump in crude prices would spark inflation and hurt global economic growth.

“The ministers generally love existing prices,” Cameron Hanover said in a report. “Some insiders have hinted at a quota increase if crude oil prices break above $100 a barrel.” Internet

Three bodies found at construction site in Jamaica

KINGSTON, , 13 Dec—Jamaican police say they have discovered three bodies buried in shallow graves at a construction site outside the capital and expect to find more.

Assistant Police Commissioner Les Green says the bodies were found in an area on the outskirts of Kingston where authorities believe rival gang members waged deadly battles.

The first body was uncovered Thursday as developers cleared the site to build a private hospital. The remains were identified as those of 32-year-old Esmond Morris, who had not been seen since Monday.

He had a gunshot wound in the back of the head. Green said Saturday that police did not know whether Morris had any links to gangs or could have been a gang victim.

The two other bodies were found Friday.

Sanofi-Aventis extends Genzyme takeover offer

PARIS, 13 Dec—French pharmaceutical group Sanofi-Aventis said Monday it has extended its unsolicited $18.5 billion takeover offer for US-based biotech company Genzyme.

Sanofi’s Previous tender offer for Genzyme shares expired just before midnight Friday, and now the French company says it has extended the $69-per-share offer until 11:59 pm ET on 21 January.

Sanofi said in a statement before the open of the Paris stock exchange on Monday that 2.21 million Genzyme shares were tendered by Friday or about 0.9 percent of the US company’s outstanding shares.

Sanofi spokesman Jean-Marc Podvin said such a low percentage of acceptance was “typical” in such tender offers, adding that executives at the French company “are not surprised.”

“The key message is that we want to engage in a constructive dialogue with Genzyme to reach a transaction,” said Podvin, insisting on the “strategic fit” that it would offer. Shares of Sanofi were down 0.3 percent to euro49.16 in late morning trading in Paris.

Genzyme shares closed on Friday at $60.82 on the Nasdaq exchange.

Portugal Prime Minister says no need for IMF aid

LISBON, 13 Dec — Portugal’s economic problems can be resolved without seeking help from the International Monetary Fund, Prime Minister Jose Socrates was quoted as saying on Saturday by the daily Diario de Noticias. “We don’t have any problem that requires that we turn to the International Monetary Fund,” Socrates told the paper.

Socrates, whose country many economists see as the next likely euro zone candidate to need a bailout after Greece and Ireland, said the crisis was part of a wider problem. “Our problem is just a budget problem that has to be corrected, as in other countries,” Socrates said. “Whoever doesn’t understand that what we are seeing is a systemic question, regarding the euro, hasn’t understood anything about this crisis.”

Portugal has adopted an austere 2011 budget — which includes tax rises and 5 percent civil servant wage cuts — aimed at cutting the budget deficit to 4.6 percent of gross domestic product from 7.3 percent this year. Socrates said the euro zone crisis is a “problem of all European countries”, and urged joint action to resolve it.

“If anybody thinks this is a problem of this or that country, they are not seeing how the sovereign debt crisis is affecting the euro,” Socrates said.

Socrates said the IMF’s presence in Portugal twice in recent decades had been a negative experience. “The government doesn’t need this, we know exactly what to do and we don’t need anybody to come and tell us what we should do,” Socrates said.

Risk premiums on Portuguese bonds reached euro lifetime highs last month but fell sharply last week.

OPEC ministers make no change in output

QUITO, 13 Dec— OPEC ministers decided Saturday to keep oil output at current levels, citing ample inventories amid persisting global econo-mic uncertainty and a price of just under $90 a barrel.

The 12-member cartel said after an unusually short meeting that it based its decision on projections showing demand for crude would grow more slowly in 2011 than this year.

It’s statement also cited the “challenging risks to the fragile global economic recovery” including “fears of a second banking crisis in Europe.”

The world’s major industrialized nations continue to face “lower industrial output, lagging private consumption as well as persistently high unemployment,” the ministers added. “The market is in balance and is stable,” Oil minister Ali Naimi of Saudi Arabia, OPEC’s biggest producer, told reporters.

“The fundamentals are good,” Suffering a cold, he left quickly after the closed-door meeting, which lasted less than two hours. OPEC’s next scheduled gathering is 2 June in Vienna, its home. Asked whether it could convene earlier if prices were to shoot up, the group’s secretary-general, Abdulla Salem El-Badri said that is always a possibility.

GE to buy UK oil pipe maker Wellstream for $1.3 billion

LONDON, 13 Dec— General Electric Co has agreed to buy British oil drilling pipe-maker Wellstream Holdings Plc for 800 million pounds ($1.3 billion), as GE continues its push into the offshore oil services industry.

The deal is the latest in a series of GE buys in the oil services sector in recent years and shows that, despite the BP oil spill in the Gulf of Mexico this summer, the industry expects deep water drilling to continue apace.

The acquisition would also give GE a strong footing in Brazil, where Wellstream has a manufacturing facility.

Brazil has made a series of multi-billion barrels oil discoveries in recent years in very deep waters — traditionally high cost for oil producers and high opportunity for equipment makers — and Brasilia encourages the use of locally produced materials.

GE and Wellstream said in a joint statement on Monday that GE would pay Wellstream investors 780 pence in cash plus a special dividend of 6p, per Wellstream share, up from a bid of 750 pence/share tabled in September that Wellstream rebuffed.

Former Bridgestone Americas CEO takes Tenn post

KNOXVILLE, 13 Dec—The former president and CEO of Bridgestone Americas has been hired by Tennessee Gov-elect Bill Haslam as commissioner of finance and administration.

Mark Emkes retired in February after 33 years with the company, which is the Japanese tire-maker’s subsidiary based in Nashville. As chief budget officer, he will play a key role in shaping a $1 billion reduction in state spending when federal stimulus money runs out next year.

“We’re going to have to do state government differently, and having people who have experience running large organizations will be really helpful,” Haslam said.

White House says Obama calls WikiLeaks “deplorable”

WASHINGTON, 13 Dec — President Barack Obama told Turkish and Mexican leaders on Saturday that WikiLeaks’ actions were “deplorable” as the US Administration kept up damage control efforts over the website’s embarrassing release of masses of secret US cables. In Obama’s separate calls with Turkish Prime Minister Tayyip Erdogan and Mexican President Felipe Calderon, the leaders all agreed that WikiLeaks’ campaign would not harm their countries’ ties with Washington, the White House said.

The leaks touching on US relations in virtually every part of the world have threatened to increase tensions with allies, sparking US officials to seek to prevent foreign friends from reducing engagement on sensitive matters. Documents relating to Turkey showed US diplomats casting doubt on the reliability of their NATO ally and portraying its leadership as divided.

Swine flu returns to UK with ten deaths in six weeks

LONDON, 13 Dec — The swine flu virus that swept the world last year causing a global health emergency has returned to claim the lives of 10 adults in the UK in the past six weeks. The 10 deaths were in younger adults under 65 and associated with H1N1 swine flu. Most had underlying conditions but “a small proportion” were healthy before getting the virus, according to the Health Protection Agency (HPA).

Seasonal flu normally causes severe illness and death in the elderly. The H1N1 swine flu virus targets pregnant women, younger adults, and those with chronic conditions, making it a cause of particular alarm. No other similar reports of deaths linked with swine flu have been received from elsewhere in Europe. Official figures show GP consultations for flu-like illness in England were at 13.3 per 100,000 population last week, well below baseline levels.

More cold-stunned sea turtles rescued

NORFOLK, 13 Dec — Volunteers in Virginia and North Carolina say they’ve been busy rescuing cold-affected sea turtles and finding them temporary homes in aquariums.

A sudden onset of freezing temperatures has caught many of the creatures too far north and left them lethargic and unable to move.

“I think the temperature’s just dropped so quickly that they haven’t gotten out yet,” Christina Trapani of the Virginia Aquarium & Marine Science Centre told the (Norfolk) Virginian-Pilot. “They should be going somewhere warm.”

Cold weather stuns some turtles every year, said Mark Swingle, director of research and conservation at the aquarium, but the number of turtles this year is “a little unusual.”

“We’re very close to having a full house,” Swingle said. “By the end of the weekend, we’re going to be full.”

On Friday 11 turtles, including Kemp’s ridleys, green turtles and loggerhead turtles, were taken in by the aquarium. Six had been transferred from facilities in New England, and the rest were found in Hampton Roads. Two more arrived from North Carolina on Saturday, aquarium workers said.

The Network for Endangered Sea Turtles in Kitty Hawk, NC, operates a rehabilitation centre for cold-stunned and injured turtles at the North Carolina Aquarium on Roanoke Island. Once there, the turtles are gradually warmed up.

Gunmen kill two police officers in NW Pakistan

PESHAWAR, 13 Dec—Gunmen on motorcycles shot dead two police officers Saturday in northwest Pakistan, while security forces killed four militants in fighting elsewhere in the region, officials said.

The policemen were killed in Hayatabad, on the outskirts of the northwestern city of Peshawar, area police chief Mir Afzal Khan said. The assailants fled to the nearby Khyber tribal region after the attack, he said.

Police were investigating a possible motive for the shooting.

Overnight, a gun battle between militants and security forces broke out in the northwestern town of Mohmand, near the Afghan border, a security and an intelligence official said Saturday. Four militants were killed in the fighting and another three were wounded.

The officials said the troops retaliated after insurgents attacked a security checkpoint in the Sag village area.

The officials spoke on condition of anonymity because they were not authorized to brief the media.

Pakistan has carried out operations against Taliban militants in Mohmand, but violence persists in the region and other parts of the tribal belt in the country’s northwest.

A noble feud reflects India’s royal ambivalence

LUCKNOW, 13 Dec—Their tale begins in the 18th century, with an ancestor who served a Mogul emperor and an aristocratic family’s rise to immense wealth and power.

It ends with the two brothers-in-law, white-haired men living in adjoining apartments in a palace that long ago passed the point of crumbling, and both claiming the throne of a kingdom that hasn’t existed for 150 years.

The whisper of angry words echoes across tattered brick courtyards.

“I think he’s obsessed,” said Ibrahim Ali Khan, former oil company executive and the leading claimant to the title in question Nawab of Awadh. “Once you realize you are not the Nawab, and the whole town knows that you are not, even then you want it. What would you call it? You’d call it an obsession.”

His brother-in-law, though, calls it something else.

“There is this thing known as megalomania,” said Jaffar Mir Abdullah, the more recent aspirant to the title in question Nawab of Awadh. “I’m proud that I now have equipment salesman whose younger sister is married to a Mogul...

We’re very close to having a full house,” Swingle said. “By the end of the weekend, we’re going to be full.”

Algerian army kills ten rebels

AGIERS, 13 Dec— Algerian troops killed 10 rebels on Friday in the eastern Kabylie region known as a stronghold of Al-Qaeda in the Maghreb (AQIM), a security source told Reuters on Saturday.

Between 3,500 and 4,000 troops backed by helicopters attacked a site between the cities of Boumerdes and Trzi Ououz after intelligence officials heard that AQIM was planning to hold a meeting in the region. “The operation is still ongoing and ten terrorists have been killed,” the source, who asked not to be named, told Reuters.

The source said there was no confirmation of foreign media reports that the head of AQIM had been killed in Algeria, either in the Kabylie attack or another operation.

Algerian security forces have been fighting an militancy for two decades and some 200,000 people are estimated to have been killed in the conflict, which was at its peak in the 1990s.

Russia offers China Amur leopard cooperation

ST PETERSBURG, 13 Dec— Russia has offered to work with China to create a joint nature reserve to help prevent the extinction of the Amur leopard, a Russian official said on Saturday.

“We have sent our proposals to China,” said Deputy Prime Minister Sergei Ivanov, in charge of a state-sponsored programme to save the Amur leopard. Ivanov said the leopards’ habitat had shrunk by half in the last 20 years with only 30-35 remaining in the Russian Far East and about 10 in neighbouring China and North Korea.

“The Amur leopard is on the brink of extinction,” Ivanov told the Russian Geographical Society, blaming poaching, logging and forest fires. “We need to take urgent measures to save the leopard.” Ivanov outlined some of the measures, including construction of a 100-million US dollar railroad tunnel under a hill where leopards live so that the wild cats can roam freely.—MNA/Reuters

Famous Christian landmark tree chopped down in UK

LONDON, 13 Dec—Legend has it that the rare thorn tree on a hill in southern England had ties to the earliest days of Christianity, and pilgrims often left offerings at its base. In more recent times, local children honored its current incarnation each year by cutting sprigs to place on Queen Elizabeth II’s Christmas dining table.

Now British police want to know who saw the limbs off the Glastonbury Holy Thorn Tree, reducing it to a stump. And they want to know why. “I’ve just driven past the site, and people are coming out in tears,” said Glastonbury Mayor John Coles. “I’ve never seen a sadder sight, or a more serious act of vandalism, in my 60 years in Glastonbury.”

Glastonbury, 125 miles (200 kilometres) west of London, is best known for its annual rock music festival, which has drawn artists such as Bruce Springsteen since the 1960s. Its mysterious landscape — including the Glastonbury Tor hill, which is believed by some to have magical qualities — has drawn pagan worshippers for many years.

Katherine Gorbing, the director of Glastonbury Abbey, said the tree originally came from the Middle East and is a type of thorn tree common in Lebanon as well as in Europe. It typically lives about 100 years, but Gorbing said locals have kept Glastonbury Holy Thorn Tree going by taking grafts and clippings from it to plant new trees when the existing one neared the end of its natural life. “It’s a sacred tree,” she said. “Not only for the Christian church, but for many other people.” The tree itself, located near the summit of Wearyall Hill, is visible from many parts of rural Somerset. —Internet

Lost civilization may have existed beneath the Persian Gulf

LONDON, 13 Dec—Veiled beneath the Persian Gulf, a once-fertile landmass may have supported some of the earliest humans outside Africa some 75,000 to 100,000 years ago, a new review of research suggests. At its peak, the floodplain now below the Gulf would have been about the size of Great Britain, and then shrunk as water began to flood the area. Then, about 8,000 years ago, the land would have been swallowed up by the Indian Ocean, the review scientist said.

The study, which is detailed in the December issue of the journal Current Anthropology, has broad implications for aspects of human history. For instance, scientists have debated over when early modern humans exited Africa, with dates as early as 125,000 years ago and as recent as 60,000 years ago (the more recent date is the currently accepted paradigm), according to study archaeologist Jeffrey Rose, an

Camel falls in Nativity re-enactment

PALM BEACH, 13 Dec—A camel used in a Nativity scene fell into pews at a rehearsal of the First Baptist Church’s Christmas show in Florida, but no one was injured, officials said. Lula Bell, who weighs about 1,000 pounds, may have had a bum knee, forcing her to stumble, a pastor told The Palm Beach (Fla) Post.

Neither the camel, nor its rider, Alex James, was injured in the accident, and the West Palm Beach church has decided not to use her in its upcoming Christmas production, said worship Pastor Chuck Lewis.

“Everybody’s OK,” Lewis said about Thursday’s incident. “That’s the most important thing.” The camel belongs to Citra, Fla-based Animals in Motion, a company that trains animals for movies, private parties and other shows. It provided animals for the “Ev’an Almighty” movie. Animals in Motion owner Timothy Rivers has been the target of animal welfare supporters, and he declined to comment on Lula Bell’s fall.

In 2002 he plead guilty to illegally selling a pair of federally protected black leopards and was sentenced to six months in prison, the report said.

He was charged with animal cruelty, but not convicted, over a “high-diving mules” act. “I don’t know what’s going on,” Rivers told the newspaper. “I don’t want to know what’s going on over there,” he said, before hanging up.—Internet

‘Ancient’ Philippine boats complete Asian odyssey

MANILA, 13 Dec—Three wooden-hulled replicas of boats made 1,700 years ago ended a Southeast Asian odyssey in Manila on Monday, having followed the routes and methods of ancient sea gypsies for more than a year.

The vessels, called Balangay, were made of carved wooden planks held together by wooden pins and pegs, and the 37-man crew navigated using the timeless methods of their ancient predecessors, team leader Art Valdez said.

“When did I launch into the expedition and the Balangay? To capture the imagination of the people and send the message that we (Filipinos) can do so much,” Valdez said after the boats sailed into Manila harbour.

The 14,000-kilometre (8,700-mile) journey began in September 2009 and took them to Brunei, Cambodia, Malaysia, Indonesia, Singapore, Thailand and Vietnam.

The vessels were replicas of boats discovered on the southern Philippine island of Mindanao in the 1970s that were carbon dated to 320 AD, the oldest seafaring vessels ever to have been found in the country. Valdez said the voyage retraced the trading routes used by the sea gypsies who would have used the ancient boats as they roamed the Pacific.

The modern-day crew sailed using the stars as a chart, and with the vessels powered only by the wind gusting into sails.

Indonesia, Japan reaches deal on 24 bln USD infrastructure projects

JAKARTA, 13 Dec—Indonesia and Japan have signed agreement on developing infrastructure in Jakarta valued by up to 2 trillion yen or 24 billion US dollars, as Indonesia is attempting to build its transport link to support economic growth, local media reported Monday.

The projects would include transportation infrastructure such as the construction of a road, electricity generator, airport and seaport, as well as the supply of clean water. Indonesian Coordinating Minister for Economy Hatta Rajasa was quoted by the Jakarta Post as saying.

The feasibility study is targeted to complete in 2012 before the project commences in 2013.

“This area (Jakarta) shows rapid economic growth, but it still needs more infrastructure development,” said Hatta.

The project would be carried out in two phases, with the first one from this year to 2014 and the second one from 2014 to 2020, he said.

Outstanding rubber farm owner in 2010

Perennial Crops and Farming Enterprise (Myanmar Perennial Crops Enterprise) of Myanmar Industrial Crops Development Enterprise under the Ministry of Agriculture and Irrigation awarded outstanding farm owners in rubber, oil palm and cashew farms recently. Of them, U Kyan Ko Saik of Hopang Township won the outstanding rubber farmer award.

In an interview, U Kyan Ko Saik said that he was engaged in growing rubber as new item crop in Shan State (North) in 1996-1997. The region had never grown rubber before. He took a risk in cultivation of rubber and he became the first rubber farmer, he said.

Due to encourage ment and technological assistance of Myanmar Perennial Crops Enterprise, he had confidence to grow rubber there. He established his rubber farm in 200 acres and then extended it on 385 acres. As a result of choosing quality rubber strain, applying correct cultivation methods and nurturing the farm, rubber latex could be produced from rubber plants at the age of about eight. So far, he has been collecting rubber latex for five years.

In its establishment, the rubber farm cost about K 200,000 per acre. Therefore, the farmer spent K 30 million on growing rubber. At present, his income from collecting rubber latex can cover the cost of establishment. We have learned that he will gain a substantial amount of profits in coming rubber latex collection seasons. Indeed, rubber latex can be produced from a plant for 30 years. Therefore, U Kyan Ko Saik has
