Embrace the tradition of caring for elders

According to the Myanmar tradition and custom, the Myanmar people always respect their elders. The fine traditions such as all family members living together in unity, children showing respects to their parents and grandparents and children repaying their parents’ gratitude by taking care of them have been rooted in the Myanmar society. Protecting young children, women, elders and the disabled is the noble philanthropic work.

Having social experience, elders usually educate and advise the youth from the right side. So, paying respects to and taking care of those elders are a noble duty. Again, as young people have such characteristics as showing respects to their elders, being modest, being content and repaying other’s gratitude, the elderly people deal with them respectfully in return.

The nation saw the establishment of homes for the aged in 1276ME to systematically provide care for the older people. On 12th Waning of that year, philanthropist Daw Oo Zun launched the activity for taking care of elders in Minkun region.

Therefore, today’s youth are urged to take care of their elders by embracing the tradition of protecting the elderly people with the family spirit.

War in Afghanistan longer than expected

KABUL, 14 Dec—Nine years have passed since the ouster of Taleban regime by US-led coalition in late 2001, but the war on terror in Afghanistan could take more time than they expected.

On 7 Oct, 2001, “Operation Enduring Freedom” kicked off with the aim to topple Taleban regime for harboring al-Qaeda leader Osama Bin Laden, who is alleged the harboring al-Qaeda Taleban regime for with the aim to topple Freedom” kicked off expected. Afghanistan could take but the war on terror in led coalition in late 2001, Taleban regime by US-since the ouster of Nine years have passed operational, with only a three-month delay,” he said.

The Taleban regime was toppled easily but Bin Laden and the Afghan Taleban chief Mullah Mohammad Omar are still at large. Furthermore, a stiff resistance by Taleban militants has forced a surge in US and allied troops.

Taleban has repeatedly rejected peace talks with the US-backed government before the foreign troops end their occupation.

Last December, US President Barack Obama announced to send an additional 30,000 US troops to bring down the Taleban momentum and set July 2011 as the date to begin withdrawing forces from Afghanistan. But Obama admitted that the strategy had made slow progress in curbing the growing insurgency during a surprise visit to Afghanistan on 3 Dec.

Obama also told US troops in the Bagram Air Base north of the capital Kabul that the US forces were suffering more casualties in Afghanistan where 467 soldiers have been killed so far this year, the deadliest year in the past nine years.

Already, it has gotten bolder on the ground.

Russia space chief calls satellite crash “heavy loss”

SEVEROVOVSK, 14 Dec.—Satellite infrastructure for Russia’s challenge to the US global positioning system (GPS) will be ready by March despite the “heavy loss” of a failed launch, the country’s space agency chief said on Monday.

Three satellites plunged into the Pacific Ocean last week after a rocket launch went wrong, setting back the Kremlin’s plans to complete its GLONASS navigation system. “This for us was a very heavy loss,” agency head Anatoly Perminov said. However, Russia has activated two satellites previously in reserve and will launch two more — one in December and one in March.

“We can launch the last satellite in March; we are resolving the last remaining issues with the Defence Ministry. The satellites group will then be fully operational, with only a three-month delay,” he said.

MOSCOW, 14 Dec—The Russian billionaire owner of the New Jersey Nets has introduced a new line of hybrid cars—called “Yo”—that he hopes to begin selling in 2012.

Mikhail Prokhorov said Monday the cars, powered both by gasoline and electricity, are “socially important products” that he hopes will “overcome existing stereotypes that Russia cannot make normal cars.”

The vehicles are to be sold in three models—sedan, sporty and a small truck—with an expected price of around $10,000 (euro7,550).

The name is written in Russian by the letter Е with two dots over it.

Prokhorov, who amassed a fortune in banking and metals, bought a majority share in the basketball team this year.

Airbus sees 3.2 trillion USD orders in whole world by 2029

PARIS, 14 Dec—European leading plane maker Airbus saw a market demand of nearly 26,000 passenger and cargo planes, worth a total value of 3.2 trillion US dollars by 2029 as an expected boom in emerging markets’ growth would boost demand, it said on Monday.

According to 2010 Airbus’ Global Market Forecast (GMF), the annual average growth of global traffic would reach 4.8 percent within 20 years, against 4.7 percent forecast a year ago, with 900 additional new passenger aircraft deliveries, mostly single-aisle aircraft, compared with the 2009 GMF.

Asian Airlines would account a third of the global passenger traffic by 2029, ahead of the US and Europe where traffic to represent 23 percent in each zone, according to the report.

“The recovery is stronger than predicted and reinforces both the resilience of the sector to downturns and that people want and need to fly. Our entire product range is very well positioned to meet the economic and environmental needs for sustainable growth for the decades ahead,” Airbus Chief Operating Officer Customers John Leahy said in a statement.

Toyota yet to outrun recall crisis, say analysts

TOKYO, 14 Dec—After a year in which Toyota’s worst crisis saw the recall of millions of vehicles, a wave of lawsuits and a record fine, the troubles of the world’s largest automaker are far from over, say analysts.

Sales are sliding in the United States, the market worst-hit by the recalls, as Toyota faces a battle to regain consumer trust and market share despite efforts to tighten quality control.

“Before the crisis, Toyota was by far the strongest auto company globally. Now the gap has narrowed,” said Tatsuya Mizuno, an auto industry analyst with Mizuno Credit Advisory.

“Toyota is weaker now than before, because of the impact of the recalls on brand image, reputation and profitability.”

In 2008 Toyota ended General Motors’ 77-year reign as the world’s largest automaker but the road has been a bumpy one for the Japanese giant, facing the impact of the economic crisis, recalls and recently a strong yen. Previously lauded for its vehicles’ safety and reliability, a US recall of around four million vehicles in late 2009 swelled to nearly nine million units by February over brake and accelerator defects blamed for dozens of deaths.

As criticism mounted of its slow response and bureaucratic inflexibility, Toyota tightened its recall policy and by November had pulled nearly 13 million vehicles over a range of issues.

Google to gain from digitization of human life

WASHINGTON, 14 Dec—Increasing global domination of Google’s (GOOG.O) Android operating system, rapid market share gains by its Chrome browser and the potential of its Chrome OS for PC’s position the Internet search giant to benefit from “the digitization of human life,” Wedbush Securities said.

The brokerage upgraded the stock to “outperform” from “neutral,” saying Google is well positioned to benefit from mobile and social secular trends.

“Google Instant is positively impacting both cost-per-click and paid clicks,” the brokerage said in a note.

Seeing an acceleration in Android’s search revenue, Wedbush said “owning the world’s dominant mobile platform will be monetized in ways investors can’t appreciate today.” — Reuters

ECB boosted government bond-buying to ease crisis

BRUSSELS, 14 Dec—The European Central Banks says it bought government bonds worth euro2.667 billion ($3.55 billion) in the week ended 10 Dec the highest amount since July and up from euro1.965 billion a week earlier.

The ECB says it has bought a total of euro72 billion in government bonds since May, when it started buying the debt of governments with shaky finances such as Greece, Ireland and Portugal as Europe’s government debt crisis flared up.

The figure was keenly awaited by the markets on Monday to see whether the ECB indeed stepped up its bond buying programmes after it hinted at an increase at its monthly policy meeting on 2 Dec.

Many analysts think the ECB’s bond purchases have been the main reason for a stabilization in highly indebted European countries’ bond markets this month.

WiFi transmissions raise concerns

ALPHEN AAN DEN RIJN, 14 Dec—A biologist in the Netherlands said recent experiment that tested the health of trees related to WiFi transmission exposure was not definitive.

“We have to be very careful what kind of conclusion can be drawn. (In fact), we cannot draw conclusions,” said Dr. Andre van Lammeren, an associate professor of plant biology at Wageningen University, The Wall Street Journal reported Saturday.

Lammeren placed 25 small trees in two separate cabinets, exposing one group to WiFi transmissions.

Three months later, the exposed trees had higher incidents of leaf damage.

But Lammeren regrets the results of what he called a “preliminary experiment” had become public. The study was not published in a scientific journal, nor has it been subject to peer review.
Vitamin D has U-shaped link with frailty

Minneapolis, 14 Dec — US researchers found a U-shaped relationship between vitamin D levels and frailty in older women.

Dr Kristine Ensrud of the University of Minnesota and colleagues found older women with vitamin D levels higher than 30 nanograms per millilitre and those with levels lower than 20 ng/ml were more likely to be frail. The researchers have called for large randomized trials to determine the efficacy of vitamin D supplementation.

The study, scheduled to be published in The Journal of Clinical Endocrinology & Metabolism, found women with vitamin D levels between 20 and 29.9 ng/ml were at the lowest risk of frailty.

"Vitamin D supplementation has grown in popularity, yet the association between vitamin D status and risk of adverse health outcomes in older adults is uncertain," Ensrud said in a statement. "Our study did not find that higher vitamin D status was associated with lower subsequent risks of frailty or death. In fact, higher levels of vitamin D were associated with increased likelihood of frailty."

Ensrud and colleagues measured vitamin D levels and assessed frailty in 6,307 women age 69 and older at the start of the study and 4.5 years later.

Heart failure, low education linked

Copenhagen, 14 Dec — Danish researchers have linked lower levels of education with increased risks of heart failure. The large European study found better educated men and women had nearly half the risk of hospital admission for heart failure than the least well educated.

The study, led by Dr Eva Prescott of Bispebjerg University Hospital in Copenhagen and published online in the European Heart Journal, also found the clear socioeconomic gradient in heart failure risk was not explained by lifestyle differences. Prescott and her colleagues suggested explanations potentially include differences in patient treatment.

Prescott noted echocardiography showed early indicators of heart dysfunction in healthy individuals and indicated the socioeconomic gradient present from early disease stages. Prescott suggested more studies to look for explanations at the pre-clinical stages.

"One point to be mentioned is the role of psychosocial distress on development of heart failure — this has received very little scientific attention so far," Prescott said in a statement.

Prescott and colleagues tracked 18,616 people for as long as 31 years. The study participants had physical exams at the time they joined the study and at regular intervals afterward. Questionnaires were used to assess risk factors. A random sample was assessed for heart function using echocardiography.

Knee infection: Infrequent but a danger

Lund, 14 Dec — A Swedish researcher warns as the number of knee replacements increases so does the risk of infections.

Anna Stefandsdottir of Lund University says knee replacements have increased 9 percent a year in recent years.

"So if 1 percent to 2 percent of the operations lead to bacterial infection, then the need for revision — re-operation will also increase," Stefandsdottir says in a statement. Stefandsdottir explains a revision often involves two operations. First, a temporary cementing while the patient is treated for several weeks with antibiotics. Then a further operation to insert a new prosthesis.

In those cases when it is not possible to put in a new prosthesis, patients have their prosthesis removed, which leaves the leg without a real knee joint — often confining the patient to a wheelchair. Very rarely, infection leads to amputation.

The researchers reviewed almost 480 cases of revision knee replacement from 1986 to 2000.

The economic downturn has US cable television companies shedding subscribers in record numbers and Americans increasingly “cutting the cord” in favour of cheaper online options, new research shows. The findings point to a growing pool of potential customers for online services such as Hulu and Netflix and newcomers like Apple TV and Google TV, analysts say.

Health Tip: Pregnancy can lead to skin and hair changes

Fluctuations in hormone levels and other factors during pregnancy can lead to changes in a woman’s skin and hair.

The American Congress of Obstetricians and Gynecologists offers these examples:

* Darkened areas on the skin, often the face and breasts.
* Ridges in the belly and abdomen called stretch marks.
* Thicker hair, hair growth in new areas, and possible hair loss after delivery.
* Spider veins or varicose veins.
* Itchy red bumps called pruritic urticarial papules and plaques of pregnancy (PUPPP).

British police search address linked to Sweden blast

LONDON, 14 Dec.— British police were searching an address in southern England on Monday in connection with weekend bombings in Sweden, amid reports the perpetrator used to live in the area.

Officers from London’s Metropolitan Police began the search under anti-terrorism laws just before 11:00 pm (2300 GMT) Sunday, said a force spokesman. No arrests had been made and no hazardous material found, he added.

The search came after a car bombing and suspected suicide blast in Stockholm on Saturday. It also followed Press reports that Taymour Abdel Wahab—named as the man behind the blasts by website Shumukh al-Islam — had studied and lived in Luton, Bedfordshire, just north of London. Police refused to say whether the search was taking place in Luton.

The Guardian reported the man was an Iraqi-born Swede, and other reports said his family still lived in Luton. “I used to see him around often. He didn’t say much but seemed nice. I used to see him walking with his kids,” Tahir Hussain, 33, a taxi driver in the town told The Telegraph.

“I was shocked when I heard what happened because I never thought he could do such a thing.”

Saturday’s explosions came as Christmas shoppers crowded in a busy pedestrian quarter of the Swedish Capital. One blast killed one person, while a car bombed exploded nearby and injured two people.—Internet

Israeli hit by ‘friendly fire’

JERUSALEM, 14 Dec.— A soldier wounded in a firefight on the Gaza border in which two Palestinians were killed late on Saturday was hit by so-called “friendly fire,” the Israeli military said on Sunday.

“According to preliminary findings, an Israeli force operating in the area spotted Palestinians who were approaching the fence. There was an exchange of fire and a soldier was wounded by one of his comrades,” a spokeswoman said.

Earlier the military said that a soldier had been wounded, but did not say how.

Soldiers spotted the two Palestinians near the security barrier separating Israel from Hamas-controlled Gaza and opened fire, killing them after a gun battle lasting some 20 minutes, an army spokesman said.

Indonesian artist sells volcano ash as souvenirs

JAKARTA, 14 Dec.— An Indonesian artist is selling tourist souvenirs of ash from the country’s most volatile volcano to raise money for victims of its eruptions.

The English-language daily The Jakarta Globe reported Monday that Agus Budi Setiawan is selling volcano souvenirs — small clear bottles containing volcanic ash — for $1 per bottle.

The bottles feature packaging with an illustration of Mount Merapi. The volcano on Java island has killed 386 people since bursting back to life in late October and forced more than 17,000 to flee.

Setiawan works at the Art Institute of Indonesia in Yogyakarta, the nearest city to the volcano. He was quoted as saying that he had collected more than US$2,000 by selling the souvenirs in ten days and will give all the money to the victims.—Internet

Donated bike taken from ill western Pa boy, eight

HYDE PARK, 14 Dec.— The parents of an 8-year-old western Pennsylvania boy with leukemia say someone stole his donated bike during their Make-A-Wish trip to Florida.

Shelly and Kevin Jackson say they returned to find the bicycle and other items stolen from their garage Sunday. They had been at Disney World and University Studios in Orlando, Fla with their son, Aaron Jones, and three other children, since 4 Dec.

Shelly Jackson tells the Valley News Dispatch that the family isn’t looking for someone else to donate a bike. They want to find out who broke into their property during the trip.

The bicycle was given to Aaron in November 2009, after a court diagnosis, by Cody’s Wheels of Hope. The Ernie nonprofit gives bicycles to children with serious illnesses.

Ukraine to open Chernobyl area to tourists in 2011

KIVY, 14 Dec.— Want a better understanding of the world’s worst nuclear disaster? Come tour the Chernobyl nuclear power plant.

Beginning next year, Ukraine plans to open up the sealed zone around the Chernobyl reactor to visitors who wish to learn more about the tragedy that occurred nearly a quarter of a century ago, the Emergency Situations Ministry said Monday.

Chernobyl’s reactor No.4 exploded on 20 April, 1986, spewing radiation over a large swath of northern Europe. Hundreds of thousands of people were resettled from areas contaminated with radiation fallout in Ukraine, Belarus and Russia. Related health problems still persist. The so-called exclusion zone, a highly contaminated area within a 30-mile (48-kilometre) radius of the exploded reactor, was evacuated and sealed off in the aftermath of the explosion. All visits were prohibited.

Today, about 2,500 employees maintain the remains of the now-closed nuclear plant, working in shifts to minimize their exposure to radiation. Several hundred evacuees have returned to their villages in the area despite a government ban. A few firms now offer tours to the restricted area, but the government says those tours are illegal and their safety is not guaranteed.—Internet

Moms, dads of gang kids ordered to parenting class

LOS ANGELES, 14 Dec.— It’s a Saturday morning and a half-dozen adults are sitting in a high school classroom, staring at grim photos of sickly drug addicts and hearing about the deadly consequences of gang crime. They’d rather not be here, but a judge made them come.

The moms and dads were ordered to attend the class under a new California law giving judges the option of sending parents for training when their kids are convicted of gang crimes for the first time.

Assemblyman Tony Mendoza, the lawmaker behind the Parent Accountability Act, said it is the first state law to give judges the power to order parents of gang members to school, though other court-mandated classes exist at the local level.

“A lot of parents do not know how to handle teenagers,” Mendoza said. “Now more than ever, parents need a guide.”

The new law went into effect in January and eventually will be in place across California. Budget cuts in Sacramento meant implementation of the classes was delayed and only in the past month or so have they been rolled out on a limited basis in the Los Angeles Unified School District.

Several of those first classes were canceled due to low attendance, something organizers blamed on judges’ ignorance of the new law. But the sputtering start also speaks to the difficulties of trying to engage parents who may be too busy or apathetic to take a more active role in their kids’ lives.—Internet

Austria to halve tank force to reflect stable Europe

VIENNA, Dec—Neutral Austria will junk or sell more than 500 tanks as it scales back its armoured forces to reflect post-Cold War stability in Europe, the government announced on Sunday.

“We will still have robust equipment available to protect our soldiers on foreign missions and will have to maintain our armoured capabilities in case the security situation changes in the long term,” Defence Minister Norbert Darabos said.

“But the security situation and the duties of the military allow the extent of the tank force to be reduced dramatically.” The move will reduce the number of Austrian tanks — many of them relics of the Cold War standoff between the capitalist West and Communist East — by more than half. Up to 1,000 anti-tank and anti-aircraft weapons are also slated to go.

WikiLeaks says Venezuelan missile purchases worried US

WASHINGTON, Dec—The United States tried to stop delivery of Russian anti-aircraft missiles to Venezuela in 2009 amid concerns it could pass them on to Marxist guerrillas in Colombia or Mexican drug gangs, The Washington Post said on Sunday, citing diplomatic cables from WikiLeaks.

Venezuela, where President Hugo Chavez heads a strongly anti-American Government, received at least 1,800 of the SA-24 shoulder-fired missiles from Russia, the Post said, citing UN arms control data.

Secret US cables said Washington was concerned about the acquisition by Caracas of Russian arms, including attack helicopters, Sukhoi fighter jets and 100,000 Kalashnikov rifles, the newspaper reported.

It quoted a US State Department cable on 10 August, 2009 to embassies in Europe and South America as saying Russian arms sales to Venezuela totaled “over 5 billion US dollars last year and growing.” Concern about Spanish plans to sell aircraft and patrol boats to Venezuela were also cited in the cable.

Moldovan ship sinks in storm off Israel, crew safe

ASHDO, 14 Dec—A Moldovan cargo ship sank in bad weather off Israel’s coast on Sunday but its 11 crew were rescued, an Israeli maritime official said.

Separately, Israel said it reopened Ashdod port to admit a Turkish merchant ship that had been overwhelmed by the winter squalls and was in touch with another Turkish vessel that had issued a distress call. “The Moldovan ship sank the crew got off on life rafts,” Yigal Maor of Israel’s Shipping and Ports Authority told Israel Radio. The sailors, all Ukrainian, were “alive and well” after being picked up by a merchant vessel, he said. Another official with the Shipping and Ports Authority named the Moldovan ship as the Adriatic. Israeli media said it was carrying 3,000 tonnes of iron and got into difficulty 10 miles (16 kilometres) from Ashdod. —MNA/Reuters

Georgia may get additional donor money for reconstruction

TBILISI, 14 Dec—The South Caucasus country of Georgia may get half a billion US dollars more than the 4.5 billion dollars it was allocated for reconstruction by the 2008 Brussels Donors’ Conference, it was announced here on Monday.

Georgian Finance Minister Kakha Baindurashvili told a media gathering that the country could get 500 million more dollars as donor money but the minister did not elaborate where the extra money is to come from.

The official made the remarks while briefing the local media at a special session to assess the spending of the donor money for the 2008-2010 period.

The donor money has been spent on reconstruction of infrastructure, on improvement of living conditions of internally-displaced people and on development of civil society in Georgia, the minister said.

A total of 38 countries and 15 international institutions attended the 2008 Brussels Donors’ Conference which raised 4.5 billion dollars for Georgia. The donor conference was organized by the European Commission and the World Bank.—Xinhua

German Minister says open to EU fiscal union talks

BERLIN, 14 Dec—Germany is open to a discussion over whether countries that share the euro currency should harmonise their fiscal policy, German Finance Minister Wolfgang Schaeuble said.

In an interview published on Sunday in Bild am Sonntag newspaper, Schaeuble said the decision made at the euro’s creation to not integrate state finances into a European framework could be addressed anew.

“The basic decision was for fiscal and budgetary policy to be decided on the national level. If that is to be changed, then we can talk about it,” he said.

Berlin has opposed calls by Spain and other countries to move towards a full-fledged “fiscal union” in the 16-nation bloc but appeared last week to have agreed to a limited form of policy coordination.

Looking forward, Schaeuble predicted that member states of the European Union would come ever closer politically.

“In ten years we will have a structure that corresponds much stronger to what one describes as political union,” he said.

In an advance portion of the interview released on Saturday, Schaeuble said the euro currency is here to stay, and warned those betting against its survival that they are making a mistake.

Survey says most UK retailers see X’mas as good as 2009

LONDON, 14 Dec—A majority of British retailers believe Christmas will be no worse than last year, despite the financial pressures of the last 12 months and the recent snow, a survey said on Monday.

The British Retail Consortium (BRC) said its Christmas trading snapshot of 17 major retailers, representing up to 51 percent of the sector by turnover, showed almost two thirds expect sales to be the same or better than last Christmas.

It said 35 percent felt Christmas 2010 would be better than 2009, 29 percent felt it would be the same and 36 percent are braced for figures to be down.

The survey also found 71 percent of retailers think the 4 January rise in VAT sales tax to 20 percent means customers are bringing forward purchases, and more than eight out of 10 expect the VAT change to have a negative impact on sales in January.

“It’s reassuring to see a majority of retailers believe Christmas sales will be at least as good as last year. But considering inflation is now at 3.2 percent, growth of anything less than that would be a real-terms fall,” BRC Director General Stephen Robertson said.

Saudi still favours $70-$80 oil, OPEC holds supply

QUITO, 14 Dec—Leading OPEC producer Saudi Arabia said on Saturday it still favoured a 70 US dollar-80 US dollar price range for oil, a restatement of a two-year-old policy that will be welcomed by consumer nations worried that rising oil prices may get out of control and hamper global economic recovery.

Saudi Oil Minister Ali al-Naimi told reporters at an OPEC meeting in Quito “70 US dollars-80 US dollars” is a “good price.”

The comments came as the Organization of the Petroleum Exporting Countries agreed, as expected, to keep production restraints unchanged, despite a recent surge in crude prices to 90 US dollars a barrel.

With OPEC’s next meeting not scheduled until 2 June, markets are likely to test Saudi Arabia’s resolve to keep prices below 80 US dollars.

“The real issue here is whether additional supplies will be added,” said Lawrence Eagles, global head of oil research at JP Morgan in New York.

“Minister Naimi said 80 US dollars was the top end of the range; let’s see if he follows up with higher supplies.”

US crude closed at 87.79 US dollars a barrel on Friday having touched a two-year high of 90.76 US dollars earlier in the week.

US to hold pivotal trade talks with China, then EU

WASHINGTON, 14 Dec—The United States will hold high-level trade talks with China and the European Union this week, testing the Obama Administration’s ability to tear down barriers that impede US exports and economic growth.

The United States and China will cap a rocky year of trade relations with two days of meetings beginning on Tuesday. The United States on Thursday will then shift from transpacific to transatlantic relations for talks with the EU.

The separate dialogues present distinctly different challenges, with fast-growing China receiving the bigger share of US attention this year.

Heading into the annual US-China Joint Commission on Commerce and Trade (JCCT) meeting, the Obama Administration is under pressure from Congress to show progress on trade irritants ranging from beef to computer software.

Chinese Vice Premier Wang Qishan will head a delegation of nearly 100 officials for talks led on the US side by Commerce Secretary Gary Locke and Trade Representative Ron Kirk. A bipartisan group of US members of the House of Representatives on Friday complained that promises made by China at past JCCT meetings “have failed to lead to commercially meaningful market access for US companies.”

They urged Locke and Kirk to press China to commit to specific targets for measuring how much it is cutting piracy of US software and other intellectual property and boosting imports of American goods.

 Pompeii collapse forces Italy into heritage debate

 ROME, 14 Dec — The embarrassing collapse of buildings at the ancient Roman city of Pompeii has reignited debate in Italy over conservation, amid warnings that budget cuts could trigger fresh degradation of key sites.

 “Italian cultural heritage is at risk of falling apart,” said Pier Giovanni Guzzo, the former head of the archaeological site of Pompeii.

 Pompeii, which was entombed by the massive eruption of the nearby Mount Vesuvius volcano in AD 79, is one of the most visited sites in the world, receiving around three million tourists each year. But according to Guzzo: “There hasn’t been the necessary conservation carried out.” Late last month a 12-metre-long (40-foot) wall collapsed, with experts blaming persistent heavy rain. It was the second collapse in the month, after the House of the Gladiators crumbled on 6 November.

 Ballet San Jose’s staging of ‘The Nutcracker’ shines

 SAN JOSE, 14 Dec — Ballet San Jose’s “The Nutcracker” is like friends you haven’t seen in a while. The minute they walk into the house, you remember why you liked them. Artistic Director Dennis Nahat’s splendid take on the holiday classic is such a friend. Choreographed in 1979, its charm, wit and celebration of family and a little girl’s dream of meeting her Prince Charming are alive and well. “Nutcracker” opened Saturday at the San Jose Centre for the Performing Arts, where it continues through 26 December. When Nahat choreographed the 1892 Russian classic as the first piece for his fledgling company in Cleveland, he made two major decisions: He transformed the ballet’s first act, a staid and static Christmas party, into a vibrant get-together of family and friends. He also gave the roles of Maria (danced Saturday by Maria Jacobs-Yu) and the Nutcracker Prince (Ramon Moreno) to professionals instead of children; they could thus participate in the national dances instead of simply watching them. — INTERNET

Ex-TV chef gets 9 years in plot to kill wife

LOS ANGELES, 14 Dec—With a wink and smile at his wife, former “Calorie Commando” TV chef Juan Carlos Cruz was sentenced to nine years in prison Monday after pleading no contest to trying to hire two homeless men to murder her. Looking considerably grayer than he did during his arrest in May, Cruz turned to catch one more glimpse of his wife Jennifer Campbell as he was led from the brief hearing. She was seated in the front row of the courtroom with her attorney.

In a plea agreement, Cruz, 48, pleaded no contest in October to a charge of solicitation of murder, and prosecutors dropped a more serious count of attempted murder.

The sentencing capped a bizarre tale that came to light when Cruz was arrested in a sting operation by Santa Monica police.

The investigation began when two homeless men told police that Cruz had approached them on the street, wanting to hire them as hitmen. Police then videotaped Cruz arranging the murder with the men and driving one of them to his Westwood condo to show him how to get in, prosecutors said.

The Dominican-born Cruz and Campbell, a truss and taxation lawyer, had been together since high school. Cruz was formerly a pastry chef at the Hotel Bel-Air in Los Angeles, Cruz’s weight loss led to a new career on the Discovery Health Network’s “Body Challenge 3.” Cruz then published “The Calorie Countdown Cookbook.” Shortly after his arrest, his second cookbook was released, “The Love Diet,” which featured aphrodisiac recipes, written with Amy Reiley.

Voice on Jackson album far from finished article

LOS ANGELES, 14 Dec—Recording of Michael Jackson’s voice on a new album being released this week were far from the finished article and required considerable digital enhancement, according to industry executive.

Teddy Riley, who worked with the King of Pop on several records before his death, believed that “Michael” would go down as a classic, albeit short of the heights Jackson’s heyday in the late 70s and early 80s.

“We had to do more processing to the voice, which is why people were asking about the authenticity of his voice,” Riley told Reuters of the first album of new Jackson material since the singer’s sudden death 18 months ago.

The project has been mired in controversy since members of Jackson’s family were quoted questioning the authenticity of the voice on some tracks and his father’s lawyer said the perfectionist would never have approved of the project.

Jennifer Grey’s back surgery a success

“I’m still recovering at home. I have to rest a bit more, but I feel great — completely pain-free,” Grey told the magazine’s Web site exclusively.

Grey suffered the ruptured disc on the first night of last month’s “Dancing with the Stars” two-part finale, but continued competing and ultimately won the coveted mirror-ball trophy, alongside her professional dance partner Derek Hough. —Internet

Dinasty’s latest win dents Valenci’s European hopes

Barcelona, 14 Dec—Struggling Osasuna won only their second point running from away home all season as they stormed back from 3-3 against Valencia and put a dent in their rival’s Champions League hopes on Monday.

Valencia went into the game looking to close the gap on the top four with Villarreal and Espanyol both losing at the weekend but in the end it was Osasuna who were celebrating having recorded just one previous point away against Deportivo la Coruna.

“It was a game in which both teams had a half in which they were superior and in the second half...we were unable to cope with Osasuna’s attacks,” said Valencia coach Unai Emery.

“We worried about conceding an equaliser and that was what happened. We have to be critical of ourselves and be stronger.”

Meanwhile Osasuna coach Jose Antonio Camacho praised the way his side battled back at 3-1 down.

Bago mountain range is located between Yangon-Nay Pyi Taw-Mandalay Expressway and Yangon-Mandalay Union Highway, and Yangon-Pyay Road. The mountain range shares its areas with Pyinmana (Nay Pyi Taw District), Toungoo and Bago districts in the east and Thayet, Pyay and Thayawady districts in the west.

Although Bago mountain range is lower than Eastern mountain range and Western mountain range, the area is wet and it is covered with thick foliage of trees and teeming with ravines and streams. In the past, the areas around Bago mountain range were poor transport. At present, peace and stability has been restored at Bago mountain range due to endeavours of the government.

On 22 November, we arrived at the construction site of Taikkyi-Phaunggyi-Bago Road which is one of seven roads crossing the mountain range. At mile post No. 47 on Yangon-Pyay Road, we turned to the right and arrived at the mile post No. 0/0 of Taikkyi-Phaunggyi-Bago Road. (See page 9)
