Massive storm blankets central US

CHICAGO, 31 Dec—A massive storm system blanketed the central United States on Thursday, whipping up blinding blizzards and dangerously frigid temperatures. The storm stretched from New Mexico to Minnesota and was expected to continue to dump heavy snow on the region on Friday and Saturday as it made its way slowly north into Canada.

“We’re expecting almost a one-two punch across the middle part of the country over the next two days,” said Bob Oravec, a forecaster with the National Weather Service (NWS).

“You might find localized areas that get as much as 18 inches” (46 centimetres) of snow.

The storm came as much of the northeast was still digging out from one of its worst blizzards in decades.

Back to back storms are pretty typical for this time of year, said NWS forecaster Bob Oravec.

“Once the large scale pattern sets up you can be very stormy and have one after another,” he told AFP.

White-out conditions led to a massive pile-up on a Fargo, North Dakota freeway involving about 100 vehicles, local media reported.

At least two people were taken to hospital and rescue crews had trouble getting to all the cars and trucks because the road was such a mess of jumbled vehicles.

Bomb kills one, wounds two near Pakistan police office

ISLAMABAD, 31 Dec—Pakistani police say a bomb has exploded outside a district police headquarters in the country’s northwst, killing one passer-by and wounding two others.

Police official Rafique Khan says the explosion on the Friday happened in the town of Lakki Marwat, about 110 miles (175 kilometres) south of the city of Peshawar. Khan says the wounded are local residents, but the dead passer-by has yet to be identified.

Militants often target government offices, especially police stations in Pakistan’s restive northwest near the Afghanistan border.

Five killed in attacks on Mexico police

MEXICO CITY, 31 Dec — Four police officers and a doctor died in three separate attacks on Mexican police overnight near the northern city of Monterrey, amid a wave of drug violence in the area, authorities said on Thursday.

Unidentified assailants threw a grenade and fired at a police station in the town of Valle Verde, killing two officers and a doctor who was in the building, said Jorge Domene, security spokesman for Nuevo Leon State, which borders the United States.

A female police officer was killed in an attack on her patrol car in the nearby town of Guadalupe and another police officer was shot dead at a road junction, Domene told a news conference. Police were investigating whether the killings were linked to drug gangs, and were on alert for new attacks, he added.

Nuevo Leon and the neighbouring state of Tamaulipas have seen some of Mexico’s worst drug violence in recent months, blamed on turf battles between the Gulf gang and its former allies the Zetas.

More than 30,000 people have been killed in drug-related violence since December 2006, when President Felipe Calderon ordered a military crackdown on the country’s powerful drug cartels.

Two killed in Baghdad attacks

BAGHDAD, 31 Dec—At least two people were killed and nine wounded in a string of six attacks on homes in Baghdad on Thursday, an interior ministry official said.

The worst incident was in the central district of Al-Ghadir, where a homemade bomb exploded around 8:00 pm (1700 GMT), killing the two people and wounding three others, the official said.

The attacks started at 7:30 pm and continued over two hours in six different parts of the capital as the Christian community still reels from a massacre at a Baghdad cathedral on October 31 in which 44 worshippers and two priests died.

Al-Ghadir is an area with a significant Christian population, though many have fled following the massacre and in light of threats by Al-Qaeda to target them. Other blasts, also from homemade bombs, injured another nine Christians. Two bombs exploded in west Baghdad, one in the garden of a home in Yarmuk, where one person was hurt, and another in Khadra, wounding two Christians.

He said a militant was also killed in the firefight lasted for a while in the province, some 245 km north of Afghan Capital Kabul. Also, security forces detained six rebels during the raid, he said.—Xinhua

More repairs ordered for space shuttle fuel tank

CAPE CANAVERAL, 31 Dec—NASA ordered additional repairs to space shuttle Discovery after more cracks were discovered in the ship’s fuel tank, but the flight remains targeted for early February, officials said.

The shuttle’s cargo run to the International Space Station, one of the final missions before the United States ends the 30-year-old shuttle programme, has been on hold since 5 November when a hydrogen fuel leak scuttled a launch attempt. Technicians later found a 21-inch- (53-cm) long crack in the foam insulation that covers the tank, a potential debris hazard for launching. Further investigation revealed underlying cracking in structural supports, the cause of which has not been determined.

X-rays of the backside of the tank, completed this week, showed additional cracks in three more of the aluminium lithium tank support structures, Kennedy Space Centre spokesman Allard Beutel said late on Thursday.

Those cracks will be repaired while managers consider if additional modifications to the tank will be needed, work that could delay the scheduled 3 February launch to later in the month.—Reuters

Massachusetts announces emissions limits

BOSTON, 31 Dec—Massachusetts officials have announced a plan to reduce greenhouse gases emitted in the state by 25 percent below 1990 levels during the next decade.

The Wednesday announcement of the planned reduction in emissions by cars, homes and businesses puts Massachusetts in the company of California, New Mexico and other states that have taken strong official actions to combat global warming, The New York Times said.

The Massachusetts plan will rely largely on existing programmes—like renewable-energy mandates, energy-efficiency standards for building construction and curbs in the electricity sector—already in place under a multistate agreement known as the Regional Greenhouse Gas Initiative, the newspaper said.

Massachusetts is one of 10 states participating in the initiative, a cap-and-trade system for electric utilities. Ian A Bowles, the state’s secretary of energy and environmental affairs, said most of the planned cuts would result in net gains in jobs statewide.—Internet

Hearst, DirecTV reach deal on programming fees

NEW YORK, 31 Dec—DirecTV satellite subscribers around the country will continue to receive network TV stations owned by Hearst Corp after the two companies reached a new deal over the fees that DirecTV pays the broadcasting company to carry stations on its lineup.

The original deal would have expired at midnight Friday, and subscribers in Boston, Pittsburgh, Baltimore and other markets could have lost Hearst-owned stations on DirecTV. Hearst owns 29 local TV stations, which include affiliates of all the major networks except Fox.

Many of these negotiations over fees have been going down to the wire recently as broadcasters look to tap a second source of revenue outside of selling commercial time. Some disputes have even extended past the expiration of previous deals, leaving cable and satellite subscribers without channels for days, even weeks.

Sinclair Broadcast Group is still wrangling with Time Warner Cable Inc over the same issue. If a deal isn’t reached by midnight Friday, 33 stations could go dark for Time Warner customers. However, Time Warner Cable said late Thursday that it will continue to show all available programmes from ABC, CBS, NBC and Fox this weekend even if Sinclair pulls local programming such as the evening news.—Reuters

Virus attacks Android phones in China

BOSTON, 31 Dec—A powerful virus targeting smart phones in China running Google Inc’s Android operating system may represent the most sophisticated bug to target mobile devices to date, security researchers said on Thursday.

Anti-virus firm Lookout Mobile Security estimates that the number of phones that have been infected by the virus, dubbed Geinimi, ranges from the tens of thousands to hundreds of thousands.

Researchers said that the virus has yet to wreak havoc, though, and that they were unsure what its authors were seeking to accomplish.

“It is not clear to us what the purpose of it is,” said Kevin Anselmo, chief technology officer for Lookout. “It could be anything from a malicious advertising network to an attempt to create a botnet.”—Reuters

Best to pour champagne down side of glass

REIMS, 31 Dec—Scientists in France report their study found pouring champagne in an angled, down-the-side of the glass motion is best for preserving its taste and fizz.

Gerard Liger-Belair of the University of Reims and colleagues note that tiny bubbles are the essence of fine champagnes and sparkling wines, and past studies indicate that the bubbles — formed during the release of large amounts of dissolved carbon di-oxide gas — help transfer the taste, aroma, and mouth-feel of champagne.

Scientists have long suspected that the act of pouring a glass of bubbly could have a big impact on gas levels in champagne and its quality.

Health Tip: Help ease morning sickness

Nausea and vomiting are common among pregnant women. Although these symptoms often are dubbed morning sickness, they can last all day.

The American Academy of Family Physicians offers these suggestions to help alleviate morning sickness:

* Prepare several small meals during the day to prevent getting too hungry or too full.
* Stick to bland and lighter foods, rather than those high in fat, grease, or spices.
* Don’t eat anything with a smell that bothers you or makes you feel nauseous.
* Choose carbohydrates such as white rice or a plain baked potato.
* Keep some saltine crackers next to your bed, and munch on a few before you rise from bed each morning.
* Consider wearing acupressure wrist bands, used by some people to prevent sea sickness.
* Some women are bothered by iron in their prenantal vitamins. If this includes you, speak to your doctor.

Risks of obesity, alcoholism linked

ST LOUIS, 31 Dec—A risk for alcoholism also may put individuals at risk for obesity, addiction researchers at Washington University School of Medicine in St. Louis say. The researchers say the association between a family history of alcoholism and obesity risk has become more pronounced in recent years, as both men and women with such a family history were more likely to be obese in 2002 than members of that same high-risk group had been in 1992, a university release reported Wednesday.

“In addiction research, we often look at what we call cross-heritability, which addresses the question of whether the predisposition to one condition also might contribute to other conditions,” says study author Richard A. Grucza. “For example, alcoholism and drug abuse are cross-heritable.”

“This new study demonstrates a cross-heritability between alcoholism and obesity, but it also says — and this is very important — that some of the risks must be a function of the environment,” Grucza says.

“The environment is what changed between the 1990s and the 2000s. It wasn’t people’s genes.”

Brazil’s Petrobras confirms giant oil finds

RIO DE JANEIRO, 31 Dec—Brazil’s state-run Petrobras confirmed that oil fields recently discovered offshore contained 8.3 billion barrels of recoverable crude and gas — and said the biggest field was being renamed “Lula.”

That nomenclature happens to be the nickname of President Luiz Inacio Lula da Silva, who steps down on December 31. The discovery of prosperity in Brazil capped by the nickname of President Luiz Inacio “Lula.”

Crude oil prices slide toward $90

NEW YORK, 31 Dec—Crude oil prices dropped to under $90 per barrel Thursday despite a weekly US stockpile report that said inventories declined in the week ending 24 Dec. The Energy Information Administration said stockpiles of crude oil dropped by 1.3 million barrels in the week to 339.4 million barrels and remain in the upper limit of the average range for this time of year. Traders moved to take end of the year profits, however, as commodities, including grains and gold futures, tipped lower Thursday.

US bank failures set 18-year high in 2010

NEW YORK, 31 Dec—The number of US banks gone into bankruptcy this year reached the highest level since 1992, according to media report on Wednesday.

Washington Post reported that 157 US banks failed in 2010, up from 140 in 2009, and it is the highest level since 1992 when the savings-and-loan crisis broke out.

According to the US Federal Deposit Insurance Corp (FDIC) number of banks whose weaknesses “threaten their continued financial viability” stood at 860 as of 30 September, the highest since 1993. Based on historical record, about a fifth of the banks on FDIC’s watch list would end up in bankruptcy.

Analysts believe that as the economy gradually comes out of the crisis, 2010 would mark the peak of bank failures.

HAILING THE 63RD ANNIVERSARY INDEPENDENCE DAY:
Resolution to build a new nation

Myint Maung (PhilQ)

Ward off colonialist tricks with patriotism

Today, the first decade is over, thus ushering in the second decade of the 21st Century. The period coincides with the auspicious occasion on which the government and the people have been working in collaboration to shape the future of the Union of Myanmar, a member of the global family. The national goal the people are pursuing is to transform the nation into a peaceful, modern and developed discipline-flourishing democratic new nation to be known as the Republic of the Union of Myanmar.

Now, many economic, social and political foundations have been laid to meet the goal for the nation to be able to stand tall with a new system in the world. In particular, multiparty democracy general elections have been held successfully to form executive, legislative and judicial organs responsible for serving the interests of the nation, respective regions and all national races. Employing the good conditions, the people will soon build a new nation with combined efforts.

The plan to shape the future of the nation must to comply with the desires of the people. Neglecting that important point, certain powers are instigating particular situations by using those citizens who lack patriotism and wielding their economic and political power with the intention of putting their targeted countries under their thumb. The conspiracies are quite disruptive to plans being implemented by weak countries like Myanmar to determine their future in their own ways.

The 63rd Anniversary Independence Day warns the people about such disruptions to nation-building tasks. To be able to determine the future of the nation, the entire people, in the drive for building a modern, developed nation, are to take a vow on forthoming Independence Day to translate into reality the Independence Day objective “All the national people to constantly join hands for ensuring the perpetuity of independence and dignity of the State”.

Fair and freedom

Every people enjoy their independence in their own ways and lifestyles. From time immemorial, Myanmar people with high civilization has enjoyed the taste of independence with good characteristics such as independence, justice, content, nature to lead a peaceful life, being sensitive to alien invasion, and no-invasion practice. Myanmar people enjoy independence in a more proper way than many other peoples, as supported by facts that they quite admire justice, stability and peace. In other words, they safeguard their independence and they never harm independence of others.

However, some peoples, who claim themselves as those of prestigious countries, are very loud in free-edom and justice, but they, in practice, are harming independence, sovereignty, stability and peace of other peoples. Myanmar people suffered colonial rule more than a couple of decades. Myanmar stood without independence and sovereignty and went through the hell of instability from late 19th century till mid-20th century. For Myanmar people, who admire independence, will never forget such awful days in the hell of colonial rule.

To regain independence and sovereignty cost a very large number of lives of the people. From post-independence period to date, certain countries have been resorting to an endless variety of ways under the pretext of democracy to undermine independence, sovereignty and stability and to gain political control over Myanmar. In that case, I would very much like to warn some Myanmar nationals who are being exploited as stooges or axe-handles (national traitors) about the plots of internal and external groups. The entire people are working hand in hand to cope with the plots. On the shoulders of each and every citizen is the duty to safeguard independence and sovereignty of the Republic of the Union of Myanmar.

Peace for nation and people

Myanmar, a land of natural beauty, is adorable and is a pride of the people. Due to its geopolitics and global economic power shifting, Myanmar occupies a strategic position. Those favourable conditions are added by land, resource and people, which experts designated as fundamental requirements for development of a nation. So, what is just needed to achieve the national goal is that the entire people work in harness.

Rally full public support!

We now have a new constitution approved by substantial numbers of public votes...

...and the election was also held successfully this year.

So, as a gesture of hailing the 63rd Anniversary Independence Day, we the entire national people should rally behind the seven-step Road Map of the State with a deep sense of Union spirit and patriotism.

Khaing Hsu

(See page 9)
In fact, independence, stability, peace and development are at the top of the list of priorities of every country and people. In order to have such desirable wishes fulfilled, the people of the nation concerned have to work diligently and to be fit and healthy with etiquettes and high education standard. Those requirements are not enough for Myanmar, a multicultural country. All national races have to remain cohesive with a strong sense of patriotic spirit. Only then will it be possible for them to enjoy freedom, stability, peace and development.

National brethren have got painful memories of dire straits caused by lack of those requirements. In the colonial days, the whole country was deprived of stability, peace and justice, and national and cultural heritage and characteristics were degrading. Just after independence was regained, the nation encountered fierce battles took place at the instigation of the colonialists. Alien troops, aided and abetted by certain military powers, invaded the nation. In 1962, the nation was hovering on the edge of collapse. And in the 1988 mass protest, the people of Myanmar were in a state of panic, and to make things worse, a super power brazenly tried to interfere in the internal affairs and threatened the nation. Today, some union countries split into pieces and the people of those countries are still going through really hard times on the ground of interference of certain powers, and disintegration of national unity. What the people of Myanmar are desirous of is to continue to have a peaceful life without any forms of adversities.

The Tatmadaw born of the public with the aim of helping the motherland regain independence and sovereignty and well convinced of the desire of the people fulfilled the wishes of the people throughout successive periods. Since its assumption of State responsibilities to date, the Tatmadaw has given the top priority to restoration of stability and peace. Now, stability and peace have been restored well across the nation. While restoring stability, peace, and sovereignty and well convinced of the desire of the people fulfilled the wishes of the people through-out successive periods. National races were born and have grown up and settle in the land where four cardinal virtues are flourishing. Our forefathers protected the Union. And the inherited Union has been handed over from one generation to the next up to now. Therefore, national races have to build consolidated unity and equip themselves with a strong sense of Union Spirit for perpetuation of the Union.

The land with equal right and genuine ideology
Correct ideology is necessary for peace and development of a society. History shows that throughout periods, various societies have been seeking ideologies. However, the ideologies are beneficial to the society concerned, but may be harmful to many others.

Progress of infrastructures across the nation in the time of the State Peace and Development Council

Transport Sector

Thanks to better transport, people can travel to any region of the Union in a short period, enjoying fruits of economic and social sectors

In building a peaceful, modern, developed and discipline-flourishing new nation to enable the Union of Myanmar to keep abreast of international community, the government is placing emphasis on building the infrastructures in conformity with the future State, taking lessons obtained from the wrong events of the history that harmed the national interest in the past.

According to the geographical conditions, natural barriers for transportation between the regions each others are located as hindrances in making all-out efforts for equitable development of all parts of the Union. Thus, it is noticeable that the secure and smooth transport plays a key role in development of all parts of the nation including States and Regions in equal term.

The government, therefore, has built highways, railroads and small and large bridges as networks among States and Regions based on inter-village roads, inter-township roads and inter-district roads. As a result, the secure and smooth transport has been created for the local people from Kachin State in the north to Taninthayi Region in the south, from Rakhine State in the west to Shan State in the east, from Ayeyawady Region in the western bank areas and hilly Chin State to Shan State (South) and Kayah State in a short time. At present, the Yangon-Mandalay Expressway has been commissioned into service with the aim of enabling Nay Pyi Taw at the centre to have easier and smoother access to States and Regions.

Thanks to better transport, the people can travel to any region of the Union in a short period, enjoying the fruits of economic and social sectors. It is true that the national solidarity is further strengthening among the national brethren due to forging friendly relations among them, and in consequence, new strengths and sectors will be flourishing for the forthcoming new Union.

Calif man tried to register taxi he stole

Authorities in Northern California say a man released from a hospital after a psychiatric evaluation stole a taxi and tried to register it at a Department of Motor Vehicles office.

Authorities tell the Contra Costa Times that 26-year-old Jermaine Grosse was arrested Monday on suspicion of auto theft and forgery.

Grosse had been sent to the county’s regional medical centre on an involuntary psychiatric hold. After his release Sunday morning, he shared a taxi with a woman who was going to a San Pablo hospital.

Authorities say when they arrived, Grosse asked the driver to help with the woman’s luggage, then drove away in the yellow minivan. Grosse was arrested after a DMV worker in El Cerrito reported someone was using forged documents to register the cab.

Police called to fry freshness dispute

Police in Ohio said officers were called to a McDonald’s when a customer argued with the manager about the freshness of his fries.

Officers said Robert Quillen, 45, went to the restaurant in Perkins to get fries for his wife and became upset when employees took the fries from the side catch basin, where the food is kept after being put into serving pouches, the Sandusky (Ohio) Register reported Tuesday. Police said Quillen demanded fresh fries and Manager Sean Rine told him the fries were fresh and offered to refund his money. However, Quillen told the manager he was not leaving without fresh fries and employees called police.

Quillen told officers an employee hit him in the arm with a mop, but a witness said Quillen called the worker a derogatory name and the employee did not actually hit the customer.
