Create tourism industry to become greater business

Tourism is an industry where greater potentials lie for economic progress. The Asia-Pacific region including Myanmar is a tourist destination.

In the open season this year, a larger number of tourists arrive in Myanmar through main entrances such as Yangon, Mandalay, Bagan and border areas. Nearly 800,000 tourists visited Myanmar in 2010, compared with over 600,000 tourists in the past.

Myanmar participates in implementation of the ASEAN Tourism Strategic Plan. Thus, border crossing tourism industry plays more important role in the plan. Myanmar is cooperating with neighbouring countries such as Thailand and Laos for ensuring development of tourism industry.

Most of the tourists in Myanmar head for Bagan with the location of ancient cultural artistic works. They also set sight on natural scenic beauty and traditional productions of national races in Inlay Lake and Pindaya area in Shan State (South).

The sanctuaries and national parks that conserve rare and endangered wildlife and various species of biodiversities and beaches have greater prospects to extend ecotourism industry. Coral reefs near the beaches, beautiful isles, mangrove forests and tropical rainy forests are ideal places for uplifting the ecotourism business.

The international community places emphasis on tourism industry in doing their businesses. Improvement of tourism contributes much to cementing friendly relations among the people of respective regions. Based on sound foundations such as tourist attractive ancient cultural areas and eco-based tourism camps, Myanmar has to upgrade convenient tour packages with better services for gaining greater development of tourism industry in the nation.

‘Dark days’ in N Zealand as earthquake kills 113

Rubble from the ruined spire of Christchurch Cathedral lies on top of a car in Christchurch.

CHRISTCHURCH, 25 Feb—New Zealand warned frantic relatives to brace for the worst Friday as hundreds of toiling rescuers failed to find more survivors after a devastating earthquake left at least 113 dead.

As rain hampered the painstaking search of Christchurch’s devastated city centre, Foreign Minister Murray McCully admitted: “The rescue focus is drawing towards a conclusion.”

“We’re getting to the end of that period in which you can still have hope,” McCully said.

No one has been found alive since the last of 70 survivors pulled from underneath rubble was rescued from a collapsed office building two days ago.

Police said 113 bodies were lying in a temporary morgue, while the latest number of missing was 228 after Tuesday’s earthquake laid waste to central Christchurch and several suburbs in New Zealand’s worst disaster in 80 years.

The city’s iconic cathedral lost its spire, office blocks folded like packs of cards and entire streets lost their shop frontages in the shallow, 6.3-magnitude tremor, which came just months after a major 7.0 quake.—Internet

HOUSTON, 25 Feb—A kitchen fire filled a home daycare centre with smoke on Thursday, killing three children and injuring four others. Firefighters ran with babies and small children in their arms to nearby ambulances on the crowded street, a fire official said.

All seven children in Jackie’s Child Care were taken to hospitals, said Rick Flanagan, Houston Fire Department’s executive assistant chief. They ranged in age from 2 months to 3 years old, officials said.

Neighbour Michael McAndrews said he saw “smoke billowing out of the house and firemen up on the roof, trying to make a hole.” Around front, firefighters were carrying children out of the smoke-filled house, then performing CPR in the yard.

They were ash-coloured,” McAndrews said. “They weren’t coughing. They weren’t breathing.” Flanagan said no information was immediately available on the names and ages of those who died. The four injured are apparently still clinging to life. I don’t think they’re out of the darkness yet,” Flanagan said. One was in critical condition and one was in good condition at Children’s Memorial Hermann Hospital in Houston, said hospital spokeswoman Jennifer Hart.—Internet

Shuttle Discovery on final flight

CAPE CANAVERAL, 25 Feb—NASA’s space shuttle Discovery lifted into space Thursday on its final mission, 11 days that will crown a busy and eventful 27 years of duty, officials said.

Discovery launched at 4:56 pm EST from Launch Pad 39A at NASA’s Kennedy Space Centre in Florida, the space agency said.

A last-minute glitch in a range-safety computer almost threatened to abort the launch but was fixed just minutes before lift-off, SPACE.com reported.

NASA said a record crowd, estimated at 40,000, watched to orbiter’s launch.

“For those watching, get ready to witness the majesty and the power of the shuttle Discovery as she lifts off one more time,” mission commander Steve Lindsey radioed from the crew cabin minutes before launch.

Crew members include Lindsey, pilot Eric Boe and mission specialists Alvin Drew, Michael Barratt, Nicole Stott and Steve Bowen.

Discovery will deliver critical supplies to the International Space Station, including hardware, a storage module and a humanoid robot assistant called Robonaut 2, a first in space. The shuttle is expected to dock with the space station Saturday afternoon.

Two spacewalks are also planned to perform routine station maintenance, NASA said.

After it returns to Earth, Discovery will take up residence at the Smithsonian Institution’s National Air and Space Museum in Washington, The Washington Post said. The museum holds the world’s largest collection of historic aircraft and spacecraft.

For the first time on this Discovery flight, NASA let the public choose two songs the astronauts will hear when they wake up. NASA said it got more than 2.4 million votes and will announce the top two vote-getters during the mission.

Scientists make transgenic fungus to fight malaria

LONDON, 25 Feb—Using genetically modified fungi to infect mosquitoes that harbour malaria parasites could be an effective way to control the spread of malaria, researchers said on Thursday.

Scientists from Britain and the United States inserted the genes of human antibiotics or scorpion toxins into a fungus called Metarhizium anisopliae that infects mosquitoes. They found that certain combinations of them were able to stop the development of malaria-causing parasites in the mosquitoes.

Writing in the journal Science, the researchers said the approach could become an environmentally friendly way of fighting malaria, and might also be used to control other insect- or bug-borne diseases such as dengue fever or Lyme disease.

“Though applied here to combat malaria, our transgenic fungal approach is a very flexible one that allows design and delivery of gene products targeted to almost any disease-carrying arthropod,” said Raymond St Leger, a professor of entomology at the University of Maryland, who led the study.—Reuters

Robot supply craft docks with ISS

PARIS, 25 Feb—The European Space agency says its robotic Automated Transfer Vehicle has successfully docked with the International Space Station to deliver supplies.

Eight days after launch, the approach and docking were achieved autonomously Thursday by the robotic spacecraft’s own computers, closely monitored by ESA and French space agency teams at the ATV Control Centre in Toulouse, France, as well as by the astronauts aboard the space station, an ESA release said.

At close range, the 20-ton, unmanned supply spaceship computed its position through sensors pointed at laser reflectors on the space station.

The cargo spacecraft was launched on an Ariane 5 rocket from Europe’s Spaceport in Kourou, French Guiana, on 16 Feb.

It will remain docked at the space station until June, serving as an additional research module.

The space station crew will unload about 3,800 pounds of dry cargo, including food, clothes and equipment, the ESA said.

The space shuttle Discovery is to be put up with the space station Saturday.

Study seeks to dispel stress myth in IVF treatment

LONDON, 25 Feb—Women trying to get pregnant via IVF or other assisted reproduction techniques do not reduce their chances of success if they are emotionally distressed, according to a large scale analysis published on Friday.

In a review of data covering more than 3,500 women undergoing in vitro fertilization or other fertility treatments, British researchers found no difference in pregnancy success rates of women who were stressed and those who were not.

“These findings should reassure women that emotional distress caused by fertility problems or other life events co-occurring with treatment will not compromise their chance of becoming pregnant,” said Jacky Bouvin of Cardiff University’s school of psychology, who led the study.

Infertility is a worldwide problem that affects up to 15 percent of the childbearing population, experts say. More than half of those affected will seek medical advice in the hope of eventually being able to become a parent.

IVF involves fertilizing an egg with sperm in a lab before implanting the embryo into a woman’s womb, and can cost a patient many thousands of euros or dollars.

In research published last month, fertility specialists said that in the United States and Britain, IVF is successful in about a third of women under 35 years old, but in only five to 10 percent of women over the age of 40.—Reuters

Volvo to invest $1 bln in next five years

BEIJING, 25 Feb—Swedish car maker Volvo hopes to become a global luxury brand and turn China into a major manufacturing base by investing $10-$11 billion over the next five years, a report said on Friday.

Volvo, which was bought by Chinese group Geely last year, plans to build a new assembly plant in the southwestern Chinese city of Chengdu as it expands its China operations, chief executive Stefan Jacoby told the Wall Street Journal.

The company wants to boost annual sales to 800,000 cars globally by 2020 — more than double the 373,000 sold last year — with half of that growth coming from China, the world’s biggest auto market, Jacoby said in an interview.

“We’re in the middle of a big transition — a big transformation. We are redefining the brand,” Jacoby said ahead of a news conference in Beijing later Friday at which Volvo and Geely will officially announce the strategic plan.

US home loan giants Fannie, Freddie post losses in Q4

WASHINGTON, 25 Feb—Two US housing finance giants Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac Thursday announced huge losses in the fourth quarter of last year, fresh evidence of the still struggling US property market.

Fannie Mae registered a net loss of 2.1 billion US dollars in the fourth quarter last year, and requested an additional 2.6 billion dollars in federal aid, the Washington-based company said Thursday in a statement.

Freddie Mac posted a net loss of more than 1.7 billion dollars in the same period, and asked for an additional 500 million dollars in federal aid, according to a statement released by the company on Thursday.

The Obama administration earlier this month unveiled a report to Congress on reforming the US housing finance market, aiming to wind down the two government-sponsored enterprises, while giving the private sector a bigger say on the multi-trillion-dollar market.

Japan’s CPI drops 0.2% in January

Tokyo, 25 Feb—Japan’s core consumer price index dropped 0.2 percent from a year earlier in January, marking the 23rd straight month of decline, the Ministry of Internal Affairs and Communications said in a preliminary report on Friday.

The CPI reading in the recording period, which excludes volatile fresh food prices, was less than median economists’ forecasts for a 0.3 percent retraction, but the government report noted that the pace of the decline had slowed from a 0.4 percent drop logged in December last year.

The government said the decline in January was predominantly attributed to lower prices for durable goods such as consumer electronics on sale in the post-holiday period and ongoing drops in high school tuition fees after state subsidies kicked-in last April. The ministry also highlighted rising energy costs in Japan, which increased 0.7 percentage point in January over a month earlier to 4.7 percent.

In the Tokyo Metropolitan area specifically, energy costs jumped 1.4 percent in February, although the pace had slowed from the 2.8 percent on year leap logged in January, the ministry said.—Xinhua

Hot flashes, night sweats tied to heart risks

CHICAGO, 25 Feb—Women who have hot flashes and night sweats at the start of menopause may be less likely to have a heart attack later in life, US researchers said on Thursday.

But women who develop these symptoms later in menopause may have higher heart disease risks, the team reported in the journal Menopause.

“Our study provides reassurance that the classic symptoms of early menopause, experienced by the majority of women at midlife, are not a marker of an increased risk of heart attack or stroke in the future,” Dr JoAnn Manson of Brigham and Women’s Hospital, who worked on the study, said in a statement. The findings come from a new analysis of the large clinical trial called the Women’s Health Initiative in 2002 that showed hormone replacement therapy raised the risk of breast and ovarian cancers and strokes in older women, and doctors now prescribe it sparingly.—Reuters

Fighting cyber-attacks is matter of national security

HAVANA, 25 Feb.—Cuba is waging efforts to prevent cyber-attacks by developing national software and migrating all Cuban State institutions to a national open source code programme, Cuban Informatics and Communications Vice Minister Boris Moreno told Xinhua Thursday.

He said Cuba is a poor embargomed country with a "historical enemy", referring to the United States, and the development of national software and computers to replace the imported ones is a "matter of national security."

He said every transnational organization producing computer hardware and software is obliged "by law" to leave open backdoors to world’s major intelligence agencies, affecting Cuba’s national sovereignty and security and thus underlining the importance of developing its national software to prevent the extraction of important data.

Moreno added the protection of Cuba’s network is aimed to prevent attacks by hackers not only from the United States "as many people might think", but from anywhere else in the world.—Xinhua

Australian passengers affected by smoke on Virgin Blue flight

CANBERRA, 25 Feb.—Australian police launched an investigation on board a Virgin Blue plane that landed at the Melbourne Airport on Friday morning with smoke in the cabin. Virgin Blue flight 302 from Brisbane to Melbourne, carrying 160 passengers, landed without incident after passengers and crew smelled smoke coming from the galley area.

The airline denied there was any smoke, just an odour, and said a faulty oven was removed.

"It (the smoke) was coming from the oven in the galley of the plane and the oven has been removed from the plane and it is being investigated," Virgin Blue media spokeswoman Fiona Sugden told the Australia Associated Press on Friday.

Victorian Police are conducting a routine investigation of the incident. 12 pregnant women die in Indian hospital

NEW DELHI, 25 Feb.—Twelve pregnant women have died in 10 days in an Indian government hospital, with contaminated fluids administered during child birth suspected to be the cause, reports said Friday.

Another five women are in a serious condition, according to doctors at the Unnaid Hospital in the city of Jodhpur, in a case that highlights the often poor standards of care in state-run health facilities in India.

The first death occurred on 13 February and a meeting of leading doctors was held three days later which failed to identify the cause. The Indian Express newspaper reported, citing doctors and officials at the hospital.

"All the women died after severe haemorrhaging and for now we believe the cause might be an infection after they were administered tainted IV fluids," Unnaid Hospital Superintendent NG Chagani told the newspaper. Police have lodged a case against the local company that supplied the fluids and the Indian manufacturer.

"We have begun our investigation and are checking the suspected stock," Jodhpur police commissioner Bhupendra Kumar Dak told the Times of India newspaper.

14 Filipinos missing in New Zealand quake

MANILA, 25 Feb.—The number of Filipinos missing in New Zealand after Tuesday’s magnitude 6.3 quake in Christchurch has climbed to 14, the Department of Foreign Affairs said on Thursday.

But Foreign Affairs spokesman Eduardo Malaya said Philippine officials in Christchurch have appealed to the New Zealand government to resume rescue operations since there is an indication that the most of the 14 missing Filipinos are still alive.

“They have been receiving text messages from these missing individuals and they are not presumed dead,” Malaya said.

Swiss tourist killed by elephant in Thailand

BANGKOK, 25 Feb.—An elderly Swiss woman was trampled to death and four other tourists were injured when elephants they were riding fought with each other in southern Thailand, police said Thursday.

The 63-year-old woman was thrown to the ground and fatally injured during an elephant trek with friends in the south of the country on Tuesday. Bangkok Post online reported.

"It happened because the elephants quarrelled with each other. One reared up on its feet so the tourists fell to the ground, and it trampled on her," Bangkok Post online quoted Pol Lt-Col Apidej Chuaikuar, who is the officer in charge of the case, as saying.

He said a total of five tourists, who were staying in the nearby resort of Phuket, were riding two male elephants when the creatures became aggressive.

The woman was pronounced dead at a hospital in nearby southern province of Surat Thani Province that evening.

She was travelling with two other Swiss nationals who were injured, according to an official source, who said some members of the group were forced to jump from one of the animals when it began running through the forest.

Two more tourists, whose nationalities were not immediately clear, were also believed to have been injured.

The Swiss embassy in Bangkok confirmed it was aware of the situation and was providing assistance to the victims and their families.

Earliest human remains in US Arctic reported

WASHINGTON, 25 Feb — Some 11,500 years ago one of America’s earliest families laid the remains of a 3-year-old child to rest in their home in what is now Alaska. The discovery of that burial is shedding new light on the life and times of the early settlers who crossed from Asia to the New World, researchers report in Friday’s edition of the journal Science.

The bones represent the earliest human remains discovered in the Arctic of North America, a “pretty significant find,” said Ben A Potter of the University of Alaska Fairbanks.

While ancient Alaskan residents were known to hunt large game, the newly discovered site shows they also foraged for fish, birds and small mammals, he explained. “Here we know there were young children and females. So, this is a whole piece of the settlement system that we had virtually no record of.”

The site of the discovery, Upper Sun River, is in the forest of the Tanana lowlands in central Alaska, Potter and his colleagues report.—INTERNET

FDA grants meeting on Avastin for breast cancer

WASHINGTON, 25 Feb — The Food and Drug Administration has granted Swiss drugmaker Roche a first-of-a-kind public hearing to defend the effectiveness of its drug Avastin for treating breast cancer, just months after the agency ruled that the drug is ineffective for that use. Roche said Thursday it will make its case at the two-day hearing in June for keeping the drug approved for treating recurrent breast cancer.

Avastin is the world’s best-selling cancer drug and is also approved for several types of colon, lung, kidney and brain cancer. Those uses have not been questioned by the FDA. In December, the FDA ruled that recent studies failed to show that Avastin significantly extended or improved breast cancer patients’ lives. The agency began proceedings to revoke the drug’s approval for treating breast cancer, but Roche took the rare step of challenging the decision.

Drug companies almost always follow FDA requests, and the meeting starting 28 June over the fate of Avastin will be the first of its kind.

“We believe Avastin is an important option for women with this disease and should remain an FDA-approved choice,” said Roche Chief Medical Officer Hal Barron, in a statement. A spokeswoman for the non-profit Breast Cancer Action group said the meeting could be productive if it leads to reforms in how the FDA reviews and approves cancer drugs. “But if this is just going to be about Roche buying their way into the FDA and putting profits before patients, then I think this meeting is going to be highly questionable,” said Angela Wall, communications manager for the San Francisco-based advocacy group.—INTERNET

Three young girls killed in Mexico border attack

CIUDAD JUAREZ, 25 Feb — Gunmen opened fire on six children playing in the yard of a home in a border city of Ciudad Juarez, killing three girls aged 12, 14 and 15, prosecutors said Thursday.

Three other children in the yard were not hit by the bullets in the Wednesday attack. Some were as young as 8.

Ciudad Juarez, in northern Chihuahua State across the border from El Paso, Texas, has been the scene of bloody drug cartel turf battles that have killed more than 6,000 people the past two years. In several instances, youths have been killed just because they were in the same home as the gunmen’s intended targets.

The Chihuahua state prosecutors’ office said in a statement that the gunmen in the Wednesday attack were apparently targeting the father of two of the dead girls in a dispute that may have involved low-level drug dealing.

Two of the dead girls were sisters, and the third victim was their friend.—INTERNET

Taking after master: US pets obese, too, study finds

WASHINGTON, 25Feb— Just like their human masters, a majority of American pets have a weight problem, a study released Thursday says. In its fourth year study of how fat Americans’ four-legged furry friends are, the Association for Pet Obesity Prevention (APOP) found that 53 percent of cats and more than 55 percent of dogs were overweight or obese. That means there are around 50 million fat cats and 43 million pudgy dogs in the United States.

The study looked at 133 adult cats and 383 dogs. Nearly a third of the cats were classified by their veterinarians as overweight and nearly 22 percent were deemed to be clinically obese, the study found. Among the canines observed, 35 percent were found to be overweight and 20 percent were obese.

“We are seeing a greater percentage of obese pets than ever before,” said Dr Ernie Ward, founder of APOP. In 2007, roughly 19 percent of cats and a mere 10 percent of dogs were found in the APOP study to be obese — defined for the family pet as having a body weight that is 30 percent greater than normal.—INTERNET

Test launch of Russia’s Bulava missile postponed

MOSCOW, 25 Feb — The next test launch of Russia’s Bulava intercontinental ballistic missile (ICBM) will be carried out in late spring, head of Russia’s General Staff Gen Nikolai Makarov said on Friday. The 15th test launch of the Bulava from the Yuri Dolgoruky nuclear submarine was slated for 17 Dec, but had been postponed due to the ice conditions in the Barents Sea.

“The test launch is most likely to be carried out late spring or in early summer, as ice situation in the Barents Sea permits,” Makarov said.

Earlier, the Russian Defence Ministry said it planned to put the Bulava ICBM into service by the end of 2011. According to the missile’s chief designer Yuri Solomonov, Russian strategic forces wanted to conduct five more test launches of the sea-based missile.—Xinhua

Suspect in ICE agent slaying evaded earlier charge

MEXICO CITY, 25 Feb—A Mexican judge said Thursday that he revoked bail for an alleged drug cartel member just weeks before the man allegedly shot a US immigration agent to death and wounded another.

The judge said he had originally granted the suspect a form of bail in another case because the most serious charges against him did not hold up.

Suspect Julian Zapata Espinoza was detained Wednesday by the Mexican army. The army said he confessed to killing US Immigration and Customs Enforcement agent Jaime Zapata on a highway near the northern city of San Luis Potosi on 15 Feb, in what he claimed was a case of mistaken identity.

Zapata Espinoza had been arrested in 2009 on charges of illegal weapons possession, organized crime and possession of counterfeit police insignia and using a stolen car. He was released and later jumped bail.

District court judge Juan de Dios Morel explained the bail ruling Thursday, saying he had to deny only two charges under which he could have denied bail for Zapata Espinoza because of a lack of evidence.

Japan sees slowest population growth since 1920

TOKYO, 25 Feb—Japan’s population has grown at the slowest pace since 1920 as the rapidly aging country grapples with extremely low birthrates, a census report showed Friday.

Japan, the world’s 10th most populated country, said its population stood at 128.05 million as of October 2010, up 0.2 percent from the previous census in 2005.

The figure marked the slowest population growth since Japan began a census in 1920, said Keiko Nozaki, an official at the internal affairs ministry, which released the once-in-five-years census data.

“The weak population growth was mainly due to Japan’s very low birthrates,” Nozaki said.

While the census showed marginal population growth, Japan’s population has continued to decline since 2007, the ministry said.

Like in other advanced countries, young Japanese people are waiting to get married and choosing to have fewer children because of careers and lifestyle choices.

Japan’s fertility rate — the average number of children born to a woman over her lifetime — stood at 1.37 in 2008, one of the lowest in the world, the government said.

Japan’s population is also aging faster than anywhere else.

Boeing beats EADS in US tanker battle

WASHINGTON, 25 Feb—US aerospace giant Boeing has won a massive contract to supply aerial refueling tankers to the US Air Force, defeating European rival EADS in a long and tortuous contest.

Announcing the first part of a contract worth more than $30 billion, the Pentagon said: “Boeing was a clear winner.”

The US firm is now tasked with delivering 18 aircraft by 2017, but the contract is expected to grow to 179 tankers.

The planes, effectively flying gasoline stations, give the air force global reach and allow the United States to project military power well beyond its borders.

The decision capped a nearly 10-year attempt by the air force to begin to replace an aging Boeing-built fleet of 400 tankers dating back to the 1950s.

But it was an upset, with most experts predicting the European Aeronautic Defence and Space Company would land the contract.

Air Force Secretary Michael Donley said both firms met 372 mandatory requirements, but because Boeing’s bid was more than one percent lower, extra requirements were not taken into account.

The lower-priced Boeing proposal will offer taxpayer savings, he added.

But facing the prospect that the decision may be contested, Donley emphasized that the process was careful and thorough.

$2,000 fine for each cigar smoked in apt

NEW YORK, 25 Feb—A New York man settled a lawsuit by agreeing to pay $2,000 to his neighbours if he is caught smoking a cigar inside his apartment in the future.

The $2 million lawsuit, filed in city Supreme Court by Russell and Amanda Poses, claimed next door neighbour Harry Lysons was sinking up their apartment by smoking cigars inside his domicile, the New York Post reported Thursday.

Lysons settled the lawsuit by agreeing to pay a $2,000 fine for each future incident involving indoor cigar smoking.

The Poses family said the smoke was causing health problems for their children, ages 3 and 6.

“Each party hereto shall afford the other party access to their apartment, upon reasonable notice for the purpose of verifying that the plaintiffs’ apartment smells from cigar smoke which emanated from defendants’ smoking cigars in the prohibited areas,” the settlement states.

“They could have put in a million-dollar fine and it would have been fine with us, because my client won’t be smoking any cigars in the apartment,” said Jeffery Marcus, Lysons’ lawyer.

High-speed train suspended near Seoul

SEOUL, 25 Feb—A high-speed KTX train bound for Seoul from the southern port city of Busan stopped Friday morning but resumed its operation in less than one hour, local media reported.

The train stopped around 8:24 am after leaving a tunnel in the city of Hwasoeng, 40 kilometres south of Seoul, and resumed its operation around 9:07 am, Yonhap News Agency reported.

The state-run Korea Railroad said the train driver stopped the train for safety reasons after a heat detection sensor was turned on, according to Yonhap.

A Korea Railroad official said the suspension of the service was not related to engine problems.

The Korea Railroad is looking into what disrupted the train operation.

Another KTX train heading to Seoul from Busan on 11 Feb was derailed by a small nut and bolt in a switching box that hadn’t been tightened by a repairman.

Mortgage co official admits $1.9bn fraud scheme

WASHINGTON, 25 Feb — The treasurer of a once-leading US private home lender pleaded guilty Thursday in a $1.9 billion scheme to sell worthless loans that sparked the country’s largest bank failure in 2009, the justice department said.

The scheme, which continued straight through the 2008-2009 collapse of the US housing market, fed billions in home loans that either did not exist or that had already been sold to banks and investors, to raise cash for its business.

The duped customers included Colonial Bank, which collapsed spectacularly in August 2009, government-backed home loan guarantor Freddie Mac; and Ocala Funding, a Florida entity backed by Deutsche Bank and BNP Paribas.

They also tried to push worthless assets on the government’s Troubled Asset Relief Programme, ironically designed to salvage the scandal-ridden home-loan industry, the department said.

Brazil’s unemployment rate drops to 6.1 percent in January

RIO DE JANEIRO, 25 Feb — Brazil’s unemployment rate fell to 6.1 percent year on year in January, the lowest for the month since 2003, the national statistics office IBGE said on Thursday. The figure was slightly higher than the 5.3 percent for December. Cimar Azeredo, who coordinates the IBGE’s employment survey, explained that the small rise is a natural consequence of the end of temporary Christmas contracts.

“That always happens, it is a seasonal effect and is expected,” he said. According to him, it is important to compare January’s figures with the same period last year, when the rate was at 7.2 percent. The employed population in Brazil totaled 22 million in January, down 1.6 percent from December and up 2.2 percent from the same period last year.

Uruguay, Argentina to build joint regasification plant

MONTevideo, 25 Feb — Uruguay has reached an agreement with Argentina to jointly build a regasification plant. Uruguayan President Jose Mujica said Thursday.

“We are about to enhance cooperation in natural gas production via state organizations of both countries,” Mujica told a radio programme on Thursday, one day before his meeting with his Argentine counterpart Cristina Fernandez.

According to the 15-year contract, natural gas would be supplied by Argentina and processed in Uruguay.

The plant is expected to change Uruguay’s energy matrix and reduce the cost of energy generation in some thermal power plants, Mujica said.

Big change in perceptions of Spanish wine

MADRID, 25 Feb — Twenty years ago if you asked someone to name three Spanish wines they would almost certainly have replied “Sherry, Cava and Rioja.” While those three are still probably the most popular Spanish wines backed up by generations of expertise and tradition, there are now plenty of reasons to look at the new exciting wines that are being produced in the country.

Spain has a tradition of wine production dating back 3,000 years to the arrival of the Phoenicians. Techniques improved with the arrival of the Romans in the country.

Today Spain has more land dedicated to grape cultivation than any other country in Europe. Its 1,200,000 hectares of vines means 35 percent more land is dedicated to wine production than in either Italy or France.

Yet the amount of wine being produced is no guarantee of quality; indeed some would argue it is the opposite.

Boy’s ski lift horror sparks probe
PORTES DU SOLEIL, 25 Feb — A British teenager is in a critical condition in France after he was left hanging from a chairlift during a school ski trip to the Alps. Police have said the 14-year-old found himself suspended by his own clothing after he failed to free himself from a metal seat on Wednesday afternoon in the Portes du Soleil.
He was later cut free and resuscitated by a rescue team as holidaymakers looked on in horror from the slopes below. The youngster, who has not been named, was skiing with classmates in the popular resort of Chatel, when he took the Echo des Montagnes chairlift at about 1pm. Local police said he was unable to get off his seat and remained on the lift as it went down the mountain. Moments later he fell towards the piste.

No place to hide drugs with new X-ray technology for airports
SYDNEY, 25 Feb — New X-ray technology that can reveal drug smugglers’ internal cavities will be trialled at airports under a plan to fast-track security searches. Legislation before Federal Parliament would enable Federal police to use new body scanners instead of sending suspects to hospital for internal X-rays ordered by a doctor, reported the Herald Sun.
Federal police wasted more than 4600 hours in hospital waiting rooms last year because of drug smugglers waiting for scans. More than 200 people were taken to hospital for internal searches, with almost 50 found to have drugs in their bodies.

Malaysian experiment releases 3 orangutans in wild
KUALA LUMPUR, 25 Feb — Malaysian researchers are testing whether three young orangutans reared in captivity can adapt to life in the wild outside Borneo, where activists insist on Wednesday the experiment was a flawed way of trying to help the endangered primates.
The project is spearheaded by a private foundation that runs the Orangutan Island, a research centre and tourist attraction in northern peninsular Malaysia. The facility has bred orangutans in captivity over the past decade despite criticism by animal rights groups that conservation programmes should focus instead on protecting existing orangutans in the jungles of Borneo and Sumatra.
D Sabapathy, the centre’s senior manager, said researchers released three captive orangutans on a neighbouring island last week. They are expected to remain there for up to six years before officials determine whether they can be let loose, either in peninsular Malaysia or Borneo.

Most patients ‘happy’ with dentists
LONDON, 25 Feb — Almost nine in 10 patients in Northern Ireland are satisfied with their dentist, a survey has found. Despite this, many felt some sections of the community like migrants and rural dwellers were disadvantaged by the current system, with some having to travel a considerable distance for NHS treatment, the Patient and Client Council study added.
Health Minister Michael McGimpsey has recently made an additional investment of £17 million for general dental services to ease problems of access, the full impact of which has yet to be realized.
Anne Hathaway trains for catwoman, preps for Oscar

LOS ANGELES, 25 Feb—These days, Anne Hathaway is a busy woman. Or make that a busy catwoman.

The 28-year-old actress is training for the physical demands of her lead role as catwoman (and its sleek, physique-revealing catsuit) in “The Dark Knight Rises” as she flexes her comedy muscles alongside James Franco as co-hosts of Sunday’s Academy Awards.

“There’s a lot going on, but it’s all really super-duper positive,” Hathaway said between fittings Wednesday. “I feel like I have a big fight coming up and everyone’s giving me the thumbs-up and the ‘you’ll-rock-it’ fist pump. I have unbelievable support.”

Men face charges after cow head prank

Police in Pennsylvania said two men are facing charges after a prank involving the placement of a cow’s head on the doorstep of some friends.

Ebensburg police Chief Terry Wyland said a couple returned from a trip Saturday to discover a cardboard box bearing their name and address on their doorstep.

“They opened it up and it was a cow’s head,” Wyland said. “They’re very upset.” Wyland said. “It really caused the victims, especially the wife, stress.”

Wyland said an investigation revealed two suspects, friends of the couple, and the men came into the police station and confessed Tuesday.

The chief said he will not identify the men until they are charged with harassment and disorderly conduct later in the week.

Liu Yifei cites “Up” as her influence for new film

BEIJING, 25 Feb—Actress Liu Yifei says the tomboy Ellie in Disney-Pixar’s animated film “Up” has helped her gain the right feeling for her character in the fantasy thriller, “A Chinese Fairy Tale” (“Quan Nv You Hun”).

In her new film, Liu Yifei plays a leopard cat that takes a human form. “The director thinks animals respond to things by instinct, and I was advised to observe Ellis’s instinctive features,” Liu said 23 Feb, 2011 in Beijing.

“Chinese Fairy Tale” is director Wilson Yip’s take on a short story by 17th century writer Pu Songling, about the love between a human and a non-human spirit. The fairytale has spawned films and TV dramas, with a 1987 film starring Joey Wong and Leslie Cheung being widely regarded as a classic.

But Liu Yifei was confident to outdo previous versions, and said her performance would be refreshing.

Actor Yu Shaorun from “Forever Enthralled” plays the man who is attracted to Liu’s character.

Other stars in the film include Louis Koo, Kara Hui, and Lin Peng. The film is slated for release in China on 22 April. Its overseas rights have been sold to 12 countries and regions in Asia, Europe and North America, according to the film’s production company.—Xinhua

Stumped ICC so sorry after South Africa anthem cut short

Organizers apologised to the South African team for a technical snag that led to an abrupt end to their national anthem before their World Cup match against West Indies, the team manager said on Thursday.

“The International Cricket Council has apologised to the team on behalf of the host union and have stressed that this will not happen again going forward,” team manager Mohamed Moosajee said in a statement.

“We also realized that the anthem was of a poor quality and we will make sure that a better quality version is used for all of our matches going forward.”

The incident took place in the pre-match ceremony at Feroz Shah Kotla even though skipper Graeme Smith and his team mates ignored it to complete the anthem.

Tree-planting world record set in Philippines

Philippine environmentalists have set a world record for the most trees planted simultaneously, kickstarting an enormous reforestation programme.

Nearly 7,000 people helped in the mass planting of saplings in denuded forest and grassland in the eastern Province of Camarines Sur on Wednesday, said Mara Joneil Cordova, spokeswoman for El Verde (The Green) project. “We had 64,096 trees planted in 15 minutes. This was certified by the Guinness Book of World Records that everything was accurate and correct,” Cordova said.

The effort beat the previous Guinness world record of 50,033 trees planted in India last year, she said.

The Oscar team is helping Hathaway and Franco find their funniest moments, and the producers “are making it as easy as possible on me.”

“It’s all been kind of wonderful and jovial,” she said. “It turns out it takes a village to host the Oscars.”

Hathaway’s biggest challenge this week? Navigating Los Angeles’ famous freeways and making it to all her appointments on time.

But the New York City resident has that one covered: “Luckily my assistant is a really good driver—Internet.”

“He is going to improve. He is going in the right direction,” the Portuguese coach added. Benzena, 23, who left Lyon for the Spanish capital two years ago, made an instant impact in Tuesday’s Champions League match at his old stomping ground, Stade Gerland.
