Beware of fire

According to the motto ‘Beware of fire’, all people are to take fire preventive measures. Most of losses and damage caused by natural disasters come from fires.

Authorities concerned are warning the people about the danger of fire by issuing notices on fire safety and preventive measures. The people on their part need to follow the notices in order to avoid the fire danger. To reduce fire outbreaks, it is needed to consider such points as ensuring a person is around when fire is used, placing no fuels near the burning stove, using a wood-burning stove in an earth hole, ensuring no child plays with fire and ensuring no oil lamp or candle is lighted near the mosquito net.

There are various reasons why fires break out. But most are stove fires, accidental fires and electric shock fires. Fires due to negligence surpass all of them.

It is therefore necessary to use fire systematically. Each and every house must keep hooks, bags of sand and water buckets for fire prevention. Departmental buildings must keep fire extinguishers as well.

Myanmar Fire Brigade is taking fire preventive and control measures in three ways – to investigate a fire breakout promptly, to rush to the scene of outbreak and to put out the fire as quick as possible. As more educative measures are being taken and more warnings issued, the people are required to follow and respect them.

To make sure that there is no loss of life and property of the people and of State budgets, all the people are to use fire systematically and take fire preventive measures.

UN climate meeting kicks off in Bangkok

BANGKOK, 3 April—A United Nations meeting on climate change kicked off on Sunday in Bangkok to discuss action plans following decisions made at a ministerial meeting in Mexico last year.

Participants at the United Nations Framework Convention on Climate Change (UNFCCC) meeting are to map out action plans in their six-day meeting in Bangkok, the first UNFCCC meeting after the meeting in Cancun, Mexico from 29 Nov to 10 Dec last year.

Pre-sessional workshops will continue from Sunday to Tuesday morning before the official opening takes place on Tuesday afternoon.

The meetings include sixteenth session of the ad hoc working group on further commitments of developed nations under the Kyoto Protocol, and the fourteenth session of the ad hoc working group on long-term cooperative action under the UNFCCC.

The Kyoto Protocol commits parties to the convention to reduce green house gas emissions. A total of 2,271 representatives from 175 countries are attending the Bangkok meeting, of which 1,417 are government officials, according to a UN official.—Xinhua

N Ireland policeman killed in car bomb attack

OMAGH, 3 April—A Northern Ireland policeman was killed in a car bomb attack which leaders on all sides vowed would not be allowed to derail the province’s delicate peace process.

Ronan Kerr, 25, who only completed his training three weeks ago, was killed on Saturday by the booby-trap under his car outside his home in Omagh, the scene of Northern Ireland’s worst terror atrocity.

Responsibility for the attack has not yet been claimed. However, senior politicians pointed towards dissident republicans, who oppose the power-sharing peace process.

Northern Ireland First Minister Peter Robinson said it was a “Neanderthal” attempt to scare Catholics off from joining the province’s police service.

British Prime Minister David Cameron said he utterly condemned the murder.

“Those who carried out this wicked and cowardly crime will never succeed in dragging Northern Ireland back to a dark and bloody past,” he said in a statement.—INTERNET

Mexico alcohol distillery blast kills three, injures three

VERACRUZ, 3 April—An explosion and fire has hit a Mexican factory that distills raw alcohol, killing three people and injuring three others.

The civil defence agency in the Gulf coast state of Veracruz says the dead from Saturday’s blast have not been identified and it is unclear whether they were plant workers or neighbours of the facility near the city of Orizaba.

About 600 people have been evacuated from homes in the general vicinity of the plant.

The company’s website says it produces ethanol for medical and other purposes. It is not clear what triggered the blast.—INTERNET

Four dead in crash of small plane at NM airport

ROSWELL, 3 April—Four Gulfstream employees were killed Saturday in a fiery crash of a test twin-engine luxury business aircraft at an airport, authorities said.

Officials with Savannah-Ga-based plane company confirmed that two Gulfstream pilots and two flight-test engineers died in the crash. Their names and other background information weren’t immediately released. The company said in a statement that the Gulfstream G650 was doing takeoff-perform-ance tests at Roswell International Air Centre at the time of the crash.

A spokesperson for the Federal Aviation Admin-istration, said the plane had just taken off when it rolled and slammed into the runway. He said the plane’s gear collapsed and the craft burst into flames. Roswell Fire Department officials confirmed the fatalities and said there were no other injuries reported on the airport grounds.—INTERNET

UAE anti-terrorist unit takes ship from pirates

CAIRO, 3 April—An anti-terrorist unit from the United Arab Emirates has wrested control of a ship from pirates in the Arabian Sea, state-run media reported on Saturday.

The bulk carrier MV Arrilah-1 came under attack at dawn Friday while en route from Australia to Dubai’s Jebel Ali port, according to the WAM news agency.

The agency said Saturday the UAE’s special forces, backed by the air force, regained control of the ship off the coast of neighbouring Oman.

The pirates surrendered under guard and will be handed over to Emirates authorities on arrival at Jebel Ali, WAM quoted an official as saying.

Cmdr Amy Derrick-Frost, a spokeswoman for the US Navy’s 5th Fleet, said they were aware of a “piracy event” but had no other details. The 5th Fleet is based in the gulf nation of Bahrain and is involved in efforts to fight piracy emanating from Somalia.

The WAM report did not say whether the pirates involved were from Somalia.—INTERNET

US studies Fukushima disaster for safety lessons

WASHINGTON, April 3—US engineers studying Japan’s experience with its crippled nuclear plant have focused on two key weaknesses — backup energy systems and spent fuel rod pools — that could also plague reactors in the United States.

The Fukushima Daiichi complex largely withstood the massive 9.0-magnitude earthquake on 11 March, but was damaged by the giant tsunami wave that followed the quake.

The twin disasters knocked out the plant’s reactor cooling systems, sparking a series of explosions and fires. Authorities have since struggled to keep the fuel rods under water inside reactors and storage containment pools. If they are exposed to air, they could degrade further and emit large amounts of dangerous radioactive material.

Two of the plant’s six spent fuel rod pools were apparently damaged following the quake and tsunami, said Gregory Jaczko, head of the US Nuclear Regulatory Commission (NRC).

“It was possible there was a leak,” he told a US Senate hearing on 30 March, soon after he returned from Japan.

US observers fear the fuel storage containment pools, located on an upper part of the reactor buildings at Fukushima, were cracked by explosions after the quake and tsunami and are leaking. —Internet

Japan battles to stop radiation leak into sea

SENDAI, 3 April—Workers at Japan’s crippled nuclear plant were trying to seal a crack in a concrete pit that has leaked radiation into the Pacific as part of their battle to shut down the facility.

Along the tsunami-battered coast, 25,000 Japanese and US military and rescue crew on Sunday entered the third and final day of a massive search for bodies, more than three weeks after the catastrophe struck.

While cherry blossoms opened in Tokyo, temperatures plunged again, leaving tens of thousands of homeless families across the ravaged northeast coast of Japan’s main Honshu island. No quick end was in sight for the world’s worst nuclear emergency since Ukraine’s Chernobyl disaster of 1986, warned a government lawmaker who has advised Prime Minister Naoto Kan on the crisis at the six-reactor plant.

“This is going to be a long battle,” said Goshi Hosono, who highlight ed the threat of 4.5 metre (15 foot) long spent fuel rods that remain volatile for months and need to be cooled in pools with circulating water.

“The biggest challenge at this plant is that there are more than 10,000 spent fuel rods,” Hosono said on Fuji TV. —Internet

Six times to hell and back in Chernobyl, says nuclear “jumper”

SINGAPORE, 3 April—Six times, Sergei Belyakov says, he has been through the doorway to hell and back.

The Ukrainian-American was a volunteer “jumper” who helped clean up after the nuclear disaster in the town of Chernobyl in the former Soviet Union in April, 1986. These are people who jump into a radioactive area to clear debris or mend pipes and run to safety before radiation reaches lethal levels.

Tokyo Electric Power Co (TEPCO) is trying to get jumpers — reportedly for $5,000 a day — to bring its damaged nuclear power plant in northern Japan under control after it was severely damaged by last month’s earthquake and tsunami, the world’s worst nuclear crisis since Chernobyl.

Six times during his 40-day tenure at Chernobyl, Belyakov was one of the hundreds crouching in the covered stairway leading to the roof of nuclear reactors 3 and 4. Outside, radioactivity was so high that it could kill within minutes. —Reuters

Tsunami killed two workers at Japan nuclear plant

TOYKO, 3 April—The utility that runs a tsunami-crippled Japanese nuclear power plant says two workers were killed when the wave swept ashore more than three weeks ago.

Tokyo Electric Power Co’s announcement Sunday is the first confirmation of deaths at the plant. The workers had been missing since the 11 March earthquake and tsunami.

Spokesman Naoki Tsunoda said the bodies were found Wednesday and had to be decontaminated.

The announcement was delayed out of consideration for the families.

Radiation has been spewing from the plant since the tsunami knocked out cooling systems there, causing the reactors to dangerously overheat. —Internet

Japan disaster to cost Australia $2 b in lost trade

SYDNEY, 3 April—The devastating earthquake and tsunami in Japan is likely to cost Australia around $2 billion in lost export earnings, Treasurer Wayne Swan said.

Japan is the country’s second-largest trade partner after China and the seafloor quake and tsunami on 11 March, which left about 28,000 people dead or missing, damaged ports and power stations.

Swan admitted it will leave its mark on the Australian economy. “Preliminary Treasury estimates show that the earthquake and tsunami will cut demand for our bulk commodity exports in the short term and likely slash around (Aus)$2 billion ($2.07 billion) from export earnings in 2010-11,” he said.

“This could subtract less than a quarter of a percentage point from GDP growth this financial year, and comes on top of the half a percentage point impact from the floods and cyclone at home. ‘Japan’s nuclear situation and power shortages continue to weigh on international financial markets and may prolong the impact of this crisis on the global economy,” Swan added. —Internet

Diabetes makes you older before your time

ANN ARBOR, 3 April—People in their 50s with diabetes may age before their time compared with their diabetes-free counterparts, US researchers say. Dr Christine Cigolle, an assistant professor of family medicine and internal medicine at the University of Michigan Medical School, says adults ages 51-70 with diabetes developed age-related ailments such as cognitive impairment, incontinence, falls, dizziness, vision impairment and pain at a faster rate than those without diabetes.

For adults age 51-60 with diabetes, the odds of developing new geriatric conditions were nearly double those who didn’t have diabetes, but by the time people with and without diabetes reach 80, the disparities begin to disappear, says Cigolle, the study’s lead author. “Our findings suggest that middle-age adults with diabetes start to accumulate these age-related problems,” Cigolle says in a statement.

“Because diabetes affects multiple organ systems, it has the potential to contribute significantly to the development of a number of issues that we associate with aging.”

Possible cure for hepatitis C promising

BERLIN, 3 April—Drugs used to treat hepatitis C that previously failed were more successful using different parameters, researchers at a conference in Germany say.

Professor Heiner Wedemeyer, secretary-general of the European Association for Study of the Liver, says with different treatment and dosing, several clinical trials demonstrated good response rates during the treatment period and with remarkably high-sustained viral response rates.

The findings provide hope for a growing number of hepatitis C patients who cannot currently be effectively treated for chronic hepatitis, Wedemeyer said.

The findings, presented at the International Liver Congress, found retreatment standard care regimens only achieve sustained virological response in 10 percent to 20 percent of patients, but the new trial data show sustained virological response rates of 40 percent 80 percent when protease inhibitors — a class of drugs used to treat hepatitis C.

“Up until now, telling a patient that their treatment has failed has been particularly difficult knowing that there were no other options available and their disease was progressing. These results completely change the situation because patients who did not have successful treatment in the past now have a realistic chance of being cured,” Wedemeyer says.

“For both clinicians and patients, this is a new era in the treatment of viral hepatitis C, which is very exciting.”

Fast-food + coffee = soaring blood sugar

GUELPH, 3 April—Eating a fatty fast-food meal can result in blood-sugar levels spiking, and chasing it with caffeinated coffee doubles the trouble, Canadian researchers say.

Marie-Soleil Beaudoin, a doctoral student at the University of Guelph in Ontario, with professors Lindsay Robinson and Terry Graham, discovered not only that a healthy person’s blood-sugar level spikes after eating a high-fat meal, and it doubles if caffeinated coffee is added — jumping to levels similar to those of people at risk for diabetes. In the study, healthy men drank about 1 gram of a fat-laden beverage — a fat cocktail that contains only lipids — for every kilogram (2.2 pounds) of body weight. Six hours later, they were given a sugar drink.

When people eat sugar, the body produces insulin, which takes the sugar out of the blood and distributes it to our muscles, Beaudoin explains. The study, published in the Journal of Nutrition, found that the fatty meal affected the body’s ability to clear the sugar out of the blood — blood-sugar levels were 32 percent higher than when the men had not ingested the fat cocktail.

General Motors’ China sales growth slows sharply

BEIJING, 3 April—General Motors, the biggest overseas automaker in China, says its sales growth in the world’s largest car market slowed sharply year-on-year in the first quarter.

The US auto giant said it sold 685,583 vehicles over the first three months of 2011, exactly 10 percent more than during the first three months of 2010. GM said it sold 233,014 vehicles in China last month, against 230,048 vehicles in March last year, an increase of just 1.3 percent.

The slowdown in market growth, predicted by analysts, is seen as a consequence of the end of incentives offered by the Chinese government during the 2008-2009 financial crisis.

“GM had a good month and a solid start to the year despite the expiration of government incentives at the beginning of 2011 and the heavy impact of the tragic earthquake and tsunami in Japan,” said Kevin Wale, president of GM China.

He said the group and its joint ventures in China had been able to meet the supply chain challenges caused by the Japanese disaster.

Transocean rewards executives despite Gulf oil spill

WASHINGTON, 3 April—Transocean Ltd has given its executives pay raises, bonuses and stock options after the company’s “best year” for safety, despite a deadly oil platform explosion and massive leak in the Gulf of Mexico.

“Notwithstanding the tragic loss of life in the Gulf of Mexico, we achieved an exemplary statistical safety record as measured by our total recordable incident rate and total potential severity rate,” Transocean said in a filing Friday to the US Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC).

“As measured by these standards, we recorded the best year in safety performance in our company’s history, which is a reflection on our commitment to achieving an incident-free environment, all the time, everywhere." Nine of the 11 people killed in the 20 April, 2010, explosion on the BP-leased Deepwater Horizon platform were Transocean employees. Seventeen other people were wounded.

After the explosion, more than 200 million gallons of oil gushed into the Gulf of Mexico, fouling US shorelines, scaring off tourists and closing rich shrimp and fishing grounds. —Internet

Australia floods may cost coal business $8 B

SYDNEY, 3 April—Devastating floods could cost Australia up to $8.3 billion in lost coal production, new estimates show — a sharp increase on earlier projected losses.

The huge deluge that swamped coal-producing Queensland state in January caused significant damage, halting mine production and cutting key transport infrastructure, the Treasury said in its latest economic round-up released on Saturday.

“Contacts suggested that the loss of coal production is estimated to be between 20 million and 30 million tonnes,” it said.

The government has estimated the floods, which covered an area the size of France and Germany combined and were followed by destructive Cyclone Yasi, will cut coal production by about 15 million tonnes in the March quarter alone.

But businesses expect total coal production losses to be much higher, worth roughly between Aus$5.5 billion and Aus$8 billion ($8.3 billion, well beyond the Treasury’s earlier estimate of Aus$5 billion in 2010/11, the report said. — Internet

Huge pileup on foggy UAE highway; one killed

ABU DHABI, 3 April—More than 125 vehicles piled up Saturday in a chain-reaction crash in dense fog on the main highway between Dubai and Abu Dhabi, leaving one person dead and more than 80 injured, police said.

The wreckage extended for more than 500 yards (meters) and included 127 cars, buses and vans, said a statement by Abu Dhabi police. It said 61 people were injured.

The busy highway between the United Arab Emirates’ two main cities was closed for hours. In March 2008, three people were killed and 300 injured in a similar fog-shrouded pileup on the same stretch of highway.—Internet

50 feared in Nigerian tanker inferno

KANO, 3 April—A fuel tanker overturned at an army checkpoint in central Nigeria, sparking an inferno in which some 50 people were killed, a road safety official said Saturday.

“A fuel tanker ran into a convoy of vehicles at an army checkpoint in Narabi village and fell on its side, spilling its contents, and caught fire,” Haruna Likong Albashi said of the accident on Friday night.

“Seventeen vehicles at the checkpoint were engulfed in flames.”

In all from our estimation we have around 50 dead.” The accident occurred near the Bauchi state border with Plateau state in central Nigeria.

Such accidents occur frequently in Nigeria, where roads are poorly maintained and chaotic traffic is commonplace.

Army checkpoints are common in the West African nation, particularly in central Nigeria, which has been hit by years of clashes between Christian and Muslim ethnic groups.

In November, more than 30 people died in the northern state of Yobe when two buses collided and burst into flames. —Internet

British couple busted with 100 heroin caps in Peru

LIMA, 3 April—A British couple was arrested at Lima’s international airport as they boarded a plane to London with over 11 kilograms of cocaine and 100 heroin capsules, according to police.

Peruvian police alleged that Roxana Laercia, 37, stashed the cocaine (24 pounds) between her clothes, and that Michael Eguonoghen, 28, had swallowed the heroin capsules — the equivalent of 1.5 kilograms (3.3 pounds). Both are British citizens, officials said on Saturday.

Twenty killed in under 24 hours in Mexican city

CIUDAD JUAREZ, 3 April—Authorities said that 20 people were killed in less than 24 hours in Mexico’s most violent city, Ciudad Juarez, which borders the US state of Texas.

The first of three separate attacks by armed groups was late Thursday when five people were killed at a bar called La Barritas.

Witnesses described several armed men opening fire from outside the building before Molotov cocktails were thrown inside, according to local press reports.

The victims were two men, two women and a fifth person burned so badly, a forensics expert told AFP on condition of anonymity.

Ten people were killed late Thursday into Friday at another bar, El Castillo, near the border crossing with the United States, officials in the state of Chihuahua said.

Witnesses said more than a dozen gunmen dressed in black entered the bar and opened fire.

Mountain fire extinguished in southwest China; no casualties reported

KUNMING, 3 April—More than 1,000 people had battled a mountain fire for six hours before it was put out Saturday night in southwest China’s Yunnan Province, said local fire control authorities.

The fire was put out at 7:50 pm, more than six hours after the blaze engulfed a rugged mountain area in the Xishan District of Kunming, the provincial capital. No casualties were reported, said a spokesman from the province’s fire control office.

More than 1,000 people, including firefighters and local residents, joined in the effort. About 550 people are still at the 6.67-hectare area to guard against a recurrence of the fire, the spokesman said.

The effort to extinguish the fire was hampered by high temperatures and strong winds, the spokesman said.

Asthma linked to smoking, nicotine

CINCINNATI, 3 April—A lifetime history of daily smoking and nicotine dependence can increase the risk of asthma, US researchers suggest.

Alison McLeish of the University of Cincinnati, Jesse Cougle of Florida State University and Michael Zvolensky of the University of Vermont analyzed data from the National Comorbidity Survey Replication — a large epidemiological survey of US adults.

The study, published in the Journal of Health Psychology, found people diagnosed with asthma were 1.26 times more likely to have been a smoker and twice as likely to have been nicotine dependent at some point in their lifetimes compared to those without asthma.

The researchers found the asthma-smoking association was stronger when focusing on nicotine dependence in the past 12 months.

“Individuals with asthma were nearly three times as likely as those without asthma to have reported nicotine dependence in the past 12 months, after controlling for demographic and drug abuse/dependence variables,” the study said.

Many leaving Haiti’s earthquake settlement camps

PORT-AU-PRINCE, 3 April—Large numbers of Haitians are leaving the dirty, overcrowded camps that sprang up after last year’s earthquake, some lured away by financial incentives from officials and others forced out by landowners.

Many more may be pushed out, with no safe place to go, just ahead of the rainy season that starts in May, the International Organization for Migration said in a report distributed Friday.

The overall camp population already has dropped by more than half in recent months, to an estimated 800,000, the IOM said, even though almost no new housing has been built and few repairs have been made to dwellings damaged by the magnitude-7.0 quake on 12 Jan, 2010.

Nearly two-thirds of those who left the camps have gone back to their old neighbourhoods, and fewer than half of those are returning to undamaged homes.

Many are back in houses that need repair or in makeshift shelters or tents on their property.

Others have found new areas, in houses or apartments, staying with friends or relatives or pitching new camps on their own.

“We came back to the house because we had no choice,” said Francois Joseph-Ilanoird, 62, who said security guards kicked him off the grounds of a private tennis club court where 30 families were living in shelters. “Now we’re living day by day.”

Southwest grounds about 80 planes after mishap

PHOENIX, 3 April—Flight attendants had just begun to take drink orders when the explosion rocked the cabin.

Aboard Southwest Flight 812, Shawna Malvini Redden covered her eyes when the explosion rocked the cabin. Oxygen masks fell, the cabin lost pressure, and Redden, now suddenly lightheaded, fumbled to maneuver the mask in place.

“Then she prayed. And, instinctively, reached out to the stranger seated next to her in Row 8 as the pilot of the damaged aircraft began a rapid descent from about 34,400 feet in the sky.

“I don’t know this dude, but I was like, ‘I’m going to just hold your hand,’” Redden, a 28-year-old doctoral student at Arizona State University, recalled Saturday, a day after her Phoenix-to-Sacramento flight was forced into an emergency landing at a military base in Yuma, Ariz, with a hole a few feet long in the roof of the passenger cabin. No serious injuries were reported among the 318 people aboard, according to Southwest officials.

What caused part of the fuselage to rupture on the 15-year-old Boeing 737-800 was a mystery, and investigators from the National Transportation Safety Board arrived Saturday in Yuma to begin an inquiry.
Brazilians sue Amazon for deforestation

Brasilia, 3 April — Brazil's biggest bank — the state-run Banco do Brasil — is being sued for allegedly funding deforestation in the Amazon. The lawsuit claims the bank lent money to companies that illegally cleared the rainforest and used labour practices bordering on slavery. The smaller state-owned Banco da Amazonia is also being sued.

Brazilians have drastically reduced the rate of deforestation in the Amazon in recent years. Prosecutors in the state of Para said they had uncovered 55 loans worth nearly $5m (3Cm) that the Banco do Brasil approved to farms that had broken environmental and employment laws. They also said they had uncovered 37 loans worth $11m given to farms with similar violations by the Banco da Amazonia.

The loans violated Brazil's constitution, environmental laws, banking regulations and international agreements signed by Brazil, the independent prosecutors at the Public Ministry said. “The discovery of this test that is illegal financing shows that this is a generalised problem,” they said in a statement. They added that their findings supported studies that showed a direct relationship between public loans and deforestation in the Amazon.

Prostate screening has no benefit

London, 3 April — Prostate cancer screening does not save lives, according to a 20-year study, published in the British Medical Journal. One in four newly diagnosed cancers in UK men is prostate cancer. Last year, the body which regulates screening in the UK advised against routine screening.

The UK National Screening Committee said this study provided further evidence that the harms outweigh the benefits. Prostate cancer kills 10,000 people in the UK every year. While there is no screening programme, men are advised to seek medical help if they have regular blood or urine problems.

The research, by studying men who were in their 50s or 60s in 1987, nearly 1,500 over 50 may still request a test. This latest study was published in the British Medical Journal.

Polar bear Knut died of drowning in Berlin Zoo

Berlin, 3 April — German polar bear Knut drowned when he fell into a pool of water in his enclosure after collapsing because of a brain swelling, experts have said. First indications from post-mortem examinations at Berlin Zoo had revealed “significant changes to the brain”. Senior vets now say these changes were probably caused by an infection which caused the bear’s brain to swell.

Four-year-old Knut died suddenly at the zoo in front of hundreds.

Pigeons: dark feathers reveal secret to healthy birds

París, 3 April — Darker coloured pigeons are healthier, researchers in France have discovered. A study of urban pigeons in central Paris has shown that birds with higher levels of the dark pigment melanin have stronger immune systems. They are also better able to fend off parasites.

Writing in the Journal of Avian Biology, the researchers say the findings may help explain why different coloured birds have adapted to different environments. Lisa Jacquin, and her colleagues from the National Centre for Scientific Research in Paris, carried out the research in conjunction with Dr Simon Ducatez from the Natural History Museum in Bruxy. The researchers explored why birds of the same species are often coloured differently.

PUTIN TEST DRIVES YO-MOBILE HYBRID CAR

Moscow, 3 April — Russian Prime Minister Vladimir Putin took a new Yo-mobile hybrid car for a test drive from his residence to President Dmitry Medvedev’s home outside of Moscow. Putin drove the hybrid vehicle, created by Russian venture Yo-auto, for a distance of about 6 miles on Friday to Medvedev’s country home outside of the capital, RIA Novosti reported on Friday.

Yo-auto is a joint venture between truck manufacturer Yarovit and billionaire Mikhail Prokhorov’s Onexim group. The Yo-mobiles, which have been designed in Hatchback, can and cross-coupe models, are expected to cost $12,000-$15,000 when they hit the market during the second half of 2012. Putin used the cross-coupe version for his Friday test drive with Yo-auto Director General Andrei Biryukov in the passenger seat.

3-foot alligator found in Minn apartment

WEST ST PAUL, 3 April — A 3-foot-long alligator, apparently left alone for days, wasn’t in a good mood when found by an apartment manager. The alligator was hissing,” city police Chief Bud Shaver said. “It was probably cold, and it was probably hungry.” The chief said an employee at the Minnesota Zoo suggested feeding it live goldfish or a bullied-up hamster, the Minneapolis Star Tribune reported on Friday. “Someone threw a few hot dogs in there,” Shaver said. “When you’re hungry, you’ll eat anything.” I guess.” The gator was discovered by an apartment manager checking on an open patio door last week.

The tenant, Mary Peng, was in the process of moving out at the time and was not available for comment, the newspaper said.

Baltic Sea letter in a bottle found 24 years later

Nearly a quarter-century after a German boy tossed a message in a bottle off a ship in the Baltic Sea, he’s received an answer.

A 13-year-old Russian, Daniil Korotikhik, was walking with his parents on a beach when he saw something glittering lying in the sand.

“I saw that bottle and it looked interesting,” Korotikhik told The Associated Press on Tuesday. “It looked like a German beer bottle with a ceramic plug, and there was a message inside.”

His father, who knows schoolboy German, translated the letter, carefully wrapped in cellophane and sealed by a medical bandage.

It said: “My name is Frank, and I’m five years old. My dad and I are travelling on a ship to Denmark. If you find this letter, please write back to me, and I will write back to you.” The letter, dated 1987, included an address in the town of Coesfeld.

The boy in the letter, Frank Uesbeck, is now 29. His parents still live at the letter’s address.

“I just wasn’t feeling lucky that day,” Mike said. He said he and the others who sat out the drawing are happy for their coworkers.

“We were the hardest working state employees I’ve ever come across, go-getters,” he said. “I’ll be sad to see them leave. They were such great people.”

Lohan says 911 call key in Betty Ford scuffle

LOS ANGELES, 3 April— Lindsay Lohan says a 911 call backs up her version of a December confrontation with a worker at the Betty Ford Centre in California, a source told TMZ.com.

Riverside County prosecutors this week declined to file charges against Lohan over the alleged scuffle at the famed Betty Ford clinic in which she allegedly hit Dawn Holland with a telephone.

A source close to the actress said Lohan believes Holland sounds “rude” and “aggressive” in the 911 call. TMZ said Saturday Holland also makes a reference to suing the actress on the recording.

Lohan still has a theft case pending in Los Angeles County. She has told acquaintances the surveillance video of the incident backs up her contention she did not intend to steal a necklace when she walked out of the store wearing it.

A man known for robbing banks while wearing a mask of US President Barack Obama was arrested Thursday shortly after another robbery, Austrian police said.

The suspect, was believed to be the same man who has already robbed half a dozen banks in Upper Austria Province since 2008, always wearing a mask of the US president.

On Thursday, the man, nicknamed the “Obama-robber” by the media, struck at another branch near the town of Voeklabruck and held a bank employee at gun-point before fleeing in a car, according to police.

DETROIT, 3 April— Charlie Sheen has been pretty well everywhere the past few months, popping up all over national TV, the Internet and in other forms of mass media, blathering on about the “tiger blood” coursing through his veins and decrying the “trolls” who derailed his lucrative acting career.

So much has been said by and about the unemployed actor, it’s almost as if there’s nothing left to learn about him. Sheen’s banding on the “almost” part. Promising “the REAL story,” the 45-year-old ex-

Rapper Snoop Dogg will be there as will guitarist Rob Patterson.

LONDON, 3 April—
Bobby Zamora scored twice in his first Premier League start in seven months to guide Fulham to a 3-0 victory over Blackpool at Craven Cottage on Sunday.
The England striker, who has been sidelined with leg and ankle injuries for most of this season, outpaced the Blackpool defence to lash in the opener from 15 metres in the 23rd minute.
Zamora doubled his tally for the match five minutes later by glancing in a free kick from Damien Duff, before midfielder Dickson Etuhu slid home the third with 18 minutes remaining.
The result lifted Fulham into the top half of the table and six points clear of the relegation zone, but Blackpool stayed just a point and a place above the bottom three.

Fulham's Bobby Zamora scores the first goal for his side.

LONDON, 3 April—
Sir Alex Ferguson warned Manchester United's title rivals his team have the look of English Premier League champions heading into the final seven games of the season.
The league leaders fought back from two goals down against West Ham to win 4-2 at Upton Park, with Wayne Rooney scoring a hat-trick to turn the game.

Azarenka, the 21-year-old eighth seed from Belarus, took full advantage of Sharapova’s struggles, as the former world number one held serve just once and committed 43 unforced errors.
“I played really well in the first set,” said Azarenka, who matched Sharapova shriek for shriek in a battle of two of the WTA's loudest players.

LONDON, 3 April—
Manchester City moved above Chelsea into third spot in the Premier League after an impressive attacking display against Sunderland.
Throwing away the conservatism that has blanketed recent displays, City took the lead when Adam Johnson exchanged passes with Yaya Toure to fire in. Carlos Tevez then doubled the lead from the penalty spot on 15 minutes. David Silva made it three before substitute Patrick Vieira slid in and Toure added a fifth on 73 minutes.
City could have easily made it more convincing but in contrast to recent performances, it was a display full of purpose and promise marked by a change in the line-up and formation.

Johnson opens the scoring for City on only his ninth league start this season. Internet

Even though they are a point above Chelsea, having played one game more, the manner of the victory will give City manager Roberto Mancini food for thought ahead of crucial games against Liverpool in the league a week on Monday and against Manchester United in the FA Cup final on 16 April.—Internet

Pato decides derby by fair means and foul

MILAN, 3 April — Pato scored a brace and threw himself cunningly to the ground to get Cristian Chivu sent off as AC Milan took charge of the Serie A title race by beating Inter Milan 3-0 at the San Siro here on Sunday.

It was Brazilian Pato who was the show’s central figure as he produced two clinical finishes and a dubious fall to turn the most eagerly-anticipated Milan derby in years the way of the rossoneri.
