Publication of periodicals to meet principles of the constitution Literati and literary profession have great love of nation and people

YANGON, 2 May— Now, Myanmar is in the process of transforming herself into a peaceful, modern and developed democratic one in line with the constitution. As part of the process, publication of periodicals is to meet the principles of the constitution, learning lessons from historic events that took place from 1948 to 1962, based on the objective conditions and observing the media of international community including ASEAN countries, said Union Minister for Information and for Culture U Kyaw Hsan at the 9th Sayawun Tin Shwe Literary Award Ceremony at the Strand Hotel on Seikkantha Street, here, yesterday.

He said literati and literary profession have great love of the nation and the people, so they are urged to work together in accordance with the constitution regarding the media. Over 4,000 publications of various genres that help serve the interest of the nation and the people and give knowledge come out yearly, with millions of copies.

The government presents 14 national literary awards and first, second and third awards of the 12 Sarpaybeikman literary awards, totaling 50 awards a year.

PERSPECTIVES

Establish export industries

Putting own national interest in the fore, all countries of today are competing with each other for economic superiority. Myanmar has laid all necessary foundations and promulgated laws, rules and procedures for proper evolution of the market economy. Consequently, the country's trade volume has surged nearly 20 times since 1988-1989 in which market economy was introduced.

National economy during the past successive governments excessively rested on rice farming. The government's encouragement and hard work of national entrepreneurs has resulted in annual increase in export of rice, beans and pulses, corn, sesame and rubber along with such new items as gas, garments, marine products and precious stones.

We have to pursue industrial development through agriculture for sustainable economic development of the nation, which calls for establishment of export-oriented system. When ASEAN Free Trade Zone emerges, competition will run higher than ever before in regional countries.

So, we should boost production of goods especially the items of agricultural produce that have gained a foothold in the international market. We have to systematize domestic productivity, standardize qualities of goods and distribute facts about markets and commodity prices and information. Export items must be improved not only in quantity but also in quality. Increased supply of agricultural inputs such as farm subsidies, seeds of crops of high-yield strains and fertilizers is a force behind the boosting of agricultural production.

With practice of the market economy and increased trade volume, the nation is poised to enjoy greater economic development. Therefore, national entrepreneurs and traders are to work in concert to boost export of goods and establish more and more industries that manufacture export items, which are factors of rapid economic growth of the nation.

Four killed, 11 injured in mosque blast in Charsadda, NW Pakistan

ISLAMABAD, 2 May— At least four people including three children and one woman were killed and 11 others were injured in a blast that ripped through a mosque Monday afternoon in northwest Pakistan, local television channels reported.

According to local Urdu channel Geo News, the roadside explosion went off near the mosque in the limits of a police station in Charsadda, a city about 40 km northeast of Peshawar. Six to seven policemen were among the injured, some in critical condition.

Security agencies cordoned off the area and the injured were shifted to the hospital where emergency was imposed. A bomb disposal squad was sent to the site and rescue operations were launched.

The mosque was damaged in the blast. The wall of the nearby police station was also severely damaged. This area had earlier came under attack last month when the convoy of JUI-F party chief Maulana Fazlur Rehman was targeted.

Security in the area was beefed up earlier in the morning when news about al-Qaeda chief Osama bin Laden’s death spread out. Local media reports said the al-Qaeda-linked Taleban have vowed more suicide attacks across Pakistan, even against the country’s president Asif Ali Zardari.

One protestor killed in clashes with police in south Yemen

ADEN, 2 May —At least one anti-government protestor was shot dead on Monday in clashes with police in Yemen’s southern port city of Aden, a local official told Xinhua.

The security forces opened fire at dozens of anti-government protesters who set up cement barricades and blocked the roads in the Khormaksar district, killing one protestor, said the official who asked to remain anonymous.

The security forces tried to reopen the roads by force as the roadblocks badly impacted the local traffic, the official added.

Meanwhile, local residents told Xinhua that armed groups believed to be separatists of the Southern Movement exchanged gunfire with the security forces.—Xinhua

Osama bin Laden killed in a military operation in Pakistan

ISLAMABAD, 2 May— A statement released by the Pakistani foreign office confirmed the death of Osama bin Laden in a military operation conducted by the US forces early Monday morning.

The statement, which was released shortly after a meeting summoned by the Pakistani President Asif Ali Zardari, said that the Pakistani armed forces were not involved in the operation.

In the wee hours of Monday, the US special forces conducted a search operation in the Sikandarabad area of Abbotabad, a small mountainous town located some 60 kilometres north of Islamabad.

During the reportedly two-hour-long operation, the US special forces reportedly killed bin Laden together with one of his sons and his three followers.

Six children of bin Laden, his two wives and four close friends were also reportedly arrested in the operation.

One of the four US Cobra helicopters involved in the operation was shot down, killing one pilot.

Iran says Israeli jets preparing to strike

TEHERAN, 2 May— Israeli fighter jets are conducting drills at a military base in Iraq in preparation for a strike on Iran, the Islamic Republic’s Press TV reported.

The report said the Israeli planes participating in the drills include F-15, F-16, F-18 and F-22 fighter jets. It said they have conducted weeklong exercises, flying mainly at night.

Press TV said its report was based on information received from a source close to Moqtada al-Sadr’s group in Iraq.

Sadr is considered to be one of the most influential religious political figures in Iraq but holds no official title. He has repeatedly called for the immediate withdrawal of US-led coalition troops and UN forces deployed in Iraq.

The air drills are being conducted in collaboration with the US military, the report said. It said Iraq was not informed of the exercises. The US maintains a number of military bases in Iraq and the government in Baghdad is not involved in any military activities occurring there, the report said.—Internet

Scientists to search Great Barrier Reef for new species

CANBERRA, 2 May—A team comprising Japanese and Australian researchers headed to the Osprey Reef of Queensland of Australia on Sunday to start their trip to scan parts of the Great Barrier Reef with a special deep-sea robot, Australia's media reported on Monday.

According to project leader Dhugal Lindsay, the robotic device, which can dive to 1,000 meters, will record high definition video and data about conditions on the sea floor and everything in between. "This really hasn't been done before," Lindsay told ABC News. "We still really don't know what's out there." Dr Lindsay said the scientists are hoping the video will reveal links between tropical marine life on the Great Barrier Reef and organisms in Antarctic waters.

He added research gathered from this trip would help create a greater understanding of the ocean as a whole.

"Hopefully, we will see Antarctic animals and can discover their ecology and niches and see what happens to them in the tropics," he said.

The expedition is the first time the robot has been used outside of Japanese waters. The research team will return from Osprey Reef to Cairns on 17 May.

Antarctica threatened by invasion of alien species

NEW YORK, 2 May—It's unforgivingly cold and isolated, but stowaways are arriving in Antarctica in a steady stream. Seeds, fungi and insects go where people — in this case researchers and tourists — take them. These arrivals all create the potential for invasive species to establish themselves in the world's most pristine continent and its islands.

"We are still at the stage when Antarctica has fewer than 10 non-native species, none of which have become invasive," said Kevin Hughes, an environmental scientist with the British Antarctic Survey. "Unless we take steps now to minimize the risk of introduction, who knows what will happen."

Invasive species are non-native species that flourish in a new habitat, where they often kick out native organisms and harm human interests by disrupting crops, clogging waterways and causing a myriad of other problems.

Hughes and other researchers have set out to determine just what is being carried unintentionally into some of the international research stations in the Antarctic. In one study, he and others examined more than 11,250 pieces of fresh produce arriving at nine research stations in the Antarctic and the sub-Antarctic islands located farther north in the Southern Ocean to see what came along with it.

The produce, which included everything from apples to pawpaw trees to turnips, was shipped from around the world.

Apple iMacs refresh expected next week

WASHINGTON, 2 May—Apple is expected to refresh the iMac line next week, adding new Intel processors and Thunderbolt ports, according to AppleInsider.

If the rumors prove accurate, 3 May should be the day the improved iMacs go on sale. The iMac line was last updated nine months ago.

The new iMacs will reportedly introduce new Intel chips based on the Sandy Bridge architecture, as well as swap the miniDisplay port in favor of a high-speed Thunderbolt port.

Other specifications are uncertain at this stage, such as the amount of RAM and storage, or graphic cards.

Probably the most certain addition to the new iMacs are Thunderbolt ports, which were first introduced by Apple on the MacBook Pro line in February.

Although Apple was the first to market with the high-speed data transfer Thunderbolt ports, the technology behind it comes from Intel.

Thunderbolt can achieve transfer speeds of up to 10GB per second.

Electronista speculates that Apple is likely to increase the storage options to 1.5/2 terabytes, and bump up the amount of RAM to 4GB on high-end models.

The video chatting camera on the new iMacs could also get a spec bump in order to enable high-res FaceTime calls (as seen on the new MacBook Pros).

What's unknown at this stage is whether Apple will make any dramatic changes to the display sizes of iMacs, or adopt faster SSD drives, which are still quite pricey.

Sony PlayStation network users face password change

TOKYO, 2 May—Users of Sony's PlayStation Network will have to change their passwords, the Japanese entertainment and technology giant said on Sunday as it looks to boost security after its system was hacked.

Sony apologized for a security breach that compromised millions of users, and said that while it had no evidence that credit card information was stolen it could not rule it out.

In a statement on Sunday, Sony said that it will soon issue a security software update for PlayStation 3 users.

"PS3 will have a system software update that will require all PS3 users to change their PlayStation Network and Qriocity account passwords," it said in a statement.

Sony said it "will highly recommend users to review account statements and to monitor credit card purchase history to protect against possible identity theft or other financial loss". Launched in November 2006, the PlayStation Network has 77 million registered accounts worldwide, allowing gamers to compete against each other online and buy games, movies or music via the Internet.

Sony executives on Sunday bowed in apology and said the company would begin restoring its PlayStation Network and Qriocity online services in the next week and improve security measures after the breach.

The PlayStation Network and Qriocity streaming music service were shut down on 20 April after what Sony described as an "external intrusion" and remain offline as the company upgrades security and works with US Federal Bureau of Investigation.—Internet

Aspirin's clot-prevention ability blunted by dietary fat

NEW YORK, 2 May—Aspirin's ability to prevent potentially deadly blood clots may be hindered by elevated levels of fatty acids in the bloodstream, a new study suggests.

It's common for doctors to prescribe aspirin as a blood thinner for patients at high risk of a heart attack. Aspirin inhibits the activity of the COX-1 enzyme, which plays a role in blood clot formation.

It's known that free fatty acids — released into the bloodstream during the breakdown of fat cells — also inhibit COX-1 activity. In this study, researchers looked at the effect that two fatty acids — oleic acid and palmitic acid — have on aspirin's effectiveness in preventing clots. Oleic acid is found in various animal and vegetable fats, and palmitic acid is one of the most common saturated fats found in plants and animals.

The researchers found that both types of fatty acids interfered with aspirin's ability to reduce the risk of clots, according to an American Heart Association news release.

The study was to be presented Saturday at the American Heart Association's Arteriosclerosis, Thrombosis and Vascular Biology 2011 Scientific Sessions in Chicago.

Because this study was presented at a medical meeting, the data and conclusions should be viewed as preliminary until published in a peer-reviewed journal.—Internet

Extra sleep in infants seems to signal growth spurts

ATLANTA, 2 May—Increased bursts of sleep in infants are linked with growth spurts, new research indicates.

The new study included 23 parents who kept daily sleep records for their infants (14 girls, nine boys), who were 12 days old at the start of the study. The researchers analyzed the total of 5,798 daily sleep records and also tracked the infants' growth.

The infants had uneven bursts of sleep, with the amount of sleep over a 24-hour period increasing at irregular intervals by an average of 4.5 hours per day for two days, the study found. In addition, the infants' number of sleep episodes per day also increased in intermittent surges of an average of three extra naps per day for two days.

There was a significant association between these increases in sleep and growth spurts in body length, which tended to occur within 48 hours of the sleep bursts. The researchers determined that the likelihood of a growth spurt increased by about 43 percent for each additional sleep episode and by 20 percent for each extra hour of sleep.

The study is published in the 1 May issue of the Journal Sleep.

"The results demonstrate empirically that growth spurts not only occur during sleep but are significantly influenced by sleep," lead investigator Dr Michelle Lampl, a professor in the department of anthropology at Emory University in Atlanta, said in a news release from the American Academy of Sleep Medicine. "Longer sleep corresponds with greater growth in body length."

Germany vows more labour market checks

BERLIN, 2 May—Germany's government sought on Sunday to ease fears of a flood of cheap labour as Europe's biggest economy, with Austria, finally scrapped restrictions on workers from eight EU countries.

"At least 100,000 people from eight Eastern European countries will come here every year," Labour Minister Ursula von der Leyen told the mass circulation newspaper Bild am Sonntag.

But she promised a rise in checks on industries such as construction, gastronomy and health care to make sure that workers were being paid the minimum wage, where applicable, and that they were properly registered.

And she stressed that those arriving in Germany would not be a drain on Germany's welfare state.

"The vast majority will be young, educated and mobile workers," she said.

Germany and Austria, plus non-EU Switzerland, on Sunday opened their labour markets to citizens of Poland, Czech Republic, Hungary, Slovenia, Slovakia, Estonia, Lithuania and Latvia, which all joined the EU in 2004.—Internet

S Korea inflation slows down in April

SEOUL, 2 May—South Korea's inflation grew more slowly than expected in April, official figures showed Monday, as fresh food prices finally stabilized and the rising won held down the cost of imports.

The consumer price index last month rose 4.2 percent from April 2010, Statistics Korea said, slightly slower than the 4.3 percent rise tipped by economists polled by Dow Jones Newswires.

In March it was up 4.7 percent, a 29-month high.

Month-on-month the index was unchanged, compared with a forecast gain of 0.2 percent and a rise of 0.5 the previous month. Core inflation, which excludes energy and food, was 3.2 percent year-on-year compared to 3.3 percent in March, and 0.2 percent month-on-month compared to 0.3 percent.

Hyundai Securities economist Lee Sang-Jae told Dow Jones the government's measures to stem inflation in recent months have been effective and prices of fresh food and oil products would keep falling this month.—Internet

Palestinian unity deal is setback for US-led peace effort

WASHINGTON, 2 May—Obama administration moves to revive Israeli-Palestinian peace talks have hit a new snag with a Palestinian unity deal, as US clout in the Arab world wanes, analysts said.

The deal between the secularist Fatah and radical Hamas factions, due to be signed on Wednesday, has drawn Israeli ire and prompted US lawmakers to warn the Fatah-led Palestinian Authority it risks losing US aid. Israel and the United States both consider Hamas to be a terrorist organization. However, analysts said, rising popular pressure forced US-backed Palestinian Authority president Mahmud Abbas to clinch a deal under which the bitter rivals agreed to form a transitional government ahead of elections within a year.

Miller, now a public policy scholar with the Woodrow Wilson International Centre for Scholars, said Abbas is not thinking about how his actions play in Israel and the United States.

Somali pirates free Indonesian sailors

JAKARTA, 2 May—Indonesian sailors held hostage by pirates off Somalia have been released and are "safe and well", the ship owner said on Sunday.

In a nationally-televised news conference, PT Samudera

Indonesia vice-president David Batubara said the pirates had released the bulk carrier Sinar Kudus and its 20 sailors after a ransom was paid.

"All 20 sailors on Sinar Kudus have been freed by the Somali pirates 46 days after they were taken hostage in the waters around Somalia," he said.

"The ship is leaving Somali waters and all pirates are no longer on the ship," he added.

Batubara told AFP he was unable to disclose the ransom amount as

"that's sensitive information that could affect the safety of crew in other ships still held hostage". "I can only say that the $4.5 million ransom reported in the media is absolutely untrue," he added.

An unusually large group of 30 to 50 Somali pirates in March seized the Indonesian flagged and owned ship about 320 nautical miles northeast of the Yemeni island of Socotra and used it in a failed bid to hijack a second ship.

3 bodies found in Mexico mass graves identified

MEXICO CITY, 2 May—Mexican forensic investigators said Sunday they have identified three of the 183 bodies found in mass graves in Tamaulipas and returned their remains to family members. The federal prosecutors office said two men were from the central Mexican State of Tlaxcala and another was from Guanajuato. Their bodies were among the 120 cadavers transported to Mexico City after mass graves holding 183 bodies were unearthed in San Fernando, Tamaulipas, over the past month.

Forensic investigators have been taking DNA samples from people who believe their missing family members may be among the dead, part of a federal investigation that began 2 April. It takes three to four weeks to produce results from DNA tests, according to the prosecutors office.

Many victims are believed to have been migrants headed to the United States who fell prey to the Zetas drug gang.

The northeastern state of Tamaulipas borders Texas. In Durango, soldiers on Saturday found nine plastic bags and a bin stuffed with scorched bones.

And at least 11 people were killed in separate incidents over the weekend in the port city of Acapulco, a popular tourist destination that has in recent months been wracked by drug violence.

He said that the government should improve curriculum and educational system. "It's not only about thinking skills that we have to improve, but we have to strengthen the nation character building. ## Japan police end nuclear art stunt

TOKYO, 2 May—An anonymous painter in Japan at the weekend added an image of the stricken Fukushima atomic plant to a public mural about the horrors of a nuclear explosion by the late abstract master Taro Okamoto.

The clandestine add-on image — painted in a style mimicking that of Okamoto's "Myth of Tomorrow" on display at a busy Tokyo train station — created a stir on Twitter before police took it down Sunday evening.

The small wooden panel — which shows black smoke billowing from reactor buildings resembling those at Fukushima — was attached to the wall without causing damage to the original 30-metre (100-foot) long wall painting.

Okamoto, who was born 100 years ago and died in 1996, is one of Japan's best-known modern artists. Strongly influenced by Pablo Picasso, he is known for his abstract paintings and sculptures, including his "Tower of the Sun" erected for the Osaka Expo in 1970. "Myth of Tomorrow", created in Mexico in 1968-69, went missing for years but was rediscovered in 2003, returned to Japan and finally installed at a pedestrian overpass at the capital's busy Shibuya railway station in 2008.

The non-profit organisation that is the guardian of the painting was quoted as saying by local media: "It is an outrageous prank and we are troubled."

Japan's parliament passes tsunami recovery budget

TOKYO, 2 May—Japan's parliament passed a 4 trillion yen ($48 billion) tsunami recovery budget Monday, but it will cover only a fraction of the cost of what was the most expensive disaster ever.

Mounting frustrations over the government's response and a still unfolding nuclear crisis, meanwhile, are threatening to topple the country's increasingly unpopular prime minister as more budgetary battles lie ahead.

The supplementary budget bill for the fiscal 2011 year that started in April was unanimously approved by parliament's upper house budget committee Monday morning and was made into law at the chamber's plenary session later in the day. The more powerful lower house had approved the plan Saturday.

The budget will cover the building of new houses for the more than 100,000 people who remain without proper shelter, the massive undertaking of clearing debris and rubble, reconstruction of fishing grounds, and support for disaster-hit businesses and their employers.—INTERNET

Indian manufacturing activity accelerates

NEW DELHI, 2 May—India's manufacturing activity grew at the fastest pace for five months in April, a key index showed Monday, raising chances of another hike in interest rates to tame inflation.

The HSBC Purchasing Managers' Index (PMI), based on a survey of 500 companies, climbed to 58 in April from 57.9 the previous month, data showed. A reading over 50 points to expansion.

The PMI index is keenly watched as a signal of industrial growth.

"The strong manufacturing PMI numbers are testament to the resilience of growth" in Asia's third-largest economy, said HSBC chief India economist Leif Eskesen.

India's economy is forecast to grow nine percent this fiscal year and the central bank has warned of capacity constraints that are fuelling inflation as factories work at full tilt and supply struggles to keep up with demand.—INTERNET

Credit card use highlights fragile recovery in New Zealand

AUCKLAND, 2 May—New Zealand's small business owners are increasingly using personal credit cards to finance their companies, indicating the fragile state of the country's economic recovery, new research showed.

The finding came from a survey of 1,808 small and medium-sized companies as part of a study into how they were coping with the recession.

Seventy-eight percent of the respondents said they were using credit cards to fund their business operations, up from 67 percent the previous year, the survey conducted by Massey University's Centre for Small and Medium Enterprise Research found.

The Centre's Director David Deakins said personal credit cards were now the most widely used form of business finance alongside trade credits.

"These findings reflect the fragile nature of the recovery as the recession continues with businesses not wanting or not able to access a bank loan," he said.

"For a business owner this is a relatively flexible way to finance cash flow and meet working capital requirements," he said. "There is a risk they may get bad debt - particularly in times of recession - but if it helps cash flow over a temporary period it could be a good solution."

Japan, S Korean markets rise, dollar gains

TOKYO, 2 May—Markets in Japan and South Korea rose Monday amid holiday-thinned trading in Asia after US stocks gained on positive earnings to round out their best month since the end of last year.

Teen joblessness may hit record in summer 2011

CHICAGO, 2 May—A record-low one in four US teenagers will land a summer job in the coming months as a result of a still-poor job market and lost federal funding, according to a report issued on Monday.

"Both national and local leadership continue to ignore the plight of youth who are most at risk for potential violence as a result of being left on the streets in the summer months when crime is at its most explosive," Chicago Urban League President Andrea Zopp said in a statement.

The summer employment rate among US teenagers this year was projected at between 25 percent and 27 percent, based on an analysis of four decades of employment trends by Andrew Sum of the Centre for Labour Market Studies at Northeastern University in Boston. That would be a post-World War Two low, while as recently as 2006 the teen summer employment rate was 37 percent.—Reuters

Air France flight data recorder recovered

PARIS, 2 May—One of two flight recorders from an Air France plane that crashed in 2009 off the coast of Brazil has been recovered, officials say. France's Bureau of Investigation said in a statement that the device was "in good physical condition". French search teams last week found the outer casing of the so-called black box recorder, but not its memory. The Air France Airbus plane went down in the Atlantic on 1 June 2009, killing all 228 people on board. The wreckage was discovered last month after a long search of 10,000 sq km (3,860 sq miles) of sea floor.

The remains of the plane were found only on a fourth attempt, using robots capable of operating 4,000m (13,120ft) below the ocean's surface. The Paris-bound Air France jet went down after running into an intense high-altitude thunderstorm, four hours following take-off from Rio de Janeiro. Those on board came from more than 30 countries, though most were French, Brazilian or German.

Experts say the data in the flight recorders — which records cockpit conversations — is the only hope of finding out why the plane crashed into the sea. But one expert told the Associated Press that the data recorder's information may yet prove unusable, as it was subjected to underwater pressure for nearly two years.

Children 'playing' in car that crushed mother

MELBOURNE, 2 May—A mother was killed on Saturday after a car carrying her three children crushed her in their family driveway. Her husband tried desperately to save her but she died at their home in Melbourne's north. Police said it was the 37-year-old woman's birthday and the family had just returned from an outing to celebrate.

The woman was unloading items from her Ford Territory car when it began rolling slowly down the driveway — with the three children still playing inside — pinning her underneath it. She was dragged 20 metres before the car came to a stop over a gutter. The woman's husband - who had just got out of the car - rushed back outside to find his wife trapped. He and a neighbour used two car jacks to free the woman but their attempts to save her were in vain. Police will check whether the handbrake was disengaged or if the gear lever had been moved from the "park" position before it started rolling. Sergeant Rod McKenzie said the children inside the vehicle were aged 2, 4, and 6.— Internet

One employee said Q-Catering used to have to meet high standards of preparation and presentation but now "lumps of frozen food were simply dumped in china bowls and covered". —Internet

1-year-old signs soccer 'contract'

A 1-year-old Dutch toddler has been signed to a 10-year "professional" contract by a soccer team after a YouTube video showed him scoring "goals."

The VVV Venlo soccer club signed the boy, Baerke van der Mey, to a symbolic contract after a YouTube video posted by the father of the toddler shooting three balls into a toy box got more than 900,000 hits, Radio Netherlands reported.

Taking advantage of the publicity, VVV invited the toddler to join players during a practice session at De Koel Stadium in the southern Dutch town of Venlo.

The team was happy to offer the toddler the token contract as his grandfather had once played for VVV Venlo, Radio Netherlands said.

Photographer Vincent Bousserez has artfully created an entire world of miniature plastic people that live hyperkinetic lives working and playing hard.

Apple-eating elk turns up pregnant

An elk that made headlines in Sweden when she started eating apples in people's back yards is in the news again because she is pregnant.

Fabiola, the elk called Fabbe when she showed up in 2009 and 2010 in Blekinge in southern Sweden, is now pregnant, The Local reported.

Karl-Goran Eriksson, who works at Rantemala Gard, a moose park in Blekinge, said Fabiola would probably give birth at the end of May.

Fabiola started showing up in back yards in November 2009, and she quickly became a sensation.

She returned a year later, and there were talks of either putting her down or relocating her for public safety.

Officials ultimately decided to relocate the elk after her plight became known on a Facebook page.

The page had more than 4,000 followers and an agreement was reached in early 2011 to relocate her to Rantemala Gard.

She was captured and transferred to her new home in February.

Eriksson said she quickly readjusted to her new living conditions with 11 other elk that live on the farm.

Man drives under semi, casually drives off

A driver says he witnessed a man drive his Mazda MX-5 sports car beneath an 18-wheel tractor-trailer while traveling about 40 mph on a busy road in Florida.

Ben Ellis told Britain's The Sun newspaper the man then calmly pulled back out into traffic, his arm resting on the door, and drove away.

"I couldn't believe it," Ellis said of the incident. "He risked the lives of everyone on the road. Stupidity knows no bounds."

Warner Music $3 billion buyout could be done this week

NEW YORK, 2 May—Final buyout bids for Warner Music Group are due on Monday and the company could be sold by the end of the week in a deal valued at over $3 billion, according to a person familiar with the matter.

The third round of bids is led by two competing financial groups Len Blavatnik's Access Industry and a joint bid by Tom and Alec Gores' Platinum

Equity and Gores Group, according to two people. The Warner Music sale process is taking place against a backdrop of ongoing declines in music sales as executives struggle to figure out new business models to guarantee the future of the industry. While Warner Music continues to generate reasonable levels of cash on its balance sheet — a key metric for investors — it will still be seen as a risky investment in a very tough market.

Two weeks ago the second-round bids came in around $3 billion according to three people who asked not to be named as the process is confidential. Ron Burkle's Yucaipa Co, dropped out of the bidding late last week, the first person said.

Mick Jagger subject of photo exhibition

LONDON, 2 May—Mick Jagger, a founding member of British rockers the Rolling Stones, is the subject of a 12-picture display in the National Portrait Gallery in London.

The Daily Telegraph said the photographs were taken in the 1960s, and feature a young Jagger staring into the camera as the rest of the Stones stand behind him.

The display is titled "Mick Jagger: Young in the 60s," and features photographs by Gered Mankowitz, the band's first official photographer.

It also includes pictures by photographers Cecil Beaton, Colin Jones and Philip Townsend, whose pictures were credited with providing a glimpse into the culture of the "swinging '60s."

'Fast Five' takes checkered flag at box office

LOS ANGELES, 2 May—The first big budget film of the summer season, "Fast Five," broke new records as it scored $83.6 million in its first weekend in theaters, industry estimates showed Sunday.

Ticket sales for the fifth volume in the high-speed car chase series marked the biggest premiere for any film so far this year, largely outpacing other new films this week.

Coming-of-age flick "Prom" only got $5 million for its cast of young and largely unknown actors, while moviegoers were similarly unimpressed by "Hood-winked Too! Hood vs. Evil," a 3-D cartoon which opened with $4.1 million, according to box office tracker Exhibitor Relations.

Movie ticket sales have been soft this year, reflecting the impact of a deep recession, the worst in the United States since the 1930s. Paul Walker and Vin Diesel were among "Fast" veterans who reunited for the fifth edition in the series, with Rio de Janeiro as a setting this time.

The "Hoodwinked" sequel's poor showing may owe to the continued popularity of two other 3-D animated family films: tropical bird comedy

Mancini says City worthy of Champions League

MANCHESTER, 2 May — Roberto Mancini believes his Manchester City side are on course to meet their targets for the season after closing in on Champions League qualification with a 2-1 win over West Ham. Mancini has faced questions about his future throughout the campaign after seeing his team slip out of contention for the Premier League title and get knocked out of the Europa League quarter-finals by Dynamo Kiev.

But with the chance to end City's 35-year trophy drought in the FA Cup final against Stoke on 14 May, his team are also now seven points clear of Liverpool and Tottenham in the league. With four games left, six points will definitely secure a place in Europe's top competition for the first time. ## Milan on brink of Italian league title after Bologna victory

ROME, 2 May — AC Milan need only one more point to secure an 18th league title after a 1-0 victory over Bologna on Sunday put them on the brink of the scudetto crown. If either Milan avoid defeat away to Roma next week or Inter Milan fail to beat Fiorentina, then the rossoneri will be Serie A champions.

French midfielder Mathieu Flamini scored the only goal of the game early in the first period. ## Rogge hails IOC's environmental credentials

DOHA, 2 May — IOC President Jacques Rogge says environmental sustainability remains a key part of the Olympic movement and will continue to be through the 2012 and 2016 games. Rogge told the World Conference of Sports and Environment on Sunday that the IOC's "commitment to the environment is more than just a matter of self-interest. It is a matter of values."

He said efforts to make the Olympics more sustainable started with the 1994 Winter Games in Lillehammer and have continued through the 2010 games in Vancouver that "set a new standard for environmental sustainability in construction practices, energy conservation and legacy planning."

The three-day meeting in Doha aims to find ways sporting events can reduce their environmental impact. — Internet

Dalglish salutes Suarez in Liverpool resurgence

LIVERPOOL, 2 May — Kenny Dalglish saluted Luis Suarez after the Uruguayan forward helped Liverpool stroll to a 3-0 win over Newcastle in the Anfield sunshine.

The build up to Sunday's game was all about Reds striker Andy Carroll and whether he would start against his old club but that issue was overshadowed by a brilliant Liverpool performance.

The win moves Liverpool above Tottenham into fifth place and leaves them in the qualifying spot for the Europa League.

Liverpool's current form has seen them take 30 points from a possible 42 and interim boss Dalglish is odds-on to be confirmed as permanent manager by the end of the season. — Internet

Totti overtakes Baggio goal tally

ROME, 2 May — Roma captain Francesco Totti moved up to fifth on the all-time Serie A scoring chart with two goals in Sunday's dramatic 3-2 win at Bari. His 205th and 206th strikes took him past Italy legend Roberto Baggio in the scoring list and Totti has no intention of stopping now. "The King of Rome is not dead and he will never die," he told Sky Sport. "I know what I can give. I'm happy that I've set another record and taken another scalp, a great player like Baggio. I hope to keep going at this level."

Roma captain Francesco Totti

Totti smashed home a free-kick past a poorly positioned wall on the half hour mark and then slotted home a penalty on 57 minutes, equalising on both occasions. And it could have been even better for the 34-year-old who missed out on a hat-trick when he crashed a 79th minute penalty against a post.

Watson edges Simpson to win Zurich Classic

AVONDALE, 2 May — Bubba Watson has been working on becoming a better man. He figures he's probably a better player because of it. Earlier in his career, a double bogey in the middle of a hotly contested final round might have knocked the combustible Watson off his game. Not anymore.

Watson overcame a three-stroke deficit over the final eight holes of regulation and beat Webb Simpson in a playoff Sunday in the Zurich Classic of New Orleans for his second PGA Tour victory of the year and third of his career. "My wife, my caddy and my trainer would say my attitude's in the right spot," Watson said. "This week, I won (by) not getting down on bad shots, just staying focused on what I'm supposed to be doing." He also had a little luck. — Internet

Fergie fears split-second decisions in title race

Manchester United's Scottish manager Sir Alex Ferguson

LONDON, 2 May — Sir Alex Ferguson insists Manchester United paid the price for a refereeing error in the 1-0 defeat at Arsenal as the Premier League title race was blown wide open. Ferguson believes referee Chris Foy got it wrong when he failed to award an 88th minute penalty following Gael Clichy's clumsy challenge on Michael Owen.

The United manager acknowledged Arsenal themselves had a good claim for a spot-kick turned down when Nemanja Vidic handled Theo Walcott's cross in the first half. But having seen Chelsea close the gap at the top to three points 24 hours earlier after benefiting from two dubious decisions in the 2-1 victory over Tottenham, Ferguson attempted to set the agenda ahead of the Blues' decisive trip to Old Trafford on 8 May.

Del Potro wins Estoril tennis crown

ESTORIL, 2 May — Argentina's Juan Martin del Potro won his first claycourt tournament in 22 months with a 6-2, 6-2 defeat of Fernando Verdasco at the Estoril Open on Sunday.

The victory was the second of the season for the 2009 US Open champion, who missed 10 months of 2010 as he recovered from surgery on his right wrist. Del Potro last played on clay at the 2009 French Open but he showed that he had lost none of his touch on the surface.

He claimed his ninth title, from 12 final appearances, to improve his win-loss record for the season to 25-6 and become the first Argentine to win the Estoril title since David Nalbandian in 2006.

"This is a great victory, it's unbelievable to win on clay. It's something I never expected so soon," said the champion.

The big Argentine said that while his wrist is not yet at 100 percent, it is not a bother to him on court.

Round 1 to Wade and the Heat, 99-90 over Celtics

MIAMI, 2 May—Dwyane Wade knew his regular-season numbers against Boston were lacking.

He also knew that wouldn't matter in the playoffs. And Game 1 — which seemed more like Round 1 — of what's already an emotionally charged series went to Wade and the Miami Heat.

Wade scored 38 points on 14 of 21 shooting, James Jones set a Miami postseason record with 25 points off the bench, and the Heat beat the Celtics 99-90 on Sunday to open their Eastern Conference semifinal series. "We're going to have to fight for every inch, every game we get," Wade said. "Right now, we won Game 1. We're supposed to. We'll go back and focus on winning Game 2. We're at home, we have home-court advantage. They're just trying to come in and steal one like they've done in the past. So it's our job to come out with the same mentality in the next one."

Game 2 is Tuesday in Miami. Given how Boston ousted Miami last season, and ended James' playoff runs with Cleveland in 2008 and 2010, these teams have history — and more than a bit of dislike, and that was apparent.—Internet

Myanmar to see third Int'l Airport in Nay Pyi Taw

Union Transport Minister U Nyan Tun Aung views construction site of Nay Pyi Taw International Airport.—MNA

NAY PYI TAW, 2 May—Two of the 33 airports in Myanmar: Yangon Airport and Mandalay Airport meet international standard. Tourist arrivals at Yangon International Airport in 2010 totaled over 1.2 million, an increase by 27 per cent if compared with that in previous year.

Construction of Nay Pyi Taw International Airport Project started in April 2009 to ensure a sharp increase in tourist arrivals due to ASEAN and other international conferences and SEA Games and ASEAN Summit to be held soon.

During the term of 30 months, there will emerge an airport with an area of 5569 acres, about 10 miles south of Nay Pyi Taw, with 12,000 feet long and 200 feet wide runway. Upon completion, it will be able to cope with 10 aeroplanes simultaneously, handling 9000 passengers a day or 3.5 million a year. The project is estimated to cost some 370 million US dollars. The project will be semi-finished by early 2012.

Union Minister for Transport U Nyan Tun Aung inspected the project this morning. The managing director of Pioneer Aerodrome Services reported on work progress, and Director-General of the Civil Aviation Department U Tin Naing Tun, on the project and development in civil aviation.

In his speech, the minister said that the airport will polish the image of the nation as it will cope with aircraft from international airlines and called for meeting ICAO standard and completion of the project on schedule.
