Strive for disaster risk reduction

Air and water are essential to the existence of life. It is required to note that the situations of having larger amount of air and water volume than usual may be dangerous. Measures for disaster risk reduction are being taken worldwide as climate change may cause natural disasters such as flood and storm and the world is under the threats of other natural disasters.

The world encountered floods, earthquakes, dangers of nuclear radiation, Hurricanes and Typhoons this year. Severe impacts of natural disasters caused great devastation and loss of life to many people of disaster-stricken countries.

As for Myanmar, cyclone Nargis in May 2008 and cyclone Giri in October 2010 had severe impacts on lives and property of the people, causing a lot of damage in the livelihood and housing sectors. But the government, UN agencies and local and international NGOs made collaborative efforts in carrying out relief and reconstruction works.

During mid-monsoon of this year, region-wide floods occurred due to heavy rains. Water levels in some towns adjacent to rivers have reached above danger levels. The Union government provided flood victims with necessary assistance, especially in accommodation, health, education of children and rehabilitation of cultivation wreaked by the flood. It was the fruitful results of multi-stakeholder cooperation approach made by region/state concerned governments and departments of Union government.

Natural disasters can strike at any time. Myanmar is taking disaster risk reduction measures in cooperating with global and regional partners. Preparedness measures are needed for disaster risk reduction. Myanmar Disaster Preparedness Agency is urged to take disaster risk reduction measures such as relief and reconstruction in cooperation with relevant organizations in time of emergency.

Baghdad twin bombings kill 18, wound 43

Baghdad, 14 Oct—Two roadside bombs ripped off near a popular cafe in Baghdad’s Shiite neighbourhood of Sa’di City late on Thursday, killing 18 people and wounding 43 others, a local police source said. The twin blasts happened on Thursday evening and claimed 18 lives, most of them civilians, the source told Xinhua on condition of anonymity because he is not authorized to speak to the media. Another 43 people were wounded in the attacks, some seriously, he added. Women and children were among the victims. Police have rushed the wounded to nearby hospitals and cordoned off the scene, the source said. The attacks happened one day after a slew of suicide bombings and car bombings rocked the capital city and left more than a score dead. Violence in Iraq has dropped significantly since its peak in 2006, but police and fire authorities believe the gas leak could have come from the illegal use of six gas cylinders that had been found in the rubble left after the explosion.

“Is it irresponsible of whoever used this kind of gas cylinders in this kind of place?” said Simoes, adding that gas cylinder was strictly forbidden in the building the restaurant was located. Authorities said the gas may have accumulated since Tuesday evening and through Wednesday’s public holiday when the restaurant was closed. The explosion was caused shortly after restaurant employees returned to work earlier on Thursday and started turning on equipment, said Simoes.

The restaurant was located on the ground floor of a 12-floor building. Eight floors were affected by the explosion. The entire building and neighbouring buildings were under inspection by the Civil Defence Department. All three dead had been working in the restaurant at the time of the explosion. Among those injured, four are reportedly in critical condition at a nearby hospital, while others only suffered minor cuts and abrasions.

Explosion in Rio restaurant kills three

RIO DE JANEIRO, 14 Oct—Three people died and 17 were injured in Brazil on Thursday after an explosion destroyed a downtown Rio de Janeiro restaurant.

Sergio Simoes, chief of the fire department and Civil Defence State Secretary, told reporters the most likely cause of the explosion was a gas leak inside the File Calorica restaurant. An official at the local gas company said it had not supplied gas to the restaurant since 1961, but police and fire authorities believe the gas leak could have come from the illegal use of six gas cylinders that had been found in the rubble left after the explosion.

“Is it irresponsible of whoever used this kind of gas cylinders in this kind of place?” said Simoes, adding that gas cylinder was strictly forbidden in the building the restaurant is located. North Carolina men convicted of conspiring to aid militants

RALEIGH, 14 Oct—A federal jury found three North Carolina men guilty on Thursday of conspiring to provide material support to Islamist militants in foreign countries.

The jury heard three weeks of testimony and deliberated over two days in New Bern before rendering the guilty verdicts against Momahmad Omar Aly Hassan, Ziyad Yaghi and Hysen Sherifi.

Hassan and Yaghi are US citizens, Sherifi, a native of Kosovo, is a legal permanent resident of the United States, according to the indictment. The defendants, all young men in their 20s, were among seven men arrested in July 2009 on charges of conspiring to support what the indictment called “violent jihad” overseas. Three other defendants in the case, including the plot’s ringleader, Muslim convert Daniel Patrick Boyd, and his two sons, Dylan and Zakariya Boyd, have admitted guilt to some charges as part of plea deals and are awaiting sentencing.

Sony Ericsson profits down in third quarter

STOCKHOLM, 14 Oct—Mobile phone maker Sony Ericsson has posted a break-even third quarter, with profits shrinking because of lower margins, partially offset by lower operating expenses.

Net profit fell to 0 from euro 49 million in the same quarter last year, while sales dipped slightly to eurol.59 billion ($2.18 billion), from eurol.6 billion a year earlier.

Sony Ericsson said Friday its Android-based Xperia smartphones now account for more than 80 percent, respectively, the investigators noted 30 percent and from 17 percent to 9 percent, according to the report.

Asthma controller drugs include: corticosteroids, which control inflammation and reduce the risk of airway spasms; beta-2-agonists, which make breathing easier; and leukotrienes, which help prevent asthma symptoms from occurring.

Use of inhaled corticosteroids among American children with asthma increased from 15.5 percent to 40 percent, use of leukotrienes rose from 3 percent to 34 percent, and use of beta agonists rose from 3 percent to 13 percent, according to the report.

During the same period, the use of reliever and oral corticosteroid drugs fell from 44 percent to 30 percent and from 17 percent to 9 percent, respectively, the investigators noted in an agency news release.

Use of asthma controller meds on the rise among US kids

NEW YORK, 14 Oct—The percentage of children with asthma in the United States who use a prescription “controller” medicine has nearly doubled since the late 1990s, a new federal government report finds.

The analysis of data from the Medical Expenditure Panel Survey showed that the use of controller drugs by these children increased from 29 percent in 1997-1998 to 58 percent in 2007-2008, according to the latest News and Numbers from the US Agency for Healthcare Research and Quality.

Average annual total spending for all asthma drugs more than quadrupled, from $527 million in 1997-1998 to $2.5 billion in 2007-2008.

When broken down by category, spending for controller drugs rose from $280 million to $2.1 billion, spending for reliever drugs increased from $222 million to $352 million, and spending for oral corticosteroids fell from $25 million to $8 million, the findings revealed.

Google’s Q3 eases fears over ad market, costs

SAN FRANCISCO, 14 Oct—Google Inc’s results pronounced Wall Street expectations with the help of strong advertising sales and debt cost controls, driving its shares roughly 6 percent higher.

The Internet search and advertising leader, benefiting from a growing online ad market and sharper research focus, increased its profit by 26 percent and revenue by 37 percent in the third quarter.

Shares of Google rose to $594.01 in extended trade after closing 1.91 percent higher on Nasdaq. The stock is off nearly 8 percent from its 52-week high of $642.96 on concerns about the growing regulatory scrutiny facing the company as well as fears that spending would spiral out of control as Google steps up competition with Apple Inc and Facebook. In August, Google announced plans to acquire Motorola Mobility Holdings for $12.5 billion.

The deal, which Google expects to close this year or early 2012, will give it one of the wireless industry’s largest patent libraries, as well as hardware manufacturing operations that will allow Google to develop its own line of smartphones.

But analysts and investors worry that Google is entering a low-margin business in which it has no experience.

A move to build its own phones could also jeopardize support for Google’s free Android mobile software from other phone manufacturers such as Samsung Electronics and HTC Corp.

Google said its net income in the three months ended Sept-ember 30 grew to $2.73 billion from $2.17 billion in the year-ago period.

Excluding certain items, Google said it earned $9.72 per share in the third quarter.

Analysts polled by Thomson Reuters I/B/E/S were expecting adjusted EPS of $8.74.

Health Tip: Protect against infection during cancer treatment

People undergoing chemotherapy or other treatments for cancer often have compromised immune systems, which can make them more vulnerable to germ-related illness.

The American Cancer Society suggests how to help prevent serious infections while being treated for cancer:

* Make sure you’re up to date on all vaccinations, but avoid those that contain a live virus.
* Be alert for the first signs of infection, and call your doctor right away if you start to become ill.
* Check for any sore spots, swelling or red areas where needles or catheters have been inserted.
* Wash your hands often with soap and warm water.
* Bathe every day.
* Limit exposure to crowds, and avoid anyone who is sick.
* Promptly disinfect any cuts or skin wounds.

Archaeologists discover 100,000-year-old art studio

BEIJING, 14 Oct—Archaeologists announced Friday the discovery of the oldest art studio ever found in the world.

The finding was contained in a study published in the American journal Science.

The prehistoric workshop was found in a tiny cave by the edge of the Indian Ocean about 180 miles east of Cape Town, South Africa. By using the technique of radioactive isotopes dating, the archaeologists calculated the studio has been some 100,000 years old.

In the cave, the archaeologists found two shells full of pigment, which was made from ochre, a kind of grindable stone rich in iron compounds that usually give the ancient paints red or yellow hues. The finding also included some of the earliest sharp stone tools, as well as evidence of fishing.

“In general we find pigment, but you never find the container with the residue. We were able to study microscopically all the elements in the recipe,” said study coauthor Francesco d’Errico, an archaeologist at the University of Bordeaux in France.

Netflix gets more shows from CBS, Warner Bros

The headquarters of Netflix is shown in Los Gatos, California on 20 September, 2011.

NEW YORK, 14 Oct—Netflix Inc.’s US customers will be able to watch shows like “Gossip Girl” and “The Vampire Diaries” online after it signed programming deals with CBS Corp and Warner Bros for shows from their joint venture, The CW television network.

The programming deal, for shows from the current schedule through 2014-15 season, is the latest in a string of deals Netflix has been reaching to bulk up its streaming service and convert more subscribers from its more costly DVD mail delivery service.

Programmers had initially appeared hostile to what appeared to be Netflix’s threat to the lucrative cable TV programming ecosystem but have recently been reaching new deals.

Verizon will soon begin spyng on your web habits, here’s how to opt out

WASHINGTON, 14 Oct—Don’t want your location data and web history monitored? All it takes is a click.

If you’re a Verizon wireless customer, your online identity is about to take another privacy hit.

The company just revealed that its new service agreement will include language that allows the monitoring of your web habits, including websites you visit and even the location data of when and where you use your wireless browser.

The company says the data will be used solely for business and marketing purposes, and to present you with more relevant advertisements while you’re surfing on the go.

The data that is obtained may also be shared with third-party companies under the guise of making mobile ads better suited to your interests.

Regardles of the intended use of the data — or Verizon’s promise that individuals will not be specifically identified — your data will still be gathered.

And as history has shown, even supposedly private data isn’t always so secure.

The new policy is enabled by default, meaning that if you do nothing, you are automatically opting into the programme.

However, if you don’t like the idea of Verizon keeping tabs on your web habits and location, there’s still a way to prevent it.

The iPhone 4S gets torn apart for the world to enjoy

NEW YORK, 14 Oct—The fine folks over at iFixit have made a name for themselves by tearing apart the gadgets that we love, and they have continued that trend with the iPhone 4S. This teardown might lack some of the excitement that an iPhone 5 teardown would have, but there is still a few secrets to be learned under the iPhone’s glass and metal shell.

The phone’s innards are strikingly similar to those of the Verizon model of the iPhone 4, but do have a few modifications. One of the big questions surrounding the iPhone 4S was the amount of Ram installed. In the iPhone 4 there is 512MB of Ram, which for when it was released is a pretty healthy number. These days most premium phones are being shipped with 1GB of ram, and it was hoped that the iPhone 4S would follow that trend. Sadly the iPhone 4S still has 512MB of Ram, iFixit explained the situation by explaining the A5 processor has a marking for “two 2 Gb LPDDR2 die—for a total of 4 Gb—or 512 MB.”

Even though it might be disappointing on paper that the iPhone 4S only has 512MB of Ram, that does not mean the performance of the device will suffer. From what we can tell from early reviews of the device the phone’s performance is, “noticeably faster” than the iPhone 4.

One change that caught our attention is that Apple is using a different vibrating mechanism than the original iPhone 4. The iPhone 4S has what is called a linear oscillating vibrator as opposed to a counter-weighted vibrator. What this means is that the iPhone 4S should vibrated quieter and softer than the iPhone 4.
4-year-old drives away in mom’s car in Fullerton

FULLERTON, 14 Oct—Fullerton police say a 4-year-old boy had a wild ride but escaped serious injury after he drove off alone in his mom’s car during rush hour, eventually rolling the vehicle over and crashing.

Police Sgt Andrew Goodrich says the boy’s mother parked the car about 4 pm Thursday to a use a nearby phone. The boy got out of his car seat and climbed into the driver’s seat, put the car in gear and drove onto a busy city street.

Goodrich says the boy sideswiped a vehicle, then veered into oncoming traffic. At that point the vehicle rolled over once but landed back on its tires and kept going, eventually crashing into some trees.

The Goodrich tells the Orange County Register the boy was taken to a hospital with what were believed to be minor injuries.

The Los Angeles Times reports that in all, the boy traveled about a third of a mile.

Man admits guilt in celebrity hacking

JACKSONVILLE, 14 Oct—A Florida man accused of hacking into the personal e-mail accounts of Hollywood celebrities says he plans to plead guilty to all charges.

Christopher Chaney said he knew what he was doing was wrong and he’s ready to face the consequences. WAWS-TV, Jacksonville, Fla, reported Wednesday.

“I deeply apologize,” said Chaney. “I know what I did was probably the worst invasion of privacy someone could experience. I’m not trying to escape what I did. It was wrong. And I have to just face that and go forward.” Chaney said he hacked the forwarding feature of the e-mail accounts of celebrities including Scarlett Johansson and Christina Aguilera so he received the same messages they did. He said he was merely curious to see “behind the scenes” of Hollywood and never sold any of the pictures or information he found.

“I don’t know how my e-mail got a hold of, someone contacted me wanting the pictures,” said Chaney. “I don’t even know who it was. No, I didn’t give that person any pictures. I never wanted to sell or release any images.”

British officer takes sick leave for ‘broken heart’

LONDON, 14 Oct—A British police officer has been signed off sick with a “broken heart” for four months after being dumped by her married colleague, a media report said Thursday.

The mother-of-one is believed to have been left devastated when her lover went back to his estranged wife. The unnamed pair had set up home together after meeting at work when the male officer’s marriage had broken down, the MailOnline reported. Pete Smythe, chairman of the Met Police Federation, said: “As far as the rules are concerned she will be on full pay until six months, then half pay thereafter until 12 months when it will go down to nothing.”

The two officers’ relationship lasted just three months.

The detective was apparently signed off on full pay with stress and failed to return to her 45,000-pound-a-year job, the report said.

British minister caught trashing documents

LONDON, 14 Oct—A top adviser to British Prime Minister David Cameron was caught on camera dumping secret papers in trash cans in a London park, a newspaper says.

The Daily Mirror reported it documented Oliver Letwin on at least five occasions in St James Park binning government documents.

Letwin is minister of state for the Cabinet Office, the department responsible for coordinating the government’s work.

Letwin dumped more than 100 papers—including letters, e-mails, memos and briefing notes— into the trash, the newspaper said.

On one occasion in September, Letwin disposed of five intelligence documents involving extraordinary rendition and the 2005 London transport bombings, the newspaper said.

Another time, he was spotted handing a bundle of documents to a trash collector who put them in his waste bag.

Thai flood death toll reaches 289, two missing

BANGKOK, 14 Oct — A total of 289 people were confirmed dead and two people were missing in the floods that have inundated the upper part of the country for almost three months, the Disaster Prevention and Mitigation Department reported on Friday. Six more people were confirmed dead on Wednesday in central Province of Singburi.

Northern Province of Phichit still has the highest death toll of 45 people, followed by central province Nakhon Sawan, of which 30 people have been killed by flood. Flash floods and mudslides were caused by the heavy monsoon since mid July.

Storm death toll rises to 32 in Central America

MEXICO CITY, 14 Oct—Nine more deaths were confirmed on Thursday during the latest wave of tropical storms and hurricanes in Central America, bringing the death toll to 32.

All the deaths were attributed to floods and landslides caused by the heavy rains, brought by Hurricanes Jova and Irwin that circulated off Mexico’s Pacific coast, and the tropical depression 12-E that crossed through southern Mexico into Guatemala.

On Wednesday, the Mexican Interior Ministry declared 10 municipalities in the Pacific coast state of Colima under a “state of emergency.” The Mexican National Meteorological Service (SMN) warned that the heavy rains in the coastal areas of Jalisco and Colima state would continue, while two more storm systems were forming over Southern Mexico and in the Caribbean.

Guatemala was the worst-hit area, where the death toll had reached to 15, with four still missing. According to Guatemala’s Vice President Rafael Espada, 1,570 people had been evacuated from their previous homes and 931 had been transferred to temporary shelters.

In Nicaragua, the death toll had reached six. National Disaster Prevention System official Guillermo Gonzalez said 5,466 people had been affected by the rains and 1,048 houses suffered various degrees of damage. Nine Nicaraguan provinces, including municipalities and 144 towns, continued to be on red alert.

Cause of death unknown for whales found in Alaska river

ANCHORAGE, 14 Oct—Veterinarians have not yet determined a cause of death for two killer whales that wandered far up an Alaska river, the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration’s Fisheries Service said on Thursday.

The two adult killer whales, along with a juvenile killer whale, had spent three weeks in the salmon-rich Nushagak River in southwestern Alaska, seen as far as 30 miles upriver from their saltwater habitat in Bristol Bay.

The adult whales were found dead on Saturday, one floating in the water and one beached on the riverbank. The juvenile whale has not been spotted since Saturday, when it was swimming in the tidal area near the river’s mouth, NOAA said.

Although Bristol Bay killer whales often linger near the mouth of the Nushagak, that species of whale had never been reported far up any Alaska river for a prolonged period of time. Necropsies revealed that both dead whales were female and one was in the late stages of pregnancy, NOAA said. They showed no signs of impact from humans, NOAA said.

Killer whales are known to travel in maternal groups, with juveniles accompanying adults, said Julie Speegle, a spokeswoman for NOAA Fisheries in Juneau. Officials have made no assumptions about the fate of the third whale, Speegle said.

“I know there’s been some concern about its chances for survival,” she said. “I guess it’s possible that it would make it back to the bay and meet up with a pod, but I don’t know if that’s likely.”

6.7-magnitude quake hits New Guinea

BEIJING, 14 Oct—An earthquake measuring 6.7 on the Richter scale jolted the eastern region of Papua New Guinea at 11:35 am Beijing Time Friday, according to the China Earthquake Networks Centre.

The epicenter was monitored at 6.6 degrees south latitude and 148.0 degrees east longitude with a depth of about 40 kilometers, the centre said.

Cold front to sweep China over next three days

BEIJING, 14 Oct—China’s meteorological authorities on Friday forecast a cold spell to sweep most of the country, dragging down temperatures over the next three days.

Temperatures in the northeastern parts of the Inner Mongolia Autonomous Region and the eastern parts of northeast China will fall by as many as 12 degrees Celsius, and some regions will also get hit by strong winds, the National Meteorological Centre (NMC) said.

The cold front will also bring rainfall to central and eastern parts of Inner Mongolia as well as to northern and northeastern parts of the country, the NMC said. Meanwhile, the coastal areas of Guangdong Province along with the southern parts of Fujian and Hainan Provinces will experience heavy rains, accumulating up to 60 mm of precipitation, according to the NMC.

The year’s 20th tropical storm Banyan, which was located about 840 kilometers southeast of the City of Wanning in Hainan as of 5 am Friday, will move northwest at a speed of 15 km per hour, bringing gales to areas it passes, the NMC added.
13 die in torrential rains in Guatemala

GUATEMALA CITY, 14 Oct—At least 13 people have died in southern Guatemala after torrential rains from hurricanes and storms off the country’s Pacific coast pounded the central American country, Guatemala President Alvaro Colom said on Wednesday.

The recent wave of rains started falling Tuesday, hours before Hurricane Jova made landfall in Mexico and two other tropical storms off the Mexican coast north of the border with Guatemala provoked intense rains across southern Mexico and Guatemala.

“We regret the death of at least 13 people, including four children who were electrocuted,” Colom told local press in a preliminary evaluation of the emergency caused by the tropical storm currently known as 12-E, which is expected to strengthen later Wednesday, weather forecasters said. —Xinhua

Cambodia floods claim 247 lives

PHNOM PENH, 14 Oct—At least 247 people have been killed by the Mekong River and flash floods hitting in Cambodia since early August, Cambodia’s Prime Minister Hun Sen said on Thursday afternoon.

“The death toll is on the sharp rise and very concerning,” the Premier said in a statement after the special Cabinet meeting on flood disaster. “I would like to appeal to all parents and guardians to take care of kids to avoid drowning during the floods. The floods have affected about 1.2 million people. It also completely destroyed more than 190,000 hectares of rice paddies, or 7.7 percent of the total grown rice paddies, and affected other 390,000 hectares of rice paddies or 16 percent of the total rice paddies. Some 1,970 kilometres of roads have affected and other 660 kilometres of roads have been damaged. Meanwhile, the premier said the Council of Ministers decided to cancel the annual Water Festival scheduled on November 9-11 in Phnom Penh in concern of the flood devastation. —MNA/Xinhua

Russian bombers complete North Sea patrol

MOSCOW, 14 Oct—Two Russian TU-95MS strategic bombers completed a 17-hour patrol of the neutral waters of the North Sea on Wednesday, the Russian Air Force said. Air Force spokes-man Vladimir Dreik said the aircraft were followed by six British, Dutch and Danish fighters during their patrol. The long-range bombers were refueled in flight by two IL-78 flying tankers, the Interfax news agency reported. Russian long-range bombers regularly conduct patrol missions over the Arctic, the Atlantic and Pacific oceans, and the Black Sea. —Xinhua

Men develop diabetes with less body fat than women

GLASGOW, 14 Oct—Men develop type 2 diabetes at a lower body mass index (BMI) than women, and this finding helps explain why men have higher rates of diabetes in many parts of the world, researchers report.

They analyzed data from 51,920 men and 43,137 women in Scotland with diabetes and found that average BMI at diabetes diagnosis was 31.83 in men and 33.69 in women. This difference was most noticeable at younger ages, the researchers said.

The study was published online 30 Sept in the journal Diabetologia. The findings confirm the hypothesis that men have to gain less weight to develop diabetes, according to study leader Professor Naveed Sattar, of the Institute of Cardiovascular and Medical Sciences at the University of Glasgow.

Texas authorities round up gang members

SAN ANTONIO, 14 Oct —Six members of the Texas Mexican Mafia gang, including its statewide leader in the free world, were arrested Thursday in San Antonio, authorities said.

Federal and local authorities had previously arrested four other members of the gang, bringing the total in custody to 10.

Nineteen of the gang members, including Robert “Lil Bit” Carrero Jr., 45, a purported general, are charged with conspiracy to distribute more than a kilo of heroin, the San Antonio Express-News reported Thursday.

The 10th gang member, Teresa “Tia” Alonzo, 63, a daughter-in-law of the gang’s imprisoned vice president Benito Alonzo, faces lesser charges.

“We believe Teresa Alonzo was (Benito Alonzo’s) contact in the free world to Mr Carrero, said Assistant US Attorney David Shearer. He told US Magistrate Judge Pamela Mathy that Teresa attempted, but failed, to smuggle heroin to Benito in prison and also accepted thousands of dollars in repayment for drugs on Benito’s behalf.—Internet

Accused Bloods gang members rounded up in Maryland

BALTIMORE, 14 Oct—

Maryland authorities charged dozens of accused Bloods gang members on Thursday of running a crime ring that committed murder and robbery and trafficked drugs across the state.

Among the 35 who were indicted, several came from Frederick and affluent Howard County, more suburban areas not often associated with violent gang crime, the US State’s Attorney’s Office for the District of Maryland said.

“Two community is immune from gangs,” chief of the Frederick Police Department told a Baltimore news conference announcing the indictment.

The indictment charged 27 defendants with conspiracy and racketeering, while others were charged with selling illegal drugs including heroin, crack cocaine and prescription drugs.

Among those indicted was Andre Ricardo Roach, the reputed leader of Maryland’s Bloods, known as the South Side Brims Bloods, who is already serving a 50-year prison sentence for second-degree murder.

The investigation began two years ago when Frederick police discovered a roster listing more than 100 gang members with responding to a stabbing in a motel parking lot.

Law enforcement authorities began monitoring communication among Bloods groups statewide and speaking with informants.

Not only did gang members communicate by telephone and e-mail but they could be seen on YouTube videos, MySpace and Facebook profiles flashing gang signs, throwing cash around and using their street names, according to court documents.

Toronto Zoo polar bear kills newborn cub

TORONTO, 14 Oct—A 10-year-old polar bear at the Toronto Zoo who gave premature birth to triplets killed one of them, forcing staff to rescue the remaining two, officials said.

Zoo workers were surprised Tuesday night when Aurora gave birth to two male cubs and a female, as it was at least six weeks ahead of schedule, the Toronto Star reported.

An unidentified source told the Star the mother bear ate one of the cubs and badly clawed a second before workers could remove the surviving cubs.

The two little bears are under 24-hour care in the veterinary intensive care unit, Postmedia News reported.

“They will continue to be hand-raised and we are hopeful that they will both get stronger but they are far from being out of the woods at this time,” the zoo said in a statement.

Aurora and her sister Nikita have been in the Toronto Zoo since 2001, when provincial wildlife officials found them orphaned by a hunter near Hudson Bay.

Zoo officials said the birth is likely the earliest ever recorded among captive polar bears.

Various countries and agencies rank the species as vulnerable to threatened or endangered.—Internet

School bans ‘I [heart] boobies!’ bracelets

“In a lot of cases with younger students the interest is not in the raising awareness around eradicating breast cancer, in actual fact it’s more of a novelty item and it has caused distraction. It has also been offensive in some environments,” School District 23 Superintendent Hugh Gloster told the Canadian Broadcasting Corp of the action to ban the bracelets at Springvalley Middle School in Kelowna. The bright-green bracelets are part of Keep A Breast Canada’s awareness campaign for youth. “Most of us are mature enough to handle it,” ninth-grade student Jamie Crowley told the CBC.—Internet

Two planes in possible close call over Japan

Honolulu, 14 Oct—Hawaiian Airlines said Thursday it is working with Japanese authorities to investigate a possible close call between one of its flights and a cargo plane near Osaka.

The incident happened Wednesday local time at Kansai Airport.

Hawaiian Airlines spokesman Keoni Wagner said flight 450 moved from the taxiway to the runway for takeoff at about the same time an aircraft engaged in landing was about to circle back to land.

Japan’s transport ministry said in an initial report that the aircraft proceeded to the runway despite instruction from air traffic controllers to stand by. It described the incident as "serious." Wagner said the airline hasn’t listened to the recordings yet and that it’s premature to draw conclusions.

Hawaiian Airlines began flying to Japan last November. The aircraft involved was a Honolulu-bound Boeing 767 carrying 196 passengers and 12 crew members. Two people were aboard the ANA cargo plane.

There were no injuries or damage to either plane, the ministry said.—INTERNET

Two shipping companies fined 1.2 mln USD over oil spill in Australian waters

Brisbane, 14 Oct—The two shipping companies responsible for Australia’s Queensland biggest oil spill have been fined a total of 1.2 million AU dollars (1.22 million US dollars), local media reported on Friday.

The owners of the MV Pacific Adventurer, Swire Navigation Co Ltd and Bluewind Shipping Ltd both pleaded guilty in the Supreme Court in Brisbane to disposing of oil into Moreton Bay, off southeast Queensland in March 2009, the Australian Broadcasting Corporation (ABC) reported.

The MV Pacific Adventurer spilled more than 270 tonnes of oil when the ship’s fuel tank was ruptured by shipping containers which tumbled overboard in rough seas.

Judge Ken Dorney told the court the two companies have each been fined 1.2 million AU dollars (1.15 million US dollars) for causing one of Queensland’s worst environmental disasters.—Xinhua

Indian doctors carry out pioneering robotic liver transplant

NEW DELHI, 14 Oct—Indian doctors on Thursday claimed that they had carried out a pioneering robotic liver transplant operation on a four-year-old child and his uncle for the first time in the country.

A team at Medanta Medcity hospital in Gurgaon, some 30 kilometres from the Indian capital, said that it performed the surgery last month using the Da Vinci robot on 36-year-old Rahmatullah who donated 20 percent of his liver to his nephew Ziad who had liver cancer due to a rare genetic disorder.

“Robotic surgery is usually performed for other operations like kidney, heart and gynaecological operations. But its use in this liver transplant not only increased the precision, but encouraged the donor by reducing surgery related troubles,” team leader Dr AS Soin told media.

Some 1.5 million rupees (30,000 US dollars) was raised through charity for the operation on Ziad suffering from tyrosinemia, a disease where the liver is unable to digest proteins. It later developed into liver cancer.

Aircraft nose-dives at NW China air show; no casualties reported

XI’AN, 14 Oct—An aircraft plunged Friday morning during an air show in Pucheng County in northwest China’s Shaanxi Province.

There were no reports of casualties, but witnesses said they saw that the pilot was ejected before the fighter jet fell about 10:45 am. Xinhua reporters saw heavy smoke billowing at the Pucheng Neifu Airport, where the air show was being staged.

The air show is continuing, Xinhua said.

“The fighter jet FBC-I, also known as a Flying Leopard, was manufactured by the Xi’an Aircraft Industry Corp. The three-day air show that opened on Friday is part of the China International General Aviation Convention being held in Xi’an, capital city of Shaanxi. Video footage broadcast by China Central Television (CCTV) showed that the pilot was ejected and parachuted shortly before the fighter jet nose-dived to the ground and exploded.”—Xinhua

Tyranosaurus rex dinosaur bigger than thought

BEIJING, 14 Oct—Tyranosaurus rex, the giant prehistoric predator, was even bigger and heavier than it was estimated previously, a new study found. The finding was contained in a study published Wednesday in the scientific journal PLoS ONE. Using three-dimension scanning and computer modeling, researchers analyzed five skeleton fossils of T rex dinosaur, including “Sue”, the largest and most complete T rex specimen ever found. The analysis tipped the scale of “Sue” at 9 ton, some 30 percent more than it was expected.

Michelle Obama makes secret shopping trips

Michelle Obama said she and her daughters often sneak out of the White House for shopping trips and even once managed to visit a Petco without being recognized.

Obama told NBC’s “Today” show she and the girls sneak out “as much as possible” for trips to Target and other stores and the trips “help keep our kids’ lives normal.”

The first lady said she and Bo, the family dog, recently made a visit to a Petco store without being recognized.

“The cashier asked me, ‘Oh, what kind of dog is that?’ I said, ‘A Portuguese water dog.’ He didn’t recognize us because he didn’t expect that we would be in Petco,” she said.

Obama said she has found it surprisingly easy to slip in and out of stores without being outed as President Barack Obama’s wife.

“People realize and it’s amazing how people don’t recognize you. They don’t expect to see me at Starbucks or at Chipotle,” she said. “They’re looking right through you. They don’t know it’s me.”

Blogger seeks job in Jell-O shots

A Boston biologist whose skill with Jell-O shots earned him unexpected catering jobs said he is looking to turn his art into a full-time business.

Matt Micari, a biologist who blogs about his Jell-O experiments at gelology.blogspot.com, said he first started creating unusual Jell-O shots to help him meet people at parties when he first moved to the city, the Boston Globe reported Wednesday.

“I figured out that if I’d show up to a party with Jell-O shots, people would talk to me,” he said.

Micari, whose creations include a sriracha shot containing the spicy sauce, fresh cilantro, pineapple, lime, and coconut milk gelatin, said the creations did wonders for his popularity and resulted in a few catering jobs.

China’s Li Na is writing a book

Beijing, 14 Oct—Chinese French Open tennis champion Li Na is writing a memoir to tell her fans—as the book’s working title proclaims—“How to Go West and Win,” publisher Penguin said on Friday.

Li, 29, Asia’s first Grand Slam winner, will tell fans how she rose to the highest level of the sport, offering tips on “harnessing personal passions to win against the odds,” the British publisher said. “I hope my story can inspire people of all ages,” Li said in a statement.

Penguin will co-publish the book in Chinese first in spring 2012 with a Chinese publishing partner—a first for the company whose business in China up to now has focused on importing English titles and exporting translations. “This book will not only appeal to tennis fans, but also to people in China striving for success in this changing and dynamic country,” Jo Lesby, Penguin China managing director, said over the phone from the Frankfurt Book Fair.

“Li has a very straight-talking unusual personality and is more outgoing than most Chinese athletes and we think this could translate around the world.” Li, now ranked sixth in world tennis, broke away from China’s state-run sports system to manage her own career, and keep more of her winnings.

In June, she made history by becoming the first Asian player to win a Grand Slam title at the French Open at Roland Garros in Paris. Since then, she has not been able to add to her trophy cabinet, crashing out of major tournaments such as Wimbledon and the US Open. In September, Li told reporters in Beijing that “female players are not as harsh or as tough as male players, they want to take some time to re-adjust themselves after a big victory in a big event.”—Internet
