Today, the socio-economic life of rural people has improved, benefiting from a large number of dams across the nation.

The fundamental need for agriculture is irrigation water. Now, with the emergence of dams supplying irrigation water, farmers can run farms all the year round.

Given the chance to specialize in agriculture, farmers nowadays can even practise triple-cropping patterns or patterns with three different crops in one season. Thanks to the availability of irrigation water, farmers can now grow potable water.

Now, 193 UN member nations and at least 23 international institutions have adopted Millennium Development Goals and agreed to strive for attainment of these goals in 2015. France, Germany to make proposals to modify EU treaties

PARIS, 23 Nov—France and Germany will soon put forward proposals to modify European Union (EU) treaties for greater convergence of financial, economic and tax policies to cope with the eurozone debt crisis, French President Nicolas Sarkozy said here on Tuesday.

Speaking at a reception at the Elysee Palace, the French president told participants attending the two-day International Capital Conference 2011 that the eurozone countries need integrating financial policies.

"With (German Chancellor) Angela Merkel, we will soon make proposals with regard to the treaty amendment to prevent that (eurozone) countries can differ in fiscal, economic and tax policies," said Sarkozy.

"We need a convergence of economic policies (in the eurozone), which is to say a convergence of fiscal policies," he said.

Sarkozy appreciated the development of emerging countries in Asia. "With this unprecedented development, millions of workers from China and India joined the global economy and millions of people walk out of poverty."

"For developed countries, globalization is a challenge... No advanced country is immune from the consequences of excessive debt accumulated over the years," he added.

Organized by the Boao Forum for Asia and hosted by the French Ministry of Economy, Finance and Industry, the International Capital Conference 2011 on 23 to 24 Nov will bring together some 400 European and Asian leaders, economists and entrepreneurs.—Xinhua

US investigators probe drug plane abandoned at Houston-area airport

HOUSTON, 23 Nov—The US authorities are hunting for the pilot of a small airplane packed with marijuana that was abandoned at a private corporate airport in the Houston-area, local media reported on Tuesday.

The twin-engine, six-seat aircraft skidded off a runway Monday night at the Houston Executive Airport in west Houston. A large amount of marijuana was found aboard, according to local TV channel KTRK.

Federal investigators were searching the plane Tuesday morning for fingerprints and other evidence. A cell phone and an iPad were found in the plane, which attempted to land at the airport when it experienced front landing gear malfunction and skidded down the runway on its nose on Monday. Authorities said that there was at least one person, possible two, aboard the plane. It is not known where the drugs were heading.

The US Federal Aviation Administration and the Department of Homeland Security are investigating the case. Houston is sometimes used by drug dealers to transport marijuana and cocaine from Mexico to major cities like Atlanta, Chicago and New York, according to a study published by the US Justice Department in 2009.—Xinhua

British police says no to FBI in 2012 Olympics

LONDON, 23 Nov—A senior British police said no to any foreign armed guards including FBI in London during the 2012 Olympics on Tuesday.

Assistant Commissioner Chris Allison insisted that armed agents from other countries besides Britain will not be permitted at the Olympic Games, moreover, the National Olympic Security Coordinator maintained that preparations of safety and security are “in a good place.”

The police used the word of “rabbits” when he talked about a report that the United States was dissatisfied with security arrangements and would send up to 500 armed FBI agents to protect US interest.

Allison confirmed that most countries are likely to send “security liaison officers” who will work with British police. “Some teams, they bring liaison officers with them, they’re not protection officers,” he added.

US blacklists Lebanon explosives expert

WASHINGTON, 23 Nov —The US state department has blacklisted an explosives expert of a Lebanon-based militant group.

Ibrahim Suleiman Hamad Al-Hablain, who works for the Abdullah Azzam Brigades, is a Saudi citizen currently wanted for extradition by the Saudi government for participating in extremist activities abroad, Xinhua reported citing a statement.

The man — also known as Abu Jabal — is also the subject of an Interpol notice issued in February 2009 for activities related to terrorism, the statement said. According to media reports, the outfit claimed responsibility for the July 2010 bombing of a Japanese oil tanker as well as for firing rockets into Israel from Lebanon.

Brazilian economy may have zero growth in Q3, but will recover in Q4

RIO DE JANEIRO, 23 Nov—The Brazilian economy may register zero growth in the third quarter, but is likely to recover in the fourth quarter of the year, the deputy finance minister said Tuesday. Nelson Barbosa blamed the lack of growth on the international economic situation and the government’s measures to halt the rise of the inflation rate. He said the Brazilian government is currently working with a 3.8 percent growth projection this year, while the financial market estimates a 3.2 percent growth.

Next year, the government expects Brazil to grow four to five percent, and the inflation rate should be below five percent as well, the official said. The government will release the third quarter gross domestic product (GDP) figures in December, but the Central Bank has already released its economic activity figures, which are considered a preview of the official GDP data. According to the Central Bank, in the third quarter, the Brazilian economy registered a contraction of 0.32 percent. From January to September, the economic activity index accumulated a rise of 3.15 percent.—Xinhua

Less wheezing linked to babies eating fish

GOTHENBURG, 23 Nov—Babies who eat fish before being 9 months are less likely to suffer preschool wheeze, researchers in Sweden found.

Dr Emma Goksoor of the Queen Silvia Children’s Hospital at the University of Gothenburg in Sweden and colleagues analyzed responses from 4,171 randomly selected families, who answered questions when their child was 6 months, 12 months and 4 1/2 years of age. The study examined children who had had three or more episodes of wheezing in the previous year, including those who did and did not use asthma medication (inhaled corticosteroid), comparing them with children who did not wheeze.

The wheezy sample was further broken down into children who only developed episodic viral wheeze when they had colds and multiple trigger wheeze, where children also wheezed when they didn’t have a cold, reacting to factors such as allergies, tobacco smoke or exercise, Goksoor said. The study, scheduled to be published in the December issue of Acta Paediatrica, found eating fish before the age of 9 months almost halved the likelihood of suffering recurrent wheeze at age 4 1/2. The fish most commonly eaten was white fish, followed by salmon and flat fish, said Goksoor, the lead author.—Internet

Microsoft buys video search engine VideoSurf

SAN FRANCISCO, 23 Nov—Microsoft announced on Tuesday that it has acquired video search engine VideoSurf. In a press release, Microsoft said it will integrate VideoSurf’s technology across its entertainment platform to augment the Xbox 360 ecosystem and evolve search and discovery of entertainment content on Xbox LIVE. Details of the deal were not disclosed.

Technology news site TechCrunch cited Israeli business newspaper Calcalist as saying that the company was bought for about 70 million US dollars. The San Mateo, California-based company, founded by four Israelis in 2006, offers a technology that “sees” frames inside videos to make discovering content fast, easy and accurate.

Since its founding, VideoSurf has raised 28 million dollars from several sources, including Facebook chief operating officer Sheryl Sandberg and her husband, as well as former US vice president Al Gore.

Last month, Microsoft announced that it will bring cable television content to its Xbox video game console over the holiday season, expanding the console into an entertainment hub.—Xinhua

Health Tip: Rheumatoid arthritis can damage joints

Rheumatoid arthritis causes chronic swelling and inflammation in the joints, which can result in permanent damage and long-term complications. The Cleveland Clinic cites these possible symptoms of rheumatoid arthritis:

* Joints that are swollen, painful, red and tender to the touch.
* Worn cartilage—the padding between the ends of bones.
* Buildup of fluid in and around the joints.
* Bones that rub against each other.
* In chronic cases, potential permanent bone damage.

Snake robot offers new twist on nuclear cleanup

LONDON, 23 Nov—

You could call it the humanoid robot’s more curious cousin. Slithering into confined spaces, tackling tasks too difficult or dangerous for humans, the Snake-robot can “reach the unreachable” say its UK inventors, OC Robotics. Managing director Rob Buckingham and technical director Andrew Graham developed their first prototype in 2001 from their base in Bristol, England, and they’ve been perfecting the technology ever since. Today, with clients in the nuclear sector and others queuing up for a demonstration, the hard work is beginning to pay off.

The technical challenge has been finding a way to “baseball energy into the snake-arm,” Buckingham says. “Just like the human arm, the big muscles that drive them are actually mounted on the back and tendons link the muscles to the joints,” Buckingham said. “Basically, we’ve taken that principle to an extreme and use wire tendons as tendons and all the motors (actuators) that control the arm are at the base of the robot,” he added.

Made of steel, these “wire tendons” transfer the actuators’ mechanical power into the snake-arm, where a series of articulating links create a sinuous movement.

Amazon Kindles being ‘ruined’ by airport X-ray scanners

LONDON, 23 Nov—

Travellers have been warned that their Amazon Kindle e-readers can be destroyed by security X-ray scanners at airports. Multiple complaints from users who have recently emerged that their device was ruined by a baggage check. This has prompted claims that radiation permanently affected the device’s electronic ink display, the Telegraph reports. Electronic ink screens use thousands of tiny capsules filled with magnetic black and white particles to display text and pictures. It is controlled by applying a small voltage across the capsules, which sends either the positively charged white particles or the negatively charged black particles to the front. They stay in place until the next time a voltage is applied, which allows the Kindle battery to last for much longer than in gadgets that use LCD screens, such as the iPad.

Meanwhile, Amazon has denied X-ray machines were a threat to the Kindle. “Exposing your Kindle to an X-ray machine, such as those used by airport security, should not cause problems with it,” a spokesman for the internet giant said. “Many Kindle users travel by air, and their Kindles are screened by airport security every day without issue,” he added.

According to users, the firm has replaced Kindles that stopped working after passing through an airport scanner.—Internet

Wild birds to be released as New Zealand oil clean-up progresses

WELLINGTON, 23 Nov—New Zealand animal experts will begin releasing seabirds Tuesday almost seven weeks after a massive oil leak from a grounded cargo ship triggered a wildlife rescue operation. Maritime New Zealand (MNZ) announced Monday the staged release of some of the cleaned birds from the oiled wildlife facility in the Bay of Plenty region would start this week.

All birds would have to pass a “six-hour test” where they swam for six hours without a break before being assessed to ensure their waterproofing was normal. They had also been introduced back to salt water. The habitats where the birds would be released had been carefully checked to ensure they were ready to receive wildlife.

About 350 tonnes of oil leaked from the Liberian-flagged Rena after it ran aground on the Astrolabe Reef on 5 Oct, killing an estimated 1,300 seabirds.

More than 400 birds are being cared for at the oiled wildlife response center, including 60 New Zealand dotterel that were captured pre-emptively to protect the endangered species. Although there was still a chance that more oil could spill from Rena, the center could not keep wild birds “in captivity for an indefinite period of time without running the risk of disease or injury,” said Morgan.—Xinhua

‘Password’ and ‘letmein’ among worst passwords ever

TORONTO, 23 Nov—

Online security experts say there are a number of tactics to thwart hackers when it comes to passwords, including changing it regularly and using a hard-to-guess combination of letters, numbers, punctuation and symbols. But perhaps the best piece of advice is not to use “password” as your password.

The California-based software company SplashData analyzed millions of stolen passwords that had been obtained by hackers and found some dangerously simple choices came up again and again.

The most common was “password,” followed by “123456,” “12345678,” “qwerty,” “abc123,” “monkey,” “1234567,” “letmein,” “trustno1,” “dragon” and “baseball.”

Users who have trouble remembering all their online passwords can buy software to automatically — and securely — log them into websites. SplashData’s version is SplashID, while the Canadian company AgileBits makes 1Password.

Yellowstone proposes culling bison 360 migrating bison

BILLINGS, 23 Nov—

Up to 360 migrating bison would be shot by Montana hunters, captured for slaughter or shipped elsewhere this winter under a proposal from Yellowstone National Park.

Documents obtained by The Associated Press show park officials considering “selective culls” to help reduce the bison population from 3,700 animals to about 3,000. That comes amid pressure from Montana officials including Gov. Brian Schweitzer for Yellowstone to rein in its iconic bison herds. Other says the animals should roam freely. Biologists say fewer animals would help avoid the mass slaughters seen during past winter bison migrations from the park. Some of the anticipated decline would come from natural deaths.

More than 3,600 Yellowstone bison were removed through slaughter and other means over the last decade to prevent the spread of disease to livestock.—Internet

China builds world’s largest seismic network for reservoirs

YICHANG, (Hubei) 23 Nov—China has established the world’s largest seismological network for monitoring and preventing earthquakes near major reservoirs, a senior scientist said Sunday.

The network is located in the lower reaches of the Jinsha River, which constitutes part of the upper reaches of the Yangtze River, China’s longest waterway, Chen Houqun, a member of the Chinese Academy of Engineering, said at a hydropower development forum held in central China’s Hubei Province.

Several dams have been built in west China in recent years, a region that has also experienced 82 percent of the country’s strongest earthquakes, according to Chen.

Authorities should be wary of earthquakes that occur near major reservoirs, despite the fact that strong jolts are rarely reported in those areas, Chen said.

In response to concerns that the large dams might actually cause earthquakes, Chen said there is no reason to panic.

“There are hundreds of thousands of reservoirs in the world, but only about 100 reservoir-triggered quakes have been reported,” he said.

Iran tests passive radar in aerial drill

TEHERAN, 23 Nov—Iran tested its passive radar system and electronic warfare equipment in the latest aerial drills aimed at maintaining readiness of a nationwide radar network, local satellite Press TV reported on Sunday.

Colonel Abolfazl Sepehri, spokesman for the four-day military exercises, said that Iran’s armed forces deployed the country’s most up-to-date passive radar system and hardware for electronic warfare on Saturday, according to the report, which did not elaborate on the system.

Led by the Iranian Army’s Khatam al-Anbiya Air Defence Base, the armed forces also employed domestically-developed artillery, missile and composite defence systems to counter possible radar disruptions and enemy’s telecommunications.

Sepehri told reporters that the Iranian forces applied certain strategies to further disrupt the navigational systems of the hypothetical enemies’ flying objects, the report said. Iran started on Friday an aerial war game in the eastern part of the country.

On Saturday, Brigadier General Amir-Ali Hajizadeh, commander of Iran’s Islamic Revolution Guard Corp aerospace division, said that Iran would retaliate if the United States attacked it.

“The US dares not attack Iran, because in case it does so it will face a crushing response and be bitterly punished,” Hajizadeh told the state-run IRNA news agency.

World’s most expensive mince pie contains whale sugar and platinum coin

LONDON, 23 Nov—A mince pie, which is believed to be the world’s most expensive, uses a mix of traditional ingredients from recipes dating back to the 17th century. The culinary delight, estimated to be worth 3,000 pounds, is currently on show at a London shopping centre.

Other added ingredients include the highest-grade platinum leaf, holy water from Lourdes to bind the pastry and wash all the ingredients, vanilla beans and cinnamon from eastern spice markets.

Highly prized ambergris sugar derived from sperm whale secretions has also been used.

It is complete without a solid Platinum coin in keeping with the British tradition of placing a silver coin in a Christmas cake or pudding.

It took ten days for Andrew Stellitano, who runs food design company Astarism to make the exclusive mince pie. The pastry top was designed on a computer and laser cut to give it an intricate finish, the Daily Mail reported.—INTERNET

Fog disrupts London flights

LONDON, 23 Nov—Thousands of passengers faced severe delay Sunday after fog disrupted hundreds of flights in and out of London’s airports, including Heathrow, the country’s busiest.

Heathrow Airport confirmed 132 flights, including 50 British Airways services, were cancelled due to thick fog.

“We are aware of 74 departing flights that have been cancelled by airlines,” read a statement issued by the airport, which handles around 1,300 flights a day.

“The delays to flights are also occurring so we advise passengers to check with their airlines before travelling;” it added. Some 58 incoming flights were also cancelled.

London City Airport, in the British capital’s east, also announced 44 flights had been delayed or diverted due to poor weather.

The Met Office, the country’s national weather service, warned “dense fog” could become “more extensive” in many areas overnight. Airlines said they had re-booked some stranded passengers and were finding overnight accommodation for others.—INTERNET

Malformed mummy found in Peru

BEIJAING, 23 Nov—Peruvian researchers are puzzled over an oddly-formed mummy found recently in the Cuzco Region, the heart of Incan civilization. The mummy now sits in the Ritos Andinos Museum in Andahuayllas, some 685 miles southeast of Lima.

The mummy is 50 centimetres tall, and doesn’t coincide with the human norms. It’s head is triangular and the eye cavities are too big for a normal human.

Archeologists also noted a strange flange on the jaw, an opening at the top of the head, wisdom teeth and molars. They made an initial guess that the mummy is a child, saying it could have been a human sacrifice to placate the gods during dangerous times.

They also debunked local media reports the mummy could have originated from an extraterrestrial life form.

Gold settles higher, recoups 1,700 dollars

Chicago, 23 Nov—Gold futures on the COMEX Division of the New York Mercantile Exchange on Tuesday bounced off previous weakness and settled above the 1,700-dollar mark, as bargain hunters came in following Monday’s nearly 3-percent drop.

The most active gold contract for Dec. delivery gained 23.8 US dollars, or 1.4 percent, to 1702.4 dollars per ounce. Market analysts said that bargain-hunting buying has come back into the market after the metal slumped to the 4-week low on Monday, providing a strong rebound that bodes well for gold’s near and longer-term prospects.

Meanwhile, a higher crude oil price also contributed to the rebound, as gold is usually bought as a hedge against inflation, said Mike Daley, a senior gold analyst with PFGBEST Group. New York crude oil hiked 1.09 dollars to 98.01 dollars per barrel, approaching the key mark 100 dollars again.

Besides, the weakness in dollar added to the positive tone on the metal market.—Xinhua

Dumb thieves forgot to put petrol in car!

London, 23 Nov—Two thieves in Britain proved they were too dumb to be doing what they were after they were captured on CCTV pushing their car to a petrol pump as they forgot to tank it up before a robbery.

Rose Devlin, 59, and Denise Egan, 52, stole 400 pounds of alcohol from a supermarket in Manchester city and bundled it into the back of their car. But they realised their quick exit was foiled due to not having petrol, the Daily Mail reported. They were forced to push the vehicle to the supermarket’s petrol station to fill up before heading away.

All this was captured on CCTV and the robbers were eventually arrested.—Internet

Three killed in Pakistan factory blast

Islamabad, 32 Nov—At least three workers were killed in a blast Tuesday night at a factory in Pakistan’s Punjab province, a media report said. The blast took place inside a depot of a factory in Sialanwali town in Sargodha district, Xinhua reported citing Urdu TV channel Dunya.

The report, however, did not mention what caused the blast, but said that police have excluded the possibility of a terrorist attack.—Internet

Roadside bomb kills four Afghan civilians, wounds two

Mehterlam, (Afghanistan) 23 Nov—Four civilians were killed and two others were injured as a roadside bomb struck a civilian car in Laghman Province 90 km east of Afghan capital City Kabul on Tuesday, an official said.

“The tragic incident happened at 10:00 am local time today in Ali Nager District leaving four innocent civilians including a child dead and injuring two others,” spokesman for provincial administration Faizullah Patan told Xinhua. He also blamed Taliban militants for organizing the attack but the outfit fighting Afghan government has not to make comment yet.—Xinhua

US designates “Abu Jabal” a terrorist

Washington, 23 Nov—The US State Department on Tuesday designated a Saudi national linked to a Lebanese militant group as a terrorist, a move that blocks his assets within US reach.

Ibrahim Suleiman Hamad Al-Halblain, also known as Abu Jabal, is an explosives expert and operative for Abdullah Azzam Brigades, or AAB, a Lebanese militant organization, the State Department said in a statement. AAB claimed responsibility for the July 2010 bombing of a Japanese oil tanker and for firing several rockets into Israel from Lebanon, the statement said, citing media reports. The terrorist designation freezes any of Abu Jabal’s assets in US territory and bans US citizens from doing business with him or engaging in any transactions from which he might benefit.—MNA/Reuters

U Min Swe of DaikU Constituency submitted a proposal to add the paragraph 5 (d) and to cancel paragraph (e). U Win Oo of Yebyu Constituency, U Htay Myint of Myeik Constituency, U Maung Toe of Minthla Constituency, U Win Than of Thabaung Constituency, U Htay Oo of Hinthada Constituency and U Aung Mya Than of Nyangonkwin Constituency participated in the discussions. Union Minister U Myint Hlaing said that the paragraphs should be kept as original provision and requested to withdraw the proposals of amendment.

U Min Swe proposed to withdraw his proposal and put it on record. Hluttaw decided to remain as original provision and record the proposal.

U Stephen, member of Bill Committee, submitted to remain as the proposal regarding the Paragraph 6 (c), and Union Minister U Myint Hlaing approved it.

Regarding the paragraph, U Tin Maung Oo of Shwepyitha Constituency submitted amendment, and Union Minister U Myint Hlaing expressed that the former’s supplement is appropriate.

With regard to the Paragraph 6 (d), U Yaw Di Dway of Putao Constituency submitted amendment and Union Minister U Myint Hlaing approved it.

As there was no one who objected the proposals regarding the Paragraph 6 (c, d), it was decided that proposals relating to amendment were approved.

Regarding the Paragraph 10 (a) (1), U Yaw Di Dway of Putao Constituency submitted amendment and Union Minister U Myint Hlaing discussed that the phrase “75% of acreage” is not needed and there was no objection to the phrase “for actual sown acreage”.

As there was no objection to the proposal, amendment was approved.

Bill Committee member U Stephen, U Tin Maung Oo of Shwepyitha Constituency, and U Yaw Di Dway of Putao Constituency submitted amendments. U Htay Myint of Myeik Constituency discussed them. Union Minister U Myint Hlaing said that it is needed to set only ten acres and there was no objection to the phrase “it is possible that regional organization can take measure for permission”.

U Aung Mya Than of Nyangonkwin Constituency, U Aung Thant of Pathein Hluttaw Constituency and U Thaung of Mawlaik Hluttaw Constituency discussed the proposals.

As there was no objection to the proposal for the amendment of the Bill Committee, the proposal was approved.

The Vacant, Fallow, Virgin Lands Management Bill will be further discussed tomorrow.

The session ended at 4 pm and 51st session starts at 10 am tomorrow.

US delays launch of Mars rover

WASHINGTON, 23 Nov—The launch of the Mars Science Laboratory, which contains the car-sized Curiosity rover, has been delayed by a day to 26 Nov, the US National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) announced Monday. The delay will “allow time for the team to remove and replace a flight termination system battery,” NASA said in a statement.

The launch is now scheduled for 10:32 am (1502 GMT) on Saturday from Cape Canaveral Air Force Station, Florida. The launch window remains open for one hour and 43 minutes. Curiosity is about twice as long and more than five times as heavy as any previous Mars rover. Its 10 science instruments include two for ingesting and analyz-ing samples of powdered rock delivered by the rover’s robotic arm.

Manned Russian Soyuz capsule lands safely in Kazakhstan

MOSCOW, 23 Nov—A Russian capsule carrying three astronauts landed safely in the steppes of Kazakhstan on Tuesday, Russia’s space agency said.

The capsule, carrying NASA astronaut Michael Fossum, Russian cosmonaut Sergei Volkov and Satoshi Furukawa of Japan’s JAXA space agency, returned to earth at 8:25 am Kazakh time (0225 GMT) after undocking from the International Space Station (ISS) earlier in the day.

They had stayed 165 days in space.

Nasa’s Dan Burbank and Russians Anton Shkaplerov and Anatoly Ishishin, who arrived at the station on Wednesday, will stay there till March.

The station will be back to its normal six-person crew after a launch in October.

Ex-Brazilian president Lula continues chemotherapy on throat cancer

RIO DE JANEIRO, 23 Nov—Former Brazilian President Luiz Inacio Lula da Silva on Monday afternoon started the second round of chemotherapy to treat his laryngeal cancer, hospital officials said.

The 66-year-old was expected to leave hospital on Tuesday, said a statement of the Sirio-Libanes Hospital in the City of Sao Paulo. He would be back for a third round of chemotherapy after three weeks and a radiotherapy treatment in early January next year.

Doctors said Lula had very good prospects for a full recovery. Gilberto Cardoso, the country’s secretary of presidency and a longtime friend of the former president, said Lula was excited about the government’s plan announced last week to help disabled people.

Lula left power in January after two consecutive terms from 2003 to 2010. He was diagnosed with laryngeal cancer late last month.

Fish nearly extinct in China’s largest desert freshwater lake

XI’AN, 23 Nov—Fish in Hongjiannao Lake, China’s largest desert freshwater lake, are teetering on the verge of extinction, according to local fishery authorities. “The fish in Hongjiannao have nearly vanished,” said Li Weiping, the head of a fishery authorities. “The fish in Hongjiannao have nearly vanished,” said Li Weiping, the head of a fish monitoring station in northwest China’s Shaanxi Province. As the lake continues to shrink, its water has become more salty and its pH reading has reached 9.6, while the maximum reading suitable for fish is 8.5, according to Li.

The lake has gradually lost the water that it used to get from underground streams and rivers. Li said, adding that excessive coal mining around the lake has changed the way water flows underground.

Two reservoirs have been built on two rivers near the upper reaches of the lake, preventing river water from flowing into the lake.

The lake’s water level has plunged by 20 to 30 centimetres every year. Its total surface area has been reduced to 41.8 square km, down from 67 km in 1996.

Brain activity during orgasm studied

NEWARK, 23 Nov—US researchers say they have recorded what goes on in the brain during one of the human body’s most personal and private experiences — orgasm. Psychologists at Rutgers University captured the crescendo of brain activity in a series of functional magnetic resonance imaging snapshots taken of a female volunteer in a 7-minute period, ABC News reported Friday.

“We’re looking at the sequence of brain regions that get recruited at increasing intensity leading up to orgasm,” psychology Professor Barry Komisaruk said. “It’s such a compelling behavioral and sensory phenomenon with so many implications and so little understanding.” When Nan Wise, a 54-year-old sex therapist turned Rutgers doctoral candidate, reached a self-stimulated orgasm, almost every area of her brain was activated, the researchers said.

“When I first started grad school in ’80s, we didn’t have these methods,” said Wise, who went back to school four years ago. “Now we can study how the brain is recruiting these regions to create the big bang of orgasm.” —Internet
Mexico on alert over Popocatepetl volcano eruption

MEXICO CITY, 23 Nov—Mexico’s largest active volcano Popocatepetl continued to spew smoke and ashes on Monday near the capital, the National Disaster Prevention Centre (Cenapred) said. Popocatepetl, located some 60 km southeast of the Mexico City, had a total of four low-intensity exhalations after a powerful explosion around midday on Sunday, Carlos Gutierrez, head of research at Cenapred, said.

The smoke was clearly visible from the capital with some 20 million inhabitants as well as nearby cities in the central Provinces of Puebla, Morelos and Mexico. Cenapred maintained a yellow alert for the area, Gutierrez said. Access to the volcano has been restricted to a radius of 12 km around the crater after Sunday’s explosion, which was reported to happen at 12:05 pm local time (1805 GMT) and ejected smoke and ash over 7 km high into the air. The explosion startled nearby residents, but officials said no damage or injuries had been reported so far.

The Popocatepetl volcano, measuring 5,452 metres in height, last had a major eruption in December 2000, when masses of lava flowed for weeks and led to the evacuation of some 30,000 people.

Scientists monitoring the current activity at Popocatepetl were expecting continued “moderate exhalations and low level sporadic explosions” including possible volcanic fragments from the crater, Gutierrez said.—Xinhua

Flights suspended in Uruguay, Argentina due to Chilean volcano ashes

MONTEVIDEO, 23 Nov—More than 30 flights were suspended in Uruguay and Argentina on Tuesday due to volcanic ash from the Puyehue volcano in Chile, airport authorities from both countries said.

In Uruguay, about 15 flights, mainly from Bearer, American Airlines, Taca and Aerolíneas Argentinas, were canceled on Tuesday at the Carrasco International Airport in Montevideo since 0600 local time (0800 GMT).

A large ash cloud covered almost all the country and would remain in the zone on Tuesday and probably part of Wednesday, Uruguay’s Chief Aeronauteic Meteorologist Laura Vanoli said.

The Argentine airport authority said more than 20 domestic and international flights were canceled or delayed at the airports in Buenos Aires.

“Due to the presence of volcanic ashes over the metropolitan area and the decrease of the visibility, delays and cancellations have occurred in the flight schedule,” the state-owned air company Aerolíneas Argentinas said in a statement.

Snow blocks highways in north China

HOBOT, 23 Nov—All major highways in Inner Mongolia autonomous region were closed Tuesday morning, as the first snow of the cold season blanketed the region’s capital of Hohhot and Hohhot’s main bus station began Tuesday morning to halt all long-distance coach services.

The China Central Meteorological Station said at 7 am that snow had fallen in the middle region of Inner Mongolia, northern part of Xinjiang and the northeastern provinces of Jilin and Liaoning. The station said temperatures in Inner Mongolia would drop by 10 degrees Celsius over the next three days.

A large ash cloud covered almost all the country and would remain in the zone on Tuesday and probably part of Wednesday, Uruguay’s Chief Aeronauteic Meteorologist Laura Vanoli said.

Five die in Hubei highway pile-up

WUHAN, 23 Nov—Five people were confirmed dead in a pile-up accident Wednesday morning on a fog-shrouded highway in central China’s Hubei Province, another two being hospitalized, a local transportation bureau said.

A bus collided with a truck at about 8:30 am on the highway between Wuhan and Yichang, two major cities in Hubei. With visibility hampered by a heavy fog, two trucks following behind also crashed, escalating the pile-up to a subsequent involvement of 40 vehicles.

The highway has still been closed one way while local traffic police were clearing up the accident site.

Armed tribesmen kidnap two foreigners in southern Yemen

ASCEN (Yemen), 23 Nov—A group of armed tribesmen intercepted a Red Cross vehicle Tuesday evening and kidnapped two foreigners along with their Yemeni driver in the southern Province of Lahij, a local security official said.

The armed group forced a vehicle of the International Committee of the Red Cross to stop at a checkpoint in the Musmeer district, taking the two foreigners in the vehicle and their Yemeni driver to an unknown location, the security official told Xinhua on condition of anonymity.

A French woman of Moroccan origin was one of the hostages, the official said, adding that the attackers were demanding the immediate release of a jailed tribesman.

The official were unable to identify the nationality of the other hostages. A tribal source told Xinhua that the foreigners are well treated.—Xinhua

Indonesia exploits solar energy

JAKARTA, 23 Nov—Indonesia is developing usage of solar energy to fulfill increasing demand on electricity, an official said here on Wednesday.

Director General for New and Renewable Energy at the Ministry for Energy and Mineral Resources Kardaya Warnika told a parliamentary hearing that currently, a small capacity of solar power plant is developed for small scale. “We are developing solar energy with capacity of 15 kilowatt that is enough for 100 households,” said Warnika.

He added that the government is composing a regulation on the usage of solar energy. “For example, related to the usage of thousands hecactre of land, certainly that they are not productive ones. As for now, we don’t install solar energy equipment in productive lands,” said Warnika.—Xinhua

Progress achieved in world AIDS treatment

BEIJING, 23 Nov — Global AIDS deaths and new HIV infections have each dropped 21 percent since the peak of the AIDS pandemic in 1997, according to a UN report released on Monday.

One major factor responsible for the result is that life-saving HIV treatments have become more popular and got to 1.35 million more people in 2010 than in 2009. In middle-income and underdeveloped nations, these treatments have saved 2.5 million lives since 1995.

“We have seen a massive scale-up in access to HIV treatment, which has had a dramatic effect on the lives of people everywhere,” said Michel Sidibe, executive director of the UN AIDS programme.

Survey: Students lose sleep due to homework

BEIJING, 23 Nov — Homework, especially in mathematics, is what junior and senior high school students most often blame for their lack of sleep, according to a recent survey. The survey, conducted by the city’s Xuhui District Education Bureau, polled more than 20,000 students from 39 junior high schools and found that about 60 percent of them spend from two to four hours a day on homework. It also found that senior high school students sleep fewer than seven hours a day on average, which is one hour fewer than the Ministry of Education recommends.

In China, students from the ages of 13 to 16 go to junior high school and from 16 to 19 to senior high school. “People are becoming concerned more about the workloads of high school students,” said Pu Zhengguan, deputy director of Xuhui District Education Bureau. “That’s why we conducted this survey. We think we should reduce the pressures students are under and give them more spare time.”

Of all school subjects, the survey respondents said they spend the most time on mathematics. Many complained that their math homework is too difficult. An extreme example of what school pressures can drive students to occurred on 24 Oct, when two girls in an Anhui province primary school attempted to commit suicide by drinking poison in their classroom.

Study shows acupuncture safe for children

WASHINGTON, 23 Nov — The use of acupuncture for children is common and acupuncture is generally safe for children when performed by “appropriately trained practitioners,” Canadian researchers reported Monday in online journal Pediatrics.

Researchers at the University of Alberta looked at data from 37 studies of needle acupuncture, spanning 60 years, on children from birth to age 17, and assessed the association between needle acupuncture and various levels of adverse events in children. They found that 279 adverse events identified, 253 were mild, one was moderate and 25 were serious.

Serious side effects included bleeding, infections, and heart and lung problems. One child may have contracted HIV.

Release of penguins hailed as milestone in New Zealand oil spill recovery

WELLINGTON, 23 Nov — Forty-nine micro-chipped little blue penguins waddled down a New Zealand beach and into the surf Tuesday in the first release of birds rescued after an oil spill from a grounded cargo ship exactly seven years ago. The release, which followed an international rescue operation, was hailed by rescuers and government officials as a milestone in the recovery of the Bay of Plenty region after the severe contamination from the Liberian-flagged Rena, which hit the Astrolabe Reef on 5 October.

The National Oiled Wildlife Response Team said it marked the first major release of wildlife in a staged program that would continue for the next few weeks. Team coordinator, Massey University wildlife vet Kerri Morgan expressed her gratitude for the support they had received, including from wildlife specialists from around New Zealand and Australia, as well as US-based specialists from the International Bird Rescue and Oiled Wildlife Care Network.
Gerard Butler looking for true love

LONDON, 23 Nov—Actor Gerard Butler says he is ready to settle down and share his life with the right woman.

The 42-year-old was previously linked with actresses Cameron Diaz, Jennifer Aniston and model Sarah Carroll.

“I would love to settle down and share my life with someone. But it’ll happen when it’s going to happen,” femalefirst.co.uk quoted Butler as saying.

“When I try and plan things in my life they very rarely pan out. And it’s often when I think, ‘OK, you know what, I don’t want to be in a relationship right now for whatever reason’, that suddenly I find myself open to one and it happens,” he added.—Internet

I’m still a blushing bride’, says Rachel Weisz

WASHINGTON, 23 Nov—Rachel Weisz has refused to divulge any details about her personal life with new hubby Daniel Craig, saying that she is still a ‘blushing bride’.

She said that the subject is too ‘private’ for her to be discussed.

“I’m sorry.” Us Magazine quoted her as telling The Telegraph.

“I’m a newlywed. I’m still a blushing bride and it’s really private. I can’t tell you anything. Come back to me later.”

Just one year ago, Weisz, 41, had parted ways with her partner of nine years, Black Swan director Darren Aronofsky.

Shortly after, she began dating Craig, 43, who had also broken up with his longtime fiancé Satsuki Mitchell.

Weisz and Craig fell in love while shooting for the psychological thriller Dream House and got married in June this year.

Emma Watson can ‘relate’ to Marilyn Monroe’s style

LONDON, 23 Nov—Emma Watson recently compared her life to Marilyn Monroe and said that she can ‘definitely relate’ to whatever the tragic screen star went through.

Watson, who plays wardrope assistant Lucy in My Week with Marilyn, revealed that she ‘feels’ a lot for Monroe, who died of barbiturates overdose at the age of 36.

“I certainly feel a lot for her and for what she went through,” the Mirror quoted her as saying.

“I think she was just trying to find her feet in the midst of this kind of crazy circus that went on around her, and trying to find some sort of balance and some sort of normality in her life, and I can definitely relate to that,” she added.—Internet

Pippa Middleton chased by paparazzi in ‘Diana-esque’ style

LONDON, 23 Nov—Kate Middleton’s sister Pippa Middleton is being chased by photographers after her break-up from Alex Loudon.

“The paparazzi pursuit of the Duchess of Cambridge’s has been dubbed as ‘Diana-esque’.

Royal aides are concerned about the safety of the Duchess’ younger sibling after learning that they pursued her on motorbikes and in cars.

‘It is getting out of control. Some of these paparazzi have been literally chasing her down the street,’ the Daily Express quoted an insider as saying.

Woman tried to sell house she didn’t own

Police in St Paul, Minn, say a woman tried to sell a house at a low price but it turns out she doesn’t own it.

The St Paul Pioneer Press reported Friday police got a tip 1 Nov a woman was portraying herself as the owner and there was a hand-written sign at the home saying it was for sale and a buyer could get it “cheap” at a 50 percent discount for a cash-only sale.

Police spokesman Howie Padilla said the woman, who wasn’t identified, had the price as low as $35,000.

But city officials say Ramsey County owns the house, the newspaper said. Ramsey County property records show the most recent sale of the house was in 2007 for $120,000. It was listed as a short sale, auction or foreclosure, and a notice posted on the door Friday said it constituted nuisance conditions and was subject to demolition.

Small win in lottery has big payoff

A Georgia man who won $3 with one lottery ticket went on to win $250,000 with one of the three additional tickets he purchased.

Andrew Hunter, 24, of Dawsonville told The Atlanta Journal-Constitution he had actually thrown the first Mega Millions ticket away. He fished it out of a trash can when he learned he had won on a small scale by matching one ball and the Mega Ball.

One of his new tickets gave him a big payout in Tuesday’s drawing.

“I never bought that ticket if I hadn’t pulled the other ticket out of the trash,” he said. “I don’t think it’s really hit me yet.”

Hunter, who works at a Taco Mac, said he plans to invest most of the $250,000.

Cuban man sets fifth Guinness record

A Cuban man has set a new Guinness record, his fifth overall, by rolling an 81.8-metre-long cigar, the longest in the planet, Prensa Latina news agency reported.

Jose Castelar Cairo, who works as a cigar roller, achieved his feat in May during the 31th International Tourism Fair in Cuba, according to Opciones magazine.

He will get his Guinness certificate at a ceremony on 24 Nov.

Castelar Cairo had also set Guinness records in 2001, 2003, 2005 and 2008 for similar feats.

He made the record-breaking cigar using aromatic leaves donated by tobacco grower Hector Luis Prieto, from Pinar del Rio Province that boast of one of the world’s best tobacco.

“They make me very happy because I achieved all of them for my country, as I consider that the Guinness record for the longest cigar worldwide must always belong to Cuba, the land with the best premium cigars in the planet,” Castelar Cairo said.
Ajax closes in on qualifying with draw at Lyon

LYON, 23 Nov—Ajax is on the verge of qualifying for the last 16 of the Champions League after grinding out a 0-0 draw at Lyon on Tuesday, while the French club’s hopes are all but over after failing to take its chances. Ajax goalkeeper Kenneth Vermeer made a stunning one-handed save to deny substitute Alexandre Lacazette in the last minute, but Ajax had the better chances until Lyon rallied in a frantic last 10 minutes.

“I am proud of my players. Lyon have qualified for the next stage on a number of occasions so getting a draw was a good achievement,” Ajax coach Frank de Boer said. “This is the level I want us to play at all the time.”

De Boer had special praise for defender Jan Vertonghen and said Vermeer “kept us in the game late on.”

Bayern, Inter, Benfica qualify in Champions League

LONDON, 23 Nov—Bayern Munich, Inter Milan and Benfica earned places in the knockout phase of the Champions League on Tuesday, while the hopes of the two Manchester clubs were left hanging. Franck Ribery scored twice and Bayern Munich beat Villarreal 3-1 to grab the top spot in Group A with one round remaining.

Inter, the 2010 champion, qualified for the last 16 before its match at Trabzonspor, courtesy of Lille’s earlier 2-0 win at CSKA Moscow in Group B. The Italians secured first place, however, by drawing 1-1 in Turkey.

Benfica ensured a top-two finish in Group C by drawing 2-2 at three-time winner Manchester United, which now needs at least a point at Basel to qualify.和

BASSEL, 23 Nov—FC Basel kept its Champions League hopes alive on Tuesday after holding out for a 3-2 victory over Otelul Galati after squaring a three-goal lead. Basel raced into a 3-0 lead by halftime after Fabian Frei opened the scoring in the 10th minute. Alex Frei added the second and Marco Streller completed the scoring for the Swiss side in the 37th. Otelul’s players showed more determination in the second half and their efforts paid off in the 75th minute when Gabriel Giurgiu fired home and Liviu Antal found the net just six minutes later.

Duval goes where he’s never been to find game

MELBOURNE, 23 Nov—The text message from David Duval arrived just as the Americans began to seize control for good in the Presidents Cup. The last time it was held at Royal Melbourne, he was the top qualifier for the US team.

On this day, Duval was headed home from a place he never wanted to be. “Just have to sack up sometimes,” he wrote. “It can be bumpy climbing to the top.” At least he was willing to start at the bottom. For the former No. 1 player in the world, whose 14 wins include the British Open, that meant going to the second stage of Q-School. Duval closed with a 70 and was the runner-up at Bear Creek Golf Club in Murrieta, Calif., easily advancing to the final stage next week.

What made this so compelling was Duval’s brutal honesty only a month earlier. He was on the practice range at the McGladrey Classic, barely inside the top 150 on the PGA Tour money list and not willing to think about the consequences. Duval already had used his two exemptions from the career money list.

Johnson calls for improved home form

LONDON, 23 Nov—Glen Johnson says Liverpool must replicate their away form at Anfield if they are to finish in the top four this season.

England full-back Johnson was still basking in the sensational solo goal which helped sink former club Chelsea at Stamford Bridge on Sunday and move the Reds within striking distance of a Champions League spot.

The 2-1 win put Liverpool level on 22 points with their opponents as well as Arsenal as they most fiercely contested battle to ever qualify for Europe’s premier club competition.

Throw third-placed Tottenham Hotspur and fourth-placed Newcastle United into the equation as well and there is little margin for error for any of the sides currently hanging onto the coat-tails of Manchester City and Manchester United.

Liverpool, who have failed to qualify for the Champions League for the past two seasons, are certainly doing the business on their travels, having now won five successive matches away from home in all competitions.

Barcelona assistant Vilanova has gland surgery

BARCELONA, 23 Nov—Barcelona assistant coach Tito Vilanova is recovering from surgery on a salivary gland in his mouth, according to the Catalans. The 44-year-old assistant coach of Pep Guardiola had surgery on Tuesday.

Barcelona said the operation went “satisfactorily and as planned” at the Vall d’Hebron hospital. Pep Guardiola’s closest aide will need three to four weeks to recover. Guardiola revealed he had known about the operation several days earlier.

David Moyes believes Leighton Baines can become an England regular LONDON, 23 Nov—David Moyes has hailed Everton defender Leighton Baines and believes he is good enough to be an England regular.

Baines capped a fine week by netting the winner from the penalty spot late on against Wolverhampton Wanderers on Saturday just days after playing for the Three Lions against Sweden at Wembley.

The 27-year-old full-back has now converted his last seven penalties in the league, highlighting his importance for the Toffees at both ends of the pitch.

US stock futures extend losses after weak China flash PMI

SINGAPORE, 23 Nov—US S&P stock futures extended losses to more than 1 percent early on Wednesday after a key gauge of Chinese manufacturing activity slumped to its weakest level in nearly three years. By 0237 GMT, futures were down 1.2 percent, extending earlier losses made after a downward revision of US growth data raised fresh concerns about the faltering global economy.

Chinese factories saw their weakest activity in 32 months in November, a preliminary survey showed, revising worries that China may be skidding toward an economic hard landing and compounding global recession fears. The HSBC flash manufacturing purchasing managers' index (PMI), the earliest indicator of China's industrial activity, slumped in November to 48, a low not seen since March 2009. The data showed the world's growth engine is not immune to economic troubles abroad, and could further unnerv financial markets already roiled by Europe's deteriorating debt crisis. November’s flash reading is a sharp three-point fall from October’s final figure of 51 and indicated Chinese factory output shrank on the month in November. A PMI reading of 50 demarcates expansion from contraction.

Dried banded snakehead fish of Kyaiklat, delicious meal for tourists banded snakehead fish are being sold at the market this season. Various kinds of dried fish produced from Kyaiklat region are more delicious than dried banded snakehead fish and Bombay duck from other regions due to applying better methods in processing dried fish.

By Hsu Hnin Le

A traveler of Delta region said, “I have eaten dried banded snakehead fish from other regions, but it cannot be compared with that of Kyaiklat in delicacy. I don’t know what is different between them. I enjoy most it is ready to eat the dried banded snakehead fish mixed with edible oil. But, it is sold at higher price. Whenever I arrive in Kyaiklat, I give first priority to buying dried banded snakehead fish. Sometimes, I give order to Yangon for purchasing the dried fish. I had sent the dried fish abroad through my friends.” At present, flow of fish into the market is larger. In consequence, the price of not only fresh fish but dried fish falls slightly. It was reported that dried fish is exported via Yangon.
