NAY PYI TAW, 24 NOV—The Pyithu Hluttaw session continued for the 51st day at Pyithu Hluttaw Hall of Hluttaw Building, here, at 10:05 am today, attended by Speaker of Pyithu Hluttaw Thura U Shwe Mann and 371 Pyithu Hluttaw representatives.

Two bills were discussed and Hluttaw affairs explained.

With regard to the Vacant, Fallow and Virgin Lands Management Bill, the Hluttaw representatives continued discussions of remaining paragraphs and subparagraphs.

U Pe Than of Myebon Constituency submitted a proposal for adding subparagraph (e) under the paragraphs 10 (c and d). Deputy Minister for Agriculture and Irrigation U Khin Zaw said that it should not be prescribed consistently.

Dr Win Myint of Hline Constituency, U Thein Swe of An Constituency, U Htay Oo of Hinthada Constituency and U Thein Nyunt of Thingangyun Constituency participated in the discussions.

The Hluttaw decided that as there were many supporters for the proposal of U Pe Than, the proposal was approved; and although the submission of U Pe Than was suitable, it should not be inserted into the law; and when the bylaws emerge, the ministry concerned is to place emphasis the submission to be inserted into the bylaws.

As U Than Myint of Salingyi Constituency submitted a proposal to cancel the paragraph 10 (c and d) of the approval of the Amyotha Hluttaw, U Soe Yi of Dimawhso Constituency, U Kyaw Naing Htay of Indaw Constituency and U Aung Mya Than of Nyaungdon Constituency participated in the discussions.

The Hluttaw decided that as the discussion of the Vacant, Fallow and Virgin Lands Management Bill was approved; the discussions for the bill was suspended for holding further discussions; the Agriculture, Livestock Breeding and Fisheries Development Committee chaired by U Soe Naing of Pyapon Constituency is to lead the discussions; depending on the findings from the discussions of the respective committees and Hluttaw representatives, the plenary session of the Hluttaw will hold discussions.

With regard to the Farmland Bill, Defence Services Personnel Representative Major Kaung Htet San and U Thein Yi of Hantabin Constituency held discussions.

In his discussions, Major Kaung Htet San said that the Law Revoking the Revenue Law was promulgated as the Law No. 1 of the Pyidaungsu Hluttaw. Therefore, he said that the provisions concerning the revenue should not be included in the further laws. Section 5 of the Law Revoking the Revenue Law said that exemptions allowed in line with Section 19 of the Revenue Law shall continuously be affected as exemptions allowed in accordance with the Income Tax Law. Moreover, as the revenue is not allowed in the constitution, the revenue law would not come out any more. Thus, the original provision should be amended as exemption of income tax instead of revenue exemption in the paragraph 4 (e) to be in conformity with the current time. Moreover, it will reflect the goodwill of the bill submitter.

Daw Nan Wah Nu of Kunhing Constituency supported the discussion and U Htay Oo who submitted the bill agreed it.

The Hluttaw accepted and put the submission of Major Kaung Htet San on record and approved that the Bill (See page 8)

Equip basic education students with best learning capability

Human resources are to be nurtured so as to build a modern and developed nation. To develop human resources, emphasis is to be placed on promotion of the education standard starting from the basic education sector. In so doing, teachers are playing a key role in basic education sector.

Realizing the plan to promote education standard commenced in 1998. During the 13-year period from 1998 to date, some of children are pursuing education at 10th standard and some of them dropped out of the school. In fact, teachers are to equip their pupils with physical, mental and moral strength so that they can stand tall in the social field.

Utmost efforts are being made for emergence of outstanding youths in the future. A plan on enhancement of teacher-centred and child-centred academic methods was drawn for improvement of children’s talent with the assistance of Japanese agency and UNICEF.

In cooperation with the Japanese agency, the project (1) was realized from 2004 to 2007 and the project (2) is under implementation from 2008 to December 2011. In cooperation with UNICEF, the project was implemented from 2006 to 2010, and one more project will last from 2011 to 2015. On completion, all primary schools will meet the all-round education standard.

Applying the child-centred academic method is aimed at enabling the children to have capabilities of innovation, creation, consideration and solving problems by learning basic education. To be highly-qualified children, they must be well-versed in basic education. To raise learning best capability of students, teachers are to nurture school children with best teachership characters in all sectors to be able to produce outstanding educated youths.

BEIJING, 24 NOV—The son of media mogul Rupert Murdoch has stepped down as a director of the companies that publish The Sun and The Times of London Newspaper. Two weeks ago James Murdoch faced British MPs over the phone hacking scandal at one of his newspapers.

Now it has become clear he resigned a few weeks ago from the boards of two of his UK media companies.

Regulatory records show the son of media tycoon Rupert Murdoch has stood down from News Group Newspapers, which publishes the Sun and formerly the News of the World, and Times Newspapers Limited, which publishes the Times.

Peter Slipper elected Australian new House speaker

CANBERRA, 24 NOV—Deputy Speaker and Queensland Liberal lawmaker Peter Slipper was elected the new speaker of House of Representatives following resignation of former Speaker Harry Jenkins on Thursday morning. Slipper’s election effectively gives the government led by Prime Minister Julia Gillard two more votes on the floor of the lower house, although Labour still lacks an outright majority.

Other Labour lawmakers declined to accept coalition-backed nominations for the position on Thursday morning’s parliamentary session. Jenkins told parliament earlier Thursday he had become progressively frustrated at the stricture of minority government. “My desire is to be able to participate in policy and parliamentary debate, and this would be incompatible with continuing in the role of speaker,” Jenkins said.

Jenkins was re-elected as speaker following the 2010 general election. He shocked parliament earlier on Thursday when he announced he was resigning as speaker to return to the government backbench.

UK, Turkey sign military cooperation treaty

LONDON, 24 NOV—British Secretary of State for Defence Philip Hammond and Turkish General Staff General Hulusi Akar signed a military cooperation treaty on Wednesday, officials said.

Hammond and Akar met at the Ministry of Defence in London on Wednesday as Turkish President Abdullah Gül is on a three day state visit to the United Kingdom. The treaty signed by the officials aims to enable greater cooperation between the British and Turkish militaries.

“I was delighted to meet with General Hulusi Akar today, and to sign the Military Cooperation Treaty,” Hammond said following the meeting. “Turkey is an important ally of the United Kingdom, and as NATO partners we are bound by a pledge of collective defence. This bilateral Treaty will take our defence cooperation to a new level.”

Hammond said the British government appreciates the support Turkey provides to the NATO-led International Security Assistance Force (ISAF) mission in Afghanistan, as well as its contributions to the recent NATO operation in Libya. Turkey currently has more than 1,800 troops in Afghanistan.

“Turkey’s role in promoting stability, particularly in the Middle East, is invaluable,” Hammond added. “I look forward to the enhanced cooperation with Turkey that this treaty will bring.”

The military cooperation treaty adds to the UK-Turkey Strategic Partnership Agreement which was signed by British Prime Minister David Cameron in July 2010. The agreements are designed to facilitate greater defence cooperation between the two countries across a range of military activities.

Chinese, Ghanaian defence ministers aim to strengthen military ties

ACCRA, 24 NOV—Visiting Chinese Defence Minister Liang Guanglie and his Ghanaian counterpart Li Gen Joseph Henry Smith expressed the willingness to strengthen friendly military cooperation between the two countries during their talks here Wednesday.

Defence departments and military leaders of China and Ghana have been attaching great importance to developing a relationship between the armed forces of the two countries, Liang said.

Mutual political trust and economic and trade cooperation have been deepened in recent years between the two countries, which have supported each other on international affairs, he added.

The Chinese defence minister said China would like to make more efforts together with Ghana to continue the existing friendly relations and promote cooperation on all levels and in all sectors for the benefit of the two peoples.

Liang also appreciated Ghana’s positive role in maintaining international and regional peace and security.

For his part, Smith said Ghana values its traditional friendly ties with China, which were forged by leaders of past generations and further developed by the successive leaders of the two countries.

Smith appreciated China’s selfless assistance to Ghana, saying his country would make more efforts together with China to take the existing relations to a higher level.

Liang and his delegation arrived in Accra Tuesday for a three-day goodwill visit to the West African country.
Violence against women strikes our societies to the heart. This is a brutal violation of the dignity of individuals, and an affront to their human rights. It diminishes us all. This International Day for the Elimination of Violence against Women is an opportunity to join together to end it.

This violence shows no discrimination. It may be physical, sexual, psychological or economic. It can occur during conflict or at a time of peace. It affects women of all ages, origins and social class. It takes in every culture and region across the globe.

The consequences are devastating — for individuals, communities and societies. This violence affects the health of women. It impacts on their ability to participate fully in social, economic and public life. It reinforces other forms of discrimination and deprivation. It holds societies back from inclusive and sustainable development, and it undermines efforts to reach the Millennium Development Goals.

Governments are acting to eliminate violence against women. The international community has developed conventions and policies that seek to prevent and eliminate it. Despite all of this, levels of violence remain high. This calls for greater mobilization and for sharper action.

UNESCO contributes to this struggle through in-depth research into the fundamental social, cultural and economic causes of this violence. Based on this knowledge, we work with policy-makers to define new strategies for the prevention of violence, and we support women affected by violence to empower them to find strategies of resistance. We also engage boys and men through campaigns of prevention, to alter behaviours and to involve them actively in prevention activities.

Our objective is eventually to no longer have to mark this International Day for the Elimination of Violence against Women. Violence against women impoverishes societies as a whole. We must enhance the dignity of every girl and woman and protect the human rights of every member of society. This is a foundation for a more inclusive, sustainable and peaceful 21st century. These are our commitments today.—UNIC/Yangon

First artificial windpipe graft a success

PARIS, 24 Nov—The world’s first artificial windpipe transplant has been such a success that a second operation has been carried out and a third is being planned, The Lancet reported on Thursday.

Andemariam Teklesenbet Beyene, a 36-year-old Eritrean, doing well after undergoing the ground-breaking operation in Stockholm in June, it said. Beyene, a post-graduate geology student currently living in Reykjavik, Iceland, had his trachea removed because of cancer. It was replaced in a 12-hour operation on 9 June with a synthetic “scaffold” covered with his own stem cells, or precursor cells of windpipe tissue. “The patient has been doing great for the last four months and has been able to live a normal life,” the British journal quoted Tomas Gudbjartsson, a professor at Landspitali University Hospital and University of Iceland in Reykjavik, as saying. The operation, led by Professor Paolo Macchiarini of Stockholm’s Karolinska University Hospital, entailed using 3-D imaging to scan Beyene and then building a glass model of the afflicted section of his windpipe. The glass was used to shape the artificial scaffold, which was then seeded with stem cells.—Internet

IPOs stoke San Francisco housing market

SAN FRANCISCO, 24 Nov—Adam Holm has been looking to sell his three-bedroom Victorian house in San Francisco’s Potrero Hill neighbourhood all year, but he needs one thing to happen first: gaming-company Zynga’s initial public offering.

“It seems foolish to put it on the market before when there are a thousand people down the street who are about to make a million dollars,” said Holm.

His place is within walking distance of Zynga’s headquarters, and he expects prices in the neighbourhood to rise significantly in the wake of the IPO.

Holm, now working as a carpenter after being laid off as an architect, is taking in roommates, living in the basement and fixing the place up as he awaits what he expects will be his own IPO payday.

The IPO-driven real estate strategy is suddenly a common one in San Francisco as companies including Zynga and the review service Yelp prepare for public offerings. With the rise of secondary share markets that enable some employees of pre-public companies such as Facebook and Twitter to cash out, moreover, even the promise of an IPO is helping to drive residential real estate activity.

San Francisco had already enjoyed a healthier housing market than most places.

But the competitive bidding in some city neighbourhoods recently has taken real estate professionals by surprise, with prices up more than 15 percent from last year in some areas.

China’s industrial production growth to ease moderately in 2012

BEIJING, 24 Nov—The growth rate of China’s industrial value-added output in 2012 is likely to slow from 1 to 2 percentage points from this year, due to growing uncertainties worldwide, a government official said Thursday.

“The industrial production growth rate will moderate, but the sector will still run at a steady and relatively fast pace,” said Huang Libin, an inspection and coordination official with the Ministry of Industry and Information Technology, at a press conference. He said cooling external demands due to economic turmoil in Europe and US, combined with the weakening domestic demand brought by the tightening monetary policy were the main forces driving the growth down.

He also warned that the world economy will face more uncertainties next year.—Xinhua

Facebook, HTC in smartphone deal

San Francisco, 24 Nov—Facebook has allied with Taiwan’s HTC to build a customised smartphone powered by Google’s Android mobile operating system, according to technology blog All Things Digital. The project, code named “Buffy,” is aimed at making a handset tailored for the California-based social networking platform, according to the blog, which is owned by Dow Jones, publisher of The Wall Street Journal.

The device would “deeply integrate” Facebook, which has more than 800 million members, “at the core of its being,” All Things Digital said.

A Facebook team has been working with HTC as well as trying to make deals with telecom providers for the smartphone, which it hopes to release within the next 18 months, the blog said.

A Facebook spokesman declined to comment directly on the “Buffy” project to Things Digital but said: “Our mobile strategy is simple. We think every mobile device is better if it is deeply social. We’re working across the entire mobile industry; with operators, hardware manufacturers, OS providers, and application developers to bring powerful social experiences to more people around the world,” the spokesman said. HTC already builds phones with dedicated Facebook programmes.

New climate hack e-mails released

London, 24 Nov—A new batch of climate-related e-mails and documents from Britain’s University of East Anglia was released to the Internet, university officials said. More than 5,000 e-mails and other documents from the university’s Climatic Research Unit relating to the Intergovernmental Panel on Climate Change were posted Tuesday.

School officials said it appears the e-mails contain old information related to a previous hack of the university’s computer system.

“We have had only a limited opportunity to look at this latest post of 5,000 e-mails, we have no evidence of a recent breach of our systems,” the university said in a statement.

“If genuine … these e-mails have the appearance of having been held back after the theft of data and e-mails in 2009 to be released at a time designed to cause maximum disruption to the imminent international climate talks.”

The university said the latest release appears to be a “carefully timed” attempt to reignite controversy over the science behind climate change “when that science has been vindicated by three separate independent inquiries and a number of studies.”

Environmental groups urge Ottawa to save sage grouse

Edmonton, 24 Nov—Environmental groups are pleading with the federal government to take emergency steps to save sage grouse.

They say the prairie bird could be gone from Alberta within a year unless Environment Minister Peter Kent orders a stop to further habitat destruction.

Scientists have said oil and gas development are the main reason for the bird’s decline. Surveys suggest there are only 13 male birds left in Alberta and 43 in Saskatchewan.

The Alberta government has been importing birds from Montana in an attempt to keep the species alive in the province.

Roscosmos receives signal from lost Phobos-Grunt probe

Moscow, 24 Nov—Russian Space Agency Roscosmos Wednesday has started to study information received from the Phobos-Grunt space vehicle for the first time since it was lost on 9 Nov.

According to the Roscosmos official website, a connection with the Mars probe has been re-established by the European Space Agency’s control room in Australia. Experts in the Russian and European mission controls have resumed work for a reliable connection with the probe, which also carries China’s micro-satellite Yinghuo-1.

The probe’s solar panels, experts said, are working so its batteries have been charged sufficiently to support the system.

Roscosmos said that information received could help to understand the reasons behind the probe failure but would hardly save the mission as such. Mission control will attempt to revive the space vehicle on Thursday night, said Roscosmos spokeswoman Anna Vedishcheva. On Tuesday, Roscosmos said there was almost no chance to save the space mission.

Arctic sea ice loss steepest in 1,400 years

Toronto, 24 Nov—Research suggests the current decline in Arctic sea ice is the longest and steepest in more than 1,400 years.

The study co-written by scientists at the Geologic Survey of Canada uses 69 different information sources to give the most detailed history ever of the northern oceans.

It concludes Arctic waters have lost more ice over the last 50 years than any time since 561 AD. It also finds that the current trend has lasted longer than any other decline over that period.

The report’s authors say the most probable explanation is warmer air and sea temperatures caused by greenhouse-gas-induced climate change.

ESA boosts solar phone development

Paris, 24 Nov—The European Space Agency says it has helped Ireland’s Altobridge bring solar-powered mobile phone base stations to market.

The base stations can link isolated communities via satellite, ESA said Wednesday.

“We were pleased to help with research and development because it connects rural communities that would otherwise have to wait years for phone service,” ESA satcom specialist Michele Le Saux said in a release.

“This technology makes intelligent use of satellite bandwidth and has proved that a tough business case can work even with low revenue per user.” ESA said the base stations are already being used in Asia, Africa, the Pacific Islands and Middle East.
Russia to target European missile shield if talks fail

President Dmitry Medvedev said Wednesday. Medvedev outlined a series of possible “appropriate measures” against the US interpreter missiles and radars being deployed in Europe if missile defence talks between Moscow and Washington result in failure. “If the measures listed in the statement are not sufficient, Russia will deploy in the west and the south of the country advanced offensive weapons systems, which will target the European component of the [US] missile defence network,” Medvedev said.

Suspected Al-Shabaab bomb blast in Mogadishu kills 11

MOGADISHU, 24 Nov—Eleven people were killed on Tuesday when a bomb blast rocked the capital of Somalia, local media reported on Wednesday. Several others were injured.

The attack happened in the Wadajir District of southern Mogadishu, the capital of Somalia. The Mareeg news website reported that the explosive device was placed on the road which leads to Jazir Village.

Officials confirmed that at least eleven people, all believe to be civilians, were killed in the explosion. An unknown number of other people were wounded in the attack, which Wadajir District Commissioner Ahmed Hassan Ado—who forms part of the Somali transitional federal government—blamed on the Somali rebel group al-Shabaab.

Al-Shabaab is the militant wing of the Somali Council of Islamic Courts which took over most of southern Somalia in the second half of 2006. Despite efforts from the Somali and Ethiopian governments, the group has continued its violent militancy in southern and central Somalia. Somalia has been without an effective government since Mohamed Siad Barre was overthrown two decades ago.

“This is an annual, planned routine drill. It is not directed at any specific country or target and is in keeping with relevant international laws and practices,” the China Daily quoted a Defence Ministry statement, as saying. “China’s freedom of navigation and other legal rights should not be obstructed,” it added.

The power plant would be reconnected soon and would reach its full capacity in November, according to the announcement.

In October, the AEOI announced that the nuclear power plant successfully completed the preliminary stage of its construction.

China holds missile sea drill

BEIJING, 24 Nov—China conducted its annual missile defence talks in the western Pacific, which used its anti-missile system and made a series of possible joint operations against the US anti-missile system, which is being deployed in Europe.

Russia’s President Dmitry Medvedev makes a statement in Moscow on 23 Nov, 2011. Russia will equip long-range missiles with warheads capable of foiling a US anti-missile shield in Europe and may deploy additional arms in its western and southern regions, Medvedev said on Wednesday.

“A world clothed in nuclear weapons is a world living in fear and anxiety,” Medvedev said in a television address. “It takes a brave and responsible leader to take an initiative to reduce nuclear and military stockpiles,” Medvedev said.

The officials confirmed that at least eleven people, all believe to be civilians, were killed in the explosion. An unknown number of other people were wounded in the attack, which Wadajir District Commissioner Ahmed Hassan Ado—who forms part of the Somali transitional federal government—blamed on the Somali rebel group al-Shabaab. Al-Shabaab is the militant wing of the Somali Council of Islamic Courts which took over most of southern Somalia in the second half of 2006. Despite efforts from the Somali and Ethiopian governments, the group has continued its violent militancy in southern and central Somalia. Somalia has been without an effective government since Mohamed Siad Barre was overthrown two decades ago.

Russia to target European missile shield if talks fail

President Dmitry Medvedev said Wednesday. Medvedev outlined a series of possible “appropriate measures” against the US interpreter missiles and radars being deployed in Europe if missile defence talks between Moscow and Washington result in failure. “If the measures listed in the statement are not sufficient, Russia will deploy in the west and the south of the country advanced offensive weapons systems, which will target the European component of the [US] missile defence network,” Medvedev said.

Iran to launch Bushehr N-plant in February

TEHERAN, 24 Nov—Iran has announced that its Bushehr nuclear power plant will be launched in February next year. The Atomic Energy Organization of Iran (AEOI) made the announcement Wednesday, Xinhua reported. The Bushehr plant has undergone numerous tests to eliminate occurrences of malfunction, and will be launched with its full capacity, AEOI chief Fereidoon Abbasi was quoted as saying by IRNA news agency.

In October, the AEOI announced that the nuclear power plant successfully completed the preliminary stage of its connection to the national grid and was temporarily disconnected.

The power plant would be reconnected soon and would reach its full capacity in November, according to the announcement. Iran held a ceremony in September to mark the preliminary launch of the delayed project. The construction of the plant was halted when the US imposed an embargo on Iran after the 1979 revolution. Russia signed a contract with Iran in 1998 to complete the construction. But the project was postponed several times due to technical and financial challenges.
UN, MTV launch campaign against human trafficking in Latin America

NEW YORK, 24 Nov—The United Nations Children’s Fund (UNICEF) has launched a joint campaign with the MTV network to raise awareness about human trafficking and the exploitation of youth in Latin America.

The campaign ‘MTV EXIT’, which stands for End Exploitation and Trafficking, features a documentary and a song by Calle 13, a 19-time Grammy award-winning band. The campaign also includes mass media broadcasts, online initiatives and local events and activities with young people.

“Increasingly adolescents and young people are vulnerable to being trafficked and exploited in the region. We can reduce the risks they are exposed to if we provide them with the necessary education and tools to protect themselves,” said UNICEF Regional Director for Latin America and the Caribbean, Bernt Aasen, at the launch this week. The documentary ‘Invisible Slaves’—hosted by two of Calle 13’s members, Residente and Visannte—addresses how this issue is affecting the continent and includes interviews with young people who have been affected by trafficking and exploitation.

The band is the latest to join a list of celebrities who have collaborated with MTV EXIT, including actors Angelina Jolie and Jared Leto and the bands Radiohead and Muse.

JAKARTA, 24 Nov—The Indonesian government is planning to renew a flight partnership agreement with Malaysia as an effort to improve Indonesia’s air services, a media reported here on Thursday.

US jobless claims tick up slightly

WASHINGTON, 24 Nov—The number of Americans initially applying for unemployment aid last week edged higher after declining steadily in the past two months, the US Labour Department reported Wednesday.

The Labour Department said that the advance figure for seasonally adjusted initial claims for jobless benefits was 393,000 in the week ending 19 Nov, an increase of 2,000 from the previous week’s revised figure.

Fewer than 425,000 people applying for aid is consistent with modest job growth, but the number of jobless claims will have to fall to 375,000 or below to signal a sustained drop in the unemployment rate.

However, the four-week moving average, which more closely watched claims figure, continued to dip to 394,250, the lowest level since April.

The advance figure for seasonally adjusted insured unemployment during the week ending 12 November was 3.691 million, an increase of 68,000 from one week earlier.

The US unemployment rate edged down to 9 percent from 9.1 percent in October. However, few experts believe that the job market will return to normal levels in the short term due to weaker economic growth.

Pyithu Hluttaw session continues...

Committee is to coordinate with the Joint Bill Committee for submitting it to the Pyidaungsu Hluttaw.

In his discussion, U Thein Yi said that he would like to insert paragraphs 4 (b) under 4 (g), saying that monetary affairs concerning the exceptions of tenancy, pawn, giving as charity and concerning the exceptions of tenancy, pawn, giving as charity, which was approved by the Pyithu Hluttaw and approved by Amyotha Hluttaw with amendment. Section 23 (a) of the Constitution said that the Union shall enact necessary laws to protect the rights of the peasants. The inserting the new paragraph was aimed at protecting the farmers against confiscating the farmlands by the money lenders depending on the debts.

U Tun Maung Oo of Shwepyitha Constituency supported the proposal and U Htay Tun approved the proposal as amended by the Pyithu Hluttaw. As there was no objection, the proposal was approved; and the proposal will be submitted to the Pyidaungsu Hluttaw. Next, the Hluttaw representatives participated in discussions of paragraphs and subparagraphs. U Thein Tun of Kyangoon Constituency submitted a proposal to keep amendments of the paragraphs (c), (d), (f), (iv), and (v) as approved by the Pyithu Hluttaw. As there was no objection, the proposal was approved.

U Tin Maung Oo of Shwepyitha Constituency submitted a proposal on amendment concerning the articles 36 amended by the Amyotha Hluttaw. U Htay Tun supported the submission of U Tin Maung Oo as amended.

Thus, the proposal of U Tin Maung Oo was approved.

Deputy Minister U Khin Zaw agreed submissions of four representatives.

As there was no objection that paragraph 2 (a, b, d, g, h and i), paragraph 3, and subparagraph 3(b), title of Chapter II, paragraph 4 (a), paragraph 7 (e), paragraph 11 (e), paragraph 12 (1), paragraphs 18, 19, 23, 26, 27, 30, 34 (a) and (35) shall be part of the bill in line with the amendments of the Amyotha Hluttaw, the proposal was approved.

In holding discussions on the Farmland Bill sent back by Amyotha Hluttaw with amendments, the Hluttaw decided that amendments of Amyotha Hluttaw were disagreed for one paragraph and five subparagraphs. U Saw Hla Tun of ChaukU Constituency submitted a proposal that the controversial amendments disagreed by Pyithu Hluttaw should be submitted to Pyidaungsu Hluttaw. As there was no objection, the Hluttaw approved it.

The Speaker of Pyithu Hluttaw said that the “Women and Children Protection Committee” formed on 22 August will be renamed as the “Social Development Committee”.

With regard to the change of the name of the committee, Chairman of the committee U Maung Maung Swe said that although the committee is responsible for protecting the women and children, duties and functions of the committee comprise protection for youths, the aged and the disabled including women and children.

That was why the title of committee was renamed as the “Social Development Committee”.

As all representatives agreed the change of title of the committee, the Hluttaw decided to rename the committee in line with the new title.

The Pyithu Hluttaw Speaker said that the Hluttaw carried out tasks more successfully than expected within three months; that second regular session started on 22 August whereas the Hluttaw speaker gave representatives necessary instructions that representatives are to be courageous and harmonious in dealing with present affairs, taking lessons of the past; that Hluttaw representatives are to apply themselves to be qualified so as to make the Hluttaw more workable in view of interest of the nation and the people without holding sins; party, ideology, region, race and religion attachments; that it is needed to notice that the Hluttaw bears witness to democracy and essence of democracy, sharing three powers; that it is needed to submit questions, proposals and bills beneficial to the people, proposals and bills that shield interests of the nation and the people and guarantee fundamental rights, democracy and human rights.

It is needed to scrutinize whether or not rules, regulations, disciplines, orders and notifications, procedures and manuals are adhered to laws of the Hluttaw, issued by respective bodies in which powers were vested to issue laws enacted by the Hluttaw. Organizations and the entire people are to stick to them through checks and balances system. Two main duties of Hluttaw are legislation, and checks and balances. The second paragraph 13 of the article 36 of the Hluttaw are to take responsibility of the bills were promulgated, two bills left to be promulgated, and four bills are underway. Among ten bills submitted to Amyotha Hluttaw, five bills were promulgated, one bill left to be promulgated and four bills are underway. Therefore, there are 23 bills: 12 bills promulgated, 3 left to be promulgated and eight underway. As some questions were unsuitable to submit, disagreeable to law and harmful to national solidarity, they were answered indirectly. Most questions, proposals and laws were found beneficial to the country and the people and laws.

Committees and commissions are leading role in taking measures of the Hluttaw. Learning existing laws for respective sectors, it is needed to cooperate with the Union government and the Union level organizations to revaoke and issue new laws. Legislative processes are to be automated after learning whether or not a law can benefit public interest and national interest, conform to the constitutional law, and be agreeable to practical field, international laws, conventions and agreements followed by the country.

The committees and commissions related to Hluttaw are organized in accordance with the Section 115, and 118, and it should be realized that they are set up in the interests of the State and the people. However, it is regret to hear that some have negative attitude to the committees and commissions saying that it is unnecessary to set up the committees and commissions and they are set up to control the organization. The government, the legislature and the executive sectors share the Sovereign power and maintain checks and balances among them and they are obliged to work for the State and the people. However, those committees and commissions are to be organized in view of interest of the country and the people.

In conclusion, Hluttaw representatives are obliged to respect and follow the State Constitution if they wish to work in the interests of the State and the people as they are representatives of the people. The constitution says that the representatives are to be organized in view of interest of the country and the people. However, those committees and commissions are to be organized in view of interest of the country and the people.

Drug dealers family jailed for 82 years
LONDON, 24 Nov—A drug dealers’ family and their associates who used to sell heroin and crack cocaine, a form of cocaine which can be smoked, on the streets of Britain’s Liverpool City has been jailed for a total of 82 years.

Thirteen people involved in running a 24-hour drugs cash and carry service have been jailed after a complex police operation under which the police put the family under surveillance and deployed undercover officers before eventually swooping on the Whitney family clan and their cohorts, the Daily Mail reported.

As the net closed on the drug dealers, officers found an SA80 assault rifle and around 1,200 rounds of ammunition as well as a large quantity of Class A substances which includes heroin, cocaine and many other kinds of drugs.

Undercover officials from Merseyside Police posed as addicts to make ‘test purchases’ to gain necessary evidence while other undercover officers filmed the footage.

The Whitneys used unregistered, pre-paid mobile telephones and deployed untraceable vehicles to meet with addicts, often in a telephone kiosk on a street corner.

When police arrested grandmother Carol Whitney, who was the matriarch and banker, officers found more than 500 wraps of heroin hanging from a bush in her garden.

Judge John Roberts, sitting at Liverpool Crown Court, jailed them all for their role in the conspiracy.—Internet

New Zealand pilot miraculously escapes death after crash
LONDON, 24 Nov—A pilot in New Zealand literally cheated death when his helicopter suddenly crashed while he was putting up a seven-storey Christmas tree, with the incident being captured live on TV.

Television viewers in New Zealand watched in horror as the blades of Greg Gribble’s helicopter became tangled in cables attached to scaffolding on Auckland’s waterfront, the Daily Mail reported.

The footage showed the rear of the helicopter snapping, flinging Gribble out of its front door, then slamming him back through its side door. The aircraft then dropped 25ft to the ground. Thousands watched the drama unfold on TV in New Zealand.

The accident left air-safety campaigners aghast, as many wondered why the first place a helicopter was allowed to perform such an intricate operation in a built-up area.

An investigation has been launched by the Civil Aviation Authority (CAA).

Beer, wine similarly reduce risk of heart disease
WASHINGTON, 24 Nov—Italian researchers have found a very similar inverse association between the consumption of beer and the consumption of wine in relation to cardio-vascular outcomes.

Research by Costanzo S, Di Castelnuovo de Gaetano G et al has sought to separate the effects of wine, beer or spirit drinking in relation to fatal and non-fatal cardiovascular events.

They carried out an updated meta-analysis on the relationship between wine, beer or spirit consumption and cardiovascular outcomes, using state-of-the-art statistical techniques.

Results from 16 studies confirmed a J-shaped relationship between wine intake and reduced vascular risk, with maximal protection — an average 31 percent was observed at 21 g/day of alcohol.

Similarly, from 13 studies a J-shaped relationship was apparent for beer with maximal protection of 42 percent at 43 g/day of alcohol.

From 12 studies reporting separate data on wine or beer consumption, two closely overlapping dose–response curves were obtained suggesting maximal protection of 33 percent at 25 g/day of alcohol approximately (2 drinks/day by US standards and 3 units for the UK) for vascular diseases.—Internet

Popular Austrian ski resorts report worrying lack of the white stuff as official start of season rapidly approaches

VIENNA, 24 Nov—Ski resorts in Austria are set to lose a fortune as a baffling rise in temperatures has left resorts in the Tirol and Salzburg without any snow. Temperature snow cannons can’t make snow fast enough before it’s melted by the sun. Kuhtai ski resort spokesman Wilhelm Mareiler said: “This year it is a very out of the ordinary situation. There has been absolutely no snow. We can’t make snow either as it is not cold enough. We will have to delay opening for a week or two and hope it will be windy and cold. But there will still be looking with envy across the Alps at France, where most resorts are already receiving good dustings.

Underweight patients more likely to die than mildly obese patients

BEIJING, 24 Nov—Underweight patients may have more possibilities of mortality within 30 days of general and vascular surgery compared with mildly obese patients, according to a research published online in Archives of Surgery on Tuesday. Investigators from the US National Surgical Quality Improvement Programme conducted the research for the years 2005 and 2006, and assessed the contribution of BMI (Body Mass Index) to 189,533 postsurgeries morbidity and mortality by obesity classes.

They found that compared with the middle BMI quintile group, patients with BMI value below 23.1, had greater chances for death. For the highest BMI quintile group, higher mortality rate was also observed.

Michelle Williams’ bizarre time saving trick

WASHINGTON, 24 Nov—Michelle Williams has revealed that she saves time from her hectic schedule by eating breakfast in a shower.

The Brokeback Mountain star came up with the unique timesaving trick after struggling to balance her acting schedule with her everyday duties as a single mum to young daughter Matilda.

“I’m so embarrassing. I like to save time by eating breakfast in the shower. It all started innocently with a cup of coffee,” Contactmusic quoted her as saying.

“And then before I knew it, I was in there with a smoothie. I always run 10 minutes late wherever I go and so I figured, while I was trying to eat breakfast (one day), I was like, ‘Well, I still really need to shower, maybe I can sort of do them at the same time?’”

The actress revealed that her bizarre habit has an added benefit, as she did not get cold from drinking smoothies anymore. —Internet

Florida city plans condo with car elevator

Sunny Isles Beach, Fla, has approved plans to build a condominium complex with elevators that take residents, and their cars, right to their doors. The $560 million building, dubbed Porsche Design Tower, will likely be the first condominium complex with elevators that take residents right to their doors while they are still in their cars, The Miami Herald reported.

“You don’t have to leave your car until you are in front of your apartment,” said Jurgen Gessler, chief executive officer of Porsche Design Group, which is partnering with local developer Gil Dekor to create the structure.

After a resident pulls up and turns off the engine, a robotic arm will pull the car on a plank into the elevator and then parks it on the desired floor. The elevators, three in total, will be glass, giving residents views of the city skyline.

Woman hits bus driver with banana, fined

A Swedish woman was given a fine for throwing a half-eaten banana at a bus driver who says she almost hit her. The 46-year-old woman from Skane, whose name was not reported, said bus driver Zekerija Velagic stopped just inches away from hitting her and her daughter, whom she was teaching how to drive, The Local reported.

The woman said she then got onto the bus to give Velagic a talking to when the banana slipped out of her hand, hitting the driver.

“I’ve been dizzy since March, and my hands shake. Since my muscles are weak I drop things easily. I was holding the banana whilst standing there gesturing, and suddenly I threw it away. But it hit the interior of the bus,” she said.

However, Velagic had a different version of the story, The Local reported. He said when he stopped to let passengers off the bus, the woman ran on, started yelling at him and hit him with the banana.

“She hit me right in the face with the half-eaten banana. I had banana all over me, on my shirt and my eye,” Velagic said. “It felt offensive, when 30 passengers saw the whole thing,” he said, adding that he considered quitting his job after the event.

The incident wound up in Lund District Court which ruled in favor of the bus driver after a witness confirmed Velagic’s version of the story, The Local said, and the woman was given a fine for an unreported amount.

“I feel unprotected legally,” said the woman about the court’s ruling. “It’s unreasonable that a banana could cause this much damage. However, bus drivers should get their act together and not just thunder on with a 14 metre [46 foot] long bus. This could’ve ended in disaster.”

Barcelona beats AC Milan 3-2 to win Group H

MILAN, 24 Nov—Barcelona clinched top spot in Group H by beating AC Milan 3-2 on Wednesday despite twice losing the lead in a pulsating Champions League match and allowing Zlatan Ibrahimovic to score against his former club.

Xavi Hernandez ran onto Lionel Messi’s perfect pass into the area to slot in the winning goal in the 63rd minute, sealing the group win with one game remaining. Both teams had already qualified for the knockout stages, which may have contributed to their willingness to attack throughout in a game that easily could have had an even bigger scoreline.

“Barca showed today how strong it is,” Barcelona coach Pep Guardiola said. “Obviously if you come to San Siro, you’re going to have problems. I had to choose between taking out an attacker or defender.

“If this game had been more decisive than I would have focused more on defense. We’re happy with the win, with the game that we gave the fans because they’re the most important.”

Tour Report: Westwood rejoining PGA TOUR in 2012

LOS ANGELES, 24 Nov—Lee Westwood had three top-10s as a non-member of the PGA TOUR in 2011. Lee Westwood announced Wednesday that he will rejoin the PGA TOUR for the 2012 season. “I missed THE PLAYERS Championship last year when watching it on television,” said Westwood, also a member of the European Tour. “It was always a scheduling issue for me. Though the rules changed making it exempt from PGA TOUR restrictions, I had already set my schedule for later in the year in Asia. I didn’t want to break any of those commitments.”

The move will allow Westwood, who was a member of the TOUR in 2008, to play in THE PLAYERS Championship, which he missed this year due to scheduling complications, and participate in the PGA TOUR Playoffs for the FedExCup for the first time.

Arsenal advances, Chelsea slumps in Champs League

LONDON, 24 Nov—Arsenal clinched a place in the second round of the Champions League on Wednesday night with a 2-1 win over Borussia Dortmund, but the Gunners could find themselves the only English club in the knockout stage.

A day after Manchester United and Manchester City both missed the chance to advance, Chelsea conceded a last-minute goal and lost 2-1 at Bayer Leverkusen. The Blues missing out on the last 16 for the first time since Roman Abramovich bought the club in 2003.

Leverkusen advanced alongside Arsenal (3-0-2), which won 2-1 against visiting Borussia Dortmund (1-3-3) on two goals by Robin van Persie. APOEL (2-0-3) tied 0-0 at Zenit St. Petersburg (2-1-2) to become the first Cypriot club to make it past the group stage.

Olympiakos downs Marseille 1-0 in Champions League

MARSEILLE, 24 Nov—Substitute Giannis Fetfatzidis kept alive Olympiakos’ chances of qualifying for the knockout stage of the Champions League, firing a ball-volley into the bottom corner Wednesday to give the Greek club a 1-0 win over Marseille.

Spanish midfielder Francisco Yeste sent a ball over the top for Fetfatzidis, whose shot from a tight angle beat Marseille goalkeeper Steve Mandanda in the 82nd minute. TV replays showed the Greek midfielder looked to be offside.

Arsenal beat Borussia Dortmund 2-1 to top Group F with 11 points and secure a spot in the knockout phase. Marseille remained second despite the loss, one point clear of Olympiakos. Olympiakos hosts Arsenal on 6 Dec while Marseille visits Dortmund.

“We’ve missed an opportunity tonight to qualify for the knockout stage. I’m very disappointed,” Marseille coach Didier Deschamps said. “Even a draw would have been enough tonight.”

Arsenal would all finish on seven points and the scores will determine who advances. There is no doubt about the prowess of Van Persie who took his scoring record this year to 38 goals in 41 matches for Arsenal, with 17 goals in 18 appearances this season.

Leverkusen snatches late 2-1 win over Chelsea

LEYVERKUSEN, 24 Nov—Manuel Friedrich sent Bayer Leverkusen into the knockout round of the Champions League with an injury-time header Wednesday that secured a come-from-behind 2-1 win over Chelsea and left the London club in real danger of missing out on the next stage.

Friedrich—a defender—managed to beat Alex to the ball and score with a header from a corner that went in off the underside of the crossbar in the 91st minute.

“It was a game of character,” Leverkusen coach Robin Dutt said. “We had to take a chance. Of course it’s lucky when it works out.”

The result piles even more pressure on Chelsea manager Andre Villas-Boas, whose team has lost three of the last four games in the Premier League and must now beat Valencia at home in its final group match to guarantee a spot in the knockout round.

Goal-machine Van Persie sends Arsenal through

LONDON, 24 Nov—Robin van Persie continued his golden scoring form with both goals in Arsenal’s 2-1 win over Borussia Dortmund on Wednesday to put his side in the Champions League knockout rounds for the 12th successive season.

The victory secured first place for Arsenal in Group F, and although Borussia trooped off at the end thinking they were eliminated, Olympiakos’ surprise 1-0 win at Marseille handed the German champions the slimmathematical chance of surviving.

Arsenal, who have 11 points, will finish top no matter what happens in their final match at Olympiakos on 6 Dec, but Marseille (seven points), Olympiakos (six) and Dortmund (four) can still qualify. If Arsenal and Olympiakos draw, Dortmund beat Marseille, the trio behind

A soccer win after 30 straight losses

ARU, 24 Nov—American Samoa’s players raised their arms and fell to the ground, as if they had won a major championship. It was only a 2-1 victory over Tonga in the start of Oceania World Cup qualifying Tuesday night, but for soccer’s worst national team it was a triumph like no other.

Led by former US U-20 coach Thomas Rongen, American Samoa won its first international soccer match after 30 consecutive losses over 17 years. American Samoa is a US protectorate in the South Pacific with a population of about 55,000.

“This is going to be part of soccer history, like the 31-0 against Australia was part of history,” Rongen said.
