Pyidaungsu Hluttaw session continues for 25th day

One question replied, one bill approved, one bill discussed

NAY PYI TAW, 23 March—The Pyidaungsu Hluttaw session continued for the 25th day at Pyidaungsu Hluttaw Hall of Hluttaw Complex, here, this morning, attended by Speaker of Pyidaungsu Hluttaw U Khin Aung Myint, Speaker of Pyithu Hluttaw U Shwe Mann and 508 Pyidaungsu Hluttaw representatives.

The Hluttaw session replied to one question, approved one bill and discussed one bill.

With regard to the question that as International Tribunal for the Law of the Sea delivered the final verdicts on territorial waters of Myanmar and Bangladesh on 14 March 2012 after hearing arguments of both sides, the situation whether the A/3 natural gas deposits found by Myanmar are clear from the territorial sea boundary or not and conditions of verdicts on the sea area to the Myanmar people are to clarify through this Hluttaw raised by U Lun Thi of Kungyangon Constituency, Attorney-General of the Union Dr Tun Shin replied that the case of territorial sea boundary between Bangladesh and Myanmar will be presented by dividing into three parts—(1) discussions (2) judgment at ITLOS and (3) generals.

With respect to the discussions, Myanmar territorial waters are sharing border with Bangladesh. Both countries had talks on designating sea boundary, continental shelf and exclusive economic zones from 1974 to 1986. Both sides did not reach agreement on common ground. The talks were ended for 21 years since 1986 as there was no any progress. In October 2008, Bangladesh called for stopping exploratory drilling works at AD-7 block as drilling ship was in Bangladesh’s waters.

In order to avoid the tensions between two countries, for designation of sea boundary, expert-level discussions were held for six times during the period from 29-3-2008 to 18-3-2010. During the talks, Bangladesh informed Myanmar that dispute was to be resolved by forming nonentity the panel of judges. In so doing, choosing of judges from both sides did not reach agreement, but both agreed to settle the dispute in line with the legal means. Choosing that way is because Myanmar has chosen the way to resolve the dispute by legal means. Choosing that way is because of being a member country of convention and resolving the dispute in line with the charter.

Myanmar formed Special work leading committee in which Union Minister for Foreign Affairs as Chairman to protect Myanmar’s interest in a legal bound to the full, to own territorial waters which Myanmar deserved and not to lose Myanmar’s waters.

Under the supervision of it, legal experts group and technical experts group were formed and assigned duties. These groups had made preparation in all aspects.

To resolve the dispute at ITLOS, Myanmar sent Union Attorney-General Dr Tun Shin and Deputy representative Deputy Director-General Daw Hla Myo Nwe of Ministry of Foreign Affairs and Deputy Director-General U Kyaw Hsan of Union Attorney-General Office as its representatives.

Myanmar hired following experts to resolve the dispute.

- Lead counsel Mr Alain Pellet, Professor, University of Paris Ouest, Nanterre La Defense, France, Member and former Chairman of the International Law Commission, Associate Member of the Institut de droit international,
- Sir Michael Wood, K.C.M.G., Member of the English Bar, United Kingdom, Member of the International Law Commission,
- Mr Mathias Forteau, Professor, University of Paris Ouest, Nanterre La Defense, France,

Towards higher rice production

A projected rise in temperatures because of climate change can thwart rice production. A decline in rice production means that more people will slip into poverty and hunger. It is learnt that around three billion people eat rice every day, and more than 60 per cent of the world’s one billion people who live in Asia depend on rice as their staple.

If we cannot change our rice production methods or develop new rice strains that can withstand higher temperatures, there will be a loss in rice production over the next few decades as days and nights get hotter. And this will get increasingly worse as temperatures rise further towards the middle of the century.

Taking such adverse effects into account, the country has embarked on a series of reforms in agricultural sector in order to ensure food security for its growing population and to keep pace with other rice-growing countries in terms of rice production.

President U Thein Sein himself made a field trip to Ahlyinlo Village, Pyinmana Township and Aungchanta Village, Zabuthiri Township in Nay Pyi Taw Council Area the other day and assisted in boosting the production of Paletwe special high-yield hybrid paddy, calling on farmers to switch from the attitude of managing farm in conventional ways to that of taking examples of successful stories from countries with advanced techniques.

Being an agro-based country, Myanmar is pressing ahead with its strategy for boosting the rice production. At such a time it has become apparent that using quality rice strains is good and applying advanced agricultural methods will be even better.

French gunman Mohammed Merah shot dead in police raid

Toulouse, 22 March—Mohammed Merah, the 23-year-old French gunman who confessed to killing seven people in the city of Toulouse in southwest France, is dead after being shot in the head by a police sniper during a final dramatic shootout with French police. It was the culmination of a 31-hour standoff with hundreds of French anti-terror police who had surrounded the building where Merah had barricaded himself.

French Interior Minister Claude Gueant told reporters Thursday that Merah had ceased communicating with negotiators around midnight, after discussing a possible surrender, giving rise to speculation he might have committed suicide. “But when heavily armed military police entered the apartment through the door and several windows about 10:30 a.m., Gueant said, Merah burst out of the bathroom, blasting away with several weapons,” the Washington Post’s Edward Cody reported. Gueant said March had fired at police before jumping out of the window where “he was found dead on the ground below.”

The Interior Minister would not answer whether Merah had died in the fall or was killed by police, though France 24 commentators noted that the jump from the first-floor window was unlikely to have killed him. French prosecutors later clarified in a news conference Thursday that Merah was shot in the head by a police sniper after he tried to flee.

French prosecutor Francois Molins also confirmed Thursday that they had found videos in Merah’s apartment, apparently of his perpetrating the killings. A France 24 news editor, Ebba Kallondo, said March had claimed in a phone call this week with her that he had filmed all of the shootings.

Baghdad, 22 March—An al-Qaeda militant group claiming responsibility Wednesday for a rash of deadly attacks across Iraq the day before in which as many as 45 people were killed.

In a new coordinated wave, the lions of Samus in Baghdad and other [Islamic State of Iraq] states simultaneously carried out cities strikes against the security plan announced by the government of the fools in the Green Zone in preparation for the meeting of the Arab tyrants in Baghdad,” the statement said.

Xinhua said the statement’s authenticity could not be verified.

British intelligence agency MI5 warns of attacks outside London during Olympics

London, 22 March—British intelligence agency MI5 has warned the cabinet in a brief meeting that terrorists could target Olympic venues outside London in a plan to attack spectators and athletes at this summer’s London Olympic games.

The head of MI5 took the rare step of warning the whole cabinet on the terrorism threat to the United Kingdom in the run up to the Olympics.

Theresa May, Home Secretary also updated colleagues on legislative efforts to address the threat from terrorism.

Senior security officials in the country are worried that other sites around the country could also become targets of the terrorists during the games.

Olympic and Paralympic rowing events will take place at Eton Dorney, 25 miles west of the capital, road cycling will be held at Brands Hatch racing circuit in Kent, while sailing events will be based in Weymouth.

Other venues include stadiums in Newcastle, Coventry, Cardiff, and Manchester, The Telegraph reports.

During a 40-minute meeting in Parliament yesterday, the MI5 director-general, Jonathan Evans, briefed Cabinet ministers on the threats facing the country in the period leading up to the Games.

It is thought to be the first time that Evans has addressed a full meeting of the Prime Minister senior team.

However, Downing Street played down the meeting, describing Evans’ presentation as a ‘routine’ update.

Abbas blames Israel for peace standoff

Ramallah, 22 March—Israeli settlement policy and refusal to freeze construction are responsible for an impasse in Middle East talks, Palestinian President Mahmoud Abbas said. “Israeli intransigence and refusal to accept the principle of a two-state solution and its demand to freeze settlement activities have foiled international efforts to salvage the peace process,” The Jerusalem Post quoted the Palestinian leader telling Western diplomats in Ramallah Tuesday.

Palestinian negotiator Saeb Erekat denied media reports suggesting the United States was pressuring Abbas to resume peace talks with Israel. His comments came a day after US President Barack Obama spoke with Abbas about resuming the process and reaffirmed US commitments to Middle East peace, the English language daily said.

An unnamed aide to the Palestinian president told the newspaper that Abbas would be willing to resume talks if Israel meets all of the Palestinian demands, which include a freeze on all construction in West Bank settlements and East Jerusalem and recognition of the pre-1967 borders, the paper said.

Russia to let NATO use airport as hub

Moscow, 22 March—Russia plans to allow NATO to use a Volga region airport for transporting soldiers and military cargo to and from Afghanistan, officials say.

The plan to base the hub at the airport in Ulyanovsk, the birthplace of Russian revolutionary Vladimir Lenin, has drawn criticism from opponents, who say it would threaten Russia’s national security, the RIA Novosti news agency reported.

The plan to use the base comes as NATO prepares to pull out of Afghanistan. Russian Foreign Minister Sergey Lavrov told lawmakers last week, “We are helping the coalition primarily out of our own national interest.” He called the plan “a means to assist those who are eradicating the threats of terrorism and drug trafficking in Afghanistan.”

But the Communist Party called the plan a “threat” to Russia’s “national security.” “The Communist Party decisively condemns the intention to ensure a permanent foreign military presence in the heart of Russia and demands that the Russian leadership stop the implementation of this idea,” a party statement said.

“For the first time in the history of the Russian Empire, the USSR, and the Russian Federation, a foreign military base would appear on our soil as a militant bloc that is threatening the majority of our population view as hostile.”

RIANovosti said analysis dismissed concerns about the plan as a product of Cold War- era rhetoric and say the hub would benefit both Russia and NATO.

Colombia’s FARC to release 10 kidnapped officers

Booita, 22 March—The rebels of the Revolutionary Armed Forces of Colombia (FARC) would release on 10 Monday army and police officers kidnapped over a decade ago, former Senator Piedad Cordoba said on Wednesday.

With great joy and satisfaction, we inform you that on Monday the FARC will release the 10 officers who remain under their control,” said Cordoba, who was mediating the releases.

Colombian government officials have met with representatives from the International Committee of the Red Cross and others involved to discuss details of the impending releases.

Last month, the FARC announced its decision to release the officers in response to a request from an advocacy group led by Cordoba. Yet the process reached a deadlock in recent days when a FARC message conditioned the release on the government’s authorization for activists to visit the prisons where former rebels were held.

The matter was resolved on Wednesday when Cordoba said she was confident to get that permission after the releases.

On Bangladesh side, Minister for Foreign Affairs Ms Dipu Moni served as representative and Mr Md Khurshed Alam, Rear Admiral (Retd), Additional secretary, Ministry of Foreign Affairs as deputy representative. Bangladesh also hired international legal experts and hydrographers. As a legal process, Bangladesh submitted memorial and reply and Myanmar, counter-memorial and rejoinder during the ITLOS-designated period.

Experts from both countries filed their petitions along with evidences, codes at the Court from 8-9-2011 to 24-9-2011. Bangladesh’s major claims and ITLOS’s resolution are that there were contracts for sea boundary between in 1974 and in 2008; ITLOS rejects Bangladesh’s claim; ITLOS designated 12 miles with respect to Bangladesh’s claims for 12 miles for Saint Martin’s Island and exclusive economic zone and continental shelf; ITLOS designated 12 miles with respect to Bangladesh’s claims for 12 miles for Saint Martin’s Island and exclusive economic zone and continental shelf; ITLOS rejected Angle Bi-sector method. ITLOS also rejected claim for extension of continental shelf more than 200 miles as Myanmar land has no natural prolongation to the Bay of Bengal; and ITLOS rejected legal evidences, the 1974 meeting records all agreed by not only naval officers but also fishermen as agreement, which were submitted by Bangladesh.

In Bangladesh’s claiming maritime boundary lines, it demanded the line stretching seven points as included in the agreed minutes of the 2nd Myanmar-Bangladesh Maritime Boundary Demarcation Meeting in 1974. The line is from Point No.1 designated as Myanmar-East Pakistan (Bangladesh) regular Nuf River course boundary designated in 1966 stretching the middle points between Bangladesh’s Saint Martin Island and Myanmar coasts to Point No.7 between the 12th nautical mile arc to the southermost of Saint Martin Island and the 12th nautical mile arc from Myanmar’s nearest coast.

In claiming continental shelf boundary lines, Bangladesh demanded with angle bisector method. The 215th line obtained from bisectoring Haribhanga River middle point between India and Bangladesh and Nuf River middle point between Myanmar and the end point was up to Point No.7 which is the end point of maritime boundary demanded by Bangladesh. That 215th line was changed into North Latitude 17° 25' 49.0’. The line was marked along the 200 nautical mile coast of Myanmar and the end point was up to Point No.16 in Andaman Sea as agreed by Myanmar-India agreement. Bangladesh claimed up to more than 200 nautical miles of continental shelf boundary line.

After maritime boundary lines had been fixed, the bilateral area ratio was analyzed in comparison with the coastal length ratio. Bangladesh claimed that its relevant coastal area is 89931 square kilometers. The area ratio between Bangladesh and Myanmar is 1:1.25. As it is not much different from the coastal ratio 1:1.06, it is stated that the demanded line is fair and just according to the proportionality test.

According to the ITLOS decision over Myanmar claims, it is learnt that the demand to draw the exclusive economic zone and continental shelf boundary line through equidistance/relevant circumstances method was accepted. As for the demand of Myanmar to designate 6 nautical miles around Bangladesh’s Saint Martin Island with half effect, ITLOS allowed a circuit of the island. However, it allowed 12 nautical miles. It was decided that ITLOS has the authority to rule a case of continental shelf of more than 200 miles.

The maritime boundary line claimed by Myanmar starts from Point (A) designated as Myanmar-East Pakistan (Bangladesh) regular Nuf River course boundary at the Nuf River mouth between Myanmar and Bangladesh stretching middle points B, B1, B2, B3, B4 and B5 between Saint Martin Island and Myanmar coast. Point (C) six miles from the nearest point of Myanmar’s coast and Point (D) between six miles to southernmost of Saint Martin Island and 12 miles from the nearest point of Myanmar coast. Point (D) then stretches to Point (E) that meets the 12th mile arc to the southernmost of Saint Martin Island and the equidistance line drawn against Myanmar-Bangladesh mail coast. Point (E) is drawn stretching to Point (F), Point (G) and then to 231° 37” 50.9’ in order not to harm the right of the third country.

The Bangladesh coastal line was demarcated in four sections. The two inner sections – the right and left coasts of the basin – which meet face to face were not taken into consideration as it did not affect the dividing of the maritime boundary. So, the total length is 364 kilometers. The Myanmar coastal length is 740 kilometers from the Nuf River mouth to Cape Negrais near Mawtinton. The coastal ration between Bangladesh and Myanmar is 12.03. In the relevant area claimed by Myanmar, the area Bangladesh has received is 80406 square kilometers while the area Myanmar has received is 156133 square kilometers. The area ratio is 1:1.94 so it is not different from the length ratio. It was therefore decided the boundary line was not required to be adjusted.

ITLOS give its final decision on 14-3-2012. The abovementioned line was the maritime boundary line claimed by Myanmar and Bangladesh. The line was drawn starting from Point No.1 at the Nuf River mouth as included in Nuf River regular boundary agreement signed between Myanmar and East Pakistan (Now Bangladesh) in 1966. The continued line from Point No. 1 was drawn as equidistance line or method between Bangladesh’s Saint Martin Island and the Myanmar coast. It is a continued line from Point No.2 to Point No.8, which meets the 12th mile arc of Saint Martin Island and the 12th mile arc of the Myanmar coast. Point No.8 stretches to Point No.9 that touches 235° from Nuf River mouth drawn with equidistance method.

ITLOS designated the maritime boundary line between Saint Martin Island and Myanmar coast as the similar line claimed in Myanmar’s rejoinder. It was drawn with a 12 mile circulate of the island.

As for exclusive economic zone/ continental shelf boundary line, in the memo, the provisional equidistance line drawn by Myanmar was drawn out of two Bangladesh Control Points and Myanmar Control Point No.3. ITLOS drew provisional equidistance line is like the control point or fundamental points submitted by Myanmar according to equidistance method and provisional equidistance line including a fundamental point drawn by ITLOS for Myanmar. The exclusive economic zone/continental shelf boundary line designated by ITLOS was drawn Point No.9 to Point No.10 meeting the 12th mile arc and the equidistance line. Point No.9 and Point No.10 are Point E and Point F of the line demanded in Myanmar’s rejoinder.

The tribunal then chose the point No.11 to continue from point No.10. In so doing, to remedy the cut-off effect at No.11, to find equitable solution in line with ocean law, it was demarcated to over 200 nautical miles with 215° line in considering that the middle one of the three parallel coastal countries can become land-locked if its coast is concave.

The ITLOS, in demarcating the coast for the two nations, has allowed 423 kilometers for Bangladesh and 587 kilometers for Myanmar. The coastal area ratio between Bangladesh and Myanmar fixed by the ITLOS is 1:4.2. Bangladesh gets 111631 square kilometers and Myanmar gets 17832 square kilometers according to the demarcation line in the area arbitrated by the ITLOS.

Bangladesh demanded 69717 square kilometers and got 111631 square kilometers according to the demarcation line decided by the ITLOS, receiving 41914 square kilometers more. Those areas lie between Bangladesh and the northern Bangladesh.

The ITLO demarcated Myanmar’s coastal area to Cape Negrais in proportionality test as demanded by Myanmar. It did not agree the proposed demarcation of Bangladesh. The decision of the ITLOS is right and appropriate and the coastal length ratio between Bangladesh and Myanmar is 1:1.42 and the coastal ratio allowed is 1:1.54.

According to the line of demarcation fixed by the ITLOS, AD-7, AD-8 and AD-9 oilfields currently under drilling are clearly within Myanmar’s side, with increased prospects for water areas with offshore drilling potentials. Bangladesh asked Myanmar to stop test-drilling of AD-7 oilfield in 2008 and claimed that that water area was within its territory. But, according to the line of demarcation decided by the ITLOS, it is evident that that area belongs to Myanmar.

Both sides unanimously acknowledged the ITLOS’s authority for demarcation of all the three borders, namely territorial waters, continental shelf, and exclusive economic zone in its final verdict. Bangladesh demanded that ITLOS has the power to make decision for demarcation of offshore shallow sea which is over 200 nautical miles long. It was put to the vote, 21 juries voted yes and 1 no. Myanmar claimed that there was no agreement between the nations on sea territory. It was put to the vote and the result was 20 “yes” vote and 2 “no” votes. Myanmar demanded to draw the demarcation line of sea territory based on middle line principle, enveloping St. Martin Island. It is put to the vote and the result was 21 “yes” votes and one “no” votes. Myanmar also demanded to demarcate boundary of the exclusive economic zones and continental shelf with equidistance relevant circumstances. It was put to the vote, receiving 21 “yes” votes and one “no” vote.

According to the line of demarcation set by the ITLOS, all the oilfields including AD-7, AD-8 and AD-9 which are now under drilling are still within the territorial waters of Myanmar. So, it is the firm confirmation to Myanmar to continue drilling all the oilfields within its waters. Regarding the A-1 and A-3 natural gas deposit, A-1 was divided as A1-1 and A1-2 in 1997 and since that time those oilfields are clearly within Myanmar side. The decision that ITLOS has authority to demarcate for continental shelf longer than 200 miles does not mean interfering to the work of the UNC Commission on the Limits of the Continental Shelf.

Myanmar then proposed to the commission to let it have up to 350 nautical miles of its continental shelf, on 16 December, 2008. Myanmar also submitted scientific and technical evidences in its proposal in line with the provisions of the UN Convention on Law of the Sea. The commission postponed to consider Myanmar’s proposal because of Bangladesh’s objection to the proposal and lawsuit between the two nations.

The ITLOS did not agree the Bangladesh’s demand which said that Myanmar has no right to extend more than 200 nautical miles but only has the right to have 50 nautical miles from main Rakhine Coast. However, the verdict of ITLOS can help avert the deadlock. It is learnt that there are no prospects for over 200 nautical miles long continental shelf. Myanmar proposed to the UN Commission on Limits of the Continental Shelf on 25 February, 2011 for letting it have continental shelf up to over 200 nautical miles. As the commission loads of works to settle, it can consider Myanmar’s proposal only in 2036 as the earliest.

Most of the global nations are asking the UN to let them extend their continental shelf up to 350 nautical miles. It is because world’s precious resources have never been exploited in 350 nautical miles long Deep Ocean. Because of the signal cooperation prospects between the profit-making organizations who have interests in exploring in the area exceeding 200 nautical miles and the nation who can extend the area, global nations are focusing special attention on it. The verdict of ITLOS is fair and just both to the two nations. The judges made fair decisions broadly assessing from legal and technical standpoints. ITLOS has accepted the legal points of Myanmar as it is completely true.

The ITLOS neither allowed the demarcation line proposed by Bangladesh nor proposed by Myanmar. According to the essence of Convention on Law of the Sea, it needs to give Bangladesh the exit to ocean and consider the geographical concavity of Bangladesh’s coast. The ITLOS made fair judgment based on the methods proposed by Myanmar in conformity with provisions of the law of the sea, and international rules and regulations to be fair to Bangladesh. Thanks to the fair judgment of the ITLOS, the territorial waters dispute between Myanmar and Bangladesh has been settled peacefully and the amity and good neighbourliness between the two nations could be maintained.

Union Minister for Finance and Revenue U Hla Tun, Deputy Minister for Health Dr Daw Myat Myat Ohn Khin and Union Minister for Electric Power No. 2 U Khin Maung Soe responded to the discussions that are not included in the amendment of the budget concerning the Union Budget Bill 2012. Next, approvals were sought from the Hluttaw paragraph by paragraph regarding the amendment of the bill.

In the discussions, Union Minister U Hla Tun said that The Union Budget Bill 2012-2013 fiscal year was redrawn due to raising the extra cash assistance and wages, permission of regional allowance and raising cash assistance and loans to regions and states in addition to reducing the budget of the Union. In so doing, the Union Budget Bill 2012 was drawn in line with the provisions of the National Planning Bill 2012-2013 fiscal year approved by Pyidaungsu Hluttaw with the amendments. Although there was K 251788 million budget deficit, compared with K 1953712 million in the new bill. The ratio of deficit to GDP declined to 3.2% from 4.9%.

In her response, Deputy Minister Dr Daw Myat Myat Ohn Khin said that the capital expenditure was subtracted from the incomes of cost-sharing health care, and 50 per cent from the remaining amount were paid as ordinary income of the State. Former Nazi guard Demjanjuk dies in Germany aged 91

BREMEN, 22 March—John Demjanjuk, a retired US engine mechanic convicted for his role in killing 28,000 Jews as a guard at a Nazi death camp during World War Two, died on Saturday aged 91 in a care home in Germany, police said.

Once top of the Nazi-hunting Simon Wiesenthal Centre’s list of most wanted Nazi criminals, Ukrainian-born Demjanjuk denied the charges against him, saying he was drafted into the Soviet army in 1941 and then taken prisoner by the Germans.

A Munich court convicted Demjanjuk in May 2011 of helping to kill the Jews at the Sobibor death camp in Nazi-occupied Poland. He was sentenced to five years in prison but freed because of his age. He died on Saturday morning at the care home near Rosenheim, south of Munich, where he had been living. Bavarian police said.

“My father fell asleep with the Lord today as both a victim and survivor of Soviet and German brutality from childhood till death,” his son, John Demjanjuk Jr, said in a statement from his home in Ohio. “History will show Germany shamefully used him as a scapegoat to blame helpless Ukrainian POWs for the deeds of Nazi Germany,” he said.— Reuters

Every sovereign nation of the world has the armed force established for security and defence of the country. Each and every sovereign nation must form an armed force to perform national political procedures for peace, stability and development of the country.

Tatmadaw is an institution which at its best serves the national interest, the lifeblood of a sovereign country. With no linkage with party politics, the organization performs duties till its last blood, putting the national interest at the forefront.

The main duty of Tatmadaw is to fulfill requirements for perpetuation of the country which are perpetuation of sovereignty, perpetuation of territory and perpetuation of national unity. It also assumes responsibilities to help civilian authorities with rule of law and stability.

Myanmar stood tall in the global stage under its sovereignty, perpetuation of territory and perpetuation of national unity. It also assumes responsibilities to help civilian authorities with rule of law and stability.

The Tatmadaw was established for security and defence of the country. They could even land Common Shells and Shrapnel Shells, anti-fort artillery and rockets. It is to be reviewed that Myanmar lost in the wars following weakness in arms or then-unfashionable Myanmar Tatmadaw.

Myanmar national heroes who did not want to live under colonialist rule opted to fight against. They convincingly showed patriotic spirit and national fervor of Myanmar people.

Myanmar youths started to begin armed struggle against the colonialists as World War II broke out in 1939.

Regarding stability of the State, the State is adopting new principles to restore eternal peace in the Union, in light of consideration of reality and past experiences. Roughly speaking, peace making tasks are progressing. Three Steps—State-level talks, Union-level negotiations and signing agreement at Pyidaungsu Hluttaw—have been adopted in establishing lasting peace, inviting armed groups to enter into dialogue. Peace making tasks are somewhat successful now and the eternal peace will prevail in the immediate future.

by the people and recommended by Bogyoke Aung San. Political movements against one-party system sprung up among the people in 1988. Insurgents, aboveground and underground, instigated the people, taking advantage of these movements to bring anarchy. Keeping faith in national interest, Tatmadaw, which could not turn a blind eye to disintegration of the country, again launched a coup for third time. This third coup meant that the Tatmadaw prevented the terrible conditions around the country and disintegration of national unity in time. It has been three times Tatmadaw seized control of the country and led national politics in the history of Myanmar. These are done not by the will of Tatmadaw but by the call of duty to take a leading role in establishing foundation for new political systems desired by the people.

At present, Tatmadaw is chronicling history, portraying well-deserved reputation of faith in national interest. Leaders of Tatmadaw turned from politicians to soldiers when they needed to held arms in independence struggle. When they needed to go into politics, they turned themselves into national politicians. So, Tatmadaw has fascinating political and military history. Win Win Win, Tatmadaw government handed over executive, legislation and judicial powers to civilian government formed under the constitution on 30-3-2011. Tatmadaw is doing its bit in implementing tasks for stability, socio-economic improvement of the people and democratization processes of the State. Regarding stability of the State, the State is adopting new principles to restore eternal peace in the Union, in light of consideration of reality and past experiences. Roughly speaking, peace making tasks are progressing. Three steps—State-level talks, Union-level negotiations and signing agreement at Pyidaungsu Hluttaw—have been adopted in establishing lasting peace, inviting armed groups to enter dialogue. Peace making tasks are somewhat successful now and the eternal peace will prevail in the immediate future. Successful implementation of eternal peace making tasks are vital important for the State and the people. Based on domestic peace and political stability, the people will increase their chances to enjoy better quality of life following change in international attitude, increased foreign investment and growing reputation in international arena.

Tatmadaw, which assumes duties of sustainable socio-economic development of the people, stability of the State and perpetuation of the sovereignty, needs to continue building strong, talented and patriotic armed forces. After restoring eternal peace, Tatmadaw will become the only armed forces, strong, capable and patriotic.

US investigates acid leak at refinery

CORPUS CHRISTI, 22 March—A federal agency has begun an investigation into a Citgo Petroleum Corp refinery in Corpus Christi, Texas, after sensors detected a leak of hydrofluoric acid.

A team from the Chemical Safety Board began work at the refinery Wednesday, ABS News reported.

They arrived two days after an emergency containment measure automatically went into place at the alkylation unit. A fire and explosion in the alkylation unit in 2009 severely injured one employee. A report last year said 4,000 pounds of hydrofluoric acid were released, more than 100 times Citgo’s original estimate of 30 pounds.

Chemical Safety Board Chairman Rafael Moure-Eraso said the current investigation was undertaken “because of the toxic nature of hydrofluoric acid and the need to keep it contained, or to mitigate the consequences of a release.”

Citgo said in a statement that people living around the plant were never in danger from this week’s incident.

72,000 British families lack male role models

LONDON, 22 March—Around 72,000 families in Britain have no male parent or role models at home and are headed by a single mother, a study has found.

An official review into what caused last year’s riots spoke about the lack of good male role-models in the lives of many young people arrested for taking part in the disturbances, the Daily Mail reported.

Communities and Local Government Secretary Eric Pickles said the absence of a positive father figure was a huge problem, and often fathers who were present have severe drug and alcohol addictions and were not working.

“Clearly, we want to work towards a situation where fathers in these families provide stability, which means getting them back to work, so they can bring money in and be a positive role model to their children,” he said.

The Telegraph said that another problem the study identified among the troubled families was the large number of children, which can lead to a lack of parental attention.

At least 20 percent of the 120,000 families studied have at least five children.

Prime Minister David Cameron launched a £44-million-pound initiative for workers from a mix of charity, council and private sector organisations, to help 120,000 “problem families” turn round their lives.

The new “troubleshooters” are working with each family individually, drawing up detailed plans with targets such as returning parents to work, stopping them from drinking or taking drugs, and ensuring the children attend school and do not behave anti-socially.

MOSCOW, 22 March—What looked like a large hole in the wing did not stop a Russian airliner from taking off for Siberia with dozens of panicked passengers on board.

The Boeing 737 jet was delayed on the tarmac of a Moscow airport when one of the passengers looked out of a window and noticed an oval-shaped gap in the left wing above one of the engines.

A video posted on the Komsomolskaya Pravda tabloid website showed the man complaining to a cabin crew member and the incident being reported to the cockpit.

The paper said the Transaero pilot had by that stage already abandoned one take-off attempt to take off from the left engine.

A second attempt was then called off when passengers began “rushing for the exits,” Komsomolskaya Pravda said.

Airline spokesman said 27 of the 70 or so passengers on board were let off the flight on Monday but denied that the pilot had to abandon any take-off attempts.

The plane eventually landed more than three hours behind schedule in the Siberian city of Krasnoyarsk.

The private airline called the incident little more than a misunderstanding.

Tyurkin said all that was missing from the wing was the cover to a hatch workers use to check the left engine.

It was not immediately clear who had misplaced the hefty piece of equipment or why.

“This was a technical element. Its absence doesn’t prevent takeoff,” said Tyurkin. “It does not affect safety.”

Russian news reports said Moscow transportation officials had opened a preliminary probe into the case.

NYC men’s yoga class meets in the nude

Michael Gates, 44, said he has been leading the nude yoga classes since 2006 and usually about six men will pay $20 for the weekly 90-minute session, the New York Daily News reported Thursday.

He said he realized soon after beginning the classes that they should be restricted to a single gender. “I understand that women don’t want to get undressed in front of strange men,” he said. “When I offered co-ed sessions, I found they were attended 98 percent by men.”

However, Gates said he still keeps the exact location of the classes a secret to keep away the “creeps.”

“I was getting too many people that were more interested in being in a room with naked men than practicing yoga,” Gates said.

Suspect arrested while on toilet

Ohio police said they did not want to make a man wanted on a weapons charge to finish using the toilet before placing him under arrest.

Sandusky police said Nicholas Ross, 23, allegedly left a party after getting into a fist fight Tuesday and returned with a handgun, the Sandusky Register reported Thursday.

Police said partygoers called 911, but the suspect was gone by the time officers arrived.

Investigators spotted Ross walking shortly before midnight with Tamar Walls, 23, and Jonathon Shine, 23, and the trio entered a rental home. Police said Walls gave them permission to enter the home, where they found Ross sitting on the toilet.

Ross refused to get off the toilet, telling officers he was defecting, police said. However, officers forced him off the toilet when he reached for a pile of clothes, and the arrest report said there was no sign of a bowel movement in the toilet.

Shine and Walls were arrested on charges of obstructing official business, and Walls was also found to have a bench warrant for his arrest. Tannie Shine, 57, who was found inside the home, was also arrested on a bench warrant.

Police said the handgun Ross had been carrying was reported missing from an unlocked trunk about three months ago.

Times stands by Paltrow ghostwriting story

NEW YORK, 22 March— A representative for The New York Times says the newspaper is standing by its story about ghostwriters who pen books for celebrities such as Gwyneth Paltrow.

Paltrow recently denied she had ever done a cookbook, “My Father’s Daughter,” as the Times said it was written by the actress.

Times editor-dot-com editor correction, “a representative for the Times told E! News. “Twitter and the food blogosphere quickly lighted up, and we heard from a number of people named in the article, including Jamie Oliver, Rachael Ray, Gwyneth Paltrow and Mario Batali,” journalist Julia Moskin wrote in a follow-up piece to the ghostwriting report. “All four have acknowledged, in print, working with collaborators on their books—but all objected to what they saw as the implication that they were not the authors of their own work.”

Moskin said she was not accusing the authors of “ghostcooking” but rather that they were “in the routine work of wrestling hot, messy, complicated recipes onto the page in comprehensible English.”

That is cookbook ghostwriting, as I and others have experienced it,” she said. “The food itself, and the story that surrounds it, usually comes from the chef in varying stages of page-readiness.”

Tottenham 1 - Stoke 1: Harry Redknapp says time Spurshowed bottle

Mouamba’s cardiac arrest on Saturday, describing it as the ‘low point’ of his career and adding to flashbacks. He put it behind him last night, however, with a stoppage-time header that at least meant Spurs did not add another defeat to losses to Arsenal, Manchester United and Everton.

But a draw was scant consolation for Redknapp, who labelled the clash with Stoke a must-win game—particularly with Saturday’s trip to Chelsea to come.

Just a few weeks ago Tottenham fans were dreaming of their side being among a group of teams fighting for the title. But they are now worrying about slipping into next season’s Europa League, with a fourth place finish at the back of their minds.

At the start of February, Spurs were 12 points ahead of the Gunners. But Arsenal have now nicked third place off their north London rivals and, even though Chelsea lost at Manchester City, Tottenham desperately need to find that winning feeling again.

Avalanche kills at least 22 in northeast Afghanistan

KUNDUZ, 22 March—A wall of snow has engulfed a village in northeast Afghanistan killing at least 22 people, officials said on Thursday, in the latest in a series of avalanches that have killed more than 100 people this month.

A rescue team including the governor of the district went to the village in Wakhan district of the northeastern Badakhshan province that borders China to search for survivors and help victims, provincial governor spokesman Abdul Marea Rashid said.

The avalanche happened on Wednesday but due to the remoteness, news of the incident only came out on Thursday.

Though avalanches are fairly common in the mountains of northern and eastern Afghanistan, deaths this year were particularly painful for a country which has experienced its worst winter in decades.

Earlier this month, avalanches killed at least 45 people in Nuristan province, near the border with Pakistan while 37 people were killed in Badakhshan.

FI’s Force India ordered to make big pay-out

LONDON, 22 March—Formula One’s Force India has been ordered to stump up $50,000 in unpaid fees to an aerodynamics company after a long-running court case.

The pay-out was demanded by the High Court in London on Wednesday following a copyright infringement case, according to a lawyer’s statement seen by AFP and media reports.

Force India had accused wind-tunnel operators Aerolab and Caterham technical chief Mike Gascoyne of systematic copyright breaches which it valued at 13 million pounds ($20.6 million).

But while Force India were awarded 25,000 euros for minor copyright breaches, the court also ordered it to pay $46,000 in fees owed to Aerolab for development work.

The court found that Caterham, formerly Team Lotus, had copied some computer files of Force India, mainly as a short cut for its own tests.

Demb Ba has played down reports linking him with a potential new-look Chelsea and insists he is happy at Newcastle.

INTERNET

LONDON, 22 March — The Senegal international’s 16 Premier League goals this year- old Ivory Coast star Drogba. Ba, 26, is a possible recruit and, with what is understood to be a £7m release clause in his contract, would prove excellent value for money to succeed 33-year-old Drogba. Ba told Sky Sports when asked about a possible move to Chelsea: “It is rumours you like in football.”

“I am happy with Newcastle and enjoy being here and playing for the Toon Army. I enjoy being in this team.“We have a good team spirit and I love the North East, where I have my country-mate, Papiss Cisse.”

Ba joined Newcastle last summer after becoming a free agent due to a clause in his contract following West Ham’s relegation from the Premier League.

The Senegal international’s move to the Magpies is reportedly set to join mega-rich Chinese side Shanghai Shenhua, where he would be reunited with former Chelsea teammate Nicolas Anelka.

There has also been speculation that Chelsea Tiote has already agreed to move to Stamford Bridge next season as a replacement for Essien.

Study: People with lots of Facebook friends more likely to be narcissists

MASHABLE, 22 March — Do you have tons of Facebook friends and often update your status? If so, you may be a narcissist, a new study suggests.

Research from Western Illinois University showed a link between the number of Facebook friends you have and how active you are on the site to the likelihood of being a “socially disruptive” narcissist.

The study — which was recently published in the journal Personality and Individual Differences — was conducted among 300 participants, who took a Narcissistic Personality Inventory questionnaire.

Those with more Facebook friends, who tagged themselves in photos and updated their status throughout the day were more likely to have narcissistic traits.

Unveiling Facebook ‘secrets’

“People who have a heightened need to feel good about themselves will often turn to Facebook as a way to do so,” study author Chris Carpenter from Western Illinois University told Mashable.

“Facebook gives those with narcissistic tendencies the opportunity to exploit the site to get the feedback they need and become the center of attention.”

Carpenter said that Facebook users that self-promote themselves on the site show signs of two narcissistic behaviors. The first is called grandiose exhibition (GE), which refers to people who love to be the center of attention.

The second is a category that involves entitlement/ exploitiveness (EE), which indicates how far people will go to get the respect and attention they think they deserve.

“There isn’t a baseline of how many friends a person has or how often they update their status that would qualify as them to have these narcissistic characteristics,” Carpenter said.

“However, it’s interesting to note how often these people use first-person pronouns such as ‘I’ and ‘me’ on the site.”

This isn’t the first time a study has been conducted about Facebook narcissists. In 2010, a study published from York University highlighted the differences between how men and women self-promoted themselves on Facebook.

Men tended to promote themselves in the “About Me” description, while women used pictures that “included[d] revealing, flashy and adorned photos of their physical appearance.”

Fruit and veg ‘give healthy glow’

LONDON, 22 March — Even a few weeks of eating fruit and vegetables could improve your skin colour, it is claimed.

University of St Andrews researchers monitored diet in 35 people, finding more colouration in those eating more greens. Other research suggests these changes may make you more attractive. Other scientists said the study, in the PLoS ONE journal, might not fully reflect the link between consumption and appearance.

It has been known for some time that certain yellow and red pigments found in many types of fruit and vegetables, can have an effect on skin tone. However it is not clear exactly how much influence a normal healthy diet can have on this effect. The St Andrews scientists recruited 35 students, mostly white, who were quizzed on their fruit and vegetable intake over a six week period. The volunteers were told not to use sunbeds, fake tan or make-up. An instrument was used to analyse their skin tone before, during and after the test period.

The results suggested that changes in fruit and vegetable consumption might be related to changes in skin tone, with more fruit and vegetables contributing to a deepening of natural red and yellow skin colouration. — Internet
