

KRC ATTITUDE AND PERSPECTIVE TOWARDS REPATRIATION

After the transition from military government to civilian government in Burma, most of the people hope that a positive change could take place. If a genuine and realistic change indeed does take place, then another step in the repatriation process for the people to resettle to their own land would definitely follow. However, the arrangements of any refugee's return should comply according to the standard of international law.

KRC, as the main supervisory body, represents 7 camps, approximately 150,000 refugees, and administers all the affairs of the camps' management and programmes. Thus, KRC has the responsibility to take the lead on developing any plan for repatriation and for co-ordinating with organizations such as NGOs/INGOs and CBOs in this process. In this way, regarding the repatriation, KRC will stand for firstly, the choice of the individual refugee to make their own decision and secondly, the changes in Burma need to be legitimately recognized and recommended by the international communities. Therefore, under the management of KRC - EC, some conditions required as below have been laid down.

- (1) There should be a complete cessation of fighting and end of political conflict in the country
- (2) There should be genuine peace and mutual understanding /mutual respect between the Burmese government and ethnic groups
- (3) The Burmese government should allow the assisting international organizations and human rights groups to work and function in the country without any restriction
- (4) The Burmese government whether at Union or State level, should give full support to community based organizations
- (5) The right should be given to the organizations/individuals who want to help the needy persons according to their wishes
- (6) If the people have accepted the areas/locations chosen for them, they should have the right to decide and report which area/location to live in
- (7) The right should be provided to KRC's delegation or "Refugee Returning Committee" to go and access the assigned locations/areas

OTHER RIGHTS FOR RETURNEES

- (1) The right for individuals to return, to shelter in any area or to resettle in third country should be recognized
- (2) Sufficient and adequate time should be allowed for preparation to return
- (3) Independent information centres should be allowed to be set up in every area/location recognized for the returnees to provide and receive information
- (4) Educational, health and other civil rights should be provided accordingly to the needs of the returnees, and recognition of all documents which have been provided in the camps
- (5) Proper security should be provided and given to the concerned organizations
- (6) The allocated areas/locations for resettlement should be in line with civilians' typical living conditions.
- (7) Every step taken in the process of repatriation by concerned individuals, organizations and governments should abide by the international refugee law
