Preventive measures essential to minimize impacts of natural disaster

NAY PYI TAW, 26 Aug—President of the Republic of the Union of Myanmar U Thein Sein, accompanied by General Hla Htay Win of Defence Services Commander-in-Chief’s Office, Union Ministers U Myint Hlaing, U Ohn Myint, U Thein Nyunt, U Aung Kyi, Dr Mya Aye and Dr Pe Thet Khin and departmental heads attended the presentation of agricultural inputs to farmers in flood-hit regions of Bago Region at Bago Town Hall this morning.

Present on the occasion were Bago Region Chief Minister U Nyan Win, Region Hluttaw Speaker U Win Tin, the Commander of Southern Command, region ministers, officials and local farmers from flood-ravaged regions.

Bago Region Chief Minister U Nyan Win briefed the President on rainfall in the region, floods and construction of drains for prevention of flood, progress in dredging of sandbanks in Bago River, assistance to flood-hit households, flood-led damages and measures for re-cultivation in time, and preventive measures against flood in coming years.

Union Minister for Agriculture and Irrigation U Myint Hlaing suggested measures for farmer-centered development programmes in anticipation of increased income and socio-economic development of the peasantry, measures for reduction of operation cost and wastages from cultivation to post-harvest period, and quality of rice and acquisition of reasonable products, production of value-added products, creation of agro-based job opportunities, designation of model agricultural townships, and systematic reform programmes in line with five-point instruction of the President.

President in his instruction said that his visit was aimed at giving a helping hand to local people who were temporarily faced with troubles due to floods in Bago Region. He and his government members also met flood victims in Ayeyawady Region and Yangon Region a few days ago and provided assistance to them. The country tends to see floods in long rainy season period. However, Bago Region suffered far fewer damages from floods in comparison with last year. This is thanks to systematic preventive measures taken last year.

Though natural disasters are unstoppable, preparedness measures must be taken as much as possible to ease the troubles. Bago Region could reduce the effect to some extent thanks to preventive measures based on last year’s experiences. Locals are to exert (See page 8).

Teachings of the Lord

Over 2500 years ago the Buddha after realizing the Four Noble Truths—the truth of suffering, the truth of the cause of suffering, the truth of the cessation of suffering and the path leading to the cessation of suffering—started teaching mankind the way to attain a state of supreme liberation, or Nirvana, which is possible for any human beings.

Afterwards, Buddha spent the rest of His life teaching a diverse range of people: from nobles to outcaste street sweepers the path of awakening He had discovered as the Enlightened One.

After the Buddha’s attaining of Nirvana, the Sangha or His disciples continued the work of promoting, propagating and perpetuating His Teachings, and till now these Buddhist monks are the backbone of the system of disseminating Buddha Teachings and promoting religious knowledge among the lay people.

Fortunately, we can seek Dhamma knowledge from members of the Sangha at assemblies or individually or in groups at the monasteries. Monks have been relaying the Teachings of Buddha to lay persons in their own ways they believe are the most effective. Some solely focus on vipassana explaining methods of insight into the true nature of reality, some make references to the Jatakas in their discourses in promoting interest in religion, some add stories to make their discourses more lively and attention-grabbing, some concentrate on enhancing Dhamma knowledge among the people and some disseminate the basic knowledge or principles of Buddhism. In one way or another, the monks in fact are helping us find the path towards Nirvana.

Modern technology including television, computers, online services, DVDs and iPod and MP3 players are also helping people’s access to greater religious knowledge.

As a result of the great efforts of the members of the Sangha, the people and the respective governments in preserving, protecting and disseminating the Teachings of the Lord throughout the successive eras through various means including Buddhist conferences or synods, today’s people can still read, learn, study and practise Buddhism as in was in the time of the Buddha.

Yuan tipped to replace US dollar, Euro in southeast Asia

BANGKOK, 26 Aug — China's currency will likely increase the ASEAN-China Free Trade Area agreement, which will influence the use of the yuan and the local currencies. The yuan is then a good alternative for the international trade in the future,” said the official, referring to the year in which the regional bloc will become an ASEAN Economic Community. Nevertheless, he said, the role of the Chinese currency in Thailand and other ASEAN states will remain limited in the short and medium terms.

Thai merchants have increased their use of the yuan in trade, following the easing of restrictions by the Chinese government, he said. A dozen Thai commercial banks and foreign banks’ branches here currently offer yuan-based services, including foreign currency deposits, money exchange, fund transfers and purchases of Chinese banknotes. The Chinese currency has accounted for 10.8 percent of China’s trade dealings with the world during the first half of this year, according to a report of the Thai central bank. — Xinhua

Rafah crossing to be reopened in Sinai from both sides

CAIRO, 26 Aug — The Rafah crossing which was disrupted by the military action in Egypt’s Sinai Peninsula will be reopened from both sides with previous mechanism, official news agency MENA reported on Saturday. The crossing will remain open from 9 am to 5 pm every day except the weekends and the official holidays. It will be operational as of Sunday on both Gaza and Egypt sides, MENA reported.

On 5 Aug, Egypt decided to close Rafah crossing with Gaza Strip indefinitely after security checkpoint was attacked which left at least 16 soldiers dead and seven others injured. Since the turmoil early last year, the security situation in Sinai has deteriorated. Hardline Islamists belonging to Jihad movements attacked police stations while local Bedouins committed several kidnappings of foreign tourists. The pipeline which exported natural gas to Israel and Jordan was also attacked more than ten times.

Ecuador says Britain withdraws threat to raid embassy in Assange standoff

QUITO, 26 Aug — Britain has withdrawn a threat to enter Ecuador’s embassy in London to arrest WikiLeaks founder Julian Assange who alleges the threat here, President Rafael Correa said on Saturday, taking the heat off of diplomatic standoff. “We consider this unfortunate incident over, after a grave diplomatic error by the British in which they said they would enter our embassy,” Correa said in a weekly media broadcast. In a statement, Ecuador’s government said it had received “a communication from the British Foreign Office which said that there was no threat to enter the embassy.”

It was a move by the British government wanted it might try to seize Assange, who has been holed up in the building for more than two months trying to avoid extradition to Sweden, where he is wanted for questioning over rape and sexual assault allegations. The Ecuadorian president, which has granted the former computer hacker asylum, declared that Britain’s threat be retracted. The latest move should improve relations between Quito and London, according to Correa. He added that Assange’s fate to take place. For now, however, Assange remains trapped in the embassy with British police waiting outside. Britain has said it is determined to extradite him for questioning over rape and sexual assault.

Last rebel group signs deal with Central African Republic

BANGUI, 26 Aug — Central African Republic’s last armed rebel group signed a peace deal with the government on Saturday that was designed to end years of violence in the country. “We picked up guns to fight the bad governance, corruption, nepotism and exclusion that characterized this regime, and we think that our message has been heard,” Abdisalye Isseu Ramadan, leader of the CPP rebel group, said in the capital Bangui. “Today we bury the hatchet.”

Central African Republic has been plagued by years of insurere since independence from France in 1960 and President Francois Bozize, who came to power in 2003 coup, had faced low-level insurgencies from 2005 to last year. The four other main rebel groups signed peace deals with the government in 2008. US Astronaut Neil Armstrong dies at age of 82

WASHINGTON, 26 Aug—American astronaut Neil Armstrong, the first man ever to set foot on the moon, has died at the age of 82, his family said on Saturday.

“We are heartbroken to share the news that Neil Armstrong has passed away following complications resulting from cardiovascular procedures,” the family said in a statement. It did not say where he died.

Armstrong was said to undergo a heart-bypass surgery earlier this month to relieve blocked coronary arteries.

Describing the iconic space explorer as “a reluctant American hero who always believed he was just doing his job,” the statement said “He served his nation proudly, as a navy fighter pilot, test pilot and astronaut.”

Armstrong commanded the Apollo 11 spacecraft that landed on the moon on 20 July, 1969 and has been best remembered by saying “That’s one small step for man, one giant leap for mankind.”

Armstrong and his fellow astronaut Buzz Aldrin spent two and a half hours walking on the moon, collecting samples, conducting experiments and taking photographs, while astronaut Michael Collins remained in orbit in the command module.

Born on 5 Aug, 1930, in Wapakoneta, Ohio, Neil Armstrong served in the US Navy and joined the Korean War before becoming an astronaut. After the war, he served as a test pilot at the National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics High Speed Flight Station.

He left NASA a year after the Apollo 11 mission to become a professor of engineering at the University of Cincinnati.

Mexican archaeologists excavate 850-yr-old human skeleton

WASHINGTON, 26 Aug—Human skeletons estimated to be about 850-years-old have been found by a group of excavators at an archaeological site in Mexico.

The skeletons were found at an archaeological site at Sierra Gorda in the central state of Queretaro during consolidation work of a pre-Hispanic structure - Building 17 of Huastec complex.

José Quiruo, head of the excavation project, said the skeletons can be as old as 1150 DC, about two centuries after Tancama had been vacated by pre-historic locals.

“People who already lived in other places, came back to this city to deposit their dead in some of its structures (necropolis). This hypothesis might only be corroborated with further studies,” Quiruo was quoted saying by Andaluz.

According to Cristina García Pura, Doctor in Physical Anthropology, the skeletons have incision marks which might be signs of sacrificial offerings.

“When the incision marks’ studies have been made, we will know if they were victims of a sacrifice or if these were skulls that were used as secondary burials (meaning they were removed from another place). All were found grouped together and four of these crania were linked to the bones of hand and feet among others,” García Pura said.

“Although a bioarchaeological study has not yet been made, this type of findings usually belongs to a cast of agency rovers and landers.

NASA postpones radiation mission launch

CAPE CANAVERAL, 26 Aug—NASA says it’s looking at Saturday to launch its Radiation Belt Storm Probes mission after an intended on Friday morning launch was canceled for technical reasons.

A drift in the signal from a transponder aboard the Atlas V launch rocket led to the postponement of the launch from Cape Canaveral Air Force Station in Florida, the space agency reported.

It is not yet known if the issue was in the transponder itself or in the ground-based range detection equipment meant to receive its signals, engineers said.

The transponder is part of one of several systems used to track the vehicle after launch, and it is mandatory for it to operate prior to liftoff, they said.

The next 20-minute launch window will start at 4:07 am EDT on Saturday.

The Radiation Belt Storm Probes mission is intended to study the Earth’s radiation belts, and researchers believe they could provide insight into the Earth’s radiation belts on a variety of scales and time, NASA said.

Angry Birds Space goes on mission to Mars

WASHINGTON, 26 Aug—Pigs and birds will explore the Martian terrain and shed light on NASA’s missions to the Red Planet in the latest update to the game Angry Birds Space.

Rovio Entertainment, creator of Angry Birds, announced the update on Thursday, complete with a cast of agency rovers and landers.

Earlier this year, millions of gamers were introduced to concepts of microgravity in Angry Birds Space, which was supported through a partnership with NASA and includes links to a variety of education information.

“Rovio is teaching huge new audiences about NASA’s missions to Mars thanks to this collaboration,” said David Weavers, associate administrator for communications at NASA Headquarters in Washington.

“It’s a great way to introduce both kids and adults to the wonders of the planet in a fun and entertaining way,” he added.

The NASA participated with Rovio on Angry Birds Space under a Space Act Agreement to share the excitement of space with the Angry Birds Space under a Space Act Agreement to share the excitement of space with the Angry Birds Space.

A western boxelder bug...

Sunbathing keeps north American bugs healthy

TORONTO, 26 Aug—Canadian scientists have discovered how a group of insects use sunbathing to fight off germs.

A study done by researchers at Simon Fraser University, Canada has found that a group of North American insects called Western Boxelder bugs (WB8) group together in sunlit patches and while there, release monoterpenes, strong-smelling chemical compounds that help protect the bugs by killing germs on their bodies.

The study found that the compounds were emitted when the bugs were in sunshine and weren’t used for communication, reproduction or defending the bugs against predators.

According to the researchers, sunlight appears to activate the biosynthesis of the compounds in the bugs, described as highly gregarious creatures.

The chemicals then physically encase fungal spores on the bugs’ body surface and set off a chain of events that ultimately protect them from germ penetration.

“Prophylactic sunbathing defends these bugs against pathogens that they encounter in their shelters,”

The Radiation Belt Storm Probes Mission will provide insight into the physical dynamics of the Earth’s radiation belts.

Carrots good for eyesight ‘not a myth’

LONDON, 26 Aug—Carrots, which are packed with vitamin A, have many health benefits, researchers say. The story that carrots are good for eyesight was put about as propaganda to keep secret the widespread use of carrots in dressing down German bombers. “We do not need extra vitamin A because we already get enough of it in our diet in developed countries,” the Daily Express quoted Dr Dolores Corrigan, director of research at charity Fight For Sight, as saying. “It does not matter how many carrots you eat, your eyesight is not going to get better.” The report is a real problem in developing countries. About half a million children go blind every year because of vitamin A deficiency. If you do not have enough vitamin A the receptors in the eye which catch light in the low light will not work properly and a vitamin A deficiency leads first of all to night blindness,” she said. Conroy also commented on the wartime eyeight. “It is one of those myths like eating an apple a day the king doctor away and spinach giving you muscles like Popeye,” she added.

Pig parasite may help treat autoimmune disorders

BOSTON, 26 Aug—If you had a chronic and potentially debilitating condition such as rheumatoid arthritis or Crohn’s disease, and swallowing the eggs of a pig parasite could help, would you do it? The team at Coronado Biosciences Inc is betting you would. The Burlington, Massachusetts, company is developing what it hopes will be the first in a new class of treatments for autoimmune conditions. Each dose of the drug consists of thousands of microscopic parasite eggs, culled from pig faces, suspended in a tablespoon of saline solution to be swallowed. In a pig, the eggs would grow into mature whipworms and reproduce, but in man, the eggs barely survive two years. Yet in that short period they appear to modulate a patient’s immune system and prevent it from attacking the body’s own tissues and organs. “It has the potential not only to be a drug but to provide insight into the cause of these diseases,” said Dr Joel Weinstock, chief of gastroenterology and hepatology at Tufts-New England Medical Centre in Boston and an adviser to Coronado. The company is preparing to enroll 220 patients with Crohn’s disease in a midstage clinical trial. Participants will receive either a dose with 7,500 eggs from a pig whipworm or a placebo once every two weeks for 12 weeks. Coronado’s partner, German drugmaker Dr Falk Pharma GmbH, is conducting a midstage trial of the drug, known as trichuris suis ova (TSO), in Europe. The two companies plan to share data when filing for marketing approval in 2016 or 2017. Tiny Coronado, with a market value of nearly $1.39 million, went public on the Nasdaq stock exchange last December. If the company, which also has an early-stage cancer drug in development, succeeds with TSO, it will compete against multimillion-dollar drugs from Amgen Inc and Abbott Laboratories. (Reuters)

Samsung to appeal after $1b in US case

SEOUL, 26 Aug—Samsung says it will appeal against a US court ruling that the South Korean giant stole designs from Apple to make smartphones and computer tablets. The jury in San Jose, California, ordered Samsung to pay Apple $1.05bn (€665m) in damages. In response, Samsung said Apple was using US patent laws to try to dominate the smartphone market.

Alzheimer’s affects women more rapidly than men

BOSTON, 26 Aug—Men can stave off the effects of Alzheimer’s for longer than women, whose condition deteriorates faster when affected by the disease. — Internet

An analysis of studies involving 28 men and 1,288 women discovered that men with Alzheimer’s consistently and significantly outperformed women with the disease across five cognitive areas examined in detailed tests. These included tests of episodic memory, where people recall events from the past, and semantic memory involving factual information. From Alzheimer’s deterioration faster than men, even when both are apparently at the same stage of the disease. The findings suggest that women sufferers show greater loss of their mental faculties than men, whose brains are better at coping with the ravages of the disease. The stage of progression of Alzheimer’s is measured using general tests, such as those based on behaviour, the ‘Daily Mail’ reported. More detailed tests, such as verbal skills tests, on sufferers who were at an apparently equal stage of the disease suggested men’s brains have an advantage in coping with its effects. Men with Alzheimer’s consistently outperformed women sufferers in detailed tests of memory and even verbal ability, where healthy women normally have the advantage. A review of data from 15 studies by researchers from the University of Hartford,shire shows for the first time that men might resist the progression of dementia more than women. US, European shares rise on ECB report, euro trims losses

NEW YORK, 26 Aug—US and European stocks rose and the euro bounced off lows against the dollar on Friday after sources said the European Central Bank is considering setting targets in the bond market in a bid to contain crippling borrowing costs in troubled euro zone economies. Stocks had earlier come under pressure on worries about Greece and uncertainty over how Europe will address Spain’s debt crisis. Speculation has grown in recent weeks that the ECB will soon start buying Spanish and Italian bonds. The ECB is considering targeting a yield band, an option gaining favour among central bankers, central bank sources told Reuters. But the decision would not be made before the ECB’s September policy meeting and it wasn’t clear how wide the band would be or how the ECB would decide when to intervene in the bond markets. “Any time we get comments out of Europe that create a perception that they are working diligently to solve the debt issue, the euro starts to rally, (the) dollar goes lower and in return, our equity markets move higher,” said Randy Frederick, managing director of active trading at Charles Schwab & Co. “I’m not sure if this will have lasting impact on the market.” Further boosting investor sentiment, US Federal Reserve Chairman Ben Bernanke said the Fed has room to deliver additional monetary stimulus to boost the US economy. Bernanke made the comment in a letter to a congressional oversight panel. (Reuters)

Apple award in US case

Analysts say the ruling is one of the most significant in a global battle over intellectual property. In recent weeks, a court in South Korea ruled that both technology firms had copied each other, while a British court threw out claims by the US company that Samsung had infringed its copyright. But the year-long US case has involved some of the biggest damages claims. Samsung described Friday’s decision as “a loss for the American consumer”. “It will lead to fewer choices, less innovation, and potentially higher prices,” the firm said. The statement added that it was “unfortunate that patents can be manipulated to give one company a monopoly over competitors’ products and services.” Apple, however, said it applauded the court’s decision for “finding Samsung’s behaviour willful and for sending a loud and clear message that stealing isn’t right”. It said it intended to seek injunctions to block US sales of Samsung products at a follow-up hearing on 20 September. The two firms account for more than half of global smartphone and tablet computer sales. The nine-person jury at the federal court in San Jose, California, had to answer 510 questions about each side’s claim that its rival had infringed its intellectual property. — Internet

Coconut water good after light exercise

PHILADELPHIA, 26 Aug—Coconut water — the clear liquid inside young, green coconuts — has a lot of potassium and natural antioxidants, US researchers say. “Coconut water is a natural drink that has everything your average sports drink has and more,” Chhundhari Bhattacharya of the University of Southeast in New Albany said in a statement. “It has five times more potassium than Gatorade or Powerade. Whenever you get cramps in your muscles, coconut water will help you get rid of the cramps.” Bhattacharya said the potassium in coconut water may benefit other people who do not exercise. The typical American diet is low in potassium and high in sodium. Previous research showed people who ate foods low in potassium and high in sodium had twice the risk of death from heart disease and a 50 percent higher risk of death from all causes. — Internet

Sri Lanka braces for oil slick

CYPRUS, 26 Aug — A Cyprus flag carrier, took in water and went down late Thursday after remaining in anchorage for over three days following a dispute over its cargo of steel, local officials said.

“Much of the furnace oil in the ship had been pumped out, but we were told about 70 tonnes of fuel remained in its tanks and that is causing a slick,” Disaster Management Centre director Sarah Kitora told AFP. He said the slick measuring about 10 kilometres (six miles) long was about 20 kilometres (12 miles) off Sri Lanka’s western coast, but could get washed ashore due to heavy monsoon weather.

“We have arranged small units of volunteers to clean up a coastal stretch of over 50 kilometres,” Kitora said.

“We have not experienced anything like this before,” he said.

The coast line from Mount Lavinia, a popular tourist resort just south of the capital Colombo, and Negombo, the first beach resort opened for tourism in the early 1970s, was at risk, the DMC said. The vessel had been detained by Sri Lankancourts following litigation over the cargo of steel valued at over $300 million, according to local media reports. It was not immediately clear who owned the vessel.

Sri Lanka’s merchant shipping authority director AJith Seneviratne said they were ready to tow the ship away to a salvage yard in the island’s east, but were prevented by a court order against the removal. “We knew that the ship could go down as the monsoon intensifies and we had pumped out most of the 600 tonnes of furnace oil it carried, but there was a residue that we could not pump out,” Seneviratne said. — Internet

Hamas sends security officers to Cairo for talks

GAZA, 26 Aug — Hamas announced on Saturday it will send a security team to Egypt for information exchange about deadly attacks against the Egyptian forces in Sinai earlier this month.

Ihab al-Ghussain, a spokesman for Hamas’ Interior Ministry, said that the delegation would leave through Rafah crossing, which lies between Gaza and Egypt. He gave no further details about the delegation’s structure. The delegation will work for boosting cooperation in investigations about the attack, in which unknown Islamists killed 16 Egyptian soldiers.

Egyptian reports suggested that the assailants were backed by extremist groups in the Hamas-controlled Gaza Strip. But Hamas immediately denied the involvement of any Palestinian in the shooting. The discussions will also focus on Rafah crossing, the only gate for Gazans’ bypassing Israeli control. Egypt closed the crossing after the attack but granted exit permission for humanitarian cases. — Xinhua

China’s drug watchdog warns problems of counterfeit medicines

BEIJING, 26 Aug — A senior drug safety supervisor warned that China faces a severe situation of cracking down upon counterfeit medicines.

Australia starts melanoma genome project

SYDNEY, 26 Aug — Australian researchers have started to undertake a two-year melanoma genome project that aims to identify the common genocentations that lead to melanoma.

Melanoma Institute Australia (MIA) announced on Friday. The project, developed and coordinated by MIA, will cost 25 million AU dollars ($5.74 million US dollars) and has been largely funded by private donors.

A national coalition of researchers from MIA, The University of Sydney, Westmead Millennium Institute, Royal Prince Alfred Hospital and the Queensland Institute of Medical Research will work together on the project. Most of the melanoma tumour samples to be used are from the MIA BioSpecimen Bank of melanoma tissues, MIA said. MIA Executive Director John Thompson said the medical research would lead to better treatments for melanoma patients.

“TheMelanoma Genome Project will build on Australia’s international leadership in this area and move the world’s medical knowledge closer to being able to prevent and cure melanoma,” Thompson said. “It will lead to better diagnostic tests and new drugs which can specifically target the mutations that are causing this particular cancer.” — Xinhua

Powerful typhoon lummors toward Japan’s Okinawa

TOKYO, 26 Aug — A powerful typhoon packing winds up to 215 kilometres (134 miles) per hour was lumbering toward Okinawa on Saturday and was projected to be the strongest typhoon to hit the southern Japanese island in several years.

Typhoon Bolaven, the 15th typhoon of the season, was expected to reach Okinawa on Sunday, island weather officials said.

It comes on the heels of Typhoon Tembin, which on Friday crossed over southern Taiwan and caused flooding in some areas, but largely spared the island’s heavily populated areas. Floodwaters from Tembin reached 3 meters (9 feet) high in one town, where armoured vehicles rescued several dozen people from their flooded homes. It returned to sea by late Friday morning.

Typhoon Bolaven was approaching Minami-Daito Island, some 400 kilometres (250 miles) southeast of Okinawa, on Saturday and was moving north-northwest at 15 kph (9mph). Maximum winds near the eye were projected at 180 kph (112 mph). On Friday, the storm had winds of 162 kph (101 mph), the Japan Meteorological Agency said.

The weather on Saturday morning in Naha, the capital of Okinawa prefecture, was still sunny with mild winds, officials said.

But the Japanese Meteorological Agency issued advisories for gale-force winds in Okinawa and high waves in the waters around the island, where more than half the 50,000 US troops based in Japan are stationed. One of the biggest bases, Kadena Air Base, banned water-based activities in the rough seas as part of its preparations for the typhoon, Weather forecasters on public broadcaster NHK said the slow-moving storm could dump up to 80 centimeters (31.5 inches) of rain on Okinawa. Bolaven had sustained winds of 162 kph (101 mph) and gusts of up to 215 kph (134 mph), the agency said. — INTERNET

China’s single women compete for love and riches

BEIJING, 26 Aug — Young Chinese women in swishy dresses and strapless sundals sit in a row clutching forms that list their weight and measurements as they wait for an interview with an “appearance consultant”. Dressed as if for a beauty contest, they are among more than 1,000 bidding to make it to the next stage of this bizarre competition — the chance to join an exclusive group of 50 young beauties to make a model-milllionaire. The testing process screens everything from looks and education to family background and astrological compatibility. The 50 lucky qualifiers will win the chance to meet 32 men worth at least 100 million yuan ($16 million).

Although it is at the extreme end of the scale, the matchmaking event arranged by the China Entrepreneur Club for Singles in Beijing reflects the growing challenges of finding a spouse in modern China. “I don’t need to be so rich. I’m just saying I want the ability to have a good lifestyle,” said Zeng Xie, 25, wearing thick mascara and a delicate dress as she slipped out between interviews to check in with her mother. Zeng’s mother, who gave only her surname, Niu, rated her daughter’s chances of finding love to be lowly, and bemoaned her unwillingness to remarry for the “sake of her family’s home town.”

“She’s got a lot of great qualities, so she has quite high standards,” said Niu. “Kids these days are working and they are so busy, they don’t have time to make friends.” Experts say the material demands of some young Chinese have escalated as the country’s wealth has grown — with home ownership a common requirement, according to Yue sociologist Deborah Davis. Davis says that transient urban lifestyles have combined with frenetic social change, boosting wealth and more relaxed sexual mores to complicate the process of finding a partner in China.

The escalating demands of potential spouses have come under the spotlight in recent years thanks to popular television dating shows featuring materialism so outrageous that worried experts warn will feed a trend for a rise in the sex ratio. “It’s just the opposite of what we saw 20 years ago,” said Gao Yigong, who claims to be the founder of the “appreciation competition”. Gao said the sex ratio in China is normally about 105 boys to 100 girls, but is up to 120 boys to 100 girls in some cities.

The contestant famously rebuffed a potential suitor, saying she would “rather cry in a BMW than laugh on the backseat of a bicycle”, while another requested 200,000 yuan ($31,000) to allow a man to shake her hand. — Internet

Taungbyone Nat festival held annually in 7th week of the full moon day of Wakhaung (August) 24-8-2012

Taungbyone Nat spirit festival held annually in 7th week of the full moon day of Wakhaung (August) 24-8-2012 at Taungbyone. Though Tharavadu Buddhism was well established and has been flourishing in the country, pre-Buddhist and post-Buddhist belief systems still co-exist in Myanmar because of long Myanmar tradition of religious tolerance. Despite attempts of Myanmar kings to stamp out nat spirit worship and all appertaining superstitions, Myanmar peoples find joy and benefit in the worship of nat spirits for their mundane life, while Buddhism they generally believe is the most noble religion for the improvement of their “life here after”.

Unlike gods and goddesses of the ancients who appeared as deities, Myanmar nats (Thirty-seven nats in Myanmar Pantheon) were originally human beings. They were kings, queens, ministers, soldiers, heroes and heroines who as humans served public welfare and interest or employed in royal services with outstanding performances. But due to various reasons, punishment, loss of life on the battlefield, fatal diseases and accidents they met violent deaths. It is a common belief in all ancient civilizations, that the spirit of a person who died of a violent death “lingers on until it has got a place to rest”.

Shwehpyingee and Shwehpyinnge the two nat-brothers at Taungbyone were the grandsons of King Anawrahta who adopted them just as he did his father Byatta, a good equestrian who could bring to the court three times daily wild flowers from Mount Popa at a distance of 30 miles. While Anawrahta was sojourning at Taungbyone village, after his visit to his friend Chinese Emperor Uti, he built a pagoda “Sutaungpyi” at Taungbyone Village near Mandalay. He ordered that everyone must get a share in that religious work by contributing each a brick and a handful of sand to the construction of the pagoda.

Two youthful brothers were running after a local village girl named Ma Shwe U whose beauty was reputed far and wide. The young girl easily engaged the two by her beauty and the locality named Ko Yin Maung who was away in the upper reaches of the Ayeyawady River to float down tea logs. The two had arranged for their wedding after the lent of that year. But the two young brothers never gave up their love overtures to Ma Shwe U who refused and resisted.

When the Sutaungpyi Pagoda was completed Anawrahta came to worship it. Upon seeing two bricks missing, he was amazed. When he found that his two grandsons had neglected their duties and defied the royal orders, the king would not spare them though they were his adopted grandsons. So the two brothers were done executed to death by flogging their necks. Because of their violent deaths their spirits lingered and they held tight the royal barge returning to Bagan. Upon the king’s command the nat spirits of the two brothers appeared and asked for reward for their services. The king proclaimed the village Taungbyone be their fief and a grand nat shrine built near the pagoda for their place to rest. At the yearly Pagoda festival, the festival for the two brothers be held and local people should pay homage to them. At Taungbyone, there still are fields and farms which King Anawrahta awarded to the two nat brothers. The proceeds of these lands go to the maintenance of their shrine and idols.

Since then, Taungbyone Nat festival has become almost a national festival. But the traditional national festival of Wakhaung (August) is the casting lots festival for religious charity. However, believers near and far, at home and abroad, are obliged by the two nat brothers to come to the festival and to their obligation to offer flowers, food, fruits, silk clothings, drinks and liquor and participating in over a week long procedures of the festival—singing, dancing, offering of roasted wild rabbits with toddy juice, liquor local and to the foreign to the two nat brothers. As the final, the cutting of the Htein tree, to avenge the deity of that Tree who caused the untimely death of their grandfather Anawrahta.

Preparation of at least two months ahead is needed for this now would famous festival. Since the British colonial days special railway services were given at least four times a day between Mandalay and Taungbyone. There is also a good motor road for all kinds of vehicles. In the days gone by you could take a leisure boat on the Shwetaung canal near Zegyo Taw market centre to Taungbyone and return in the evening.

To understand the historical background and social and cultural significance and implication of Taungbyone festival you need to observe it from the beginning to the end with the guide of a person wellversed in this subject. The festival provides a good occasion for all and everyone to enjoy freedom of a human life—eat, drink, sing, and dance and enjoy with abandon. But there are specially organized committees to maintain law and order and peace during the festival. Local authorities are efficient in managing the situation.

In this globalized age of information and communication technologies where matter reigns dominat, it is amazingly strange to final increasing numbers of believers in spirits. At Taungbyone festival you see large gatherings of spirit worshippers from four corners of the world. Some are genuine believers but many are merrymakers for infinite fun.

It is believed that the two nat brothers would possess beautiful girls or women even if they are married or they have their regular nat mediums who can invoke them to possess them, and dance in trance to the songs and music of the two nat brothers. Normally male nat spirits possess female human and female nat spirits possess male humans. The one who is possessed by a nat spirit would wear the dress of that nat spirit and sing and dance like that spirit. So you will see at Taungbyone festival it is not at all strange to see a woman be possessed by their nat spirit concerned singing, dancing mimicking and frolicking—a wonderful occasion for home and foreign gays to gather together for fun. Gay transvertenties are prettier than the real girls in the general remark of the visitors. But more practical and apt remark is that the two nat brothers have now become so globalized that they are now more fond of gays than girls! They are globalized also in many ways. Rather than local fermented toddy juice, rice beer, or country spirits and mean of wild games, the two nat brothers prefer wine, beer, Jim, brandy and whiskey especially Johnny Walkers Black Label, and cheese, butter and tin meat. Rather than wearing traditional headgear and elongated silk longs, the two nat brothers (their mediums) are now wearing jeans, jerkins, shorts and sports shirts as evidenced in the dresses of the nat possessed dancers who are mostly gays. It is worth visiting this festival at least for a day trip because you yourself be drawn into the festival of merry makers, leaving behind all your worries of daily life. Stay longer and watch the proceedings close hand you get a clear glimpse of a cosmos swiftly undergoing changes. You are momentarily transported into on other worldly plane of spirits. With all trappings of global characters and features such as hip hop songs, music and dances, Michael Jackson’s hits, Jacky Chan’s acrobatic agility by those international gys of all climes is a grand scenario of a sort found in our Myanmar.

Nay Pyi Taw, 26 Aug—Organised by Johns Hopkins University (JHU) and School of Advanced International Studies (SAIS), Leadership Academy for Development Programme workshop held

Y angon, 26 Aug—Organised by Johns Hopkins University (JHU) and School of Advanced International Studies (SAIS), Leadership Academy for Development Programme (LAD) workshop held at Sadona Hotel here on 22 August. Departmental personnel, businessmen, and personnel of social organizations and journalists were present on the occasion.

Prof DrFrancis Fukuyama and Prof Roger Leed of Johns Hopkins University gave talks.

A workshop for a group of 25 foreign experts, of which 17 persons are of Asian countries started in Mandalay on 18 August and 10 persons are of Asian countries started in Mandalay, and one group of 8 persons is in Yangon.

Serious worshipping of the two nat brothers believe that nat spirits are benefactors of their worshippers who pray to them for the fulfillment of their wishes on a contract of a sort, ie if their prayers are answered and wishes are fulfilled they would offer cash or kind (foreign liquors, silk longies, etc). The nat brother at Taungbyone in his article has met with some local and foreign believers who confirmed that their wishes were granted by nat spirits they consulted. There was the care of one American diplomat who visited Taungbyone Nat festival just for fun. At the shrine he told the idols of the two brothers that if they helped him to get him transfer to Geneva at next assignment he would offer them Black Label Whisky and silk longies. Three months later he received transfer order from Washington to Geneva! That diplomat keeps his contract with the two nat brothers by sending his promised offerings to them at annual festival.

One amazing experience of a foreign believer and worshipping of the two nat brothers was the wife of a high ranking official from an international organization which had its branch office in Yangon. The writer, as the Director-General of the Department of Fine and Performing Arts, Ministry of Culture was assigned to guide her on her visit to Taungbyone Festival. She was not only an academic researcher but also a serious believer in spiritual world. She studied and participated in the festival from the beginning to the end. The writer was her guide and interpreter. On the day of the ceremony of the two nat brothers bathing in the River, the shrine and the entire village were packed with worshippers and merry makers. She whispered to the writer that she could not resist the excited urge to dance because the two nat brothers “are possessing her!” The writer was astounded and told her not to dance at all because she was the wife of a high diplomat. “Nonsense! there is no law against your belief.” So she danced into dancing in trance, with her eyes close just like other nat mediums. When the long music stopped, she was awakened from trance and told the writer that the two brothers had left her body! On leaving Myanmar after two years of their duty, this lady took to her home country two wooden idols of the two nat brothers consecrated at Taungbyone. While the writer was having dinner the writer jokingly told her to apply for passport and visa for the two brothers. The lady was a bit crossed and said, “Dr. Nyunt, you don’t know about the spirit world! The two nat brothers exist only for a short time. Pythagoras wanted to consult the oracle of the Temple of Apollo, on the eve of his presentation of a geometry theorem at the gathering of scholars in the garden of Academia in Athens. Scholar in the past had done academic research on Myanmar Thirty Seven Nat Spirits. The most outstanding and perhaps the earliest was Sir Richard Temple. His work “The Thirty Seven Nats of Burma” fully illustrated with pictures from original manuscripts of parables and references from royal archives and libraries of Mandalay Palace of Kings Mindon and Theebaw was a monumental volume. The writer has found post-graduate dissertations on this subject at some foreign universities in England, America, Europe and South East Asia. It seems that the upcoming generations the world over are eager to probe into the unknown not only the material aspect but also spiritual.

efforts in unison to be able to re-grow the damaged farmlands as Bago Region takes major part in agricultural production of the State. Approximately 352.165 million for regrowing paddy was presented. President U Thein Sein pays homage to Buddha images at Shwemawdaw Pagoda.—MNA

President U Thein Sein presents K 352.165 million as cash assistance to Bago Region Chief Minister U Nyan Win for buying 704,433 baskets of paddy seeds to be re-grown on fields which were hit by flood.—MNA

He said that the nation would be able to see eternal peace in near future if the nation at three different levels—state level, union level and political discussion at Union level—bear fruits.

The government aims for agricultural development and industrialization for socio-economic development of the country. Of three basic requirements—food, clothing and shelter, food is of utmost importance and only the agricultural sector can satisfy the food requirement. Though the country has food sufficiency today, measures must be taken for agricultural development in consideration of the growing population in the future. However, it is impossible to support agricultural development with conventional agricultural methods in use at present. The target can be achieved only through a shift to good agricultural patterns of food security in the future. So, it is required to change the spirit and form of farmland, paddy seeds, agricultural methods, from the very basic, practising mechanized farming. Those reforms must be undertaken no matter what as agricultural sector is the core business of the economy.

Only with industrialization, the second phase programme for socio-economic development of the nation and people, can the country see development and prosperity in the long-run. Today, 26 per cent of the population is under poverty line and efforts must be made to bring down the rate to 16 per cent in 2015. To alleviate poverty, it needs to set up industries in the country, which help create job opportunities to add individual and household livings. In so doing, the government is making efforts to invite foreign investments owning to its weakness in fundamental necessities such as technological assistance, capitals and human resources. Only then, would the state be able to overcome those obstacles. Some are doing their jobs abroad due to poor job opportunities at home. That is why forces of the citizens leak out. The government is inviting and accepting foreign investments to be made in industrial zones and industries in the country so that citizen-workers would be convinced by growing job opportunities rapidly. The government is carrying out that process in line with the laid-down four policies; not harming national interests, national integrity, national sovereignty and our environmental nature.

Nowadays, the government is disbursing more loans to farmers than before so they would have easy way in producing rice. In producing rice, however, farmers are facing high costs. Therefore, farmers should run other business to earn more incomes without relying on agricultural sector only. To make savings on produces of rice of a day, farmers should do other farming such as cattle and poultry including seasonal crops. Today poverty in the country comes from the lack of job opportunities. But there are many jobs around him/her who would like to work. Working hard increases daily incomes. Only if every citizen works hard, will not only his family but also the country get more earnings. Every citizen is duty bound to work hard in their jobs for development of their socio-economic status, urged the President.

Afterwards, the President presented K 352.165 million for regrowing paddy in the damaged regions to the region chief minister.

Union Minister for Social Welfare, Relief and Resettlement and for Labour U Aung Kyi presented eight relief items for 50 households, Union Minister Dr Mya Aye, 2000 dozens of exercise books worth K 4 million, Union Minister Dr Pe Thu Khin, medical boxes that contain 22 types of medicine worth K 6 million, through Bago Region Chief Minister U Nyan Win and Bago Region Social Affairs Minister Dr Kyaw Oo. A local from Thanapin Township in Bago Region expressed words of thanks. The President cordially greeted those present on the occasion.

The President and his entourage paid homage to Shwemawdaw Pagoda where they offered flowers, water and lights.

They then signed the visitor’s book of the pagoda, and then made donations. The President and party left Bago for Yangon. Then, they left Yangon for Nay Pyi Taw by Tatmadaw special flight, and arrived back here in the afternoon.

Tropical Storm Isaac strengthens, approaching Florida

WASHINGTON, 26 Aug.—The US state of Florida on Saturday stepped into a state of emergency as Tropical Storm Isaac strengthened and was approaching Florida, where the Republican National Convention (RNC) is due to start on Monday. While declaring the state of emergency in Florida on Saturday morning, Governor Rick Scott urged local residents to get prepared for the worst scenario Isaac might cause.

Local officials in Tampa, a city on west coast of Florida and venue of the RNC, have been informed on issues that may occur due to Isaac and delegates to the convention have been informed on how to remain safe during a storm. According to information given by the National Weather Service of the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration near Saturday noon, Tropical Storm Isaac is expected to strengthen and become a hurricane on Sunday as the storm approaches the Florida Keys and parts of Florida. The Federal Emergency Management Agency said on Saturday it will continue to monitor Tropical Storm Isaac and remain in close coordination with local officials and emergency management partners in Florida, and other southern states and Gulf states.

A Hurricane Warning is currently in effect for the Florida Keys, the west coast of Florida from Bonita Beach southward to Ocean Reef, and for Florida Bay. A Hurricane Warning means that hurricane conditions are expected within 24 hours. Tropical Storm Isaac moves closer to Florida, local residents need to be prepared,” said the agency’s Administrator Craig Fugate. “...check your family plans and emergency supplies, review your evacuation routes and remember that evacuation orders come from local officials.” While tropical storms are unpredictable, the agency encourages residents in the possible path of the storm to prepare now.

Republican National Convention CEO William Harris said on Thursday the organizers of the convention is “in regular contact” with the National Weather Service, Governor Rick Scott of Florida and local emergency officials in an effort to track and understand the potential impact of the storm. The 2012 Republican National Convention will be held at the Tampa Bay Times Forum in Tampa from Monday to Thursday. Nearly 50,000 visitors are expected to come to the Tampa Bay area for the event, including delegates, journalists and other guests; while thousands of protesters are also said to come along.

Chinese ocean patrol ship Haixun 31 heads to US

BEIJING, 26 Aug.—A Chinese marine patrol ship set sail from Shanghai this morning on its very first visit to the United States. This more than one-hundred-meter long ocean patrol ship—the Haixun 31—is part of the maritime law enforcement unit of the Guangdong Maritime Safety Administration. Its job is to oversee maritime and shipping safety, supervise maritime traffic safety and security, and prevent pollution from ships. It is considered one of China’s most advanced patrol ships.

Wu Jiansheng, Guangdong Maritime Safety Administration, said, “This is the first time that a Chinese ocean patrol ship with helicopter-carrying capacity and port security, as well as the prevention of pollution from, in the marine environment.

China and the United States decided to increase this kind of communication and collaboration after the fourth round of their Strategic and Economic Dialogue in May. Officials say this vessel’s mission is part of the effort to strengthen mutual understanding. And while the Haixun 31 may encounter Typhoon Bolaven in the next few days, the captain says the ship is capable of dealing with a level 12 wind. And he says there’s also a backup route to avoid the typhoon.

Chiucago soybeans up, corn, wheat down

CHICAGO, 26 Aug.—Chicago soybean futures rose on Friday thanks to ideas of strong crop demand, while corn and wheat futures fell as a higher dollar pressured trading and recent high crop prices hindered US exports.

The most active corn contract for December delivery fell 6.25 cents, or 0.77 percent, to settle at $8.885 dollars per bushel. December wheat declined 6.25 cents, or 0.77 percent, to settle at $9.985 dollars per bushel. November soybeans rose 16.5 cents, or 0.96 percent, to close at $17.315 dollars per bushel. Outside market forces were mixed on Friday, as the session saw strong gains in US equities, weakness in crude oil and strengthening of the greenback. A higher dollar pressures agricultural commodities, as it makes them more expensive for holders of other currencies.

The adverse currency action heaped pressure on the corn and wheat markets, which both extended their losing streaks to three straight sessions. Corn and wheat also suffered from ideas of low demand, as this summer’s drought conditions have pushed crop prices to record highs. The high prices diminish the appeal of corn and wheat on the international scene, where buyers can alternatively turn to cheaper producers such as Brazil. Traders, however, continue to monitor next week’s weather forecasts, worrying about the damaging effects of approaching tropical storm Isaac. Some growers are predicted for the Midwest wheat-producing regions, taking away some support from weather concerns. Unlike the other grains, soybeans were able to rise on the session, as strong demand for the US crop continues to push exports. Hot and dry weather conditions have also dramatically reduced the US corn yield, adding further support to the soybean market.—Xinhua

Powerful refinery blast kills 39, injures 80 in Venezuela

CARACAS, 26 Aug.—A explosion ripped off Venezuela’s biggest oil refinery on early Saturday morning, killing 39 people including 18 National Guard members, Vice President Elias Jaua said. Some 80 others were wounded, officials said. The blast, caused by gas leak, occurred at the Amyx refinery at 11:11am (0541 GMT), which produces as many as 645,000 barrels of crude oil per day, said Venezuelan Energy Minister Rafael Ramirez.

The reason for the gas leak was still to be determined, he added. The killed National Guard troops were protecting the refining facilities in Amyx town, located in the Paraguana Peninsula overlooking the Caribbean Sea in western Venezuela. Jaua said after traveling to the area. A 10-year-old child was also among the dead. Jaua said military ambulances rushed to the site for the injured, most of whom suffered slight injuries and were later discharged from hospital after some treatment.

The powerful blast also caused severe damage to nearby houses and shops, and forced the refinery to shut down. The Amyx refinery is part of the Paraguana Refinery Complex, the second biggest of the world’s oil refineries, which is capable of producing 955,000 barrels per day. Venezuela is South America’s biggest oil producer and the world’s fifth oil exporter. President Hugo Chavez declared three days of national mourning for the catastrophe.

Officials said the situation at the Amyx refinery had been put under control and there was no risk of further explosions. Ramirez said the refinery was expected to resume operation within two days. The blast wouldn’t have a major impact on export and domestic supply as the country “has enough fuel supplies,” he said.

Yemeni senior army officer survives bomb blast in Abyan Province

ADEN, 25 Aug — A Yemeni senior military official survived unharmed a roadside bomb targeting his convoy in southern province of Abyan on Friday evening, but two of his bodyguards were injured, security officials told Xinhua.

The bomb blast struck the convoy carrying the top commander of an army brigade and counter-terrorism unit, según Ahmed, a provincial capital, injuring at least two of the bodyguards who were with the security official said.

“Colonel Mahmoud Ahmed, commander of the 116th Armored Army Brigade, was travelling in a desert road to the town of Zinjibar along with two other vehicles when he came under attack,” the official said.

Two of his bodyguards were slightly injured in the bomb blast and no damages were reported, he added. Experts say the bomb disposal unit on the scene and launched investigation, according to the official.

In the past few months, al-Qaeda has carried out deadly suicide bombings in Yemeni key cities including the capital Sanaa in retaliation for the severe blows against its members in the south and to expand foothold.

Backed by the United States and Saudi Arabia, the Yemeni government waged a month-long intense offensive in May against hundreds of al-Qaeda militants, driving them out of strongholds they had controlled for nearly a year in the country’s south.

Besides the al-Qaeda presence, the impoverished country is also battling with staggering political and armed rebellions. — Xinhua

A woman drowned while getting wedding pictures taken

RASTOWN, 26 Aug — A woman drowned after being pulled under the water by a strong current while she was having photos taken in her wedding dress near waterfalls, Quebec police said.

Sgt Ronald McInnis of the Quebec provincial police said her body was recovered about four hours after she disappeared under the water. Because there was no swimming barrier, she had been pulled under the water by a strong current while she was getting her wedding dress photos taken, he said.

While she was being photographed with her feet in the water, the dress became saturated with water, leaving her unable to stay above water, according to authorities.

The West Nile virus causes kidney disease

HOUSTON, 26 Aug — The West Nile virus causes serious and lasting damage to people’s kidneys, a new study released here said on Wednesday. According to local TV channel ABC13 reports, the study was conducted by Houston’s Baylor College of Medicine researchers tracking local people for years after they were infected with the mosquito-borne infection.

Researchers found that four in 10 patients had varying stages of kidney disease related to the West Nile virus, which was first identified in Uganda in 1937 and first discovered in the United States in 1999.

Kristy Murray, a professor of tropical medicine at Baylor College of Medicine and the study’s senior author, said that this demonstrates that everybody, not just the elderly and the immune-compromised, need to take precautions against mosquitoes.

The West Nile virus is a mosquito-borne illness that can lead to serious neurological disease in some cases, and its symptoms include sudden onset of fever, headache, nausea, dizziness and muscle weakness. Commonly seen in temperate and tropical regions, the West Nile virus mainly infects birds, but is also known to infect human bodies mainly through mosquito biting.
Man bites snake to death in revenge

A Nepali man who was bitten by a cobra snake subsequently bit the snake to death, a local newspaper reported on 23 August.

After being bitten by the snake, while he was working in his rice paddy on 21 August, 55-year-old Mohamed Salim said his snake chased the snake, caught it and bit it until it died, the Annapurna Post reported, according to Reuters.

“I could have killed it with a stick but it bit with my teeth instead because I was angry,” Miya was quoted as saying.

Miya, who lives in a village some 125 miles (200 kilometres) southeast of the Nepali capital of Kathmandu, was receiving treatment at a village health post at the time of the news report and was not in danger of dying from his snakebite. He will not be charged with killing the snake, a local police official said, because cobras (called “goman” in Nepal) are not listed as endangered in the country.

In short, a snake has died of manslaughter.

Shirish Kunder extends the olive branch; apologises to SRK publicly

MUMBAI, 26 Aug—F ilmmaker Shirish Kunder has finally put an end to the ongoing animosity between him and superstar Shah Rukh Khan by tweeting a public apology.

The editor-turned-director, who is married to Shah Rukh’s close friend, choreographer-director Farah Khan, had created a stir last year when he took to Twitter for a pint at the superstar’s mega-budget venture “RA One”.

"I just heard a 150 Cr firework fizzler,” Kunder had tweeted. However, Kunder has now apologised for the same in a tweet on Saturday and says he regrets it.

“I’ll always regret one thing that I feel very guilty about. I sincerely apologise for my tweet on ‘RA One’;” he tweeted. In January this year, Kunder and Shah Rukh were caught in a brawl at actor Anil Kapoor’s house, possibly over the called truce.

Recently, Shah Rukh also got photographs clicked with the aliens of Kunder’s new directorial ‘Joker’. This act sparked speculations that the actor is helping in promoting the film.

However, Farah, who was present at a press release event for her acting debut in ‘Shirin Farhad Ki Toh Nikal Padi’, lashed out when asked if Shah Rukh was promoting her husband’s film.

Skip seems to welcome the attention, although Fifty Pence sometimes annoys her with the pecking. But the pair may soon be parted. “There are wild ducks who come to my duck pond so I’m hoping Fifty Pence will find a boyfriend there and have some ducklings of her own,” said Ms Pyrah, of Barlby, North Yorksire.

“But when it comes to that, the dogs and I will be sad to see her go.”

During an interview in 2009, she said: “I couldn’t marry John Mayer, it’d be so intense. I’d definitely shag the $!t out of him though. I’ll go on record saying that.”

Mayer is known to harbour aspirations across the pond, having dated Jennifer Aniston, Jessica Simpson, Lindsay Lohan and Taylor Swift in the past.

Bayern sink new boys Fuerth as Bundesliga turns 50

MUNICH, 26 Aug.—Bayern Munich opened their German league campaign with a comfortable 3-0 win at newly promoted Greuther Fuerth on Saturday afternoon, on the opening weekend of the Bundesliga’s 50th season.

Fuerth were making their Bundesliga debut and held their famous Bavarian neighbours for most of the first half until their defence finally cracked as goals from Thomas Mueller, Mario Mandzukic and Arjen Robben secured the win.

With half-time looming, new Bayern signing Dante headed down from a corner and although Fuerth defender Heinrich Schmidt failed to get a hand to the ball, the assistant referee signalled for a penalty and Dante subsequently converted.

Bayern doubled their lead in the 58th minute when Robben attacked the Fuerth defence on the right and after his shot was parried by Max Grun, Mandzukic was on hand to head home and make it 2-0.

Since signing from Wolfsburg, the Croation striker has scored four goals in three games for Bayern, including two in Monday’s 4-0 German Cup first-round win at Jahn Regensburg.

Robben claimed the third 12 minutes from time with a spectacular shot from the left side of the box that travelled inside the near post from a tight angle. Borussia Moenchengladbach responded after their home defeat by Dynamo Kiev in Tuesday’s Champions League play-off first leg with a 2-1 victory at home to Hoffenheim.

Eto’o returns for Cameroon after eight-month ban

YAOUNDE, 26 Aug.—Samuel Eto’o returned for Cameroon in a friendly international suspension next month after being recalled by Cameroon for an African Nations Cup first-round first-leg qualifier against Cape Verde Islands.

The 31-year-old forward was banned for eight months after leading a player strike in November over unpaid bonuses. The row caused the team to cancel a friendly in Algeria.

The ban was expected to end the 15-year, 109-cap international career of the four-times African Footballer of the Year widely regarded as Cameroon’s greatest player.

Eto’, though, will return against Cape Verde Islands in Praia on 8 September, the Cameroon Football Federation said on Saturday as they announced a 23-man squad.

The two-legged match will decide a place at the 2013 finals in South Africa. The return leg is in Yaounde in October.

Valverde wins eighth stage of Spanish Tour

MADRID, 26 Aug.—Spain’s Alejandro Valverde won the eighth stage of the Tour de Spain as Joaquin Rodriguez retained possession of the leader’s red jersey on Saturday. Valverde, riding for the Movistar team, was adding this 174-km ride from Lleida to Collada de la Gallina in Andorra to his win in the third stage in Alcaniz.

The 32-year-old prevailed in a sprint from Rodriguez and Saxo-Bank’s Alberto Contador after the concluding climb up the Col de la Gallina. Team Sky’s Christopher Froome crossed the line in fourth, 15 seconds behind the leader, and Contador, 40sec adrift, with Valverde 50s off the pace.

Contador, winner of the Vuelta in 2008, appeared best placed to win the stage when he opened up a gap of around 100m only for Rodriguez to eventually win the stage and catch him to set up the final dash for the line.

Earlier in the day was marked by a six-man breakaway comprising Amael Moinard (BMC) and Michael Burr (Cofidis), ‘Australia’s’ Cameron Meyer (Orica-Greenedge), Javier Aramendia (Caja Rural), Javier Ramirez Abeja (Andalucia) and Matijn Keizer. Mexican gangs block roads, torch vehicles in western Mexico

MEXICO CITY, 26 Aug—Armed gangs blocked highways throughout Guadalajara, Mexico’s second biggest city, on Saturday and vehicles were set on fire amid a surge in drug-war violence.

Police confirmed seven unauthorized roadblocks constructed with charred, smoldering cars and trucks within the Guadalajara city limits and 15 others in the surrounding Jalisco state, in western Mexico.Luis Carlos Najera, police chief for Jalisco state, told reporters at a news conference late Saturday that one man was seriously wounded by gunfire, but no arrests had been made. “We don’t know who is behind this operation,” said Najera. He added that all of the roadblocks have since been cleared.

Guadalajara has not seen the level of drug cartel-related violence as other areas, but similar flaming roadblocks shook the city in early March as military forces successfully sought to arrest a prominent cartel leader. Two people were killed during that operation. Jalisco state has been a stronghold of the Sinaloa Cartel since the 1990s, when traffickers first started to use Mexico as a “trampoline” to bounce cocaine into the United States. It has recently seen an upsurge in violence as Sinaloa Cartel gunmen battle rivals from the upstart Zetas cartel, which is displacing older trafficking groups in many parts of Mexico. More than 55,000 Mexicans have been killed in drug-related violence since President Felipe Calderon took office in December 2006 and launched his crackdown on cartels. —Reuters
