Fire-razed area sees land preparations in Meiktila

MEIKTILA, 29 May — Land preparation works started on 26 May morning at the fire-affected Chanaye Thaya area in Aung San ward of Meiktila that had experienced fires caused by a series of conflicts.

“It is the task of clearing debris on the fire-razed land. Follow-up tasks will be made after land preparations by bulldozers concluded. The land is not ready for construction work. Now is the stage of clearing debris”, says a responsible person of Mandalay-based KT Company which is dealing with debris cleaning and land preparation works.

Before the works of clearing debris in the area, property owners, who were in relief camps temporarily, had already been allowed to bring back their remaining belongings.

There were 600 fire-razed houses in the area. Measures are being taken to rebuild a low-priced housing or a low-cost condominium.

“We learnt first that low-priced houses will be built on the plots of land of fire victims and two-or three-storey low-priced condos later. Whatever arrangements are made, we want to stay back on our own plots”, says a local of Chanaye Thaya area.

Fire crews and fire trucks faced a spate of difficulties in the fight against fire during the conflict as streets and drains in the area were constructed unsystematically.

Obama, NATO’s Rasmussen to discuss Afghanistan on Friday

WASHINGTON, 29 May—President Barack Obama will meet with NATO Secretary General Anders Fogh Rasmussen at the White House on Friday to discuss Afghanistan and other security concerns, White House spokesman Jay Carney said on Tuesday.

The meeting comes as NATO and the United States prepare to withdraw most troops from Afghanistan, ending a lengthy war that began after the 11 Sept, 2001 attacks on the United States.

More than 60,000 US troops are still in Afghanistan.

Obama is due to announce in the coming weeks how many combat troops the United States will leave in the country next year, and how many forces will stay behind to train and support Afghan forces and carry out some operations.

“The President looks forward to discussing global and regional security concerns with the Secretary General, to include ending the war in Afghanistan while building an enduring partnership with the Afghan government,” Carney said in a statement.

Pakistan’s Sharif in talks with China over power projects

ISLAMABAD, 29 May—Pakistan’s incoming Prime Minister Nawaz Sharif said on Tuesday he has already sought Chinese help in power projects needed to overcome chronic power shortages in Pakistan.

“I have already discussed projects to overcome power shortages with Chinese and Turkish leadership,” Sharif told a gathering in Lahore to celebrate the 15th anniversary of Pakistan’s nuclear tests in May 1998.

He mentioned the $11 billion Basham Dam proposed to be built over the River Indus in Gilgit-Baltistan territory bordering China. “The Basham Dam project is ready to be constructed,” he said.

Sharif said that power generation is a profitable business and that he has invited Chinese and Turkish companies to set up power projects and repatriate their profits back home.

On his European visit, Pakistani government officials have also confirmed that Pakistan is in discussions with China for the setting up of additional nuclear power plants with help from China, which has already built two 300 megawatt nuclear power plants and is working on two more due to be commissioned in 2016 and 2017.

Pakistan has toyed for decades with the idea of constructing the Basham Dam, 315 kilometres upstream of Tarbela Dam built in 1970 under the Indus Basin Treaty brokered by the World Bank. However, the World Bank has refused to finance the Basham Dam project because India has a claim over territory where the dam is proposed to be built. “We want to live with honour. We do not want to beg for alms,” Sharif said, urging people who have been protesting over power cuts to have patience.

Gunmen storm governor office building in Afghan Panjsher Province, one killed

KABUL, 29 May—At least one policeman and several others injured early on Wednesday morning when six or seven Taliban gunmen and suicide bombers launched an attack against the provincial governor office building in eastern Afghan Province of Panjsher, a police source said.

The Panjsher Province with Bazarak as its capital 200 km north of Kabul has been branded as the most peaceful province in eastern Afghanistan.

“A group of militants numbered five or six or seven carried the attack around 4.00 am local time,” the source said.

First one suicide bomber detonated his explosive jacket near the entrance of the compound and follow ing the blast other gunmen seized the building,” the source said, adding details will be released to media later in the day.

The Wednesday’s attack is the second major complex attack launched by the Taliban in the insurgency-hit country within week.

On Friday, four people, including a child and a policeman, were killed and 17 others wounded as Taliban stormed a UN-affiliated compound in capital Kabul.

After fierce gunfight and explosions lasting for hours, the Afghan police rescued 10 foreign aid workers from a bunker in the compound and the attack also claimed the lives of six attackers.

Hollande urges action to tackle high joblessness in Europe

PARIS, 29 May—French President Francois Hollande on Tuesday called on his European partners to speed up moves to implement mechanisms able to reduce the rampant unemployment rate across the eurozone.

“We must act urgently. There are 6 millions young people without jobs ... that ask our help... Are we going to leave today’s generation without prospects?” Hollande asked. Speaking at a meeting organised by Bundesbank Institute at Sciences Po Paris, the president pointed out the emergency to mobilize the live-year European fund, worth 6 billion euros (7.7 billion US dollars), to stimulate job creation mainly in countries where joblessness rate exceeded 20 percent.

“Going fast is the primary objective when there is an emergency, and there is urgent need for youth employment... Today, there is a willingness to mobilize the International Investment Bank’s fund. Let’s speed moves,” he said.

The unemployment rate of young Europeans reached 23.6 percent in January, more than double that of older generations.

Considered creating jobs his “sole priority and mobilization,” Hollande also wanted to mobilize financial resources firms across the eurozone to encourage their initiatives to recruit poorly-skilled young workers.

As part of the joint efforts to draw a common roadmap to reduce unemployment, Hollande met with German and Italian finance and labour ministers, hoping that Paris initiative will lead to the adoption of a concrete working plan during next European Council meeting scheduled for 27 and 28 June.
Mexico discovers eight archeological sites

MEXICO CITY, 29 May
—Eight archeological sites of native American Cucapa culture were discovered in the northern Colorado desert, Mexico’s National Institute of Anthropology and History (INAH) said on Monday.

After three years of exploration with the help of indigenous Cucapa people, eight temporary camps, dating back to 400 to 7,000 years, as indicated by their pottery and stone pieces. They also found places where iron oxide, which was used as body pigment and wall paint, was extracted.

Five to seven small corrals were found in each camp, indicating several families had temporarily lived there, archeologist Antonio Porcayo Michelini said.

The Cucapa people are one of the four ethnic Yuhan-speaking groups. They are originally from Baja California in northwest Mexico, and have been living there for at least 2,000 years, as indicated by their linguistic roots, Porcayo said.—Xinhua

SAN FRANCISCO, 29 May—Apple Inc Chief Executive Tim Cook defended the company’s record of innovation under his stewardship, saying he expected it would release “several more game changers” and hinted that wearable computers could be among them.

Cuba to increase unrestricted Internet access at new outlets

HAVANA, 29 May—Cuban authorities said that 2.6 million Cubans, out of a population of 11.2 million, have access to the Internet, but until now most have only been able to explore a limited, state-controlled “intranet” basket of approved websites.

The decree made clear the new Internet access would be closely monitored, warning users it could not be used to “endorse or prejudice public security, or the integrity and sovereignty of the nation.” Currently, unrestricted access to Internet in Cuba is available only to select institutions and professionals and to luxury hotels catering to tourists.

The communist-led island says that 2.6 million Cubans, out of a population of 11.2 million, have access to the Internet, but until now most have only been able to explore a limited, state-controlled “intranet” basket of approved websites.

While Cubans will have greater, unrestricted access to the Internet, it will still be too expensive for most of them, the equivalent of $4.50 an hour in a country where the average monthly salary amounts to $20.—Reuters

Russia launches manned spaceship to ISS

Russian cosmonaut Fyodor Yurchikhin, NASA astronaut Karen Nyberg and Luca Parmitano from the European Space Agency onboard the spaceship formed the 3637 expedition of the International Space Station (ISS).

Astronauts will arrive at the station in a six-hour, four-revolution-around-the-Earth flight after the launch. It is the second Soyuz-TMA spaceship to reach the ISS in a fast mode instead of two days’ journey, Roscosmos said.

The crew will conduct 34 experiments during their 172-day mission in the orbital station. They will prepare the station for docking with the Nauka laboratory module, which is scheduled to be launched in December.

Astronauts will expect the arrival of two Progress cargo ships as well as other spacecraft during their stay in the station, according to the Roscosmos.

In the end, the researchers found the white tiger carries a variant of a pigment gene called SLC45A2, which had already been associated with light coloration in modern Europeans and in other animals, including horses, chickens, and fish.

The variant of the gene primarily inhibits the synthesis of red and yellow pigments but has little to no effect on black, which explains why white tigers still show characteristic dark stripes, the researchers said.

“The genetic study solved the mystery about what makes those tigers white,” Luo Shujin, author of the study said in an interview with Xinhua. “It shows the white tiger morph is a naturally occurring feature and should be considered a part of the genetic diversity of tigers that is worth conserving.” White tigers were first discovered in the Indian jungle as a variant of Bengal tigers but have now disappeared from the wild, Luo said.

Luo said that many white tigers in captivity are inbred in order to maintain the white coat trait and consequently suffer some health problems such as crossed eyes, leading to the controversial speculation that the white tiger mutation is perhaps a genetic defect.—Xinhua

After three years of exploration with the help of indigenous Cucapa people, eight temporary camps, dating back to 400 to 7,000 years ago, were discovered in the mountains of Sierra del Mayor south of Mexico City on the Mexico-US border. As the excavation proceeded, experts found hundreds of animal bones — some of them from extinct species — as well as pottery and stone pieces. “It’s an area where it’s ripe for exploration,” Cook said on Tuesday at the All Things Digital” D11 conference, an annual gathering of technology and media executives in the California coastal resort town of Rancho Palos Verdes.

“It’s ripe for us all getting excited about. I think there will be tons of companies playing in this.”

His remarks come at a time when worries are mounting that the company which created the smartphone and tablet market is ceding ground to competitors such as Samsung Electronics Co Ltd and Google Inc, with a slowdown in earnings growth hitting its share price.

Cook stopped short of clarifying if Apple was working on wearable products amid speculation that it is developing a smartwatch, saying only that wearable computers had to be compelling.

He added that Google’s Glass — a cross between a mobile computer and eye-glasses that can both record video and access the Internet — is likely to have only limited appeal.

“There’s nothing that’s going to convince a kid who has never worn glasses or a band or a watch to wear one, or at least I haven’t seen it,” he said in the near one-and-a-half-hour session and answer.

“So I think there’s lots of things to solve in this space.”

Cook also said he has a “grand vision” for television that goes beyond an existing $99 Apple TV streaming device, but did not go into details.

NEW YORK, 29 May—A Morgan Stanley property unit is raising up to $3 billion global fund

Morgan Stanley’s (MS.N) real estate unit, Morgan Stanley Real Estate Funds, is looking to raise between $1 billion and $3 billion for a global property fund, the Wall Street Journal reported, citing people familiar with the discussions.

Morgan Stanley executives have begun talks with pension funds and other prospective investors, and are hoping that China Investment Corp (CIC.U) will become an anchor investor, the Journal reported.

China Investment, a huge government-run fund, owns a 6.4 percent stake in Morgan Stanley, according to Reuters data.

Since the 2008 financial crisis, private funding in real estate has been dominated by private-equity companies such as Blackstone Group LP (BX.N) and Starwood Capital Group, which have raised billions of dollars to take advantage of the low market values of real estate.

A Morgan Stanley executive declined to comment to the Wall Street Journal. The bank could not be reached by Reuters outside of regular business hours.

Nearly one in four cancer cases early detected in Scotland

EDINBURGH, 29 May—Almost one quarter of cancer cases are detected at the earliest possible stage in Scotland, official figures released on Tuesday showed.

In 2010 and 2011, 23 percent of people diagnosed with breast, colorectal or lung cancer were picked up at the earliest stage (stage one), according to statistics from the National Health Service (NHS) Scotland.

The detect cancer early programme aims at a 25 percent increase in the percentage of cancer cases diagnosed in the first stages of the disease by 2015.

Scotland’s Health Secretary Alex Neil said more lives could be saved in Scotland through early detection. However, more people need to be aware of the signs and symptoms of cancer, and participate in the screening programmes, he added.

“Our breast cancer drive saw the number of women going to their general physicians with breast symptoms increase by 50 percent. We also recently launched our bowel cancer campaign and plan to run a lung cancer drive later this year,” Neil said.

SYDNEY, 29 May—One in three Australians is at increased risk of kidney disease, an often undetected silent killer, according to Kidney Health Australia (KHA).

Australians are being reminded of the dangers of kidney disease during Kidney Health Week, launched on Monday and held until Sunday 1 June.

Federal Minister for Health Tanya Plibersek and Shadow Minister for Health and Ageing Peter Dutton attended the opening at Parliament House in Canberra on Monday morning.

Currently in Australia nearly 11,000 people are on dialysis, over 1,000 are waiting for a kidney transplant and over 54 die with kidney-related disease every day, KHA reports.

Despite these confronting statistics, chronic kidney disease still remains low on the radar of many Australians, said Anne Wilson, KHA CEO.

“Improved early detection is the key to tackling chronic kidney disease, especially as our population ages, and more people enter high risk categories,” said Wilson.

“Australians in high risk categories over the age of 25 are urged to undergo a risk assessment as chronic kidney disease has no warning signs. It is common, harmful but treatable if caught early.”

“Early detection of chronic kidney disease can extend the life of your kidneys, keeping you healthy for as long as possible,” she added. KHA is urging Australians to take an online risk assessment for kidney disease, as early detection is not only vital for managing the disease but also reduce the cost and burden on the health system.

From 2009 to 2020, treating end-stage kidney disease alone is estimated to cost over 12 billion AU dollars (11.55 billion US dollars) — largely because of the expense of dialysis.

Risk factors for kidney disease include being 60 years of age or older, obesity, smoking, high blood pressure, family history, and having already had heart problems or a stroke.

Japan, S Korea defence ministers’ talks in Singapore to be shelved

Tokyo, 29 May — A meeting between Japanese Defence Minister Itsunori Onodera and his South Korean counterpart Kim Kwan Jin that was being arranged to take place on the sidelines of the Asia Security Summit to be held in Singapore from Friday will be shelved, a Japanese government source said on Tuesday.

The South Korean government is likely to have decided not to go through with the bilateral talks in line with its stance of not holding summit or ministerial meetings with Japan due to views on history recently expressed by Japanese politicians, the source said.

A trilateral meeting between Onodera, Kim and US Secretary of Defence Chuck Hagel is still planned to take place on Saturday on the fringes of the regional gathering, also known as the Shangri-La Dialogue as the venue of the event, the Shangri-La Hotel.

A similar three-way meeting was held last in June 2010. Onodera is also expected to hold a separate meeting with Hagel.

Although Japan and South Korea had also sought to hold bilateral talks to discuss topics such as North Korea-related issues and defence exchanges, Seoul informed Tokyo by Tuesday it could not set a date for the meeting, the source said.

May 31 is World No Tobacco Day, a day designated by the World Health Organization to draw global attention to the tobacco epidemic and to advocate for strategies to reduce tobacco use. The theme for 2013 is the ban tobacco advertising, promotion and sponsorship. A comprehensive ban of all tobacco advertising, promotion and sponsorship is required under the WHO Framework Convention on Tobacco Control (WHO FCTC) for all Parties to this treaty within five years of the entry into force of the Convention for that country. The Framework Convention shows that comprehensive advertising bans lead to reductions in the numbers of people starting and continuing smoking. Statistics from the countries with advertising bans is one of the most cost-effective ways to reduce tobacco demand and that tobacco control “best buy”.

Gradual killer

The tobacco epidemic is one of the biggest public health threats the world has ever faced. It kills nearly 6 million people a year, 70% of whom more than 5 million are from direct tobacco use and more than 600,000 are nonsmokers exposed to second-hand smoke. Approximately one person dies every six seconds due to tobacco and this accounts for one in 10 adult deaths. Up to half of current users will eventually die from tobacco-related disease. Nearly 80% of the more than one billion smokers worldwide live in low- and middle-income countries, where the burden of tobacco-related illness and death is heaviest. Tobacco users who die prematurely deprive their families of income, raise the cost of health care and hinder economic development.

In some countries, children from poor households are frequently employed in tobacco farming to provide family income. These children are especially vulnerable to “green tobacco sickness”, which is caused by the nicotine that is absorbed through the skin from the handling of wet tobacco leaves. Because there is a lag of several years between when people start using tobacco and when their health suffers the first effects of tobacco-related disease and death has just begun. * Tobacco caused 100 million deaths in the 20th century. If current trends continue, it may cause about one billion deaths in the 21st century. * Unchecked, tobacco-related deaths will increase by more than eight million per year by 2030. More than 80% of those deaths will be in low- and middle-income countries. * Enforce bans on tobacco advertising, promotion and sponsorship. Tobacco advertising, promotion and sponsorship are more socially acceptable, impede efforts to educate people about the hazards of tobacco use, and strengthen the tobacco industry’s influence over sports, entertainment and leisure businesses. A comprehensive ban on all advertising, promotion and sponsorship protects people from industry marketing tactics and reduces excessive tobacco consumption by about 7%, independent of other tobacco control interventions. Complete bans in all countries that prohibit advertising, promotion and sponsorship protect people from industry marketing and could decrease the number of people starting and using tobacco and the tobacco industry’s ability to continue marketing to young people who have not yet started to use tobacco, and to adult tobacco users who want to quit. Partial bans have little or no effect. If advertising is prohibited in a particular medium, the tobacco industry merely redirects expenditures to places where advertising is permitted.

The tobacco industry strongly opposes marketing bans because they are highly effective in reducing tobacco use. The industry often argues that outright bans on advertising, promotion and sponsorship are not necessary and that voluntary codes and self-regulation are sufficient. Only about 60% of the world’s population is covered by comprehensive bans on all tobacco advertising, promotion and sponsorship.

Myanmar and the WHO FCTC

In May 1999, the World Health Assembly, the governing body of the World Health Organization adopted a resolution (WHA 52.18) which paved the way for the negotiating process on the WHO FCTC and possible related protocols. Myanmar along with fellow Member States actively participated in the negotiating process of the WHO FCTC and strongly supported the convention. Myanmar delegates expressed their strong commitment towards comprehensive tobacco control measures and voiced for the need of a comprehensive ban on all forms of tobacco advertisement including cross-border and indirect advertising. Myanmar proudly hosted the 4th Inter-country Consultation Meeting of Framework Convention on Tobacco Control in August 2002, one of the countries of South East Asia Region issued the “Yangon Declaratin”.

Myanmar became a signatory to the FCTC on the 23rd of October 2003 and became a Party to the Convention on the 20th of April, 2004; it was the 11th country to become Party to the Convention.

Myanmar and the Global Tobacco Surveillance System

Ministry of Health has been implementing tobacco control activities in collaboration with related ministries; school-based tobacco control activities are being conducted in coordination with the Ministry of Education. Myanmar has been participating in the Global Tobacco Surveillance System and has conducted Global Youth Tobacco Surveys (GYTS) in 2001, 2004 2007 and 2011 and the Global School Personnel Surveys (GSPS) in 2004 and 2007. The GYTS is a school-based survey of students aged 13-15 years. The GSPS is a school-based survey of all school personnel from the schools that the GYTS was conducted. The GYTS and GSPS were conducted as a nation-wide survey in Myanmar. Between 2001 and 2011, a significant reduction in the proportion of students currently smoked cigarettes is observed (a fall from overall prevalence among 13-15 year olds of 10.2% to 6.8%) but reported use of other tobacco products had increased during the period from 5.7% to 9.8%. The most significant finding was that cigarettes in a store had reduced significantly from 72.9% to 39.2%; percent.

There is no change in percent of students reported to have education on dangers of tobacco. One-third of the students live in homes where others smoke, and one-third of the students are exposed to smoke in restaurants, bars and outdoor public spaces.

Tobacco Control in Myanmar: Challenges and the Way Forward

The National Program on Tobacco Control was officially launched in January 2000 with the drafting and approval of the National Policy on Tobacco Control and Plan of Action. The National Tobacco Control Committee was formed in March 2002. Enforcement and implementation are major challenges that required a clear, pragmatic and action oriented approach.

The program needs regulations with priority on: Implementing pictorial health warnings on all tobacco products; All indoor public places 100% smokefree; Ban on all forms of tobacco advertising and promotion; Education, communication, training and public awareness to support the strengthened legislation and enforcement measures; Setting appropriate price and tax policies; and Identification and mobilization of financial and human resources. Key strategies of National tobacco control program are as follows:

* Strengthening national laws and regulations on tobacco control
* Establishing a Tobacco Control Section under Public Health Division and expanding infra-structure at national and sub-national level
* Building partnership with related ministries and stakeholders

* Building public awareness on harmful of tobacco use and exponential hand

Call for Action

The ultimate goal of World No Tobacco Day is to contribute to prevent present and future generations not only from these devastating health consequences, but also against the social, environmental and economic scourges of tobacco use and exposure to tobacco smoke.

Specific objectives of the 2013 campaign are to:

1. Spur countries to implement WHO FCTC Article 13 and its Guidelines to comprehensively ban tobacco advertising, promotion and sponsorship such that fewer people start and continue to use tobacco; and

2. Drive local, national and international efforts to counteract tobacco industry efforts to undermine tobacco control, specifically industry efforts to stall or stop comprehensive bans on tobacco advertising, promotion and sponsorship.

Ministry of Health has also exerted tremendous effort in advocating for the strengthening enforcement of the existing national law to completely ban tobacco advertising, promotion, and sponsorship by means, media and form and development of a new regulation to completely ban of advertisements, promotion and sponsorship from international TV, radio and social media. Adoption of FCTC Article 5.3 is being given priority to prevent tobacco industry interference in public health policy.

Myanmar Tobacco Control Program needs to set in place mechanisms to strengthen implementation and enforcement of existing tobacco control laws in Myanmar and to develop new regulations needed on key tobacco control policies to bring them in line with WHO FCTC provisions and best practices. The Program is also required to build Myanmar’s capacity for tobacco control in the long-term.

Japan sets next 3 years as investment promotion period

TOKYO, 29 May—The government decided on Wednesday to designate the coming three years as an “intensive investment promoting period” to accelerate its economic growth strategy aimed at conquering nearly two decades of Japan’s deflationary recession.

In the outline of the strategy, presented by economic and fiscal policy minister Akira Amari earlier in the day, the government has positioned the next five years as an “emergency structural reform period,” pledging to bring about industrial reorganization by taking such measures as promoting labour market flexibility.

After a meeting of the inter-ministerial competitiveness council, which has been discussing the strategy, Amari told reporters that Prime Minister Shinzo Abe’s administration will present a rough draft of the strategy at the next gathering of the panel, scheduled to be held next week.

The growth strategy, one of the “three arrows” of Abe’s economic policies dubbed “Abenomics” along with drastic monetary easing and massive fiscal spending, will be adopted by the Cabinet in mid-June, with the aim of activating the economy and promoting private investment and achieving wage hikes and higher employment.

Amari said the strategy has been essentially completed, but he added the government “will continue to discuss some areas,” including agriculture, restructuring and employment rules, as private sector members of the panel, such as academics and company executives, have called for more sweeping deregulation.

According to the outline, the government will try to encourage private investment during the three-year period by providing state support to growing industries and promoting deregulation in those areas.

Abe’s government plans to create a road map to assess progress of key policies in the strategy for three years from fiscal 2013. It will also present another road map on how Japan will bolster growth of the four promising areas to spur 3% growth in the economy over the next ten years.

Aiming to spur the economy by boosting investment and attracting foreign businesses to Japan, the growth strategy calls on the government to introduce special zones, in which management of public facilities, such as airports, are opened to the private sector.

For the exploitation of new markets, Abe’s administration decided to support scientific research, while focusing on greater fluidity in the labour market.

In addition, there will be a focus on fostering human resources capable of operating effectively overseas and creating better working conditions for women. As Abe is eager to draw up a plan to triple exports of Japanese state-of-the-art technologies and products, his government will aim to create a trillion yen business “bridge” by 2020.

Indonesia planning to build up “cyber army”

JAKARTA, 29 May—In a move that is said to save the country’s sovereignty in cyber world, Indonesian defence ministry is planning to build up a particular task force called cyber army to attack on internet hackers who could endanger the sustainability of the state.

A senior official at the ministry said that it would propose a law to legalize the operation of the so-called cyber army. The plan to set up the particular task force was following rampant attacks against state’s Internet portals and websites in the last few years.

“The only law that we have to address cyber crime is the ITIE law,” Pos M Hutabarat, the director general of security potentials at the ministry said on Tuesday, referring to the law that regulates online information and transactions for civilians that carries up to 1 billion rupiah (about 102,000 US dollars) fine for the violators.

Pos said that the law needs to be endorsed quickly so as to speed up the creation of the cyber army in Indonesia.

Pos defined that cyber army that would be set up by Indonesia as a unit of soldiers particularly trained well on information technology, mastering the skills and techniques on how to prevent cyber attacks.

He said that such a cyber army unit has been operating in several countries, including the United States, China, South Korea and Iran for similar purpose.

Will Smith worried about introducing kids to showbiz

The ‘I Am Legend’ actor and his wife Jada Pinkett Smith were worried about introducing their children Jaden, 14, and Willow, 12, into the business because the constant media attention is so addictive and all-consuming.

According to The Sun newspaper, Will admitted: "I think that the major risk of this particular business is strictly emotional. The business has almost a narcotic quality. It’s almost as if you’re introducing a narcotic into your kid’s life.” The ‘Fresh Prince of Bel Air’ star — who has had success as both a rapper and an actor — has been helping Willow pursue a singing career, and supporting Jaden with both his movie and music dreams.
