A video conference was held on Tuesday when Randazzo and the Chinese contracting party both confirmed that the engineering work is well under way. The railroad cars will be delivered in 13 months, stipulated by the Transport Ministry, said citing the executives from CSR Qingdao Sifang Locomotive & Rolling Stock Co. “We want you to tell Argentine’s President that we have already begun to work very hard on the construction of the cars and we are going to fulfill what we signed,” the Chinese executives said.

Colombia’s rebel forces push for ceasefire

Havana, 20 Feb— The Revolutionary Armed Forces of Colombia (FARC) guerrilla group pushed for a bilateral ceasefire on Tuesday, endorsing a proposal put forward by conservative former minister Alvaro Leyva Duran. Ivan Marquez, the FARC’s chief negotiator in peace talks with the government of President Juan Manuel Santos, reproached the government of Argentina for having stopped the national bleeding, and more so when we are in peace talks.” Marquez added the FARC pledged to abide by a truce that would help set the tone for peace talks and further mutual understanding.

Speaking in Havana, Cuba, where the talks are being held, Marquez said “surely the country agrees with former minister Leyva Duran. We must stop the national bleeding, and more so when we are in peace talks.” Marquez added the FARC pledged to abide by a truce that would help set the tone for peace talks and further mutual understanding.

The proposal was published on Monday by Colombian daily El Nuevo Siglo, which cited Leyva calling for “a ceasefire, a bilateral truce, but a real one. Controlled. With an Internationalized Oversight Commission for the truce.”

While the FARC unilaterally put down arms for a month at the start of these talks, Santos has so far resisted a bilateral truce, saying he fears the rebels will use the lull in fighting to re-arm and regroup, as they allegedly did during a truce some 10 years ago.

As a result, while representatives for the two sides sit down to discuss the conditions that will lead to a lasting peace and an end to five decades of fighting, the leftist rebels and military forces continue to clash in the jungles of Colombia.

“For the moment, the problem is not so much reaching enough of those in need. The current law specifies that merely displaying these symbols in public qualifies as a misdemeanor offence. It also says that displays for educational, scientific, artistic or historical purposes, or when the symbol in question was part of the official image of a country, were permitted.

General John Allen to retire, won’t take NATO nomination

WASHINGTON, 20 Feb— US Marine General John Allen, who led NATO forces in Afghanistan and was caught up but later cleared in the scandal that forced CIA chief David Petraeus to resign, said on Tuesday he will retire and forgo his nomination to become NATO’s supreme allied commander because of his wife’s health.

The decision ends the career of one of the US military’s most well-known leaders, who until 10 February spent 19 months in Afghanistan trying to help wind down America’s longest war and strengthen Afghanistan’s military to fight insurgency.

Beyond the pressures of war, Allen faced a media frenzy over a high-profile Pentagon investigation that in January cleared him of wrongdoing in his email exchanges with a Florida socialite, Jill Kelley.

The emails came to light in an investigation of CIA chief and former General David Petraeus, who preceded Allen in Afghanistan and resigned his CIA position in November over an extramarital affair with his biographer, Paula Broadwell.

President Barack Obama and Defence Secretary Leon Panetta made no mention of that probe in statements on Tuesday, instead extolling Allen’s 38-year military career.

Obama cited Allen’s “extraordinary service” in the Afghan war.

“This is a man who has always done what he was asked to do, and he is a man who has always done it well, and we look upon this day with sadness,” Obama said in a statement.

“I am grateful for the sacrifices made by his family in supporting him during his service.”

HUNGARY'S CONSTITUTIONAL COURT OUTLINES LAWS

BUDAPEST, 20 Feb.— The Hungarian Constitutional Court threw out a law banning the display of symbols in history such as the Nazi swastika and the red star, declaring the law unconstitutional in a Tuesday decision.

The court did not object to the principle of the ban, stating that protecting human dignity and the constitutional order from the threats implied in the symbols could well justify a ban.

But it said that the current “Penal Code regulation was too broad and not sufficiently clear, since it specified criminal sanctions for displays of the symbols without considering the reason for the display, the manner in which the given symbol was displayed and the outcome of the display.”

The court said that these shortcomings violated legal security and disproportionately limited freedom of opinion. In reaching this decision the court nullified a Constitutional Court decision of 2000, which found the law to be constitutional. In doing so, it cited the practices of the European Court of Human Rights in Strasbourg. The court decision will take effect as of 30 April of this year.

The reason cited by the court for delaying implementation of the ruling was to allow criminal cases already under investigation to go forward as well as to give the legislature sufficient time to put a more restricted version of the law in place before taking this one off the books.

The current law specifies that merely displaying these symbols in public qualifies as a misdemeanor offence. It also says that displays for educational, scientific, artistic or historical purposes, or when the symbol in question was part of the official image of a country, were permitted.

Buenos Aires, 20 Feb—Argentina will receive Chinese-built trains next year as part of a push to modernize its aging metropolitan railway network that links the capital Buenos Aires with its main suburbs, according to an interview in Argentina’s Transport Minister Florencio Randazzo said on Tuesday.

CSR president Zhang Zaizhong said that his firm is well aware of the project’s importance for the government of Argentina.

The contract for the railroad cars, which are to be built with the latest technology in comfortability, speed and safety, came as a result of the tragic railway accident that killed 51 passengers in Buenos Aires on Feb. 22, 2012.

The tragedy forced the government to intervene in the railway service sector where private companies had been the major players, and ordered the renewal of all railroad cars. Chinese companies won the bid with the most competitive proposals. CSR executives confirmed the advance payment of 164 million US dollars by the government, and reassured the ministry that “we will work quickly to build the trains.”

Moscow, 20 Feb — A meteor that exploded over Russia’s Ural mountains and sent fireballs blazing to earth has set off a rush to find fragments of the space rock which hunters hope could fetch thousands of dollars a piece. Friday’s blast and ensuing shock-wave shattered windows, injured almost 1,200 people and caused about $33 million worth of damage, said local authorities. It also started a “meteorite rush” around the industrial city of Chelyabinsk, 1,500 km (950 miles) east of Moscow, where groups of people have started coming through the snow and ice.

One amateur space enthusiast estimated chunks could be worth anything up to 66,000 rubles ($2,200) per gram — more than 40 times the current cost of gold. “The price is hard to say yet ... The fewer meteorites that are recovered, the higher their price,” said Dmitry Kachalin, a member of the Russian Society of Amateur Meteorite Hunters. Meteorites are parts of a meteor that have fallen to earth. Scientists at the Ural Federal University were the first to announce a significant find — 53 small, stony, black objects, said Lykken, who is also on the science team at Europe’s Large Hadron Collider, or LHC, the world’s largest and highest-energy particle accelerator.

Vietnam shortly to take full control of communication satellites

Hanoi, 20 Feb — Vietnam plans to take full control of its two communication satellites from next month after years with foreign assistance in running the systems, according to the Vietnam Post and Telecommunications Group (VNPT) on Tuesday.

Vietnam launched the first satellite, called Vinasat-1, in 2008 and the second one, Vinasat-2, in 2012.

In the beginning of their operations, the country received foreign assistance in controlling the systems. VNPT and US contractor Lockheed Martin had joint training courses for Vietnamese engineers.

Vietnamese engineers from VNPT, the owner of the two satellites, have successfully controlled the first Vinasat-1 for 27 months after it entered the orbit nine months ahead of schedule, reported the Group.—Xinhua

Boston, 20 Feb — Scientists are still sorting out the details of last year’s discovery of the Higgs boson particle, but add up the numbers and it’s looking good for the future of the universe, scientists said on Monday. “If you use all the physics that we know now and you do what you think is a straightforward calculation, it’s bad news,” Joseph Lykken, a theoretical physicist with the Fermi National Accelerator Laboratory in Batavia, Illinois, told reporters. HTC launches smartphone with revamped software to take on Samsung

London, 20 Feb — Taipei’s HTC Corp has unveiled the new smartphone that it hopes will set it apart from the crowd of Google Android devices on the market and help it to make up ground lost to Samsung. The HTC One is powered by Google’s software, but the company has distinguished it from rivals by using new software, replacing icons on the home screen with a personalized stream of news articles, social networking updates, photos and video.

Chief executive Peter Chou told reporters in London that the BlinkFeed feature would reinvigorate the smartphone experience. “BlinkFeed transforms your home screen into a live feed of information that matters to you,” he said. HTC was an early, and successful, maker of smartphones based on Android, but it has been eclipsed by the increasing dominance of Samsung in the Android market.

Android is widening its lead in smartphone operating systems, with devices running the software capturing nearly 70 percent of the market in the fourth quarter, Gartner said last week. Apple is in second place with 21 percent, while Blackberry and Windows Phone, which Nokia is pinning its hopes on, trailed with 3.5 percent and 3 percent respectively.—Reuters

Apple, Macs hit by hackers who targeted Facebook

Boston, 20 Feb — Apple Inc was recently attacked by hackers who infected Macintosh computers of some employees, the company said on Tuesday in an unprecedented disclosure describing the widest known cyber attacks targeting Apple computers used by corporations.

Unknown hackers infected the computers of some Apple workers when they visited a website for software developers that had been infected with malicious software.

The malware had been designed to attack Mac computers. The same software, which infected Macs by exploiting a flaw in a version of Oracle Corp’s Java software used as a plug-in on Web browsers, was used to launch attacks against Facebook, which the social network disclosed on Friday.

The malware was also employed in attacks against Mac computers used by “other companies,” Apple said, without elaborating on the scale of the assault. Twitter, which disclosed that it had been breached on Friday and that hackers might have accessed some information on about 250,000 users, was hit in the same campaign, according to a person close to the investigation.—Reuters

Apple says aces missile-detection tests in US

Washington, 20 Feb — A Raytheon Co system built into big blimp-like balloons has demonstrated capabilities that could make it easier to detect and track certain enemy ballistic missiles, the company and the US Army’s manager of the programme said. System tests in December at White Sands Missile Range, New Mexico, successfully tracked four fences Elevated Netted Sensor System, or JLENS. It includes a targeting radar and a wide-area surveillance radar with a 360-degree look-around capability that can reach out to 340 miles. Each radar system flies as high as 10,000 feet with a separate, 74-metre-long aerostat capable of operating aloft for up to 30 days while tethered to mobile moorings.

Samsung aims to lead TV market with premium products

Seoul, 20 Feb — Samsung Electronics, the world’s No 1 TV maker, said on Tuesday that it aims to lead the global TV market for eight straight years this year with new premium products. “Samsung has a strategy to bolster its leadership in the global TV market by strengthening its premium TV lineups with SmartTV ‘F8000’ series and UHD TV,” Samsung said in an e-mailed Press release.

As parked 787s multiply, Boeing cash drain worries grow

EVERETT, 20 Feb— Paine Field Airport, next door to Boeing Co’s (BA.N) widebody plant north of Seattle, is getting crowded as 10 new 787 Dreamliners flank the runway, sparkling with contrasting and colourful liveries, including Poland’s LOT, Britain’s Thomson Airways and China Southern Airlines (600029.SS). It is a similar story several thousand miles away, outside the company’s North Charleston, South Carolina final assembly building, where space is taken up by four 787s destined for Air India.AINUL.

A month after the global fleet of the carbon-composite jets were grounded as US and Japanese regulators carry out investigation into overheating batteries, the parked airliners are a stark symbol of deepening problems this is causing Boeing. At Paine Field in Everett, Boeing plans to move some of its other planes around to make room for new 787 production lines, and says it has room to store all the 787s it is making. But Boeing is finding it increasingly difficult to convince Wall Street that its balance sheet is not going to be strained by the crisis. Until the Dreamliner is cleared to fly again, which could be several months, Boeing will be starved of cash. But despite the fact that it has to keep producing and maintaining the 787s it is making.

The world’s largest planemaker is being hit on a number of financial fronts, as well as suffering potential damage to its brand image. It is unable to deliver the five Dreamliners being produced per month, missing out on about $200 million in final cash payments from customers every month. The 787 is grounded, while it has no choice but to pay out millions of dollars to clean, maintain and insure the parked planes.

Almost one-third of chemotherapy used

NEW YORK, 20 Feb — About one-third of chemotherapy agents are used to fight cancers that drug regulators never approved them to treat, says a new study. Chemotherapies — drugs that kill rapidly dividing cells — are approved by the Food and Drug Administration (FDA) to fight specific cancers, but there’s nothing stopping doctors from prescribing the drugs “off-label” to treat other types of tumors.

Some researchers have questioned whether doctors were prescribing the expensive and toxic drugs outside of their intended use, according to the study’s researchers, led by Rena Conti, an assistant professor of health policy and economics at the University of Chicago. “The main criticism of off-label prescribing has been the concern that it jeopardizes patient safety because the full risk-benefit ratio is often not completely understood,” wrote the University of Toronto’s Dr Monika Kryzanowska, said the guideline addressed.

In November the Justice Department and the Securities and Exchange Commission released new provisions that would let companies escape criminal liability for misconduct of individual employees if they already have strong safeguards and internal compliance systems in place. “Such assurance should be provided through legislative reform of the FCPA,” the Chamber, the American Bankers Association, the National Association of Manufacturers and two dozen others said in a letter to the federal regulators. Robot-assisted hysterectomies on the rise

NEW YORK, 20 Feb — The proportion of women having their uterus removed using robotic-assisted surgery increased from one in 200 procedures in 2007 to almost one in 10 in 2010, according to a new study. However, the tool didn’t reduce complications linked to hysterectomy or otherwise improve women’s outlook after surgery, researchers found. And it raised the cost of the procedure by almost one-third. “This is clearly in some ways a waste of resources,” said Joel Weissman from Brigham and Women’s Hospital in Boston, who co-wrote an editorial published with the study. “It’s a waste because there are equally good options and one is just more expensive than the other,” he told Reuters Health.

According to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, about 600,000 hysterectomies are performed each year in the US. Researchers led by Dr. Jason Wright from Columbia University in New York analyzed records from more than 260,000 women who had the procedure because of endometriosis, bleeding or fibroids between 2007 and 2010. During that time, the number of women treated both robotic and standard minimally-invasive surgery, rather than open surgery, increased. During robotic or minimally-invasive non-robotic surgery, a similar proportion of patients — between five and six percent — had complications such as bladder injuries or bleeding.

There was also no difference in women’s chances of needing a blood transfusion or requiring further care at a nursing home post-surgery, based on procedure type. The only advantage to robotic surgery was a drop in the proportion of women staying longer than two days in the hospital — 20 percent, versus 25 percent of those who had standard minimally-invasive surgery, also known as laparoscopy.
Hollande gives vote of confidence during Athens visit

According to local media reports, Hollande is targeting the lease for the exploration of gas reserves in the Aegean Sea. Hollande’s six-hour visit in the Greek capital rounds up on Tuesday afternoon with a business forum during which an agreement for the establishment of a Greece-France Business Council will be sealed. Currently, France is among Greece’s largest lenders through the EU/International Monetary Fund support mechanism and among the largest foreign investors in the country.

“I am here as leader of a country who supported Greece’s stay in the euro zone,” Hollande said during a visit to Athens amid a fresh wave of anti-austerity protests. “I came to Athens to call on French businesses to further invest in Greece,” he said after a meeting with Greek Prime Minister Antonis Samaras.

“We are here to show solidarity and confidence to Greece. We need to give Greece every chance to meet the goals set,” he said, referring to the painful stabilization and growth programme launched three years ago to address the severe Greek debt crisis. In his first visit to Athens as the French President, Hollande led a delegation of dozens of French businessmen who seek investment opportunities in Greece in various sectors such as energy, construction, infrastructure, transport and tourism.

In his first visit to Athens as the French President, Hollande led a delegation of dozens of French businessmen who seek investment opportunities in Greece in various sectors such as energy, construction, infrastructure, transport and tourism.

Large-scale military operations in Mali “are coming to an end,” said Cissoko. Following talks with French Foreign Minister Laurent Fabius in Paris, the Malian senior official pledged to “end election operations no later than 31 July” and invited the different Malian factions to participate in the national dialogue in a bid to outline the country’s roadmap to guarantee political stability and boost development in the conflict-torn country.

In a joint Press conference, Fabius stressed that military operation in Mali was “in progress as terrorists have not all been killed.” In a statement posted on its website, the defence ministry said 150 French and Malian soldiers, supported by vehicle patrol and Mirage fighter jets, attacked the Adrar des Ifoughas mountains where Islamist insurgents took refuge. “The French mission was able to locate terrorist elements in their hideout, to chase them and to kill more than 20 of them,” it added.

One French soldier was killed during the operation, bringing the death toll of French troops in Mali to two since the start of Seval operation on 11 January.

US drilling specialists work to kill Apache gas well in Gulf of Mexico

Houston, 20 Feb—Drilling specialists have been pumping heavy fluids into a gas well in the Gulf of Mexico in a bid to halt natural gas moving underground from the site, local media reported on Tuesday.

The intervention is taking place about two weeks after workers detected an uncontrolled flow of fluid at a well, owned by Houston-based Apache Corp, some 80 kilometres off the Louisiana coast on 4 February, according to the website of newspaper The Houston Chronicle.

Though Apache activated a blowout preventer in response and apparently was successful in keeping natural gas from escaping the well, later tests detected the hydrocarbon had migrated from the bottom of the 8,300-foot (about 2,530 meters) hole to a shallower sand formation 1,100 feet (335 metres) below the sea floor, according to the report.

The company evacuated 15 nonessential workers from the drilling rig and hired specialists at Boots & Coots, a Halliburton company, to kill the well.

Apache is also moving a rig to the site, in case a relief well is needed to intercept the existing well bore, according to reports. US federal regulators said they will only deem the well kill operation complete “when the diagnostic tests demonstrate that there is no existence of natural gas in the well and appropriate steps are taken to plug the well.”

Havana, 20 Feb—Russian Prime Minister Dmitry Medvedev is expected to arrive on Thursday in Cuba on an official visit aimed at boosting trade diversification and joint industrial, pharmaceutical and energy projects, an official news source confirmed on Tuesday.

Medvedev’s agenda included meeting with Cuban leader Raul Castro to discuss greater economic cooperation between the two countries, online news site Cubadebate reported. The Cuba visit is part of the Russian prime minister’s Latin American tour, which will also take him to Brazil.

Russian Foreign Minister Sergei Lavrov announced on Monday that Cuba and Russia planned to sign a cooperation agreement for joint research in outer space. The agreement will promote Russian-Cuban cooperation in the fields of telecommunication, satellite navigation, space probe, space medicine and biology, as well as the training of Cuban personnel.

Cuba and Russia were close political and economic allies during the Cold War era, but relations cooled following the collapse of the Soviet Union.

Starting from 2005, however, both governments have pursued closer collaboration and political ties. Raul Castro visited Moscow on 14 July, 2012 and met with his Russian counterpart Vladimir Putin, Medvedev and the head of the Russian Security Council, Nikolai Patrushev.

Currently Russia is Cuba’s ninth largest trade partner, with trade volume reaching 224 million US dollars in 2011, according to the latest published figures.

Towards ecologically sustainable society

Water and energy systems have historically been treated as separate realms, with little consideration of one in the planning of the other, and little discussion of interactions between the two. Yet in reality, they are closely interlinked. Water is needed in the vast majority of global energy production systems—for fuel extraction and processing, in hydropower production, and for power-plant cooling, among other uses. And energy is essential for pumping, treating and distributing water.

Efforts to address climate change have heightened awareness of these linkages and of the need to integrate water and energy planning and decision-making. A great deal of this has to do with water scarcity: in many places, conflicts are arising between water demand for energy production, for urban use, for agricultural irrigation, and to support environmental systems.

Meanwhile, energy demand from the water sector—especially for irrigation, but also for desalination and water and sewage treatment—has emerged as a real concern; not only can it strain already overtaxed energy systems, but it also adds significantly to greenhouse gas emissions. Increasing the throughput of these resources increases the economy’s ecological footprint, destroys natural resources and renders a society economically unsustainable.

Our present industrialization gives us a high material standard of living that is widely shared but the problem is that it’s not ecologically sustainable. As trying to grow the economy through growth in throughput has to hit a limit, we need to change the way we think if we’re going to have an ecologically sustainable society that has a high standard of living which is extensively and equitably shared among the human population.

Tabodwe, the month of bonfire Festival

Pyidaungsu and Amyotha Hluttaw Speaker meets Canadian Parliament Secretary, British Minister for Cabinet Office

The eleventh month in Myanmar lunar calendar is called Tabodwe, approximatey corresponding to February. Astrological name of this month is Kumbha [Aquarius] and its zodiacal symbol is water pot. Two trees, Paul [Butea monosperma] and Leh [Silk-cotton tree Bombax malabaricum] bloom profusely creating a riot of orange and scarlet hues everywhere in the country there flowers are designated as flowers of this month.

The 4th month of Myanmar writer, Tabodwe can be very cold, even much more chilling than Pyatho. Many Myanmar old sayings speak of this month’s character, ကြား ကျွန်း ကြား လေးဗျူး ၀ိုင်လေးဗျူး[In Tabodwe, we have a running nose] ကြား ကျွန်း ကြား လေးဗျူး ၀ိုင်လေးဗျူး[In Tabodwe, we have a running nose] ကြား ကျွန်း ကြား လေးဗျူး ၀ိုင်လေးဗျူး[In Tabodwe, we have a running nose] ကြား ကျွန်း ကြား လေးဗျူး ၀ိုင်လေးဗျူး[In Tabodwe, we have a running nose] ကြား ကျွန်း ကြား လေးဗျူး ၀ိုင်လေးဗျူး[In Tabodwe, we have a running nose] ကြား ကျွန်း ကြား လေးဗျူး ၀ိုင်လေးဗျူး[In Tabodwe, we have a running nose] ကြား ကျွန်း ကြား လေးဗျူး ၀ိုင်လေးဗျူး[In Tabodwe, we have a running nose] ကြား ကျွန်း ကြား လေးဗျူး ၀ိုင်လေးဗျူး[In Tabodwe, we have a running nose] ကြား ကျွန်း ကြား လေးဗျူး ၀ိုင်လေးဗျူး[In Tabodwe, we have a running nose]

There are two meanings of Tabodwe. The first meaning is “Tabo” meaning “yoke”, tw or “dwe” means “hang-up”. In this month all agricultural activities are over after the harvest. Farmers and peasants hang up all their implements including “yoke”. So it is the month in which all yokes are hung up.

The bonfire puja is held on a grand scale. On the eve of the fullmoon day Tabodwe bundles of sandy and fragrant woods are piled up in the design of a pagoda in the courtyard of the Temple. Other offerings—fruits, sweets, rice porridge and htamane [a Myanmar delicacy concocted from glutinous rice and ingredients] are also of-ted to the Buddha Image. At dawn, religious music band, dedicated to the Temple, performs the music “Nayay” with the song “Hoo Ma Ch’a Na Ta’ Dei. After monk Sayadow has done his daily morning rituals of washing and polashing the face of the Image, bundles of fire wood are burnt to provide warmth to the Buddha on Tabodwe’s chilly nights and dawns. Mandalay’s climate is severe. Its cold season is as severe as its summer’s heat. It is the belief of Mandalay people that only after sacred Maha Muni Image has received the warmth of bonfire on the fullmoon of Tabodwe the cold begins to reduce. The bonfire puja at this temple is one of major events in Mandalay, attracting a large crowd of devotees and tourists.

They held discussions on exchange of visits of parliamentarians and parliamentary staff between the two countries, assistance for Myanmar Parliament Library and linking network between the libraries of two parliaments.

Ecuadorian leader celebrates majority win in National Assembly

QUITO, 20 Feb—Ecuador’s newly reelected President Rafael Correa on Tuesday celebrated his ruling party’s majority win in regional governments and National Assembly seats.

“The people’s support, we have won 23 of the country’s total of 24 provinces and more than two thirds of the National Assembly seats,” an elated Correa said two days after sweeping the general elections on Sunday.

According to a quick count by a non-governmental organisation, the ruling PAIS Alliance movement has won a two-thirds majority in the National Assembly, securing at least 91 of the 137 seats that were being disputed on Sunday. Corea’s mandate could still grow, since the preliminary counts don’t include votes cast abroad, where Ecuadorian immigrants were able to elect six representatives.

Ruling party representatives said they could still pick up an additional five seats, giving PAIS a 70 percent majority in the legislature.

Correa can also consolidate his legislative majority through left-leaning parties allied with him, such as the Avanza movement, which is set to obtain five seats, according to the quick count.

A final tally is pending from the National Electoral Council (CNE), but its numbers are confirming the quick count.

During his campaign, Correa promoted his party’s legislative candidates, hoping to obtain a majority for his third and last term as president to be able to pass several stalled bills, including one controversial bill covering the media sector.

"Now we have a solid and secure country with direction, planning, resources, humanity," said Correa, who won with 56.92 percent of the votes, with 71 percent of the ballots counted. In the past ten years, Correa lost control of the legislature after several lawmakers and former political allies broke away from the ruling party due to internal disagreements, complicating the passing of bills.—Xinhua

Milk in Serbia safe for consumption

BELGRADE, 20 Feb—Milk in Serbia is safe for consumption, Serbian Minister of Agriculture Goran Knezevic said on Tuesday, as reports of toxic milk have triggered scare recently.

At a government conference, Knezevic took a sip of milk from a glass before the journalists. Knezevic confirmed that some quantities of milk products have been withdrawn from the market due to the higher levels of Aflatoxin in them.

"It is true that there is suspicion on increased presence of Aflatoxin in some samples of milk. Veterinary Inspection has withdrawn some quantities, and their samples have been sent to the Netherlands... for additional testing," Knezevic said. Aflatoxin is a species of mykotoxin created by some fungus, mainly found in geographic regions with warmer and wetter climate. It can be found in plants, dairy and meat products, and if absorbed in larger quantities, it could cause cancer. Now in Serbia, the permitted level of Aflatoxin in milk is 0.05 micrograms per kilogram.

Knezevic underscored that health of the consumers was never endangered, adding that he did not plan to resign over the fact that higher levels of Aflatoxin were found in some of the milk samples.

Earlier Tuesday, the Ministry of Agriculture said on its website that Veterinary Inspection has demanded withdrawal of milk products which may contain higher levels of Aflatoxin.

Contamination of the milk on Serbian market was sourced back to the corn infected by the Aflatoxin, which the milking cows eat. —Xinhua

Portugal to send 8 tons of medicine for Mozambique flood victims

LISBON, 20 Feb—The Portuguese government is preparing to send eight tons of medicine for flood victims in Mozambique, according to Portugal’s Lusa news agency on Tuesday.

The medicines, essentially for cholera, malaria among others, have been collected and stored in a warehouse in Montijo, south of capital Lisbon, before being transported by ship to Maputo, capital of Mozambique.

The medicine was donated by Portugal’s pharmaceutical manufacturer, according to the aid shipment is being coordinated by Portugal’s Ministry for Foreign Affairs with the help of the Ministry of Health.

President of the National Authority of Medicine and Health Products (INFARMED) Eurico Castro Alves said that further shipments of medicine could be organized quickly if needed. “We are of course at the disposal of the Mozambican authorities, who will tell us if this aid is sufficient or not,” he added.

Flood hit Mozambique in January this year as a result of strong tropical storms. Gaza Province in the south of the country is the worst affected.

According to latest figures released by Mozambique’s National Calamities Management Institute (INGC), the death toll from the flooding is now at 113. Some 240,000 people were left homeless and the river banks bursting, among whom 186,000 are still living in temporary shelters.

Traffic accidents increase during crowded lunar New Year in Vietnam

HANOI, 20 Feb—Despite being warned, victims of traffic accidents kept increasing during the traditional Lunar New Year holiday from 9 to 17 Feb, according to the Vietnam National Traffic Safety Committee on Wednesday.

Some 314 people died and other 487 people were injured in 373 cases of traffic accidents during the 9-day holiday, said the committee.

Of the total figure, land routes reported 367 accidents that killed 307 people and injured 384 others, while railroads reported 5 cases with 6 dead, 3 injuries, and waterways one case with one dead.

Compared to last year’s traditional holiday, the number of traffic accidents decreased by 10 cases, but death toll increased by 5 people and injuries by 29 people, said the committee.

The increasing of traffic accidents death toll is blamed mostly on driving after alcohol drinking, which is popular in Vietnam during holidays when people go to visit one another.

Statistics from the committee revealed that 70 percent of traffic accidents during the holiday are resulted from drinking driving.

Drinking alcohol causes people to drive more recklessly, committing violations such as exceeding speed limits and carrying more people than allowed, said Vietnam’s state-run news agency, citing Nguyen Hoang Hiep, vice chairman of the committee as saying.

In an effort to ensure traffic safety during the period, ahead of the holiday, Vietnamese Prime Minister Nguyen Tan Dung sent an urgent message to local authorities with instructions on strengthening investigations and treatments and patrols, and strictly punishing individuals who break the law, especially those caught driving under the influence of alcohol.

In another movement, Deputy Prime Minister Nguyen Xuan Phuc, who is also head of the National Traffic Safety Committee, requested cities and provinces to assure traffic safety as people return to big cities for work or travel to attend festivals.

BEIJING, 20 Feb—Chinese Vice Premier Wang Qishan (L) shakes hands with Igor Sechin, president of Russia’s state-owned oil producer Rosneft, on Tuesday, pledging to boost energy cooperation between the two countries.

"We have seen China’s oil and gas cooperation is the key to China-Russia energy cooperation, adding that it is inter-complementary, necessary and feasible for the two sides to expand cooperation," according to Contractor.

India hopes to expand banking links with China

NEW DELHI, 20 Feb—India has called on China to expand banking links between the two countries and to enhance licensing procedures, to create “a more conducive environment” for companies operating in each other’s country, reported local daily The Hindu online on Tuesday.

Indian Minister of State for Finance Namo Narain Meena said in the northern Chinese city of Tianjin on Tuesday while opening the State Bank of India’s (SBI) second branch in China, that “foreign bank licensing policy is gradual in China, and all these banks are at various stages of establishing their operations.”

“It is hoped that other Indian banks that have fulfilled conditions set for foreign banks in mainland China also graduate to opening branch operations at an early date,” he said.

SBI is the only Indian bank which has opened branches in China other than Beijing.

It opened its first branch in Shanghai in 2006. The bank’s Shanghai branch will be allowed to start operations in the local Renminbi (RMB) currency in 2010.

“The success achieved at the Shanghai branch has encouraged us to strengthen our presence in China by upgrading our representative office in Tianjin to a branch,” SBI Managing Director Hemant Contractor was quoted as saying.

The bank works with around 90 Indian companies who trade with China and around 200 Chinese companies.

The Tianjin branch, which will open with an operating capital of 300 million RMB and does not have the approval to work in RMB, will focus on assisting “small and medium companies” located in northern China and “try to facilitate bilateral trade finance”, according to Contractor.

Seven killed in terrorist attack in Pakistan’s Peshawar

ISLAMABAD, 20 Feb—At least seven people, including five security personnel, were killed and seven others injured on Monday in a terrorist attack at a government office in Pakistan’s northwest provincial capital of Peshawar, local media and officials said.

According to the report, the incident took place when some unknown militants opened fire and hurled hand grenades at security personnel deployed at the office located at the Bara road of Peshawar, the provincial capital of Pakistan’s northwest Province of Khyber Pakhtunkhwa.

The militants, who were wearing security personnel uniforms, stormed the building when civil law enforcers were shifting some arrested miscreants to the Khyber House, an office of the civil administration of Pakistan’s northwest tribal region of Khyber Agency. Eyewitness said that the attackers tried to get free the prisoners and had fire exchange with the security personnel.

The firing exchange that was followed by the hand grenades attacks killed six persons on the spot, including five security personnel and one attacker.

Some reports said that another militant exploded his explosive jacket when security personnel tried to arrest him.

At the time of the attack, the representatives of some main political parties of the country were holding a meeting in the Khyber House to devise a strategy for the upcoming general elections in the restive Khyber Agency. Soon after the incident, the personnel of Pakistan Army rushed to the site and evacuated all the people who were trapped inside the building.

Alonso said the target was to work on reliability, aiming to complete more than 100 laps each day, before focusing on performance in the final test.

“I knew from looking at the Jerez data what sort of car I would find here today, as in fact we know more or less what we will see at the first race in Australia, in terms of what new parts we will have and how many tenths they will produce,” he said.

U Maung Nyiof said, “I am satisfied with the answer of the deputy minister.”

U Aung Tun Tha of MraukU Constituency raised the question on lifting of the ban of tourist visit to MraukU. The answer by Deputy Minister for Hotels and Tourism Dr Tin Shwe is ‘soon’, making clear that the ministry’s commitment is not financial or commercial motivation.

U Khin Maung Yi of Ayeyawady Region Constituency put forward an urgent motion on basic education discussed by lawmakers and clarified by Union Minister Dr Mya Aye.

“Making amendment to private health care law is due to the extensive emergence of health care courses” said Professor Dr May Oo of Bago Region Constituency No.9.

U Khin Maung Yi of Ayeyawady Region Constituency No.6 submitted the proposal on urging those who are engaged in three pillars of the country to pay special attention only to the highest goal for the interests of the country and people and to avoid the wrong ways that can veer from the original ways.

“Thanks to the reform measures of the new government, the world countries are taking interests in Myanmar. The country sees massive flow of foreign investment, reentering into the world community, removal of foreign debts, etc.” said U Khin Maung Yi.

Hluttaw decided to discuss that proposal. The meeting continues tomorrow.—MNA
