Japanese companies plan fashion show in Myanmar

YANGON, 1 Oct — Japanese companies will sponsor a fashion show in mid-November in Yangon to promote awareness of the upcoming 27th Southeast Asian Games in Myanmar, according to Japanese Foreign Ministry officials.

Well-known Japanese fashion designer Junko Koshino, who designed the Myanmar national team’s uniform, will introduce it to the public at the show, which will also feature her fashion collection and traditional costumes of Myanmar national races.

The date and venue for the show, which will be broadcast live by Sky NET, have not been fixed yet.

President U Thein Sein invited Koshino to design the Myanmar’s team’s uniform when she visited the country in June last year as part of a Japanese culture and sport exchange mission. “A total of 2,400 uniforms made in Japan will be provided to the Myanmar athletes and staff,” Naoya Kishi, deputy director of the Japanese Foreign Ministry’s First Southeast Asia Division, told NLM reporters. — NLM

Netanyahu to Obama: Tighten sanctions if Iran defies West

WASHINGTON, 1 Oct — Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu urged President Barack Obama on Monday to step up sanctions on Iran if it pursues its nuclear drive even as Teheran exchanges overtures with Washington and re-starts negotiations with the West. Seeking to reassure Israel about the emerging US diplomatic engagement with Iran, Obama said Teheran must prove its sincerity with actions, insisted that Washington would not ease sanctions prematurely and reaffirmed US readiness to resort to military action if all else fails.

Netanyahu visited the White House three days after Obama and new Iranian President Hassan Rouhani spoke by telephone in the highest-level contact between the countries in more than three decades. The call fueled hopes for a resolution of Iran’s decade-old nuclear standoff with the West.

Signs of US-Iranian rapprochement have rattled Israel, which accuses Iran of trying to buy time and get from under tough international sanctions while it seeks to develop nuclear weapons. Iran denies it is working toward an atomic bomb.

Netanyahu, whose aides had said he would warn Obama in private not to trust Rouhani’s charm offensive, signaled grudging acquiescence to Obama’s outreach to Iran. But he appeared to demand that Teheran offer immediate concessions by suspending sensitive nuclear projects or else face even greater international pressure.

“It is Israel’s firm belief that if Iran continues to advance its nuclear program during negotiations, the sanctions should be strengthened,” Netanyahu told reporters a day before he was due to address the United Nations General Assembly in New York.

Netanyahu brandished a cartoon time-bomb in his UN speech last year to illustrate his view that time was running out to curb Iran’s nuclear arms ambitions. Israeli sources predict he will opt for a less flashy approach due to the delicate nature of the outreach with Iran but will still stress skepticism.

Obama said he was entering negotiations with Iran “clear-eyed” and was ready to test Rouhani’s overtures. “Anything we do will require the highest standards of verification in order for us to provide the sort of sanctions relief that I think they are looking for,” he said.—Reuters

Russia says to push for Mideast free of mass-destruction weapons

MOSCOW, 1 Oct — Russia wants to revise plans for a conference on ridding the Middle East of weapons of mass destruction now that Syria has pledged to abandon its chemical arms, Foreign Minister Sergei Lavrov said in comments published on Monday.

Such a move could put Moscow at odds with Washington which announced the conference would be delayed last year. Analysts said it feared the event would be used to criticize its ally Israel, believed to be the region’s only nuclear-armed state.

Russia has been pushing to extend its influence in the Middle East. It initiated a UN deal to get Syria to abandon its chemical arms after Washington threatened military strikes to punish Damascus for a sarin gas attack on rebel areas.

“We will seek to have this conference take place,” Lavrov said in an interview with the Russian daily Kommersant. Lavrov said Syria’s agreement to destroy its chemical weapons by next June should trigger a broader effort.

“In the current situation, it is particularly important to make the ... non-possession of weapons of mass destruction universal in this explosive region,” he said.—Reuters

Competition between Islamist militants may fuel big attacks

LONDON, 1 Oct — The assault on Kenya’s Westgate shopping mall has brought into sharp relief a pattern likely to complicate efforts to counter Islamist militants — competition among jihadis can increase the risk of a major attack.

As with the 2008 assault on the Indian city of Mumbai and this year’s raid on an Algerian desert gas plant, the attack in Nairobi by Somalia’s al Shabaab was preceded by in-fighting or loss of supporters to other militant groups.

This competition can initially make groups seem divided and weak, while actually making them more dangerous if a leader then feels compelled to mount a big attack to burnish his jihadi credentials — thereby bringing in fresh recruits and funding.

Western counter-terrorist officials have long been aware of the risk that intensive security measures adopted at home following the 11 Sept, 2001 attacks on the United States are driving militants to target Westerners overseas.

But the impact of competition, sometimes caused by government efforts to curb militants, is only just beginning to be understood.

Two US generals ousted over failure to secure Afghan base

WASHINGTON, 1 Oct — The head of the Marine Corps on Monday effectively fired two US generals over their failure to defend a major base in Afghanistan from a deadly Taliban attack last year, in an extraordinary and rare public censure. Two Marines were killed and eight personnel were wounded when Taliban insurgents breached what a military investigation determined was inadequate security at Camp Bastion, in southern Afghanistan’s Helmand Province.

A four-month investigation concluded that Major General Charles Gurganus, the top Marine commander in the region at the time, and Major General Greg Sturdevant “did not take adequate force protection measures with in the range of responses proportionate to the threat,” the Marine Corps said. Marine Corps Commandant General James Amos asked both men to retire on Monday, speaking personally with Gurganus at the Pentagon and by video-conference with Sturdevant, who was abroad, one Marine Corps official told Reuters.

Both men accepted that request, the official said. US officials could not recall any similar top-level firings in the 12-year-old Afghan war over failure to properly defend a base.—Reuters

APEC meetings kick off in Bali, focused on multilateralism

NUSA DUA, (Indonesia), 1 Oct — The 21-member Asia-Pacific Economic Cooperation forum on Tuesday kicked off a series of meetings on Bali aimed at restoring trust in multilateralism and resisting protectionist pressures, which have been rising amid the slowdown of the global economy. Over the next two days, senior officials from the Pacific Rim economies will discuss issues to be tackled by their ministers when they meet on Friday and Saturday ahead of the annual APEC summit, which will take place on Monday and Tuesday on this Indonesian resort island.

Besides issuing a joint declaration as they typically do at the end of their talks, this time APEC leaders will also issue a separate statement reaffirming their commitment to strengthening the multilateral trading system and safeguarding trade expansion to facilitate economic growth, job creation and sustainable development, officials said.

The leaders will also extend by one year to 2016 a “standstill” commitment, first made in 2008, to refrain from increasing existing lev- els of protectionism, such as new barriers to trade in goods and services.—Kyodo News
Cassini spacecraft finds plastic ingredient on Saturn moon

WASHINGTON, 1 Oct—US space agency NASA said on Monday its Cassini spacecraft has detected propylene, a chemical used to make food-storage containers, car bumpers and other consumer products, on Saturn’s moon Titan.

Cassini identified a small amount of propylene in Titan’s lower atmosphere, marking “the first definitive detection of the plastic ingredient” on any moon or planet, other than Earth, NASA researchers said in the journal Astrophysical Journal Letters.

“This chemical is all around us in everyday life, strung together in long chains to form a plastic called polypropylene,” lead author Conor Nixon, a planetary scientist at NASA’s Goddard Space Flight Centre, said in a statement. “That plastic container at the grocery store with the recycling code 5 on the bottom — that’s polypropylene.”

The researchers said they identified the chemical using Cassini’s Composite Infrared Spectrometer (CIRS), an instrument that measures the infrared light, or heat radiation, emitted from Saturn and its moons in much the same way our hands feel the warmth of a fire.

The discovery fills in a mysterious gap in Titan observations during the Voyager 1 spacecraft’s close flyby of this moon in 1980, NASA said. At that time, Voyager identified many of the gases in Titan’s hazy brownish atmosphere as hydrocarbons, the chemicals that primarily make up petroleum and other fossil fuels on Earth.

Nokia says India freezes some assets in tax dispute

NEW DELHI/HELSINKI, 1 Oct—Indian authorities have frozen some of Nokia’s assets in a tax dispute, the Finnish phone maker said on Monday, although it does not expect the move to delay the sale of its handset business to Microsoft Corp.

Nokia has been in dispute with Indian authorities over an income tax bill of 20.8 billion rupees ($333 million), one of several tax disagreements involving foreign companies in India. Indian tax authorities froze Nokia’s assets and bank accounts last Wednesday, a company executive said.

Nokia appealed to the Delhi High Court which last Thursday ordered the bank accounts in India to be unfrozen, allowing the company to transfer or withdraw funds parked there.

But some fixed assets such as buildings remain frozen since last week, the Nokia executive said, meaning the company cannot transfer ownership of the assets without the approval of the authorities.

“We are now talking to the authorities to clear up any lingering concerns,” said the executive, declining to give details of the assets.

Cyber Dome anti-cybercrime unit to be set up in Kerala

MUMBAI, 1 Oct—A high-tech ‘cyber dome’ would be set up by the Kerala government to counter and probe cyber-related crimes, Chief Minister Oommen Chandy said on Saturday.

The Centre would develop cyber forensic to assist cyber police in effective investigation of crimes, he said, addressing the validity of the two-day ‘International Cyber Security and Policing Conference’.

He said government is committed to ensuring cyber security in the state and strengthening crime prevention using Internet and other new generation devices, Chandy added.

The state Police, Kerala IT Mission, CERT-IN, Kerala, Society for Policing of Cyberspace, and Information Security Research Association jointly held the conference titled ‘CO-CON-2013’.

Cyber security experts from various national law enforcement agencies, foreign delegates, information technology experts, entrepreneurs, and law enforcers took part in the conference. Participants deliberated on innovations in cyber security, prevention and detection of cyber crime against women and digitisation of public service delivery systems.

The event provided a platform for experts in the field to discuss and share latest trends in cybercrime and deliberate on methods to combat it.

TRAJ set to implement TV advertisement caps on Tuesday

MUMBAI, 1 Oct—Broadcast regulator TRAI is likely to implement the 12-minute per hour cap on advertisements for non-news TV channels from Tuesday as the deadline agreed to by broadcasters to bring down the time allotted to commercials ended on Monday.

However the fate of TRAI’s Quality of Service (QoS) regulation, which mandates channels to show not more than 12 minutes of ads and promotional content per hour, still hangs in balance as some broadcasters have appealed to Telecom Disputes Settlement and Appellate Tribunal (TDASAT) against it.

According to the sources in TRAI, the law pertaining to ad cap has not been stayed by the TDASAT. Hence, it would be implemented. As per the regulation, channels will have to submit a weekly report on quantum of ads shown every hour. However, the News Broadcasters Association(NBA), which represents news channels, had got some relief on 30 August from the TDSAT which has directed “till further orders, the TRAI shall not take any coercive measures against the appellant or its members to make them abide by the impugned Regulations”.

Moreover, it had also exempted news broadcasters from submitting the weekly report to the TRAI. Meanwhile, it had asked news broadcasters to “faithfully maintain record of the time of advertisement per hour for examination by the Tribunal at the time of hearing of the Appeal”.

Bumpy road won’t deter Sanofi’s push into emerging markets

MUMBAI, 1 Oct — French drugmaker Sanofi SA will not be deterred from expanding in emerging markets through acquisitions despite government crackdowns on pricing and closer scrutiny of western pharmaceutical companies’ business practices, its CEO said.

Multinational drugmakers such as Pfizer Inc, Sanofi and AstraZeneca PLC have depended on rising demand in emerging markets as sales in the developed economies slow due to a wave of patent expirations on top-selling drugs.

“Emerging markets have six billion people and I think the marketplace will be bumpy on occasions, but the need for healthcare is undeniable,” Sanofi Chief Executive Chris Viehbacher told reporters in Mumbai on Monday.

“For the longer term I continue to believe in the importance (not just) from the healthcare point of view but also from the business point of view in emerging markets,” he said.

Sanofi’s India unit was believed to be one of the bidders for the domestic drug formulations business of India’s Elder Pharmaceuticals Ltd for $400 million-$450 million, sources had told Reuters in July.

Viehbacher declined to comment on the Elder deal, but said the company would continue to look for acquisition opportunities in the emerging markets, which accounts for a third of Sanofi’s revenue, including in India.

Western drugmakers who covet a bigger share of India’s fast-growing $13 billion drugs market have been frustrated by a series of decisions on intellectual property and pricing.

India in August revoked a patent granted to GlaxoSmithKline for breast cancer drug Tykerb, a decision that followed a landmark court ruling disallowing patents for incremental innovations that was a blow to global pharmaceutical firms.

The decision was the latest in a series of rulings on intellectual property and pricing in India that have frustrated attempts by Western drugmakers to sell their medicines.— Reuters

Two-thirds of kids know cigarette brands in developing nations

WASHINGTON, 1 Oct — More than two-thirds of young children in developing nations could identify at least one cigarette brand logo, according to a US study released on Monday that examined the reach of tobacco marketing to five and six year olds in Brazil, China, India, Nigeria, Pakistan and Russia, asking them to match pictures of different products with their corresponding cigarette logos.

In China, where roughly 71 percent of households with parents having children had a tobacco user, 86 percent of children could identify at least one cigarette brand logo, the researchers reported in the journal Pediatrics. Pakistan had the second highest percentage, with 84 percent of children capable of identifying at least one cigarette brand logo. Russia ranked last on the list with half of the participants able to identify any of the cigarette brand logos.

“We were surprised most was that children who were so young, five and six years old, were so familiar with tobacco logos,” Dina Borzekowski, lead author of the study and research professor at the University of Maryland, told Xinhua.

She said that even in households without smokers children could identify tobacco logos. This is because “not only do children see logos in their homes, the neighborhood stores where the children visit have very prominent tobacco advertisements,” Borzekowski said.—Xinhua

The most active corn contract for December delivery dropped 12.5 cents, or 2.75 percent, to close at 4.415 dollars per bushel. December wheat dipped 4.5 cents, or 0.66 percent, to close at 6.785 dollars per bushel. November soybeans shed 37 cents, or 2.8 percent, to close at 12.8275 dollars per bushel. December corn closed on Monday at the lowest level since September 2010 on a negative stocks report from USDA. The report showed that by 1 Sept, corn stocks were at 824 million bushels, higher than market expectations of 681 million bushels but down 17 percent year on year.

Warm weather forecast and market expectations for additional harvest ahead also dampened the crop. Traders are expecting corn yield to jump to 158-160 bushels per acre in USDA’s October update. December wheat dipped on Monday under the influence of weak performance of major grains market, but the drop was halved as the USDA stocks report offered wheat support. The report showed that by 1 Sept, wheat stocks were at 1.855 billion bushels, lower than market expectations of 1.915 billion bushels and down 12 percent year on year. Combined US wheat production came at 2.128 billion bushels, as against market expectations of 2.108 billion bushels.— Reuters

Canadian stock market falls on looming US government shutdown

TORONTO, 1 Oct — The Canadian stock market closed lower on Monday as hopes faded that a compromise could be reached in the US budget talk in time to prevent the shutdown of partial government services.

The Toronto Stock Exchange’s benchmark S&P/TSX Composite Index dropped 56.89 points, or 0.49 percent, to a two-week low of 12,787.19.

The Canadian dollar closed flat at 0.9705 US dollars as Canada’s economic growth in July came in better than expected.

Statistics Canada reported that the economy grew by 0.6 percent in July, rebounding from a 0.5 percent decline in June. The rise in the country’s gross domestic product in July, which was one of the biggest in two years and among the strongest since the recession, was better than the economists’ expectations.

All sectors on the main index for the Toronto Stock Market moved down as investors worried the approaching deadline of the US budget talk would result in cutting to non-essential government services. An even more worrisome deadline comes up on 17 Octo- ber, when the US government hits its debt limit.

 Worries about the economic impact of a US government shutdown depressed oil prices and pushed energy sector on the Canadian market down by 0.5 percent. Suncor Energy lost 1.3 percent to 36.83 Canadian dollars (about 35.73 US dollars) a share.

Adidas calls in fitness experts to revive Reebok

FRANKFURT, 1 Oct — Reebok is turning to sponsorship deals with prominent fitness groups to try to revive a venerable name that has faded since it became part of Germany’s Adidas (ADS.G.DE) sportswear group eight years ago.

The sports shoe and clothing brand is winning converts among hardcore sports enthusiasts and aims to build on this support to make up ground it has lost to rivals such as global market leader Nike (NKE.N).

“They had a sticky patch, but now the shoes and gear are good,” said former triathlete Steve Antcliff who runs a gym in the German city of Frankfurt offering CrossFit classes, for which Reebok produces training shorts and shirts.

The CrossFit regime of squats, lifts and rope-climbing has been imported from the United States and is attracting devotees in Europe. Adidas hopes to revive Reebok after paying $3.8 billion for the company in 2005 in order to take a larger slice of business in the United States, the world’s largest sportswear market with sales of $80 billion.

The deal instantly doubled Adidas’ US sales, and taking over Reebok’s basketball and baseball contracts gave the German company’s famous three-stripes brand more exposure there.

But US-headquartered Reebok has struggled. It lost a contract to supply the US National Football League and was hit by a lockout at the National Hockey League. Its toning shoes (intended to tone the body as you walk) fell out of favour, and it was the victim of fraud in India.

Unfortunately, there were instabilities, factional, minor crimes into conflicts between the two communities and two religions. Such instability based on the religious belief delays the state reforms and tarnishes the national image internationally.

Honored Religious Leaders

It is my pleasure and honor to witness that leaders of the respective faiths have been energetically and harmoniously working together for interfaith unity to prevent the recurrence of racial or religious conflicts. I assure you of the government’s full cooperation for the success of your work.

In fact, the main goal of all the five religions is the peaceful co-existence of mankind. One of the fundamental teachings of all faiths is that in the face of a problem or a conflict it should be settled with truth, loving kindness and tolerance every. One of the principle teachings of Buddhism is to follow the middle path that is free from all extremes such as greed and anger. Additionally, we all must avoid extremities, and there will be no end or answer for a problem if self-obsession takes centre role in solving it. So, we all must avoid extremes.

Individual freedom or the basic foundation of democracy is to enjoy freedom without harming others. The Constitution of Myanmar fully guarantees freedom of religion as the fundamental right of citizens. We all should never misuse this noble idea of the freedom of religion as a springboard for any kind of extremism and fueling hatred.

Honored Religious Leaders

I believe that only the all-inclusive democracy can guarantee long-term progress and peace and stability of a country like Myanmar formed with numerous indigenous peoples, and different races, religions and cultures. We all must understand our own religion and its principles, this diversity must be a united force for our own interest. We all must protect our country’s image as a peacefully co-existing society while preserving the existing age old fine tradition of social harmony among the fellow citizens.

We are building a new national identity representing the entire country. While accepting the diversity, it is advised to make collective efforts for ending discrimination.

My sincere message to the entire nation including people of the religious minorities is that the collective efforts with equality and no racial or religious discrimination for building a harmonious and peaceful society in the country where all the people of different religions, beliefs, languages and ethnicities have mutual understanding on the diversity, respect independently existing rights, and staying away from conflicts.

I will continue to do...

genuine peace that will bring an end to all armed conflicts in the country. This is the political reality of our times.

Our history lessons also tell us that ceasefires alone will not lead to lasting peace; we will have to solve the root causes of the problems through political means.

Since the first time our government started making the necessary plans to end all ethnic conflicts and build lasting peace, we have considered the aforesaid political reality. The current peace building plans undertaken by our government came out of the analysis of such political reality.

As you may recall, shortly after assuming office, I invited all ethnic armed groups to the peace talks without setting any preconditions other than their genuine will for peace. The ethnic armed groups responded positively to my invitation. All the stakeholders have tried to do everything they can to overcome the difficulties and challenges with dedication and resolve in order to get to where we are in the peace process. We are also aware of the fact that there still are some minor differences among the government troops and some ethnic armed groups even though ceasefire agreements are in place with many of the ethnic armed groups. At the same time, there is much evidence of potential confrontations being averted because of timely communication and negotiation between officials from the Tatmadaw and the ethnic armed groups. All major confrontations and hostilities were de-escalated through negotiation. These events show that the Tatmadaw, ethnic armed groups and all other stakeholders truly yearn for peace and that they are determined to strive for peace with patience, tolerance and understanding.

Although there are some setbacks, the current state of the peace process clearly shows that the achievements outweigh the setbacks. We should also congratulate our dialogue partners including leaders of all ethnic groups. The Tatmadaw and ethnic armed groups for the achievements we have attained thus far.

All of the achievements, the ones that we are most proud, is the decision by all ethnic groups to not secede from the Union. Such a position indicates that our ethnic brothers and sisters wish to be part of the Union of their own accord.

We are now planning to organize a signing ceremony for a nation-wide ceasefire agreement in order to recall and reaffirm all the achievements and agreements we have attained thus far. This will be part of an attempt to implement the recommendations at State and Union level meetings. The nation-wide ceasefire agreement will also acknowledge that ceasefire is not the ultimate goal of the peace process. In addition, it will also initiate the political dialogue process that is designed to solve all the underlying problems associated with armed conflict in the country.

Soon after the nationwide ceasefire agreement is signed, a meeting with stakeholders will be held to discuss the drafting of the framework for political dialogue. Such commitment would be a start of political dialogue. Once we have the framework for political dialogue, we will start the political dialogue process that will lead us to the national peace process. We will hold meetings to discuss and decide how the political dialogues and the national peace conference are to be held, how long they will take, how the delegates will be selected, and how the agenda will be set. We will share what is discussed at the meeting with all stakeholders in order to be appropriate to do so.

Meanwhile, as the President of this country, I would say that political dialogue process will serve as a forum to discuss any issue so long as the parties constructively contribute to the state-building and national unity and are in line with the principles of non-disintegration of the union, non-disintegration of national unity and the perpetuation of sovereignty.

In an attempt to achieve national reconciliation, I also believe that the 88 generation peace and open society in the middle of September. I will continue to do everything in my powers to institute an inclusive political process and a new democratic political culture.

A special development in the peace process is that the people of Yangon, Mandalay, Mawlamyine and Myitkyina celebrated the international peace day wholeheartedly and enthusiastically. I was very impressed with the peoples’ longing for peace, especially by the youths with resolve to assume the duty of peace building. I am convinced that if the entire population participate in the process it will definitely be successful.

As all of you know, our government has expended political space for the society at large by undertaking the democratic reforms. The media in our country enjoys more freedom than its counterparts in other Southeast Asian countries. Since we are beginning to enjoy more freedom, we must take on more responsibilities. Only then will we be able to create a harmonious society. I would like to urge the media professionals and the media ethics, avoid covering unfounded rumors and stop making personal attacks at a time the country is sowing the seeds of media freedom. At a time when the entire country is engaging in historic state-building process, we all must work together to prevent such unethical personal attacks that rise to the level of abuse of recently acquired media freedoms.

I would also like to discuss the people-centered reforms which our government is undertaking. Our government will also carry out people-centered development programs during the remainder of my term. In trying to establish a new democratic country, it is important for the government to integrate peoples’ energy and efforts with the needs of the people. In order to ensure such government-society synergy, the Union ministers who are in charge of the reform committees must understand our own religion and its principles, this diversity must be a united force for our own interest. We all must protect our country’s image as a peacefully co-existing society while preserving the existing age old fine tradition of social harmony among the fellow citizens.

We are building a new national identity representing the entire country. While accepting the diversity, we will be able to achieve the lasting peace which we all long for.

In conclusion, I would like to note that I will try to do everything I can during the remaining of my term to achieve lasting peace, to improve the living standard of the general public, and to create bright and prosperous future for the young people.

May you all have peace of mind and good health.

Mr. President,

At the outset, I would like to extend my sincere congratulations to Your Excellency for your election as President of the 68th Session of the United Nations General Assembly. I assure you of the full support and cooperation of the Myanmar delegation. I am confident that your diplomatic skills and vast knowledge will guide our deliberations and that your diplomatic delegation will cooperate with IAEA and the international community for the United Nations' efforts to eradicate extreme poverty, protect the environment and to bring about inclusive and sustainable economic development.

On our part, we have been exerting relentless efforts to raise socio-economic conditions of the people with poverty alleviation as the core priority of the national economic strategy in commensurate with the MDGs. My delegation adds to the voice of the Group of 77 in calling to address the key implementation gaps of the MDGs and the poverty agenda over the next two years, as we craft a sound roadmap towards a post-2015 development agenda. In this regard, national efforts be assisted by international support and enabling environment. The role of the global partnership for development must also be strengthened.

Achieving inclusive and sustainable development will be the one of most paramount challenge of this century for the United Nations. Therefore my delegation welcomes the establishment of the High-Level Political Forum on Sustainable Development by the General Assembly. Mr. President,

This year, Myanmar celebrates 64th anniversary of its membership in the family of the United Nations. We believe that the United Nations system remains relevant and important to the international situation. In this age replete with global challenges, the United Nations is more essential than ever before. We have trust in the world body’s capacity and capability of maintaining international peace and security, safeguarding fundamental human rights and promoting economic and social development. Therefore, we have always been cooperating with the United Nations in good faith. As cooperation with the United Nations is the cornerstone of our Foreign Policy, we have all along strictly abided by the decisions and resolutions of the United Nations. Hence, we believe that the UN should be more democratic, representative and effective in order to face security and economic challenges in many parts of the world.

Mr. President,

The continued existence of weapons of mass destruction particularly nuclear weapons poses the greatest threat to mankind. Myanmar is therefore actively pursuing the cause of nuclear disarmament and nuclear non-proliferation at the international forums. One of the testimonies of her aspiration was demonstrated in the annual resolution on “Nuclear disarmament” submitted by our delegation to the First Committee. Through this resolution, we have been calling upon Nuclear-Weapon States to cease immediately the quasi-nuclear development, development, production and stockpiling of nuclear weapons with a view to taking measures leading to their total elimination within a specified framework of time.

With this firm belief, the Government of Myanmar has signed the Additional Protocol for the IAEA Safeguards Agreement on Nuclear Non-Proliferation Treaty on 17 September, 2013. This is yet another significant developments which testifying our commitments to the goals of nuclear disarmament and nuclear non-proliferation. Myanmar will continue to cooperate with IAEA and the international community for its implementation. Myanmar fully subscribes to the fundamental principle of peaceful settlement of disputes as enshrined in the United Nations Charter. Accordingly, Myanmar has been contributing its fair share to the regional and international peace and security. Mr. President,

In the domestic front, the Government of President U Thein Sein has been undertaking unprecedented, wide ranging political and economic reforms over the past two and a half years. The Government has dedicated its efforts to maintain peace, stability and rule of law; and to advance socio-economic development of the lives of the people.

Emergency of civil societies has also contributed to strengthening democratic values and practices. We have now been able to nurture a new culture of dialogue and accommodation among people of differing views and belief. Political actors in Myanmar, together with the people, are taking forward-looking approach to keep the reform process running, putting at the fore the interest of the country and the people. We are also taking steps for establishing rule of law, good governance and clean government.

We have also made tangible progress in our efforts towards national reconciliation. The Government’s peace overtures have led to reaching ceasefire agreements with all armed groups for the first time in over 60 years. We are hopeful that we will be able to celebrate the signing of a nation-wide ceasefire agreement in Nay Pyi Taw very soon. We are optimistic to be able to start a new round of political dialogue at the Union (Central) level in the near future to strike comprehensive and lasting peace agreement. We have no illusion that the next step will be an easy one. But we are determined to pursue this path for the sake of our people as they deserve it for so long.

Mr. President,

The hard-won peace and success in democratic transformation will not be realistic or sustainable unless and until we deliver economic and social needs of the people. Therefore, as the second component of...

(from page 8) reforms, we have opened up the economic through economic liberalization, financial reforms, inviting foreign investments, people-centered development approach, rural development, poverty alleviation and equitable development. We have also created investor-friendly environment. The Government is focusing on poverty alleviation and rural development. We have targeted to reduce the current poverty rate from 26 percent to 16 percent by 2015 as prescribed in the MDGs. We are also implementing the Framework on Economic and Social Reform (FESR) with a people-centered approach with a view to bringing about inclusive growth for the country and its people.

Narrowing development gap and enhancing equitable development among States and Regions is essential for fostering national unity for a multi-ethnic nation like Myanmar. We shall enhance our efforts to fight corruption and protect the environment to achieve sustainable development. Our commitment was demonstrated by our accession to the UN Convention on Anti-Corruption and establishment of a national anti-corruption body. We are now taking necessary steps to become a signatory to the Extractive Industry Transparency Initiative (EITI).

Recently, the Government is turning its focus to “private sector development” as a fourth wave of reform. At this stage, the Government is placing a great emphasis on improving institutional infrastructure and regularly framework to facilitate business, trade and investment. We are truly grateful to the international community for their invaluable support and encouragement in our democratic transition as well as in our efforts for the socio-economic development of the people of Myanmar. At the same time we also need assistance for human resource development so that we will be able to stand on our own in the future. We welcomed responsible trade and investment that will transfer technology to develop our economy, to create jobs and to lift our people from poverty. We would try our best to ensure that no one from the communities or our national ethnic groups be left behind and excluded from enjoying the fruits of our reforms and the exciting life of the nation.

Mr. President, Myanmar is a multi-racial and multi-faith nation. Various ethnic populations with the world’s four great religious—Buddhists, Christians, Muslims and Hindus—have been living side by side in peace and harmony as fellow citizens of Myanmar. The Constitution of the Republic of the Union of Myanmar also designated the four religions as officially recognized faith of the country. There are always people who wish to rock the boat. We will not let anyone to take advantage of political openness to instigate violence among different ethnic or religious communities. President U Thein Sein has clearly stated that the government will take a zero-tolerance approach to anyone fueling ethnic hatred. The Government has been making serious efforts to resolve the problem through short-term and long-term plans. It includes our extensive efforts, in cooperation with UN and NGO humanitarian organizations, to improve the living conditions and livelihoods of all affected peoples without discrimination. In parallel to these efforts, the Government is also encouraging inter-faith dialogues across the country with a view to promoting understanding and trust among different communities. On the other hand, the National Human Rights Commission, an independent human rights body of Myanmar, has also been working closely and intensively with domestic civil society organizations, inter-faith groups and regional and international human rights bodies for the promotion and protection of human rights in the country.

Our reform process is still at a nascent and sensitive stage where there is little room for error. With this in mind, the President has publicly emphasized the need for everyone to refrain from doing anything that could jeopardize Myanmar’s peaceful transition.

Mr. President,

While undertaking political and reforms process domestically, we have also been able to reach out to the international community. The overwhelming support that we have received from the international community and the United Nations has contributed significantly towards the transition efforts in the country. Myanmar is ready to take over the Chairmanship of ASEAN in 2014 for the very first time since the country joined the Organization in 1997. We take this opportunity with great honour. We shall be working closely with our fellow ASEAN members as well as with its Dialogue Partners in discharge of this important responsibility to move forward in unity to a peaceful and prosperous community.

Indonesia, Australia to cooperate on asylum-seeker issue
Jakarta, 1 Oct—The governments of Indonesia and Australia are determined to settle the issue of people smuggling, which has long concerned both countries, through a bilateral forum under the framework of the Bali Process.

The plan was made after the meeting of Indonesian President Susilo Bambang Yudhoyono and Australian Prime Minister Tony Abbott at the State Palace on Mon- day, as Abbott started his two-day visit in Indonesia. Both leaders also discussed the issues of Papua, trade and investment.

Yudhoyono said that he and Abbott had a strong commitment to settle the hu- manitarian problem that has claimed hundreds of lives on sea.

“So with the spirit that Indonesia and Australia can address this problem, the solution is a cooperation, an effective and right coopera- tion,” said Yudhoyono.

He said that a further discussion over the plan would be carried out.

Abbott’s visit to Indone- sia is conducted after another sinking of Australian-bound boat off Indonesia’s West Java coast on Friday, killing at least 33 people and leav- ing 59 other missing, accord- ing to West Java Search and Rescue Office.—Xinhua

The Firework hitmaker is ready with the release of her track Grace of God, which she wrote during the tough time of her marriage with Brand. It is from her latest album Prism.

“That song is evident of how tough it really was at a certain point,” Billboard magazine quoted Perry as saying.

“I asked myself, ‘Do I want to endure? Should I continue living?’ All the songs are real-life moments,” she added.—PTI

Jennifer Aniston never took care of herself when young

LOS ANGELES, 1 Oct—Actress Jennifer Aniston says that she never took care of her health when she was young.

The 44-year-old, best known for her role as Rachel Green in the sitcom F.R.I.E.N.D.S., has been part of many movies like Bruce Almighty, The Break-Up, Horrible Bosses and We’re The Millers.

Although she looks fit as a fiddle now, things were different during her younger days, reports femalefirst.co.uk.

“I used to eat like st, I didn’t sleep. You overestimate yourself so much when you’re young because we think we’re invincible,” said Aniston on a French TV show.

“I honestly didn’t even drink water, only sodas. I just didn’t take that good care of myself,” she added.—PTI

Azarenka undone by double faults and Petkovic

Azarenka cursing her luck as she floundered in the first round of the China Open following a 6-4, 2-6, 6-4 defeat by Germany’s Andrea Petkovic on Monday.

Azarenka’s 15 double faults, to go with 44 unforced errors, mirrored the defending champion’s erratic display over two hours 22 minutes against Petkovic who appeared to be feeling dizzy in the second set.

“It was an awful match and very bad performance from me, so not much to say. It happens once, twice a year to every player, and happened to me today,” the Australian Open champion, who has endured a miserable run in Asia as she suffered a second-round exit in Tokyo last week, told reporters.

“If I’m going to be doing the same thing and bad things happening to me, so not much to say. It happens once, twice and very bad performance from me, so not much to say,” added the Portuguese manager, referring to recent media reports about Juan Mata.

De Bruyne questions trigger Mourinho walk-out

LONDON, 1 Oct—Chelsea manager Jose Mourinho cut short his Champions League news conference in Bucharest on Monday and walked out after becoming riled by questions about his team selection.

Mourinho, preparing for the London club’s Group E match against Steaua on Tuesday, was upset after being quizzed over the omission of the squad of midfielder Kevin De Bruyne.

The Chelsea coach said he was not impressed with the way the Belgian played last week against Swindon Town in the Capital One (League) Cup, nor with his recent performances in training. “He was not selected. It was my decision. I try to decide by what they do on the pitch and what they do in training,” Mourinho told reporters.

“You have this tendency to only ask about the guys who were not selected,” added the Portuguese manager, referring to recent media reports about Juan Mata’s Chelsea future.

Lukaku shines as unbeaten Everton leap to fourth

NEWCASTLE, 1 Oct—A stunning first-half performance by striker Romelu Lukaku guided Everton to a 3-2 home victory over Newcastle on Monday to lift his side to fourth and maintain the Premier League’s only unbeaten record.

The 20-year-old Belgian, on a season-long loan from Chelsea, scored twice, set up a goal for teenager Ross Barkley and also had a hand in a goal for teenage winger Loic Remy.

The 48-year-old former Manchester City manager, Roberto Mancini, has signed a three-year deal with Galatasaray to replace Fatih Terim who was sacked as coach last week, the Turkish champions said on Monday.

Mancini had been out of a job since being dismissed by the English club in May after his team were shocked by Wigan Athletic in the FA Cup final and gave up their Premier League crown to Manchester United without much of a fight.

He spent 3-1/2 years at the Etihad Stadium, leading City to the Premier League title in 2012 and the FA Cup the previous year as the club’s 35-year trophy drought came to an end.

The 48-year-old former Inter Milan, Lazio and Fiorentina manager was a popular figure with the fans at City but his tendency to publicly criticise his players was widely reported in the British media to have caused dressing room unrest.

His frantic gesticulations on the touchline, wild goal celebrations and sense of humour meant there was never a dull moment with Mancini but his often harsh management style seemed to get his players’ backs up.

“I’m happy to arrive at a big club like Galatasaray,” he said on unfa. “It was an awful match, decided on a incredible display over two hours 22 minutes against Petkovic who appeared to be feeling dizzy in the second set.

Mexico City, 1 October — The Inter-American Development Bank (IDB) announced on Monday it would donate 400,000 USD dollars to the Mexico Red Cross to support reconstruction in several states in Mexico affected by the two storms Ingrid and Manuel.

The money would be distributed to areas ravaged by heavy rains and massive landslides and assist local communities to do reconstruction and rebuilding work, IDB President Luis Alberto Moreno said when attending the XVI Inter-American Microenterprise Forum 2013 in Guadalajara, a city of Jalisco state in central western Mexico.

The Mexican government has not made full preparation for the post-storm reconstruction and the total fund to pay for the cleanup by government was estimated at about 75 billion pesos (some 5.7 billion US dollars), Moreno said.

The bank is now waiting for the approval of the Finance Ministry, Moreno said, adding that “we are in the process, as we are indicated, the financing for the reconstruction.”

The two storms that began to batter Mexico in mid-September have killed at least 147 people and left swaths of the country under water, buckling bridges and destroying highways. About 30,000 people were still living in shelters currently.

States of Guerrero, Michoacan, Tamaulipas, Chihuahua, Chiapas, Jalisco, Puebla, San Luis Potosi, Oaxaca, Veracruz and Zacatecas were among the most affected regions in Mexico. — Xinhua

Kenya Airways opens direct flight to China

 Nairobi, 1 October — Kenya Airways has introduced flight changes to Far East Asia as the airline boosts its fleet to meet increased route expansion.

The airline CEO Titus Naikuni said Kenya Airways will launch direct flights three times a week to Chinese business hub Guangzhou on 19 November while maintaining the four-time-a-week linked flights to the city via Bangkok.

Naikuni said Far East Asia is not only a key source of foreign direct investment and trade for Africa, but it is also emerging as an important source market for the tourism sector in the continent.

“For these reasons, we are optimizing our services into the region so as to contribute towards sustainable development of the continent which is our core purpose,” Naikuni said in a statement released in Nairobi on Monday.

The nonstop flight will be carried out by Boeing 777-300ER.

Naikuni said the flight changes were introduced to optimize the airline’s services into the Far East, thus facilitating economic interaction between Africa and the region.

The nonstop flights to Guangzhou will depart from Nairobi every Monday, Wednesday and Friday.

Trade between Africa and China has grown exponentially in the last ten years and makes China the biggest trading partner of the continent.

Fernandez-Castano replaces injured Hanson in Seve Trophy

Paris, 1 October — Spanish Gonzalo Fernandez-Castano will replace the injured Peter Hanson in the Continental Europe team for this week’s Seve Trophy near Paris, the European Tour announced on Monday.

Sweede Hanson has withdrawn from the biennial contest against Britain and Ireland at St-Nom-La-Bretêche Golf Club due to a back injury that has affected him for most of the season.

Hanson, 35, said: “I am really disappointed not to be able to play. Everyone knows how much I love matchplay events.

“My back has been an issue for pretty much most of the year and it is still not 100 percent. I have my defense of the BMW Masters in China coming up which is part of the Final Series of the European Tour and I want to be in ideal shape for that full run of tournaments.”

Hanson’s mind coach Torsten Hansson said the player was still practicing but did not think his back would stand up to the rigors of the Seve Trophy.

He added Hanson was about to spend two weeks in Florida, where he is based, receiving treatment on a compressed disc.

Fernandez-Castano, who will be making his third appearance in the contest, said: “I really enjoyed the two previous contests I played and it is important to support a tournament with Seve’s name on it, not only because of what he did for Spanish golf, but for what he did for the game in Europe and the European Tour as a whole.

“I wanted to show my respect for him. It was a privilege to play under Seve in 2007 and under Thomas Bjorn in 2009, and it is a dream come true for me now to play in the Seve Trophy with Jose Maria Olazabal (as captain).”

Fernandez-Castano is jointed by fellow Spaniard Miguel Angel Jimenez, Danish duo Thomas Bjorn and Thorbjorn Olesen, Finn Paronen, Gregory Bourdy, Belgian Nicolas Colsaerts, Finland’s Mikko Ilonen Dutchman Joost Luiten and the Italian pair of Matteo Manassero and Francesco Molinari.
