Tokyo, 27 Oct — The next summit, set for 22 May in 2015, is expected to take place at Spa Resort Hawaiians, a leisure complex in Iwaki. Kishida told reporters the summit will provide a good opportunity to demonstrate the region’s reconstruction from a massive earthquake and tsunami that flattened Fukushima and other northeastern Japan parts in 2011.

Kishida and Foreign Minister Philipp Muller of the Marshall Islands co-chaired the one-day meeting as a follow-up to the Pacific Islands Leaders Meeting held in Okinawa Prefecture in May 2012. The ministers reaffirmed common values such as democracy, human rights and the rule of law, and committed to working together to enhance transparency, predictability and accountability throughout the region, the chairman’s summary of the meeting said.

PRAUGE, 27 Oct — Czech Social Democrats won a slim victory in a parliamentary election on Saturday but faced a tough task forming a government after a wave of voter anger over soaring budget cuts propelled new protest parties into parliament.

With most results in, Bohuslav Sobota’s centre-left, pro-European Social Democratic coalition led by billionaire Andrej Babis, won 30 percent of the vote, well short of the 30 percent they had targeted and in need of more than one coalition partner to build a stable government.

In an outcome echoing the success of anti-establishment parties elsewhere in Europe such as Beppe Grillo’s 5-Star movement in Italy, the big winner was an anti-graft movement ANO (Yes) led by Slovak-born billionaire businessman Andrej Babis.

ANO, launched just two years ago and languishing in opinion polls until late in the election campaign, took second place with nearly 19 percent. The Communists, heirs of the party that lost power in the 1989 “Velvet Revolution”, came third.

The election result leaves the central European country of 10.5 million people facing the prospect of protracted political bickering and of another weak and unstable government just as the Czech economy emerges from a lengthy recession.

It also dashes Sobota’s hopes of forming a minority government with the parliamentary support of the Communists because the two parties cannot muster a majority. The Communists, who have not had a share of power since the return of Czech democracy in 1989, won around 15 percent of the vote.

Ex-Soviet Georgia enters new era with presidential poll

Tbilisi, 27 Oct — Georgia elects a new president on Sunday in a vote that will end Mikhail Saakashvili’s decade-long rule and test confidence in the ruling Georgian Dream coalition led by billionaire Prime Minister Bidzina Ivanishvili.

The front-runner to replace Saakashvili, a pro-US leader who fought a war with Russia and has served the maximum two terms, is George Margvelashvili, a member of the coalition which ousted the president’s cabinet in an election a year ago.

Saakashvili’s departure should end feeding that has hindered policy-making and the investment climate for a year, but the future is clouded by Ivanishvili’s decision to step aside as well. Japan-Pacific islands summit to be held in Fukushima in 2015

Tokyo, 27 Oct — Ministers and other officials from Japan and the 16-member Pacific Islands Forum decided on Saturday to hold the next summit of their leaders in Iwaki in Japan’s northeastern prefecture of Fukushima in May 2015, Japanese Foreign Minister Fumio Kishida said.

The decision was made as participants discussed maritime order, resource management and new ways to cooperate in trade and investment, while taking stock of progress on pledges made at a summit last year.

Italy’s right could split after Berlusconi move

Several parliamentarians allied to the former prime minister were critical of Berlusconi’s move, and five senior PDL members boycotted Friday’s meeting where the decision was made.

Forza Italia (Go Italy!) was Berlusconi’s party when he first entered politics in 1994, and although he said it would support the government of Prime Minister Enrico Letta, just as the PDL has done, it has caused a rift among his followers. “My absence at the president’s office was motivated by my total opposition to the proposal to dissolve the PDL… to return to Forza Italia which I have never been a part of,” Senatcor Carlo Giovanniardi said on his website.

Giovanniardi added that the center-right could split into two allied groups: Forza Italia led by Berlusconi and a PDL led by its current secretary Angelino Alfano.

Alfano led an internal party revolt earlier in the month that thwarted Berlusconi’s attempt to bring down Letta’s coalition.

Israel dismisses reports Iran halting higher-grade enrichment

JERUSALEM, 27 Oct — Israel on Saturday dismissed as “irrelevant” reports that Iran had halted its most sensitive uranium enrichment activity, and said Teheran’s nuclear programme must be dismantled. A senior member of Iran’s parliamentary national security commission was quoted as saying Iran had stopped refining uranium above the 5 percent required for civilian power stations, as it already had all the 20 percent enriched fuel it needed for a medical research reactor in Teheran.

But diplomats accredited to the UN nuclear watchdog said they had no confirmation Iran had halted enrichment of uranium to 20 percent — a sensitive issue because it is a relatively short technical step to increase that to the 90 percent needed to make a nuclear warhead. “The discussion on whether or not Iran has ceased 20 percent enrichment is irrelevant,” said an Israeli official. Israel fears its arch enemy Iran is developing atomic weapons capability, and has hinted it could attack the Islamic republic to prevent it from getting the bomb. Iran says its nuclear activities are entirely peaceful.—Reuters

45-year-old president deports. The retreat of Ivanishvili, Georgia’s richest man, has contributed to uncertainty in a country that is strategically important for Russia and Europe, which receives Caspian oil and gas through pipelines via Georgia.

After the election, constitutional changes take effect which will shift power from the presidency to the government and earlier parliament, but Ivanishvili has said he will be prime minister.

“This is not only a presidential election, but it’s also a major change in the political system in Georgia,” said Helen Khoshtaria, an independent political analyst. “The intention of the prime minister to quit his position after the election raises more questions than answers about who is going to take the lead in this quite hectic coalition.”

Twitter IPO pegs valuation at modest $11 billion

SAN FRANCISCO, 27 Oct — Seeking to avoid a repeat of Facebook Inc’s much-maligned public debut, Twitter Inc revealed more modest ambitions on Thursday, saying its initial public offering would raise up to $1.6 billion and value the company at up to $10.9 billion. The valuation was more conservative than the $15 billion that some analysts had expected for the social media phenomenon.

Twitter, which has signaled for weeks that it would prize its IPO conservatively to avoid the stock drop that marred Facebook’s offering, said that it intends to sell 70 million shares priced between $17 and $20. If the company’s underwriters choose to sell an additional allotment of 10.5 million shares,

"Twitter could raise as much as $1.6 billion at the top of the price range, according to an amended version of its prospectus filed on Thursday. Twitter is expected to set the price on 6 November, according to a document reviewed by Reuters, suggesting that the stock could begin trading as early as 7 November. “It’s conservative and likely going to be raised as they start the road show at least once if not twice,” Sam Hamade of PrivCo, a private company research firm, said of Twitter’s pricing. “The size of the offering is also a bit small,” he added. “But they may only choose to raise the price once they gauge investor demand. Raising both the price and the size of the offering would bankrupt itself have to shield local internet traffic from foreign intelligence services. Yet the nascent effort, which took on new urgency after Germany said on Wednesday that it had evidence that Chancellor Angela Merkel’s mobile phone had been monitored, faces an uphill battle if it is to be more than a marketing gimmick.”

It would not work when Germans surf on websites hosted on servers abroad, such as social network Facebook or search engine Google, according to interviews with six telecom and internet experts. Deutsche Telekom could also have trouble getting rival broadband groups on board because they are wary of sharing network information. More fundamentally, the initiative runs counter to how the Internet works today - global traffic is passed from network to network under free or paid-for agreements with no thought for national borders.

If more countries wall themselves off, it could lead to a troubling “Balkanisation” of the Internet, crippling the openness and efficiency that have made the web a source of economic growth, said Dan Kaminsky, a US security researcher.

"Controls over internet traffic are more commonly seen in countries such as China and Iran where governments seek to limit the content their people can access by erecting firewalls and blocking Facebook and Twitter. “It is internationally without precedent that the internet traffic of a developed country bypasses the servers of another country,” said Torsten Gerpott, a professor of business and telecoms at the University of Duisburg-Essen.

Lapses to laptops: Formula One sells its big data know-how

SINGAPORE, 27 Oct — Wander around the pits at a Formula One car race and you’re as likely to bump into a laptop-wielding scientist or engineer as a mechanic with a spanner. And the lessons they are drawing from sensors on F1 tracks, cars and drivers are finding their way into a surprising range of industries — from drilling oil wells to making toothpaste.

"By chance or whatever we’ve ended up that F1 is a very strong metaphor for how the world is developing around a more industrialized Internet," says Peter van Manen, managing director of McLaren Electronics Systems, part of a group which makes F1 cars. “You take information and you measure things, and from that you try to adapt how things behave and flow, so you can make performance better.” Formula One racing, born after World War II, has long embraced rapid innovation.

It can take seven years to get an ordinary car from the drawing board to the showroom: An F1 car may take just five months ... and have new components added to it each race weekend. "There are very few industries which have a similar ability to evolve at such pace and bring components or products to market at such speed," says Gerard Spensley, AT&T’s global accounts director for F1.

But in recent years safety concerns and fears it would bankrupt itself have forced the sport to adopt tighter regulations, reducing speeds and spending. This has shifted emphasis from hardware upgrades to real-time tweaks in efficiency and tactics to prise an extra millisecond or two from car and driver. To do that, teams capture gigabytes of data from more than 100 sensors on each F1 car, transmitting it back to the pit or direct to their UK headquarters over high-speed cables. Once engineers have analyzed the data they feed advice back to the driver — often within minutes or even seconds.

Volkswagen XL1 hybrid car, the world’s first 1-liter vehicle, made its debut in Beijing, capital of China, on 23 Oct, 2013. The vehicle, dubbed “the world’s most efficient car,” consumes only 0.9 liter of fuel when traveling 100 kilometers. It’s said that only 250 units will be produced for sale across the world.

"It can take seven years to get an ordinary car from the drawing board to the showroom: An F1 car may take just five months ... and have new components added to it each race weekend. Mosaic HIV vaccine affords “partial protection” in monkeys

WASHINGTON, 27 Oct — in a study that appeared in the journal Cell, researchers said that a mosaic vaccine reduced the risk of infection by nearly 90 percent among monkeys exposed to a stringent simian-human immunodeficiency virus, which mixes HIV and the simian version of the virus, the team led by US Beth Israel Deaconess Medical Centre (BIDMC) reported.

“A global HIV vaccine would offer major biomedical and practical advantages over most other HIV vaccine candidates, which are limited to certain regions of the world,” said lead author Dan Barouch, director of the Centre for Virology and Vaccine Research at BIDMC. To our knowledge, this study represents the first evaluation of the protective efficacy of a candidate global HIV antigen strategy against nonhuman primates. “In their study, the researchers studied the immunogenicity of the mosaic vaccine, a blend of three major HIV proteins, including Env, Gag and Pol, when it was administered to rhesus monkeys. After immunization, the monkeys were repetitively exposed to multiple HIV-immunodeficiency virus challenges. “Although most vaccinated animals became infected by the end of the challenge series, we observed 87 percent to 90 percent reduction in the per-exposure pro-bability of infection,” the researchers said.

Microsoft beats profit forecasts, shares jump

SEATTLE, 27 Oct — Microsoft Corp cruised past Wall Street’s quarterly profit and revenue forecasts on Thursday, helped by strong sales of its Office and server software to business- nesses, sending its shares up more than 5 percent after hours. The world’s largest software company is the latest tech firm to surprise investors with a powerful performance, coming the same day as Amazon.com Inc eased past average reve- nue forecasts. Technology is proving one of the most resilient sectors in an uncer- tain economy, with 84 percent of tech companies beating earnings estimates for the latest quarter. Analysts had trimmed profit targets for Microsoft over the past three months, concerned by the launch of an ambitious reorganiza- tion by retiring Chief Ex- ecutive Steve Ballmer and the pricey acquisition of Nokia’s handset business, even as the company’s core personal computer market ebbs away. “The earnings report will positively sur- prise the market, especially in the context of the soft ex- pections going in and the dismal report last quarter,” said Todd Lowenstein, a portfolio manager at fund firm HighMark Capital. “Beating on revenue and earnings handily will boost confidence that the reorgan- ization is pivoting them in the right direction.”

Samsung posts record-high operating profit in Q3

SEOUL, 27 Oct — Samsung Electronics, the world’s largest maker of smartphones, memory chips and flat screen TVs, said on Friday that its third-quarter operating profit hit a new quarterly high due to robust sales of its Galaxy smartphones. Operating profit was 10.16 trillion won (9.57 bil- lion US dollars) in the three months ending 30 Septem- ber, up 26.08 percent from the same period of last year, according to the regulatory filing. The figure was up 6.64 percent from three months earlier, topping the prior record high of 9.53 trillion won in the previous quarter.

Sales increased 13.24 percent on year to 59.08 tril- lion won in the third quar- ter, breaching the prior high of 57.46 trillion won tallied in the second quarter. The reading was up 2.82 percent from three months ago. Net income jumped 25.59 per- cent from a year earlier to 8.24 trillion won in the third quarter. The figure was up 6.06 percent from the prior quarter.

FDA recommends tightening access to hydrocodone pain-killers

WASHINGTON, 27 Oct — The US Food and Drug Administration on Thursday recommended tighter restrictions on products that contain hydrocodone, an opioid painkiller present in commonly prescribed, potentially addictive drugs such as Vicodin. Until now, Vicodin and other prod- ucts that contain less than 15 milligrams of hydroco- done have been classified as Schedule II controlled substances. The FDA recom- mends reclassifying them more restrictively—poten- tially as Schedule II prod- ucts, in line with opioid pain-killers such as oxycodone and morphine. Reclassifying the products would make them harder to obtain, both by addicts and by legitimate patients. Physicians are not allowed to call in a prescription for a Schedule II product to a pharmacy. Instead, patients must pre- sent a written prescription. In addition, patients would not be allowed as many refills before returning to see their doctors, poten- tially representing a hard- ship for patients in chronic pain. The proposed change was urged by the Drug En- forcement Administration, which is battling a rising tide of prescription drug abuse. The change must be approved by the Depart- ment of Health and Hu- man Services and the DEA, which will make a final scheduling decision. Opponents of the rule change, including many physicians, have argued for years that restricting pain products further could cause hardship to pain pa- tients, especially the elder- ly.—Xinhua

Panasonic to cut 7,000 jobs in semiconductor sector

Tokyo, 27 Oct — Japanese electronics giant Panas- sonic is going to cut 7,000 jobs in its semiconductor sector after years of losses, local media reported on Thursday. The reduction will be made by the fiscal year of 2014 through March 2015, which accounts for nearly half of its current employ- ees in the sector, the Kyodo news reported, citing un- named sources. Most of the job losses will affect Panasonic’s overseas plants, including those in China, Indonesia, Malaysia and Singapore, which will be transferred to other busi- nesses, the sources added.

The decision is made after Panasonic’s semicon- ductor business has been losing money amid fierce international competition, and the company is putting more resources into auto- and housing-related businesses, according to the report.

Iran FM, UN-Arab envoy urge political solution to Syrian crisis

TEHERAN, 27 Oct — Iranian Foreign Minister Mohammad-Javad Zarif (R) and UN-Arab League joint special representative to Syria Lakhdar Brahimi attend a Press conference after their meeting in Teheran, capital of Iran, on 26 Oct, 2013. Zarif and Brahimi called here on Saturday for a political solution to the Syrian crisis.

Zarif said that it will not accept any precondition to its attending the Geneva II meeting. Beiring the main regional ally of the Syrian government, Iran has condemned foreign interference and “terrorists’ involvement” in the Syrian conflict.

Senior official urges efficient implementation of “mass-line” campaign

Liu Yunshan (C, back), a member of the Standing Committee of the Political Bureau of the Communist Party of China (CPC) Central Committee, presides over the fifth meeting of the leading group of the “mass-line” education campaign, aimed to strengthen the ties between the CPC and the public, in Beijing, capital of China, on 26 Oct, 2013. (Xinhua)

Liu, a member of the Standing Committee of the Political Bureau of the CPC Central Committee, said at a meeting of the campaign’s leading group that officials should conduct thorough self-examination for undesirable work styles and carry out criticism and self-criticism to identify and correct deep-rooted problems. The one-year campaign was launched in June to correct the bad work practices and decontamination work needed to be revised.

Under the law, the government use public funds to build and manage temporary facilities to store radioactively contaminated soil and other waste resulting from the nuclear crisis at the Fukushima Daiichi power plant, party sources said Saturday.

The move is aimed at alleviating financial burdens on Tokyo Electric Power Co, the operator of the crippled plant, and winning the understanding of local residents who oppose construction of the facilities, by increasing the government’s role, the sources said. Interim storage facilities for radioactive waste are scheduled to be built in Okuma, Futaba and Naraha towns in Fukushima Prefecture at a cost of several hundred billion yen. The facilities are expected to start operations in January 2015.

The Fukushima Daiichi plant straddles the towns of Okuma and Futaba, while Naraha hosts the Fukushima Daini nuclear power plant, also run by the utility known as TEPCO. Final disposal of the waste is supposed to occur at locations outside Fukushima Prefecture within 30 years of operations starting at the interim storage facilities, but the site for final disposal has yet to be decided.

The LDP is set to call for the use of government money other than funds earmarked for reconstruction of the areas hit hard by the March 2011 earthquake and tsunami that triggered the nuclear accident, the sources said. However, some government officials are cautious about the LDP’s plan because a law stipulating that TEPCO will shoulder expenses for the interim storage facilities and decontamination works would need to be revised.

Under the law, the government is initially paying for the temporary facilities and decontamination work and later ask TEPCO to reimburse the costs. The scheme is designed to prevent TEPCO’s financial condition from affecting work to dispose of contaminated soil and other waste.

Honesty is the best policy

Every one satisfies when an item of goods he buys is worth paying. He will not be happy if the goods he buys is high in price but low in quality. In this world, there are many people pursuing an honest living. On the other hand, there are also people who use deceitful means to get easy money.

Obviously, we can get goods at right prices from honest traders. But we cannot trust the dishonest persons because they are applying deceitful methods in various forms. Their only intention is to make as much as profits they can. In fact, fakes are worse than unfair prices.

These days, cheating in measurements has become a normal procedure in the market places. Dishonest traders are using more fraudulent means such as putting other substances into goods, especially food products or selling counterfeit goods as real ones. Meat and fish sellers inject water to make their goods gain extra weight. Higher grade rice or cooking paste and chili powder are not free from mixing procedures. Fraudulent means may also be applied in selling other goods.

But such dishonest means will decrease consumer trust in the long run, and eventually harm the market. From the religious point of view, exercising such deceitful means is a sin. Cheating in fact is not different from stealing. It is like taking something the owner does not give you or without his knowledge.

So, honesty is the best policy in every case including trading. This sin-free policy ensures a win-win situation for both the seller and the buyer and also enhances consumer trust that is the backbone of a reliable and sustainable market.

Syrians suffering economic hardship

DAMASCUS, 27 Oct — In al-Shaalan market in the Syrian capital of Damascu, where many food and clothing shops are dotted around, fewer people now walk around here to buy expensive items.

Most shops are empty of consumers, and only those that sell the cheap Falafel sandwiches are still busy.

In order to cope with the economic hardship as a result of the long-standing domestic crisis and the U.S. and EU economic sanctions, most Syrians have to abandon fancy restaurants and opt for cheap dinners or buy low-priced take-away food.

A man in his 40s waiting for his turn to buy sandwich said “It’s the only thing in this country whose price is still rational and affordable for most Syrians. We used to eat Falafel once a month, but now because of the unprecedented expensive living conditions, we eat it every week.”

As part of the austerity measures, a lot of Syrians cut large spending on big-ticket items and stopped buying expensive foodstuff, even like meat, from their food list.

Syrians complain of the soaring prices of all consumer items, which have made most items out of reach for Syrians amid reports that the country’s inflation rate is now one of the highest in the world.

Official figures have put the inflation rate at around 50 percent, but unofficial estimates say it’s about 300 percent, further worsening the Syrians’ livelihood.

Despite the government’s efforts to control markets and bring the exchange rate of the Syrian pound against the U.S. dollar back to normal levels, Syrians still grumble about the government’s inability to reduce the soaring prices of consumer items and foodstuff.

The central bank of Syria has strongly intervened in the exchange market and its policy was noted in its report that “300,000 public sector employees are considered living under the food poverty line,” which is a volume that cannot be covered by donations.—Xinhua

China poses no danger to Russia, Medvedev says

MOSCOW, 27 Oct — Russian Prime Minister Dmitry Medvedev said here Saturday that China poses no danger to Russia, and bilateral cooperation between the two countries will bring mutual benefit.

China, the world’s second largest economy, is Russia’s strategic partner, Medvedev said in an interview with the Russia-1 TV channel, adding that Moscow should cooperate with Beijing on high technology.

“Why should we fear them. They are our neighbors,” the prime minister said after ending a two-day visit to China on Wednesday.

During Medvedev’s visit, Russian state-owned oil company Rosneft signed an agreement with China Petrochemical Corporation (Sinoppec) to supply 10 million tons of crude oil each year for a decade starting in 2014.

Rosneft also signed a deal with China National Petroleum Corporation (CNPC) to line out principles for a joint-venture oil refinery set up in China’s northern port city of Tianjin.

“It means that they will work on it and we will also do this,” Russia state news agency RIA Novosti quoted Medvedev as saying.

Serial bomb explosions in eastern India kill one, injure 5

NEW DELHI, 27 Oct—Serial bomb explosions rocked the eastern Indian state of Patna Sunday, killing at least one person and injuring five others, a senior police official said.

“Three bomb explosions took place in a span of two hours, one at Patna’s main railway station, the second one went off near a movie theater in the city, and the third at a ground where the country’s main opposition Bhartiya Janata Party (BJP)’s prime ministerial candidate Narendra Modi has been slated to address a political rally later in the day,” he said on condition of anonymity.

In the second explosion under a tree near the Elphinstone movie hall, at least four people sustained injuries, while so far no reports of any casualty has been reported in the third explosion.

All the injured have been admitted to local hospitals where the condition of one is said to be serious, the official said, adding one more crude bomb has been found at the railway station and defused.

The explosions came just hours before the Modi was to hold a political rally for which Indian Railways have been running special trains to facilitate BJP supporters to reach the city.

7 more killed as incessant rain pounds eastern India

NEW DELHI, 27 Oct—Seven more people were killed Saturday as heavy rain continued in the eastern Indian state of Andhra Pradesh for the fifth day, raising death toll in the state to 29, said officials.

Most of the victims died of incidents like wall collapse. Hundreds of villages remain inundated by flash flood from northeast Monsoon rain together with low pressure area over the Bay of Bengal. Over 7,000 people were evacuated from low-lying areas and shifted to 180 relief camps.

Flash flood is also reported in neighboring Orissa, where at least 10 died and dozens remain missing, and West Bengal, where the state capital Kolkata has been flooded widely. Earlier reports said over 40 people have died in Orissa alone.

In Andhra Pradesh, rivers and tanks have been overflowing, submerging low-lying areas and marooning tens of thousands of people in more than 3,000 villages in 16 districts. At least three trains have been canceled and a dozen of others diverted because the rail tracks are submerged by water.

Hundrends of members of National Disaster Response Force were engaged in relief operations in the affected areas in the three states. Thousands of houses were also damaged or destroyed while a huge amount of crops were washed away.

The meteorological office has forecast rain at most places over coastal areas of the three states over the next 48 hours. The area has been pounded by a powerful cyclone in the middle of the month, which killed over 30.—Xinhua

Pakistani PM to take parties into confidence on Taleban talks

ISLAMABAD, 27 Oct—Pakistani Prime Minister, Nawaz Sharif, on Saturday said he would take all parties into confidence about the talks with the armed Taleban militants.

The Prime Minister’s statement came just hours after the opposition leader, Khurshid Shah, said the government has not shared anything about the dialogue with the armed militants.

The country’s all major political and religious parties at a government-sponsored conference last month had unanimously called up the government to initiate talks with the Taleban to end the bloodshed.

The opposition leader said he has written a letter to the Prime Minister and said one-and-a-half month has passed since the parties had suggested peace talks but the government has not taken any step to inform them about the development.

Prime Minister, Nawaz Sharif, has directed that all political parties be taken into confidence with regard to the progress of dialogue with the Taleban, the PM office said on Saturday.

The Prime Minister said all political parties had mandated the government through the All Parties Conference (APC) to hold dialogue with the Taleban.

The representatives of different political parties should feel as part of the process, Nawaz Sharif said in a meeting with Interior Minister, Ch. Nisar Ali Khan.

Sources meanwhile said the Prime Minister has asked the Interior Minister to contact the leaders of political parties and take them into confidence on the talks.

Official sources said Nawaz Sharif is likely to speak at the parliament soon to take the house into confidence on his recent visit to the United States.

Some opposition parties say delay in talks with the Taleban has increased attacks in the country’s northwest, which claimed nearly 200 people over the past two months.

The refuge, home to a good number of birds and other wildlife, lies 140 km east of Houston, Texas' largest city, and spreads over 5,000 acres. Narok, (Kenya), 27 Oct — At least five people were buried alive and one rescued with serious injuries in a quarry collapse in the southwest of Kenya, local medics and witnesses reported on Friday.

The six were mining sand at Tulwetab Mosonik quarry in Bomet County when the accident occurred early in the day, four years after a similar tragedy in the same area. The rescue team saved a man who had been trapped in the rubble of the collapsed quarry for two hours. Doctors said the survivor was in stable but serious condition.

They said he had suffered fractures in various parts of the body including legs, arms and back due to heavy rubble which fell on him. An eyewitness, Lucas Koech said they were preparing to start mining sand when walls at the quarry started falling. — Xinhua

Tunisia’s ruling Islamist party, opposition start crisis talks

Tunis, 27 Oct — Tunisia’s ruling Islamist party and the opposition began talks on Friday to form a caretaker government and prepare for elections under an agreement to end months of unrest in the country that lessened the “Arab Spring” revolts. The North African nation has been in turmoil since July when the resignation of an opposition leader ignited anti-government protests that threatened to derail a democratic transition once seen as a model for the region.

Moderate Islamist party Ennahda has agreed in weeks of talks to appoint a non-partisan cabinet to govern until elections. The two sides will also decide on a vote date and appoint an electoral commission.

Abe’s push for more active SDF role overseas behind Japan’s secrecy law

Tokyo, 27 Oct — Prime Minister Shinzo Abe is striving to protect state secrets by imposing tougher penalties on leakers in Japan’s new secrecy law, placing it as an important pillar of his envisioned security framework.

With the focus on how Tokyo will address public criticism about tighter state control of information in Diet deliberations, Abe is steadily laying the groundwork for Japan’s Self-Defense Forces to engage in overseas missions to make more “proactive” contributions to global peace under the new strengthened framework.

The Cabinet on Friday approved a bill to toughen penalties for civil servants, lawmakers and others who leak sensitive information concerning diplomacy, defense, terrorism and espionage. Leakers of “special secrets” designated by the government will face up to 10 years in prison.

Abe has said Japan needs to create a framework to guarantee confidentiality as a “prerequisite” for sharing sensitive information with its allies, especially the United States.

At the crux of the latest development is Abe’s desire to bolster the Japan-US security alliance to cope with new threats in the Asia-Pacific region, experts say. “It is a reasonable step because Japan has been too lenient compared with other countries. It is also timely as Japan’s SDF will likely engage in more overseas missions to contribute to global peace,” said Narushige Michishita, associate professor at the National Graduate Institute for Policy Studies in Tokyo.

When a country tries to gain greater influence on the global stage, there may be other countries that will see such a move as hostile and attempt to obtain state secrets of that country. So more steps should be taken before such secrets are leaked,” said Abe. The government hopes to pass the bill before the current extraordinary Diet session ends on 6 December, in time for the planned launch of a US-style National Security Council to strengthen the leadership role of the prime minister’s office in crafting security policy. — Kyodo News

British actor Tim Roth to play Blatter in film

LONDON, 27 Oct—Actors Tim Roth and Gerard Depardieu have agreed to star in a film about FIFA president Sepp Blatter, senior FIFA officials have confirmed.

The project, being made by a French production company, is due to be released next year to coincide with the World Cup finals in Brazil and FIFA’s 110th anniversary and tells the story of world soccer’s governing body since its formation in 1904.

Roth, a 52-year-old Englishman, will play Blatter, a 77-year-old Swiss, while Frenchman Depardieu will play former FIFA president and compatriot Jules Rimet, who was among FIFA’s founding fathers and served as the body’s president from 1921 until 1954.

Speaking on a video on FIFA’s website (www.fifa.com), Blatter said he was pleased to be portrayed by the British actor on screen. “The casting was well done and it was a very interesting get-together,” Blatter says of his meeting with Roth. “I had read a lot of the CV and (seen) all the realisations (films) that Tim Roth has made. I was very eager to meet him, and I have just realised that really we have something in common.”

Blatter said Roth agreed that the pair had “some common, let’s say, qualities”.

Actor Orlando Bloom, model Miranda Kerr separate

NEW YORK, 27 Oct—British actor Orlando Bloom and Australian model Miranda Kerr have separated after three years of marriage, the couple said on Friday.

Bloom, 36, who is starring in a modern-day version of “Romeo and Juliet” on Broadway, and Kerr, 30, said they have been amicably separated for the past few months.

The couple began dating in 2007, married in July 2010 and has a 2-year-old son, Flynn.

“After six years together, they have recently decided to formalize their separation,” their representative said in a statement. “Despite this being the end of their marriage, they love, support and respect each other as both parents of their son and as family,” the statement added. The announcement ended almost a year of speculation that Bloom, the star of Hollywood blockbusters “Lord of the Rings” and “Pirates of the Caribbean,” and Kerr, one of the highest-earning models, were parting. The couple have not appeared in public together since Bloom’s Broadway debut on 19 September in “Romeo and Juliet” opposite actress Condola Rashad.—Reuters

Suarez hat-trick keeps Liverpool on Arsenal’s tail

It was his first hat-trick here at Anfield and you saw his commitment to the team and what we’re trying to do,” Rodgers said. “It was a wonderful performance.

Daniel Sturridge’s goal - you used to see goals like that here many years ago, top quality players scoring those types of goals, Kenny (Dalglish) and what-not. That type of goal today was incredible.”

Liverpool have lost only one of their last 17 league matches and once Suarez jinked past two defenders and fired a shot past Boaz Myhill after 12 minutes they did not look back.

Arsenal twice trailed where champions Manchester United moved level on Premier League leaders West Bromwich Albion at Anfield in an early kick-off despite having goal-scorer Mikael Arteta sent off.

Dark clouds were gathering over Old Trafford where champions Manchester United twice trailed Stoke City before late goals by Wayne Rooney and Javi-Manuel Hernandez earned them a 3-2 victory, staving off a lurking qualification for the season-ending final, and seen the Merseysiders top-four chance of being the highest-placed team at the end of the season.

Arsenal needed Mikael Arteta’s penalty to break the deadlock shortly after half-time and then, when the Spaniard was sent off, required some resolute defending and a couple of saves from keeper Wojciech Szczesny to keep plucky Palace at bay.

“Your new keepers were unbelievable in the Premier League since the opening day of the season, scoring seven of eight.”

“I think it was a wrong decision because it is supposed to be a clear goal scoring opportunity and it was very far from goal and it has to be the last man, which was not proven.”

After Arteta’s red card Palace nearly levelled when Joel Ward’s long-range effort was touched on the bar by Szczesny who also stopped Mile Jedinak’s volley with a super save.

Wenger praised Poland international Szczesny, saying he had stepped up a level since last season.

“You see the quality of a keeper with the timing of his saves,” Wenger said.

Wenger said the lanky Canadian, described by his big-hitting opponent to improve his mood and saluting what is becoming his most successful team, on earth at the end of the season.

But the 32-year-old world number one, going for a changeover in the first set, said he had stepped up a level since last season.

These are the kind of games where you need the points, we were mature, resilient, well-organised and in the end we got the second goal which was a relief,” manager Arsene Wenger said. “I thought honest-ly we were unlucky to be down to 10 men and needed to be patient.”

Wenger was measured in his criticism of the decision by referee Chris Foy to send Arteta off for a foul on Marouane Chamakh who seemed about to burst clear from deep.

Exam change won’t dampen English fever

BEIJING, 27 Oct — If you’re an English teacher in China and have heard about plans to reduce the role of English in the all-important national college entrance examination, or gaokao, don’t worry, be happy! Chinese parents’ affinity for the language isn’t about to wane, if anything it’ll become stronger.

As part of a nationwide drive to overhaul the gaokao system, Beijing said on Monday that starting 2016, the score of English would drop from 150 to 100 on its plan, while the total marks for Chinese would be raised from 150 to 180.

Currently, gaokao weighs English, Chinese and math equally. Even before the Monday announcement, Jiangsu province had caused a national stir by reportedly mulling the idea of excluding English from the provincial-level college entrance exam. Sean McNally from Britain teaches Chinese children how to learn English through paintings. Many students in China have trouble learning English and using it in their daily lives. The reasons are simple. In any given year in the past few decades, hundreds of millions of Chinese students were learning English, driven by an instrumental motivation. Parents know English is the lingua franca of international business, which would offer opportunities for upward mobility and economic success if their children become fluent in it.

Cuts in the number of classes for English in schools may be a windfall for the many language tuition centers that have been thriving on parents’ eagerness to give their children an early leg up and are estimated to have a combined yearly revenue of 200 million yuan ($32.89 million).

"I don’t think this win is for the three points," Neymar said in an interview with Spanish television channel Canal Plus. "It was very exciting to score in a match that all players want to be a part of," added the 21-year-old, bought from Santos for 57 million euros ($79 million) in the close season. Unbeaten Barca’s victory, their ninth in the league this season, puts them on 28 points ahead of Real, who are third, at the top of the standings. Second-placed Atletico Madrid are four points behind Barca before their game at home to Real Betis on Sunday. “These are the kind of games when everyone really suffers but I am just happy for the team and for the three points,” Alexis told Canal Plus.

“I don’t think this win will be decisive,” added the Chilean. “There is a long way to go and the championship is not over by any means.” Real coach Carlo Ancelotti opted for a starting formation that looked to be designed specifically to thwart Argentine World Cup Player of the Year Messi. Madrid captain Sergio Ramos, who normally plays at center back, was deployed to operate just in front of central defenders Pepe and Raphael Varane.

Up front, 100 million-euro Welsh winger Bale started in the middle, with Ronaldo on the left and Angel Di Maria on the right. Barca counterpart Gerardo Martino deployed Neymar on the left wing and Cesc Fabregas in a forward roving role with Messi in his customary deep-lying position through the middle.

Barcelona shines as Barca down Real 2-1 in ‘Clasico’

BARCELONA, 27 Oct—Neymar stole the limelight from Lionel Mess, Cristiano Ronaldo and Gareth Bale with a goal and an assist as Barcelona secured a 2-1 win over bitter rivals Real Madrid in Saturday’s La Liga ‘Clasico’ at the Nou Camp.

In a match watched by millions of people around the world, Barca landed an early blow in the title race thanks to the Brazilian’s clinical 19th-minute finish and a sublime chip from substitute Alexis Sanchez 11 minutes from time.

Jese came off the bench to pull a goal back in the first minute of added time but it was little more than a consolation for Real, who were outplayed for long periods and slipped six points behind the champions with 10 matches played.

After a predictably cagey start with few chances in the 167th league meeting between the world’s two richest clubs by income, Neymar opened the scoring when he collected the ball from Andres Iniesta on the left of the penalty area.

Cutting inside on to his right foot, his low shot was slightly deflected by Real fullback Dani Carvajal before zipping past goalkeeper Diego Lopez into the far corner of the net.

Real battled after the break and Karim Benzema, who replaced world record signing Bale on the hour, smashed a shot against the bar before Alexis scored with an exquisite chip over Lopez from just outside the area after being played through by Neymar.

“I am very happy to score such a special goal but above all for the three points,” Neymar said in an interview with Spanish television broadcaster canal Canal Plus. “It was very exciting to score in a match that all players want to be a part of,” added the 21-year-old, bought from Santos for 57 million euros ($79 million) in the close season. China to further friendly relations with neighbouring countries

BEIJING, 27 Oct—Chinese President Xi Jinping has said here that China would strive for a sound neighbouring environment for its own development and seek common development with neighbouring countries.

At a conference in the capital on diplomatic work, Xi stressed the necessity of good diplomatic work in neighbouring countries to realize the “centenary goals” set by the 18th CPC National Congress in November 2012: a moderately prosperous society by 2021 and a prosperous, strong, democratic, culturally advanced, harmonious and modern socialist country by 2049.

CPC leadership attached high importance to diplomatic work, Xi said at the conference held on 24 and 25 October. All members of the Standing Committee of the CPC Central Committee’s Political Bureau attended the conference.

On the basis of ensuring continuity and stability in China’s foreign policy, the CPC Central Committee actively plans and manages China’s diplomacy, and carried out a series of major diplomatic activities after the 18th CPC National Conference, with particular attention to neighbouring countries. With respect to geography, the environment and intertwined relations, Xi said the neighbouring region has major strategic significance.

Dealing with neighbouring countries “should have a three-dimensional, multi-element perspective, beyond time and space”, he said.

“The situation requires us to keep pace with the times and be more active in blueprinting diplomatic strategy and undertaking diplomatic work,” he said.

China’s neighbouring hood, full of vigor and vitality, boasts obvious advantages and potentials in development. The region is stable on the whole, and most of the neighbouring countries have a friendly and mutually beneficial relationship with China, Xi said.

In diplomacy, one must understand the trend of the time, devise strategy and plan carefully, Xi said.

Myanmar, Thailand to generate electricity through solar power in Minbu

Adequate supply of electricity is of vital importance to the development of a particular country. The Ministry of Electric Power is planning to generate electricity through solar power as electricity supply inadequacy can lead to a drop in industrial production capacity.

In order to meet the growing demand in electricity in Myanmar, the ministry and Green Earth Co., of Thailand have signed a memorandum of understanding (MoU) on production of electricity through solar energy in Minbu.

Plans are underway to establish a solar power plant with a generation capacity of 50 MW in Minbu. It is set to complete construction works in 2014-2015. Upon completion, it is expected to operate the facility in 2015-2016 fiscal year.

Moreover, arrangements are being made by ACO Co., to build a solar power station with a generation capacity of 250 MW in Naub-ang of Myingyan District. It is also expected to put the facility into service in 2015-2016 fiscal year.

So, the solar power stations will be able to satisfy the growing electricity demand in the country to a certain extent.

As Myanmar is experiencing insufficiency in the power supply, ways and means are being sought to meet the sharply rising electricity demand in urban areas and industrial zones.
