Egypt tweaks roadmap, may see presidential vote held first

CAIRO, 2 Dec — Egypt’s political transition was pitched into uncertainty on Sunday when a draft constitution was amended to allow a presidential election to be held before parliamentary polls, indicating a potential change in the army’s roadmap. The roadmap unveiled when the military ousted Islamist President Mohamed Mursi in July said a parliamentary election should take place before the presidential one.

But the draft finalized on Sunday by the 50-member constituent assembly avoids saying which vote should happen first, leaving the decision up to President Adly Mansour, seen as a front for army rule since he was installed to head the interim administration.

The draft also says the “election procedures” must start within six months of the constitution’s ratification, meaning Egypt may not have an elected president and parliament until the second half of next year. A major milestone in Egypt’s political roadmap, the constitution must be approved in a referendum expected this month or next.

Amr Moussa, chairman of the constituent assembly, said the draft constitution would be handed to Mansour on Tuesday.

Moussa, former Arab League secretary general, was a candidate in the presidential election won by Morsi last year. The draft reflects how the balance of power has shifted in Egypt since the secular-minded generals ousted Mursi, the country’s first freely elected head of state, after mass protests against him and the Muslim Brotherhood.

The blast also destroyed the police station buildings and damaged several other homes and shops around the blast site in the province, with Maidan Shar as its capital, 35 km west of Kabul, the official noted.

China, Britain to enhance high-tech, economic ties

BEIJING, 2 Dec — China and Britain have agreed to enhance cooperation in areas including high-speed railway, nuclear power and finance, Chinese Premier Li Keqiang said on Monday.

Li told a joint press briefing with visiting British Prime Minister David Cameron that both sides agreed to promote each other’s companies to seek breakthroughs in high-speed railway and nuclear power cooperation.

China is willing to have joint ventures and even hold shares in British nuclear power projects, Li said, adding that Britain is open to that.

Bilateral cooperation in this area will also promote the opening of the third-party market and current and long-term employment, according to the premier.

Concerning the financial sector, the two sides discussed conducting off-shore RMB business in London and Chinese banks’ opening of branches in Britain.

They agreed to expand bilateral high-tech trade and support cooperation in aerospace, offshore wind power and other new energy development, Li said.

He added that Britain has agreed to take measures as soon as possible to increase high-tech exports to China, while both sides will jointly establish an innovation and research fund of 200 million pounds.

More bilateral cooperation in traditional and new media is also on the cards to promote mutual understanding, according to Li.

On people-to-people exchanges, Britain will simplify visa procedures for Chinese tourists and business travelers and increase the frequency of flights, the premier said.

Britain is willing to streamline processes for Chinese citizens to carry out business activities and tourism in Britain, hoping that this will bring more job opportunities to the country, Cameron said.

Invited by Li, Cameron arrived in Beijing on Monday morning for a three-day official visit to China.

Bangkok, 2 Dec — Yingluck Shinawatra said on Monday that she was ready to resign or dissolve the parliament to bring peace to the country.

But she rejected protest leader Suthep Thaugsuban’s request to return power to the people, saying it has no constitutional basis.

Yingluck told a Press conference that she was willing to do everything to restore peace, but it has to be constitutional. Suthep’s call for the establishment of a people’s council cannot be satisfied, Yingluck said, adding she did not know how to make that happen under the Constitution.

Yingluck said she would be open to talks all the time, and urged everyone to join in to find a peaceful solution to the political crisis.

On Sunday night, Suthep gave a two-day ultimatum to Yingluck to return power to the people.

Street protestors have tried since Monday morning to seize the fortified Metropolitan Police Bureau, Government House and parliament. Police tried to disperse them by firing teargas and water cannon.

Iran, Six major powers to discuss how to implement nuclear deal

TEHERAN, 2 Dec — An Iranian nuclear negotiator said on Sunday that Iran and six major powers will hold an expert meeting on 9 and 10 December in Vienna to discuss how to implement their agreement to curb Iran’s nuclear activities in return for the easing of some sanctions imposed by Western countries.

The Iranian and the six powers -- Britain, China, France, Germany, Russia and the United States -- reached a first-stage agreement, under which Iran will stop uranium enrichment above a fissile purity of 5 percent and halt constructing its Arak heavy-water reactor, which could yield plutonium. In return, the six countries will remove the embargo on trade with Iran in precious metals while refraining from imposing new sanctions for six months.

China launches probe and rover to moon

XICHANG, (Sichuan) 2 Dec — China launched the Chang’e-3 lunar probe with the country’s first moon rover aboard early on Monday, marking a significant step toward deep space exploration. The probe’s carrier, an enhanced Long March-3B rocket, blasted off from the Xichang Satellite Launch Centre in southwest China at 1:30 am. Chang’e-3 is expected to land on the moon in mid-December to become China’s first spacecraft to soft land on the surface of an extraterrestrial body. It is also the first moon lander launched in the 21st century. The probe entered the earth-moon transfer orbit as scheduled, with a perigee of 200 kilometres and apogee of 380,000 kilometres. The probe has already entered the designated orbit, said Zhang Zhenzhong, director of the launch centre in Xichang.

“I now announce the launch was successful.” — Wang Keqiang, a keen competitor in the space race, has considered the possibility of putting a man on the moon sometime after 2020 and aims to land its first probe on the moon on Monday.

It will deploy a buggy called the “Jade Rabbit” to explore the lunar surface in a mission that will also test its deep space communication technologies.

Science, love needed to fight HIV/AIDS: Premier Li

BEIJING, 2 Dec — Chinese Premier Li Keqiang has stressed the need for scientific treatment and caring hearts in the fight against HIV/AIDS. Li made the comments in a letter he wrote to Beijing You’an Hospital, Vice Premier Liu Yandong visited the hospital on Sunday, World AIDS Day, and conveyed Li’s letter. Beijing You’an Hospital is one of the city’s leading medical facilities to receive and treat HIV infected patients.

In his letter, Li said scientific prevention and treatment should be provided while discrimination against HIV carriers and AIDS patients should be eliminated to protect their legal rights and interests. He also encouraged more volunteers to take part in the country’s HIV/AIDS control work to form a “network” and “firewall” in fighting the virus.

Just like the untold stars may light up the night sky, HIV/AIDS control needs not only the government authorities to perform their duties, but also the commitment of volunteers in society,” Li said, adding that non-governmental organizations can play an irreplaceable role in communicating with the infected, intervening in high-risk exposures as well as giving consolation and advice to patients.

Amazon launches delivery with drones, CEO Bezos says

NEW YORK, 2 Dec — Amazon.com Inc is testing delivery packages using drones, CEO Jeff Bezos said on Sunday on the CBS television programme “60 Minutes.”

Bezos said the drones, unmanned vehicles that fly through the air, could deliver packages that weigh up to five pounds (2.3 kg). That represents roughly 86 percent of packages that Amazon delivers, he said. The drones, which would pick up items from Amazon’s distribution centers and fly them to customer’s homes, probably won’t be put into use for four or five years, Bezos said.

Japan corporate capex up in third-quarter but GDP seen little changed

Tokyo, 2 Dec — Japanese companies raised spending on factories and equipment in the July-September quarter, but the slow pace of increase casts some doubt on the strength of capital spending that is needed to help sustain economic growth.

The 1.5 percent year-on-year rise in capital spending followed a flat reading in the prior quarter and marked the first gain in four quarters, Ministry of Finance data showed on Monday, but the result disappointed some economists who were expecting stronger gains.

The reading suggests that Japan’s gross domestic product growth for July-September is likely to be little changed, after preliminary data showed a 0.5 percent expansion from the previous quarter, or an annualized rate of 1.9 percent. The capital spending data will be used to calculate revised third-quarter GDP data, which is scheduled for release at 8:50 am on 9 December (2350 GMT on 8 December).

“There is not likely to be much change to GDP data,” said Shuji Tonouchi, a senior fixed income strategist at Mitsui UFJ Morgan Stanley Securities. “There are some worrying signs, as corporate expenditure in the services sector is losing some momentum.”

Excluding software, corporate capital spending declined 0.5 percent on a seasonally adjusted basis in July-September from the previous quarter, down for the first time in four quarters, the Ministry of Finance data showed. Capital spending has been a weak spot in Japan as Prime Minister Shinzo Abe struggles to spur business investment and wage increases at many companies, which remain unconvinced that his refla-

US retail sales up at start of holiday season

New York, 2 Dec — US shoppers visited more stores and spent more money at brick-and-mortar sites across Thanksgiving Day and “Black Friday” than they did in 2012 while online sales set records, data showed on Saturday. When compared with Thanksgiving on Thursday and “Black Friday” last year, research firm ShopperTrak estimated that traffic at brick-and-mortar stores increased 2.8 percent, to more than 1.07 billion store visits.

Retail sales increased by 2.3 percent as shoppers spent an estimated total of $123.3 billion across the two days, ShopperTrak said in a statement. Shoppers were drawn by deep discounts, promotions and extended store hours, it said. Adobe Systems Inc (ADBE.O), which provides digital marketing tools, said its data showed record online sales for “Black Friday” and Thanksgiving at $1.93 billion and $1.02 billion, respectively.

Friday sales were up 39 percent from the year before and rose 18 percent for Thursday, it said in a state-mee. The Adobe analysis is based on 400 million visits to more than 2,000 US retail websites over both days. ShopperTrak said that for “Black Friday,” brick-and-mortar shopper traffic fell 11.4 percent and retail sales were down by 13.2 percent.

“The Black Friday shopping experience is changing with more shoppers choosing to go out on Thanksgiving Day,” Bill Martin, Shop-perTrak founder, said in the statement. Among the four regions in the United States, the West had the greatest increase in traffic and sales at 6.9 percent and 6 percent, respectively, according to ShopperTrak estimates. The Northeast showed the only declines, with drops of 5 percent in traffic and 7 percent in sales. — Reuters

India’s GDP growth seen improving in fiscal second half

Mumbai, 2 Dec — Af-er a marginal improvement in India’s second-quarter GDP readings, leading rating agencies have said the momentum is likely to continue into the second half with a likelihood of the economy faring better than the first half. On Friday, government data showed that the economy grew at a better-than-expected 4.8 per cent in June-September, compared to 4.4 per cent in the previous quarter. Credit rating agencies like Crisil and India Ratings have reasoned the possibility of higher growth figures in H2 on increasing consumption due to good monsoons coupled with spurt in exports, which for the many months have been clipping in high double-digit.

“We expect growth to be higher in the second half, boosted by a pickup in consumption growth on the back of above-normal monsoons and strong growth in exports,” Crisil said in a note. Similarly, In-da Ratings said it expects the economy to recover further from the current levels during the remaining two quarters. The rating agency, however, said “this improvement is likely to be somewhat better than that of H1”. While Crisil maintained its full fiscal forecast at 4.8 per cent, India Ratings estimated a 4.9 per cent growth. Both the figures were marginally lower than government estimates of around 5 per cent.

While manufacturing rose 1 per cent during the September quarter, agriculture output soared 4.6 per cent. Exports during the quarter grew a robust 16.3 per cent on the back of rising global demand and fall in rupee. Also, investment activity measured by gross fixed capital formation picked up in the second quarter and grew by 2.6 percent against a deceleration of 1.2 per cent in the preceding quarter. —PTI

China’s manufacturing growth remains flat in November

Beijing, 2 Dec — Chi-na’s purchasing managers’ index (PMI) for the manufacturing sector remained flat at 51.4 per cent in November, the highest since May 2012, the Natenational Bureau of Statistics (NBS) said on Sunday, but China’s PMI, which has been clipping in high double-digit, showed that of October, which hit a 18-month high. China’s manufacturing PMI rose to 51.4 in November, while the manufacturing PMI remained stable after rising for four consecutive months, showing a steady growth trend in manufacturing. A figure of 50 percent signals expansion.

Zhao Qianhe, a senior NBS statistician, attributed the strong PMI to expanded production, confidence boosted by government measures this year to stabilize growth and restructure the economy, and large-scale enterprises’ active performances. The sub-index for production rose for a fifth month to 54.5 percent, up 0.1 percentage point from October. As producution picked up, companies bought more raw materials, driving the sub-index for material purchase up 0.9 percentage point to 53.6.

“Although the manuufacturing PMI rose for a fifth month, forces that drove up the index were not balanced,” Zhao said. The NBS sub-index for raw material inventories was 47.8 percent, dropping by 0.8 percentage point from 5.1 percentage point from last month, and that for small businesses fell for a fourth month, both of which were still under 50 percent.

The sub-index for new orders dropped 0.2 percentage points to 52.3 percent and business outlook was down by 2.6 percentage points from a month earlier to 54.9 percent in November. —Xinhua

UNSG’s Message on The International Day of Persons With Disabilities

“Break Barriers, Open Doors: For An Inclusive Society For All”

3 December 2013

More than 1 billion of us live with disabilities. We must remove all barriers that affect the inclusion and participation of persons with disabilities in society, including through changing attitudes that fuel stigma and institutionalize discrimination.

In September, during the High-Level Meeting of the General Assembly on Disability and Development, United Nations Member States discussed the many ways that exclusion not only impacts the lives of persons with disabilities, but affects the development of communities and society as a whole. They re-committed to taking national and international action to support disability-inclusive development. The UN system will continue to support those efforts. We need to work harder to ensure that infrastructure and services support inclusive, equitable and sustainable development for all.

This includes guaranteeing meaningful participation in processes that affect the rights and interests of persons with disabilities by providing an enabling environment. To that end, we are inaugurating a UN Accessibility Centre at the UN headquarters. I call on all of the UN system and our partners to follow this lead.

On this International Day of Persons with Disabilities, I call on Governments, members of the UN system, businesses and civil society to break barriers and open doors of opportunity for all persons with disability.

Together, let us build an inclusive society for all.

Tax hikes, security dent Mexican President’s approval rating

MEXICO CITY, 2 Dec — For the first time, more Mexicans disapprove of President Enrique Pena Nieto’s performance than approve, partly because of his tax increases, according to a newspaper poll released on Sunday, the anniversary of his first year in office.

The Reforma newspaper poll of 1,020 people showed that while 48 percent disapproved of Pena Nieto’s job performance, up from 30 percent in April, just 44 percent approved. The approval figure was down from 50 percent eight months ago and marked the first time since taking office last December that it had been below the disapproval percentage.

Those surveyed mainly took issue with Pena Nieto’s new tax scheme, which Mexico’s Congress passed in October. The fiscal overhaul includes higher income tax rates for the wealthy as well as new levies on junk food, soft drinks and stock market gains.

The reform, signed into law by Pena Nieto, aims to raise revenue by almost 2.7 percent of gross domestic product by 2018. There also was concern about Pena Nieto’s handling of organized crime with 58 percent of those surveyed saying he was doing a bad job and 21 percent percent approving.

“They are raising the tax rate, and we are not earning enough income to pay those taxes,” said Georgina, 35, a civil servant. “We are not in a good living condition.”

According to the poll, 25.5 percent of the country suffers its worst spate of violence for at least five years.

No group claimed responsibility for Sunday’s attack but suicide bomb- ers linked to al-Quaeda frequently target local Sunni Muslim leaders and followers considered supportive of Iraq’s Shi’ite-led government. The bombing took place in Muqdadiyah, 80 km (50 miles) northeast of Baghdad, among mourners in a cemetery.

They were escorting the body of a prominent Sunni tribal sheikh, Muhth- fer Ali al-Shalal, who was killed on Saturday by unknown gunmen.

As we were heading to the grave, a stranger ran towards the crowd and blew himself up,” said Firas Ahmed, a relative of the deceased who was wounded in the leg.

“I was lucky because I was not at the front. The bod- ies of the killed and wounded people were everywhere,” Shalal was the son of an- other well-established tribal sheikh. His father had set up a local government-backed Sunni Salwa militia op- posed to al-Qaeda. This year has been Iraq’s most violent since 2007 when tens of thousands died in strife be- tween Sunnis and Shi’ites.

Lack of cash and monitors add to Afghan election troubles

KABUL, 2 Dec — Organizers of Afghanistan’s make-or-break presidential election next year say poor security, a shortage of monitors and funding holes are undermining their ability to safeguard the process from the widespread fraud that marred the last poll in 2009.

Another deeply flawed election would undermine the attempts of Washington and its allies to foster de- mocricy ahead of the with- drawal of foreign troops later in 2014.

“The foundation of the election due to techni- cal issues was not done in the proper way,” said Noor Mohammed Noor, spokes- man for the Independent Election Commission (IEC). “We need meas-ures to secure the process through observers.”

Western nations, who have spent hundreds of bil- lions of dollars on a conflict that has failed to end the Taleban insurgency, have pledged about a third less cash to the United Nations (UN) fund that will cover most of the election’s costs compared with 2009, of- ficial UN figures shows.

The reduced budget is partly because some land and equipment that had to be bought last time is being reused and fewer foreign advisers are needed, says the UN and IEC chief You- sof Nooristani. “They were drawing good salaries out of this budget... but now there is very limited number of for- eigners and everything will have to be done by the Afghans,” said Nooristani of the advis- ers, whose number will drop from 160 last time to a maxi- mum of 60.

Suicide bomber kills 10 in funeral in northern Iraq

BAQUBA, (Iraq), 2 Dec — A suicide bomber in northern Iraq blew himself up at a funeral procession on Sunday, killing at least 10 people and wounding 25, as the country suffers its worst spate of violence for at least five years.

No group claimed responsibility for Sunday’s attack but suicide bomb- ers linked to al-Quaeda frequently target local Sunni Muslim leaders and followers considered supportive of Iraq’s Shi’ite-led government. The bombing took place in Muqdadiyah, 80 km (50 miles) northeast of Baghdad, among mourners in a cemetery.

Lack of cash and monitors add to Afghan election troubles

KABUL, 2 Dec — Organizers of Afghanistan’s make-or-break presidential election next year say poor security, a shortage of monitors and funding holes are undermining their ability to safeguard the process from the widespread fraud that marred the last poll in 2009.

Another deeply flawed election would undermine the attempts of Washington and its allies to foster de- mocricy ahead of the with- drawal of foreign troops later in 2014.

“The foundation of the election due to techni- cal issues was not done in the proper way,” said Noor Mohammed Noor, spokes- man for the Independent Election Commission (IEC). “We need meas-ures to secure the process through observers.”

Western nations, who have spent hundreds of bil- lions of dollars on a conflict that has failed to end the Taleban insurgency, have pledged about a third less cash to the United Nations (UN) fund that will cover most of the election’s costs compared with 2009, of- ficial UN figures shows.

The reduced budget is partly because some land and equipment that had to be bought last time is being reused and fewer foreign advisers are needed, says the UN and IEC chief You- sof Nooristani. “They were drawing good salaries out of this budget... but now there is very limited number of for- eigners and everything will have to be done by the Afghans,” said Nooristani of the advis- ers, whose number will drop from 160 last time to a maxi- mum of 60.

Syrian helicopters drop “barrel bombs” on rebel town, killing 20

BEIRUT, 2 Dec — Syrian Army helicopters bombarded the northern re- bel-held town of Al-Bab for a second day on Sunday, killing 20 people includ- ing four women when they dropped improvised barrel bombs on a market district, a monitoring group said.

The Syrian Observatory for Human Rights said the death toll could rise be- cause many people were severely wounded in the raid, which came a day af- ter 26 people were killed in a similar attack on the same town by President Bashar al-Assad’s forces.

The British-based Ob- servatory said three rebels from the Tawhid Brigade were killed in Saturday’s raid, which appeared to target their headquarters in Al- Bab. Sunday’s attack may have been at the behest of a rebel group, it said. Howev- er, barrel bombs — explo- sive-filled cylinders or oil barrels — are usually rolled out of the back of helicopt- ers and are rarely delivered with any accuracy.

The Observatory said 212 people were killed across Syria on Saturday, bringing the death toll since Thursday to over 600.

There is little sign that diplomacy will end the con- flict and the fighting has, if anything, escalated since the United Nations an- nounced on Monday that a long-delayed peace confer- ence would be held in Ge- neva on 22 January.

Tax hikes, security dent Mexican President’s approval rating

MEXICO CITY, 2 Dec — For the first time, more Mexicans disapprove of President Enrique Pena Ni- eto’s performance than ap- prove, partly because of his tax increases, according to a newspaper poll released on Sunday, the anniversary of his first year in office.

The Reforma newspaper poll of 1,020 people showed that while 48 percent disapproved of Pena Nieto’s job performance, up from 30 percent in April, just 44 percent approved. The approval figure was down from 50 percent eight months ago and marked the first time since taking office last December that it had been below the disapproval percentage.

Those surveyed mainly took issue with Pena Nieto’s new tax scheme, which Mexico’s Congress passed in October. The fiscal over- haul includes higher income tax rates for the wealthy as well as new levies on junk food, soft drinks and stock market gains.

The reform, signed into law by Pena Nieto, aims to raise revenue by almost 2.7 percent of gross domestic product by 2018. There also was concern about Pena Nieto’s handling of organized crime with 58 percent of those surveyed saying he was doing a bad job and 21 percent percent approving.

As we were heading to the grave, a stranger ran towards the crowd and blew himself up,” said Firas Ahmed, a relative of the deceased who was wounded in the leg.

“I was lucky because I was not at the front. The bod- ies of the killed and wounded people were everywhere,” Shalal was the son of an- other well-established tribal sheikh. Start walking to get healthy

This simple activity that we do every day is really a great way to get healthy. Read on about the many surprising benefits of walking.

A new week is about to begin. Which means you can set new resolutions and get on that fitness program you’ve been putting off since the beginning of the year. And this weekend, if there’s just one thing you should start doing to get fitter, let that be walking. Here are 10 reasons why!

It’s great exercise. Walking at a steady pace for 30 to 45 minutes a day has been proven to be an excellent fat burner. Do this six times a week, along with following a healthy diet, and you will see a change in your weight. A good speed of walking is 6 km/hour. In other words, it should take you 10 minutes to cover a kilometre.

It’s good for the heart. Walking is known to reduce blood pressure, improve blood circulation and all round cardiovascular functions.

It increases stamina. Walking regularly at a good speed also improves muscle strength and endurance and promotes mental health. Walking is a great stress buster. And if you’re able to walk out doors, there’s nothing like it. The combination of fresh air and exercise is an excellent mood booster and you’ll definitely find yourself feeling happier as well as healthier.

Studies show that walking 150 minutes per week can reduce the risk of diabetes, which is why doctors highly recommend it to anyone who has a history of diabetes in their family.

It’s free! Unlike most other forms of exercise, all walking requires is a pair of good walking shoes. Walk in the park; on the road; up the stairs; on a treadmill; in a long corridor, it really doesn’t matter. You don’t need expensive equipment or a partner to do this. So if you’re in the mood for a good, safe workout, just start walking!

Fireworks to sparkle Sydney Opera House on New Year’s Eve

SYDNEY, 2 Dec—The city of Sydney announced Monday that more than 1,000 fireworks will be launched from the sails of Sydney Opera House this New Year’s Eve.

The fireworks were developed specifically for the event so they do not damage the building’s tiled exterior by using specially designed pyrotechnics.

It is the first time in over a decade that fireworks will be launched from the tops of four sails of the Sydney Opera House and they will be installed by a specially-trained fireworks crew, working 67-metre above the ground.

The Mayor of Sydney Clover Moore said the event’s creative style and “Shine” theme was led by artist and musician Reg Mombassa, who was working closely with the fireworks team to develop the event.

Mombassa said the Sydney Opera House was an inspiring building for artists and pyrotechnicians.

“Apart from the fact the Sydney Opera House is a distinctive and iconic structure, it’s interesting from the view point of an artist in that it totally changes shape according to where you’re observing it from,” Mombassa said.

The mayor also said she expected this year’s event to have one of the most creative fireworks displays Sydney has seen.

Sri Lanka keen on obtaining oil from Iran

COLOMBO, 2 Dec—Sri Lanka is keen to get oil from Iran once again and is studying a recent deal signed between six world powers with the Iranian government, a senior government official told the local media on Monday.

Petroleum Resources Minister Anura Priyadarshana Yapa said that his ministry is monitoring the situation and a decision will be made once all the required information is gathered on if Sri Lanka can look to import more fuel from Iran.

He said the government has sought information from the US embassy in Colombo on the deal signed between the six countries and Iran.

“We are still not sure what sanctions will be lifted but our refineries are built to suit Iranian oil so if things go well we will consider the option of importing oil from Iran once again,” Minister Yapa said.

The initial agreement reached recently after more than four days of negotiations between Iran and the United States, France, Russia, China, Britain and Germany, was designed to limit Iran’s nuclear program.

However, Yapa noted that apart from the US sanctions imposed on Iran there are also sanctions imposed by the EU which Sri Lanka needs to take into consideration when deciding if to buy Iranian oil.

The US State Department last week extended a waiver from US sanctions to Sri Lanka for another six months for not purchasing crude oil from Iran.

Malaysian PM calls for open politics and effective governance

KUALA LUMPUR, 2 Dec—Malaysian Prime Minister Najib Razak on Monday called for a more open and transparent politics, effective and stable governance in facing common changes across the world.

Speaking at the Unno international forum hosted by the ruling United Malays National Organization (UMNO), in which Najib holds the president post, he said changes in demographics, technology and development have made it incumbent upon governments to modernize and keep up with the times.

“More information is more accessible to more people than at any time in history,” he said. “Voters are better informed and more discerning; free to compare and contrast the political systems like never before.”

Najib said governments should respond to this change with greater transparency.

The prime minister said governments must be able to provide young people a stake in society and greater opportunities, and cautioned that the Arab Spring serves as a warning to leaders.

He added that developing countries are facing a growing sense of economic inequality that could also undermine social harmony, calling for better growth that is economically, environmentally and socially sustainable.

The forum, attended by participants from 25 countries and more than 30 political parties, will be followed by the annual UMNO general assembly, when Najib is expected to outline the future direction of Malaysia’s ruling party since its independence.

The UMNO-led ruling coalition retains power in a closely contested general election in May with a reduced majority, and Najib retained his post as prime minister and UMNO president.

“This year’s general election was hard fought, and hard won... My party was returned to office with a mandate, but the result betrayed increased polarisation in the country,” Najib said. “I acknowledge it. But I want to heal these wounds and achieve national unity.”

Sydney, 2 Dec — Rory McIlroy buried his 2013 title drought in the most dramatic fashion at the Australian Open on Sunday and said he thought a largely frustrating season might just get to try and keep it on the winners’ circle when he birdied the 18th hole to snatch the title away from US Masters champion and home favourite Adam Scott with the final stroke of the tournament. “I think I’m more experienced, more patient,” he said when asked what he had learnt this year. “Not getting down on myself or not being as hard on myself because golf is a long career and you can’t have too many highs and lows in terms of emotions. ‘You’ve just got to try and keep it on an even keel and I feel like I’ve done a better job of that this year as the months have gone past. “You know you have to go through the lows,” he added. “And I’m not saying it was a low this year, it’s not like I plummeted off the face of the earth. “I’m still sixth in the world so it’s not too bad. It’s not the level that I feel like I can play to but I feel I’m getting back there, so it’s very pleasing.” McIlroy admitted to a little guilt at the manner of his victory, which came when Scott bogeyed the last to give up a one-shot lead in a tournament he had dominated.

A women makes her way past closed shops in a non-designated tourist area during a Sunday morning walk at the Butte Montmartre in Paris, on 28 July, 2013

Paris, 2 Dec — France’s labour minister called for local authorities to have more say on a proposed reform of restrictions on Sunday opening for shops, just hours before a government commissioned report on the issue was to due to be released.

The report, expected to clarify which sectors will be allowed to do business on Sunday and under what conditions, will be presented to Prime Minister Jean-Marc Ayrault on Monday.

In an interview with BFMTV, Labour Minister Michel Sapin called for a “controlled relaxation” of the ban on Sunday work, saying it should be organized on a “regional basis”.

He said local authorities were best-placed to gauge residents’ shopping needs and habits. “On one side of the road, it is open. On the other, it does not have the right to open. You have employees who are paid twice as much on Sunday, others nothing more. Of course today one must put some order in this mess,” Sapin said.

Several DIY chains, including Bricorama, Carrefour and Leroy Merlin, have been pressing the government to allow them to do business on Sunday to preserve jobs and fight competition from Internet retailers working seven days a week.

France’s unemployment rate, now at 10.9 per cent and close to the all-time high of 11.2 per cent set in 1997, is a thorn in the side of business owners and shopkeepers.
