Volcano eruptions in Indonesia, 100,000 evacuated, airports closed

JAKARTA, 14 Feb — A volcano erupted late on Thursday night on the heavily populated Indonesian island of Java, sending a huge plume of ash and sand 17 km (10 miles) into the air and forcing the closure of three airports. Mount Kelud is 140 km south of Indonesia’s second biggest city Surabaya, a major industrial centre. The cloud from the eruption was seen as far as 9 km to the west, and forced the shutdown of airports at Surabaya and the cities of Yogyakarta and Solo.

“Areas to the west of Mount Kelud, including central Java, Yogyakarta, Cilacap, Magelang, Temanggung and Boyolali are still experiencing showers of ash because last night the biggest eruption ... threw sand and ash 17 km into the air to the west,” National Disaster Mitigation Agency spokesman Sutopo Nugroho said by telephone.

Cilacap is home to a major oil refinery, but there was no immediate word on whether its operations had been affected. Its refineries supply about a third of the country’s fuel needs.

The agency later said the cloud was dissipating and that the volcano was no longer erupting. Nugroho said the agency was still trying to confirm reports that two people had died. “We don’t have data yet on how many people have been evacuated in total. We can say 200,000 people were affected. We received reports of deaths but we have not verified them yet,” he said.

The eruption caused minimal damage to buildings, Sutopo said, but had left 3 to 5 cm (1 1/2 to 2 inches) of ash and sand on roads. An estimated 200,000 people live within a 10 km radius of Mt Kelud, one of nearly 130 active volcanoes in the world’s most populous country.

At least 11 people were killed earlier this month in the north of the island of Sumatra when Mount Sinabung erupted. The volcano has been spewing lava and ash for months, forcing thousands to flee the area and destroying crops.

Police move onto protest site in Bangkok, no violence

BANGKOK, 14 Feb — Thai police moved onto a protest site in Bangkok on Friday where demonstrators have been camped out for more than three months in their campaign to topple the government of Prime Minister Yingluck Shinawatra, a Reuters witness said.

There was no violence as at least 1,000 police cleared protesters from a site stretching from Royal Plaza to the United Nations headquarters, an area that has been occupied since anti-government rallies began in November.

A few of the officers were armed but most carried just batons and shields, the witness said.

Some protesters hurled abuse but otherwise police met no resistance in a historic area of the capital that includes Government House and the Metropolitan Police headquarters, scenes of violent clashes in November and December.

The area is not one of the three largest protest sites, where demonstrators have been rallying to try to oust Yingluck, and in recent weeks the numbers there have dwindled to a small hard core.

The protesters blocked voting in a fifth of Thailand’s constituencies in a general election on 2 Feb. They want electoral rules rewritten before any fresh poll and have vowed to keep up their campaign.

Kerry says N Korea will not be accepted as nuclear state

SEUL, 14 Feb — US Secretary of State John Kerry reiterated on Friday amid a visit to South Korea that the United States will not accept North Korea as a nuclear state, Kerry said at a joint news conference after talks with South Korean Foreign Minister Yun Byung Se.

He called on North Korea to take “meaningful actions” to prove it is really committed to denuclearization.

Kerry, who also held talks with President Park Geun Hye after arriving in Seoul earlier in the day, also urged South Korea and Japan to find ways to resolve conflicts arising from their shared history.

Yun said South Korea welcomes “constructive efforts” made by the United States to improve ties between countries in Northeast Asia.

But in an apparent reference to Japan, he said, “Any neighbouring country should not say or do regressive things that go against the history.”

Bilateral ties between South Korea and Japan are strained due to disputes over interpretation of history related to Japan’s colonial rule of the Korean Peninsula from 1910 to 1945. They also have a territorial dispute over islets in the Sea of Japan.

Kerry also said annual US-South Korea military exercises will begin as scheduled on 24 February despite North Korea’s call for them to be canceled or postponed.

He urged North Korea not to link the drills to the holding of reunions of Korean families separated by the 1950-1953 Korean War.

BRITAIN unveils 272 bln USD defence spending plan

LONDON, 14 Feb — Britain’s Ministry of Defence (MoD) on Thursday re-leased a 164.8 billion-pound (272 billion US dollars) defense equipment spending plan for the next decade, a move aimed at easing years of mismanagement in the country’s military expenditure.

It outlines Britain’s defence equipment spending from 2013 to 2023, detailing major defense projects and corresponding budgets in the sectors of aircraft carriers, combat air, helicopters, submarines, as well as defense information systems over the next decade.

According to the plan, a total of 38 billion British pounds, nearly a quarter of the overall budget, will be invested in the country’s nuclear deterrent submarines and related equipment for the coming 10 years. The sum reflected a rise in the production costs of Britain’s new generation nuclear deterrent “successor” submarines, as the country is undertaking an ambitious upgrading of its Trident system, a sea-based nuclear weapons system that can fire ballistic missiles from submarines.

Other major defence outlays for the coming decade include 17.4 billion pounds for surface ships including two Queen Elizabeth aircraft carriers, 18.8 billion for the Combat Air sector, 15.8 billion for Information Systems and Services, and 13.1 billion for land equipment.

Russia, US promise to help push forward Syria peace talks

Geneva, 14 Feb — Russia and the United States reaffirmed their support to the ongoing second round of Geneva II conference on Syria and assured that they would help to push forward the stalled peace talks, said UN-Arab League Special Envoy to Syria Lakhdar Brahimi on Thursday.

After the two-hour long trilateral meeting with Russian Deputy Minister of Foreign Affairs Gennady Gatilov and US Under Secretary of State Wendy Sherman held this afternoon amid the current round of negotiations between Syrian two warring sides, Brahimi told a press conference that the “regular” trilateral meeting was “useful and important.” The envoy briefed the two sides, which initiated the Geneva II conference, about the progress of the peaceful process which is in an effort to solve the nearly three-year-old Syria conflict.

“They have kindly reaffirmed their support to what we are trying to do, and promise that they will help both here and in their capitals and elsewhere to unlock the situation for us, because until now we are not making much progress in this process,” said Brahim. The international mediator also said in the near future, though the exact date was not set yet, he would travel to New York, the location of the UN headquarters, to report to UN Secretary-General Ban Ki-moon, and probably also to the Security Council, in regard of the Syria peace talks.

When asked about whether the ongoing conference would end up as a failure, Brahimi, after noting the difficulty and complication of the situation, answered: “Failure is always staring at us in the face. As far as the United Nations is concerned, we will certainly not leave one stone unturned if there is a possibility to move forward.”

Chubu Electric seeks to restart Hamaoka nuclear plant

Tokyo, 14 Feb — Chubu Electric Power Co. applied on Friday for a state safety assessment of one of its reactors at the Hamaoka nuclear power plant in central Japan that was forced to shut down in 2011 as the previous government viewed operation of the complex as too risky.

With the move, the total number of reactors for which safety checks have been submitted to the Nuclear Regulation Authority rose to 17. The NRA is expected to employ the same procedure to check the Hamaoka No. 4 unit as for the other reactors, effectively ignoring the unusual government request issued in May 2011 for operation of the plant to be suspended because of doubts about its preparedness for tsunami.

Located on the Pacific coast, about 190 kilometers southwest of Tokyo, the Hamaoka complex is known to be located on an assumed epicentral area for a massive earthquake. Two of the five reactors at the plant were retired in 2009. Chubu Electric has been working to install huge seawalls and implement other measures to protect the plant, which are expected to be completed by September 2015. Japan has revamped its regulatory setup by launching the NRA and also introduced a set of new safety requirements that reflect the lessons learned from the disaster at Tokyo Electric Power Co.’s Fukushima Daiichi plant, sparked by a huge earthquake and tsunami in March 2011.

Bomb hoax prompts evacuation at Oklahoma university

Houston, 14 Feb — A school bus hub and a parking garage at Oklahoma State University (OSU) were evacuated Thursday after a bomb threat was reported, university officials said. A female called university police on Thursday morning and reported a bomb at the bus terminal. The university then evacuated the terminal and a nearby parking garage, according to a campus alert on the OSU’s official website.

Police deterred traffic around the area and notified university officials immediately. A temporary bus terminal was set while students were directed to park in other garages. Authorities at OSU said they found nothing of concern after doing an initial sweep of the area. They called the Oklahoma Highway Patrol bomb squad and troopers with dogs to search the area. The facilities were reopened after a secondary sweep found nothing suspicious, according to the website.

Cuba hopes EU talks will lead to US gesture

Havana, 14 Feb — Cuba hopes the opening of negotiations on a new political agreement with the European Union could lead to similar talks with the United States, a visiting EU commissioner said Cuba’s foreign minister told her on Thursday.

EU Education Commissioner Androulla Vassiliou said she, too, hoped the launching of an EU-Cuba dialogue would lead to better relations between Cuba and the United States, which severed diplomatic ties with the communist island in 1961 and imposed an economic embargo a year later.

Vassiliou spoke to reporters after meeting Cuban Foreign Minister Bruno Rodriguez. “He said if negotiations with the EU start, it would be a good message also for the U.S. and we hope that President Obama will be able to also proceed with a similar gesture without any political costs,” Vassiliou said.

By suggesting Obama could extend an opening to Cuba without political costs, Rodriguez may have been referring to a public opinion poll released on Tuesday showing most Americans, and a strong majority of Floridians, support normalizing relations with Cuba.

Rodriguez did not make himself available to reporters.

Colombia, rebels say making progress in talks over drug trade

Bogota, 14 Feb — The Colombian government and FARC guerrilla negotiators said on Thursday that they had made progress toward an agreement on combating illegal drug trafficking, a sign that peace talks were making headway before elections.

The joint statement by President Juan Manuel Santos’ government and the Revolutionary Armed Forces of Colombia (FARC) said there had been “advances” in the negotiations, the latest round of which concluded on Thursday. The talks are due to resume on 24 February.

“We have been working nonstop throughout this round of conversations and we have started building agreements on the point ‘solving the illicit drugs problem,’” the statement said. Sustained progress could help President Juan Manuel Santos in his campaign for re-election in May. Santos has been criticized by opposition candidates for his decision to negotiate with the guerrillas rather than defeat them militarily.

Progress in the talks also indicates that they have not been hampered by accusations that rogue members of military intelligence were spying on government negotiators. The FARC has also said its delegation was being spied upon. Drug trafficking is the third of three issues the government says must be resolved before finalizing a political agreement with the FARC to end Latin America’s longest-running guerrilla conflict.

US denies plans to destabilize Kenya

NAIROBI, 14 Feb — The US government on Thursday refuted allegations that it is planning to undermine and destabilize the Kenyan government. US Ambassador to Kenya Robert P. Godec said the statement by Kenya’s National Security Advisory Committee (NSAC) that seeks to “undermine” or “destabilize” the government of Kenya is false. “The Government of the United States is a strong and committed partner of the government of Kenya and has been so for 50 years,” Godec said in a statement issued in Nairobi. “Reflecting the US commitment to our partnership, we work with the Kenyan government and civil society throughout the country on security, health, education, conflict prevention, agriculture, and in many other areas,” he added. The East African country’s top security organ has accused the US development agency of planning to destabilize the government by sponsoring streets demonstrations.

A statement from Cabinet Secretary Francis Kimemia said Kenya’s NSAC has asked the Foreign Ministry to urgently summon the US Agency for International Development (US-AID) officials to give more information on its plans to topple the government using activists. “NSAC is in possession of credible intelligence documents and information detailing how the US donor agency has consistently funded the demonstrations by activists,” Kimemia said in the statement on Thursday.

Death toll rises to 6 in car bomb attack near Mogadishu airport

MOGADISHU, 14 Feb — At least six people are confirmed dead and more than 16 others wounded after a car bomb exploded outside the main gate of the Mogadishu airport, Somali medical officials said on Thursday. The UN office in the Horn of Africa country said in a statement four of its security guards were among the injured.

The UN confirmed the car bomb “exploded close to a convoy of UN vehicles.” “The UN in Somalia strongly condemns the attack and expresses deep sorrow at the reported deaths and injuries of Somali bystanders. A UN car was damaged but no UN staff were injured. Four security escorts were lightly injured,” UN envoy to Somalia Nicholas Kay said in a statement.

Chief of the African Union Mission in Somalia (AMISOM) Mahamet Saleh Annadif strongly deplored the deadly car bomb attack near the Mogadishu airport.

A car laden with explosives was remotely detonated as other vehicles passed outside the gate of the Mogadishu International Airport. “I send my heartfelt condolences to the bereaved friends and families and join the Somali people in unequivocally condemning this craven attack which is a classical display of Al-Shabab’s faltering capabilities,” said Annadif.

The AMISOM chief called on Somalis to join hands with the security forces in countering Al-Shabab’s activities.

“Around 1240 HRS, a Vehicle Borne Improvised Explosive Device (VBIED) went off outside the restaurant located next to the Aden Abdulle International Airport injuring and killing innocent civilian passersby,” AMISOM said in a statement.

Snow hits Japan archipelago, disrupting traffic

HIBIKI, 14 Feb — Snow hit the Pacific coast of eastern and western Japan on Friday, leading to cancellations and delays of air, railway and road traffic. Snowfall reached 7 centimeters in Nagoya, 4 cm in Osaka and 1 cm in central Tokyo in the morning. Late last week, heavy snow hit Tokyo and its vicinity.

In other areas, snowfall reached 14 cm in the ancient capital of Nara, 4 cm in Tokushima and 3 centimeters in Takamatsu on the smallest main island of Shikoku. The Japan Meteorological Agency said heavy snow would continue hitting western and eastern Japan through Saturday, urging people to take precautions.

Heavy snow is also expected to hit the Tohoku region in northeastern Japan from Saturday to Sunday, the weather agency said.

Cold air poured into an atmospheric depression which moved off the southern coast of the Japanese archipelago, bringing snow, the weather agency said.

Japan Airlines Co canceled seven flights from Tokyo’s Haneda airport, while All Nippon Airways Co canceled 40 flights to and from Tokyo. Osaka and Nagoya.

Central Japan Railway Co, known as JR Tokai, and West Japan Railway Co, known as JR West, slowed down bullet train operations and parts of the Tokaido-Shinkansen lines, causing delay, the railway operators said.

Many highways across the country were closed due to heavy snow. In Tokyo, many people suffered injuries as they slipped and fell, police and firemrents said.

Snowfall may reach up to 50 cm in mountainous areas in the Kanto-Koshin region and the Tokai region in central Japan, 25 cm in the Kinki region in western Japan, 20 cm in Shikoku and the Tohoku region, and 10 cm in downtown Tokyo by Saturday morning, the weather agency said.

Cultural sites in north Mali damaged by armed extremists

UNITED NATIONS, 14 Feb — Some 90 percent of the 11th century archaeological site of Gao Sanye in northern Mali was pillaged by Islamic extremists during their seizure of the region in 2012, United Nations cultural officials reported on Thursday. "Lazare Eloundou Assomo, country director of the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization (UNESCO), said after visiting the Malian city with Malian and international experts that traditional musical instruments and costumes were destroyed, and a World Heritage site mosque needs urgent repairs.

The report on the damage to cultural heritage in the town of Gao was completed after a UN assessment last year of Timbuktu, another major heritage site in northern Mali, found that damage there was more extensive than first estimated, including the destruction of parts of the 15th century Djingareyber Mosque, one of three madrasas comprising the University of Timbuktu.

"Concerning Gao’s heritage, we must address the trauma experienced by the local population following violent attempts by the armed extremists to destroy their cultural identity and practices, including traditional music,” Assomo said.

"Urgent measures are required to safeguard the Tomb of Askia World Heritage site before the next rainy season in June," said the official.
Jaw-inspiring: Ancient fish was pivotal in evolution of face, researchers find

WASHINGTON, 14 Feb — Let’s face it. It’s easy to take for granted that mammals, birds, reptiles, amphibians and fish — vertebrates just like people — have a face. But it has not always been the case. The first creatures with a backbone — jawless fish from hundreds of millions of years ago did not. Scientists have been eager to learn how the evolution of the face unfolded.

A small, primitive armored fish known as Romundina that swam the seas 415 million years ago and whose fossilized remains were unearthed in the Canadian Arctic is providing some revealing answers.

With Romundina at the centre of their work, Swedish and French researchers described in a study published in the journal Nature on Wednesday the step-by-step development of the face as jawless vertebrates evolved into creatures with jaws. The evolution of the jaw led to development of the face. The researchers scanned the internal structures of Romundina’s skull using high-energy X-rays at the European Synchrotron (ESRF) in France, then digitally reconstructed the anatomy in three dimensions.

Romundina, one of the earliest jawed fish, was found to boast a mix of primitive features seen in jawless fish and more modern ones that appear in fish with jaws. Its head had a distinctive anatomy, with a very short forebrain and an odd “upper lip” extending forward in front of the nose, they said. Romundina was a type of fish called a placoderm that thrived during the Silurian and Devonian periods in Earth’s history but disappeared about 360 million years ago. It was small, but some placodermes like the fearsome Dunkleosteus became apex predators bigger than a great white shark.

"Per Ahlborg, a professor in vertebrate evolution at Uppsala University in Sweden, said Romundina was roughly 8 inches long, had a small defensive spine on its back and had jaws without real teeth but with flat crushing plates. Its front end was encased in armour, while its back end was flexible, with fins and a shark-like tail, Ahlborg said by email. It may have hunted small invertebrates like worms and crustaceans. While the very first vertebrates were jawless, the only ones left are lampreys and hagfishes. "The face is one of the most important and emotionally significant parts of our anatomy, so it is interesting to understand how it came into being," Ahlborg said by email.

NEW YORK, 14 Feb — Comcast Corp’s proposed $45.2 billion takeover of Time Warner Cable Inc could face close scrutiny from US antitrust regulators because of the deal’s potential to reshape the country’s pay TV and broadband markets. Hackers used previously unknown Internet Explorer flaw in new attacks

SAN FRANCISCO, 14 Feb — A previously unknown flaw in a recent version of Microsoft Corp’s Internet Explorer web browser is being used to attack internet users, including some visitors to a major site for US military veterans, researchers said on Thursday.

Security firm FireEye Inc discovered the attacks against IE 10 this week, saying that hundreds or thousands of computers had been infected. It said the culprits broke into the website of US Veterans of Foreign Wars and inserted a link that redirected visitors to a malicious web page that contained the infectious code in Adobe Systems Inc’s Flash software.

FireEye researcher Daren Kindlund said that the attackers were probably seeking information from the machines of former and current military personnel and that the campaign shared some infrastructure and techniques previously attributed to groups in mainland China.

He said planting backdoors on the machines of VFW members and site visitors to collect military intelligence was a possible goal. A VFW spokeswoman didn’t immediately respond to requests for comment. A Microsoft spokesman said the company was aware of the ‘targeted’ attacks and was investigating. "We will take action to help protect customers," said spokesman Scott Whitaker.

The latest version of the browser is IE 11, which is untainted, and a Microsoft security tool called the Enhanced Mitigation Experience Toolkit also protects users who have installed that. Previously unknown flaws in popular software are a key weapon for hackers and are sold by the research companies that disclose them for $50,000 or more, brokers say.

They are most often bought by defense contractors and intelligence agencies in multiple countries, but some of the best-funded criminal groups buy them as well. Reuters

Microsoft Windows 8 lags predecessor in first-year sales

SEATTLE, 14 Feb — Microsoft Corp’s Windows 8 system has racked up more than 200 million license sales since its launch 15 months ago, according to Tami Reller, head of marketing, lagging Windows 7 which sold 240 million within its first year.

The latest Windows 8 sales figure, announced by Reller at a Goldman Sachs technology conference on Thursday, is the first that Microsoft has made public for more than six months. The relatively slow sales of Windows 8, and its latest incarnation Windows 8.1, reflect a steady two-year decline in personal computer sales and tablet sales explode. Sales of tablets are set to overtake PCs worldwide next year.

Windows 8 was designed as a flexible new system that would work equally well on desktops, PCs and touchscreen tablets, but it ended up alienating many traditional users, while the company’s Surface tablet has not won over many Apple Inc iPad users. More worryingly for Microsoft, the number of people actually using Windows 8 is persistently low.

While many businesses technically have purchased Windows 8 licenses, few have installed the system on their office machines.

According to tech statistics firm NetMarketShare, only about 11 percent of PC users worldwide are using Windows 8 or 8.1. Meanwhile, 48 percent are sticking with Windows 7 and 29 percent are still running Windows XP, which is more than a decade old. Windows 7, helped by the fact that it replaced the generally unpopular Windows Vista, is Microsoft’s most successful operating system to date, selling more than 450 million licenses. Reuters

Plain cigarette packs spur quittle calls

NEW YORK, 14 Feb — Drab olive cigarette packs bearing a prominent quit-smoking helpline number, introduced more than a year ago in Australia, had a sizeable and sustained effect on interest in quitting, researchers say. Just one of many controls imposed on cigarette marketing and sales over the past decade in that country, the plain packaging was linked to a 78-percent spike in calls to territorial quitlines within a month of its introduction.

“The results suggest the legislation does have a positive early impact (on smokers) and so other countries could feel more confident in introducing similar legislation,” said Jane Young, a cancer epidemiologist at the Sydney School of Public Health, who led the study. The plain packages, implemented in October 2012, mean that every brand’s cigarettes look nearly identical, with the brand name relegated to a small, standardized font. In March 2006, cigarette packaging with graphic health warnings including photos of cancer-riddled lungs and gangrenous limbs was introduced in Australia. “The labels inform consumers about what might happen to them when they use the product,” said Joanna Cohen, director of the Institute for Global Tobacco Control at the Johns Hopkins Bloomberg School of Public Health in Baltimore, Maryland. “The plain and standardized packaging is meant to reduce the appeal of the package and show the warning. Hope-fully current smokers will quit because they are more aware of the health impacts, and fewer people will start,” said Cohen, who was not involved in the new study. Young’s team wanted to isolate the impact of just the switch to plain packaging on interest in quitting. They looked at the number of calls in New South Wales and the Aus-tralian Capital Territory to the national quitline before and after introduc-tion of the plain packages. Calls jumped from 363 a week before the packag-ing change to a peak of 651 calls a week four weeks af-ter the new packages were introduced, Young and her colleagues report in the Medical Journal of Austral-ia. The study also compared these results to the number of calls received by the Quitline after Australia’s addition of graphic warning labels. Reuters

Air pollution may increase high blood pressure risk in pregnant women

WASHINGTON, 14 Feb — Exposure to air pollution during pregnancy may in-crease the mother-to-b’s risk of developing high blood pressure, a new US study said on Thursday. Research-ers at the University of Flor-idas found that exposure to four air pollutants, including two specific types of fine and coarse particulate matters, sulfur dioxide and carbon monoxide, may be toxic to pregnant women, if not more so, as breathing in cigarette smoke.

According to the US Environmental Protection Agency (EPA), particulate matters include acids, dust, metals and soil particles, which are released from in-dustry and cars and can form when gases react with each other in the air. Sulfur dioxide is emitted from power plants and industries while most carbon monoxide is produced by car exhaust. “Fetal development is very sensitive to environmental factors,” said Xiaohui Xu, an assistant professor of epidemiology in the univer-sity. “That is why we wanted to do this study.” The researchers found 4.7 percent of women in the study devel-oped hypertension during pregnancy.—Xinhua

Japan Airlines and ANA clash again over Tokyo landing rights

TOKYO, 14 Feb — Japan Airlines (9201.T) said it has applied to fly from To-kyo’s Haneda airport to Ho Chi Minh City in Vietnam following a complaint from ANA Holdings, which urged regulators to deny its local rival the right to open up new routes from the world’s busiest hub. The latest stand off threatens to re-ignite a dogfight for dominance at the lucrative airport that in October saw ANA award-ed 11 new landing slots at Haneda, worth around $20 million a year in operating profit, compared with only five for JAL.

Regulators then said that it did not want to let JAL open new routes because a state-led $3.5 billion bail-out of the carrier in 2010, that resulted in most of its debt being waived, gave it a competitive edge over ANA. Such landing rights alloc-a-tions are usually split evenly. Prime Minister Shinzo Abe’s government, which was in opposition when JAL was rescued, proved sympathetic to ANA’s call for a rebalance through the landing right hand out.

“We hope the Japan Civil Aviation Bureau will make an appropriate deci-sion,” ANA said in a state-ment following JAL’s bid to start flights to Vietnam. Incensed by the slot alloca-tion last year, which JAL said would cost it 6 billion yen ($58.73 million) a year in lost operating profit, the airline had considered taking unprecedented legal action to overturn the decision.

Japan’s aviation regu-lators, however, have never revised landing right alloca-tions and JAL instead is look-ing to tap late-night unused slots in a bid to gain greater access to flights from Hane-da. With no new runways or airports planned for Tokyo, ANA’s advantage over JAL at the Tokyo airport could be locked in for years. ANA’s president, Shinichiro Ito will speak at a press brief-ing in Tokyo at 0630 GMT to unveil the carriers latest midterm business plan. ($1 = 102.1600 Japanese yen) Reuters

Meditation might reduce workplace stress

NEW YORK, 14 Feb—Regular doses of meditation might prevent work-related stress and burnout, a small US study suggests. Teachers and support staff working at a school for children with behavior problems felt less stressed after practicing 20 minutes of Transcendental Meditation (TM) twice a day for four months.

But participants “reported feeling less stressed and more energized than in a few days,” said the study’s senior author Sanford Nidich, of Maharishi University of Science and Technology in Fairfield, Iowa. Starting stress levels among the par-ticipants had averaged 39 on a 40-point scale and fell 5 points by the end of the study period. In compar-is-on, 20 school staffs who did not meditate started with stress levels around 37 on the same scale and those rose 2 points during the same pe-riod.Meditating participants also felt less depressed and less emotionally exhausted, according to Nidich and his colleagues. But meditation seemed to have the strong-est effect on stress, they note in their report, published in the Permanente Journal.

The researchers don’t describe the techniques taught to participants in the study in detail, but TM, a trademarked method of meditation, generally in-volves sitting with one’s eyes closed for 20 minutes twice a day and thinking about a particular sound or mantra.”Automatic self-transcending techniques, such as TM, involve the effortless use of a sound without meaning (mantra), which allows the mind to settle to a quiet, involuntary state,” Nidich’s team writes. Certified instructors teach the practice nationwide at a cost of $990 for the full course , according to the TM.org website.”The devil’s advo-cate might argue that TM is non-scientific and has nothing directly to do with TM,” said alternative medi-cine researcher Dr Ewald Ernst in an email to Reuters.

Ernst, of the University of Exeter in the United King-dom, was not involved in the new study.He said the results do not show a causal link between TM and reduced stress levels among the school staffers. “We would need a much more rigorous trial and several independent replications” before draw-ing any conclusions, Ernst said. Plenty of past research points to apparent benefits from various forms of medi-tation, such as TM or the popular “mindfulness and medi-tation” approach, for condi-tions ranging from anxiety to pain. “A workplace stress can have costly side effects in the form of employee turnover,” Ernst wrote in an op-ed in The New York Times. A 2012 study by the Centre for American Progress puts the cost of replacing an em-ployee at 10 to 20 percent of that worker’s annual salary.

Some meditation can be done without leaving your desk, said Janice Marturano, founder and director of the Institute for Mindful Leadership in Oakland, New Jer-sey. Mindfulness meditation is retracing our mind’s abil-ities to direct our attention, Marturano, who was not connected to the new study,”Simply putting your feet on the floor, and paying attention to your own body, doesn’t necessarily come naturally. The workplace of the future could benefit by having a quiet room for workers to visit for 10 minutes or less, Marturano said. “Employees who come out of a stressful meeting or situation can then go into a quiet place and calm themselves.”
Family, basic unit of society

What is the difference between a house and a home? Without the ones who love you, care you and wait for your coming home, and whom you love and you care, a house is not a home and as incomplete as a tree without leaves, lacking the liveliness.

Human is not an island. No matter how strong a man is, there are times he would need a shoulder or a hand or a few words like “everything gonna be alright”, amidst the twists and turns and ups and downs of human life.

The family is the basic unit of every society. Therefore, the rise and fall of a society greatly depends on the values and ethics present in our very home. There is a traditional saying that parents are the very first teacher of their offspring. In general, how they grow up or in what kind of environment they are brought up has significant influence on the way they think and behave.

The traditional role of women as housewives has gone with the times as a result of slow economic progress and ever-rising commodity prices. Consequently, parents of dual-earner families find it difficult to strike a balance between work and home obligations. Sadly, most of the parents of modern families are devoid of time to communicate with their children.

A family is built on the foundation of mutual love, care, support and understanding, all of which needs time—to speak and listen to each other—to get fostered. Being the very first place that shapes the tender minds of children, home plays the most important role in promoting love among people.

It goes without saying that a child who grows up being loved will see the bright side of the life whereas a child who grows up amid traumas will see the other side.

Over the past few years, the way Myanmar couples celebrate Valentine’s Day has changed with every guesthouse in major cities like Yangon and Mandalay doing brisk business on this particular day. Meanwhile, the number of single-parent families is on the increase in our society against the time-honored tradition of marriage for life.

In Myanmar, the concept of marriage for life is on the increase against the time-honored tradition of marriage for life. A child who grows up amid traumas will see the other side. Wherever a child who grows up amid traumas will see the other side.

Statement No. (2/2014) of Myanmar National Human Rights Commission regarding findings of Commission Team from its investigation of the incident at Ducheeratan village-tract

1. A team from the Myanmar National Human Rights Commission (MNHRC) comprising the Secretary and three members visited Sitway and Maungtaw Townships and made a tour of Ducheeratan Village-tract from 30 January to 3 February 2014, in order to investigate the news reports on the incident that had occurred at Ducheeratan middle village.

2. During the trip, the Commission Team carried out the following activities with regard to:
   - (a) the news of the killing of 8 Bengalis,
   - (b) the news of 40 Bengalis killed in the police shooting in connection with the attack on the police patrol team by a group of Bengalis from Ducheeratan middle village on the night of 13 January, and
   - (c) the Internet news that Medecines Sans Frontiers (MSF) treated 22 patients wounded in the above-mentioned shooting: met and had discussions with some Ministers of the Rakhine State on 30 January and 3 February 2014 and took statements from the relevant responsible officials.
   - (d) took statements from officials concerned, including three high-ranking police officials, District Administrator and also from the Administrator of Kinchaung village, some villagers, and four detainees being remanded and under investigation at the Maungtaw Police Station.
   - (e) interrogated both male and female villagers from Ducheeratan middle village and surrounding Bengali villages and took statements from them.
   - (f) met with about 20 villagers and Islamic religious leaders from the Ducheeratan village-tract at the primary school of Ducheeratan middle village and verified with them the news of the killing of 8 and 40 Bengalis.
   - (g) met with over 200 women from Ducheeratan middle village and heard and noted their complaints on the Ducheeratan incident and took statements from some of them.
   - (h) had discussions with the representatives of UNHCR, UNOCHA and Medicine Sans Frontier (MSF).
   - (i) had discussions with Rakhine townelders of Maungtaw Township.
   - (j) had discussions with Islamic religious leaders and elders of Maungtaw Township.
   - (k) conducted an inspection tour of Ducheeratan villages, including Ducheeratan west village where a fire broke out on 28 January 2014.
   - (l) inspected the former cemetery of Khayay Myaing village.

3. The following are the facts found out by the Commission Team from the above-mentioned activities.
   - (a) The news report that 8 Bengalis were killed on 9 January 2014 was not known in Khayay Myaing and Kinchaung villages where Rakhine nationals live. However, this news was rumored in Ducheeratan middle village and other villages where Bengalis reside.
   - (b) Although the information that a woodcutter discovered 8 Bengalis buried at the Khayay Myaing cemetery emerged in Ducheeratan Bengali villages, no evidence was detected to confirm this information.
   - (c) On investigation, it was found that Rakhine nationals obtained this information as Internet news.
   - (d) Neither in meeting with the elders and religious leaders of the Ducheeratan village tract nor in meeting with over 200 women of Ducheeratan middle village, mention was made by any of them of this information.
   - (e) Different news versions of the killing of 8 Bengalis could not be confirmed.
   - (f) It was known that some army and police forces entered Ducheeratan villages to search for police sergeant Aung Kyaw Thein after the incident at Ducheeratan middle village on the night of 13 January 2014.
   - (g) Regarding the killing of 40 Bengalis from Ducheeratan village, the Commission Team took statements from the departmental officials concerned, high ranking police officials and policemen, responsible persons from the villages concerned, Bengali elders and women from Ducheeratan villages. These statements, however, contained no information that substantiate the alleged news of killings.
   - (h) Although the Commission Team urged Bengali religious leaders and women to frankly come forth with their views, no proof was discovered to confirm the alleged news.
   - (i) The Commission observed that the statements made by Bengali villagers did not contain any information on the attack by villagers on the police patrol commanded by police sergeant Aung Kyaw Thein.
   - (j) Discrepancies were noted in the news on the alleged killings of Bengalis. For example, it was reported that over 100 people were killed during the police shooting on 13 January 2014 while the news that a list of 52 people killed given to the Human Rights Commission was found to be incorrect. In fact, such a list was not given to the Myanmar National Human Rights Commission.

4. In the discussion with MSF, it was stated by MSF that 22 people which included 1 person with gunshot wound, 4 people with swellings, 10 people with cuts and bruises and 7 emotionally upset people, were treated by them. However, MSF did not provide the patients’ names and identities to the Commission Team as it keeps the patients list as confidential due to the humanitarian nature of its work. MSF also stated that they did not report the case of gunshot wound either to the police to the government health department and that it merely urged the patient to continue his treatment at a government clinic. According to the township medical officer, no government clinic in Maungtaw received any patient with gunshot wound. However, as a result of the investigations by District Administrator and Township Medical Officer, it was also learnt from two doctors of the MSF that their clinic did not treat any such patients.

5. The Commission Team discussed its findings with other members of the Commission on 5 February 2014 and reaches the following conclusions and recommendations:
   - The news of the killing of 8 Bengalis and 40 Bengalis did not emerge in the Ducheeratan village-tract and it is therefore concluded that the said news is unverifiable and unconfirmed.
   - The government departments and organizations concerned delayed in issuing the news on the true situation regarding the incident at Ducheeratan middle village and this delay gave rise to the spread of rumors and unsubstantiated news.
   - The Commission concludes that the attempt of the 3 policemen to stop the attack of a group of Bengali villagers failed due to defective ammunition and led to a confused situation that finally resulted in the disappearance of the policeman Aung Kyaw Thein. It is recommended that necessary steps should be taken to prevent similar incidents from occurring in the future.
   - The villagers from Ducheeratan east and middle villages fled on 13 January 2014 and as a result, the loot of their possessions, rice stocks and cattle must have occurred during the ensuing confusion. It is therefore recommended that steps should be taken urgently to provide food and other basic needs to the two villages in question.
   - In view of the continued tensions and concerns among the villages involved in the Ducheeratan incident, special security arrangements should be initiated as a matter of priority to prevent further issues from emerging again in those areas.

S Korea PM, Murayama discuss history issues, mending bilateral ties

SEOUL, 14 Feb — South Korean Prime Minister Chung Hong Won and former Japanese prime minister Tomiichi Murayama voiced hope on Thursday that their countries will be able to overcome their differences over history and mend strained bilateral ties, South Korea’s Yonhap News Agency said.

Chung told the former Japanese prime minister that “only if we settle the past through a correct perception of history will there be a future for our two countries’ relations,” Yonhap quoted Chung’s office in a Press release.

The meeting in Seoul came amid heightened bilateral tension due to differing perceptions of history and a territorial dispute over South Korean-controlled islets in the Sea of Japan that are known as Dokdo in South Korea and Takeshima in Japan.

Chung was quoted by the office as telling Murayama that he regrets recent remarks and activities by Japanese politicians which further damaged bilateral relations, and he hopes Murayama will continue to help change the situation, according to Yonhap.

Murayama, who was Japan’s first Socialist prime minister in almost five decades when he came to power in June 1994, is best known for having issued a statement in 1995 apologizing for the wartime suffering inflicted by Japan on its Asian neighbours.

The so-called Murayama Statement is still considered Japan’s official position but current Japanese Prime Minister Shinzo Abe, since coming to power in December 2012, has fueled concern in neighbouring countries such as South Korea that Japan is leaning to the right.

Xi cheers college grad village officials

BEIJING, 14 Feb — President Xi Jinping has called for village officials who graduated from college to improve themselves and contribute more to underdeveloped rural areas.

Xi made the comments in a letter to Zhang Guangxiu, 28, who became an official in a village in eastern China’s Shandong Province in 2009 upon graduation.

“Winning local residents’ praise for her pains-taking work, Zhang’s story was brought into the media spotlight and brought sympathy nationwide following her diagnosis with acute leukaemia in September 2010,” the letter read.

Central leaders including Xi saw to her receiving treatment in Beijing from early 2011, and she returned to her post in June last year.

“Xi’s letter, made public on Thursday, was written on Jan. 28 in reply to a letter from Zhang, in which she told the President about her recent life and work. Welcoming Zhang back to her job, Xi expressed his pleasure at her rehabilitation and advised her to take care of herself.

“Changing the appearance of villages and helping farmers live good lives... requires good policies from the Party and the government as well as vast, unremitting efforts from rural people, guided by grass-roots officials,” Xi said.

According to Xi, hundreds of thousands of college graduates have been offering their services and realizing their value in the countryside since the “Colleges to Village” campaign started in 2008. “Your sacrifice and contribution are heartily felt by rural people, and I’m happy with your progress and achievements after reading many graduate village officials’ outstanding stories,” Xi wrote.

China plans world’s longest underwater tunnel

BEIJING, 14 Feb — China is planning to build the world’s longest underwater tunnel beneath the Bohai Sea by 2026, according to a Friday report in the China Daily. A blueprint of the tunnel, which could cost an estimated 220 billion yuan (36 billion US dollars), will be submitted to the State Council, China’s Cabinet, in April, it said.

“Once approved, work could begin as early as 2015 or 2016,” Wang Mengshu, a tunnel and railway expert at the Chinese Academy of Engineering who has worked on the plan since 2012, was quoted as saying by the paper. By length, it will surpass the combined length of the world’s two longest underwater tunnels — Japan’s Seikan Tunnel and the Channel Tunnel between Britain and France.

The 123-kilometre tunnel will house a rail line connecting the port cities of Dalian in Liaoning Province and Yantai in Shandong Province, according to the plan.

“Using the tunnel, it will take only 40 minutes to travel from Dalian to Yantai,” Wang said. At the moment it is a 1,400-km drive or about eight hours by ferry. Passenger vehicles can be loaded onto rail carriages and transported at about 220 kilometers per hour, massively shortening the travel time between the two cities.

MANILA, 14 Feb — Two people were killed while eight others were wounded after terrorist group Abu Sayyaf ambushed government troops in southern Philippines on Friday morning, a military official said.

Capt. Ryan Lacuesta, Civil Military Operations Officer of the 2nd Marine Brigade, said a member of the Abu Sayyaf and a village peacekeeper were killed while six other village peacekeepers and two Marines were hurt.

Lucasta said government troops were on their way to provide reinforcement to village peacekeepers when their convoy was waylaid by the Abu Sayyaf in Long Khanan village, Talipao town in Sulu Province.

He said the firefight between the militants and the Marines and village peacekeepers lasted for about an hour.

Lucasta said the incident could be considered as a “retaliatory action” by the Abu Sayyaf against the village peacekeepers who have been conducting continuous law enforcement operations against the militiants.

PHILIPPINES attracts 4.68 mln foreign tourists in 2013

MANILA, 14 Feb — Tourist arrivals in the Philippines rose by 9.56 percent on year to 4.68 million in 2013, the Department of Tourism (DOT) said on Thursday.

Tourism Secretary Ramon R. Jimenez, Jr. said visitors continued to flock to the country’s tourist spots, including those in central Philippines which was devastated by a magnitude 7.2 earthquake and super typhoon Haiyan in the last quarter of 2013.

Our key source markets generally performed well during the month of December, proof that international confidence has been regained,” said Jimenez in a statement.

DOT said visitor count reached an “all-time high” or more than 400,000 during the months of January, February, March, July, and December.

Jimenez said South Korea, the United States, Japan, China and Australia were the top five sources of tourists last year. DOT also said total revenues gained from foreign tourists went up by 15.1 percent on year to 186.15 billion pesos (4.4 billion US dollars). 29 prisoners escape during attack on Yemen’s central prison

SANAA, 14 Feb — Yemen’s interior ministry said on Friday that 29 prisoners, most of them al-Qaeda inmates, escaped during attacks on the central prison in the capital Sanaa on Thursday night, which left seven people dead and four wounded.

It was a statement carried by the official Saba news agency that 19 of the 29 prisoners were convicted of terrorism-related charges and they escaped through a hole blown open by a car bomb in the prison’s western wall, taking advantage of chaos when the guards exchanged shooting with a group of gunmen.

The ministry released the name list of the 29 prisoners, three of whom were accused of plotting to assassinate Yemeni President Abd-Rabbu Mansour Hadi in the past months.

The ministry said in a statement on Thursday night that it foiled the attempt by terrorists to break into the central prison, and the attack left seven people dead and two wounded, without specifying whether the victims were civilians or soldiers.

It also said that some prisoners took advantage of the chaos and managed to escape and it launched an investigation into the attack and sent soldiers to search for the escaped prisoners.

Meanwhile, a one-minute video recorded by a resident and posted on local media showed that the clashes started with a brief exchange of gunfire around the prison with several shells shining in the sky, followed by a powerful explosion.

No one has claimed responsibility for the attack, but al-Qaeda in the Arabian Peninsula was blamed by the government for such kind of attacks.

44 die from swine flu in Egypt

CAIRO, 14 Feb — The number of people died from swine flu in Egypt since the beginning of December 2013 has increased to 44, Ahmed Kamel, spokesman of the Egyptian Health Ministry, told Xinhua Thursday.

Virus A/H1N1, known as “swine flu,” has been “categorized under the seasonal influenza by the World Health Organization (WHO) in 2010,” the spokesman said.

Kamel said that the ministry’s hospitals received this winter 577,183 suspect cases of influenza. 24 percent of which were positive. “Only 342 of them were confirmed with H1N1 virus and 44 of them died so far.”

“It is just a type of seasonal flu whose effect is stronger on high-risk people like those with chronic diseases, those with immunodeficiency, old people over 65, children under two, pregnant women, etc.” Kamel clarified, noting that 75 percent of the 44 deaths were similar cases.

He also denied reports that some doctors died while dealing with A/H1N1 patients.

“The only medical team member who has recently died of H1N1 virus was a nurse in a hospital at Qalubiya governorate northern Cairo,” he said.

Kamel also reassured that the Health Ministry has a strategic stock of the Tamiflu, the H1N1 antiviral drug. “Pharmacies ran out of the drug because of citizens’ panic, but it is available for any patient for free at the ministry’s hospitals.”

The illnesses started with flu-like symptoms, then progressed to pneumonia and, in some cases, organ failure. The Egyptian government killed about 300,000 pigs in 2009 when the virus first spread in the most populous Arab state. However, the spokesman said Thursday that it has nothing to do with “swine” unlike what a lot of Egyptians may think.—Xinhua

CAIRO, 14 Feb — The number of people died from swine flu in Egypt since the beginning of December 2013 has increased to 44, Ahmed Kamel, spokesman of the Egyptian Health Ministry, told Xinhua Thursday.

Virus A/H1N1, known as “swine flu,” has been “categorized under the seasonal influenza by the World Health Organization (WHO) in 2010,” the spokesman said.

Kamel said that the ministry’s hospitals received this winter 577,183 suspect cases of influenza. 24 percent of which were positive. “Only 342 of them were confirmed with H1N1 virus and 44 of them died so far.”

“It is just a type of seasonal flu whose effect is stronger on high-risk people like those with chronic diseases, those with immunodeficiency, old people over 65, children under two, pregnant women, etc.” Kamel clarified, noting that 75 percent of the 44 deaths were similar cases.

He also denied reports that some doctors died while dealing with A/H1N1 patients.

“The only medical team member who has recently died of H1N1 virus was a nurse in a hospital at Qalubiya governorate northern Cairo,” he said.

Kamel also reassured that the Health Ministry has a strategic stock of the Tamiflu, the H1N1 antiviral drug. “Pharmacies ran out of the drug because of citizens’ panic, but it is available for any patient for free at the ministry’s hospitals.”

The illnesses started with flu-like symptoms, then progressed to pneumonia and, in some cases, organ failure. The Egyptian government killed about 300,000 pigs in 2009 when the virus first spread in the most populous Arab state. However, the spokesman said Thursday that it has nothing to do with “swine” unlike what a lot of Egyptians may think.—Xinhua

Chinese directors master Nordic noir, shoot-'em-up Western International Film Festival in Berlin on 13 Feb, 2014.

BERLIN, 14 Feb — British film director Ken Loach, receiving a lifetime achievement award at the Berlin film festival on Friday, said the more ambitious his films were in trying to push a social or political agenda, the less successful they were in achieving that aim.

Loach, 77, who in his five-decade career has frequently crossed swords with the British establishment and is a fervent opponent of what he sees as "wars of intervention and imperialism" by the United States and Britain, told a festival news conference that one of his greatest successes came with "Cathy Come Home" in the mid-1960s.

The Oxford University graduate began his film career in what was known at the time as "kitchen-sink" realism and his films have often focused on outcasts, social problems and on occasion on the British role in Ireland."Cathy Comes Home", which was aired as a docudrama on the BBC and aroused a storm of phone calls to the state broadcaster, had the most glorious moment of giving a light on the plight of familiessplit up in some circumstances due to welfare rules at the time, Loach said. "It contributed to changing the law," he said, but added: "The grander the theme the less chance you have of an immediate response. It’s more like contributing to a discussion and adding one small voice to the rest of the noise that is out there."

The thriller "Black Coal, Thin Ice" and the darkly funny "No Man’s Land" are among three Chinese films competing for the top Golden Bear award at this year’s Berlin film festival. Berlin jurymem-ber Tony Leung, star of to arthouse hits such as Wong Kar Wai’s "In the Mood for Love" and Hong Kong thrillers like the triad movie "Infernal Affairs", said Western audiences would be seeing "more and more Chinese movies". "I think time with magical elements and the allure of "Black Coal" and Chinese culture is part of the allure of "Black Coal" and "No Man’s Land", though the challenge of making movies there is also clear. Director Ning Hao said "No Man’s Land" took four years to reach the screen partly because censors demanded so many changes. Neither film is overtly po-

Deepika Padukone on Ranbir,
Salman and Big B

NEW DELHI, 14 Feb — It’s truly rosy at the top, especially when you are Deepika Padukone. Bollywood’s current golden girl whose shelves are weighed down with trophies. But 2013’s heroine no 1 accepts her success with a humility which is certainly infectious. So has she been able to accommodate all the awards?

Deepika admits laughing. "Yes have made space though some are spilling over," with a wink but says she hopes the good fortune of 2013 spills into the New Year as well. Not only filmmakers but brands too are wooring the actress with the Midas touch. Dressed in electric blue pants and a silk black shirt, the actress launched a tablet in the cap-itlal and admitted that being constantly on the move, she was attached to her gadgete to stay connected with her fans. "I don’t believe in speed dial, I keep my options open," she says.

A music buff, the access said it was the song Kabira from Yeh Jawaani Hai Deewani that she constantly heard on loop and the good news for Ranbir-Deepika fans is that they will be seen together in Imtiaz Ali’s next movie. Though considered for Sooraj Barjatya’s next with Salman Khan, the actress said she was very keen to work with the Dabangg Khan but could only speak for movies she was in. With rumours rife about her being considered for Shuddhi, the actress denied it saying, "I have not been approached by Dharma Productions."What about the film with Shoojit Sircar with Big B, the actress said although she would love to do a film with Big B, she did not have any confirmation on the project. So would we soon see her do a woman centric subject since she seemed quite capable of caryring the weight of a film on her slim shoulders? Deepika shrugged her shoulders and smiled saying we will talk soon on that.

‘Winter’s Tale’ movie explores love, miracles in adult fairy tale

NEW YORK, 14 Feb — Fairy tales are not only for children and "Winter’s Tale," the film adaptation of a best-selling book, aims to lure even jaded, middle-aged adults into believing in the magic of eternal love and the power of miracles.

The film, which opens in US theaters on Valentine’s Day, is based on Mark Helprin’s 1983 fantasy novel of the same name, and stars Golden Globe winner Colin Farrell (“In Bruges”) as a burglar who falls in love with an heiress played by English actress Jessica Brown Findlay, of TV’s Downton Abbey. Set in the early 1900s in a mythical New York with cobble-stone streets, stately mansions and thieving street gangs and also in the present, “Winter’s Tale” is a romance that transcends time with magical elements such as a flying white horse and a hero who exists for 100 years without aging.

"This is a fairy tale for grownups," said first-time director Akiva Goldsman, who won an Oscar in 2002 for best screenplay for "A Beautiful Mind.""It is a wink and a nod to people who have had loss and need to believe in magic,” he added. Goldsman, 51, fell in love with the critically acclaimed novel, but wanted to make a film that is not appeal to everyone.”It is the co-existence of serious dramatic scenes and a flying white horse,” he said, “That is either delightful to you or aversive.—Reuters

Liverpool have an advantage in title race, says Mourinho

LONDON, 14 Feb — Chelsea manager Jose Mourinho believes Liverpool have an advantage in the Premier League title race because they will not be distracted by the Champions League. Liverpool are the only side in the top four who are not involved in European competition and Mourinho thinks it could be a crucial factor as he again stated his table toppers are not favourites for league glory in May.

“There are teams with more potential than others, obviously. There is another, like Liverpool, with a big advantage with the fact that they don’t play in the Champions League.” Mourinho told Britain’s Sky Sports News on Thursday, “Playing in this is going to take concentration and energy from the teams that are involved in it. I think it will be good fun. “When I say we’re not the top candidate everyone thinks ‘here he is again, with what you like to call ‘the mind games’. But it’s just my feeling. The league is amazing - it is difficult for every one of us.”

Hodgson backed to lead England after World Cup

LONDON, 14 Feb — England manager Roy Hodgson has got the backing of the FA general secretary to lead the country into the next European Championship in France following this year’s World Cup. Alex Horne, one of the four men who appointed 66-year-old Hodgson as England boss, told Friday’s edition of The Times that he could not see any reason to make a change before Euro 2016.

“For me personally, Roy is our manager to France and I’m happy with that, very happy with that,” he said. “I think he’s been brilliant. He’s exactly what we hoped for.” Asked what would be an acceptable performance at the World Cup, Horne said an unbeaten qualifying campaign had already proved Hodgson’s value.

“Pass mark? For me, personally, he’s done it by getting through that group,” said Horne. “We go with confidence. We’ll prepare well. We go optimistic that we are going to enjoy it and play well. It’s not an easy group, it’s not an easy tournament.” The experienced Hodgson, who led Switzerland to the World Cup in 1994 and Euro 96, took over the England job in May 2012 after Italian Fabio Capello resigned and steered the country to the Brazil tournament from a group including Ukraine and Poland.

China’s Zhang wins Olympic 1,000m speed skating gold SOCHI, 14 Feb — Less fancied Zhang Hong claimed China’s first ever Olympic speed skating title on Thursday, winning the women’s 1,000m with a large margin. The 25-year-old Olympic debutante, who clocked one minute 14.02 seconds in the seventh pair, had to wait for 22 more skaters to finish the race before knowing she had made a point from Arsenal, with Manchester City a further two points back and Liverpool one behind Manuel Pellegrini’s men. “Maybe we lost two points or won one point against West Brom and I think it will be like this until the end of the season,” Mourinho said.

“All teams need points for relegation, some for the Champions League — so the fight for points will be harder,” Mourinho also backed England manager Roy Hodgson’s decision not to try to coax Chelsea’s John Terry out of interna- tional retirement for the World Cup after a solid sea- son by the centre half. “I’d never intervene. He (Hodgson) is in charge and has everything in his hand. He has made that decision,” the Portuguese remarked. “For me as a Chelsea manager I’m happy players play with their national teams - but at the same time I’m happy an important player like him is fully focused on his work at Chelsea.”

Injured skater Plushenko retires from Games, overshadows men’s hockey

SOCI, (Russia), 14 Feb — Russia’s flamboyant figure skater Yevgeny Plushenko pulled out of the Winter Olympics through injury on Thursday in a shock twist that immediately deflated home fans and pumped up by an opening victory for their beloved men’s ice hockey team. At the Iceberg Skating Palace, there was disbelief when the announcement came over the public address system that the 31-year-old would not compete in the men’s individual figure skating event after he injured himself during his warm-up.

The news came just seconds before Plushenko was due to start his short programme, and left a stunned audience wondering if they had witnessed the end of a glittering ca reer. Plushenko, a contro versial selection for the Games because of the lack of competitive action in the build-up, won his fourth Olympic medal on Sunday when he helped Russia tri umph in the inaugural team competition. But during his warmup he repeatedly clutched his back.

“I came out for the warm-up... and in the first triple Axel I stepped out and felt like I had a knife in my back,” he told reporters. “And the second triple Axel, it was a horrible one. It was a hard landing and after this I didn’t feel my right leg. I took four painkillers and it didn’t help. I think it was God saying, ‘Yevgeny, enough is enough’.”

Positive thinking helps Garrigus flourish at Riviera

By the power of positive thinking, banished mem o ries of previous struggles at Riviera Country Club as he charged up the Northern Trust Open leaderboard on Thursday. In four previous starts at the revered venue, Garrigus had broken par only once while never finishing better than joint 51st but he transformed that for the better on a glorious, sun-splashed day as he fired a four-under 67 in the opening round.

“I completely changed my attitude,” American Garrigus told reporters when asked what had made the difference for him at a PGA Tour event where he has twice missed the cut and withdrew in 2012 after opening with a 79. “I just stopped telling myself that I hated this place, so to speak. I convinced myself this is my favourite golf course of the year and I tell you what, this is the best shape I’ve ever seen it.” The greens are rolling unbelievably good, and you don’t usually see that on poa annua (grass). So with my attitude and the way the course has shaped up, everything worked out good today.”

Del Potro, Murray into ATP World Tennis quarters

ROTTERDAM, 14 Feb — Defending champion Del Potro beat Paul-Henri Mathieu of France 6–2, 7–6 (2) to reach the ATP World Tennis quarterfinals on Thursday. The Argentine had to save two set-points on serve at 5–6 in the second set to move on to next play Latvian Ernests Gulbis, who beat eighth-seed Grigor Dimitrov of Bulgaria 6–4, 7–6 (3).

Second-seeded Murray eliminated Austrian qualifier Dominik Thiem 6–4, 3–6, 6–3. They were evenly matched in the first two sets, with Thiem saving three break points to take the second. But Murray asserted himself in the third, in an exciting match which lasted 2 hours, 21 minutes.

Del Potro was troubled with wrist injury, saying “still feeling pain in his left wrist.” “Sometimes I get frustrated. It’s not easy when I want to close the point and hit hard but I have to hit slices. But I have done this for the past month on the tour and I have to deal with it. If the pain goes away I will start to hit the backhand harder again.”

Murray faces Marin Cilic in the quarterfinals after Cilic upset fifth-seed Jo-Wilfried Tsonga 6–4, 6–4.

Prizewinning novelist Kenichi Yamamoto dies at 57

OSAKA, 14 Feb — Kenichi Yamamoto, a Naoki Prize winner renowned for his historical novels, died of lung adenocarcinoma at a Kyoto hospital on Thursday, his family said. He was 57.

Yamamoto won the prize in 2009 with “Rikunin Tazuneyu,” or “Ask This of Rikyu,” which described the life of Sen no Rikyu (1522-1591), a Japanese tea master who perfected the tea ceremony and raised it to the level of an art.

The film of the same title based on the novel won the Best Artistic Contribution award at the Montreal International Film Festival last year. It starred Kabuki actor Ichikawa Ebizo.

A graduate of Doshisha University in Kyoto Prefecture, Yamamoto debuted in 2002 with his novel “Sengoku Ryoku: Hakuyoden,” a story about a falconer in the Sengoku (warring states) era.—Kyodo News

Rooney can take World Cup by storm, says England manager

LONDON, 14 Feb—Manchester United striker Wayne Rooney can be one of the outstanding talents of this year’s World Cup in Brazil, according to England manager Roy Hodgson. It will be Rooney’s fifth major tournament, but in two previous World Cups he has not lived up to the stunning impression he made as an 18-year-old at the 2004 European Championship finals in Portugal. He was named in UEFA’s team of the tournament there after scoring four goals in four games.

Four years later, when England lost to Germany in the round of 16, his form was again disappointing, while at Euro 2012, having been banned for the first two games, he scored against Ukraine but struggled in the quarter-final loss to Italy.

Hodgson believes that this time he will benefit from a recent break through injury, telling reporters: “I think with Wayne it’s a great opportunity this year to really show on a world stage what a magnificent player he is. “Maybe once or twice in the past I can say without too many fears of contradiction that on the world stage he hasn’t exploded as he has on our national stage, where we all accept him as being an outstanding player.” The message to him is ‘This is your chance’. I just rejoice in the fact that he’s playing so well.”

Rooney has scored 11 goals for United this season, although none since December 26, and has stood out for the championship during an otherwise poor Premier League campaign.

His record for England is 38 goals in 88 games, the fifth highest tally behind Bobby Charlton (49), Gary Lineker (48), Jimmy Greaves (44) and Michael Owen (40).

Hodgson said the possibility of Rooney’s United mate Adnan Januzaj qualifying to play for England was a long way off and added that it is up to the English FA’s Board to pursue the matter if they want the current rules changed. Januzaj, who is being wooed by a number of national teams, would not be eligible for England until 2018 at the earliest. Even then it would require the FA’s of England, Scotland, Northern Ireland and Wales to scrap their present residency agreement, under which a player must have lived in that country for five years under the age of 18.—Reuters Development of SMEs is vital for development of a country. It needs assistance from the State, business firms and international banks and financial institutions. Now, Mingala Myanmar will disburse loans to SMEs in Myanmar. “There is a plan to disburse loans to the SMEs in the country and disbursement of loans starts in February. We will give out loans to around 30-40 people in February. Payment period and number of borrowers are not limited,” said Daw Thuzar, an official from Mingala Myanmar.

Disbursement includes programme to disburse loan to those who had borrowed loan and repaid them in time and those who expanded their businesses and the new entrepreneurs who will operate small-scale business.

“The SME borrowers must operate their business actually. They need to show licence to run business along with CSCs, household certificates and proof of home ownership. If they are in conformity with above-mentioned facts, they will have a chance to borrow K 10 million,” she continued.

With a view to increasing income of ordinary people and improving their socioeconomic status, disbursement of loan was launched in 2011. At present, K 1 million each are being disbursed to over 6000 small-scale entrepreneurs in Myanmar and about K 2000 million of loans have been disbursed across the country. Arrangement is being made to disburse K 10 million to the small-scale entrepreneurs without pledge in form of property as of 1 February.

SMEs include small industries, catering services and other small-scale businesses. So, the small-scale entrepreneurs will be able to operate their business with 2.5 percent of the interest rate.
