IMF’s growth rate forecast brightens economic outlook for Myanmar in 2014

By Ye Myint in Washington, DC

Myanmar, described as the new frontier economy in Asia will be able to see a pickup in growth to 7.8 percent this year and growth is expected to reach a certain level more than 7 per cent, said Mr. Changyong Rhee, Director of the Asia and Pacific Department of IMF at 2014 Asia and Pacific Regional Economic Outlook press briefing on Friday.

While expressing his views on Myanmar prospects the NLM correspondent, Mr. Rhee said the main growth drivers for Myanmar will be new capital inflows and accelerated investments from abroad. He suggested how to handle the capital inflows wisely for infrastructure development together with macroeconomic stability and avoid the so-called natural resources curse and not to repeat the same mistakes many Asian economies have experienced are more important than growth rate.

He continued IMF has a close contact with the Central Bank of Myanmar in exchange rate reform, market liberalization and market-oriented economic policy and IMF and Myanmar will continue their works.

Shortly after taking the Myanmar journalist’s question, he had to respond to an online question: what impact does the loosening of sanction has on Myanmar’s economic forecast of 7.8 per cent and IMF thinks continuing political tension about a community in the western Myanmar given that the IMF just have noticed political tension in Thailand and will have any impact in Myanmar as the moderator took an online question related to Myanmar.

He voiced IMF has forecast more investment will come in as long as the government’s reforms continue. He expressed his view that the government will be able to tackle the problem of political uncertainty about the ethnic groups wisely as it is very important for long-term growth.

IMF has had a good study about the impact of economic inequality on the long-term growth. He shared the view that inequality is a kind of negative factors in securing long-term growth. He revealed his hope that Myanmar does not go the same patterns of Asia.

In his remarks on economic prospects about Asia-Pacific for 2014 at the press briefing, Mr. Changyong Rhee left three key messages that Asia-Pacific will remain the world’s most dynamic region and continue to

WASHINGTON, Manila inch closer to enhanced defence pact

MANILA, 12 April — Washington and Manila inked closer Friday to a new defence agreement that will grant the US military greater access to Philippine military bases amid China’s increasing aggressiveness in the South China Sea.

Defence Undersecretary Pio Lorenzo Batino, chair of the Philippine negotiating panel, said in a statement issued at the end of the eighth round of negotiations that both sides found “consensus on key points of a draft agreement.”

Since the removal of US military forces based in the Philippines in 1991 and 1992, the US military’s presence has been limited to short-term visits and rotations under the Visiting Forces Agreement reached in 1998.

“After 15 years of the visiting forces agreement and given the current realities, challenges and opportunities,” Batino opined, “the Philippines is ready for a heightened level of defence cooperation.”

“This agreement, which should stand on mutual trust, is an idea whose time has come,” Batino said.

Both sides hope to sign the new agreement when US President Barack Obama visits the Philippines on 28 and 29 April.

The US side did not issue a statement after the last round.

Batino described the latest round of discussions as “very productive.” He cited a “consensus on key provisions and modalities” that would reflect, among others, “full respect for Philippine sovereignty, nonperformance of US troops and no US military basing in the Philippines and a prohibition against weapons of mass destruction.”

Aquino earlier instructed the Philippine panel to comply with and keep within relevant provisions of the Philippine Constitution and laws, particularly the provision that bans permanent basing by a foreign country on Philippine soil.

Police raid Rome restaurants, cafes in anti-mafia operation

ROME, 12 April — Italian police carried out a new anti-mafia operation in Rome on Friday, with several well-known cafes and restaurants seized in the historic heart of Rome.

All assets seized belonged to the brothers Luigi, Antonio and Salvatore Righi, allegedly connected with the powerful Continetti clan belonging to Naples-based Camorra syndicate, police said. The three men had already been arrested in January, along with the seizure of some 25 properties and restaurants.

The latest raid was carried out by military police and involved assets worth 7 million euros (9.7 million US dollars), police explained in a statement. Among those was one ice-cream shop in the central Via del Tritone, and four pizzerias in the most famous area of the historic centre of Rome. Anti-mafia prosecutors also ordered the seizure of some properties in Naples and a farm vehicles rental company in Reggio Calabria city in South Italy.

Two strong quakes shake Nicaragua, nation on alert

MANAGUA, 12 April — Two strong earthquakes, measuring 6.2 and 6.6 on the Richter scale respectively, have rattled western Nicaragua since Thursday, killing one and injuring dozens of others.

The last 6.6-magnitude quake struck at 3:29 pm local time (2029 GMT), and was centered about 12 km south of the southwest town of Nandaime. A Xinhua reporter in the capital Managua, 61 km from Nandaime, said the quake was felt very strongly there. There were no reports of casualties or damage caused by the latest quake yet. Thursday’s 6.2-magnitude quake was centered around 18 km southeast of the northwest city of Larreyagna.

It damaged hundreds of homes, left some 33 people slightly injured, and indirectly led to the death of a woman who suffered a heart attack.

The power supply has been cut off in Managua, with thousands of panic-stricken residents choosing to sleep in streets to avoid new quakes. Large-scale commercial facilities such as restaurants and supermarkets have all been shut down in Managua and schools in several strongly-hit western cities have also been suspended.

Earlier on Friday, the Nicaraguan government announced extending a red alert in its entire Pacific coast due to powerful aftershocks.

Darfur rebel says peacekeepers turning blind eye to new violence

PARIS, 12 April — A veteran rebel leader from Sudan’s Darfur region accused international peacekeepers on Friday of turning a blind eye to what he called a renewed campaign of ethnic cleansing by government-backed Arab militias.

The joint UN/African Union UNAMID peacekeeping force told Reuters it was doing as much as it could policing the vast western territory — and Sudan’s government dismissed rebel leader Minni Minawoy’s account of a fresh offensive. International efforts have failed to end clashes in Darfur, more than 10 years after Khartoum unleashed militias to try and crush a rebellion by mostly non-Arab insurgents.

Lebanon in vaccination drive against polio spreading from Syria

BEIRUT, 12 April — Lebanon launched a fourth round of polio immunisation on Friday, trying to prevent the disease spreading from neighbouring Syria along with the tide of refugees fleeing the three-year conflict.

Protection against polio requires several vaccinations but aid workers are concerned that coverage in Lebanon has been falling off because parents were unaware of the need for multiple inoculation.

The announcement earlier this week that polio had been detected in Iraq, the first of Syria’s neighbours to be hit by the virus, has added to fears that it could spread further.

The campaign in Lebanon targets around 600,000 Syrian, Lebanese and Palestinian infants aged up to five.

The first three rounds were very successful, but there have been diminishing returns,” said Luciano Calestini, deputy representative in Lebanon for the UN children’s agency UNICEF, which is carrying out the campaigns with Lebanese officials.

Foreign ministers discuss nuclear disarmament in Hiroshima

HIROSHIMA, 12 April—Japanese Foreign Minister Fumio Kishida pledged his country’s efforts toward nuclear non-proliferation and disarmament on Saturday at a meeting of non-nuclear weapon countries in the city of Hiroshima.

At the ministerial meeting, the 12-member Non-proliferation and Disarmament Initiative is expected to call on nuclear powers to scale back their arsenals and for world leaders to visit Hiroshima and Nagasaki, two Japanese cities devastated by US atomic bombings in World War II.

Representatives from the member states visited a memorial monument and a museum at Hiroshima’s Peace Memorial Park before entering the eighth meeting of the NPDI, which was launched in 2010 and is being held in Japan for the first time.

Merkel visits Athens to boost Greek government after bond sale

ATHENS, 12 April—German Chancellor Angela Merkel pledged on Friday to continue backing Greece, one day after the debt-laden country tapped bond markets for the first time since it international bailout began four years ago.

Greek reforms are paying off, Merkel said in a symbolic visit to mark the economic rehabilitation of a nation that over the past four years has threatened the stability of Europe and its single currency. “We see that Greece is fulfilling its pledges... We will continue to support Greece in the future,” Merkel said in a joint Press conference with Samaras, adding that Athens was meeting its budget targets, opening the way to discuss further debt relief measures in the months to come.

In a sign that the focus of Greece’s bailout programme is gradually shifting towards less austerity and more growth, Merkel and Samaras met startup businesses and said they would accelerate the creation of a 500-million-euro fund for small and medium enterprises, sponsored by Greece, the EU and Germany. Hundreds of angry Greeks gathered in an uneven rally to protest Merkel’s visit in central Athens, a far cry from the tens of thousands which had rallied last time she arrived in the city back in October 2012.

“We want her out!” Raus! And when she goes she should also take the Greek government with her because they betrayed us. They sold us out to Germany, said Roula Darzakou, a 48-year-old housewife. “We want our country back, we don’t want her money.”

More than 7,000 officers were deployed on the streets of Athens to keep watch on the rallies. Athens has seen a number of violent demonstrations in recent years, and public protests were banned in the areas in which the rally will move. Her visit caps a watershed week for Greece. Strong investor interest in Athens’ first bond sale in four years is seen as a vindication of the wrenching spending cuts and other austerity measures that Greece has undergone in exchange for the 237 billion euro international bailout.

Woman who threw shoe at Hillary Clinton released from jail

NEW YORK, 12 April—A woman who threw a shoe at Hillary Clinton as the former US secretary of state was delivering a speech in Las Vegas has been released from jail, and faces possible charges after her arrest for disorderly conduct, officials said on Friday.

Alison Michelle Ernst, 36, was released on her own recognizance just before midnight on Thursday, said Tessa Driver, a spokeswoman for the Clark County District Attorney’s Office. Ernst has not been formally charged but is scheduled to appear in court on 24 June, Driver said.

Clinton was giving a speech on Thursday at the Mandalay Bay hotel in Las Vegas when a protestor who was not a ticketed guest was being approached by Secret Service agents threw a shoe at her, according to the CIA.

Video news footage showed Clinton, 66, a potential 2016 Democratic presidential candidate, moving to crouch as a flying object flew past her on stage. The former secretary of state later joked about the incident, asking if it was part of a Las Vegas Cirque du Soleil show.

Las Vegas police arrested Ernst on suspicion of disorderly conduct, said police spokesman Officer Jose Hernandez. Prosecutors have not decided whether to charge Ernst in the incident, Driver said.

In many parts of the world, throwing a shoe at a political figure is a form of protest. In 2008, a shoe was hurled at then-President George W Bush when he appeared at a Baghdad news conference with the Iraqi prime minister. —Reuters

Iran’s oil exports surge above West’s sanctions cap

LONDON/WASHINGTON, 12 April—Iran’s crude oil exports have surged to their highest in 20 months, far exceeding a 1 million barrel-per-day limit set by the West under an interim deal on curbing Teheran’s nuclear programme.

The International Energy Agency’s monthly report revised February’s global crude imports from Iran upwards by 240,000 bpd to 1.65 million barrels per day, the highest since June 2012.

Under an interim deal signed in November, between Iran and six world powers — known as the P5+1 — that came into effect on 20 January, Iran’s exports are supposed to be held to an average 1 million bpd through 20 July.

Tough international sanctions over the past two years have cut Iran’s oil exports by about half.

“The question is whether they are going to continue to test the sanctions,” said Antoine Halff, head of the IEA’s oil industry and markets division.

Chains accounted for 160,000 bpd of the rise in imports in February, India for 93,000 bpd and South Korea for 83,000 bpd.

On the other hand, Japanese imports of Iranian oil were revised lower by 103,000 bpd to 106,000 bpd.

Imports of Iranian oil are running well above 2013 levels for the third consecutive month, the report said.

The Obama administration believes that Iran’s oil sales will fall in coming months to an average 1 million bpd over the entire six-month period.

“We expect, we still expect, and anticipate that this will average over a six month period... to meeting the bar that was set,” in a White House meeting time of the November deal, State Department spokeswoman Jen Psaki told reporters.—Reuters

Amid ‘gas war’ talk, Russia reassures Europe on supply

KIEV/MOSCOW, 12 April—Russian President Vladimir Putin tried to ease European fears of supply cuts on Friday as reports of supply cuts in April after Brussels said it would stand with the new authorities in Kiev if the Kremlin carries out a threat to turn off the tap to Ukraine.

Russia, which last month angered Western powers by annexing Crimea peninsula, has raised the price it charges Kiev for gas and said it owes Moscow $2.2 billion in unpaid bills.

That has raised the specter of previous “gas wars”, when rows between the two former Soviet states led to problems with onward supplies to western Europe. A repeat of that scenario could hurt Russia as well as EU customers for its gas because Moscow depends for its public revenues on selling gas in Europe. “I want to say again: We do not intend and do not plan to shut off gas supplies to Ukraine,” Putin said in televised comments at a meeting of his advisory Security Council. “We guarantee fulfillment of all our obligations to our European consumers.”

The stand-off, precipitated by the overthrow of pro-Russian Ukrainian president after he rejected closer ties to the European Union, has brought Russia’s relations with the West to their most fraught since the end of the Cold War in 1991.

The statement of the commission’s policy section, carried by the North’s official Korean Central News Agency, said North Korea will “push ahead with the countermeasures for self-defense” if the United States continues its “hostile policy” toward Pyongyang.

On 23 March, South Korea test-fired a ballistic missile capable of reaching all areas of North Korea.

The statement claimed it is unfair that the United States, as well as the UN Security Council, say nothing about the test firing, while only denouncing North Korea’s missile launches.

UN Security Council resolutions prohibit North Korea from using any missile technology. South Korea is not subject to such a ban.

Forces in Sudan could attack South Sudan refugee camp

GENEVA, 12 April — The United Nations warned on Friday that forces in Sudan could attack a refugee camp in South Sudan because it was being used by armed groups, an assault that would rekindle tensions between the oil-producing neighbours.

An unidentified aircraft circled Yida camp, in South Sudan’s border state Unity, this week, raising fears of a strike, Melissa Fleming, spokeswoman for the UN High Commissioner for Refugees (UNHCR), told journalists in Geneva.

South Sudanese fighters ended decades of conflict with the Sudanese government with a peace deal in 2005 that paved the way for South Sudan to split away as an independent country six years later.

But sporadic clashes over disputed territory have continued and Sudan has regularly accused its neighbour of harboring and arming rebels along their long border. South Sudan dismisses the allegations.

Snowden’s attorney in Germany without any consent

Snowden has expressed his willingness to testify before a German parliamentary committee, investigating spy communications by the NSA and the German government, plane, she declined to speculate, adding: “Having a refugee camp with 70,000 people, where you have elements that should not be in a refugee camp, could draw this kind of attack from across the border.”

“If we see military elements in a refugee camp, the danger is that these elements can draw conflict into the camp, that they can turn the refugee camp into a target,” Fleming added.

Scottish leader urges voters to put aside politics for independence

ABERDEEN, 12 April — Scotland’s leader Alex Salmond will on Saturday urge Scots to put aside party politics in the vote on independence, as he tries to win support from Labour rivals for his bid to leave the United Kingdom.

In an address to the Scottish National Party’s (SNP) last conference before a 18 September referendum, Salmond will stress that a vote for independence is not a vote for him or his party but a way to put Scotland’s future in its own hands.

His appeal comes after a narrowing in opinion polls that has for the first time made a vote for independence look a possibility, with both sides trying to persuade the up to 15 per cent of voters who remain undecided.

Salmond will promise to set up an all-party “Team Scotland” group after any “Yes” vote, to negotiate the terms of independence by 24 March, 2016.

His promise is an appeal to Scottish Labour voters, many of whom bitterly oppose the SNP, which won the first majority government of Scotland’s devolved parliament in a landslide victory in 2011.

“A Yes vote in September is not a vote for me, or for an SNP government in 2016 (at the next Scottish election),” Salmond is expected to tell 1,200 party faithful gathered in Aberdeen, the oil capital of Scotland, for the two-day conference.

“It’s a vote for a government in Scotland that the people of Scotland choose, pursuing policies the people of Scotland support.”

Salmond will stress that the reason to vote for independence and end the 307-year-old tie to England is so that oil-rich Scotland can decide its own policies and not have its fate determined by politicians in London.

He will say that any government of an independent Scotland would be in control of tax, the economy, social security, employment, immigration, oil and gas revenues, European policy and a range of other areas now under Westminster’s control.

“That may be the SNP. It may be Labour. It may be a coalition,” he will say.

“If I tell you what it won’t be. It won’t be a government led by a party with just a single MP in Westminster,” he will add, referring to the Conservative Party which is unpopular in Scotland but the major partner of Britain’s ruling coalition.

Belarusian president says ready to receive Ukrainians fleeing Ukraine

MINSK, 12 April — Belarus is ready to take all Ukrainians who want to leave Ukraine and also welcomes those who have fled Ukraine due to the current crisis, Belarusian President Alexander Lukashenko said on Friday.

“The Ukrainian people are asking us for shelter. We need to think about that. Perhaps, we will have to take in some of our brothers and sisters and we will do that if necessary,” Lukashenko said at a meeting with the workers of the Stutik Belts factory.

He also accused the Ukrainian authorities of raising prices at home, making it impossible for people to live.

“It would be better if things over there were calm and peaceful for these good people to live in a calm life there,” the president said.

The Ukrainian embassy in Moscow said on Friday that Ukrainian ambassador to Belarus Mykhailo Yezhel has returned to Minsk after consultations in Kiev, the capital of Ukraine.

On 24 March, Ukraine recalled ambassador Yezhel back and sent a diplomatic note to Belarus to protest against remarks by Lukashenko saying that Belarus accepted that Crimea was de-facto a part of Russia.

Minsk said that Belarus was not going to recall its ambassador from Ukraine.
India successfully testfires Agni I missile at night

NEW DELHI, 12 April — India successfully test fired Agni I missile from a military base in the eastern state of Odisha late Friday night, sources said on Saturday.

“The surface-to-surface missile was test fired from the Wheeler Island off Odisha coast at night. The maiden night trial of the missile was successful,” the sources said.

The Agni-I, with a range of 700 to 1,250 km, is a single stage, solid fuel, road and rail mobile, medium-range ballistic missile for use by the Indian Army.

US government says hackers trying to exploit ‘Heartbleed’ bug

BOSTON, 12 April — The US government warned banks and other businesses on Friday to be on alert for hackers seeking to steal data exposed by the “Heartbleed” bug, as a German programmer took responsibility for the widespread security crisis.

On a website for advising critical infrastructure operators about emerging cyber threats, the Department of Homeland Security asked organizations to report any Heartbleed-related attacks, adding that hackers were attempting to exploit the bug in widely used OpenSSL code by scanning targeted networks.

Federal regulators also advised financial institutions to patch and test their systems to make sure they are safe. OpenSSL is technology used to encrypt communications, including access to email, as well as websites of big Internet companies like Facebook Inc, Google Inc and Yahoo Inc.

The bug, which surfaced Monday, allows hackers to steal data without a trace. No organization has identified itself as a victim, yet security firms say they have seen well-known hacking groups scanning the Web in search of vulnerable networks.

“While there have not been any reported attacks or malicious incidents involving this particular vulnerability at this time, it is still possible that malicious actors in cyberspace could exploit unpatched systems,” said Larry Zelvin, director of the Department of Homeland Security’s National Cybersecurity and Communications Integration Centre, in a blog post on the White House website.

The German government released an advisory that echoed the one by Washington, describing the bug as “critical.”

Technology companies spent the week searching for vulnerable OpenSSL code elsewhere, including email servers, ordinary PCs, phones and even security products.

Companies including Cisco Systems Inc, International Business Machines Corp, Intel Corp, Juniper Networks Inc, Oracle Corp, Red Hat Inc have warned customers they may be at risk. Some updates are out, while others are still in the works.

That means some networks are vulnerable to attack, said Kasparov’s Lab researcher Kurt Baumgartner.

Microsoft sued over browser misuse that led to $731 million EU fine

SEATTLE, 12 April — Microsoft Corp’s board faces a lawsuit over the way it handled an error with its Internet Explorer browser that ended up costing the company a record-breaking $731 million fine by European antitrust regulators.

The lawsuit, brought by shareholder Kim Barovic in federal court in Seattle on Friday, charges that directors and executives, including founder Bill Gates and former Chief Executive Officer Steve Ballmer, failed to manage the company properly and that the board’s investigation was insufficient into how the misuse occurred.

The legal action is the first to emerge from a humiliating episode for Microsoft, which the software company has never fully explained and has accounted for only as a “technical error.”

In March last year, the European Union levied its largest ever antitrust fine against Microsoft for breaking a legally binding commitment made in 2009 to ensure that consumers in Europe had a choice of how they access the internet, rather than defaulting to Microsoft’s Internet Explorer browser.

Its investigation found that updated software issued between May 2011 and July 2012 meant that 15 million users were not given a choice. It was the first time the European Commission, the EU’s antitrust authority, had handed down a fine to a company for failing to meet its obligations.

NASA gets go-ahead to build spacecraft set to visit asteroid

WASHINGTON, 12 April — US space agency NASA said on Thursday it has been given the permission to build a spacecraft designed to collect samples from an asteroid back to Earth.

The announcement of building the spacecraft, called Origins Spectral Interpretation Resource Identification Security Regolith Explorer (OSIRIS-REx), was made on Wednesday after a successful Mission Critical Design Review by an independent review board, comprised of experts from NASA and several external organizations, the space agency said.

“This is the final step for a NASA mission to go from paper to product,” OSIRIS-REx programme executive Gordon Johnston said in a NASA statement.

“This confirms that the final design is ready to start the build-up towards launch,” its launch is scheduled to launch in the fall of 2016, rendezvous with the asteroid Bennu in 2018. The spacecraft carries five instruments that will remotely evaluate the surface of Bennu. After more than a year of asteroid reconnaissance, the spacecraft will collect samples of at least 2 ounces (60 grams) and return them to Earth for scientific study in 2023.

The mission is aimed at finding answers to basic questions about the composition of the very early solar system and the source of organic materials and water that made life possible on Earth.

Besides, the mission will help achieve US President Barack Obama’s goal of sending humans to an asteroid by 2025, NASA added.

Amazon to unveil smartphone in time for winter holidays

SAN FRANCISCO, 12 April — Amazon.com Inc is preparing to launch its long-rumored smartphone in the second half of the year, the Wall Street Journal reported on Friday, citing people briefed on the company’s plans.

The Internet retailer would jump into a crowded market dominated by Apple Inc and Samsung Electronics Co Ltd. The company has recently been demonstrating versions of the handset to developers in San Francisco and Seattle. It intends to announce the device in June and ship to stores around the end of September, the newspaper cited the unidentified sources as saying.

Amazon has made great strides into the hardware arena as it seeks to boost sales of digital content and puts its online store in front of more users. Amazon recently launched its $99 Fire TV video-streaming box and its Kindle e-readers and Fire tablets already command respectable US market share after just a few years on the market.

Rumors of an Amazon-designed smartphone have circled for years, though executives have previously played down ambitions to leap into a heavily competitive and increasingly saturated market.

Apple and Samsung, which once accounted for the lion’s share of the smartphone market, are struggling to maintain margins as new entrants such as Huawei and Lenovo target the lower-income segment. To stand out from the crowd, Amazon intends to equip its phones with screens that display three-dimensional images without a need for special glasses, the Journal said.

Amazon’s officials were not immediately available for comment.

Chinese president vows enhanced cooperation with Australia on MH370

BEIJING, 12 April—Chinese President Xi Jinping met with visiting Australian Prime Minister Tony Abbott on Friday afternoon at the Great Hall of the People in downtown Beijing. Xi expressed gratitude for Australia’s search for the missing Malaysia Airlines Flight MH370, adding that China will continue searching for the flight and stay in close communication with the Australian side.

Abbott also expressed gratitude for the immediate assistance that China provided for Australia when the search for MH370 shifted from the northern corridor to the southern corridor in Australia. “China was the very first country to provide ships for the search, and we’ve been very grateful for the help,” he said.

At a luncheon in Shanghai today, Abbott said he was confident that the signals picked up in the search were from the black box of the missing plane.

The plane disappeared on 8 March en route from Kuala Lumpur to Beijing with 239 people on board.

Excessive benzene found in NW China tap water

LANZHOU, 12 April—Excessive levels of benzene in tap water have affected more than 2.4 million people in downtown Lanzhou in northwest China’s Gansu Province, provincial authorities said on Friday.

Tests at a water plant at 8:30 am on Friday showed tap water contained 160 micrograms of benzene per liter, far in excess of the 10 micrograms per liter national limit, according to the city’s environmental protection office.

The city government warned citizens not to drink tap water for the next 24 hours. Benzene is a colourless carcinogen used to manufacture plastics.

Tests from Thursday evening to early Friday morning found between 118 micrograms and 200 micrograms of benzene per liter at the water plant, according to Veolia Water, a Sino-French joint venture and the sole water supplier for urban Lanzhou, the provincial capital.

The levels at the plant fell to 78 micrograms of benzene per liter on Friday afternoon, according to a statement from the Gansu provincial government’s information office.

Meanwhile, the tap water at some urban households was also found to contain as much as 78 micrograms of benzene per liter, according to the statement.

Veolia Water began using activated carbon at 3 am on Friday to absorb the organic matter and dilute the pollution.

An initial investigation found problems in a 3 km channel that links the plant that preprocesses the water and the plant that supplies water to Lanzhou. Closure of the channel will cut the city’s water supply by half.

The map of coalition would be hard to be predicted. “New cohesiveness” needs to be continued searching for the help, “he said.

There was almost equal distribution of votes among “middle-class parties. ‘ New cohesiveness’ needs to be talked about. The flight recorder could help solve the mystery of why the plane veered so far off course. The battery of the black box usually lasts for only a month and is expected to die very soon.

During the meeting, Xi said Abbott’s leadership of such a delegation to China showed the great importance and sincerity that the Australian side has attached to developing bilateral ties.

Indonesia’s elections show changing political landscape

JAKARTA, 12 April—Brief vote count in the recent parliamentary election in Indonesia has shown a changing political landscape as more emerging forces posed unexpected tough challenges to the parties that have long dominated the arena.

No major political parties gained above 10 percent of the vote, compared to the party coalitions over the past five years in parliament.

There was almost equal distribution of votes among middle-class parties. “New cohesiveness” needs to be talked about.

The report was distributed on Saturday at a meeting in Hiroshima of foreign ministers from 12 non-nuclear-weapons states belonging to the Non-Proliferation and Disarmament Initiative.

The NPDI consists of Australia, Canada, Chile, Germany, Japan, Mexico, the Netherlands, Nigeria, the Philippines, Poland, Turkey and the United Arab Emirates.

Gansu publicity department reaffirmed on Friday afternoon that the Yellow River, which runs through the city, is not contaminated. Lanzhou residents panicked upon hearing the news, rushing to supermarkets or community grocery stores to stock up on bottled water.

At Huilan Supermarket, one of the largest in downtown Lanzhou, many trolleys or baskets full of bottled water were seen. Latecomers gathered in front of empty shelves, waiting for resupply.

22 still missing after boat capsized in east Indonesia

JAKARTA, 11 April—Twenty two people are still missing after their boat sank in eastern Indonesia’s Papua Province, local media reported on Friday.

The wooden boat with 30 locals on board was hit by huge waves when sailing from Papua’s Yapen island to Mamberamo Raya Regency in the Papua mainland on Tuesday, Yapen Police chief Gatot Prasetyo told Indonesian news portal thejakartapost.com.

Eight people have been rescued and evacuated by a local search and rescue team, according to thejakartapost.com.

Gatot was quoted as saying that the search efforts was hampered by extreme weather and high waves.

Boat is one of the favorite means of transport in the world’s largest archipelago consisting of 17,000 islands. However, the lack of safety standards has often triggered sea accidents.

UN- AU report calls on Africa to refocus on industrialization

United Nations, 12 April — A new report released on Friday by the United Nations and the African Union (AU) called on the continent of Africa to refocus its economic development strategies on industrialization, particularly on the means for formulating and implementing effective industrial policy.

The Economic Report on Africa 2014, issued here at the UN Headquarters in New York, said that transforming Africa’s industrial landscape has failed partly because countries used industrial blueprints characterized by lack of dynamism and high level coordination, as well as inadequate consultations with stakeholders.

The report, jointly produced by the UN Economic Commission for Africa (UNECA) and the AU Commission, builds on the work of the 2011 edition — on the role of the state in economic transformation — as well as last year’s report on leveraging Africa’s comparative advantages in commodities industrialization.

Until now, the report said, an examination of Africa’s failure at industrialization had ignored the policy processes and institutions governing industrial policy in Africa or the impact of their inherent weaknesses on industrialization.

“Indeed, weak institutional structures and poor policy design have been at the root of Africa’s industrial policy problem throughout its post-independence history,” the report said.

The theme of this year’s report is “Dynamic industrial policy in Africa: innovative institutions, effective processes and flexible mechanisms.”— Xinhua

CAR refugees attacked when fleeing to Cameroon

United Nations, 12 April — The United Nations refugee agency (UNHCR) on Friday said that it is extremely concerned about clashes between refugee groups in the Central African Republic (CAR), a UN spokesman told reporters here.

“Over the past two weeks, the Agency’s staff in Cameroon has been seeing refugees arrive with wounds from machetes or gunshot wounds,” UN spokesman Stephane Dujarric said at a daily news briefing here.

“New arrivals say that anti-Balaka militias have blocked main roads to Cameroon, forcing them to wade through the bush for two to three months before reaching the border.”

The majority of the new arrivals are women, children and elderly people, and all are Muslims. They told UNHCR staff that the men stayed in CAR to create self-defense groups to protect their community and their cattle.

“UNHCR says that an average of 10,000 people now cross weekly from the Central African Republic into eastern Cameroon,” said the spokesman.

“The main entry points into Cameroon are no longer accessible due to anti-Balaka activities, forcing people to use alternative routes,” he said.

“This has caused the number of entry points into Cameroon to grow from 12 to 27 over last three weeks, making it more challenging for UNHCR to monitor the border.”— Xinhua

Experts urge Latvia to pick up speed on reforms

Riga, 12 April — Representatives of the European Commission and the European Central Bank upon their visit to Latvia praised country’s overall macroeconomic situation, however, noted slow pace of some important reforms.

The head of the delegation Christian Weise said after a meeting with Latvian Prime Minister Laimdota Straujuma that “the macroeconomic situation in Latvia is good, and we are happy that Latvia has made the first repayment in time. We are seeing development in Latvia but would wish to see even more development in some areas.”

Some ongoing reforms, including are higher education, insolvency process legislation, as well as state administration, raised concerns of the experts.

Madrid, 12 April — Spain’s road network is facing up to an “unprecedented state of deterioration,” according to a study published by the National Road Association (AEC).

The study, entitled “Needs for investment in conservation,” says the state of Spain’s roads is “deficient,” and in many cases close to being classified as “very deficient,” adding that they are in the worst condition since studies of this kind were begun in 1985.

The AEC calculates around 6.2 billion euros (8.6 million US dollars) needed to be spent on repairing damaged road surfaces, signs, markings and crash barriers.

“The Spain’s road authorities said 94 percent of the amount should be invested on resurfacing, while around 330,000 road signs need to be replaced and 52,000 kilometres of road markings need to be repainted.

The metal crash barriers which run alongside many roads have also deteriorated since the last AEC study in 2011, although they are still considered to be in an “acceptable” condition. Lighting on Spain’s highways needs improvement given that AEC consider 82 percent of that to be “inadequate.”

According to the AEC, Spain’s poor road conditions lead to several negative consequences, among which are a decline in the safety and comfort of road travel, increased maintenance costs for motor vehicles, higher levels of emissions and a fall in competitiveness with other countries in the region.”— Xinhua

Aissh, (Egypt) 12 April — The Egyptian army killed a prominent extremist figure of notorious al-Qaeda-inspired Ansar Bayt al-Maqdis on Friday in North Sinai Province, a security source told Xinhua.

“The army forces set up an ambush for Nour al-Hamadeen, an extremist involved in terrorist attacks in Rafah, chased and clashed with him, which led to his death,” the source added.

On the other hand, two Muslim Brotherhood supporters were killed after exchanging fire with police on Friday at Gharbiya province, 120 km north of the capital Cairo, official MENA news agency reported. The two attempt to set fire to a traffic checkpoint at a village in Gharbiya, leading to clashes with security forces that ended up with their death, while a third one managed to run away.

G20 determined to strengthen recovery, create jobs

Washington, 12 April — Finance ministers and central bank governors of the G20 nations said on Friday that they are determined to take actions to further strengthen economic recovery, create jobs and improve medium-term growth prospects, according to a communiqué released after their meeting in Washington.

“We welcome the prospects for global economic growth to strengthen in 2014 but remain vigilant in the face of important global risks and vulnerabilities,” said the communiqué.

“To meet our Sydney growth ambition to lift our collective GDP by more than 2 percent above the trajectory implied by current policies over the coming five years, we are committed to developing new actions: build on previous G20 commitments, address identified gaps in our policy settings, lift and rebalance global demand and achieve exchange rate flexibility as well as increase growth potential, and create substantial positive spillovers to each other and the world economy.”— Xinhua

Final book in ‘Divergent’ trilogy to be split into two films

LOS ANGELES, 12 April — The final book in the “Divergent” trilogy will be split into two movies, Lions Gate said on Friday, following the same formula the studio used for the upcoming final installments of “The Hunger Games” series.

“Allegiant Part I” is set to be released on 18 March, 2016, and its second part a year later on 24 March, 2017, the studio said.

“Divergent,” a dystopian thriller based on the young adult book series by author Veronica Roth, stars Shailene Woodley and was released last month, grossing $116.6 million (69.6 million pounds) so far at the US box office.

The series tells the story of a futuristic society that divides people into groups based on personality traits.

Woodley’s character, teen heroine Tris Prior, becomes a threat to the government-enforced system as her multiple dominant traits make it difficult for her to fit into society.

The second film in the franchise, “Insurgent,” is set to begin production next month with a release date of 20 March, 2015.

Theo James stars alongside Woodley in the films.

The studio Gate will release the final two installments of “The Hunger Games” franchise, “The Hunger Games: Mockingjay Part 1” starring Jennifer Lawrence, in November, followed by the second part in November 2015. “The Hunger Games” series has so far grossed $1.5 billion in global ticket sales.

Rising artists kick off Coachella ahead of headliners’ Outkast

INDIO, (California), 12 April — A slew of rising artists and bands kicked off the annual Coachella Valley Music and Arts Festival on Friday, ahead of the much anticipated reunion of hip-hop duo Outkast headlining the first night of the three-day festival.

Grammy-winning Outkast, formed by Atlanta rappers Andre 3000 and Big Boi, last worked together on 2006 album “Idlewild.”

But ahead of their headlining set late on Friday, music lovers watched artists such as Ellie Goulding, Grouplove, ZZ Ward and Aloe Blacc perform in the open field of the festival, against the backdrop of the Southern California desert.

Coachella is the first major festival of the summer live music scene, and is often an important stop for an artist on the rise, as the festival has helped launch artists into the US mainstream industry.

Recent success stories include Florence + The Machine, and electronic music DJs Skrillex and Calvin Harris, the latter two both returning this year.

This year, British singer-songwriter Tom Odell made his Coachella debut, playing the Mojave tent on Friday at midday. The singer said being at the festival was an important stop for an artist on the rise.

“It’s one of those festivals that’s in the back of people’s minds,” Odell said. “It’s something musicians talk about and know about, it’s pretty cool to come over here and play, it’s definitely significant.”

The 23-year-old singer released his debut album “Long Way Down” last year, and has been touring extensively to promote it, hoping that fans will connect to his songs, such as the piano-led ballad “Another Love,” after they watch him live. “It’s an energy, I think it’s about getting back in the headspace of when you wrote the song, and performing it like that, and putting everything you’ve got into it, I think that’s the most important thing,” Odell said about performing live.

Other headlining acts for the three-day weekend are British rockers Muse on Saturday, Canadian indie rock band Arcade Fire on day, while notable acts include R&B singer Pharrell and all-rockers Foster The People and Lana Del Rey.—Reuters

The 26-year-old star finished the racy look by wearing her long wavy locks down with a shimmery eye and nude glossy lips, reports online.com.

The Diamonds star’s curves were on full display as she posed for the photo shoot in Hollywood Hills. A man—likely her assistant—poured some water down the Pour It Up singer’s back during the photo shoot.

Actress Gillian plays with perceptions in ghostly thriller ‘Oculus’

LOS ANGELES, 12 April — A haunted mirror, a murderous father and two siblings seeking revenge form the plot for the new supernatural thriller “Oculus,” which blurs perceptions and reality with ghostly scares. “Oculus,” out in the United States and Canada on Friday, follows a young woman, Kaylie, who reunites with her brother Tim after his release from an institution where he was held for a decade for killing their father, who had murdered their mother.

Kaylie is convinced that a large ornate mirror in her home caused the mental instability and subsequent demise of her parents, and is determined to clear her father’s name of murder by proving the mirror is haunted by a manipulative entity.

“It’s one of those festivals that’s in the back of people’s minds,” Odell said. “It’s something musicians talk about and know about, it’s pretty cool to come over here and play, it’s definitely significant.”

Thai court approves arrest warrant against red-shirt leader

BANGKOK, 12 April—Thailand’s Criminal Court on Friday approved an arrest warrant against Wuthipong Korchathamkhun, former leader of the pro-government United Front for Democracy against Dictatorship (UDD), or red-shorts for an alleged lese-majeste offense.

The court gave the approval after the Crime Suppression Division submitted a petition that accused Wuthipong, also known as Ko Tee, of committing lese-majeste by making remarks considered insulting to the monarchy during an interview with foreign press.

The whereabouts of Wuthipong, a red-shirt leader in central Pathum Thani province, remains unknown and a hunt for him has begun.

From now, coordination would be made with investigative units to bring about the suspect’s capture, deputy commander of the Crime Suppression Division Prasopchok Prommoon was quoted by the National News Bureau of Thailand as saying. Photos of Wuthipong have reportedly been posted at many border immigration checkpoints in a bid to prevent him from fleeing to other countries.

Army chief Prayuth Chan-ocha on Friday called on Wuthipong to surrender himself to the police, saying otherwise, it will be difficult for him to live in a society where he is now hated by many—Xinhua

Helicopter crash kills three in central Namibia

Windhoek, 12 April—A military helicopter crashed Friday on the runway at an air base in central Namibia’s Groothoef, killing three people on board, police source said.

The source confirmed that the accident happened right after the helicopter had taken off. It then burst into flames on the runway.

There were eight people on board, according to information on Facebook.

A female pilot died on the spot while two passengers died of serious wounds.

Five survivors have been admitted to local hospitals. Located about 450 kilometers north of Windhoek in the Otjozondjupa Region, Groothoef is a small city known to be the main air base of the country's air force.—Xinhua

37 pct of EU young people complete tertiary education

Brussels, 12 April—The proportion of young persons having completed tertiary education rose to 37 percent in the European Union (EU), Eurostat, the bloc’s statistical office said Friday.

There has been a steady increase in the share of persons aged 30 to 34 in the EU who have completed tertiary education, the educational level following the completion of secondary education, from 24 percent in 2002, when the series started, to 37 percent in 2013.

The Europe 2020 strategy is to increase the proportion to at least 40 percent of the EU population in this age group by 2020. Among EU member states, the highest proportion of those aged 30 to 34 having completed tertiary education was observed in Ireland, at 52.6 percent.

Eleven member states have already met or exceeded their 2020 national targets for this indicator.—Xinhua

Liverpool’s Suarez only has eyes for the team prize

London, 12 April—Luis Suarez is only three goals away from setting a new scoring record for a 38-game Premier League season - not bad considering he was still serving a lifetime ban for biting when it started.

The Uruguayan says he will not have personal milestones on his mind on Sunday, however, when leaders Liverpool host Manchester City in their most important domestic fixture for several years.

Victory for Liverpool on an emotional day for the club marking 25 years since the Hillsborough tragedy, while not necessarily being decisive, would put them within touching distance of a first English title since 1990.

“For myself, it is more important that Liverpool finish in a good position,” 29-goal Suarez, who is two shy of the joint record hauls of Alan Shearer and Cristiano Ronaldo, told the club’s website (www.liverpoolfc.com).

“I try in every game to score because I am a striker. I love to make goals, but for me if I could swap being top scorer or winning the Golden Boot for the team finishing in the top four, that would be more important.”

Liverpool are almost certain to finish in the top four and return to the Champions League next season, but with five games to go in their own hands, no longer can they be considered outsiders to finish the season in first place.

Victory on Sunday, when the game will kick off seven minutes late to commemorate Hillsborough, would leave the Reds seven points clear of City with four games left, although City will still have two games in hand.

But Chelsea, the third club vying for the title, also have to visit Anfield in what is likely to become a nerve-jangling finale to the Premier League season.

Liverpool have the momentum, however, having won nine league games on the spin and for Suarez it is just a matter of keeping going until the end.

“For some people, it’s a surprise because in the past, when we’ve won our last few games, the pressure is on ourselves and they come in fresh,” said Suarez, who on Friday was named joint Premier League Player of the Month alongside skipper Steven Gerrard.

With all the games, every week, we work to try and win. We work very hard. Our target was to finish in the top four and we’ve won our last few games. Reuters

Nyon, (Switzerland), 12 April — Holders Bayern Munich and nine-times winners Real Madrid will face each other in a mouthwatering Champions League semi-final this month with Atlético Madrid up against Chelsea.

Friday’s draw in Nyon not only paired powerhouse teams Bayern and Real together, but also kept alive the intriguing possibility of an all-Madrid final in Lisbon next month.

The draw also puts Atlético Madrid’s goalkeeper Thibaut Courtois up against his parent club Chelsea after UEFA said in a statement on Friday that the on-loan Belgian is eligible to play against the Londoners.

“We have to wait and see how he develops,” Atlético president Enrique Cerezo said. “Obviously he and the doctors will do everything to make sure he is back as soon as possible.”

Bayern’s chairman Karl-Heinz Rummenigge said a meeting with Real would be “incredibly tough.”

“All Bay and Real fans can justifiably look forward to a fantastic clash,” he told the club’s website (www.fcbayern.de). “We’ve been drawn to play one of the best clubs in the world and they’re a fantastic team.”

“Surprise Spanish league leaders Atlético, who knocked out Barcelona this week, are the only one of the last four not to have won Europe’s elite club competition but crushed then European champions Chelsea 4-1 in the Super Cup final in 2012. Chelsea, for whom manager Jose Mourinho is seeking to win it with a third different club having triumphed with Porto and Inter Milan, are in the semis for the seventh time in 13 years.”

Chelsea chief executive Ron Gourlay played down any controversy surrounding Courtois’ availability for the tie, although he did not comment on reports that a clause in the agreement between the clubs means Atlético will have to pay up to £5 million pounds if he plays in both legs.

“The loan was arranged at the start of the season and it’s quite a simple, Thibaut can play against Chelsea. That was never in doubt,” he told Sky Sports — Reuters

Honda sprains left ankle in practice: AC Milan

Milan, 12 April — Japan midfielder Keisuke Honda sprained his left ankle during a practice on Thursday, AC Milan said on their official website on Friday.

The extent of his injury is not known, but he is unlikely to play in a home match against Catania on Sunday.

Honda scored his first league goal against Genoa on Monday.

Six, six, six proves devilishly frustrating for McIlroy

McIlroy will set off in the first group of the day in Augusta, Georgia, on 12 April — Three sixes proved devilishly irritating for Rory McIlroy in the second round as the world number nine survived the halfway cut at the Masters on Friday by the skin of his teeth.

The 24-year-old Northern Irishman had six at the second, 10th and 13th holes and needed to roll in a par-saving six-foot putt at the last for a five-over 77 and a four-under total of 148, qualifying for the weekend by one solitary stroke.

“That was very frustrating,” McIlroy told reporters at Augusta National. “I really couldn’t get anything to go my way. I didn’t know if it was going to be a 10-shot rule that was going to come into play,” he added after winding up 11 strokes adrift of tournament leader Bubba Watson of the United States. “It is a bit of a sigh of relief that I’m here for the weekend.”

Twice major-winner McIlroy had to contend with a bad break at the par-five 13th when his ball took a kangaroo-style leap off a sprinkler at the back of the green and finished deep in the azaleas.

“I’ve seen a lot of this golf course in the last few years,” he said, referring to the calamitous 80 he shot in 2011 after going into the last round holding a four-stroke lead. “Yeah, it was a bad shot on 13. I didn’t quite deserve that though, hitting the sprinkler.”

Film tourism

Countries such as the United States, India, Republic of Korea, and Nigeria have large film industries, and their movies are winning the hearts of not only their citizens but also the regional or even global citizens.

Many of the films produced and distributed by these giants are so popular in the world that the locations of their films have become tourists’ hotspots. For example New Zealand has become more popular among visitors after The Lord of the Rings was filmed there. The same happens in Tunisia were Star Wars movies were filmed. Moreover, Salzburg in Austria has become a wonderful destination as many scenes from the musical The Sound of the Music were filmed.

More and more people are interested in ROK because of the recent Hallyu phenomenon or the Korean Wave among youths especially in East Asia. Hallyu is a neologism referring to the increase in the popularity of South Korea culture since the late 1990s.

In fact, a new frontier like Myanmar has many opportunities for the development of her film tourism. Particularly, a neighbor like India may have interest in filming some of the scenes or parts or the whole movies in Myanmar. If India comes and film movies in Myanmar, other giants may also follow.

We on our part must also take into account promotion of film tourism in our country through conference presentations and industry talks, script assessment of feature films and other film productions for their tourism attractiveness, location marketing consulting with the help of movie maps, homepage features and classic promotion materials, development of film-related tourism products, creation of film location tours, development of film exhibitions and products for museums, and launching of market research with film-induced tourists.

Customer Service

Customer is business.

- Theodore Levitt

A Company’s foremost job is to create customers.

- Peter F. Drucker

Without customer, there would be no business.

A school cannot survive without students.

A clinic cannot prosper without patients.

Even monks cannot do without lay disciples.

So, a business, in order to survive and prosper, must have customers.

The importance of customer to a business is high-lighted in the following maxims:

• Customer is King
• Customer is Queen
• Customer is Key
• Customer is Root
• Customer is Life-blood
• Customer is Foundation
• Customer is the Means to a business End
• Customer is the Source of business Profit
• Customer is the Moon bright for the business Night
• Customer is to Business what Water is to Fish.

Inside the company, there are no revenue providers. All are Cost-centers. Only the Customer gives revenue and thus profit.

So, for a business to survive and succeed, it must be:

• Customer - focused
• Customer - oriented
• Customer - centered
• Customer - driven
• Customer - responsive

An effective Grand Strategy for business is three-pronged:

• To Think the Most (Know Your Customer-ABOUT the Customer)
• To Feel the Closest (Empathy)
• To Act the Best FOR the Customer (Providing Best Value to the Customer)

A typical Customer Strategy is:

• To Meet or Exceed Customer Expectations

Customer Relationship Management: To Take Care of the following:

C = Core Benefits, Cost, Convenience, Communication, Commitment, Comfortability, Confidence. (7-Cs for the Customer)

U = Unique Customer Value
S = Service
T = Targeting
O = Offerings
M = Mission (Corporate Mission/Purpose)
E = Exceeding Expectations
R = Responsiveness
