Mobile teams to start crackdown on illegal trade at container ports and airport cargo warehouse in Yangon

By Ye Myint

YANGON, 27 June—The Department of Commerce told media persons on Friday at a press conference that it will launch mobile team operations at five container ports in Yangon and airport cargo warehouse at Yangon International Airport commencing the next month to crack down on illegal trade.

Starting from 2 July, mobile teams with a manpower of more than 250 members from Customs Department, Marine Police Force, Aviation Police Force, Department of Civil Aviation, Myanmar Port Authority, General Administration Department, UMFCCI and affiliated associations will be stationed to start cracking down on illegal trade at five container ports—Hidun, Asia World, Myanmar Industrial Port, Sule and Bo Aung Kyaw—in Yangon and air cargo and custom warehouse at Yangon International Airport, said Deputy Director-General U Nyunt Aung who is also the administrator in charge of the Central Committee of Illegal Trade Control.

So far there have only been mobile teams deployed at border checkpoints. To increase legal trade volume and improve consumer protection, mobile team operations started cracking down on illegal imports at border checkpoints in November 2012.

Border trade makes up 20 per cent of the country’s total trade volume and illegally imported goods amounted to about K17 billion in the last twenty months, he added.

Legal trade volume has increased due to trade relaxations and stricter controls. The ministry has been stepping up mobile team operations at border checkpoints across the nation, leading to an increase in the nation’s trade volume in the last two years, with $18.4 billion recorded in 2012-13 FY and $24.96 billion in the 2013-14 FY, the official voiced.

“We will strive to reach $30 billion this fiscal year, exceeding the trade volume targets of the union budget,” Aung said.

President U Thein Sein sends congratulatory messages to Chinese, Indian Presidents

NAY PYI TAW, 28 June—On the occasion of commemorating the 60th Anniversary of the Announcement of the Five Principles of Peaceful Co-existence which falls on 28 June 2014, U Thein Sein, President of the Republic of the Union of Myanmar has sent congratulatory messages to His Excellency Mr. Xi Jinping, President of the People’s Republic of China and His Excellency Mr. Pranab Mukherjee, President of the Republic of India.—MNA

His Excellency Mr. Xi Jinping
President of the People’s Republic of China
Beijing

I have the pleasure to extend to your Excellency my warmest congratulations and best wishes on the auspicious occasion of the 60th Anniversary of the Announcement of the Five Principles of Peaceful Co-existence by Myanmar, China and India.

I am fully confident that this important event will bring further understanding and closer cooperation among our three countries. As the five principles of peaceful co-existence reflect the basic norms governing international relations: Unhinging Mutual Respect for each other’s sovereignty and territorial integrity, mutual non-aggression, mutual non-interference in each other’s internal affairs, equality and mutual benefit and peaceful co-existence, I am convinced that we can work together to further strengthen these principles for peace, stability and prosperity in the region and the world as a whole.

The Five Principles of Peaceful Co-existence reflected the aspirations of the Asian and other developing countries to achieve independence and the purposes and principles of the Charter of the United Nations, and complied with the historical trend towards peace and development as well as the common interest of all peoples. Despite the test of international vicissitudes over the past 60 years, the Five Principles of Peaceful Co-existence have been widely accepted and observed by the International Community as a Basic Norm Governing State-to-State relations, and made an important contribution to world peace and progress of the humanity.

While the new world trend is moving towards a Multi-polar world and economic globalization, countries are becoming more interconnected and interdependent, and working towards peace, development and Win-Win cooperation.

As China is a good neighbouring country for Myanmar, I firmly believe that our long standing Pauk-Phaw relationship and our comprehensive strategic partnership will be further enhanced to a new level through our joint efforts based on the five principles of peaceful co-existence.

May I take this opportunity to convey my sincere wishes for your excellency’s personal well-being and success as well as for the continued progress and prosperity of the People’s Republic of China.

Urban planning important for trade zones in Muse: Union Ministers

NAY PYI TAW, 27 June—Systematic town planning plays a critical role in the establishment of trade centres, with union ministers saying that a feasibility study on road areas should take into consideration possible effects that can arise in the future.

As part of an inspection tour of northern Shan State on 26 June, Union Ministers U Soe Thaung, U Tin Naing Thein and U Win Myint arrived at the 105-Mile border trade zone in Muse, to instruct local officials to ensure a speedy flow of commodities and accelerating transactions. “Just as the development of a township is important, a town planning is to be systematic too,” a union minister said. At the 105-Mile check point, officials briefed the union ministers on trade between Myanmar and China, the needs for new store houses, construction projects for factories and plants, and the current trade volume.

U Tin Naing Thein instructed officials to find ways to reduce congestion, to equip check points with high-tech machinery, and to improve the caliber of employees.—MNA

Humanitarian Response in Kachin and N. Shan states discussed

YANGON, 27 June—A presentation and discussion on a strategy for a local humanitarian response in Kachin and Northern Shan states were held in Yangon on Friday, with organization leaders discussing scenarios with IDP camps of up to 150,000 people.

Officials said that a budget of $2 million was needed for the response in 2014 to cover basic needs and deal with issues, including sexual violence in conflict and human trafficking. Among the key activities would be the provision of education and shelters as well as the protection of children and women.

The organizations involved in the project are the Kachin Baptist Convention, Kachin Relief and Development Committee, Karuna Myanmar Social Services, Metta Development Foundation, Shalom Foundation, Wunpawng Ngingthoi and BRIDGE.—NLM
Myanmar, China hold talks on bilateral cooperation

NAY PYI TAW, 27 June—President U Thein Sein held talks on Friday in Nay Pyi Taw with Chinese Premier Xi Jinping on bilateral cooperation.

The two leaders also reaffirmed their commitment to the five principles of peaceful co-existence for both mutual and international relations, followed by the signing of memoranda of understanding on the establishment of cultural centres in both countries, establishment of cultural heritage, and a feasibility study on the Yangon General Hospital.

China promised assistance to agricultural growth in Myanmar, the implementation of the Kyaikpyu Special Economic Zone, rural development, cooperation in legal sectors and promotion of relations between ASEAN and China, regional security and stability, and cultural cooperation.

Accusations of bribery need firm evidence: Deputy Minister

NAY PYI TAW, 27 June—Authorities are not taking bribes to cover up drug trafficking, gambling, illegal karaoke lounges and illegal massage parlors, Deputy Minister for Home Affairs Brig-Gen Kyaw Zan Myint claimed in the Lower House on Friday.

The deputy minister said Myanmar Police Force is trying to expose drug trafficking, gambling, illegal karaoke lounges and illegal massage parlors in townships in cooperation with local authorities and partner organizations in accordance with the law and departmental rules and regulations.

If complaints are received with firm evidence, authorities will take action against those who turn a blind eye on such illegal activities after accepting a payoff for them, he continued.

Another topic discussed in Friday’s Lower House session focused on conservation of mangrove forests and coral reefs.

At the Upper House session on Friday, Deputy Minister for Health Dr Than Aung explained how the government is supervising the drinking water production industry.

WASHINGTON, 27 June — A giant US-led naval exercise began off Hawaii on Thursday with China joining its Asia-Pacific rivals for the first time, but analysts doubted the drills would ease tensions over Chinese maritime claims and some said Beijing could use them to strengthen its navy.

Washington and its allies hope China’s participation in the five-week Rim of the Pacific (RIMPAC) exercises, involving 55 vessels, more than 200 aircraft and some 25,000 personnel from 22 countries, will build trust and help avert misunderstandings on the high seas that could escalate into crisis. But analysts say the maneuvers may only help Beijing strengthen its growing naval capability by observing the forces of the United States and its allies.

Twenty-three nations had been expected to participate in RIMPAC this year. But Thailand will not take part, the Pentagon said on Thursday. Thailand is a long-time US treaty ally, but Washington has suspended some cooperation projects with the country since its 22 May military coup.

China has sent four ships for its debut at RIMPAC, which runs until 1 August. The Chinese ships are the missile destroyers Haikou, the missile frigate Yueyang, the supply ship Quandao and the hospital ship Peace Ark. Chinese forces include two helicopters, a commando unit and a diving unit, a total 1,100 personnel.

The Haikou has a sophisticated battle-management system similar to the Aegis system used on many US warships, which uses integrated radar and computer systems to track and destroy targets.

The Chinese ships rendezvoused off the US Pacific island of Guam with warships from the four countries conducting the drills involving maneuvering, communications and live weapons fire while en route to Pearl Harbour, where they arrived on Tuesday.

US Navy chief Admiral Jonathan Greenert said last year RIMPAC allowed participating forces to practice high-end ballistic missile defence, surface and submarine warfare simulations and live-fire missile and torpedo exercises.

“This year’s exercises will include “cross-decking,” where liaison officers from one country will be aboard the ship of another,” Reuters reported.

JAKARTA, 27 June — Joko Widodo has a nine percentage point lead over ex-general Prabowo Subianto with less than two weeks before Indonesia’s 9 July presidential election, according to the latest opinion poll published on Friday.

In a survey of 790 voters between 5-24 June, the state-funded Indonesian Institute of Science found 43 percent support for Jokowi, 34 percent for Prabowo, with 23 percent undecided.

All of Indonesia’s polls show Jokowi leading Prabowo but the gap between the twowas narrowing.

BEIJING, 27 June — Japanese transport minister Akihiro Ota met with Chinese Vice Premier Liu Yandong on Friday to discuss bilateral relations that have been badly damaged over territorial and historical issues.

It is the first time a Japanese minister has visited Beijing since Prime Minister Shinzo Abe’s government was formed in Tokyo in December 2012.

Ota’s meeting with Liu at the Great Hall of the People comes as China has started softening somewhat its stance toward Japan in recent months, saying it is open to promoting exchanges with Japanese political parties, companies and local government officials.

Still, China has not toned down the harsh rhetoric from its Chinese leader against Abe and has told various Japanese delegations to Beijing since this spring that the cause of heightened tensions between the two countries boils down to Abe’s hawkish political stance.

Ota is a former leader of New Komeito, the junior coalition partner of Abe’s Liberal Democratic Party. Japan has historically maintained close ties with the LDP’s junior partner, which is backed by the main opposition party’s Buddhist organization Soka Gakkai, as it has pursued dovish foreign and security policies.

Its former leader, the late Kaoru Yosano, once said Xing Ping met with New Komeito’s leader Natsuo Yamaguchi in January 2013.

During his visit through Saturday, Ota is also to meet with Chinese officials, including the head of the National Tourism Administration Shao Qwei, and former Chinese State Councillor Tang Jiaxuan, according to Japanese officials.—Kyodo News

Malaysia to announce details of contracted assets for search for missing plane

NEW DELHI, 27 June — More than a dozen people were killed Friday after a blast at a gas pipeline operated by state-owned energy company GAIL (India) Ltd (GAIL.NS) in Andhra Pradesh, the company said. “As per the information received from the GAIL official at the site there are 13-14 casualties,” a GAIL spokesperson said.

The victims were local residents and a fire at the scene had been brought under control. The 18-inch diameter pipeline supplies gas to a power plant operated by Lanco Infratech Ltd. (LAIN.NS).

Prime Minister Narendra Modi asked the federal oil ministry and GAIL chairman to ensure immediate relief at the scene, according to a statement issued by his office.

The state government has ordered an inquiry and will set an action plan to avoid similar accidents in future, Chief Minister N Chandrababu Naidu said in a tweet.

Initial reports suggested that the blast had affected an oil refinery operated by state-controlled oil company ONGC (ONGCN.SI), but the refinery is located some 50 km away and is not connected to the gas pipeline.—Reuters

KUALA LUMPUR, 27 June — Malaysian Defence Minister Hishammuddin Hussein said on Friday in a statement that the details of the contracted assets that would be deployed as Malaysian Government Furnished Equipment for the various stages of the search for the missing MH370 flight would be announced soon. He said the deployment of the assets would cover both the bathymetric survey and the search of the sea floor, which would include assets with specific capabilities such as the Multi-Beam Echo Sounder and the Prosas Towed Side Scan Sonar to join the search efforts in the coming months.

Hishammuddin said Rahim Bakri, chair of the Asset Deployment Committee, led a delegation to Australia recently.

“The delegation met with their Australian counterparts to discuss and coordinate the arrangements for Malaysia’s participation in this phase of the search operation,” he added.

The minister added that Hamzah Zainudin, chairman of the Next of Kin Committee, would be leading a delegation of all four Chairs of the Ministerial Sub-Committees and other senior officials to China on Friday in a bid to update the Chinese side on the “latest efforts at the Tripartite level and Malaysia’s contribution.” He reaffirmed Malaysia’s commitment to continue the search for the missing plane.

Australia announced Thursday a new area for the search of the missing aircraft. The new area, covering about 60,000 square kilometres, would be to the south of the area previously searched, according to Australian Deputy Prime Minister Warren Truss.

China and the United States have a vast array of joint interests, certainly there do exist disagreements," he said, pointing to people in Washington who seek to exaggerate the military threat of China.

Ukraine warns on ceasefire as rebels agree to fresh peace talks

Kiev, 27 June —

Ukrainian separatists agreed on Thursday to resume peace talks to end the conflict in the east, but President Petro Poroshenko warned he might not extend a ceasefire beyond Friday night if their gesture was aimed only at buying time. The move by the pro-Russian rebels, who have been fighting government forces since April, came after German Chancellor Angela Merkel spoke to Russian President Vladimir Putin for the second time in two days to discuss how to end the crisis.

In Berlin, a government source said the aim of the phone call, which Moscow said took place at Merkel’s initiative, was to find a way of prolonging Kiev’s ceasefire, which is due to expire at 10 pm (8:00 pm BST) on Friday. More than 420 people, including Ukrainian servicemen, rebels and civilians, are estimated to have been killed in the fighting, the United Nations said in a statement dated 24 June.

Poroshenko said he had heard of the rebels’ readiness to hold a second meeting on Friday with the so-called “contact group” which includes former Ukrainian President Leonid Kuchma, Moscow’s envoy to Kiev and a high-ranking official from the OSCE security and rights watchdog. But, despite Western pressure on him, Poroshenko hinted heavily that there might be no extension of the ceasefire unless Kiev was satisfied with the results of group talks.

“(Friday) is a very important day: if our conditions for the peace plan are not accepted, then we will make a very important decision,” online newspaper Ukrainskaya Pravda quoted him as telling the Council of Europe in Strasbourg, France. Poroshenko, installed as president only on 7 June and under pressure from his electorate not to bow to the separatists, has warned that government forces would switch to a “detailed Plan B” — widely assumed to be a government offensive — if the rebels use the ceasefire to rest and regroup.

On Tuesday, the latter collapsed, with angry slogans against the president and the independent election commission. The march was otherwise largely peaceful and well co-ordinated by its organizers. Water was distributed to protesters and organizers formed a protective cordon around sensitive locations like the Serena Hotel, where many top Afghan and foreign officials stay.

The inconclusive election has left Afghanistan in limbo at a dangerous time, with the Taleban insurgency still raging, and a most NATO-led forces preparing to leave the country by the end of the year. An agreement with Washington to allow a small US military presence to stay on remains unsigned, as Karzai had wanted to leave it to his successor.

Russia insists on snap drill to enhance combat readiness

Moscow, 27 June —

Russia is going to carry out more snap military drills in order to keep the armed forces on constant alert, enhance combat readiness and maintain reliability of national defence, Russian President Vladimir Putin said on Thursday. The armed forces are required to fully match modern requirements of the 21st century, Putin said at a meeting with graduates of military institutions. He stressed that only mobile and highly-efficient military forces could guarantee Russia’s security, sovereignty and national interests.

The president encouraged the graduates to secure social stability and order with allegiance, fight terrorism and extremism with perseverance, as well as to counter crime and corruption.

Russia has been increasing its military activities in recent weeks. In June, drills were carried out in Kalingrad region confronting NATO military exercises. Snap drills in the southern Urals began last Friday, while Putin ordered the troops of Central military district on full combat readiness for a snap check only one day later. Besides, military drills were ongoing at Chebarkulsky airfield in east Moscow on Monday.

As many as 30 people injured in Houston building collapse

Houston, 27 June —

As many as 30 people may have been injured after a garage apartment structure collapsed in the US city of Houston on Thursday, according to local media outlets.

The collapse happened early Thursday afternoon at a residential neighbourhood in west Houston, media reports said. A gathering of some kind was taking place when the structural collapse occurred. Local media Khou said it was the second floor of the garage apartment that collapsed.

Local TV KTRK, quoting sources with Houston fire department, said dozens were injured and at least 30 have been sent to hospitals. The severity of their injuries is unknown. TV footage showed several people being treated in front of the home’s garage, which had a tent set up at the door. A few patients were loaded onto stretchers and taken to the hospital by ambulance. It’s not immediately known how many people were possibly trapped or what led to the collapse. Emergency crews were at the scene rescuing victims.

The collapse is the second in Houston in two days.

Thousands march on Afghan president’s palace to protest elections

Kabul, 27 June —

Thousands of angry protesters marched on the Afghan president’s palace on Friday in support of candidate Abdullah Abdullah’s allegations that mass fraud had been committed during the presidential election by organizers and state officials.

The run-off pitting the former and the current president is Abdullah Abdullah,” said the largest group. “Our beloved president is Abdullah Abdullah,” shouted many supporters, along with additional cries blaming the incumbent, President Hamid Karzai, for the political stand-off.

Karzai was constitutionally barred from running for third time. Abdullah has accused Karzai of being president only on 7 June, and under pressure from his electorate not to bow to the separatists, has warned that government forces would switch to a “detailed Plan B” — widely assumed to be a government offensive — if the rebels use the ceasefire to rest and regroup.

As many as 30 people may have been injured after a garage apartment structure collapsed in the US city of Houston on Thursday, according to local media outlets.

The collapse happened early Thursday afternoon at a residential neighbourhood in west Houston, media reports said. A gathering of some kind was taking place when the structural collapse occurred. Local media Khou said it was the second floor of the garage apartment that collapsed.

Local TV KTRK, quoting sources with Houston fire department, said dozens were injured and at least 30 have been sent to hospitals. The severity of their injuries is unknown. TV footage showed several people being treated in front of the home’s garage, which had a tent set up at the door. A few patients were loaded onto stretchers and taken to the hospital by ambulance. It’s not immediately known how many people were possibly trapped or what led to the collapse. Emergency crews were at the scene rescuing victims.

The collapse is the second in Houston in two days.

Russia insists on snap drill to enhance combat readiness

Moscow, 27 June —

Russia is going to carry out more snap military drills in order to keep the armed forces on constant alert, enhance combat readiness and maintain reliability of national defence, Russian President Vladimir Putin said on Thursday. The armed forces are required to fully match modern requirements of the 21st century, Putin said at a meeting with graduates of military institutions. He stressed that only mobile and highly-efficient military forces could guarantee Russia’s security, sovereignty and national interests.

The president encouraged the graduates to secure social stability and order with allegiance, fight terrorism and extremism with perseverance, as well as to counter crime and corruption.

Russia has been increasing its military activities in recent weeks. In June, drills were carried out in Kalingrad region confronting NATO military exercises. Snap drills in the southern Urals began last Friday, while Putin ordered the troops of Central military district on full combat readiness for a snap check only one day later. Besides, military drills were ongoing at Chebarkulsky airfield in east Moscow on Monday.

World powers plan strategy to rescue Iran nuclear deal

WASHINGTON, 27 June — Senior diplomats from six world powers met in Brussels on Thursday to search for ways to resuscitate negotiations with Iran over its contested nuclear programme, with less than four weeks left until a late-July deadline to strike an accord.

Western officials have said very little progress has been made after five rounds of talks since February towards striking a deal that could end years of hostility and defuse the risk of a new war and a nuclear arms race in the Middle East.

Iran, for its part, accused the powers — the United States, Russia, China, France, Britain and Germany — over the latest round of talks ended on 20 June of making "excessive demands" and torpedoing chances of a historic deal.

In the coming weeks, the sides will have to decide how far they are willing to go, if at all, to compromise on major sticking points such as the extent of uranium enrichment capacity Iran would be allowed to keep under any deal and the future of its atomic sites.

For the six powers, the overarching goal is to extend the time Iran would need to assemble an atom bomb, if it chose to do so, and to achieve this, they want it to cut down the number of uranium centrifuges in operation.

Iran denies seeking nuclear weapons and wants to construct more of the machines, which spin at supersonic speed to increase the ratio of the fissile isotope in uranium, to meet its stated goal of energy production.

Both sides have said publicly their goal is to have a deal by 20 July and avoid a difficult extension of an interim accord which expires then and grants Iran modest relief from crippling economic sanctions relief, the timeframe of the deal and the extent of monitoring in Iran by the United Nations' nuclear watchdog.

Diplomats have said there is little clear agreement on many of the main issues but some have cited the length of a future deal which can run for years — as one of those easier to solve.

US drone strikes risk ‘slippery slope’ to endless war, panel says

WASHINGTON, 27 June — The Obama administration’s reliance on drone strikes abroad threatens to create a “slippery slope” toward endless war and sets a dangerous precedent that other countries could follow, former senior US officials said in a report on Thursday.

The report acknowledged that the armed unmanned aircraft are a useful tool in the US counter terrorism arsenal and are “here to stay,” but it called on President Barack Obama to allow increased public scrutiny and tighter oversight for the secretive program while developing international norms.

“We are concerned that the administration’s heavy reliance on targeted killings as a pillar of US counter terrorism strategy rests on questionable assumptions and risks increasing instability and escalating conflicts,” said the independent panel, which was sponsored by the Stimson Centre think tank. The report by the 10-member task force, including former high-ranking State Department and Pentagon officials, comes as the United States considers drone strikes in support of beleaguered Iraqi government forces fighting Sunni insurgents who have taken over a large swathe of northern Iraq. It concluded that “while tactical strikes may have helped keep the homeland free of major terrorist attacks,” this has come at a cost of “blowback” for Washington in places like Pakistan and Yemen.

The former officials warned that, given the low-risk, low-cost nature of drone technology, “the increasing use of lethal UAVs (unmanned aerial vehicles) may create a slippery slope leading to continual or wider wars.” US drone use “outside of hot battlefields is likely to be imitated by other states as well,” the report said, citing the risk of widening conflicts around the world because of the “dangerous precedent” set by Washington.

Israel names two Hamas militants as key suspects in kidnappings

ISRAEL, 27 June — Israel on Thursday named two Hamas Islamists as leading suspects in the 12 June kidnappings of three Israeli teenagers, in the most concrete report yet of results after weeks of searches in the occupied West Bank.

An Israeli military spokeswoman confirmed reports that troops were seeking Marwan Kawasme and Amar Abu Aysha, militants in their 30s from the Hebron area, both of whom have served time in Israeli prisons in the past.

Israel’s Shin Bet Security Agency said in a statement both men had been wanted and at large since the kidnappings, adding that several other Palestinians suspected of involvement in the abductions were being questioned.

Kawasme once served a 10-month prison term and trained for military action in the Hebron area, in addition to being involved with Hamas recruitment efforts there, the officials said.

Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu said the suspects were only part of the group behind the kidnappings and reiterated his call on Palestinian President Mahmoud Abbas to abrogate a unity pact with Hamas, a group that holds power in the Gaza Strip and calls for Israel’s destruction.

A new round of talks starts on 2 July and will continue until at least 15 July. Other than Iran’s enrichment capacity, other issues that will need to be part of the final deal are the schedule of sanctions relief, the timeframe of the deal and the extent of monitoring in Iran by the United Nations’ nuclear watchdog.

Ignorance is not always bliss

By Kyaw Thura

U nity is strength, which is an often-quoted saying, especially when there looms a climate of disintegration or distrust. It is, however, ironic that people have been accustomed to turning a deaf ear to this saying. At a time when everything has gone global, the idea of political, racial and religious segregation is more of a hindrance than a help to a young democracy like Myanmar, which has recently crawled out of the cave of military rule.

As an old saying that goes “No man is an island”, it is no longer fashionable to place higher priority on egoism. Instead, it is time to learn to accept the reality that we are now living in a multicultural society. History shows that failure to promote political, racial and religious tolerance and unity in diversity leads communities to conflict and war. Patriotism is one thing, internationalism is quite another.

Variety is the spice of life, as a saying goes. True to this saying, diversity in itself is a beauty. Bearing this in mind, all Myanmar citizens, no matter what parties they support, no matter what race they are born into, no matter what religion they practise, are responsible for the welfare of the country.

Now is the time for all people of the country, regardless of race and religion, to come to their sense that the situation in Myanmar is now calling for greater national unity than ever before. Let bygones be bygones, for anyone who entertains malice, grudge and suspicion is sure to end up in failure sooner or later.

Although it is never too late to leave differences behind and forget about the past, it is important to remember that the sooner, the better. All things considered, ignorance is not always bliss.

Thaphanaing Bridge ready to be commissioned into service in Kalay

Kalay, 27 June—Thaphanaing reinforced a concrete bridge built on the rural road to Thaphanaing Village of Kalay Township of Sagaing Region, as construction that began on 1 April has almost been completed.

The bridge is 30 feet long and 18 feet wide, funded with K45.49 million by the Progress of Border Areas and National Races Department in the 2013-14 fiscal year. Kalay Township Development Supportive Committee took the responsibility for construction of the bridge, said an official.

Pydaungsu Hluttaw MP U Tin Hlaing, Amyotha Hluttaw MP U Thein Hlaing and officials inspected progress of the bridge on 24 June.

Thanks to the bridge, rural people from Kyaung-Taik Village and those from urban areas can travel to other areas passing the bridge when floods hit the township in the rainy season.

Veterinarians support pig breeders in Taikkyi Tsp

Taikkyi, 27 June—A meeting on methods of pig breeding and diseases was held at the hall of the ward administrator in Okkan of Taikkyi Township in Yangon Region on Wednesday.

Head of District Livestock Breeding and Veterinary Department Dr Kyaw Thu explained that due to media reports on infection with “blue pit ear disease” in Taikkyi, breeders sold some pigs to avoid a spread of the disease at their farms. Lab tests are needed to detect the infection, with officials saying they would announce it if there was a local outbreak.

Breeders have been urged to ask for help from veterinarians to receive medical care for their animals and told to bury dead pigs. Local authorities, political parties and breeding entrepreneurs are to cooperate with the department to combat any outbreaks, the official said.

The Chairman of Township Livestock Breeding Entrepreneurs Association U Tun Hlaing urged breeders to inject hog cholera vaccine to pigs and spray their farms to ensure no diseases will occur.

According to the test result from Insein pathological lab, the porcine circovirus type II (PEV-2) disease are infectious and have left some pigs in Taikkyi Township dead.

African leaders ’ summit urges action on rising militant threat

Baghdad, 27 June — Iraqi helicopters fired on a university campus in Tikrit on Friday to dislodge insurgents who overran the city in an onslaught that has given them control of most major Sunni regions and brought them close to Baghdad.

Tikrit, the hometown of former dictator Saddam Hussein, fell a fortnight ago to Sunnis led by fighters from the Islamic State in Iraq and the Levant (ISIL), which split from al-Qaeda.

A rights group said analysis of photographs and satellite imagery “strongly indicate” that ISIL staged mass executions in Tikrit after seizing it on 11 June early in their offensive.

ISIL killed as many as 190 men in at least two locations over three days, Human Rights Watch said. Numbers may be much higher but the difficulty of locating bodies and getting to the area had prevented a full investigation, it added.

Iraqi forces launched an airborne assault on Tikrit on Thursday, deploying commandos into a stadium in helicopters, at least one of which crashed after coming under fire from insurgents.

“My family and I left early this morning. We could hear gunfire and helicopters are striking the area,” said Farhan Ibrahim Tamimi, a professor at the university who fled Tikrit for a nearby town.

Iraq’s million-strong army, trained and equipped by the United States, largely evaporated in the north after the Sunni Muslim fighters led by ISIL launched their assault with the capture of the north’s biggest city Mosul on 10 June.

ISIL emerged after Abu Bakr al-Baghda di, the leader a group then called the Islamic State in Iraq, defied the al-Qaeda leadership by moving into neighboring Syria more than a year ago to join the civil war against President Bashar al-Assad.

The group is now fighting in both Iraq and Syria, seeking to erase the frontiers and create an Islamic caliphate stretching from the Mediterranean Sea to Iraq.

In Washington, President Barack Obama asked the U.S. Congress on Thursday to approve $500 million to train and equip moderate Syrian rebels, who have been largely upstaged by the more effective ISIL forces.

In Mali, he urged the government to immediately open talks with separatist rebels in the north, after clashes last month threatened to plunge the West African nation back into chaos. An Islamist takeover of northern Mali in early 2012 led to an intervention by French military forces who repelled the al-Qaeda-affiliated insurgents — a painful reminder to African leaders of their failure to implement their Standby Force. Benghazi suspect expected to arrive in US this weekend

WASHINGTON, 27 June — A suspected leader of the 2012 attack on the US compound in Benghazi, captured by US forces and spirited out of Libya, is expected to arrive in the United States this weekend after his journey at sea, US officials told Reuters on Thursday.

Libyan militant Ahmed Abu Khatallah was taken aboard the USS New York, an amphibious transport ship, after his seizure in a raid on the outskirts of Benghazi on 15 June. He is expected to be prosecuted in the US criminal justice system. Two US officials told Reuters that Khatallah was due back in the United States in a couple of days. A third specified it would be this weekend.

No further details on Khatallah were immediately available. US Ambassador Christopher Stevens and three other Americans died in the Benghazi attack. Khatallah is charged with killing a person on US property, a firearms violation and providing material support to terrorism. The charges were filed in July 2013 but kept under a court seal until last week. The US Justice Department filed the charges against Khatallah in US District Court in Washington, DC, a venue that prosecutors have only rarely used for criminal cases involving those suspected of terrorism.— Reuters

Iraq helicopters fire on university campus in insurgent-held city

Malabo, 27 June — African leaders called on Thursday for firm action against a rising Islamist militant threat stretching across the continent from Kenya to Mali and pledged to furnish the tools for Africa to police its own conflicts.

Violence cast a shadow over the opening of the two-day summit of the 54-nation African Union (AU) as Nigerian President Goodluck Jonathan rushed home to deal with the aftermath of a bombing in the capital Abuja on Wednesday.

At least 21 people died in the attack by suspected Boko Haram militants.

“The continent faces an increasing challenge in trans-border threats, with terrorism at the forefront,” newly elected President Abdel Fattah al-Sisi of Egypt told the opening ceremony in the Equatorial Guinea capital Malabo.

“We need to strengthen our cooperation and align our national policies to effectively counter this,” Sisi pledged Egypt would play an active role in peacekeeping across the continent. The former army chief was marking Egypt’s return to the continental bloc after elections meant to turn the page on his ousting of an elected Islamist president.

The African Union is seeking to put in place an African Standby Force (ASF) to deal with regional crises.

A senior AU official said on Wednesday progress had been made toward having the force, which is made up of five brigades from the different blocs after elections meant to bring them close to operational by the end of 2015.

The force has been under discussion for more than a decade but its establishment has been hampered by concerns over its command structure and funding.

AU Chairperson Nkosazana Dlamini-Zuma said armed Islamist groups from Boko Haram in Nigeria to al Shabaab in Kenya and Somalia were a menace to the entire continent. She urged the bloc’s Peace and Security Council to study new ways of countering it.

A final statement from the summit on Friday is expected to make a commitment to strengthening Africa’s security institutions, as well as commitments to promote sustainable agriculture on the continent.

UN Secretary General Ban Ki-moon, addressing the opening ceremony, said the United Nations would work closely with the AU’s strengthened security apparatus. He called for an end to violence in Central African Republic and South Sudan.

In Mali, he urged the government to immediately open talks with separatist rebels in the north, after clashes last month threatened to plunge the West African nation back into chaos. One in 10 deaths among US adults due to excessive drinking: study

WASHINGTON, 27 June — Excessive drinking accounted for one in 10 deaths among working-age adults aged 20 to 64 years in the United States and cost the country about 224 billion US dollars per year, a report from the US Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) said on Thursday.

The study published in the journal Preventing Chronic Disease found that excessive alcohol use resulted in approximately 88,000 deaths in the United States per year from 2006 to 2010, and shortened the lives of those who died by about 30 years on average.

“These deaths were due to health effects from drinking too much over time, such as breast cancer, liver disease, and heart disease; and health effects from drinking too much in a short period of time, such as violence, alcohol poisoning, and motor vehicle crashes,” the CDC said in a statement.

“In total, there were 2.5 million years of potential life lost each year due to excessive alcohol use,” it said.

Nearly 70 percent of deaths due to excessive drinking involved working-age adults, and about 70 percent of the deaths involved males, the study said.

According to the CDC report, excessive drinking includes binge drinking, heavy drinking and any alcohol use by pregnant women or those under the minimum legal drinking age of 21.

Binge drinking is defined as four or more drinks on an occasion for women and five or more drinks on an occasion for men, while heavy drinking is eight or more drinks a week for women and 15 or more drinks a week for men.

The cost of excessive drinking in the United States reached 224 billion dollars, or 1.90 dollars per drink, in 2006, the report said.

Most of these costs were due to lost productivity, including reduced earnings among excessive drinkers as well as deaths due to excessive drinking among working-age adults, it added.

“It’s shocking to see the public health impact of excessive drinking on working-age adults,” said Robert Brewer, head of CDC’s Alcohol Programme and one of the report’s authors.

The US Preventive Services Task Force, an independent panel of experts advising the US government, recommends several strategies to reduce excessive drinking, including increasing alcohol taxes, regulating alcohol outlet density, and avoiding further privatization of alcohol retail sales. — Xinhua

India’s Ranbaxy gains; US drug regulator approves generic version of Novartis drug

MUMBAI, 27 June — India’s Ranbaxy Laboratories rose 5.8 percent in early trading after the US Food and Drug Administration said on Thursday it had approved the company’s generic version of Novartis AG’s blood pressure drug Diovan.

Investors say current market size of Diovan in the United States is $1.7 billion and Ranbaxy can generate revenue of over $200 million from generic Diovan sales as it enjoys 180 days exclusivity for the same.

Also, Sun Pharmaceutical Industries Ltd, which in April agreed to buy Ranbaxy, rose 2.5 percent as well on hopes that drugs such as Diovan and Nexium would reduce its effective cost of acquiring Ranbaxy.

Sun Pharma on 7 April agreed to buy Ranbaxy in an all-share deal, betting it can fix the factory quality glitches that plagued Daiichi Sankyo Co and got Ranbaxy’s India-made drugs barred from the United States. — Reuters

Crude prices drop as Iraq worries ease

NEW YORK, 27 June — Oil prices fell on Thursday as markets for one in ten rest would not disrupt crude output.

Traders kept watch on Iraq. Despite the escalating violence, tensions in the market are fading on signs that crude production from the southern Iraq has not been disrupted.

US economic data came in mixed on Thursday. US jobless claims slipped last week while consumer spending increased less than expected in May.

In the week ending 21 June, the advance figure for seasonally adjusted initial claims for unemployment benefits was 312,000, a decrease of 2,000 from the previous week’s revised level, said the Labour Department.

Meanwhile, the four-week moving average, which helps smooth out week-to-week volatility, was 314,250, an increase of 2,000 from the previous week’s revised average, the department added.

US personal consumption expenditures increased 0.2 percent in May, while personal income rose 0.4 percent, the Commerce Department reported. Economists had expected 0.4 percent gains for both aspects.

Mitsubishi Motors to supply Attrage compact to Fiat Chrysler

TOKYO, 27 June — Mitsubishi Motors Corp is set to start supplying its Attrage compact passenger vehicle to European auto giant Fiat Chrysler Automobiles later this year, sources close to the matter said on Friday.

The companies are expected to announce the plan as early as next week. Mitsubishi is expected to provide Fiat Chrysler with its 1,200-cc Attrage manufactured at its plant in Thailand under the Chrysler brand, the sources said, adding that several thousand units are expected to be supplied annually.

While Fiat Chrysler aims to bolster its sales in the Asian market, Mitsubishi is likely to benefit from the effects of mass production at the plant, which has an annual production capacity of 500,000 units. Mitsubishi ended its capital alliance with then DaimlerChrysler in 2005 and now teams up with French carmaker PSA Peugeot Citroen and the Renault-Nissan alliance for product supply. — Kyodo News
British spymaster John Sawers, head of MI6, to step down

LONDON, 27 June — Britain’s foreign spymaster, who at times quoted Machiavelli and fought off demands to ease secrecy around his MI6 intelligence agency, will step down in November after five years, the Foreign Office said on Thursday.

John Sawers, an ex-career diplomat, became the first outsider to head the Secret Intelligence Service (SIS) in 41 years when he took over in November 2009 under then-prime minister Gordon Brown.

MI6, cast by novelists as the employer of some of the most memorable fictional spies from John le Carré’s George Smiley to Ian Fleming’s James Bond, operates overseas and is tasked with defending Britain and its interests.

“He has done an exceptional job,” the Foreign Office said of Sawers in a statement. “Sir John has spent 36 years in a range of jobs in public service, defending UK national interests and keeping our country safe.”

Sawers, who argued that al-Qaeda and its affiliates posed the biggest threat to Britain, is believed to have wanted to relinquish his sensitive role before a national election next year.

MI6 chiefs normally serve about five years.

Sawers is the only name in the SIS that is not secret.

His five-year watch coincided with a busy period in world affairs including the Arab Spring revolutions, the Syrian civil war, the spread of Islamist militancy in Africa and Russia’s annexation of Crimea.

But one of his toughest battles was at home: Sawers strongly resisted attempts by some politicians and journalists to lift some of the secrecy surrounding MI6, whose existence Britain only publicly admitted in 1994.

“Secrecy is not a dirty word. Secrecy is not there as a cover-up. Secrecy plays a crucial part in keeping Britain safe and secure,” Sawers said in 2010 when he gave the first ever public speech by a serving MI6 chief.

Charlie Edwards, an expert at the Royal United Services Institute in London, said Sawers was one of Britain’s most experienced and influential security professionals and that his departure was “a big loss.”

“His most important legacy I think was that he modernized the service, getting SIS much more tech-savvy in an effort to respond to current and future threats,” Edwards told Reuters.

“And crucially, given the current threat picture overseas, he was a genuine believer in joint working with the lights on, rather than collaboration paid huge dividends.”

When documents leaked by former US intelligence contractor Edward Snowden exposed the scale of Britain’s spying, Sawers warned that journalists were not well placed to handle such secrets that he said had been kept up by al-Qaeda. He and his colleague, MI5 director Andrew Parker, used their first ever joint public appearance last year to argue that the disclosures had damaged Britain’s national security.

South Africa’s largest union NUMSA says to strike from 1 July

JOHANNESBURG, 27 June — Almost a quarter of a million South African workers in sectors from engineering to communications will strike indefinitely from 1 July in pursuit of a pay claim, the latest of a series of stoppages that have damaged Africa’s most advanced economy.

South Africa’s largest union NUMSA, which represents metal workers and other mostly skilled employees, said on Thursday the strike over wage demands was inevitable. It is seeking wage hikes of 12 percent against an inflation rate of 6.6 percent.

Employers are offering 8 percent, NUMSA said. It has said companies that would be impacted include Bell Equipment and industrial group Dobryl.

South Africa is still reeling from a five-month strike in the platinum mining sector, which ended with a settlement this week.

The government, keen to prevent more damage, said it would talk to all sides in a bid to prevent the NUMSA action.

“We are going to support all the affected parties to make sure this strike doesn’t take place,” Communications Minister Faith Muthambi told reporters during a briefing in parliament.

Yet the government’s ability to influence NUMSA may be limited, as the union, once a political ally of the ruling African National Congress, refused to campaign for the party in elections this year because of disagreements over policy.

NUMSA, which has been having national talks with an employers’ group called the Metal and Engineering Bargaining Council, claims to be South Africa’s largest union with 340,000 members, representing mostly black and urban workers.

NUMSA also said its 11,000 members at power utility Eskom [ESCJ.UL] would be willing to risk a wildcard strike, separate from its other national action, but gave no timeframe for any potential stoppage.

Workers at Eskom are generally not allowed to strike by law because they are considered to provide essential services. A downing of tools there by NUMSA members could hamper the utility’s ability to keep the lights on, already a daily battle because of razor-thin margins between power supply and demand.

Labour unrest and frequent strike action have taken a toll on South Africa’s reputation with investors and on its economy, which contracted in the first quarter of the year largely because of the platinum strike.

Power outage strands thousands at Sydney Airport

SYDNEY, 27 June — A power outage at Sydney Airport on Friday shut down passenger processing facilities stranding thousands of people.

Passengers faced major delays after a power failure at 8.30 am shut down Terminal Two, which caters for domestic passengers on Virgin, Jetstar and Tiger Airways flights. International flights are not affected.

A spokesman for Sydney Airport said the power interruption affected both check-in and screening and has caused processing delays.

“Sydney Airport has identified an issue with a substation, which caused the power interruption and affected back-up power sources,” a spokesman said in a media statement.

“We are working to restore power as quickly as possible. We apologise for the inconvenience and will provide further updates as information becomes available.” — Xinhau

Nets to catch suicide jumpers may be placed beneath iconic Golden Gate Bridge

SAN FRANCISCO, 27 June — San Francisco’s Golden Gate Bridge may soon be less of a magnet for people trying to commit suicide, as regional officials consider a plan to install mesh barriers beneath the historic orange span to catch jumpers before they hit the water.

The plan to create suicide barriers on the bridge, where 1,600 people have leap to their deaths since the span opened in 1937, was a subject of controversy for decades, with opponents arguing that they would mar the structure’s beauty.

“His bridge is an iconic symbol of beauty and grace, and it should no longer be associated with suicide,” said Democratic state Senator Darrell Steinberg, who urged support for the plan. “It should no longer be associated with unthinkably death and tragedy.”

On Friday, the board of directors of the Golden Gate Bridge, Highway and Transportation District are set to vote on whether to accept state funding for the plan negotiated by Steinberg and San Francisco lawmakers. If the measure passes, work will begin on building the barriers, which were initially approved eight years ago.

“Beautiful, majestic, but a harbinger of death it will no longer be,” said mental health activist Kevin Hines, who said he survived a suicide attempt from the bridge.

Last year, 48 people jumped to their deaths from the span, which hovers high above San Francisco Bay and connects the city of San Francisco with suburban Marin County. The Golden Gate is the second-most popular bridge for suicide in the world, after China’s Nanjing Yangtze River Bridge, officials said.

The state funding, worth about $7 million, comes from tax enacted by voters on those who make more than $1 million per year that is earmarked for mental health services. The rest of the $76 million project will be paid for with federal funds that recently became available, and local money from the bridge district.

The final pieces of funding for the suicide barrier, something we know we’ve been needing for so many decades, is now complete,” said Democratic state Senator Mark Leno of San Francisco, who pushed the state to help fund the mesh barriers, or nets, after money initially expected from the federal government was delayed.

Australia set to become third largest cotton exporter
SYDNEY, 27 June — Australia is on track to be the world’s largest exporter of raw cotton in the world this year with forecasts of just under 1 million tonnes, according to a report released on Friday. The National Australia Bank (NAB) Agriculture Rural Commodities Wrap said in the report that a recovery in cotton prices was likely to have acted as an incentive to production, with prices above historical average levels and more favorable weather in the major growing areas. General manager of NAB Agribusiness, Khan Horne, said the Australian dollar was forecast to track lower to 84 US cents by the December quarter, which should provide further benefits to exporters.

“We hit record exports of cotton in 2012-13, so it’s not surprising the Australian Bureau of Agricultural and Resource Economics and Sciences (ABARES) is predicting an easing off of exports this year to just below 1 million tonnes,” Horne said. —Xinhua

Two dead, four missing in boat rollover in north China park
SHIJIAZHUANG, 27 June — Two people have been confirmed dead and four others went missing after their boat capsized in water of a wetland park in north China’s Hebei Province, local authorities said on Friday.

Police aided with professional water rescuers are still searching for the missing in Gongzhuz Lake Wetland Park in Quanxi County, Hebei.

The accident happened at around 7:30 pm on Thursday. All of the six passengers on the coast-guard vessel were wearing life jackets, according to rescuers.

Investigators said the park’s water sports has not been open to business. All of the six on board were friends of a manager of the Jin’E Yacht Company, which won the park’s water recreation business operation right through a public bidding.

Jennifer Aniston, Justin Theroux dismiss split rumours

London, 27 June — Hollywood actress Jennifer Aniston and fiancé Justin Theroux put an end to rumours of their split with their latest red carpet appearance. The couple gazed into each other’s eyes as Aniston, 45, stood by Theroux’s side at the premiere of the 42-year-old actor’s new series The Leftovers, reported Daily Mirror. The famous F.R.I.E.N.D.S star showed off her toned and petite figure in a cute black satin play suit, while her fiancé kept it simple in a dark suit. The pair, who fell in love while filming Wanderlust, remained away from paparazzi and red carpet events in the last few months. “Jen and Justin looked really sweet together. They were both absolutely beaming. During the event, Jen was being really social and looked extremely happy. They looked totally in love and seemed very relaxed,” a source said.

Phil Collins donates his Alamo collection to spot of its genesis

San Antonio, (Texas), 27 June — Grammy-award winning pop star Phil Collins said on Thursday his music wealth helped him satisfy a childhood fascination with the Alamo and he would donate his extensive collection of artefacts from the 1836 battle for a museum at the Texas shrine.

Collins, 63, said he became fascinated with the Alamo story when he was growing up in the 1950s watching the television series “Davy Crockett, King of the Wild Frontier” starring Fess Parker. The series chronicled the frontier legend of Crockett, who eventually died as one of the defenders of the Alamo. Collins went on to amass the largest known private collection of artifacts from the Texas Revolution and the Battle of the Alamo. “Some people would buy Ferraris, some people would buy houses, I bought old bits of metal and old bits of paper,” the former Genesis drummer and vocalist for hits including “Against All Odds” and “Another Day in Paradise” told reporters in front of the famed structure in San Antonio, Texas. Polanski wants to makes Dreyfus Affair film in Poland

Varšava, 27 June — Roman Polanski wants to shoot a movie in his native Poland about the 19th-century Dreyfus Affair if the director gets assurances that he will have no legal problems stemming from a 1977 sex crime conviction in the United States, associates said.

Polanski, 80, spent part of his childhood in the Polish city of Krakow, where he aims to film, until it was occupied by Nazi German forces. He escaped Krakow’s Jewish ghetto but his mother died in the nearby Auschwitz concentration camp.

After World War Two he returned to Krakow, and

Mallika Sherawat denies romance with Antonio Banderas, wants to be left alone

Mumbai, 27 June — Bollywood actress Mallika Sherawat is not pleased with her link-up with Hollywood actor Antonio Banderas. After being held responsible for his split from wife Melanie Griffith, the actress wants her personal life to be kept private.

Mallika, who entered the Indian film industry in 2003 with Khwahish, was recorded on video dancing with the Desperado star during a party in Cannes two years ago.

“I remember when they danced and they had a lot of PDA (Public Display of Affection),” Los Angeles stylist Ivan Bitton was quoted by radaronline.com as saying.

“He was saying ‘God you’re so beautiful’, like a horndog would talk to a prey,” he added.

After the report, the Murder actress tweeted on Thursday:

Neymar wins appeal for Playboy to withdraw magazine

SAO PAULO, 27 June — Brazil forward Neymar has won an appeal to have the local June edition of Playboy magazine, which claimed to feature his ex-girlfriend, removed from the stands.

A court in Sao Paulo state said in a decision on Wednesday that all copies of the magazine featuring model Patricia Jordeana as “The brunette who charmed Neymar” on the cover should be removed from circulation immediately.

The decision can be appealed, a court spokesman said in a decision on Thursday.

Neymar’s official fansite celebrated the court’s decision and said the publisher was “promoting a lie” about the soccer star while “also (using) his name without permission.” — Reuters

Conductor Seiji Ozawa takes the baton in Europe, 1st in 3 years

ROLLE, (Switzerland), 27 June — Japanese conductor Seiji Ozawa on Thursday took the baton for a group of young string players from the academy he founded in Rolle, Switzerland. The performance for local residents at the courtyard of an ancient castle on Lake Geneva was the first in around three years outside Japan for Ozawa, who has been in poor health. He last gave concerts in Europe in July 2011, also with musicians from the Seiji Ozawa International Academy. The world-renowned conductor did not appear to be in good condition, requiring rest in a separate room every 20 minutes for the practice session with around 25 performers. During the practice, however, he looked more vigorous than he was three years ago, occasionally stepping forward and swaying his entire body as if dancing while conducting. Admission was free for the concert at the castle with a view of the snow-capped French Alps across the lake. Ozawa conducted pieces by Bach and Bartok. The event also featured a local Alpine boys folk music choir and a children’s brass band. Towards the end of the event, Ozawa, standing by a singer in folk costume, urged the audience to sing along and drew loud applause.

World Cup over for Suarez after record ban for biting

RIO DE JANEIRO, 27 June — Uruguay’s Luis Suarez was hit with the longest ban imposed at a World Cup on Thursday as FIFA threw the book at one of soccer’s most talented but controversial players for biting an opponent.

The ban means the striker is unlikely to appear in friendly matches for his country until 2016.

“Suarez is totally distraught. He never thought the punishment would be so severe,” said Alejandro Balbi who is a member of the Uruguayan Football Association’s board and Suarez’s lawyer.

The four-month ban means Suarez will have to sit out the first two months of the next English season and he will miss Liverpool’s opening Premier League and Champions League matches.

“Such behaviour cannot be tolerated on any football pitch, and in particular not at a FIFA World Cup when the eyes of millions of people are on the stars on the pitch,” Claudio Sulser, chairman of FIFA’s Disciplinary Committee, said.

The 27-year-old striker left his Uruguay team mates shortly after FIFA’s announcement, depriving them of their most outstanding player two days before a do-or-die match against Colombia in the second round of the World Cup.

FIFA also fined Suarez 100,000 Swiss francs ($111,000) after 10 hours of deliberations by its disciplinary committee.

Uruguayan president Jose Mujica was due to meet one of his ministers to discuss possibly responding to the ruling, local media said. He summed up the indignation in the South American country where Suarez is considered a hero.

“We didn’t choose him to be a philosopher, or a mechanic, or to have good manners — he’s a great player,” Mujica said, speaking on Wednesday. “I didn’t see him bite anyone.”

Record ban

Although FIFA has banned many players for life and issued other lengthy playing suspensions, this is the record punishment imposed for wrongdoing at the World Cup, surpassing the eight-game ban handed to Italy’s Mauro Tassotti for breaking the nose of Spain’s Luis Enrique in 1994.

As well as the previous biting cases, Suarez was banned for a match at the 2010 World Cup for a deliberate handball that cost Ghana a match-winning goal in a quarter-final.

The latest incident occurred in the tense final minutes of Uruguay’s last Group D match against Italy, shortly before the South American champions scored to seal a 1-0 win and knock Italy out of the tournament.

Suarez clashed with Giorgio Chiellini and the defender pulled down his collar to show the mark on his shoulder to the referee, who took no action.
