Myanmar now closer to sustainable peace

Vice President attends ceremony to mark 69th Anniversary of United Nations Nations

Nay Pyi Taw, 24 Oct—Vice President Dr Sai Mauk Kham attended the ceremony to mark the 69th Anniversary of the United Nations held at the Myanmar International Convention Centre II in Nay Pyi Taw on Friday.

In his speech delivered at the ceremony, the vice president said that Myanmar joined the United Nations as the 58th member on 19 April 1948 and various challenges around the world must be overcome under the leadership of the UN.

Myanmar, being a country that appreciates peace, always supports nuclear-free world and the draft motion for nuclear-free world annually submitted to the UN by Myanmar, which shows Myanmar’s commitment for world peace and security, is also supported by most member countries, the vice president added.

Myanmar, while proudly serving as the rotating chair of the ASEAN, is exerting efforts to realize the development potentials of the regional organization whose cooperation contributes much to world peace, security, stability and sustainable development of mankind, the vice president pointed out, reiterating the commitment of the regional organization to promote cooperation with the UN in areas of mutual benefits.

As peace and stability is the fundamental requirement for political stability and socioeconomic development, Myanmar is now closer to sustainable peace as it is making efforts to develop a draft framework for political dialogues, which is a national cause and will be a historic milestone, after putting an end to the 60-year internal conflict, according to the vice president.

In conclusion, the vice president explained Myanmar’s efforts to meet (See page 3)

Myanmar to host ASEAN financial inclusion conference on 29-30 Oct in Yangon

By Ye Myint

YANGON, 24 Oct—Myanmar as the chair of the 18th ASEAN Finance Minister’s Meeting 2014, will host the ASEAN financial inclusion conference titled “Enhancing Access to Finance for Unbanked People in the ASEAN Region” at Sedona Hotel on 29-30 October.

The information was released at a media briefing hosted by officials of UN Capital Development Fund at UNDP Myanmar Office in Yangon on Friday.

The UNCDF officials told the local media that the conference is expected to see key stakeholders in the region including ASEAN finance ministers, policymakers, academics, practitioners and officials from UNDP, UNCDF, World Bank and Asian Development Bank join. They said that exchange of views, thoughts, experiences and best practices will take place during the two-day regional dialogue for ensuring financial access for the low-income people in the region.

The conference will focus on challenges of CLMV countries—Cambodia, Laos, Myanmar and Vietnam—in striving for having access to finance, officials continued.

According to the media briefing, two key papers will be presented during the conference. The first paper will be about how financial inclusion can help government policies and measures to ensure sustainable, equitable economic growth in ASEAN, reducing inequality and creating sustainability.

The second one that will be presented during the plenary session is about women’s economic empowerment in the role of finance. Moreover, there will be papers presented, numbering 13, by specialists during the four breakout sessions.

There will be three key outputs from the conference. The first one will be the presentation of draft outlines for Myanmar roadmap for financial inclusion conducted by UNDP and UNCDF for more than a year in the country and seeking the feedback of other ASEAN countries on it. The second one will be presentations and discussions to have (See page 2)

Additional budget allocations come under discussion at Pyidaungsu Hluttaw

While answering The GNLM’s question on benefit to Myanmar, which is making great strides for its people to escape poverty, what they will be able to obtain from this financial inclusion conference, Paul Luchtenburg, UNCDF programme specialist, said that this conference focuses on financial inclusion and the government wanted to bring the ASEAN members to focus on financial inclusion ensuring financial inclusion in the region and for the poorest people; and that this is the way that we can help the government to systematically reach the poorest people and bring up some of the key issues for some of other ASEAN countries, particularly Cambodia, Laos, Myanmar and Vietnam, to learn from each other.

UNCDF is the UN’s capital investment agency for the world’s 48 least developed countries. It creates new opportunities for poor people and their small businesses by increasing access to microfinance and investment capital.

UMFCCI schedules its vocational trainings to launch in November

By Khaing Thanda Lwin

YANGON, 24 Oct — The Republic of the Union of Myanmar Federation of Chambers of Commerce and Industry will launch its vocational trainings on 3 November, aiming to produce more skilled workers, entrepreneurs and innovators, an official said.

U Myint Zaw, a member of the central executive committee of the UMFCCI, said that the federation will conduct vocational training courses on environmental hygiene, solar technology, energy management, electronic instrument, commercial writing, and machine tools for maintenance.

All courses are designed to provide trainees with 30% of course-related knowledge plus 70% of practical operations. Interested applicants will be interviewed by the local experts, with classes limited to 20 students each.

The CEC member said that vocational trainings play an important role in promoting the country’s economic sector, adding that young people should try to become entrepreneurs as the country still has a few small and medium entrepreneurs.

He went on to say that the UMFCCI welcomes other vocational training organizers and pledged to give necessary recommendation to them so as to increase the number of skilled people in specific fields of business.

The federation invites enthusiasts with education levels of grade four and above to send their applications to the UMFCCI Office Tower.

Price of industrial zone manufactured vehicles rise in Mandalay

MANDALAY, 24 Oct—Prices of vehicles manufactured from industrial zones are hiking at Pyigyi Myetshin automobile market in Mandalay.

Automobile dealers controlled prices of vehicles manufactured from Mandalay, Monywa, Myingyan and Ayethaya industrial zones at K3.8 million in the early October but the prices rose to K4.5 million on 22 October due to fewer numbers of sellers.

As the Directorate of Road Administration allows the return of overage vehicles with the number of 2A/--- as of 6 October, the overage vehicle price reached K6.5 million depending on its conditions.

As of 1 January 2015, the directorate will not practise the system of levying tax with some exemption for the return of overage vehicles and import of new ones. So, entrepreneurs emphasize the return of industrial zone vehicles and import of new ones, said a automobile dealer.

Japan govt adopts bill to tighten regulations on false labelling

Tokyo, 24 Oct — The government on Friday worked out a bill aimed at strengthening regulations on false labelling on goods and services. The government will submit the bill to the Diet during its current session through on 30 November.

The bill, which will revise the 1962 law on unjustifiable premiums and misleading representations, sets penalties for those who violate the regulations by such acts as false labelling on foods and false representation of dating effects of foods. If the bill is enacted during the current parliamentary session, the revised law will come into force by the spring of 2016.

State Minister Haruko Arimura, who is in charge of consumers affairs and food safety, told the day’s news conference that there must be no false labelling that could mislead consumers in selecting goods and services. The bill also sets penalties for false labelling that misleads consumers to think that the goods or services concerned are better than actuality or offer advantages to consumers. Last year, many hotels and department stores admitted to false labelling on menus at their restaurants.

Under the bill, penalties will be set at 3 percent of the sales of the goods or services in question over the past three years. No penalties will be imposed if the three-year sales are less than 50 million yen. The penalties will be cut in half if the dealers voluntarily file reports on their misconduct.

Indonesia president submits new cabinet list for anti-graft review

Jakarta, 24 Oct — Indonesian President Joko Widodo submitted a revised list of cabinet ministers to the country’s anti-graft agency on Thursday, in the hope that his new ministerial team will be considered free of corruption.

Sworn in on Monday, Widodo took the unprecedented step of asking the Corruption Eradication Commission (KPK) to vet his cabinet picks to fulfil a campaign pledge for a clean government. He had to make last minute changes after eight candidates were rejected.

“We submitted (our cabinet list) again to KPK. Until now we are waiting for KPK’s recommendations,” he told reporters. “If KPK gives me this second (list), I will announce it immediately.”

Widodo declined to reveal the names of his cabinet, saying it would be announced as soon as possible.

The first Indonesian leader from outside the political or military elite has tried to steer clear of the traditional trading of cabinet posts for political support, aiming for a ministerial team dominated by professional technocrats.

In a last minute change, Widodo added one more cabinet post that will be a political appointee, presidential adviser Andi Wijajanto told reporters.

The cabinet will now be made up of 34 ministers, consisting of 18 technocrats and 16 from political parties in his coalition.

The former Jakarta governor plans to merge several ministries and introduce a coordinating ministry for maritime affairs.

All eyes are on Widodo’s choices for the main economic ministries. They will inherit problems ranging from a widening current account deficit and cooling investment to the slowest growth since 2009.

He has promised that top ministerial positions, including finance, energy and state-owned enterprises, would be filled by technocrats.

Widodo’s ministerial choices by law must first be submitted to the head of parliament before an announcement can be made, Wijajanto said.

Time to end Occupy Central movement: Tung Chee-hwa

Hong Kong, 24 Oct — The Occupy Central movement will tear Hong Kong’s community apart and affect the city’s economy and livelihood severely, Hong Kong’s former Chief Executive Tung Chee-hwa said here on Friday, calling on protesters to end the occupation.

Tung, who is also the vice-chairman of Chinese People’s Political Consultative Conference, made the remarks at a press conference held in the former chief executive’s official mansion.

Tung expressed concern over the harm caused by the nearly month-long protests over the political reforms.

“The occupation is approaching one month and now it’s the time to end it,” he said. Tung also expressed worries that the civil disobedience movement was “a little bit out of control.” “In civilized societies, conflicts are resolved through dialogue, not in streets. Students should not use the occupation as bargaining chips for negotiation with the government,” Tung said.

He also stressed that the idea of civil nomination, which violates the Basic Law and the decision made by the Standing Committee of the National People’s Congress of China, cannot be carried out.

Two Nobel physicists among year’s seven Order of Culture winners

Tokyo, 24 Oct — The government said on Friday it has chosen Nobel physics prize laureates Shuji Nakamura and Hiroshi Amano and five others as this year’s winners of Japan’s top cultural award, the Order of Culture.

Nakamura, 60, and Amano, 54, won this year’s Nobel Prize in Physics along with Isamu Akasaki, 85, who received the Order of Culture in 2011, for their development of energy-efficient blue light-emitting diodes, or blue LEDs.

Among the other five is Takemoto Sumitayu, 89, who has contributed to the development and diffusion of ningyo joruri bunraku, Japan’s traditional puppet theater.

The seven will receive the award on the 3 November Culture Day national holiday at the Imperial Palace in the presence of Emperor Akihito.

The government has also chosen comic artist Tetsuya Chiba, 75, and 16 others as this year’s Persons of Cultural Merit to be honored on 4 November at a Tokyo hotel. —Kyodo News

EU leaders agree on deal to cut emissions, expand renewable energy

Sunday, 25 October, 2014

Brussels, 24 Oct — European Union leaders agreed on Thursday to cut their greenhouse gas emissions by 40 percent from 1990 levels by 2030, European Council President Herman Van Rompuy said following the accord at a summit in Brussels.

The decision is part of global efforts to create a post-2020 framework for tackling climate change prior to the Conference of the Parties to the UN-Framework on Climate Change, or COP21, to be held in Paris late next year.

At a Press conference following the agreement’s conclusion in the early hours of Friday, European Commission President Jose Manuel Barroso said Europe is now in a position to guide international negotiations on the issue.

The deal calls for at least 27 percent of the European Union’s energy to come from renewable sources by 2030, and for energy efficiency to improve by at least 27 percent compared to estimates set in 2007.

Some elements of the agreement are up to individual member nations to enforce, however, and Poland has expressed opposition to the targets, citing the high cost of reducing its dependence on fossil fuels for power generation.

Reflecting this, the agreement provides for the establishment of a mechanism to assist members in meeting their emissions trading scheme quotas.

The energy efficiency target was reduced from the originally proposed 30 percent after the opposition from some members including Britain.

Under previous medium-term targets, European Union members had pledged to reduce greenhouse gas emissions by 20 percent from 1990’s levels, have at least 20 percent of energy generated from renewable sources, and improve energy efficiency by at least 20 percent.

Food for Europe forum: Export products, not raw materials

Subotica, (Serbia), 24 Oct — Serbia has to create products that will find their place on shop shelves around Europe instead of producing raw materials for foreign food industries, participants of the two-day agricultural forum entitled Food for Europe stated.

This is the only way to increase the value of agricultural production from the current EUR 2.6 billion to EUR 9 billion in the next five years, or EUR 30 billion in the next ten years, forum participants concluded.

The expert meeting ended in Subotica, northern Serbian province of Voivodina, on Thursday and it was organized by the Economics Institute in cooperation with the Association of Agricultural Economists of Serbia.

Director General of the Economics Institute Dragan Sagovnovic recalled that Serbia adopted the Strategy of agricultural and rural development for the period from 2014 to 2024 and underscored that experts from the area need to be included in its realization.

The government cannot be expected to solve all the problems in Serbia’s agriculture on its own, and relevant national institutions and specialized companies should be the holders and role models in the development of the agriculture’s development, he said.

Sagovnovic noted that Serbia needs to reindustrialise its processing industry.

We need to export candy products and not wheat and sugar, we need to focus on increasing meat production and export instead of corn export and start exporting juice instead of apples and raspberries, Sagovnovic said.

During the panel debate, participants of the forum also discussed regional experiences, application for European funds, privatisation in agriculture, bio-economy and organic production, as well as the problems in the neglected cooperative sector in Serbia.

Russia vows to preserve relations with Europe

Moscow, 24 Oct — Moscow was going to replace its relations with Europe by the cooperation with Asia-Pacific region, Russian foreign minister said on Thursday.

“We have never pretended that our links with the East and Asia-Pacific regions would go ahead to substitute those with Europe and the West as a whole,” Sergei Lavrov said at a meeting of the Valdai Club, an annual gathering of international experts.

Russia hopes to maintain its cooperation momentum with European countries despite the position of the European Union (EU) over the unsettled Ukraine crisis, the diplomat added.

“Now when Russia’s European, US and some other partners decided to enact a list of unilateral measures of enforcement, we understandably go on to intensify the eastern direction,” Lavrov said, noting that has been done only “in parallel with relations with Europe.”

On 14 October, Lavrov said Russia saw no alternative to relations with the EU and was ready to discuss the establishment of a free trade zone with the bloc.

Iran will be seen as responsible if nuclear talks fail — US

Washington, 24 Oct — Iran will be widely seen to be responsible if a comprehensive deal to curb its nuclear programme in exchange for sanctions relief is not reached, the top US negotiator said on Thursday.

US Under-Secretary of State Wendy Sherman also said major powers negotiating with Iran have offered it ideas that are “equitable, enforceable and consistent with Teheran’s expressed desire for a viable civilian nuclear programme.”

Britain, China, France, Germany, Russia and the United States are seeking to reach a deal with Iran by 24 November. Sherman said Iran’s best chance to escape economic sanctions was to strike an agreement before that deadline.

In a speech, Sherman said the United States and the other major powers were prepared to reach an agreement and suggested it would ultimately be seen to be Iran’s fault if one did not materialize.

“We hope the leaders in Teheran will agree to the steps necessary to assure the world that this programme will be exclusively peaceful and thereby end Iran’s economic and diplomatic isolation and improve further the lives of their people,” she said.

“If that does not happen, the responsibility will be seen by all to rest with Iran,” Sherman added. Iran’s best chance to have sanctions relief is to strike a deal with major powers in the next month that ensures its nuclear programme cannot yield a bomb, she said.

“Our goal now is to develop a durable and comprehensive arrangement that will effectively block all of Iran’s potential paths to a nuclear weapon,” she told a conference organized by the Center for Strategic and International Studies and Syracuse University’s Maxwell School of Citizenship and Public Affairs.

Such an arrangement, she added, would prevent Iran from producing fuel for a bomb with uranium or plutonium and would have inspections and monitoring that offered the best chance to prevent Iran from covertly processing these materials.

“If Iran truly wants to resolve its differences with the international community — and facilitate the lifting of economic sanctions — it will have no better chance than between now and 24 November,” she added. “This is the time to finish the job.”

US to delay wartime operation control transfer to S Korea until 2020

South Korea and the United States have agreed on delaying until mid-2020 the transfer of wartime operation control to South Korea, South Korea’s Defence Ministry spokesman said on Friday.

The agreement was finalized at the 46th annual security consultative meeting between South Korean Defence Minister Han Min Koo and US Secretary of Defence Chuck Hagel in Washington, Wi Yong Seop said at a press briefing wrapping up the just-concluded three-day talks.

Wartime operational control, known “OpCon,” was delayed once to 2020 and then to 2015 at the request of the South Korean government.

South Korea has cited North Korea’s growing military threats such as nuclear weapons and missile programmes as behind the requests.

South Korea regained operational control during peacetime in 1994. The United States had exercised both peacetime and wartime control since the end of the 1950-1953 Korean War. The United States has called for transfer of the OpCon to South Korea to reduce the South’s dependence on the US military.

As for the exact timing, the two sides failed to specify a date, only stating at “an appropriate date,” military analysts said.

Brazilians, 24 Oct — President Dilma Rousseff has a clear lead over opposition candidate Aecio Neves and would win Sunday’s presidential election runoff by six to eight percentage points, emerging polls showed on Thursday.

In Brazil’s tightest election in decades, the leftist incumbent’s aggressive campaign against pro-business senator Neves has succeeded in bolstering her support while increasing rejections of rival, the surveys showed.

Rousseff has gained ground by reminding voters of the rising wages and expanding social programmes many have enjoyed over the past 12 years of Workers’ Party rule, benefits she said would be at risk because Neves would govern for the elite.

The new surveys were the first by Brazil’s major polling firms Ibope and Datafolha to show Rousseff with a lead greater than the margin of error, which is plus or minus 2 percentage points for both.

Rousseff has 49 percent of voter support against 41 percent for Neves, according to Ibope. Rousseff is up 7 percentage points for Neves, according to Datafolha. Excluding undecided voters, polled and blank survey responses, Rousseff would win the runoff by 54 percent of the valid votes against 40 percent for Neves, Ibope said. Datafolha shows her winning by 53 percent versus 47 percent.

“We are seeing a turnaround. It’s visible on the streets,” Rousseff, 66, who was trailing Neves last week, said at a news conference at a Rio de Janeiro hotel where she was watching for Friday night’s final television debate.

An undaunted Neves dismissed the polls as unreliable, saying they had failed to detect his surge in the 5 October first round vote in which he unexpectedly placed second ahead of popular environmentalist Marina Silva.

Neves, 54, told reporters in Rio that Rousseff had run a “sordid” campaign that was full of lies about him. His attacks on Rousseff — he called her a “liar” and “thief” in an acrimonious debate last week — have lost him support among women voters who perceived his comments as male chauvinist. Rousseff has overtaken Neves among women voters by a margin of 6 percentage points.

The number of Brazilians who say they would never vote for Neves has increased 7 percentage points since last week, to 42 percent, Ibope said.

The new surveys were conducted by the UN Office for the LDCs, and Small Island Developing States (UN- OHRLLS). It noted that since the adoption of the 2011 Istanbul Programme of Action on their sustainable development, least developed countries (LDCs) have seen incremental economic and social gains.

This is mainly because of an increase in public spending and stronger investment in mining, construction, manufacturing and service sectors. However, the report cautions that despite the uptick, the LDCs continue to be among the most vulnerable to external shocks, such as economic crises, climate-related events, natural disasters and health-related threats. The recent outbreak of Ebola, which is concentrated in three least developed countries — Guinea, Liberia and Sierra Leone — highlights the importance of comprehensively addressing structural vulnerability, requiring joint efforts by such vulnerable countries and their development partners, the report said.

It also underscored that deepening inequalities exacerbate existing poverty with implications for political and social stability in these countries. The study identified four main determinants of the reduction of extreme poverty in the LDCs: gender inequality, institutional frameworks, infrastructure development and service delivery, and external factors.

The authors encouraged leadership at the national level to implement policies that improve service delivery, address gender inequality and enable the poor to acquire investment assets that can improve their future income. Women and girls are especially in need of better access to economic opportunities through vocational and managerial skills training.

At a Press briefing here on Thursday for launching the report, Gyan Chandra Acharya, high representative and head of UN-OHRLLS, said the survey noted that since the 2011 Istanbul conference, progress of LDC’s on many of the goals and targets has been “mixed.”

While some countries had seen improvements in human and social development — in particular in education, health and youth development — others remained mired in extreme poverty. During the same period, official development assistance (ODA) from partner countries had been “volatile.”

Given extreme vulnerability and high levels of poverty within these countries, the UN was recommending that their needs remain a main concern, a development agenda that still is a long way for these countries to go, even to catch up with other developing countries, not to mention (developed nations).—Xinhua

Suppporters of rival presidential candidates clash in Sao Paulo, Brazil

Brasilia, 24 Oct — Supporters of Brazil’s two rival presidential candidates clashed in downtown Sao Paulo on Thursday, as the race heats up ahead of Sunday’s election runoff.

Brazil’s leading G1 news service published an image of a street scuffle between supporters carrying the red flag of the ruling Workers’ Party (PT) and its candidate, President Dilma Rousseff, and those holding the blue-and-white flag of the conservative Social Democratic Party (PSDB) and its candidate Aecio Neves.

Rousseff’s rejection rate has remained unchanged, while the approval rating of her government has climbed to 44 percent from 42 percent earlier this week, Datafolha said.

Neves, the market favourite, insists he would preserve social programmes while curtailing other government spending, taming inflation and ending what he calls heavy-handed industrial policies in order to re-store investor confidence in a economy that slipped into recession in the first half of the year. But his promise of economic recovery appears to have lost weight among many Brazilian voters who are increasingly optimistic about Brazil’s economy, according to a Datafolha poll released Thursday.

Much needs to be done to help world’s poorest nations out of extreme poverty

United Nations, 24 Oct — With the world’s 48 most vulnerable countries continue to make in-roads into poverty reduction, a far greater effort is needed if these countries are to eradicate extreme poverty by 2020, a new UN report said here on Thursday.

The report was conducted by the UN Office for Least Developed Countries, Landlocked Developing Countries, and Small Island Developing States (UN-OHRLLS). It noted that since the adoption of the 2011 Istanbul Programme of Action on their sustainable development, least developed countries (LDCs) have seen incremental economic and social gains.

It is mainly because of an increase in public spending and stronger investment in mining, construction, manufacturing and service sectors. The skirmish broke out after three buses carrying about 200 PSDB supporters arrived at a site near City Hall where some 40 PT loyalists were handing out leaflets and other campaign materials.

Members of the Metropolitan Municipal Guard intervened and broke up the fight. Both parties issued statements afterwards, lamenting the incident and calling for calm in the lead up to Brazil’s most contested presidential race in two decades. Thursday’s polls showed Rousseff with a six- to-eight-point lead over Neves, though the candidates are close enough that a small portion of as yet undecided voters could swing the vote one way or the other. —Xinhua

Boosting Monitoring in the Basic Education Sector

By Myo Myint

The basic education sector in Myanmar is experiencing a huge growth in the number of students, schools and teachers. Therefore, apart from increasing the number of school buildings, there is also the need to enhance the capacity of school heads and teachers, the knowledge and thinking skills of students, and the quality of the curriculum, the methodology and teaching aids. To ensure that there are no huge gaps among schools, it is necessary for the school monitoring system to be effective. In the majority of countries, monitoring of schools is conducted by school inspection teams. Wilcox, B. (2000), in his monogram, Making school inspection visits more effective: the English experience, published by Interna- tional Institute for Educational Planning/ UNESCO, defines school inspection as a process of assessing the quality and/or performance of institutions, services, programmes or projects by external agents and he notes that inspection is perhaps the oldest method of supervising teachers and schools. There is no doubt that regular and effective school inspections have a great deal of impact on promoting the quality of schools, and help them solve many of the problems they face.

In Myanmar, school inspections are conducted three times a year by inspection teams from the Departments of Basic Education designated for each level, and the inspections focus on evaluation of three areas, namely, academic, administrative and financial. Evaluation of academic performance of the school is based on assessment of the efficiency of the school head, implementation of the monthly syllabus, the performance of students, and the use of prescribed methodology and teaching aids. Evaluation of administrative matters focuses on appearance and maintenance of school buildings, greening of the school grounds and staff administration matters. Inspection of financial matters relate to compli- ance of financial rules and regulations. The inspection is usually based on records and students’ written work. The inspectors’ findings are submitted to the education au- thority of the basic education department concerned in the form of a written report.

The following developments in the basic education sector necessitate an eval- uation of the effectiveness of the current system of inspection:

- Questions raised by those with a keen interest in the development of education in the country, regarding the effectiveness of school inspections, the actual number of inspections done each year, and actions taken in response to the findings of inspections
- The need for inspection supervision to be in line with the pragmatic reforms being introduced in other areas of basic education to improve quality
- Need for the appointment of an adequate number of inspectors with the required training, expertise and trustworthiness
- The need to carry out both inspection and supervision at the same time by school inspectors as warranted by the current lack of human resource in the Depart- ment of Basic Education.

In response to the above mentioned factors, the following remedial measures are suggested for the enhancement of the role of school inspection in raising the standard of basic education. Proper recognition must be given to the important role that school inspection plays in the general improvement of schools and in raising the quality of teaching and learning. Adequate number of qualified school inspectors needs to be appointed in commensurate with the number of schools to ensure that all schools are inspected regularly. If at present more school inspectors cannot be appointed, then assistance from faculty of education colleges and qualified senior teachers from neighboring schools should be sought to increase the size of the ins- pection team. A common checklist for inspection should be drawn along with specific objectives, and additional items may be added for regions with specific requirements. It is also important to ensure that all inspectors are carrying out their responsibilities ef- fectively, in a transparent and accountable manner, and that there is no malpractice.

Hence, the performance of current school inspectors should be evaluated and they should be provided the necessary training to ensure that they can perform their re- sponsibilities in a professional manner. Necessary financial and administrative support should be provided to inspectors to enable them to travel to schools conveniently and to carry out their tasks without being a burden on schools. Although inspection and supervision are two different tasks, due to current financial and human resource constraints, they may need to be merged. Consequently, inspectors should not only check records of attendance, test and exam performances of students, but they ought to give adequate time to ob- serve teaching, learning, and student work, hold discussions with school heads and teachers to review their performances, and give them feedback, guidance and solu- tions. On their part, education administra- tors need to give the necessary attention to the findings of inspection reports and carry out the necessary actions to redress short- comings. It is also important to ensure that schools are inspected as specified, so that both the authorities and the schools get feedback about the performance of schools. Lastly, monitoring should not simply be to find fault, or to take action against individuals, but to observe the actual state of schools and provide practical solutions to improve individual schools as well as the whole system.

School inspection is as important as administration and teaching, as it cannot only identify strengths and weaknesses of schools, but it also provides the necessary opportunity to give guidance and assistance for improvement. At this juncture, when pragmatic reforms are being intro- duced in the education sector, it is vital that school inspections are conducted in a systematic and effective manner to make certain that all schools are on the right track to improvement and all students re- ceive quality education.

However, the excessive use of underground water can result in water table depletion, ground subsidence and saltwater intrusion.

In Myanmar ground water resources are protected by the Burma Underground Water Act (1930), but the law is not strictly enforced. One of the cities that relies heavily on underground water is Yangon, the most populous city in Myanmar.

As a result, almost every apartment building in Yangon has dug a tube-well to supply water for daily use of families living in the apartments. Every apartment building under construction is digging a tube-well each in booming apartment markets where most tube-wells are only 20 feet apart from one another.

Yangon was built on alluvial land that is prone to ground sinking while salt water intrusion is an- other possible danger for the city. If under- ground water is reduced in Yangon it will not be a livable city anymore. It is time under- ground water use was monitored strictly and the water supply system was upgraded to supply water from other water resources to all Yango- nites.

Letter to the Editor

Dear sir,

I would like to discuss the use of the word “Myanglish” in the article, which appeared in your daily paper of 23 Octo- ber, titled “Myanglish– Singlish–Hin- glish etc.” It was used to describe the lat- est trend in text messaging and chatting on mobile phones, which is popular among our youths today.

In my humble opinion it wasn’t appro- priate to use that word, because what they are doing amount to transliterating or transcribing the Myanmar language us- ing Roman or Latin alphabets. Thus it would be more appropriate term it Ro- manizing or Latinizing Myanmar.

However, if it is called “Myanglish” it will fall into the same category as the Singlish, which is an English creole lan- guage used by the Singaporeans and con- sidered to be of inferior prestige. It is a mixture of different languages, as men- tioned in that article, based on the English language. What our youths are doing is definitely not creating a creole language, but this trend of writing Myanmar lan- guage using Roman or Latin (not English) alphabets came into vogue a few years back when Myanmar font was not yet available for mobile phones. So, they had to improvise a way to communicate with one another using the Myanmar phonet- ics, spelled with Roman characters or phonetic transcription of Myanmar lan- guage. Once when every mobile phone user has access to Myanmar fonts, this trend will definitely fade out.

Furthermore, the habit of inserting some common English words while con- versing in Myanmar language had been around for quite a long time. I don’t think that should be complicated with what the youths of today had done to simplify mes- saging and chatting, without Myanmar font, to be termed as “Myanglish”.

There are only three accepted Eng- lish creole languages in Asia. They are Singlish, Manglish used in Malaysia and Taglish used in Philippines. I agree that everybody has the right to coin new words, which are relevant and useful. However, I believe that the word “Myan- glish” is totally inappropriate in this case.

Swiss banker detained in connection with Hoeness case

A former Bayern Munich's F.C. chief and current board member was arrested on Tuesday, police said, in connection with a tax fraud investigation. The arrest comes after former Bayern Munich president Uli Hoeness was found guilty of tax evasion and had his sentence reduced on appeal.

Munich/Warsaw, 24 Oct — Police in Warsaw detained a Swiss banker on Wednesday in connection with the recent conviction of former Bayern Munich president Uli Hoeness for tax evasion, German and Polish authorities said on Thursday. Hoeness was sentenced in March to a 3.5-year prison term for evading 28.5 million euros (22.5 million pounds) of taxes and quit as president and chairman of Bayern Munich, the club he made into one of the world’s most successful football dynasties. He used an account at Swiss bank Vontobel for complex currency transactions that helped him reap gains in the millions of euros, it emerged during his trial.

A spokesman for Vontobel confirmed on Thursday that an employee of the bank had been arrested abroad but declined to give further comment. The man detained by police in Warsaw on Wednesday was released on bail following a court hearing on Thursday, according to Warsaw prosecutors and the Warsaw Regional Court. He has been told not to leave Poland and was forced to relinquish his passport, a court spokeswoman told Reuters.

He is the latest Swiss bank figure to come under scrutiny over Switzerland’s banking secrecy. Former UBS executive Raoul Weil is currently on trial in the United States for his alleged role in the Swiss bank’s illegal offshore operations that helped thousands of Americans evade taxes.

Turkey’s Erdogan says 200 Kurdish fighters from Iraq to enter Kobani

Riga, 24 Oct — Turkish President Recep Tayyip Erdogan said on Thursday agreement had been reached on sending 200 Kurdish peshmerga fighters from Iraq through Turkey to help defend the Syrian border town of Kobani against Islamic State militants.

A senior official in Turkey’s Kurdish region told Reuters the peshmerga would be equipped with heavier weapons than those being used by Kurdish fighters in Kobani, who say they need armour-piercing weapons to fend off Islamic State. Syrian Kurds sign power-sharing deal to draw more support

Arbil, (Iraq) 24 Oct — Syrian Kurds factions have signed a deal to share power and set their rivalries aside to capitalize on growing international support for their fight against Islamic State militants.

The agreement was reached in late on Wednesday after nine days of talks and coincided with a decision by Iraqi Kurdistan to send its own peshmerga forces to relieve fellow Kurds in the Syrian town of Kobani, under attack by Islamic State (IS).

The planned deployment marks the semi-autonomous region’s first military foray into Syria’s war and is also part of a surge in support for the Kurds, whom the United States have been helping with air strikes and troops.

Kurds have taken advantage of more than three years of civil war in Syria to carve out their own zone of influence in the north of the country, but have been beset by internal rivalries. Early this year, the dominant Democratic Union Party (PYD) established three “cantons” in northern Syria and declared self-rule, but other Kurdish parties rejected the move. Wednesday’s deal, which was signed in Iraqi Kurdistan under the auspices of the regional President Masoud Barzani, puts decision-making in the hands of a new body in which all parties will be represented.

It also seeks to address one of the main sticking points between the parties: the PYD’s insistence that no armed force other than its own militia, the Popular Protection Units (YPG), is viable. The existing administration created by the PYD Wednesday to be “developed” and elections will eventually be held for a Syrian Kurdish parliament, although no timetable has been set.

BRUSSELS, 24 Oct — British Prime Minister David Cameron has challenged a demand from the European Union for an additional 2.1-billion-euro payment into the EU budget in the coming weeks following a revision of economic statistics.

A British spokesman at an EU summit in Brussels on Friday said Cameron discussed the issue, triggered by a revision of EU data for national income and hence for countries’ contributions to EU funding, with his Dutch counterpart Mark Rutte. His country also faced a large bill, to be paid by 1 December.

“This is money the European Commission was not expecting and does not need, and we will be working with other countries to do all we can to challenge this,” the British spokesman said.

Responding to a question at a summit news conference, Jose Manuel Barroso, the president of the Commission, the EU’s executive branch, said he was unaware of the matter. An EU official said the budget revision was a “technical matter” that came up every year.

The request for additional funding came at an awkward time for Cameron, who faces an election in May with the anti-EU UK Independence Party cutting into his Conservatives’ share of the vote. Reuters

New York, 24 Oct — A New York City doctor who treated Ebola patients in West Africa became the first person to test positive for the virus in America’s largest city, setting off fresh fears about the spread of the disease.

New York Mayor Bill de Blasio said residents were safe to travel around the city, even as officials disclosed that Dr Craig Spencer had hidden subways, taken a taxi and visited a bowling alley since coming home, said.

His fiancee was quarantined at home across the street, said, “I feel sorry for New Yorkers to be alarmed,” de Blasio said at a news conference at Bellevue.

“Being on the same subway car or living near someone with Ebola does not in itself put someone at risk,” Spencer said.

He was not feeling sick and would not have been contagious before Thursday morning, the health commissioner said.

“Let’s go right on with my daily routine and hope to God it doesn’t come my way,” she said.

The health commissioner said Spencer completed work in Guinea on 12 October and arrived at John F. Kennedy International Airport in New York on 17 October.

Spencer’s Facebook page, which included a photo of him clad in protective gear, said he stopped over in Brussels.

Spencer has specialized in international emergency medicine at Columbia University-New York Presbyterian Hospital in New York City since 2011. Columbia in a statement said he has not been to work or seen any patients since his return.

A woman named Morgan Dixon was identified on Spencer’s Facebook page as his fiancee. Her name linked in profile described her as working in nonprofit management and international development with the Hope Programme, a career development programme for homeless and welfare-dependent adults.

The first person diagnosed with Ebola on US soil flew from Liberia to Texas and died in a Dallas hospital. Two nurses who treated him became infected and one took a commercial flight with a fever, prompting officials in several states to take steps to become better prepared to contain the virus.

The CDC did not name Spencer but said he participated in the enhanced screening for all returning travelers from these countries at Kennedy.

The enhanced screening was introduced this month at five major US airports including Kennedy — for travelers coming from Guinea, Liberia and Sierra Leone.

The doctor “went through multiple layers of screening and did not have a fever or other symptoms of illness,” the CDC added in a statement. Reuters

Nissan to recall cars over defective Takata air bags

TOKYO, 24 Oct — Japanese automaker Nissan Motor Co said on Thursday it would recall a further 260,000 vehicles worldwide, including 104,905 units sold in Japan, over defective air bags made by Japanese auto parts maker Takata Corp. The recall covers seven models, including the March and Cube compact cars and some Infiniti luxury vehicles.

The Japanese carmaker reported the recall to the Ministry of Land, Infrastructure, Transport and Tourism, Kyoto reported on Thursday. No deaths or injuries have been reported as a result of the defect, Nissan said. The latest recall came amid growing global recalls of vehicles installed with potentially faulty air-bag inflators that could rupture causing metal fragments to injure occupants.

Since April 2013, major Japanese carmakers, including Toyota Motor Corp, Honda Motor Co. and Nissan, have all recalled vehicles with Takata air bags. So far, a total of about 2.35 million units domestically and more than 10 million cars around the world have been recalled, the ministry said. Xinhua

AIIB to set up high-standard, feasible safeguard policies, says Chinese finance minister

BEIJING, 24 Oct — Asian Infrastructure Investment Bank (AIIB) will fully respect and draw upon the good practices of existing multilateral development banks (MDBs) and set up high-standard and feasible safeguard policies, Chinese Finance Minister Lou Jiwei said on Friday.

Existing MDBs, such as World Bank and ADIB, have accumulated many good experiences during the past decades, Lou said in a media interview, noting that they have set up many high-quality standards and policies with regard to governance structure, environmental evaluation, procurement, debt sustainability and management of projects including the infrastructure projects.

AIIB will fully respect and draw upon the good practices of existing MDBs and set up high-standard and feasible safeguard policies, Lou said, stressing that it is noteworthy that existing MDBs are now reviewing their safeguard policies and improving some of the bureaucratic, unrealistic and irrelevant policies.

AIIB will avoid repeating mistakes to reduce operation cost and increase efficiency, he said.

Canada’s spies face tough questions after militant attacks

WASHINGTON, 24 Oct — On Monday one of Canada’s top spy officials assured Canadian lawmakers that were no signs of an imminent terrorist attack on the country. Within hours a disaffected Muslim convert had run down two soldiers, killing one of them.

Two days later, another Muslim convert armed with a rifle shot dead a Canadian soldier guarding the national war memorial in the capital, Ottawa, and then raced into the nearby parliament, where he exchanged fire with security personnel before being shot dead. Police said on Thursday they had no information indicating the two attacks were linked, and no Islamist militant group, such as Islamic State and al-Qaeda, has claimed credit. The absence of an apparent organized conspiracy by the two men is of cold comfort to Canada’s security agencies, who are facing uncomfortable questions about what they knew and when and why they were unable to stop the attacks since both attackers were known to them as potential security threats.

The Canadian Security Intelligence Service, Canada’s main spy agency, did not immediately respond to requests for comment. Parliament attacker Michael Zehaf-Bibeau, 32, who was shot after passing a room in which Prime Minister Stephen Harper was meeting lawmakers, was not under surveillance at the time of the attack, a US government source told Reuters. The source said Zehaf-Bibeau was regarded as a security threat by Canadian authorities but not a high enough threat to warrant constant surveillance, which is often costly and labour intensive.

Western intelligence and security officials have said that few if any Western spy and security agencies have sufficient personnel to closely monitor all suspects linked to the Syrian and Iraq conflict. They need to prioritize surveillance and focus on the suspects considered most dangerous, US officials said.

Police said on Thursday there were at least 93 Canadians who were viewed as “high risk” because they wanted to travel abroad to join Islamic militant groups. Zehaf-Bibeau, however, was not on that list, they said.

It takes between 10 to 12 personnel to plant alistening device and up to 28 agents to follow and constantly monitor a suspect, a lawmaker told Monday’s House of Commons investigation of potential threats has put a strain on Canada’s security apparatus at a time when Ottawa has been trying to bring a wide budget deficit under control. — Reuters

JAPAN BUSINESS COMMUNITY LOOKING TO ACCEPT MORE FOREIGN WORKERS

TOKYO, 24 Oct — Japan should accept more foreign workers to address labour shortages in the economy, the head of the country’s largest business lobby said on Friday. “It is essential to create a system” for Japanese firms to more aggressively accept workers from abroad, Japan Business Federation Chairman Sadayuki Sakakibara said in a speech.

“Labour shortages are about to become a significant problem” in Japan with its aging population, Sakakibara said, suggesting the government and business community should cooperate in dealing with the pressing “national issue.”

Sakakibara, who was speaking at a seminar organized by Kyodo News, also said the federation, better known as Keidanren, will restart dialogues with its South Korean counterpart following a seven-year hiatus. Tensions between the two neighbouring countries over territorial and wartime historical issues have spilled over into their economic relations.

JAPAN WARNS OF INCREASED ACTIVITY AT VOLCANO NEAR NUCLEAR PLANT

Tokyo, 24 Oct — Japan warned on Friday that a volcano in southern Japan located roughly 64 km (40 miles) from a nuclear plant was showing signs of increased activity that could possibly lead to a small-scale eruption and warn people to stay away from the summit.

The warning comes nearly a month after another volcano, Mt Ontake, erupted suddenly when crowded with hikers, killing 57 people in Japan’s worst volcanic disaster in nearly 90 years.

Ioyama, a mountain on the southwestern island of Kyushu, has been shaken by small tremors and other signs of rising volcanic activity recently, including a tremor lasting as long as seven minutes, an official at the Japan Meteorological Agency’s volcano division said. “There is an increase in activity that under certain circumstances could even lead to a small-scale eruption, but it is not in danger of an imminent, major eruption,” the official said.

The warning level on the mountain has been raised from the lowest possible level, normal, to the second lowest, which means that the area around the crater is dangerous, he added. Ioyama lies in the volcanically active Kirishima mountain range and is roughly 64 km from the Sendai nuclear plant run by Kyushu Electric Power Co, which the Japanese government wants to restart even though the public remains opposed to nuclear power following the Fukushima crisis. Critics point out that the Sendai plant is located about 50 kms (31 miles) from Mount Sakurajima, an active volcano that erupts frequently. Five giant calderas, crater-like depressions formed by past eruptions, are also in the region, the closest one 40 kms (25 miles) away.

The plant still needs to pass operational safety checks as well as gain the approval of local authorities and may not restart till next year. — Reuters

Second White House fence jumper faces mental evaluation

WASHINGTON, 24 Oct — The man arrested after jumping the White House fence on Wednesday night was charged in court with two federal offenses on Thursday, including harming a dog the Secret Service used to stop him from entering the presidential mansion. Federal Magistrate Judge Deborah Robinson ordered a mental screening for the man, Dominic Adesanya, 23, of Bel Air, Maryland.

Adesanya was also charged with unlawfully entering the restricted grounds of the White House. Both charges are misdemeanors that carry up to one year in prison.

The incident came about one month after an intruder with a knife scaled the White House fence and entered the executive mansion, raising questions about security at the heavily guarded complex, and spurring the resignation of Julia Pierson as Secret Service director.

White House spokesman Josh Earnest said the Secret Service’s response to the most recent incident was an improvement over its work to last month.

Adesanya also faces two misdemeanors from earlier incidents charged in a lower court, which also ordered a mental evaluation. Video showed the intruder punching one of the dogs and Secret Service agents surrounding him on the north lawn of the White House. In an interview with ABC’s Baltimore affiliate, WMAR, Adesanya’s father said his son was “mentally disturbed” and had previously gone to the White House seeking to talk to President Barack Obama, but had been stopped at the gate. “He’d done it before. He didn’t get that close,” his father, who declined to be named or shown on camera, told WMAR. He said he has been unable to find help for his son. — Reuters

Japan to require report on stay in four African nations over Ebola

Tokyo, 24 Oct — In the face of the Ebola outbreak in West Africa and beyond, the government on Friday ordered immigration authorities and quarantine stations to check whether incoming travellers have recently stayed in any of four African nations.

Starting Friday, travellers arriving from abroad at 30 Japanese airports where quarantine checks are conducted are required to report any stay in Guinea, Liberia, Sierra Leone or the Democratic Republic of Congo in the past 21 days.

If immigration officers discover that travellers arriving from these countries have not gone through airport quarantine checks before reaching the passport control counter, they are instructed to direct them back to the quarantine stations.

The total number of travelers to Japan from abroad annually reaches 28 million, of which 40,000 people, including 16,000 foreigners, arrive daily in Narita airport near Tokyo.

Last Tuesday, the Health, Labour and Welfare Ministry said it was strengthening anti-Ebola measures by obliging travellers arriving from the West Africa nations of Guinea, Liberia and Sierra Leone to report on their health condition to quarantine stations twice a day for 21 days.

As the number of cases of the deadly disease continues to grow in West Africa, countries are stepping up efforts to prevent its spread.

On Wednesday, the World Health Organization said the number of Ebola virus cases chiefly affecting West Africa has neared 10,000 globally, with close to 5,000 deaths so far.

Local transmission was also reported in the United States and Spain, according to the WHO.

Australia talks set to tackle most difficult TPP issues:
New Zealand Trade Minister

WELLINGTON, 24 Oct — Negotiators at the Trans-Pacific Partnership talks in Australia this week will be dealing with some of the most contentious issues in the controversial pact, New Zealand Trade Minister Tim Groser said on Friday.

"Negotiations are entering a crucial stage, with some of the most difficult issues remaining to be addressed in the negotiations such as agricultural market access, intellectual property and disciplines on state-owned enterprises," Groser said in a statement before departing for the talks in Sydney.

"The objective for this meeting will be to achieve further progress in these areas, which still require substantial work in order to move parties closer to conclusion."

Earlier Friday, agriculture industry leaders from New Zealand, Australia and Canada issued a joint call for negotiators to seal a trade deal with equal access across all 12 participating nations, saying select market access to some countries over others might make regional supply chains worse off.

Russian female tourist molested in India’s Goa

NEW DELHI, 24 Oct — A Russian woman tourist has been allegedly molested twice in the western Indian state of Goa, a senior police official said on Friday.

"The 32-year-old has lodged a complaint with the police that she was first sexually molested on a beach by some unknown men and later at a government hospital by a doctor," the official said, on condition of anonymity.

The Russian woman arrived in Goa on 20 October. A probe has been ordered into the incident, the official said.—Xinhua

Men have tried to harass me: Taylor Swift

LOS ANGELES, 24 Oct — Singer Taylor Swift says provision of constant security is important to her because she has faced harassment by men in past. Swift, 24, said men tried to kidnap, kill and marry her and such incidents have made her extra cautious about the issue of security, reported US magazine.

“I fought the idea of having security for a very long time, because I really value normalcy. I really do. I like to be able to take a drive by myself. Haven’t done that in six years. ‘They have to be in a car behind me. Because just the sheer number of men we have in a file who have showed up at my house, showed up at my mom’s house, threatened to either kill me, kidnap me, or marry me,’” she said.

Earlier this year, Swift obtained a restraining order against one such man. A stalker named Timothy Sweet reportedly believed he was married to Swift and wrote threatening messages on social media.

“This is the strange and sad part of my life that I try not to think about. I try to be light-hearted about it, because I don’t ever want to be scared. I don’t want to be walking down the street scared. And when I have security, I don’t have to be scared,” Grammy-winning singer added.—PTI

‘Big Hero 6’ to the rescue at new-look Tokyo film festival

TOKYO, 24 Oct — Hello Kitty and Doraemon anime characters strutted their stuff on the red carpet on Thursday, as Disney’s “Big Hero 6” kicked off a new-look Tokyo film festival that taps into Japan’s love of animation.

The 27th Tokyo International Film Festival, which runs from 23 to 31 October, will hold special events alongside the main festival, including a “cosplay summit” and a Japanese food fair aimed at promoting Japan’s cultural and content industries.

“Big Hero 6”, Disney Animation’s next big feature after last year’s hit, “Frozen”, centres on the bond between 14-year-old Hiro Hamada and the inflatable robot Baymax, as they and their friends battle a Kabuki-masked villain who has stolen Hiro’s microbot technology. The 3D comedy-adventure, which screened out of competition, takes place in the futuristic city of San Fransokyo, a mash-up of San Francisco and Tokyo, and Japanese viewers will easily recognize the influence of Tokyo life and landmarks in the film.

“The film has such a strong Japanese influence. It really is a love letter to Japan,” Don Hall, co-director of “Big Hero 6,” told Reuters on the red carpet at Tokyo’s Roppongi Hills.

“So to have it coincide with the Tokyo film festival, it’s probably the perfect place to debut it,” he said, explaining why the Tokyo festival was picked for the worldwide premiere.—Reuters

James Corden to debut as CBS’s ‘Late Late Show’ host in March

LOS ANGELES, 24 Oct — CBS late night talk show “The Late Late Show” with new host James Corden will premiere on 9 March, the US broadcast network said on Thursday.

Corden, a Tony Award-winning 36-year-old British actor, will replace Scottish comedian Craig Ferguson, who will leave the late-night show in December. Corden will also play one of the leading roles in Disney’s December musical movie “Into the Woods.”

Los Angeles Mayor Eric Garcetti praised CBS for keeping the show in the city as California politicians have sought to stem the outflow of entertainment production which has been lured by tax incentives from other states.

“I want to thank CBS for keeping ‘The Late Late Show’ in Los Angeles,” Garcetti said in a statement. “We are proud to be home to so many CBS productions that provide thousands of jobs for Angelenos.”

NBC’s “Tonight Show” moved to New York from its longtime home in Burbank, California in February when new host Jimmy Fallon took over from Jay Leno.

California politicians fought to keep the “Tonight Show” in Burbank, and they also unsuccessfully tried to lure CBS’s “Late Show” to Los Angeles from New York when Stephen Colbert takes the reins from David Letterman next year.

New York was able to keep the “Late Show” by offering tax credits and grants for job commitments from CBS.—Reuters

Scarlett Johansson named most fascinating people of 2014

LOS ANGELES, 24 Oct — New mother Scarlett Johansson has been named most fascinating people of 2014 by Barbara Walters. Walters had been working hard in finalizing her list of the 10 Most Fascinating People of 2014 from few months, reported E!Online.

“Talk show queen Oprah Winfrey sat on the second position after beating Chelsea Handler and Neil Patrick Harris. “I was absolutely delighted when ABC approached me to do another year of ‘10 Most Fascinating People,’” Walters said in a statement.

“‘I know we said last year was our last, but there are just too many fascinating people out there... and you never pass up the opportunity to interview Oprah, Neil, Chelsea or Scarlett.’ We can’t argue with that!” she added.—PTI
Garber says political will key to Beckham’s MLS Miami plan

Former soccer player David Beckham

BRENTWOOD, (Barbados), 24 Oct — Major League Soccer commissioner Don Garber says an apparent lack of political will is making the bid to set up a franchise in Miami “complicated” and that David Beckham will need to find a stadium — or two — will be formed in the city.

Former England international Beckham has an option for an MLS franchise, which he has intended to use in Miami. But he has so far had two proposals for stadium sites rejected by local politicians.

“I’m neither optimistic (nor) pessimistic,” Garber told Reuters in an interview.

“It really is a very simple position we are in — if we can’t get the right stadium, we can’t go to Miami.”

“We have been challenged to find a site that we believe will be successful.”

“We had two sites on the waterfront. Both were supported by the city mayor and the county mayor, and then we lost that support, so it is clear to me that it is a complicated market in a wide variety of ways,” Garber said on the margins of the Soccerex Americas Forum, where he explained he had described Miami as a “conundrum.”

MLS will expand to Florida next year when Orlando City join the league, and the growth in the south-east will continue with the addition of Atlanta in 2017.

In both cases local governors backed new stadium plans and supported the creation of MLS teams in those cities, and Garber says that is the missing ingredient in Miami.

“Politically I am not sure that there is the same alignment on developing a vision in the way that there has been in a city like Orlan- do or a city like Atlanta.”

“If we can’t find an alignment we aren’t going to be able to go there,” said Garber, who declined to comment on whether Beckham’s option could be transferred to another city if his Miami plans do not come to fruition.—Reuters

Massive gold nugget on sale for $400,000 in San Francisco

SAN FRANCISCO, 24 Oct — A 5-pound golden nugget dug up in Northern California this past summer and believed to be the largest privately held piece of its kind in the state was offered for sale at $400,000 on Thursday.

The chunk of gold, which is encased in a mis- shaped baked potato and weighs 72 troy ounces, or about 5 pounds (2.3 kg), is on display at the San Francis- co Fall Antiques Show Thursday through Sunday, said David McCarthy, senior numismatist for Kagin’s Inc.

The California-based numismatic firm was billing it as the “Butte Nugget” because it was unearthed in Butte County in Northern California by a man prospecting for gold on public land in July, according to the company.

The firm did not identify the man for whom it is selling the nugget or where in the county it was discovered.

“There are bigger ones in museums and there were bigger ones certainly near the Gold Rush period, but today it’s believed to be the largest gold nugget in private hands in California,” said Donald Kagin, president of Kagin’s. McCarthy, who evaluated the find, said the man who found it photographed its excavation step by step and took McCarthy to the spot where it was unearthed, but not before blinding him.

“I’ve seen the pictures of the nugget being slowly exposed as he was digging it up, it was very obvious it had been in the ground for a very long time,” McCarthy said. Kagin’s earlier this year offered for sale pieces from a trove of rare Gold Rush-era coins that were discovered in California last year by couple walking their dog and assessed at more than $10 million. Many of the coins were offered on Amazon.com.—Reuters

Moratti ends Inter link after 19 years

MILAN, 24 Oct — Former Inter Milan owner Massimo Moratti has resigned as honorary president, ending his 19-year-old association with the club. The 69-year-old quit almost exactly one year after selling a 70 percent stake in the club to a consortium led by Indonesian businessman Erick Thohir, who replaced Moratti as club president. “Massimo Moratti has today resigned as honorary president of FC Internazionale Milano Spa, a position kindly offered to him by Mr Erick Thohir in November last year,” said a statement issued by Interna- zionale Holding Srl, a holding company owned by Moratti and his two sons. No reason was given for the decision.

Inter won five Serie A titles in successive years dur- ing Moratti’s 18-year reign, between 2006 and 2010, and also clinched the Champions League and UEFA Cup once each and the Coppa Italia four times.

The highlight was the Champions League, Serie A and Coppa Italia treble under Jose Mourinho in 2010.

Moratti, whose father Angelo owned the club from 1955 to 1968, brought a host of big signings to Inter, in- cluding Brazilian Ronaldo, Hernan Crespo, Adriano, Roberto Baggio, Zlatan Ibra- mimovic, Luis Figo, Patrick Vieira and Samuel Eto’o. However, he had little pa- tience with coaches, employing 16 during his presidency including the hapless Gian Piero Gasparini, who was fired after only five matches in 2011. Inter finished fifth last season and have made an inconsistent start to the new campaign, currently in ninth place.—Reuters

California community suffers as wells dry up in drought

EAST PORTERVILLE, (Calif), 24 Oct — In one of the towns hardest hit by California’s drought, the only way some residents can get water to flush the toilet is to drive to the fire station, hand-pump water into barrels and take it back home.

The trip has become a regular ritual for East Porterville residents Macario Beltran, 41, and his daugh- ters, who on a recent evening pumped the water into contai- ners in the bed of his old pickup truck to be used for bathing, dish washing and flushing. As if to emphasize the arid conditions that led them there, an emergency broadcast warned of a breez- ing dust storm.

The state’s three-year drought has become a sharp focus in Tulare County, the dairy and citrus heart of the state’s vast agricultural belt, where more than 500 wells have dried up.

Donna Johnson’s tap went dry in June. Since then she’s been trying to help neighbours connect with help from the county and the state. She began making door-to-door deliveries of water donated by charities and such supplies as hand sanitizer — often in with- holding 100-degree heat. “I saw all these people who couldn’t take a shower, kids, pregnant women,” the 72-year-old said.

Gov Jerry Brown, who declared a state drought emergency in January, signed an executive order last month to buy drinking water for residents with dry wells. He also signed bills to regulate groundwater.—Reuters

Maria Sharapova recovered from a second-set meltdown to record her first victory at this year’s WTA Finals with a 7-5, 6-7(4), 6-2 triumph over Poland’s Agnieszka Radwanska on Friday but the Russian still bowed out of the elite eight-woman tournament.

After losing her opening two Red Group round robin matches, Sharapova needed to win in straight sets to stand any chance of advancing to the semi-finals and maintaining her pursuit of Serena Williams’ number one ranking.

The Russian looked set fair to keep her side of the bargain when she roared into a 5-1 lead in the second set but she ran into a wall called Radwanska with the Pole returning everything Sharapova threw at her to save three match points and reel off five straight games.

Sharapova held a nervy service game to send the second set into a tie-break and with her booming forehands suddenly unable to find their range, Radwanska ended her opponent’s interest in the tournament when she claimed the breaker 7-4.

For Radwanska, winning the set was crucial as it now means any victory for Caroline Wozniacki in the final Red Group game against Petra Kvitova later on Friday will send her through to the semi-finals along with the Dane.

Wozniacki is already guaranteed a last four berth so even if she loses to Kvitova, the Czech Wimbledon champion will advance with her instead of Radwanska.

“It’s so great to finally get a win in Singapore. I really wanted it today as it was so tough in that second set. We have always had tight matches and today was no different,” Sharapova said in a courtside interview.

The first set was an edgy affair with neither player able to hold serve in the first four games before Sharapova got the better of another three-game run of broken serves to close out the Russian in a little over an hour.

Confident and finding the paint with her booming forehand, the Russian appeared to be racing through to the second set at 4-0 and 5-1 but Radwanska showed her incredible defence and movement, and he is the match from an almost impossible position.

Sharapova took a short break before the deciding set and returned looking more determined than ever, seizing the momentum with a booming forehand down the line in the sixth game to open a 2-2 lead.

For two games later, Sharapova had won the match with her 32nd forehand winner of the three-game run.

The Russian was delight ed with her third set performance after her struggles at the end of the second.

“I had to regather my thoughts and my gameplay and just go back to the basics. She gets so many balls back that sometimes I felt I was doing a little too much. But in the end I was able to tough it out and am so happy to get a victory here,” she added.

Stellar Lamela is hot Spur as Tottenham hit five

LONDON, 24 Oct — Tottenham Hotspur’s Erik Lamela scored a stunning ‘rabona’ goal to light up Thursday’s Europa League tie, wrapping his left boot round the back of his right leg 20 metres out and blasting the ball into the top corner. That goal, a second Lamela volley and a Harry Kane header, meant Spurs finished one goal clear of Greek football’s best side Asteras Tripolis but the result seemed almost insignificant in comparison to the sheer technical brilliance of the Argentine’s moment of magic.

It was the second week in a row that Lamela were liberally spread among the games in Europe’s second tier competition with Borus sia Moenchengladbach hitting five while Besiktas, Vill Wolfsburg, Salzburg and Villarreal all netted four times.

Rijeka’s Andrey Kramaric underlined his status as the star talent that Tottenham fans had heard about but not seen yet, before winger Gokhan Tore scored the stunning ‘rabona’ goal to light up Thursday’s Europa League game before going in goal following a red card for Hugo Lloris late in the match and subsequently letting in a howler in him going in goal following a red card for Hugo Lloris late in the match.

Torres struggling to keep his place at Milan

MILAN, 24 Oct — Top scorer in Serie A with 16 goals, fourth in the table and beating only once in seven games, the new season is going well for new look AC Milan and new coach Filippo Inzaghi.

Spain forward Fernando Torres, signed on loan from Chelsea in close season hoping to rediscover his best form, is once again struggling to impress.

The mistrifing 30-year-old has started with only one goal in five outings, scored in a 2-2 draw against lowly Empoli, and has been totally off the pace in his only start, against Fiorentina.

“Too many times I have been in unstoppable form,” Torres told ITV Sport.

“I have seen Erik do that in training — he has that in his locker,” said Kane whose eventual evening culminated in him going in goal following a red card for Hugo Lloris late in the match and subsequently letting in a howler.

Torres has been in unstoppable form, the new season being a really important stage in his career. But this team still needs more confidence after recent games in Europe’s second tier competition with Borussia Moenchengladbach hitting five while Besiktas, Vill Wolfsburg, Salzburg and Villarreal all netted four times.
