Myanmar needs better electricity infrastructure

By Aung Khin

Yangon, 29 July—Electric power consumption (kWh per capita) in Myanmar was measured at around 104, according to the World Bank. The amount was only one-sixth of that in Indonesia, and one-20th of Thailand.

“Over two-thirds of the country does not have access to electricity,” Kanthan Shankar, the country manager at the World Bank, said in a report. “In rural areas it’s less than 16%. So there’s a huge need.”

Although the Ministry of Electric Power is extending cable networks, many of the rural populace has no access to electricity. Only 30 percent of the country’s population has access to electricity with frequent outages, especially in hottest months of the year, March to May.

Meanwhile, the increasing consumption of electricity in major cities of Myanmar has demanded safer power cables.

An electrician said: “Power is usually transmitted through overhead power lines, while underground power transmission has a significantly higher cost and greater operational limitations but it is sometimes used in urban areas or sensitive locations.”

The decades-old overhead power cables in the country are needed to replace with new ones that are strong enough for high voltage of power supply.

“The electric power cables heavy are the most likely to fall down,” an official from the Yangon City Electricity Supply Board said. According to the Cetanashin Free Funeral and Ambulance Service Society, an electricity cable fell on 11 July in a market in Hlinethaya Township, western part of Yangon, killing three women and injuring a kid.

The society has two ambulances, two cars for family services and transported about 900 patients, including victims injured in traffic accidents, in the five years of its operation.

The voluntary society has to transport live victims and bodies per month on average from the accidents on the Yangon-Mandalay Highway to hospital, according to the Cetanashin Free Funeral and Ambulance Service Society.

“We are on alert around the clock. Whenever a citizen or the police call us, we go there to help them,” said Ko Min Aung, Secretary of the association.

The society has two ambulances, two cars for funeral services and one vehicle for transporting dead bodies from the location of the accident to hospital. There are about 100 members of the society, who contribute cash on a monthly basis to the society.

Free funeral provider calls for safety measures and improved hospitals to reduce death toll

Bago, 29 July—The free funeral and ambulance service society in Bago has called on the local government to enforce safety measures in various sectors and to upgrade a station hospital in Phayagyi Town to save more lives.

Phayagyi Town is located at a strategic place, sitting at the junction of the roads to Mandalay and Mawlamyine, only about five miles away from the Yangon-Mandalay Highway and 10 miles from Bago.

“We are prepared to donate blood and oxygen to patients and victims, but the hospital should be upgraded and improved,” said Soe Myint Khaing, the chairman of the ‘Cetanashin’ Free Funeral and Ambulance Service Society. Most of the patients transported by the society to hospital are people who were bitten by snakes or who were injured during hard labour, he said.

The free funeral and ambulance service society in Phayagyi Town has carried out 1,000 funeral services and transported about 900 patients, including victims injured in traffic accidents, in the five years of its operation.

Such accidents occurred on 23 June in Kamayut Township, the north central part of Yangon, killing a man and a woman, and on 30 June in North Okkalapa Township, the eastern part of the city, with the death of one man.

According to the police records, a total of 20 people died from electrocution in Yangon within 30 days of that period.

An official from the Yangon City Electricity Supply Board (YESB) estimated that the emergency replacement power cable in the city will cost over K37 billion.

Local business persons also expect better electricity infrastructure to reduce electricity outage which is a blow on their competitiveness in manufacturing sector against foreign products. Factory owners said that their facilities received as little as three hours of electricity a day in the summer months of 2013.

The data show that the 31 industrial zones of Yangon require a daily supply of 250 megawatts of electricity. Some 100 seafood factories were forced to shut down for two weeks as they could not access the electricity they needed to keep products frozen. Hundreds of tons of food were left to spoil as a result.

LDp’S No 2 man eyed for new Cabinet post for defence legislation

Tokyo, 29 July —
Prime Minister Shinzo Abe plans to replace Shigeru Ishiba as No 2 man in the ruling Liberal Democratic Party and has sounded him out about assuming a newly created Cabinet post for defence legislation, a party source said on Tuesday.

The envisioned changes will be part of Abe’s Cabinet reshuffle scheduled for the first week of September, his first since taking office in December 2012. The premier, who heads the LDP, will also reshuffle party executives.

Wide is being considered a potential future prime minister, LDP Secretary General Ishiba has refrained from making his stance clear on the proposed move, the source said.

Abe likely broached the idea to Ishiba when they spent about an hour over lunch last Thursday, hoping to tap the former defence minister’s knowledge and expertise in security policy ahead of parliamentary debate on the exercise of the right to collective self-defence, the source said.

Abe has decided to create a new ministerial position in charge of security legislation following the Cabinet’s on 1 July decision to reinterpret the pacifist Constitution to allow Japan to use the right to collective self-defence.

The premier, who aims to win a second term as LDP leader in September next year, appears keen to include Ishiba, who beat in the party presidential election in September 2012, in his Cabinet, political analysts said.

Israel strikes house of Hamas Gaza leader, digs in for long fight

GAZA/JERUSALEM, 29 July — Israel’s military pounded targets in the Gaza Strip on Tuesday after Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu said his country should prepare for a long conflict in the Palestinian enclave, squashing any hopes of a swift end to 22 days of fighting.

Israel strikes house of Hamas Gaza leader, digs in for long fight

Gaza residents reported heavy Israeli bombing in Gaza City.

Israel aircraft fired a missile at the house of Hamas Gaza leader Ismail Haniyeh and flattened it before dawn, causing damage but no casualties, Gaza’s interior ministry said.

At least 30 people were killed in Israeli assaults from air land and sea, residents said, in the most widespread night of attacks so far in the coastal enclave.

The Israeli military said five soldiers were killed in a battle with militants who crossed into Israel via a tunnel near the community of Nahal Oz, close to the Gaza border.

Israeli Army Radio said Hamas gunmen fired a rocket-propelled grenade at the soldiers who were in a watchtower and then tried to drag one of the soldiers’ bodies into the tunnel back to Gaza, but failed when troops fired at them, killing one militant.

“Hamas said nine of its fighters carried out the attack. They attacked a fortified military watch tower of Nahal Oz where there were a great number of occupation soldiers,” the group’s armed wing, said in a statement.

The incident on Monday raised to 10 the number of military fatalities for the day.

Hamas said that its broadcast outlets, Al-Aqsa TV and Al-Aqsa Radio, were also targeted. The television station continued to broadcast, but the radio station went silent. Residents said that 20 houses were destroyed during the night and two mosques were hit.

Israel launched its offensive on 8 July with the aim of halting rocket attacks by Hamas and its allies. It later ordered a land invasion to find and destroy the warren of Hamas tunnels that criss-crosses the border area.

Israel says some of those tunnels reach into Israel and are meant for perpetrating surprise attacks on residents of nearby towns, while other underground passages in Gaza serve as Hamas bunkers and weapon caches.

In a televised address on Monday night, a grim-faced Netanyahu said any solution to the crisis would require the demilitarization of the Palestinian territory, controlled by Hamas Islamists and their militant allies.

“We will not finish the operation without neutralizing the tunnels, which have the sole purpose of destroying our citizens, killing our children,” Netanyahu said.

As night fell, army flares illuminated the sky and the sound of intense shelling was heard. The military warned thousands of Palestinians to flee their homes around Gaza City — usually the prelude to major army strikes.

“We need to be prepared for a lengthy campaign. We will continue to act with force and discretion until our mission is accomplished,” Netanyahu said. A number of rockets fired from Gaza were launched toward southern and central Israel, including the Tel Aviv area. At least one rocket was intercepted by the Iron Dome system. No casualties or damage were reported.

“His threats do not frighten either Hamas or the Palestinian people, and the (Israeli) occupation will pay the price for its massacres against children and civilians,” Hamas spokesman Sami Abu Zuhri told Kyodo News.

West agrees wider Russia sanctions as Kiev says forces near crash site

KYIV/DONETSK, 29 July — US and European leaders agreed on Monday to impose wider sanctions on Russia’s financial, defence and energy sectors as Ukraine said its forces advanced toward the crash site of Malaysian flight MH17.

The new sanctions, which US President Barack Obama and leaders of Germany, Britain, France and Italy discussed in a conference call, are aimed at increasing the pressure on Russian President Vladimir Putin after the Malaysian airliner was shot down over territory held by pro-Moscow rebels in eastern Ukraine.

“It’s precisely because we’ve not yet seen a strategic turn from Putin that we believe it’s absolutely essential to take additional measures and that’s what the Europeans and the United States intend to do this week,” said Tony Blinken, a national security adviser to Obama.

The crash earlier this month has led to calls for much tougher action against Russia from Western countries who had previously imposed sanctions but only on small numbers of individuals and firms. EU member states were expected to try to reach a final deal on Tuesday on stronger measures that would include closing the bloc’s capital markets to Russian state banks, an embargo on future arms sales and restrictions on energy technology and technology that could be used for defence.

In Brussels, EU sources said diplomats had reached preliminary agreement on a new list of companies and people, including associates of Putin, to be targeted by asset freezes.

Western states believe that the rebels brought down Malaysia Airlines flight MH17, with the loss of 298 lives, using a missile supplied by Russia.

“The latest information that we’ve gotten suggests that even since MH17 was shot down, Russia continues to transfer weapons across the border and to provide practical support to the separatists,” said a statement issued by British Prime Minister David Cameron after the leaders’ call. “Leaders agreed that the international community should therefore impose further costs on Russia and specifically that ambassadors from across the EU should agree a strong package of sectoral sanctions as swiftly as possible.”

Russia has blamed the Ukrainian military for the tragedy, which deepened a pro-Moscow Ukrainian president was forced from power and Russia annexed Crimea in March.

US welcomes Japan’s additional sanctions on Russia

TOKYO, 29 July — The United States on Tuesday thanked Japan for unveiling additional sanctions on Russia in the wake of the downing of a Malaysian airliner in an area controlled by pro-Moscow separatists in Ukraine, according to the Foreign Ministry.

Secretary of State John Kerry expressed gratitude in telephone talks with Foreign Minister Fumio Kishida a day after Japan announced a set of additional sanctions on Russia including the freezing of assets held in Japan by individuals or groups directly involved in Russia’s annexation of Crimea or the instability in eastern Ukraine.

Kishida told Kerry that the additional sanctions represent Japan’s desire to show solidarity with other members of the Group of Seven industrialized nations, the ministry said.

US President Vladimir Putin

Washington, 29 July — In another sign of deteriorating relations between the United States and Russia, the US government said on Monday that Moscow had violated the Intermediate Range Nuclear Forces treaty, and urged immediate bilateral talks on the issue.

The Cold War treaty, ratified in 1988, was designed to eliminate ground-launched cruise missiles with ranges of 500 to 3,500 km (310 to 2,175 miles). “This is a very serious matter which we have attempted to address with Russia for some time now,” an administration official said in a statement.

“We encourage Russia to return to compliance with its obligations under the treaty and to eliminate any prohibited items in a verifiable manner,” the official said.

The official did not describe how Russia violated the treaty. But the New York Times had reported in January that Washington informed its NATO partners that Russia had tested a ground-launched cruise missile.

State Department officials had hinted that a formal determination that Russia had violated the treaty could be forthcoming, said Daryl Kimball, executive director of the Arms Control Association, a Washington-based research and advocacy group.

He said the violation would not represent a new military threat to the United States and its European allies, given Russia’s existing missile arsenal.

In an interview, Kimball called the infractions “disturbing.”

China calls for enhanced peacekeeping cooperation between UN, regional organizations

United Nations, 29 July — A Chinese envoy on Monday called for enhanced peacekeeping cooperation and coordination between the United Nations and regional organizations so as to maximize their respective advantages.

Liu Jieyi, China’s permanent representative to the United Nations, made the remarks here at the Security Council’s open debate on regional partnership and its evolution in UN peacekeeping, which focused on the world organization’s relevant cooperation with African regional groups.

Over the recent years, the United Nations and regional and subregional organizations such as the African Union (AU) have increasingly strengthened their cooperation in peacekeeping and have yielded good and recognizable results in peacekeeping operations in Darfur of Sudan, Somalia, Mali, Central African Republic and South Sudan, Liu told the 15-nation body.

“The United Nations needs to further strengthen cooperation with regional organizations such as the AU in strategic planning, deployment, coordination and provision of peacekeeping mechanisms, so as to effectively support African regional organizations in their efforts to maintain regional peace and security,” he said.

Meanwhile, the Chinese envoy noted, the United Nations and regional organizations such as the AU should be guided by the UN Charter in strengthening their cooperation in peacekeeping operations.

The coordination should also be enhanced to fully display their respective advantages and to bring out synergy, he added.

Many of the African issues are very complicated and require comprehensive solutions. In this regard, regional organizations such as the AU have unique geographical, historical and cultural advantages in dispute mediation and peacekeeping operations, said the ambassador. — Xinhua

UNSG’s Message on World Day against Trafficking in Persons

New Light of Myanmar Wednesday, 30 July, 2014

Following is UN Secretary-General Ban Kimoon’s message for World Day against Trafficking in Persons, to be observed on 30 July:

Human trafficking is a callous global industry that denies victims their rights and dignity and generates billions of dollars for organized criminal networks. Most of those trafficked are vulnerable women and children deceived into a life of suffering. They are exploited for sex and forced to work in conditions akin to slavery.

This World Day against Trafficking in Persons is a call to action to end this crime and give hope to the victims, who often live unrecognized among us. To stop the traffickers, we must sever funding pipelines and seize assets. I urge all countries to ratify and fully implement the United Nations Convention against Transnational Organized Crime and its Protocol on Trafficking in Persons.

Enforcement, cross-border cooperation and information-sharing can all be effective, but ending human trafficking also means tackling the root causes. Extreme poverty, entrenched inequality and a lack of education and opportunity create the vulnerabilities that traffickers exploit. Ultimately, the best protection is to accelerate development for all.

Victims of trafficking who are fortunate enough to be freed need assistance to regain their rights and reintegrate into society. The United Nations Voluntary Trust Fund for Victims of Trafficking in Persons, Especially Women and Children, works on their behalf but needs additional funding. I appeal to everyone to support the United Nations campaign “Have a Heart for Victims of Human Trafficking.”

Let us open our eyes to this crime and our hearts to the victims. It is time to say no to human trafficking. — UN ICY Tong

"You are only one inch … one step … one idea … away from turning onto the boulevard of beauty in your own life.”

Bob Proctor

The RAZOR’S EDGE is a metaphor. It is a symbolism. Razer’s Edge symbolizes “making a difference”. It is a question of “To Be or Not to Be”.

The Japanese Haiku:

The old pond,
A frog jumps in;
Plop!

This Haiku is just a symbolism portraying the act of making a difference. Life is symbolized by “the old pond”. A frog symbolizes a human being. Is a human being as happy to jump into the pond of life as the frog that jumps into the old pond without a hint of worry? A frog is happier in water than on land. So, it jumps into the pond, making a difference. “To jump or not to jump” is a RAZOR’S EDGE.

Would you promptly jump into the old pond of routine job that is your rice bowl? Or, would you hesitate, unlike the frog, to jump into the old pond of bread-winning work? It will make a RAZOR’S EDGE if you have the habit of “DOING SMALL THINGS WITH GREAT LOVE”, as Mother Teresa said.

“One person ‘just about’ starts a project, the other person starts it. One individual “almost” completes a task, the other does complete it. One person sees an opportunity, the other acts on it. One student “nearly” passes the exam, the other does pass it — and although the difference in their marks may be only one percentage point out of a hundred, it’s that one point that makes all the difference.”

Bob Proctor

There will be a tremendous difference in people of an organization abandon ARROGANCE, GREED, COMPLAICENCY, INCONSISTENCY and MYOPIA, and establish a culture of mutual respect, excellent performance and caring service.

There will be a great difference in our country, if its PEOPLE are genuinely united in their PASSIONATE STRUGGLE for PEACE, PROGRESS and PROSPERITY. And it will certainly be a RAZOR’S EDGE, if ALL the PEOPLE of our country THINK, SPEAK AND ACT with the BELIEF in the policy of “ONE for ALL and ALL for ONE”.

There will be a great difference in the whole wide world, if the “LOVE” of PEOPLE, PLANET and PROSPERITY PREVAILS.

In conclusion, there will be a tremendous difference if there are:

• Health & Strength
• Vision & Strategy
• Passion & Valuen
• Selflessness & Service
• Character & Competence

In our daily endeavors for personal achievement as well as the organizational accomplishments, including the Corporate Social Responsibility—CSR.

Huge blaze out of control in Tripoli battle as Libya slides into chaos

Tripoli, 29 July — A huge fuel depot in Libya’s capital burned out of control on Monday, set ablaze in fighting between rival militias that has driven the country to chaos three years after the NATO-backed revolt that toppled Muammar Gaddafi.

Combat over control of the nearby airport forced firefighters to withdraw, abandoning their attempts to extinguish the blaze ignited by a missile strike that hit millions of litres of fuel.

Foreign governments have looked on powerless as anarchy sweeps across the North African oil producer. Western countries have urged their nationals to leave, shut their embassies and pulled diplomats out after two weeks of clashes among rival factions of former rebels killed nearly 160 people in Tripoli and the eastern city of Benghazi.

The Netherlands, the Philippines and Austria on Monday prepared to evacuate diplomatic staff. The United States, United Nations and Turkish embassies have already shut operations after the worst violence since 2011 uprising.

Two rival brigades of former rebels fighting for control of Tripoli International Airport have pounded each other’s positions with Grafa rockets, artillery fire and cannons for two weeks, turning the south of the capital into a battlefield.

“it is out of control. The second tank has been hit and the firefighters have withdrawn from the site as the fighting has resumed in the area,” said Mohamed Al-Harriai, a spokesman for the national oil company said of the blaze, which choked the sky above the city with black smoke.

Medical supplies delivered to Palestinian refugees in Syria for first time since January

United Nations, 29 July — For the first time since January, a UN aid agency was able to distribute basic healthcare items and medicines to the Palestinians in need in a refugee camp in Syria, a UN spokesman said here on Monday.

The UN Relief and Works Agency for Palestinian Refugees (UNRWA) delivered the humanitarian aid to the Palestinian refugees in Yarmouk camp, south of Damascus, the capital of Syria, the deputy UN spokesman, Farhan Haq, said at a daily news briefing here.

“Despite this positive development, the Relief and Works Agency was forced to halt the distribution of food in the camp over the weekend due to lack of authorization, interrupting food distributions that have been taking place since 16 July,” he said.

The Yarmouk camp is a large district in southern Damascus. Among its 1 million residents, 170,000 are Palestinian. Most of them flee to Syria in 1948 following the establishment of the Israeli state.

The Syrian forces have imposed a siege on Yarmouk for months, blocking the entry of food and medical supplies in a bid to drive out the rebels, who stormed the camp earlier last year and have since entrenched there in hopes to use it as a staging ground for attacks on Damascus.

In January, the Syrian government agreed to allow in a couple of food convoys. But rebels opened fire at the convoys at the entrance. The Syrian authorities accused the rebels, mostly al-Qaeda linked fighters, of using the civilians as a human shield and causing them immense suffering.

Five killed in Nigeria’s bomb attacks

Lagos, 29 July — Two female suicide bombers on Monday struck in separate incidents in Nigeria’s northwest Kano city, capital of Kano State in northern Nigeria, killing three others.

It came barely 24 hours after two bomb explosions in the city.

The spokesman of the police in Kano, Magaji Majiya, said the first incident happened around 10:30 am local time at Hao Toro on Maiduguri Road when the female bomber disguised as a kerosene buyer and joined other buyers on a queue.

He said after joining the queue, she detonated the explosive, killed herself and three others.

The spokesman said seven other persons sustained injuries and were receiving treatment at the Aminu Kano Teaching Hospital.

He said that in the second incident, the 19-year-old female suicide bomber was denied access to the fair ground when she arrived.

He added that when the young lady insisted on entering the trade fair complex, the security insisted on searching her and she detonated the bomb.

Majiya said that six people were injured and were receiving medical attention, urging residents to be vigilant and report suspicious moves to the police.

No group has claimed responsibility for the twin attacks.

Afghan president’s cousin killed in Kandahar bombing

Kandahar, (Afghanistan), 29 July — Cousin of Afghan President Hamid Karzai, Hashmat Khalil Karzai, was killed following a suicide bomb attack in southern Kandahar Province on Tuesday morning, sources said.

“The attacker was among visitors of the Eid-ul-Fitr festival. He made his way into Khalil Karzai’s house. He detonated explosive hiding in his turban after approaching Karzai,” a source told Xinhua anonymously.

He said the blast took place at around 10:00 am local time. The exact number of casualties remained unknown, the source said, adding an investigation was launched into the incident and details will be released afterwards.

Khalil Karzai was a winner in 2014 provincial council election. He was also campaign manager of Dr Ashraf Ghani Ahmadzai, a presidential candidate.

Oshkosh, (Wisconsin), 29 July — Honda Aircraft Co aims to expand its market for the HondaJet to Latin America within a few years, before moving into China and Southeast Asia, the company’s chief Michimasa Fujino said on Monday.

Fujino, president and CEO of the aviation arm of Honda Motor Co, said the company could also eventually move into Japan as the country gears up to host the Olympic Games in 2020.

“I personally hope to make some contributions toward the 2020 Tokyo Olympics if groundwork is done for the business jet market and support arrangements,” Fujino said.

Fujino spoke to Kyodo News as his company unveiled its first production model of the HondaJet at an air show in Oshkosh, Wisconsin, giving the light jet its public debut.

The company, based in Greensboro, North Carolina, said it has received orders for more than 100 units in North America and Europe for the jet targeted at wealthy individuals, corporate executives and air taxi services, with delivery expected to start in 2015. It carries a $4.5 million price tag.

In Latin America, Fujino expressed strong interest in Brazil. “We would like to make an entry there as early as possible, because it has a very strong demand for business jets, given a large number of high net-worth individuals,” China is also “a very promising market,” he said, raising hopes for extending its reach to the East Asian country along with Southeast Asian markets such as Indonesia, Malaysia and Thailand in five to seven years.

At an air show Press conference, Fujino said, “The unwrapped first production unit is the crystallization of a Honda dream and demonstrates our passion for aircraft.”

The roughly 13 metre-long plane is powered by two engines installed over main wings and has a spacious interior, the company says. Its standard model can seat up to six people including the crew.

The company expects to start deliveries to clients after acquiring airworthiness certification from the US Federal Aviation Administration in the first quarter of 2015. At the EAA AirVenture show, scheduled for Monday through Sunday, HondaJet drew a throng of spectators.

Even running for several minutes daily reduces risk of death

Washington, 29 July — Even running for only a few minutes a day can significantly reduce a person’s risk of death from cardiovascular disease, a new US study said on Monday.

“Since time is one of the strongest barriers to participate in physical activity, the study may motivate more people to start running and continue to run as an attainable health goal for mortality benefits,” said lead author Duck-chul Lee, assistant professor of the Iowa State University.

In the new study, researchers studied 55,137 participants who ran less than an hour per week, found that runners who ran 6 miles (about 9.6 kilometres) six times per week had a 50 percent lower risk of death for any reason and 60 percent lower risk of death from heart disease or stroke. — Xinhu

Panasonic to initially invest $200-300 million in Tesla battery plant

Tokyo, 29 July — Panasonic Corp plans to initially invest about 20 billion to 30 billion yen ($200-300 million) in Tesla Motors Inc’s planned lithium-ion battery plant in the United States, a person familiar with the matter said on Tuesday.

The Japanese company, which already supplies batteries for the electric vehicle maker, will ultimately invest about $1 billion in the planned $5 billion battery “Gigafactory”, the person said.

The figures for Panasonic’s investments were first reported by the Nikkei business daily earlier on Tuesday.

A Panasonic spokesman declined to confirm the investment figures, saying that while the company has signed a letter of intent to participate in the Tesla battery project and was in talks on the matter, no concrete decisions had been made. — Reuters

AstraZeneca taps Roche, Qiagen for new blood-based cancer drug tests

London, 29 July — AstraZeneca has signed up Roche and Qiagen to develop two separate diagnostic tests, both using simple blood samples, to identify patients who will benefit from its lung cancer drugs.

The two tests are based on computer technology that can detect small fragments of DNA in the plasma taken from patients’ blood.

The collaboration with Qiagen involves developing such a test to accompany AstraZeneca’s established lung cancer pill Iressa, while the agreement with Roche is for a companion diagnostic to go with AstraZeneca’s experimental drug candidate called AZD9291.

AZD9291 targets a genetic mutation that helps tumors evade existing treatments and AstraZeneca believes it could sell as much as $3 billion a year.

The mutation, known as T790M, develops in about half of lung cancers that become resistant to current epidermal growth factor receptor inhibitors like Iressa. — Reuters

UN blacklists operator of North Korean ship seized in Panama

United Nations, 29 July — A UN Security Council committee on Monday blacklisted the operator of a North Korean ship, which was seized near the Panama Canal last year for smuggling Soviet-era arms, and raised concerns about Cuba’s military cooperation with Pyongyang.

The North Korean (DPRK) sanctions committee designated Ocean Maritime Management Company, Ltd. (OMM), for its alleged role in the Chong Chon Gang, the ship detained a year ago carrying arms, including two MiG-21 jet fighters, under thousands of tonnes of sugar.

The company is now subject to an international asset freeze and a travel ban. North Korea is under an array of United Nations and US and other countries’ sanctions for nuclear and ballistic missile tests since 2006 in defiance of global demands to stop.

Ocean Maritime Management, which operated the Chong Chon Gang, Cuba acknowledged it was sending “obsolete” Soviet-era weapons to be repaired in North Korea and then returned to Cuba.

US ambassador to the United Nations, Samantha Power, described the Chong Chon Gang incident as “a cynical, outrageous and illegal attempt by Cuba and North Korea to circumvent United Nations sanctions.” She said the Security Council committee had “found no credible facts that clearly prove Cuba and the DPRK’s intentions to violate sanctions by employing highly sophisticated deception and obfuscation techniques.”

A UN report issued in March said North Korea has developed sophisticated ways to circumvent United Nations sanctions, including the suspected use of its embassies abroad to facilitate an illegal trade in weapons. The Security Council committee said on Monday that investigation found evidence that North Korean officials in Havana helped make arrangements for the Chong Chon Gang shipment.

The committee encourages states to continue to exercise enhanced vigilance over DPRK diplomatic personnel,” it said.

Airlines to push for independent guidance on airspace safety after Ukraine crash

Montreal/Toronto, 29 July — Global airlines will push to get “neutral information” on whether to use or avoid airspace over conflict zones at Tuesday’s meeting of the UN aviation agency and other airline bodies, a European-based airline industry source said.

The UN agency, the International Civil Aviation Organization (ICAO), has invited the heads of the airline industry, airports and the world’s air traffic control networks to the Montreal meeting to discuss what needs to be changed to ensure that airline operators are flying in secure airspace after the downing of a Malaysian airliner over Ukraine on 17 July took 298 lives.

The meeting is likely to hear calls for wider international powers to intervene when a country fails to monitor threats to its airspace.

The Malaysia Airlines crash occurred after Ukraine left open air corridors that lay within the range of the missiles aimed for destroying the jet.

Airlines, represented by International Air Transport Association, will tell the meeting they urgently need improved access to “neutral information based on objective criteria,” the industry source said.

“Airlines do not have CIA operatives working for them,” said the source who spoke on condition of anonymity.

“At the end of the day, airlines have to decide whether to fly or not based on accurate information.”

Yet some countries will never, ever say there is a problem with their airspace even if there really is a problem with their airspace. This does not make it easy for airlines.”

On Monday, Emirates Airlines announced it would stop flying over Iraq to protect against the threat of militants on the ground.

ICAO currently has a limited role and cannot open or close airspace. It is understood this year, warning of a jurisdictional risk posed by two sets of air traffic controllers directing traffic over the Crimean region.

Enhancing ICAO’s role to give it the authority to tell airlines where to fly, or to tell its members what to do with their airspace, would test rules that dates back to World War One peace agreements and are enshrined in ICAO’s founding charter.

It would also require the agency to obtain sensitive information from its member states about their internal military and political affairs.

Diplomats say any attempt to tamper with the sovereignty of airspace could set broader precedents that make quick results unlikely. The United States has already said it is not seeking changes to ICAO’s guidelines.

The Civil Air Navigation Services Organization, involved in Tuesday’s meeting, has also said it is not pushing for a central system.

But governments may not be eager to share sensitive military intelligence, and singling out particular regions could anger some states.

Where ICAO has success is where they keep governments to tell airlines in broad terms.

Instead, ICAO’s guidelines state that airlines must avoid “sensitive airspace.”

Even if there is a consensus in favor of expanding ICAO’s role in some ways, it may not last.

“Where there are challenges, people want ICAO to get involved,” said a second council representative.

“But when we are further away from problems, the states would like ICAO to go away.”

Britain cuts EU migrants’ access to welfare payments

London, 29 July — British Prime Minister David Cameron said on Tuesday he was setting out new rules to cut European migrants’ access to social security payments, marking the latest in a string of British measures aimed at addressing voters’ concerns over immigration.

Writing in The Daily Telegraph newspaper, Cameron said that from November migrants coming to Britain from the European Union to find work would be subject to tough new sanctions if they were found to be receiving benefits, even if they were working. He also proposed that other EU migrants coming to Britain who do not work should be subjected to pay the same contribution to the national insurance as Britons.

Cameron said that EU migrants in Britain do not currently pay the same contributions as Britons and that he was proposing that they should have to do so.

The changes would be introduced over a five-year period, he said, and would include a seven-month waiting period for migrants to prove they have a job offer before they can claim social security benefits.

Cameron said that EU migrants would not be entitled to claim unemployment and child benefits for three months, rather than the previous six months.

Opinion polls show immigration is one of voters’ biggest concerns going into a national election in 2015, fuelling a rise in euro-sceptic sentiment that has helped the anti-EU UK Independence Party (UKIP) draw voters away from Cameron’s Conservatives.

In a bid to stop voters defecting, Cameron has said he wants to curtail net migration and has targeted those who he says come to Britain solely to tap its benefits system.

“We’re ... making sure people come for the right reasons, which has meant addressing the magnetic pull of Britain’s benefits system,” Cameron said.

He said that by restricting job seekers’ welfare access to only three months he was sending a clear message to potential migrants: “You cannot expect to come to Britain and get something for nothing.”

The opposition Labour party has criticized Cameron for not doing enough to stop low-skilled migrants driving wages down. Other rule changes introduced since January have included tightening the criteria for claimants and mandating longer waiting periods before migrants become eligible for payments. — Reuters

Marvel cranks up sarcasm and 70s sound for ‘Guardians of Galaxy’

BURBANK, (California), 29 July — A lead actor known for playing the slovenly sidekick, a director who only made small films, a talking raccoon and a 1970s pop music soundtrack — together they form an unlikely tableau for a mega-budget space adventure movie. And yet, Marvel Studios banked on these outliers for its $70 million launch of the new franchise “Guardians of the Galaxy,” a novel combination of sarcasm and sci-fi that opens in US theaters on Friday and could be the late summer’s box office hit.

If it delivers on that promise, “Guardians” will show that the Walt Disney Co studio can score with its more obscure comics like it has with the popular “Iron Man” and “Captain America.”— Reuters

Nicki Minaj delays ‘Anaconda’ release

LONDON, 29 July — Rapper Nicki Minaj has postponed the release of her new single ‘Anaconda’ until next month. Minaj, 31, was due to drop her latest release on Sunday but announced in an Instagram post that it will not be available until 4 August, reported Contactmusic.

“My darlings, I’ve pushed the release of Anaconda to next week, Monday 8/4. I promise you will understand why before the week is out. Love you (sic),” she said. Minaj previously revealed she was going back to her hip hop roots for her new album ‘The Pink Print’.

The ‘Starships’ rapper claimed her latest material will be nothing like previous offerings. “The tracks on ‘Pink Print’ are back to my hip-hop roots. I don’t think it’s something that I’m necessarily trying to do (go in a new direction). It’s like as soon as I started working on my new album, that’s just the songs that I’ve been writing.” — PTI

“Transformers 4” earns 317 mln USD in China

BEIJING, 29 July — “Transformers: Age of Extinction,” the fourth installment in the robot movie franchise, earned 1.97 billion yuan (about 317.2 million US dollars) on the Chinese mainland in its month-long run ending on 27 July . The movie’s ticket sales were close to the average market forecast of 2 billion yuan, the Beijing News reported on Tuesday.

The paper reported that “Transformers 4” ended its run as scheduled. Though distributors tried to extend its screening, the cost of doing so discouraged them, it added. Box office earnings for the Hollywood blockbuster have eclipsed those of James Cameron’s fantasy “Avatar” to become the all-time top-grossing film on the Chinese mainland.— Xinhua

LOS ANGELES, 29 July — Sandra Bullock enjoyed her 50th birthday celebration at a cowboy bar in Wyoming with friends. The ‘Gravity’ actress, who reached the milestone age on 26 July, began her festivities by heading to the Million Dollar Cowboy Bar in Jackson Hole, Wyoming, with a group of female friends, reported People magazine.

“There were probably six to ten women in the group. It appeared to be a ladies night. They just came in to listen to the band,” a source said.

Though the group, which included Chelsea Handler, did not seem to be dancing, they all had a great time. “It was pretty low key. They all had one drink... And were all dressed casually. Sandra looked radiant, beautiful and was very sweet. It looked like she was having a blast,” the source added. Bullock and Handler have been close friends for years. — PTI

Japan’s June job availability up to 1.10, best in 22 years

General

Tokyo, 29 July — Japan’s job availability improved in June to its best level in 22 years, as companies were eager to hire more workers amid labour shortages in a wide range of industries such as healthcare and construction, with the economy recuperating, the government said on Tuesday.

The unemployment rate, however, rose for the first time in 10 months to 3.7 percent during the month from 3.5 percent in May, the Ministry of Internal Affairs and Communications said. A ministry official attributed the climb to more women seeking employment due to economic recovery.

The ratio of unemployment offers to seekers increased for the 19th straight month to 1.10 in June from 1.09 in the previous month, which means 110 positions were available for every 100 job seekers, the Ministry of Health, Labor and Welfare said. It was the highest level since June 1992, soon after the burst of the country’s asset-inflated bubble economy.

The unemployment rate for men increased 0.1 percentage point from May to 3.8 percent, and that for women rose 0.3 point to 3.5 percent, the internal affairs ministry said.

The number of unemployed people rose 110,000, or 4.7 percent, from the previous month to 2.44 million, as those voluntarily quitting jobs went up 0.4 percent to 920,000, and those doing so involuntarily also climbed 1.4 percent to 720,000, the ministry said.

By industry, the agricultural and forestry industry and the manufacturing sector cut jobs from a year earlier in June, though the healthcare and welfare sector, the wholesale and retail sales segment as well as the construction industry boosted jobs, it said.

The employment situation has been picking up. We often see a rise in the unemployment rate when the economy is recovering, as more people try to join the job market,” the ministry official said.

But Japan’s economy has shown signs of slowing down, with the 3-percent-age-point consumption tax hike to 8 percent hurting private spending in the absence of wage growth, dampening corporate profits and worsening the employment situation ahead, some analysts said.

Doomed South Korean ferry boss’ driver turns himself in Seoul, 29 July — The driver of the South Korean businessman wanted over the sinking of a ferry that killed more than 300 people in April turned himself in on Tuesday, potentially unlocking the mystery of the man’s final days after the disaster.

Prosecutors in the port city of Incheon said the driver, who ran a network of companies, turned himself in at their office, which is leading the investigation into the role of businessman Yoo Byung-un in the sinking of the ferry Sewol.

The structurally defective and heavily overloaded ferry capsized and sank on a routine journey on 16 April, killing 304 people, 250 of them teenagers from the same school on a class field trip. Twelve of their teachers were also killed.

The trial of 13 surviving crew members, including the captain, resumed on Monday with evidence from some of the 75 teenagers who survived South Korea’s worst maritime disaster.

The crew members face charges ranging from homicide to negligence for abandoning the ship after telling passengers, including the teenage students, to remain on board.

Yoo is thought by authorities to have been with Yoo, the head of a family that ran a network of companies that included the ferry operator, in the days before his body was found by a farmer at an orchard on 12 June.

Police only identified the badly decomposed body as that of Yoo last week, although an autopsy and other extensive testing failed to indicate how he died or came to be in the orchard, forensic experts have said.

The driver Yang was the last among a group of people close to Yoo who had been wanted for allegedly helping him elude South Korea’s biggest manhunt. — Reuters

Iraq lays claim to Kurdish crude cargo in Texas court

Houston, 29 July — Iraq filed suit on Monday in a Texas court to gain control of a cargo of crude oil from Iraqi Kurdistan that Baghdad says was sold without its permission.

The United Kalavrvta tanker, carrying some 1 million barrels of crude worth about $100 million, arrived off the coast of Texas on Saturday but has yet to unload its disputed cargo.

The ship, which is too large to enter the port of Galveston near Houston, was given clearance by the US Coast Guard on Sunday to transfer its cargo offshore to smaller boats that would deliver it to the US mainland.

Iraq, in its filing in US District Court for the Southern District of Texas, asked for an order allowing the cargo to be seized by the US Marshals Service.

Sale of Kurdish crude oil to a US refinery would infuriate Baghdad, which sees such deals as smuggling.

The US State Department has expressed fears that independent oil sales from Kurdistan could contribute to the breakup of Iraq, said the oil belongs to all Iraqis, and warned potential buyers of legal risks.

But it has also made clear it will not intervene in a commercial transaction.

AET Offshore Servicess, a company in Texas, hired to unload the tanker, asked in a separate court filing in US district court on Monday if Iraq’s claims were valid. — Reuters
Van Gaal
relishes task of emulating Ferguson at United

New York, 29 July — New coach Louis van Gaal has welcomed the challenge of trying to emulate the great Alex Ferguson at Manchester United and is confident his record of managing big clubs will stand him in good stead.

Ferguson won 38 trophies in 26 success-laden seasons at Old Trafford and the task of following in his footsteps at United finished seventh in the Premier League campaign that ended in May.

“I had to follow Bobby Robson at Barcelona and that year he won three titles,” Van Gaal told reporters on Monday during the club’s pre-season tour of the United States.

“I have been at Ajax — the biggest club in the Netherlands — I went to Barcelona — the biggest club in Spain — and then I went to Bayern Munich, also the number one in Germany”.

“So when Manchester United came I thought I had to say ‘yes’.”

Van Gaal’s winning mentality and intimidating style has brought comparisons with Ferguson.

“I highly respect Alex because there is not another trainer or manager who has won so many titles,” said the 62-year-old Dutchman who led his country to the semi-finals of the World Cup in Brazil earlier this month.

“I have won a lot of titles but he has won so many with one club and that is fantastic. When you compare Alex with me I am very proud”. Van Gaal said he would take his time before making up his mind on possible signings.

“I don’t buy players for the sake of it,” he explained. “I buy players to improve my selection. First I must see what I need in all the positions from the system we shall play and, at this moment, I don’t know for sure”.

Ronaldinho to announce future on Wednesday

“I can’t call on Ronaldinho anymore,” Culpi told SportV on Monday. “His cycle with us has ended.

“It’s unfortunate because he’s an idol to all of us. Everyone loves his football, the way he plays and he’s a very charismatic person”.

“But that’s the way it goes. He’s leaving and we must move on without him”.

Ronaldinho’s availability is said to have sparked the interest of Flamengo, Besiktas, Queens Park Rangers and Boca Juniors.

His brother and agent Roberto Assis would not be drawn on the former Barcelo- na star’s future, but ruled out any plans for retirement.

“He will play until he is 42,” Assis told Globoesporte. “The future we will reveal to you on Wednesday.”

Ronaldinho joined Atletico in June 2012 after a turbulent spell with Rio de Janeiro giants Flamengo.

The ensuing 12 months were regarded by many as the playmaker’s best period since his Barcelona peak in the mid-2000s, when he twice won FIFA’s World Player of the Year award.

Judge proceeds with fraud charges against Messi

Madrid, 29 July — A judge in the town of Gava, close to Barcelona, has turned down the request of the prosecutor to drop charges of tax evasion against FC Barcelona and Ar- gentine footballer Leo Messi, and has given orders to proceed with the case.

The decision means Messi will almost certainly have to defend himself in court alongside his father, Jorge Messi, on three charges of tax evasion.

The judge rejected the prosecutor’s request to drop the case against Messi, maintaining it being only against Jorge Messi, because he considers there exist “sufficient indication” to consider that the footballer “could have known and given his consent to...”
