China (Taipei) to open door to Myanmar workers

By Khanting Thanda Lwin

YANGON, 3 Aug — U Min Hlaing, chairman of Myanmar Overseas Employment Agencies Federation (MOEAF), told the New Light of Myanmar that Myanmar workers in China (Taipei) and those in other countries are ready to allow Myanmar workers when the Myanmar government gives the green light.

Both sides are working on sending Myanmar workers during this year, he added.

The federation is planning to submit this matter on Monday to the Ministry of Labour, Employment and Social Security.

According to his observation in China (Taipei), U Min Hlaing said Myanmar workers will have easy access to food and accommodation and that they will fully enjoy labour rights as factories in China (Taipei) are following the rules of the International Labour Organization (ILO).

There will be fewer problems between employers and employees compared with other countries, he suggested.

The chairman said the federation has further plans to open a pre-departure training course for workers who will go to Malaysia and Thailand at the end of August, at Pinlon Hall in Dagon Myothit (North) Township in Yangon, aimed at familiarizing them with the etiquettes of these countries.—NLM

Ancient artifact copper sulphate ornament on view at village museum in Wetlet Tsp

WETLET, 3 Aug — Artifacts of the Pyu culture, including an ornament made of copper sulphate crystals, are being displayed for public observation at the Sayadaw U Naga Museum in Nyaungkoebin Monastery of Hanlin Model Village in Wetlet Township of Sagaing Region.

Most of the artifacts in Pyu era such as ornaments, colourful beads and other materials made of stones and bones can be seen at the museums, but there are a few ornaments made of copper sulphate in typical blue-green colour.

“Stone rings, colourfull beads and the artifacts made of bones used in Pyu era can be excavated at the ancient cultural areas. I think the Pyu people might not wear them daily. These ornaments might be used at grand ceremonies. The ornaments made of copper sulphate are very rare products,” said Nyaungkoebin Sayadaw Bhaddanta Tejaniya, who acts as curator.

The museum showcases various sizes and types of earthenware, beads, stone ornaments, Pyu coins and stone weapons, one (See page 3)

More than 200 vacancies available for job seekers from closed Master Sports Factory

Yangon, 3 Aug — The Factory and General Labour Law Inspection Department under the Ministry of Labour, Employment and Social Security held a press conference on Saturday in Yangon to discuss the problem of workers from Master Sports Factory.

The shoe factory in Hlinthaya Industrial Zone owned by a South Korean shut down in June, leaving more than 700 workers jobless, most from rural areas, who are facing difficulties in getting another job. Now, those workers are claiming remaining salaries and compensation from the owner under the law, said the leader of the workers Tun Tun Naing.

At the press conference, 14 shoe factories in Yangon pledged to create job opportunities for more than 200 workers thanks to U Win Shein, Director-General of the department who held negotiations between employers and employees. He also made a request to employ those workers at the shoe factories and urged the employers to apply for jobs not only at shoe factories but also at garment factories and other industries.

U Aung Naing, member of the Hlinthaya Township Consultation Body, said the problem absolutely depends on the owner and that the Union Minister has already presented an aide-memoire to the ambassador of the Republic of Korea to Myanmar on 10 July in Nay Pyi Taw to take action against the factory owner.—NLM

Thai opens additional 53 registration centres for migrant workers

Yangon, 3 Aug — Thailand’s military government issued an official statement of 113/2557 to open additional 53 registration centres for migrant workers from Myanmar, Cambodia and Laos.

The Kingdom has already set up 23 centres for application of work permits in some district. A total of 75 centres will operate registration processes from 28 July this year to 31 March 2015, according to the official statement.

Moreover, the period will be extended six months for those who could not finish the process of passport application in time.

A migrant workers advocacy group said that although Thai military has reformed policies on migration, the lack of full authorities by the 107th Naga Nation administration could not adopt.

However, migrant workers have to contact with brokers causing more expenses.—NLM

Lacquer ware Buddha images attract local people for obeisance in Hsipaw

HSIPAW, 3 Aug — Hsipaw Township located in northern Shan State has plenty of ancient pagodas and stupas.

Agga Maha Saddhamma Jotikadhaja Bhaddanta Labbhavamsa had urged the local people and disciples to pay homage to Presiding Nayaka of Bhaddanta Milinda of Aungmingala Boedaw Monastery of the township.

Sayadaw Bhaddanta Milinda assigned duty to Myanamar lacquer ware expert U Sai Mai Hsai to make a lacquer ware Buddha image at the Myatswedaw Dhammayon of the monastery.

The Buddha image was made of bamboo straps by lacquer ware experts U Bo Ni, U Hsai Mai, U Thaw Mana, U Thein Win, U Kyaw Tun and U Sai Aung Nyunt from Teinchay Teinsan Village of Hsipaw Township as of 2001.

The lacquer ware Buddha image identified as Labha Siddhi Maha Muni is seven feet high and five feet wide flanked by two Arhat images.

Lacquer ware expert U Sai Mai Hsai had made two lacquer ware Buddha images at Aungmingala Boedaw Monastery in Hsipaw, one in Nalan Village of Mandalay Township, two at Maha Muni Buddha images and two Sivali Arhat statues.

The images made of bamboo were painted with resin and various coating materials to be lacquer wares step by step.

The talk was attended by teachers and students of No 54 Basic Education Middle School, members of Women’s Affairs Organization and Maternal and Child Welfare Association and local people totalling over 700.
Abe again calls for talks with China’s Xi during Nov APEC meeting

SAO PAULO, 3 Aug — Japanese Prime Minister Shinzo Abe on Saturday reiterated his desire to meet with Chinese President Xi Jinping on the sidelines of Asia-Pacific Economic Cooperation summit talks in Beijing in November.

“I hope to have a Japan-China summit meeting during the APEC forum in November,” Abe said at a press conference in Sao Paulo when asked about strained relations between the two Asian neighbours.

“Japan and China should talk because we have issues to solve,” he said. “My door is always open for dialogue, and I would like China to have the same attitude.”

Since assuming the premiership for the second time in December 2012, Abe has been unable to hold one-on-one talks with Xi as the two countries remain at odds over territory and perceptions of history. Beijing has said there will be no summit talks unless Tokyo changes its stance on some Japan-controlled, China-claimed islands in the East China Sea.

On the issue of Russia’s support of separatists in Ukraine, Abe said Japan will continue to work closely with its Group of Seven partners for a peaceful solution while saying “no schedule has been set up” for a visit to Japan by Russian President Vladimir Putin later this year.

As for the Japanese economy, Abe stressed that his policy of giving it top priority remains unchanged as he is determined to pull it out of deflation.

Japan will also accelerate work on legislation for a major security policy shift that would enable the country to come to the defence of allies under armed attack by exercising the right to collective self-defence, he said.

Iran builds rehab centre to curb rising alcohol addiction

TEHERAN, 3 Aug — Iran has opened the country’s first state-run rehab and treatment centre for addicts to alcohol, Teheran Times daily reported on Sunday.

The centre was launched at Medical School of Teheran University “following an increase in alcohol use among Iranians,” a physician at the centre, Mohammad-Reza Sargolzaee, was quoted as saying. Non-governmental organizations have already opened centres for providing treatment services to the addicts but this is the first centre which is established by the government to provide consultatory and treatment assistance for those suffering from alcohol addiction, an official said.

In February 2013, Iran’s police chief Esmail Ahmad-Moqaddam said that there are about 200,000 people in Iran addicted to alcohol, according to the daily. The law bans alcohol for Muslim citizens in Iran. Despite prohibition, there is still widespread alcohol use across the country.—Xinhua

Modi heads to Nepal in regional diplomacy push

KATHMANDU, 3 Aug — Prime Minister Narendra Modi embarked on a visit to Nepal on Sunday to help speed up negotiations on a power trade pact that is at the centre of a new effort to improve ties with a neighbour that serves as a buffer with China.

Since becoming prime minister in May, Modi has sought to shore up support among smaller countries in the region that have in recent years turned to China for quick implementation of energy and transport projects.

His will be the first bilateral visit to Nepal by an Indian prime minister in 17 years, though Indian leaders have routinely attended regional summits in Kathmandu.

Negotiators were trying to narrow down differences over the power pact aimed at harnessing Nepal’s estimated 42,000 MW hydro-electric potential to meet domestic needs and also supply India’s giant energy-starved economy.

The Himalayan nation currently has an installed capacity of 600 MW as its development has been held back by years of political instability. It is still struggling with the transition to a constitutional republic after the abolition of the monarchy in 2008.

Nepal’s politicians are at odds over the proposed energy pact. Opponents say it would give Indian firms a stranglehold over Nepal’s energy resources and bar other countries, like China, from investment in the sector.

Ahead of Modi’s visit, Nepal’s government urged political groups to put aside their differences, saying it was a chance to rebuild the aid-dependent economy and revitalise ties with India.

“Modi is result-oriented and gives priority to economic prosperity. He wants to consolidate ties with Nepal,” Foreign Minister Mahendra Bahadur Pandey said.

During the two-day trip, Modi plans to meet politicians across the spectrum, including Maoists who accuse India of meddling in Nepal’s internal affairs. In a statement made before his departure, Modi promised greater political engagement with Nepal. “We will identify steps to strengthen our bilateral cooperation in key sectors, including trade and investment, hydro power, agriculture and agro-processing, environment,” he said.

In June, Modi chose Bhutan for his first foreign trip, vowing to ramp up economic ties with the tiny country, which like Nepal shares a border with China.—Reuters

Ten dead in strike on school in new Gaza fighting

Gaza, 3 Aug — An Israeli air strike killed at least 10 people and wounded about 30 others on Sunday in a UN-run school in the southern Gaza Strip, a Palestinian official said, as dozens died in Israeli shelling of the enclave and Hamas fired rockets at Israel.

The Israeli military said it was looking into the reported attack, the second to hit a school in less than a week.

Israeli media, on the 27th day of the fighting, reported that most Israeli troops had pulled out of Gaza, and Reuters TV footage showed a column of Israeli tanks and dozens of infantrymen leaving the enclave. An Israeli military spokesman stopped short of calling the move a withdrawal, but said residents from a number of evacuated Palestinian neighborhoods had been told by the army they could return.

“The troops are in the midst of a redeployment to other parts of the border,” said Lieutenant-Colonel Peter Lerner. “Indeed we are releasing troops from the front line but the mission is ongoing. Ground forces are operating.”

In the town of Rafah, where the military has been battling militants, a missile from an Israeli aircraft struck the entrance to the school, where Palestinians who had fled their homes were sheltering, witnesses said.

Gaza death toll keeps rising as Israel vows to proceed with offensive “as long as necessary”

Gaza / Jerusalem, 3 Aug — Israeli bombardment on the southern Gaza Strip on Saturday killed 20 people and injured dozens, medical sources said.

An Israeli airstrike on the southern Gaza Strip city of Khan Younis killed four and injured a number of pedestrians, medics said, adding that Israeli bombardment in the southern Gaza strip of Rafah killed 14 people earlier in the day.

Meanwhile, Gaza health ministry urged the international community to intervene so that the dead bodies and the wounded can be taken to larger hospitals in the Strip.

Security situation in Gaza has dramatically worsened only hours after a 72-hour humanitarian ceasefire came into force in the early hours of Friday as Israeli artillery fired killed more than 100 Palestinians in Rafah, leaving the hard-earned conflict break simply in tatters.

A Palestinian delegation, including Hamas and Islamic Jihad representatives, flew to Cairo on Saturday to discuss a long-term truce, while Israel refused to attend the talks.

While the ongoing Gaza conflict broke out last month, Egypt proposed a truce deal, accepted by Israel but rejected by Hamas. The Islamist group deemed the proposal unacceptable as it does not address any of the key concerns, such as the lift of years of blockade on Gaza, were not recognized.

Egypt’s President Abdel Fattah al-Sisi said on Saturday that the Egyptian truce plan provided a “real chance” to end the Gaza conflict, urging both Israel and the Palestinians to implement it.

More than 1,680 Palestinians were killed, and some 9,000 others were wounded since Israel stepped up the offensive on Gaza on 8 July. On the Israeli side, 61 soldiers and three civilians were killed.

Late on Saturday night, Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu said Israeli military campaign in Gaza will continue “with full power” as long as necessary to restore Israel’s security. “From the beginning, we promised to return the quiet to Israel’s citizens and we will continue to act until that aim is achieved,” Netanyahu said in a televised statement. “We will take as much time as necessary, and will exert as much force as needed,” he vowed.

Netanyahu added that Israel “will make every effort to bring the alleged captured soldier Hadal Golan back home. Israel charg- es the soldier was captured on Friday during a clash with Hamas militants, yet Hamas denied it had any knowledge on the missing soldier.

The security cabinet decided late on Friday night not to send a delegation to the Gaza ceasefire talks in Cairo, a part of the US /UN backed truce deal, on Saturday as planned, charging there is “no point” in trying to achieve an agreement with Hamas.

Israel launched on 8 July a military offensive to stop Hamas’ rocket firing on its southern communities. Tel Aviv later said the bigger threat menacing Israel’s security is cross-border tunnels, through which Gaza militants could use to launch attacks and carry out kidnappings of Israeli nationals. However, a military official told Ynet news website earlier in the day that they were “very close to complete” the destruction of some 30 trans-border tunnels. He estimated that all of the known tunnels will be destroyed by Sunday.

Lebanese army battles gunman at Syria border, 16 killed

Beirut, 3 Aug — The Lebanese army battled Islamist fighters near the Syrian border on Saturday, killing 11 militants, a security official said, in a move against al-Qaeda-linked gunmen who earlier had seized a police station and killed two soldiers.

The gunmen included fighters from the Islamic State, a radical Sunni group that has seized control of large areas of Syria and Iraq, Lebanese security officials said.

The fighting in the border town of Arsal marked some of the worst spillover violence since Syria’s three-year-old war began, and risks exacerbating tensions in Lebanon among sectarian groups at odds over the Syrian conflict.

At least three civilians were also killed, and 16 members of the security forces were taken hostage after fighters from the Nusra Front, al-Qaeda’s branch in Syria, seized the security building, security source said. A local Lebanese official said the men who had been seized were in “a safe place”, but a war right now,” said Ali Hujjer, the local mayor, who spoke briefly to Reuters by telephone from the area. Gaza situation is intolerable, UK foreign secretary says

London, 3 Aug — Britain believes the situation in the Gaza Strip has become intolerable and could lead to an increase in anti-Semitic attacks on British Jews, Foreign Secretary Philip Hammond said in a newspaper interview to be published on Sunday.

Hammond told the Daily Telegraph he was receiving thousands of emails from Britons “deeply disturbed” at events in Gaza since Israel launched an offensive against Hamas and other groups. “I am concerned to see a surge of cross-border rocket salvos,” he said.

“The British public has a strong sense that the situation of the civilian population in Gaza is intolerable and must be addressed — and we agree with them,” Hammond said.

Philip Hammond was speaking after a meeting with his US counterpart John Kerry. Mr Kerry was due to arrive in Israel on Sunday night.

Britain’s Foreign Secretary Philip Hammond

He called for an immediate ceasefire without preconditions. “I will remind them that Israel has concerns, we understand that Hamas has concerns. We are not saying we’re not interested in those,” he told the paper in an interview conducted on Thursday.

“But we cannot allow them to stand in the way of a humanitarian ceasefire. We have to get the killing to stop,” Palestinian officials say, the Gaza death toll has risen to 1,675, most of them civilians. Israel has confirmed that 63 soldiers have died in combat, while Palestinian shelling has killed three civilians in Israel.

On Saturday, Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu said Israel would go on fighting Hamas in the Gaza Strip even after the army destroys cross-border tunnels used by Palestinian militants to attack its territory, the main goal for its incursion. On Thursday, a group that advises Britain’s 260,000 Jews on security matters said anti-Semitic incidents in Britain had risen to a near-record level since the start of the Israeli offensive. — Reuters

Putting public interest before personal gain

By Kyaw Thura

Most, if not all, people are egocentric in spite of feeling reluctant to confess it. Ego varies in degrees of intensity. It tends to become stronger when people go up through the ranks. We are by nature loyal to our mother institution. When it comes to choosing between employers and customers, we tend to take sides with the former. It is intense ego that makes us all blind to justice.

Leaders of all institutions need to shoulder a fiduciary responsibility. They should act in a fair, unbiased manner. They should put the interests of their people before their personal gain. Simply put, people want to retain their trust in their leaders. They want leaders who will act in the best interest of the public. They want leaders who will put the public interest before their personal gain. They want leaders who will encourage transparency, integrity, competency, and accountability.

The world has seen leaders who died many years ago, but their names survive. They wrote their own histories beautifully. All people in the world remember all of them for their sacrifices in the public interest. Their names go down in history. It is quite easy to be branded as notorious. In other words, it just takes a single stupid act to receive a bad reputation. On the other hand, winning public adulation and good reputation that will go down in history is a different story. A single generous act is never enough to win the hearts of people.

All things considered, the fact that history will judge our own deeds is still many years away. Now is the time for all of us to start being nice to each other. It would be better if we did not allow the history to repeat itself.

In short, we should be nice to people on our way up because we will meet them on our way down for sure. Then the history will repeat itself. We will only have ourselves to blame then!

Myanmar in International Media

The 30 July issue of International New York Times stated that known as thanaka and prized for its sun block and aesthetic qualities, the yellowish paste made from ground tree bark is ubiquitous to Myanmar skin care. While the use of thanaka has outlasted countless Myanmar dynasties, British colonialism and successive Myanmar governments, this ancient practice is being challenged by a new powder that has invaded Myanmar multinational cosmetic corporations with seductive advertising campaigns. In the three years since Myanmar began experimenting with democracy after decades of isolation, new ideas and consumer trends have been altering age-old facets of Myanmar daily life.

The 31 July issue of Financial Times (Europe) disclosed that optimists in Thailand and Vietnam say that visitor numbers will soon bounce back of the surface control that has returned to both countries is maintained. Thailand has been through the cycle of conflict, coup and calm almost too many times to count in modern times. However, neither nation can be complacent during an era of growing competition from less-visited but fast-growing neighbours, including Cambodia and Myanmar, which are trying to develop independent tourist industries and shed their historical reliance on centres such as Bangkok and Ho Chi Minh City as feeder hubs.

According to a commentary in The 31 July issue of The Independent UK, it is an alarming fact that there are so few tigers left in the wild. It is grim to imagine future generations knowing the magnificent tiger purely as an animal that lives and breeds in captivity. To prevent this bleak prospect, a goal has been set to double the number of tigers in the wild by 2022. Known as Tx2, the goal was established at a global summit in St Petersburg in 2010. It was agreed by the governments of the 13 tiger-range countries, where tigers still roam free: Bangladesh, Bhutan, China, Cambodia, India, Indonesia, Laos, Malaysia, Myanmar, Nepal, Russia, Thailand and Vietnam.

Rural people satisfied with electrification in Singaing Township

Singaing, 3 Aug—

Electricity is essential for people of both urban and rural areas for uplifting their living standard.

Not only the developed nations but developing ones are focusing on generating electricity through various methods and technologies to be able to supply electricity consumption of the people.

In Myanmar, the Ministry of Electric Power is striving for electrification of urban and rural areas by generating hydropower at suitable areas of creeks and rivers. In addition, the ministry is seeking the best technology to generate electricity from natural gas, waste and solar, etc, to satisfy the demand of the people.

In Ohhtaungtaw Village of Singaing Township in Mandalay Region, the local people were delighted at enjoying electrification of their overage vehicles. Officials of the region government said that a plan is underway to supply electricity to all villages in Mandalay Region by 2014.

So, we tried hard to carry out electrification for our village. In October 2013, we held a meeting in the village for electrification. The villagers funded K22 million for the tasks. After forming an electrification committee for the village, the region government allotted K8 million to us. We spent the fund on the tasks and will save the surplus money from the project at the bank for maintenance of the electricity supply facilities,” said secretary of the village electrification committee U Tun Kyi.

Mandalay Region has supplied electricity to about 3,000 villages of 4,000. In this regard, the region government implemented the projects through three ways. At first, the power lines were installed from the village to the nearest power grids spending its fund and loans of the government. For the second way, electricity is generated from the solar panels for the villages far from the power grid. It costs too much. The third way is implemented by generating electricity from the generator. To do so, the region government disbursed loans to the village at very soft interest rate.

The region government adopted to implement electrification for all villages in the region by 2014, said region minister for Forestry and Mining U Than Soe Myant at the self-reliant electrification ceremony of the village.

Thanks to permission of Myanma Electric Power Enterprise under the Ministry of Electric Power, a transformer was installed with 11KV power line of the river water pumping station near the village to supply electricity to 110 houses, spending K26.3 million.

Over 70 river water pumping stations contribute to boosting production of crops in Mandalay Region

Mandalay, 3 Aug—

The Ministry of Agriculture and Irrigation has been building dams and reservoirs, sluice gates and diversion weirs one after another all over the nation.

Dam and reservoir construction benefit the farmers to be able to cultivate paddy and other crops for ensuring food sufficiency of the nation.

To build a dam or reservoir, it needs to take a large area of land. If there is no large area of land in the designated area, it is necessary to confiscate some part of the farmlands by coordinating with land owner farmers. Officials of the Irrigation Department calculate the cost for giving compensation for the confiscated farmlands to the land owners.

Otherwise, the river water pumping projects can be implemented in the nation by taking least area for the project to be installed with pumps at the water tanks for irrigating the farmlands.

In Mandalay Region, a total of 72 river water pumping stations are supplying water to the farmlands. In 2013-14 cultivation season for monsoon crops, 40 pumping stations irrigated 14,213 acres of paddy and other crops and 975 acres of cold season crops.

The local authorities and agricultural coordination committees held a meeting for irrigating 10,182 acres of summer paddy and other crops in 2013-14 season.

Sandbanks emerged in the Ayeyawady River in 2014. Thus, the dredgers removed the sandbanks near Lawkanda, Thag-aungti and Letpanchayaw water pumping stations in NyaungU Township, Hsimeekhon-2 station in Myingyan Township and Nganya station in Nagzun Township.

Thanks to the river water pumping stations, the local farmers could boost production of agricultural produce. In addition, the water supply contributes to greening of the environment and hygienic activities of the local people. (End)

Return of overage vehicles to be accepted at Mandalay South District Office

Mandalay, 3 Aug—

Mandalay Region Directorate of Road Administration on Thanpin Street in Mandalay gave its services to the vehicle owners for accepting their overage vehicles. However, the activities of the directorate caused traffic congestion on the street.

As of 1 August, the process of returning the overage vehicles is being carried out at the Mandalay South District Branch of the directorate near the Sacred Took Relic Pagoda, according to the official of the region directorate.

The directorate allowed return of overage vehicles as of 21 July 2014. So, owners handed over their overage vehicles to the directorate. During the process of return for each vehicle, the stationary vehicle caused traffic congestion on the street.

Egypt denounces US remarks on crackdown as “ignorant”

Cario, 3 Aug — The Egyptian Foreign Ministry denounced on Saturday the recent remarks of the US Department of State that said Egypt used US military aids in crackdown against their own people. “These remarks lack of understanding and complete ignorance of the reality of things in Egypt,” Egyptian Foreign Ministry spokesman Badr Abdel-Aaty said, adding that the so-called Egyptian peaceful protesters referred to in the US remarks “carried weapons and horrified innocent people.”

On Thursday, Marie Harf, deputy spokesperson of the US Department of State, explained that the remarks disre garded the fact that the Egyptian government cracking down on its own people. In Israel, you had a government fighting an external threat coming from Gaza that is from a terrorist organization,” Harf told reporters.

Since the overthrow of Egypt’s first democratically- elected president Mohamed Morsi by the military in July 2013, following mass protests against his one-year rule, the United States suspended a large part of its $1.5-billion-dollar annual aid to the turmoil-stricken country.

The Egyptian interim leadership launched a massive security crackdown on Morsi’s supporters that left at least 1,000 killed and thousands more arrested over the past 11 months.

Abdel-Aaty further described Harf’s remarks as “nonobjective,” explaining that the remarks disregarded one night in a week as rival factions turned the two biggest cities, Tripoli and Benghazi, into battlefields.

Western governments, which have mostly evacuated their diplomats after two weeks of fighting, hope the new parliament can create space for negotiations after the worst clashes since the 2011 war that ousted Muammar Gaddafi.

But there was no sign of a let-up in the conflict. Tripoli, where a huge cloud of black smoke spread over the south of the city again on Saturday after a fuel depot near the international airport was hit for the second time in a week as rival Zintan and Misrata brigades battled for control.

In southern Tripoli, at one of the front lines between warring factions, one block of partially built apartments was on fire after being hit. Nearby streets were littered with shell casings from machine-gun fire where Zintan fighters had defended their positions.

Roadside bomb kills three women, wounds seven in Somali capital

MOGADISHU, 3 Aug — Three women were killed in the Somali capital on Sunday, and seven others were wounded when a remotely detonated bomb exploded in a busy market, police and witnesses said.

It was not immediately clear who was behind the bombing.

In recent weeks, al Qaeda-linked al Shabaab insurgents have increased gun and bomb attacks in Mogadishu, with the latest incident on July 5, when its fighters attacked the presidential palace.

The women killed in the blast were city workers, who were cleaning the streets when a bomb hidden in a rubbish pit exploded in the busy market sector known as Hodan district of Mogadishu, police said.

“We heard a big blast, and then I could see the old mothers who were cleaning the scene lying, some of them dead and others screaming. The bomb was wrapped in a big, black plastic bag and then placed inside the rubbish along the Taleh street,” Nuria Ahmed, a mother of four who lives near the scene, told Reuters.

“I counted three dead and seven others injured. I was the first person who arrived for information. It is very unfortunate if mothers are the target.”

Reuters’ witnesses saw the three dead female city cleaners and the other seven injured at the scene and at Madina hospital.

“A remotely controlled roadside bomb killed three female city cleaners and injured seven others in Hodan district. The militants hid the bomb inside a rubbish pit,” Major Ali Afrah, a police officer, told Reuters.

African Union forces along with the Somali army launched a new offensive this year against the group, which is fighting to impose a harsh version of Islamic law in Somalia.

Several towns have been taken back from the group, but officials and witnesses still control large sections of countryside and some settlements, from where they have been able to continue their guerrilla-style campaign.

New Libyan parliament meets far from urban battlegrounds

Tobruk (Libya), 3 Aug — Libya’s newly elected House of Representatives held its first session on Saturday, held up in a heavily guarded provincial hotel as armed factions turned the two biggest cities, Tripoli and Benghazi, into battlefields.

The 200-member parliament will hold its first official session to elect its new president on Monday, Bara said. Some deputies aim to form a new Cabinet to handle the crisis, three of them told Reuters.

Three years after Gaddafi’s demise, few Libyan state institutions have popular legitimacy and the country still has no new constitution. Militias storm the last parliament repeatedly to threaten lawmakers.

Heavily armed Interior Ministry troops and the Libyan army protected the parliament building which was chosen to host the parliament meeting after Tripoli and Benghazi were deemed too risky.

Western countries are worried Libya’s escalating conflict could create a failed state just across the Mediterranean from mainland Europe. Fearing the violence could spill beyond Libya’s borders, neighbours Egypt, Tunisia and Algeria all warn of the threat.

Reuters reported on Saturday that a Royal Navy vessel was moving into position off the coast of North Africa, preparing to evacuate British nationals from Libya. Britain’s Ministry of Defence said it did not give details of any assistance it was providing for operational reasons.

With its national army still in formation, Libya has struggled to control heavily armed factions that have entrenched themselves as de facto power brokers in the messy transition since Gaddafi’s one-man rule.

Elected in June, lawmakers met on Saturday for an emergency session in Tobruk, a coastal city east of Benghazi, where they are supposed to form a new government that many Libyans hope will be a step to ending the crisis.

“Our homeland is burning,” Abu Bakar Baiza, interim head of parliament said. “We have to work fast, to meet the demands of the people and save them from this disaster.”

Virtual friendships thrive as personal connects fade

New Delhi, 3 Aug
There was a time when Friendship Day meant hanging out with buddies and wearing colourful friendship bands. But now, connect virtually through forwarded messages, mobile app stickers or a simple post on a friend’s social networking wall overshadows the personal touch and people’s socializing skills.

Easy-to-access, affordable Internet and plethora of mobile apps with fun stickers expressing emotions have made many people connect with one another, but mostly on a superfluous level, say experts.

“Friendship bands have become old fashioned. Now, there is WhatsApp, Instagram where you can post your photos with your friends. Virtual friends are more now.” Nidhi Sharm, a stylist, told IANS.

While there was公益性 of time earlier as well, technology is thought to have made people lazier and as a result, personal meetings have reduced — thus affecting the quality of friendship. The dilemma is that people feel closer by connecting through apps, but they are actually drifting away.

“You have Internet on phone, work space and don’t have to take out extra time to stay in touch with people. Now, people would rather use WhatsApp or do video chat or send pictures. You are becoming closer because of technology, but it has become more superficial,” Harshleen K. Arora, a psychologist, told IANS.

Davistine Liddle, a 30-year-old online marketing professional, agrees that a busy schedule keeps him away from meeting his friends regularly and that technology helps to stay connected. But, yes, he misses that personal touch.

“I stopped buying gifts for friends after I finished school. Now, it’s more about WhatsApp, Facebook or Hike messenger. The stickers are pretty interesting. People have become busy and all these sites and apps help to remember their birthdays or know what’s happening in their lives.”

“Personal meetings have reduced and I miss that, but most friends are working in different locations, so that gets tough,” he said. Consultant psychologist Rajiv Mehta describes the new friendship trend as “shallow.” “There are some who are active on social networking sites or mobile apps as they are following others blindly. They feel that everybody is doing so and should follow them. Lack of time and effort have also made people turn to virtual friends.

“So, close friendships are not there. Earlier friendship used to mean a lot. People used to take a decision on the basis of friendship. Now, it’s becoming shallow,” said Mehta. Raman Suri, a life strategist and success coach, says people are now living in a “fancy land” and the fascination for social networking sites and apps is nothing more than an addiction.

“All these sites are designed in a way that people get addicted to them and they are living in a fancy land where they feel that if they send a friend request to a stranger and that stranger accepts, they become friends in reality. That doesn’t happen,” said Suri. Suri says it’s time for a reality check. “There are friends on social networking sites, but when you meet them in person you get different energy. We are living our life on autopilot mode. It is easier for robots to lead a virtual life rather than a realistic one,” he added.

The virtual medium has affected people’s confidence to socialise in the real world. Suri elaborates, saying, “People want to save time but the more time they spend on sites and apps the more they lose confidence in meeting people.”

BlackBerry makes BBM available for Windows Phone users

NEW DELHI, 3 Aug — Moving one-step closer to becoming a platform agnostic messaging software, BlackBerry Messenger has made its debut for Window Phone 8 and higher.

“We are intent on bringing the most popular application experiences to Windows Phone, and with BBM, we are pleased to bring many of its top features to the Windows Phone platform,” said Bryan Biniak, Vice President and General Manager, Developer Experience, Microsoft.

John Sims, president Global Enterprise Services at BlackBerry, said the BBM app for Windows Phone shows our commitment to supporting cross-platform capabilities, and we are excited to be working with Microsoft to deliver a new level of collaboration to the Windows Phone platform.

The app has been built specifically for the Windows Phone experience, and BBM users will have a “familiar, native user experience that embraces the clean, modern design of the Windows Phone UI.”

Google confirms sale of barge docked in Maine

NEW DELHI, 3 Aug — Google is confirming that the barge it docked in Maine has been sold.

The barge carries dozens of old shipping containers that are being disassembled and scrapped. The barge first docked in Portland Harbour in October and moved to South Portland on Wednesday. A Portland city spokeswoman says the city received $400,000 in state reimbursements while it docked there.

Google initially had little to say about the barges; leading to speculation about its intentions, with industry watchers expecting anything from cheaper-cooled data centres, to another of the search giant’s visionary concepts like Internet via high-altitude balloon, to self-driving cars and smart contact lenses.

The Mountain View giant later revealed the barges were to be high-end stores and ‘interactive spaces’ where people could learn about new technology. A Press statement had been issued, dispelling rumours: “Google Barge... A floating data center? A wild party boat? A barge housing the last remaining dinosaur? Sadly, none of the above. [...] Although it’s still early days and things may change, we’re exploring using the barge as an interactive space where people can learn about new technology.”

New study explains the Moon’s “lemon shape”

LONDON, 3 Aug — Rather than being a perfect sphere, the Moon is slightly flattened with a bulge at one side, like a lemon. The processes that created our lemon-shaped satellite are uncovered in British scientific journal Nature last week.

Lee K mediums how the Moon gained these features could help us to understand other events in lunar evolution. However, attempts to interpret the basic shape of the Moon are hampered by the presence of large basins on its surface that formed after the crust solidified. To circumvent this issue, American scientists from University of California analysed the topography and gravity outside these basins, and explain the shape of the Moon as the consequence of a combination of two early tidal processes.

The scientists proposed that, the main cause of the squashed shape is a crust-building process controlled by early tidal heating throughout the Moon, while its outer shell was weak enough to be affected by the Earth’s tidal forces. They also suggested that the bulge formed later via tidal forces as the Moon drifted away from the Earth. In addition, an uneven distribution of density in the Moon’s interior eventually resulted in its polar axis by about 36 degrees to the configuration we observe today. The researchers claimed that their results are the best explanation yet of the Moon’s lemon shape.

Nishijin still offering free kimono shows to attract foreigners

KYOTO, 3 Aug—The Nishijin district in Kyoto, which is famous for traditional weaving, is continuing to offer a free kimono fashion show in an effort to attract foreign tourists and rejuvenate the industry.

Since 1956, the Nishijin Textile Centre in the ancient capital's Kamigyо Ward has organized some 140,000 shows, attracting a total of 14 million visitors.

The Nishijin weaving business, which dates back more than 1,200 years, has been falling into dire straits since 1990, according to the Nishijin Textile Industry Association.

The current number of weavers registered with the association is also less than half the 1990 level.

The centre stages seven shows a day except for the New Year holiday season. In a 15-minute show, seven models put on a total of 10 different kimonos.

Chiaki said she sometimes uses kimonos produced in other parts of Japan such as Yonezawa, Yamagata Prefecture, and Amami-Oshima Island, Kagoshima Prefecture.

Yuzuru Otsuki, 53, director of the center, is now preparing to seek a Guinness world record for the largest number of kimonos shows and the number of visitors.

“Our shows should be a precious place where people can learn about truly authentic kimono culture,” Otsuki said. “We hope as many people as possible will learn about us.”

China’s power consumption to jump 6 pct

BEIJING, 3 Aug—China’s power consumption, an important indicator of economic activity, is expected to rise 6.5 percent in the second quarter, bringing the annual rate for 2014 to around 6 percent, according to a report released by China Electricity Council.

In the first half of the year, power use rose 5.3 percent from a year ago to reach 2.63 trillion kwh, earlier official data showed, as the economy expanded 7.4 percent during the period, slightly below the government target of 7.5 percent.

In breakdown, electricity use by primary industries dropped 4.6 percent year on year. Power consumption by the industrial sector rose 5.1 percent while that by tertiary industries went up 6.9 percent. The China Electricity Council expects the economy to steadily grow in the latter half of the year as a string of government support policies gradually filter through, which will give a boost to power use.

So far, several key economic indicators have pointed to gaining strength in the economy. The purchasing managers’ index rose to 51.7 in July, the highest level in more than two years.

Russia rejects US accusation over nuclear treaty violation

In a statement, the Russian Foreign Ministry called the US allegation “another attempt to discredit Russia” which “looks biased and brazen, especially in consideration of how loosely the United States itself has applied the INF Treaty provisions on numerous occasions.” It said Washington intended to deploy MK-41 launch systems that can be used for launching intermediate-range cruise missiles in Poland and Romania.

“The issue ... has become especially pressing of late ... their appearance on the ground would grossly violate the INF Treaty,” said the statement.

Noting the US government’s “is system aware of all these problems,” Moscow said by leveling accusations against Russia, Washington was trying to distract attention from its own violations.

The statement added that the United States had already withdrawn from the Anti-Ballistic Missile Treaty (ABM Treaty) in 2001, and has developed the provocative “prompt global strike” strategy.

“The worrisome situation concerning the INF’s observance causes special concerns amid the continued purposeful and methodical destabilization of the global strategic stability system by Washington,” the statement said.

Sunni insurgents, Kurds battle over north Iraq town

BAGHDAD, 3 Aug — Islamic State militants fought Kurdish forces on Saturday for the northern Iraqi town of Zumar located near an oil field and the Syrian border amid conflicting reports of who was in control.

Jabbar Yawar, secretary general of the Kurdish peshmerga fighters, said his forces controlled Zumar and reinforcements were on the way.

But four residents in different parts of the town said by telephone that Islamic State fighters were in control. “Many Islamic State vehicles are wandering the town of Zumar and I can also see the flags on top of buildings,” said one resident.

The group formerly known as the Islamic State of Iraq and the Levant staged a lighting advance through northern Iraq in June, seizing large swathes of land in the biggest challenge to the government of Prime Minister Nuri al-Maliki. Control of Zumar by Islamic State fighters would give them access to the small Ain Zalah oil field and a nearby refinery. The insurgents have already seized four oil fields, which help fund their operations.

A Kurdish police official in Zumar said Islamic State fighters in pickup trucks mounted with weapons attacked the town from three directions early on Saturday. There were no immediate details of casualties. Islamic State’s offensive has whipped up sectarian tensions and threatened to disrupt oil exports. The sectarian conflict poses the most serious threat to the country’s stability since the 2003 fall of Saddam Hussein after a US-led invasion.

Shi’ite militias and Kurdish fighters now rival the US-trained and funded Iraqi army in their ability to challenge the insurgents.

Islamic State captures Iraqi town, oil field — witnesses

BAGHDAD, 3 Aug — Islamic State Sunni insurgents have captured the northern Iraqi town of Zumar and a nearby oil field after a battle with Kurdish forces who had control of the area, witnesses said on Sunday.

Islamic State, which staged a lightning advance through northern Iraq in June, has warned residents of nearby villages along the border with Syria to leave their homes, suggesting they were planning an assault, witnesses said.

The militant group, which controls large swaths of northern and western Iraq, has threatened to march on Baghdad but has stalled its campaign just north of the town of Su marra, 100 km (62 miles) north of Baghdad.

But it has been trying to consolidate its gains, setting its sights on strategic towns near oilfields, as well as the border with Syria so that its fighters can move easily back and forth and bring in supplies.

An official in the Northern Oil Company said Islamic State fighters had taken control of the Ain Zalah oil field and a nearby refinery.

The insurgents had already seized four oil fields, which help fund their operations.

In a statement on its website, Islamic State said its fighters killed scores of Kurdish fighters in a 24-hour battle and then took over Zumar and 12 villages.“Hundreds fled leaving vehicles and a huge number of weapons and munitions and the brothers control many areas,” Islamic State said, including Zumar and “the area of Ain Zalah which is rich with oil.

“The fighters arrived in the border triangle between Iraq, Syria and Turkey,” it said.

UN says Sri Lanka illegally returning Pakistani asylum seekers

GENEVA / COLOMBO, 3 Aug — Sri Lanka must stop deporting Pakistani asylum seekers, a practice banned under international law, the UN refugee agency UNHCR said on Saturday.

Sri Lanka began arresting asylum seekers and refugees on 9 June and has since detained 214 Pakistanis and Afghans in two asylum centers, UNHCR said. Authorities in Colombo said the influx of illegal immigrants in the past year had become a burden on state resources and potentially compromised state and regional security. Sri Lankan government also blamed people trafficking networks for the recent rise in asylum seekers reaching its shores. In the past two days, Sri Lanka had deported 18 people, with another 10 deportations expected on Sunday, UNHCR said in a statement, adding that the repatriations breached a “no forced return” principle.

“This principle is binding on all states and precludes them from sending asylum seekers and refugees to a country where their life or freedom would be threatened,” it said.

French police arrest Islamist militant at a Paris airport

PARIS, 3 Aug — French police on Friday arrested a Franco-Moroccan man they described as an Islamist militant at Roissy international airport on suspicion that he was part of a conspiracy to carry out attacks in France.

The man, whose name and age were not made public, had just disembarked from a plane arriving from Istanbul after his expulsion by Turkish authorities, the Interior Ministry said in a statement.

The man was being held in police custody pending formal charges. A judge had previously opened a preliminary investigation to determine whether the man was part of a conspiracy to carry out attacks, the statement said.

Suspects in terror-related cases can be detained for up to 96 hours without being formally charged. The statement did not say where the man had traveled before reaching Turkey, which is a common waystation for European Islamist militants en route to Syria.

Thousands of foreign fighters, many from Western Europe, have joined extremist Islamist groups fighting in Syria and Iraq, according to US and European intelligence estimates.

Fears that militants returning from Syria could carry out attacks in the West were heightened in June when a man who had fought in Syria was arrested on suspicion of killing four people at a Jewish museum in Brussels.

Jennifer Lawrence and Nicholas Hoult break up

LOS ANGELES, 3 Aug — Actress Jennifer has reportedly broken up with her beau and actor Nicholas Hoult once again.

The Academy Award-winning actress has split up with her longtime boyfriend again after rekindling their relationship in the summer of 2013. The couple has separated due to their conflicting work schedules, reports People.com.

They met while co-starring in 2011 movie X-Men: First Class and split in 2013 before reuniting both off and on screen in X-Men: Days of Future Past.

Paul Walker’s death affected my acting: Vin Diesel

LOS ANGELES, 3 Aug — Actor Vin Diesel struggled to control his emotions on camera when he returned to work on the new “Fast and Furious” film following Paul Walker’s car crash death last November.

The production on the film was put on hold to allow the cast and crew time to mourn the actor’s death, and for Diesel, dealing with Walker’s death was a “heavy thing”.

He said: “I grew up in the bouncing world and we lost people bouncing, in the bouncing world and ‘heavy thing’.

“The actor also explained that Walker’s death made him rethink shooting dangerous action scenes in films. “A lot of people don’t realise when you do these action movies you use your life on the line more than you should... When you’re doing these action films and you’re... for lack of a better description, a method-like thespian, and when you go into these action sequences, you put yourself in harm’s way in kind of an unfair fashion,” he said. — PTI

Manet’s ‘Le Printemps’ poised to reach record auction price

NEW YORK, 3 Aug — Edouard Manet’s 1881 celebrated portrait “Le Printemps,” at Christie’s in New York on 1 Aug, 2014.— Reuters will be among the highlights of Christie’s Impressionist and Modern Art sale in New York on 5 November.

The sale follows Christia’s best spring auctions in years and a boom in the global art and antique market — sales last year rose 8 percent to $65.9 billion, the highest level since 2007, according to the latest report from the European Fine Art Foundation. — Reuters

English Vinglish mints $420,000 in Japan

The movie, backed by Eros International, set the cash registers ringing at the Japanese box office with earning of a bumper 42.608,115 yen ($420,000 approx) and continues to run successfully in theatres.

Directed by Gauri Shinde, the film tells a moving tale of a home-bound woman who doesn’t know English, but an overseas trip helps her to bring out the best in her.

In Japan, the film released across 33 screens on 28 June.

The grand premiere of the film held in Tokyo on 27 May was a huge success and was attended by Sridevi along with First Lady of Japan, Akie Abe and famous Japanese singer, Agnes Chan.

The buzz for the film in Japan began last year itself when director Mr Shinde was invited to attend the prestigious Aichi International Women’s Film Festival in August 2013 for the film’s screening. — PTI

“Katti Batti” different from usual Bollywood love stories: Kangana Ranaut

MUMBAI, 3 Aug — Kangana Ranaut, who will be seen with Imran Khan in Nikhil Advani’s love story ‘Katti Batti’, says it is different from the usual romance dramas seen in B-Town.

“We will start shooting for ‘Katti Batti’ in September. It is a very good love story. It is different from the usual love stories that we get to see in Bollywood,” Kangana said.

Kanga said she visited London the day at the launch of the cover of Grazia magazine featuring her.

“The element of love has been depicted in a different way in that film. The film’s idea and philosophy is very good,” added the 27-year-old.

This is the first time Kangana has been paired with Imran and she is looking forward to it. Meanwhile, she has also been approached for an Italian film. How tough to say for an Italian film but I have not decided on whether I will be able to fit that in my schedule or not,” Kangana said.

Currently, she has three films in her kitty, including “Divine Lovers” and “Tanu Weds Manu 2.” “Katti Batti” will be produced by UTV Motion Pictures.

Supporters, foes of pot legalization post rival ads in NY Times

Seattle, 3 Aug — Supporters and opponents of the federal ban on marijuana took to the pages of The New York Times this weekend with full-page color advertisements that highlight the fast-evolving debate in the United States about medical and recreational drug use.

The advertisements followed The New York Times’ decision last month in a series of editorials to call for repealing the ban, the biggest US newspaper to do so. Opinion polls show a majority of Americans now back the legalization of pot.

The ads are also designed to undercut potent decades-old association with the counterculture and drop-outs by featuring people dressed in everyday working attire.

In an ad in Sunday’s edition of the paper, Seattle-based Privateer Holdings features its medical marijuana website Leafly, which helps users to find pot dispensaries and to choose strains.

The ad depicts a woman jogger in Spandex gliding past a brownstone building as a crisply dressed professional man stands atop its steps with a bundle of papers under his arm. “Ian chose an indica cannabis strain to relieve his MS symptoms,” a bubble next to him says.

Explaining the decision to use ordinary working people in the ad, Privateer Holdings’ chief executive, Brendan Kennedy, said: “This product and this industry are still depicted as sub-culture or counter-culture. That’s just not the reality.”

Last month, New York became the 23rd state to allow medical marijuana. In 2012, Colorado and Washington state became the first in the nation to approve state-sanctioned recreational marijuana for consumers aged 21 and older.

However, Saturday’s edition of The New York Times carried an ad from a group opposed to pot legalization, Smart Approaches to Marijuana, and allied organizations. It featured a suit-and-tie-clad executive leaning over a conference-room table with a photo of a grinning, bandana-wearing hippy superimposed over his face. The word “Perception” is next to his flowing hair. The suit has the word “Reality.”

“The legalization of marijuana means ushering in an entirely new group of corporations whose primary source of revenue is a high habit-forming product,” the advertisement says.

Rain to sweep north China

Beijing, 3 Aug — Most parts in north China will see moderate to heavy rain from Sunday to Monday, the country’s meteorological authority forecasted.

Some areas will be hit by torrential rain, along with occasional thunderstorms and strong gales. The maximum precipitation is expected at 60 mm, according to the National Meteorological Centre.

In Beijing, rainfall is predicted at Sunday night to Monday morning, which will likely disrupt traffic in the morning peak, the centre warned.

Meanwhile, most areas in Yunnan Province will continue to see moderate to heavy rain in the coming three days that would bring risks of geological disasters.

The provinces of Sichuan, Shaanxi, Shanxi and Hubei will remain in searching heat, with the maximum temperature in some areas to reach 40 degrees Celsius.

Car crash in Thailand kills 4, injures 16

Bangkok, 3 Aug — Four people were killed and 16 others injured when a trailer truck crashed into six other vehicles in eastern Thailand’s Prachin Buri Province in the wee hours of Sunday. The accident occurred in Nadi district at 2 am local time when the 18-wheeler trailer truck heading downhill rammed into three vans, a car, a pick-up truck and a motorcycle which were running in an opposite direction, Tipol Wadsungnoen, a duty police officer in the district, was quoted by Bangkok Post as saying.

The driver of the trailer truck, which was then fully loaded with cassava roots, was believed to have lost control over the vehicle after the brake failed, according to preliminary investigation. All the injured have been sent to nearby hospitals while two of the killed are yet to be identified.

Boxing Koseki wins 14th defence of WBC women’s atomweight title

Tokyo, 3 Aug — Japan’s Momo Koseki defeated Britain’s Denise Castle on Saturday to successfully defend her WBC atomweight crown for the 14th time.

Fighting in Tokyo, Koseki defeated Castle, the WBC’s second-ranked fighter in the division by technical knockout in the eighth round. Koseki, who has now successfully defended her title more times than any other Japanese fighter, man or woman, improved her career record to 16 wins, six by knockout, and one draw.
Record US soccer crowd sees Man United beat Real Madrid

CARY, (NORTH CAROLINA), 3 Aug — The largest crowd to watch a soccer match in the United States — 109,318 — poured into Michigan Stadium on Saturday to see Manchester United beat Real Madrid 3-1 in a friendly.

The appeal of two of the world’s most iconic sports teams attracted fans to the International Champions Cup match at the University of Michigan’s American football stadium in Ann Arbor.

The previous US record attendance for a soccer match was 101,799 at the Rose Bowl in California.

The largest crowd ever to watch a soccer match was at the 1950 World Cup in Rio de Janeiro when 173,850 paying spectators came to the Maracana for the Brazil-Uruguay final clash, though unofficial estimates put the attendance as high as 210,000.

Two first-half goals by Ashley Young proved enough to help United beat the European champions on Saturday despite Real’s world record signing Gareth Bale scoring from the penalty spot.

United’s win means they advance to Monday’s final in Miami, where they will meet traditional English rivals Liverpool.

The crowd got an additional bonus when Cristiano Ronaldo made a surprise appearance for Madrid in place of Alvaro Arbeloa in the 74th minute, having been ruled out of contention before the match with what was reported to be an injured left knee.

Young had opened the scoring in the 21st minute when he capped off a 26-pass move to beat keeper Iker Casillas at his near post from about 12 metres.

Real equalized in the 27th when Bale was fouled in the box by United defender Michael Keane and then got up to convert the penalty by sending David De Gea the wrong way.

However, it took United only 10 minutes to regain the lead when Young curled in what looked like a cross from the left. United’s England forward Wayne Rooney timed his run perfectly but did not appear to make contact with his attempted header.

Dominant Daley retains diving title

CARY, (NORTH CAROLINA), 3 Aug — Sergio Garcia maintained a three-stroke lead after the third round at the WGC-Bridgestone Invitational on Saturday, while Rory McIlroy loomed large in second place as the two Europeans set the stage for another showdown.

Two weeks after McIlroy staved off a final round challenge from Garcia to win the British Open, the Northern Irishman will be the hunter instead of the hunted. Garcia, coming off a course record-equalling 61, was solid rather than spectacular as he fashioned a three-under-par 67 at Firestone Country Club in Akron, Ohio.

He posted a 14-under 196 total with one round left, while McIlroy birdied the final two holes, rolling in a 35-footer at the last to card a 66 for 11-under.

Not that it was only Garcia winning the title. Marc Leishman was four shots behind, while another Australian, world number one Adam Scott, was five back with Englishman Justin Rose and American Keegan Bradley.

“I misread a couple of puts here and there and hit a couple of not so good putts,” Garcia told CBS television, otherwise expressing overall satisfaction with his game and welcoming the chance to potentially duel again with McIlroy.

“I’ve felt very comfortable throughout the whole week so hopefully I’ll be able to do the same thing (on Sunday), just like he (McIlroy) did to me at Hoylake and hopefully keep him just behind me.”

Garcia leads McIlroy by three strokes at WGC-Bridgestone

French lesson for Benfica as Sanogo hits four for Arsenal

LONDON, 3 Aug — New signing Alexis Sanchez made his first appearance in Arsenal’s colours on Saturday but

French striker Yaya Sanogo stole the limelight with a four-goal blast in a 5-1 victory over Benfica in the pre-season Emirates Cup. Chile forward Sanchez, signed for around 35 million pounds ($58.86 million) from Barcelona last month, came on as a late substitute but by then Sanogo and Costa Rica striker Joel Campbell had done the damage.

The 21-year-old Sanogo has yet to start a Premier League game since joining from Auxerre in July 2013 while Campbell has spent his entire Arsenal career on loan at Lorient, Real Betis and Olympiakos Piraeus.

However, they showed up on Saturday at The Emirates stadium that manager Arsene Wenger will have plenty of attacking options this season. “A headache is when they don’t play well,” Wenger told reporters of a potential selection dilemma as the new season looms.

“We have some decisions to make when everybody plays well, that’s true. But when everybody plays well that’s what we want. Sanogo was injured for basically two years before he came to us. If you look at his goalscoring record before he got injured, it is quite frightening,” said Wenger. “He has a big future here. He is 21, he has something of (former Arsenal striker Emmanuel) Adebayor. He has a strong body, similar strengths but technical skill as well. ‘Campbell has done very well,” added Wenger. “I like the way he plays, he’s good on the ball...he has a good balance between individual skill and collective attitude — that’s not easy to find.” Sanogo scored three times before halftime and grabbed his fourth in the 50th minute after Aaron Ramsey’s shot was saved by Benfica keeper Maoras Artur.
