Myanmar Airways to launch Osaka flight

Osaka, 24 Aug—Myanmar Airways International said it will inaugurate a flight linking Myanmar’s biggest metropolis Yangon and Osaka via the Cambodian capital Phnom Penh three times a week on Oct 8.

This will be the first scheduled flight, though technically operated as a charter service, to Cambodia from Osaka’s Kansai International Airport, according to the airport operator. This will also be the first flight to Myanmar since March 2000 when All Nippon Airways discontinued a service to and from the Osaka gateway.

While reform in the higher education sector is being speeded up as the third wave of the reform process, measures that must be taken include nurturing new generation human resources to become intellectuals, improving the quality of teachers in the higher education sector, application of teaching aids, adoption of modern curricula and raising the education standard to the international level, the vice president added.

The vice president said that he was proud of the fact the science fairs organized by experts from universities and technology companies at home and abroad could be held at the university for the first time in many years as a result of universities becoming independent.

Government organizations and technology companies are opening 60 exhibition booths of teaching aids and research equipment and experts will give lectures on research and various subjects, according to the vice president.

The objectives of the science fairs include nurturing scientific thinking skills in students, instilling them with the mentality of scientists, spreading knowledge about teaching aids, research equipment and technology among the public and increasing the research and teaching and learning cooperation among universities, industrial manufacturers and socioeconomic organizations.

In conclusion, the vice president said the government is increasing the education budget year by year and thanked those who have organized the science fairs successfully. Lectures on science and technology will be held at the Recreation Centre and the Arts Hall at Yangon University every day. Although the science fair was arranged to open from 23 to 25 August, it will be open until 26 August to fulfill the wish of enthusiasts.

Then, the vice president proceeded to the training centre of Yangon General Hospital and met with union minister for health, the chief minister of Yangon Region, officials and faculty members.

At the meeting, the vice president explained the purpose of his second visit to the hospital for the second time. Yangon Region Chief Minister U Myint Swe and Union Minister for Health Dr Than Aung reported to the vice president on measures being taken to improve conditions at the hospital.

IAEA inspection on Parchin base unnecessary

TEHRAN, 24 Aug — The International Atomic Energy Agency (IAEA) has no need to revisit Iran’s Parchin military base, as no new development has taken place there since the UN inspectors’ last visit, Iran’s Defense Minister Brigadier General Hossein Dehghan said on Saturday. “The IAEA inspectors have visited Parchin before, and we have addressed their questions, and they have inspected the locations they wanted and took samples therefore, we think there is no need for giving them more access to the site,” Tasnim news agency quoted Dehghan as saying on Saturday.

The UN nuclear agency’s reports have never shown any response or action by Iran, said the defense minister said ahead of an 25 August deadline for Iran to provide a new set of information on its nuclear programme to the IAEA. Although investigation in Parchin has not been included in the agreement between Iran and the IAEA, visits to the military base have been an urgent demand of the UN nuclear watchdog to certify the peaceful nature of Iran’s nuclear programme.

Iran unveils homemade missiles, drones

TEHRAN, 24 Aug — Iran unveiled two home-made missiles and two drones on Sunday in a ceremony attended by President Hassan Rouhani.

Qadir (Almighty) missile, with a range of 300 km, is used for destroying marine targets. It can be either launched from sea vessels or by other missile systems, according to official IRNA news agency.

Nasr-e-Basir (Astute Victory) cruise missile carries a searching head, and operates silently and smartly, said the report without detailing on the range of the Nasr-e-Basir. Also, Iran launched two drones named Karrar 4 (Striker 4) and Mohajer 4 (Immigrant 4). Karrar 4 is an interceptor of flying objects and Mohajer 4 provides aerial maps for military and civilian purposes. No further details were given by the report.

In June, Iran unveiled a long-range radar system to enhance its air defence. The radar system, also dubbed Qadir, had a range of about 1,100 km and could monitor its surrounding radius round the clock and detect small three-dimensional targets. —Xinhua

Annual live-fire GSDF exercise held near Mt Fuji

GOTEMBA, (Japan), 24 Aug—An annual large-scale live-fire exercise for the Ground Self-Defense Force took place on Sunday in Gotemba, Shizuoka Prefecture, near Mt Fuji, with the nation’s air, sea and ground forces simulating the retaking of an outlying island captured by an enemy. Around 44 tons of live ammunition, worth some 350 million yen, were prepared for the exercise with a scenario reflecting Tokyo’s growing emphasis on defending far-flung islands.

In the Fuji Firepower Review, held in the ground force’s East Fuji Maneuver Area in the foothills of the nation’s highest peak, artillery shells and antitank guided missiles were fired. Defence Minister Itsunori Onodera also inspected the annual event, which draws many members of the public. The exercise has been held every year since 1961. —Kyodo News

Merkel says tightening Ukraine-Russian border is key to peace deal

Kiev, 24 Aug — German Chancellor Angela Merkel said on Saturday that the standoff over Ukraine could be solved but only if control was tightened over the Ukraine-Russia border across which, the West alleges, Russia has been fanning arms to help a separatist. Merkel was visiting Kiev as a prelude to a meeting next week between the Russian and Ukrainian leaders that diplomats say is the best chance in months of a peace deal in eastern Ukraine, where government forces are fighting pro-Moscow separatists.

She arrived as tensions flared up again, NATO has alleged Russia’s military is active inside Ukraine helping the separatists, and Moscow angered Kiev and its Western allies by sending an air convoy into Ukraine against Kiev’s wishes.

“The must be two sides to be successful. You cannot achieve peace on your own. I hope the talks with Russia will lead to success,” Merkel said, looking ahead to the meeting on Tuesday involving Russian President Vladimir Putin and his Ukrainian counterpart Petro Poroshenko.

“The plans are on the table, about how you can achieve peace and good cooperation between the countries. Now actions must follow,” she told a news briefing.

She said the main obstacle was the lack of controls along the nearly 2,000 km (1,300 mile) border. She proposed a deal between Kiev and Moscow on monitoring of the frontier by the Organization for Security and Cooperation in Europe (OSCE). “Now we need a two-sided ceasefire linked to a clear controlling of the Russian-Ukrainian border, otherwise peace won’t be achieved,” Merkel said.

Diplomats say Merkel came to Kiev with two objectives: primarily to show support for Kiev but also to urge Poroshenko to open peace proposals when he meets Putin next week in the Belarus capital, Minsk.

Poroshenko, whose forces have been forcing the rebels to retreat, said Kiev had offered ceasefires before and they were floated. He said no peace deal was worth sacrificing Ukraine’s territorial integrity, and placed the blame on Russia’s authorities. Ukraine is ready and capable of guaranteeing a peaceful settlement,” Poroshenko said. “What is stopping us are the foreign mercenaries. Take the people with guns out of our territory...and peace in Ukraine will be quickly restored.”

Hours before Merkel’s plane landed in Kiev, there was heavy artillery bombardment in Donetsk, the main separatist stronghold on the east of Ukraine, near the border with Russia. Reuters reporters saw apartments destroyed and puddles of blood, where, according to residents, two civilians were killed.

Reuters photographers saw three dead bodies of civilians in the eastern part of Donetsk 7 km (about 4 miles) from the centre after shelling in the afternoon.

Witnesses said the bodies belonged to a family which had run out of their home to take cover in a bomb shelter.

The unusually intense shelling may be part of a drive by government forces to achieve a breakthrough against the rebels in time for Ukrainian Independence Day, which falls on Sunday.

We will not interfere with Republika Srpska elections

Belgrade, 24 Aug — Serbia will not interfere in any way with the electoral process in Republika Srpska (RS), or support any side, Serbian Prime Minister Aleksandar Vucic said.

I am in no way engaged in the elections in Republika Srpska, Vucic told Belgrade-based daily Danas, and underlined that Serbia will respect the will of the people and not voice its support to any of the candidates.

RS President Milorad Dodik also told Danas that he does not expect the support of Belgrade.

“In that respect, the position of Serbia’s government is neutral. I expect the support of the people, that is, of the voters. I think that we have done everything to stabilize RS and the people appreciate that,” stressed Dodik.

“I did not even consider inviting any Serbian leaders to the campaign events, but I think that they made it very clear that they do not want to interfere in any way with the electoral process in RS and that they would not accept such an invitation,” added Dodik.

“We are perfectly content with the neutrality of Serbia’s state leadership regarding the elections in BiH,” said Dodik. —Tanjug

China executes eight for ‘terrorist’ attacks in Xinjiang

Shanghai, 24 Aug — China has executed eight people for “terrorist” attacks in its restive far western region of Xinjiang, including three who “mass-murdered” a dramatic car crash in the capital’s Tiananmen Square in 2013, state media said.

Xinjiang is the traditional home of Muslim Uighurs who speak a Turkic language, and China has attributed attacks there to Islamist separatists it says seek to establish an independent state called East Turkestan.

Exiled Uighur groups and human rights activists say the government’s own repressive policies in Xinjiang have provoked unrest, an accusation Beijing denies. Three of the executed group “mass-murdered” the October 2013 attack in the heart of the Chinese capital, official news agency Xinhua said late on Saturday.

Five people were killed and 40 injured in the incident, when a car plowed into a crowd in the square and burst into flames. The other executions, carried out in recent days, were punishment for crimes ranging from setting up a terrorist outfit and illegally making explosives to attacking police officers and killing government officials, Xinhua said.

A report by China Central Television (CCTV) on Sunday showed images of the individuals who have been executed being led into court and questioned by police. It also showed footage of the Tiananmen attack, with a car being driven into the square.

Some of those executed were blamed for attacks in Xinjiang’s prefecture of Aksu, the city of Kashgar and the town of Hotan, the agency added.

China has been cracking down on violent crime in Xinjiang after a string of deadly attacks there, and it executed 13 people in June. Hundreds of people have died in violence in the region over the last two years, with dozens jailed in the last month, some at mass public sendencings reminiscent of China’s revolutionary-era rallies.

This month a court in Xinjiang sentenced 25 people to jail for terror-related offences. Authorities also tightened security around public transport in a bid to crack down on violence, demanding bus passengers identify themselves upon travel. A suicide bombing in May killed 39 people at a market in Xinjiang’s capital of Urumqi. In March, 29 people were stabbed to death at a train station in the southwestern city of Kunming.—Reuters

Defence Ministry eyes record-high budget request of over 5 trillion yen

Tokyo, 24 Aug — The Defence Ministry plans to request a record-high 5.05 trillion yen budget for fiscal 2015 from next April which focuses on measures to bolster their defence of remote islands, government officials said Saturday.

The budget request to be announced next Friday, including US military realignment costs, marks an increase of 3.5 percent from the budget earmarked for the current fiscal year and comes at a time when Prime Minister Shinzo Abe is eyeing a security policy overhaul.

While a senior ministry official attributed the increase mainly to the purchase of two new government planes for use by the prime minister and imperial family members, a prioritized allocation is made to remote island defence.

The budget request for the next fiscal year covers 19 billion yen for measures to protect such islands, including an amphibious force to be created and land acquisition costs connected to the deployment of the US military’s MV-22 Ospreys to Saga airport in southwestern Japan, the officials said.

The ministry will also seek 5 million yen in research costs to introduce new vessels similar to the US Navy’s amphibus assault ships to engage in missions such as landing on remote islands, and 35.4 billion yen for using two passenger ferries to transport Ground Self-Defence Force troops, the officials said.

The budget includes 95.9 billion yen to acquire six F-35 stealth fighters which will serve as the Air Self-Defence Force’s next-generation main fighter jets.

The ministry wants to allocate 378.10 billion yen for the bulk purchase of 20 P-1 jet aircraft succeeding the aging P-3C.

The ministry will also ask for 7 billion yen for the development of new patrol helicopters to step up submarine surveillance, the officials said.

Selfie obsession has good and bad consequences

By Aung Khin

Selfie is an image of oneself taken by a camera of digital or phone. Most of the selfie images are to be shared and flagged in social networks such as Facebook, Instagram etc. Selfies are a current trend that is increasing in popularity across the world.

Many adults in Myanmar are also influenced by selfie culture. Most of them are female. As beauty and values vary from culture to culture, only a few young girls share their shameless selfies on social media.

However, selfies have some advantages. Group selfies can be fun and enjoy especially wacky snapshots, and they can be shared into social sites for friends living away. On the other hand, selfies might be used for personal intentions, with making fun of these photos. Excessive and increasingly provocative selfie-ing is a common behaviour pattern to get attention. Selfies are valuable when they can make someone playful or they turn out honest reflection.

Therefore, someone who is addicted to selfies should ask themselves—selfies are for fun or to get comments. It is important that Myanmar people should develop an awareness of how the selfie popularity should be accepted as it cannot be avoided in global community.

The misuse of online activities could provide an early warning system of problems among young people. Parents and teachers are responsible for educating their children in line how to accept modern technologies in line with Myanmar culture.

By Kin Mg Oo

I t is not an invented story. I want teachers, especially primary assistant teachers to try hard to the best of their caliber to become qualified ones, because they sure are to produce future leader-to-be. Ridiculously enough, an English subject teacher corrected her pupil’s an- swer wrong and the next day she corrected it over when asked to check it again. This may be a careless mistake, due to the lack of time to spare for giving individual attention to all. In my opinion, however, such a carefree mistake was unacceptable in any way. Teachers should notice that some parents are ambitious and they never lose sight of their children’s education. Such an incident can make parents lose respect for teachers. Unless parents pay attention to teachers’ teaching and follow up as to how the true in the children’s minds forever.

Now let me return to the main topic, “an advice for beginner learners as to what and how to read English”. This writing is intended for children in two age groups. One is from age 5 to age 10 or 12 and, another is teenage and above. Now that education is becoming entertainment, children are being found enjoy learning before we recognize it. Educational cartoon series and TV programs are available free almost daily. Parents should notice that their offspring love watching them. We should give priority to children to let them do as they desire if our favorite program coincides with theirs. These programs are of great help for the improvement of their speaking and listening skills. In my opinion, even adult beginner learners ought not to miss this opportunity. I would not like you to ask them as to what characters in these cartoon programs are saying. I just want you to get familiar with listening. Over time, language skills will develop instinctively. A picture dictionary sure will help children to recognize things and their names easily. Readable story books for younger ages are now available everywhere. These books are cheap and every family can afford. At the very beginning we need to control our greed from growing bigger. That is, we shouldn’t make them read books beyond beyond their knowledge. On seeing their abilities and eagerness develop, we must go to next step.

Here is my advice for teenagers and their superiors. Unlike their juniors, they need to study English basic grammar, if possible, thoroughly. In fact, they become old enough to do so. I firmly believe that grammar knowledge will strengthen pre- liminary language acquisition. Much as frequent seeing is easy to remember words and under- stand sentence construction, bet- ter knowledge about grammar will help learners to produce their own English sentence. There is a well-known saying, “Nothing ventured, nothing gained”. Without any effort, we will never acquire language pro- ficiency. First of all, we must find at least one hour every day to study the language. I recom- mend the following reading material for all enthusiastic stu- dents. “The Shwe Thway” is the one, which is already in exist- ence. Having heard its name, someone may flinch from reading. Do try reading. A neo-learn- er will find it difficult to know stories very well, without the help of Myanmar translation. Firstly, you only read English version. Without glancing at Myanmar renderings, read on and on. After two or three times, imagine using “read”. Enjoy more. Never give up your attempt at one time. Some say that we need not read the book any longer if there is more than 8 words we don’t know on the first page. As for me, I never accept that idea. Frequent readings will make us notice words and their usages. Bilingual readable books which can be found in book- shops are really convenient for beginners. If we find difficulty in reading verses, we can solve the problem by reading rectos. I would not like you to abandon your burning desire. I myself had once undergone many diffi- culties.

During my early years of high school education, I started reading the English newspaper, the Working People’s Daily. Not having any one to help me read the paper, I had to read them in consultation with its Myanmar version, the “Lokethar” and “the U Tun Nyein Eng-Myanmar Dictionary”. It was very difficult for me, even to read a news item per day. Very often I was satisfied with reading titles for news items only. Many usages that we never find in our lessons confused for beginners. Knowing nothing except Passive Pattern and Ac- tive Pattern (= subject-verb-object/ ject/complement format), writ- ing was very difficult. “them” was less than under- standable for me. I didn’t know why the news titles were written in “To+ infinite” for Future tense. To put it simply, I could read a newspaper very well after passing my 10th standard exam, but even though not yet to the full satisfaction. Another important thing is to cultivate the prac- tice of reading a dictionary; hav- ing a readable one at the beginning and thence choosing a reliable one to further our language skills. In our school days, our teachers recommended the King’s Way dictionary to us. To- day there are various kinds of modern English lexicons. I think that scholars will never deny the importance of a reliable diction- ary.

In Oxford Advanced American Dictionary, it is defined that a dictionary is a book that gives a list of the words of a language in alphabetical order and ex- plains what they mean, or gives a word for them in a foreign lan- guage. For us, a reliable diction- ary is not a perfect teacher as such, but it can help us acquire better understanding of sentenc- es or rather the language. Why? It gives us definite meanings of a word, its correct pronunciation, grammatical functions and ex- ample sentences. Moreover, it points out synonyms, antonyms and literary elements. Read as much as we can and accumulate words. In my sad days, I used to write down in my own note books all abstruse sentences found in the newspapers. Trying to understand these sentences became my favorite pastime. With reading speed developing, I want my young readers to give more time to study dictionaries. Here I used the plural noun as I assume that having more than one dictionary is more convenient for refer- ence. Which words are we to learn? The key words of Oxford 3000 are highly recommended by world-famous language ex- perts to all learners to study es- pecially.

“Rome wasn’t built in a day,” as the saying goes. It will take us a long time and patience to accomplish our aims and objectives. It is generally accepted that we must es- sentially know at least 850 words for the variety of usages. That number is too limited for intermediate and advanced learners to read news- papers and novels. Now it’s time to depart from our usual way of learning words. Most of us are usually satisfied with our first-ever knowledge of English words’ Myanmar meanings. That is, since our childhood days we knew that “Go” means ပြောင်းလာ “Sleep” means ဆိုခိုင် “Get” means လိုက်ပါ “A” means သင်္ချာ “Job” means ဝန်ဆောင်မှုများ etc. We need to look for more meanings of words and a variety of their usages. If possible, read the preface or fore- words of a dictionary and get more advantages.

We should distinguish dif- ferent meanings of commonly used seemingly similar verbs and words such as employ, em- ploy, comply, imply, deduce, in- duce, seduce, affect, defect, ef- fect, infect, assure, ensure, insur- e, acquire, inquire, enquire, require, and etc. On many words are confusing and prepositions also are interesting. Some schol- ars and today’s brightest youths may disapprove of my ideas. But I believe that it will be great use and benefit to slow-witted but enthusiastic beginner learners with burning desires to know English. I deeply request our re- spectable scholars and all my su- periors to share their knowledge and experiences for the benefit of posterity.

May all youths build up their edifices of hopes success- fully!

Five rockets fired from Syria hit Israel

JERUSALEM, 24 Aug — Five rockets fired from Syria hit the Israeli-occupied Golan Heights overnight between Saturday and Sunday, the Israeli military said in a statement. Israel’s Ynet website news said that three rockets exploded in a settlement in the northern Golan Heights and two have hit an open space. No injuries or damages were immediately reported.

The rocket salvo was fired only a few hours after a rocket attack from Lebanon hit the Upper Galilee in northern Israel. A spokesman with the police said that the rocket hit an empty building in an open area, with two children lightly wounded. No group has immediately claimed responsibility for both incidents. The unexpected fires come as a deadly war between Israel and Hamas in Gaza enters its 48 day and as the death toll in Gaza climbed to more than 2,100, according to Palestinian health officials. Over the past week, there has been relative calm in the Israel’s northern border with sporadic fire trades.—Xinhua

Bomb attacks kill 22 in Iraq’s Kirkuk

KIRKUK, 24 Aug — At least 22 people were killed and 132 wounded in three bomb attacks in the northern Iraqi city of Kirkuk on Saturday, a police source said. Three suicide car bombers targeting headquarter of Kurdish forces blew themselves in northen and southern Kirkuk, leaving some buildings collapsed, a local police told Xinhua on condition of anonymity. The consecutive attacks killed at least 22 people and injured 132 others, including members of the Iraqi government forces, Alsumaria news website quoted security officials as saying. Iraq is witnessing one of its worst violence in recent years. According to the UN Assistance Mission for Iraq, a total of 4,858 Iraqis, including 7,818 civilians and civilian police personnel, were killed in 2013, the highest annual death toll in years.—Xinhua

Western countries and Egypt, worried about Libya becoming a failed state and safe haven for Islamist militias, have denied any involvement. The Libyan government has said it does not know who is responsible for the air attacks.

In a challenge to the parliament elected on 25 June, the spokesman for the House of Representatives, where liberals and lawmakers campaigning for a federalist system have made a strong show.

In a sign of deep divisions between Libya’s regions and political factions, the House of Representatives voted to declare the Operation Dawn as well as militant Islamists like the Ansar al-Sharia as “terrorist groups”.

“This is a war between the Libyan state and the state institutions led by our sons, soldiers and officers in the army, against terrorist groups outside of the law,” the house said in a statement.—Reuters

EGYPT / CAIRO, 24 Aug.—Egypt called on Israel and the Palestinians to adhere to the Cairo Declaration on 23 Aug, 2014 to halt hostilities and resume peace talks, but both sides kept up attacks, including an Israeli air strike which destroyed a residential tower block in the centre of Gaza City.

Hamas militants also fired rockets at Israel, hitting the southern city of Beersheba, where two people were hurt, police said. At least two rockets were also fired from Lebanon into northern Israel, but it was not initially clear who fired them, Lebanese and Israeli sources said.

At least five rockets fired from Syria also landed at various locations on the Israeli-occupied Golan Heights, the Israeli army said. All fell in open areas, causing no injuries or damage. It was not immediately known who fired the rockets.

Initial reports said 17 people were wounded in the attack, although rockets and mortar bombs rained down on Israeli throughout the day, including one intercepted over the Tel Aviv area, the military said. At least 570 rockets have been fired at Israel since a ceasefire collapsed on Tuesday, it added. Palestinian health officials say 2,083 people, most of them killed in the small, densely populated coastal enclaves since 9 July, when Israel launched an offensive with the declared aim of ending Palestinian rocket fire into its territory.

Sixty-four Israeli soldiers and four civilians were killed. Indirect ceasefire talks mediated by Egypt to end the conflict collapsed after rocket attacks were fired from Gaza during a truce and Israel responded with air strikes.

The Egyptian Foreign Ministry on Saturday called on both sides to resume talks. Palestinian President Abbas, in Cairo after meeting President Abdel Fattah al-Sisi, also urged a swift resumption of negotiations. A senior Egyptian diplomat said Abbas had informed Sisi that Hamas was prepared to come to Cairo for further talks, but Hamas did not immediately confirm the report. Israel also had no immediate comment. The Egyptian diplomat said Cairo expected to receive responses from both Israel and Hamas by Monday. The talks, conducted in Cairo, have not involved direct meetings between Israeli officials and representatives of Hamas. Israel considers Hamas a terrorist organization and Hamas, for its part, refuses to recognize Israel. Egyptian officials shuttle between the two sides.

Hamas has said it will not stop fighting until the Israeli-Egyptian blockade on Gaza is lifted.

Both Israel and Egypt view Hamas as a security threat and are reluctant to make sweeping concessions without guarantees weapons will not enter the economically crippled enclave.

Apple iPhone 6 screen snag leaves supply chain scrambling

Tokyo, 24 Aug — Suppliers to Apple Inc are scrambling to get enough screens ready for the new iPhone 6 smartphone as the need to redesign a key component disrupted panel production ahead of next month’s expected launch, supply chain sources said.

It’s unclear whether the hiccups could delay the launch or limit the number of phones initially available to consumers, the sources said, as Apple readies larger-screen iPhones for the year-end shopping season amid market share loss to cheaper rivals.

But the issue highlights the risks and challenges that suppliers face to meet Apple’s tough specifications, and comes on the heels of a separate screen technology problem, since resolved, in making thinner screens for the larger iPhone 6 model.

Cupertino, California-based Apple has scheduled a media event for 9 September, and many expect it to unveil the new iPhone 6 with both 4.7 inch (11.94 cm) and 5.5 inch (13.97 cm) screens — bigger than the 4-inch screen on the iPhone 5s and 5c.

Two supply chain sources said display panel production suffered a setback after the backlight that helps illuminate the screen had to be revised, putting screen assembly on hold for part of June and July. One said Apple, aiming for the thinnest phone possible, initially wanted to cut back to a single layer of backlight film, instead of the standard two layers, for the 4.7-inch screen, which went into mass production ahead of the 5.5-inch version.

Output is now back on track and suppliers are working flat-out to make up for lost time, the supply chain sources said.

For Apple, declined to comment.

Apple is known to make tough demands on its parts suppliers for new iPhones and iPads as it competes to create designs, shapes, sizes and features to set apart and command a premium price in a fiercely competitive gadget market.

This can cause glitches and delays, including screen problems that cramped supplies at last year’s launch of a high-resolution version of Apple’s iPad Mini.

It also highlights the danger for suppliers of depending too heavily on Apple for revenues, creating earnings volatility.

Earlier this month, Japan Display said, as Apple readies large-screen iPhones for the year-end shopping season, it is rushing output ahead of new iPhone panel, said orders for “a large customer” — which analysts said was Apple — arrived as expected, but shipments may be delayed until the July-September quarter.

Japan Display’s reliance on Apple’s cyclical business has spooked some investors. UBS Securities has forecast that Apple will contribute more than a third of the Japanese firm’s total revenue in the year to March 2015. Japan Display’s share price dropped to a 12-week low of 501 yen after first-quarter earnings on 7 August lagged market expectations.

In Taiwan, home to several Apple suppliers and assemblers, export orders grew less than expected in July, even as factories rushed output ahead of new smartphone launches, reflecting the erratic nature of the business.

A little Neanderthal in us all: Australian scientists

Sydney, 24 Aug — A researcher from the Australian National University (ANU) may have blown anthropology’s Neanderthal narrative out of the history books by proving in the latest edition of Nature, published online Thursday, that groups of the doomed forerunners to modern man lived alongside modern humans for thousand of years.

It may not have been amity all round, but Dr Rachel Wood, working alongside an international team of experts applied a new radiocarbon dating method which revealed that Neanderthals across Europe did not all die out at one time — as modern humans appeared, which has been the prevailing theory but dwelt for millennia in the suburbs of modern man.

“The two groups lived in neighbouring regions for several thousand years,” Dr Wood from the Research School of Earth Sciences at ANU said. “They would have had plenty of time to interact.”

The work will be closely studied by another Australian researcher — Adelaide University archaeologist Alan Cooper — who last year formulated that the mercurial Densovans Neanderthal — like relatives of ancient humans crossed Wallace’s Line, one of the world’s most formidable marine barriers, more than 100,000 years ago.

With professor Cooper linking traces of their DNA existing in modern humans, he went to theorise that the two groups interbred in Asia. Published in Science in October last year, Cooper’s study suggested that genetic evidence of interbreeding had only been proven in indigenous populations of New Guinea, Australia.

Cooper’s Denisovans are the walking shadows of anthropological history, with just a finger bone and some teeth unearthed in a Siberian cave in 2008, proving they ever existed at all. Some scientists now believe they outnumbered the Neanderthals and lived throughout Asia. —Xinhua

SpaceX rocket terminated in Texas test flight, company says

Houston, 24 Aug — A Space Exploration Technologies’ Falcon 9 rocket suffered an anomaly shortly after launch on a test flight in Texas on Friday, triggering its automatic termination system, the company said in a statement.

“Earlier today, in McGregor, Texas, SpaceX conducted a test flight of three engine version of the F9R test vehicle (successor to Grasshopper),” the privately owned company said.

“During the flight, an anomaly was detected in the vehicle and the flight termination system automatically terminated the mission.”

There were no injuries, SpaceX said, and the vehicle remained in its designated flight area throughout the test and subsequent termination.

“With research and development projects, detecting vehicle anomalies during the testing is the purpose of the programme,” said the statement from SpaceX.

US undercover investigators among those exposed in data breach

Boston / Washington, 24 Aug — A cyber attack at a firm that performs background checks for US government employees compromised data of at least 25,000 workers, including some undercover investigators, and that number could rise, agency officials said on Friday.

The breach at Falls Church, Virginia-based US Investigations Services (USIS) exposed highly personal information of workers at the Department of Homeland Security’s headquarters as well as its US Immigration and Customs Enforcement and US Customs and Border Protection units, two officials familiar with the investigation into the breach told Reuters.

Some employees have already received letters warning them about the breach that say compromised information includes Social Security numbers, education and criminal history, birth dates along with information about spouses, other relatives and friends including their names and addresses.

“Records including this data were exposed to unauthorized users during the cybersecurity intrusion,” according to a notification letter obtained by Reuters. “We do not yet know whether the data was actually taken.”

One DHS official told Reuters the agency has identified some 25,000 employees whose information it believes were exposed in the breach.

“More could be notified in coming weeks as we learn more about the breach,” said the official, who asked not to be identified by name. The company disclosed the attack earlier this month, but did not say how many records had been compromised or how they were affected. It did say the intrusion has “all the markings of a state-sponsored attack.”

A number of employees affected is relatively small compared to breaches at retailers such as Target Corp, which have affected tens of millions of customers, security experts say the attack on USIS is nonetheless quite serious. —Reuters

There was no pressure from Germany

BELGRADE, 24 Aug — Serbian Foreign Minister and First Deputy Prime Minister Ivica Dacic said that no pressure was put on him in Germany and that Berlin is primarily interested if Serbia will stay on the EU path, adding that the opening of Chapters 32 and 35 of the EU accession talks can be expected by the end of the year.

“They want to know is Serbia is put on its EU path, and there is absolutely no doubt about that. They want Serbia to be the engine for the entire region in terms of drawing closer to the European Union and of stabilizing the situation in the region. As the problem-solving factor, Serbia is crucial for the stability of the region. They expect us to play a constructive role and provide assistance in that respect,” Dacic said upon his return from Berlin late on Friday.

In an interview on RTS evening news broadcast Dnevnik, Dacic said that German Foreign Minister Frank-Walter Steinmeier did not even mention that German Chancellor Angela Merkel, stressed Dacic, adding that the next conference will take place in Austria next year and in France the year after that, which is also indicative of the standing of the initiative.

The aim of the conference is to define and articulate the common objectives, said Dacic, adding that serious preparations for the summit are under way in all participating countries.

The conference will consist of three parts, said Dacic. “The first part will be a meeting between the prime ministers and Angela Merkel. The second part will be a meeting with German Foreign Minister Steinmeier, and the third with Germany’s minister of finance,” Dacic explained.

Speaking about the upcoming Conference of Western Balkan States to be held on 28 August in Berlin, Dacic said that such initiatives existed before and that they only served to promote those who organized the summits.

The situation is different now, considering that this summit will be held at the initiative of German Chancellor Angela Merkel, stressed Dacic, adding that serious preparations for the summit are under way in all participating countries.

The negotiations are not up in the air, said Dacic, noting that the government has drawn up its negotiating position on Chapter 32, and that Serbia is not to blame for the delays in the implementation of the Brussels agreement.

“We expect Chapter 35 to be opened by year-end as well,” said Dacic, adding that the decision on opening Chapters 32 and 35 would be a fair award for the Serbian government’s efforts.

Niger minister arrested in ‘baby-trafficking’ investigation

NIAMEY, 24 Aug — Niger’s agriculture minister has been arrested on suspicion of involvement in a baby-trafficking network, a spokesman for his political party and legal sources said on Saturday.

The arrest of Abdou Labo, a senior figure in President Mahamadou Issoufou’s ruling coalition, comes after 17 people, including his wife and the spouses of other politicians, were arrested in June as part of a police investigation.

Following the arrest of his wife, Labo, who is one of five ministers of state in the 36-member government, denied any involvement in trafficking.

Kabirou Adamou, spokesman for Labo’s Democratic and Social Convention (CDS) party, said: “We had a party meeting this morning.

The minister called to say the judge had decided to place him in detention. He is presumed innocent for the moment.”

Niger police suspect those currently being detained of acquiring newborn babies from “baby factories” in neighbouring Nigeria. The case has been referred to Niger’s public prosecutor.

“Abdou Labo was imprisoned on Saturday at the civilian prison in Say, 60 km (37 miles) southwest of the capital,” a judge told Reuters, asking not to be named.

“This is in the framework of the investigations into baby trafficking.”

A second judicial source confirmed the arrest. Human trafficking and the sale of children is a long-standing issue across West Africa.

Last year, police in Nigeria raided several “baby factories”, freeing dozens of pregnant girls who were being forced to bear children for sale.

Chinese Premier stresses social funds in railway construction

BEIJING, 24 Aug — Chinese Premier Li Keqiang has encouraged the China Railway Corporation (CRC) to further emancipate the mind and seek more social capital, the central government’s website reported on Sunday.

“Railway construction must be led by the government and promoted by administrative orders will not work any more,” said the premier during an inspection tour of the CRC on Friday. Li said innovations in investment and financing are key to reform in the railway sector. He asked the CRC to explore ways of better soliciting non-governmental funds and gather experience for other state-owned enterprises.

“Railway development is multifunctional as it can stabilize economic growth, enhance social harmony and push forward urbanization,” said the premier.

China spent a lot on railways in recent years and attached great importance to reforming railway investment and financing mechanisms since the CRC’s inception in March 2013. The State Council, the cabinet, released an action plan to deepen reform in railway investment and financing in April. The executive meeting chaired by Li. According to the plan, a railway development fund will be set up and open to social investment. The fund’s value is expected to reach up to 300 billion yuan (48.6 billion US dollars).

In addition, 150 billion yuan of railway bonds will be issued this year. The government will also encourage banks to fund railway construction.

Rail links in central and western regions will be prioritized to expand investment, boost related sectors, and help urbanization, noted the plan.

Shortly after the cabinet meeting, the CRC raised railway investment target for 2014 to 800 billion yuan and aimed to put over 6,600 kilometers of new lines into operation, mostly in the central and western regions.—Xinhua

STOCKHOLM, 24 Aug — Several people were hurt, one seriously, when mounted police moved in to separate rival sides at a far right demonstration in the Swedish city of Malmo on Saturday, police said.

“A number of people were trampled and one person was seriously injured,” Malmo police said in a statement. “We do not know currently how seriously.” Police arrested nine people at the march where supporters of the Party of the Swedes were confronted by a counter demonstration by opponents who consider them neo-Nazis.

Swedes voted in a general election on 14 September with immigration a major issue. Party of the Swedes has too little support to make any impact. A more moderate anti-immigration party, the Sweden Democrats, is polling around 10 percent.

Berlin, 24 Aug — Germany’s foreign intelligence agency has been spying on Turkey for nearly four decades, Focus magazine said on Saturday in a report which could raise tensions further between the NATO allies.

The details about the duration of possible surveillance and on the decision-making surrounding it go further than first reports earlier this week.

Turkey summoned Germany’s ambassador in Ankara on Monday after media reports that Berlin had identified Ankara as a top target of surveillance in a government document from 2009 and had been spying on Turkey for years.

Focus magazine said the BND intelligence agency had been spying on Turkey since 1976 and that German government under the then Social Democrat chancellor Helmut Schmidt had expressly approved the step. The magazine also cited government sources as saying the BND’s current mandate to monitor Turkish political and state institutions had been agreed by a government working group.

That included representatives of the chancellor’s office, the defence, foreign and economy ministries. A spokesman for the German government declined to comment on the report.

The report is a further embarrassment for Angela Merkel’s government which faces accusations of hypocrisy because of its outrage over allegations of widespread surveillance by the United States on Germans, including the tapping of the chancellor’s phone.

However, conservative lawmaker Hans-Peter Uhl told Focus there were “good reasons” for the BND to bug Turkey. He cited human trafficking, drugs and terrorism as issues of concern and his comments chime with the views of many German politicians.

“We need to know what is coming to us from EU-applicant Turkey,” Focus quoted him as saying.

Germany is Turkey’s largest trading partner in the European Union and home to at least 3 million Turks. But relations are not always smooth. Merkel’s conservatives are skeptical about Turkish EU membership.

In response to media reports about US spying in Germany, Merkel has said spying among friends is “not at all acceptable”.

In a public spat which chilled relations between Berlin and Washington, Germany told the top US spy in Germany to leave earlier this year after a double agent at the BND was unearthen.

Der Spiegel magazine reported that the BND has also targeted Albania, another member of NATO, for surveillance.

US hostage rescuers dropped from night sky: Syria activist

BEIRUT / WASHINGTON 24 Aug — It was just after midnight on 4 July when at least two dozen US Delta Force commandos arrived on heavily armed Black Hawk helicopters in Akrishi, a small town near the eastern Syrian city of Raqqa on the bank of the Euphrates River.

Before they landed to search for American hostages including journalist James Foley, they destroyed a crucial target: anti-aircraft weapons at a jihadist base about 3 miles (5 km) southeast of the city, a stronghold of Islamic State militants seeking to build a monolithic Islamic state.

The above account and photos of the raid on Facebook soon after it took place. The posts, which were viewed by Reuters, have since been taken down. “The raid happened just after midnight,” Raqqaoui said. “The helicopters first started destroying anti-aircraft weapons.” Reuters could not verify the account and photos.

The White House publicized details of the raid on Wednesday, a day after Islamic State jihadists posted a video showing Foley being beheaded. The White House said the commandos failed to find Foley or other hostages and that it was prompted to make the announcement after several US news organizations learned of the operation.

‘Haider’ was a life changing experience

MUMBAI, 24 Aug — Actress Shraddha Kapoor says being part of Vishal Bhardwaj’s upcoming release ‘Haider’ was a life changing experience for her. ‘Haider’ is the Bollywood adaptation of William Shakespeare’s Hamlet and the final film of his trilogy that began with ‘Maqbool’ followed by ‘Omkara’.

“I have first time experienced a different world of cinema which Vishal sir has put me in. I was surprised to see myself. Also audience wants to see you in different roles. I feel lucky and fortunate to be part of this film. It was a life changing experience for me,” Shraddha said in an interview.

The film also stars Tabu, Shahid Kapoor, Irrfan Khan and Kay Kay Menon in pivotal roles.

“In my fifth film to share screen space with great actors like Tabu, Irrfan Khan, Kay Kay Menon, Shahid Kapoor is unbelievable. I feel fortunate to get this opportunity. It was phenomenal to work with such actors. I used to pinch myself every day,” Shraddha said. The film is set in Kashmir and Shraddha had great time shooting there.

“I had come to Kashmir three-four days before shooting to understand the dialect of Kashmiri people. I used to go on the sets when I was not required also just to observe these stalwarts,” she added.

As trailers of ‘Haider’ have got a positive response Shraddha hopes the film also does well.

“Usually commercial films have similar feel to the promos but this film is drastically set in a different world. We have got good response for the trailer. The audience is also demanding to see something different,” she said. The film is scheduled to be released on 2 October.—PTI

Madonna working on a ‘super weird’ song

LOS ANGELES, 24 Aug — ‘Queen of Pop’ Madonna has been working on a super weird song, according to music producer Diplo.

Diplo has been in the studio three times with the 56-year-old ‘Material Girl’ hitmaker to work on her forthcoming 13th studio album, collaborating with her on a number of different songs, reported Billboard magazine.

“One song is super weird. Late one night in the studio we got a little bit drunk and she improvised a little hook and we made a song out of it. I think it’s going to be a breakthrough if she can manage to get everything together and get it out properly,” Diplo said.

Madonna has been working on her 13th studio album throughout 2014 and has been in the studio with Avicii, Natalia Kills and ‘Wrecking Ball’ writer MoZilla, among others.—PTI

Jennifer Lawrence not part of ‘The Hateful Eight’?

NEW YORK, 24 Aug — Oscar-winning actress Jennifer Lawrence’s representative has reportedly denied her involvement in Quentin Tarantino’s ‘The Hateful Eight’.

The 24-year-old star was to play one of the central eight characters in the film, whose teaser trailer was recently leaked online, reported Huffington Post online.

Diana Penty walks for Rocky S at LIFW

The actress walked the ramp, having donning a long black gown with detailed, diamond studded sequence work on the top. With open hair and minimal makeup, she looked gorgeous in Rock’s outfit. “I love black and I love this outfit. I am feeling great wearing this outfit,” Diana told reporters post the show. Rocky, who has collaborated with the Tresemme brand for this collection, says the stress that women experience because of their haircare issues was something they wanted to depict.

The designer, who has used more of black and white colours in all his outfits, says his collections are timeless and can be worn for red carpets.

“My collection is not a seasonal collection... it is a timeless collection and it can be worn for red carpets. I have worked a lot on this collection and all of them are hand crafted. Besides Diana absolutely justified my outfit.”

Sharing Tresemme’s philosophy that every woman deserve to look their best at all times, Rocky brought alive this essence through a collection that was divided in two distinct parts and concludes with how every woman needs to take out time from a stressful life and indulge herself.

“Game of Thrones” exhibits delight Vancouver fans

VANCOUVER, 24 Aug — “Game of Thrones” is one of HBO’s most successful TV drama series. And from now on to 1 September, fans in Vancouver get a chance to see the props and costumes that actors actually use in the show at the Pacific National Exhibition (PNE).

Now in its fourth season, “Game of Thrones” is a fantasy drama based on the book series “A Song of Ice and Fire.” The story is set in the fictional lands of Westeros and Essos and follows several noble families in a civil war for the coveted Iron Throne.

A scene from the show.

Jason Brind, a fan of “Game of Thrones,” told Xinhua that he likes the TV show because “it always keeps you on the edge of your seat and always keeps you guessing. It gives me severe anxiety every time I watch it because I don’t know what’s going to happen.”

Jason Brind and his girlfriend Manayer Alhendi came to the exhibition this year to have a chance to sit on the replica of “Iron Throne,” which is among more than 100 artifacts used in the show’s first three seasons. Alhendi said she liked to cheer for the show’s villains — the Lannisters.

“I suppose I like it as they’re all fighting one another for this coveted throne and I love the strategy behind the battle plans. I actually love the Lannisters. I love to hate them,” she said.

In the PNE, fans wait up to 30 minutes for a chance to enjoy a full 3D experience of climbing the show’s famed “Wall” — a massive and iconic barrier that divides the fictional lands of Westeros from the dangerous northern wilderness. Brittny Webber enjoyed the experience and explained her experience.

“It was pretty scary, like you are in an elevator and it goes really high up and you don’t know when it’s going to stop. And like looking around you’re in like this cage and there’s nothing above you,” she said, adding that she had a feeling of free falling and fireworks shooting at her.

Some fans of the show took their interest to a whole new level, including Aar on Harrison, who arrived in a costume he made himself based on the outfits worn by the show’s villains the Lannisters. Harrison works in Vancouver’s film industry as an actor and set builder. He said the costumes and set designs from “Game of Thrones” are some of the best he’s seen. He said the show is notorious for its violence and gory scenes, and is certainly not for the whole family.

“It make murder porn is what my girlfriend says all the time, but I mean it’s like the bible, but more entertaining,” he said.

Manchester United set to sign Real’s Di Maria

Manchester United set to sign Real’s Di Maria

LONDON, 24 Aug — Manchester United are close to signing Real Madrid’s Argentina winger Angel Di Maria in a deal that is expected to smash the British transfer record, according to media reports.

The 26-year-old is likely to cost more than the 50 million pounds Chelsea paid for him in 2010 and he was a key part of the team that won the club’s 10th European Cup last term but he has since fallen out of favour and was omitted from the squad for the Spanish Super Cup this week.

The Argentine, who looked strong in pre-season after suffering a thigh injury in the World Cup quarter-finals which forced him out of the tournament, has turned down a new deal at the Bernabeu having been linked with the Premier League.

“Di Maria asked to leave this summer and rejected the option to renew,” Real manager Ancelotti said on Thursday.

“We’ll look for the best option for him and if at the end of August he is still here then he will work with us like last season.”

The Daily Mail reported that Di Maria had already spoken with United manager Louis van Gaal about his likely role and said he was expected to be given the iconic number seven shirt worn by George Best, Eric Cantona and David Beckham.

United declined to comment on the reports. — Reuters
Arsenal salvage late Everton draw, Chelsea win

London, 24 Aug — Arsenal showed the resilience that could underpin a Premier League title challenge when they scored twice in the closing minutes to draw 2-2 at Everton after the home side largely dominated the match on Saturday.

Aaron Ramsey tapped in after 83 minutes and substitute Olivier Giroud planted home a late winner at West Ham for Harry Redknapp. It was also the second successive week Everton had conceded a late goal which denied them victory after allowing hosts Leicester City to equalise and force a 2-2 drawn in their opener. Arsenal manager Arsene Wenger told Sky Sports: “It is a strong point because we were 2-0 down but a deserved one.”—Reuters

Record as Leverkusen’s Bellarabi scores after nine seconds

Berlin, 24 Aug — Bayer Leverkusen winger Karim Bellarabi registered the fastest goal in the Bundesliga’s 52-year history when he netted after nine seconds in their 2-0 victory over Braunschweig.

Bellarabi returned to Leverkusen this season after a loan spell at Eintracht Braunschweig. The previous record was 11 seconds, held by Ulf Kirsten, Giovane Elber and Paul Freier. “It’s great that the Bundesliga record will now stay at Leverkusen. That’s great for us and for the player,” Leverkusen chief executive Michael Schade said, referring to Kirsten’s goal against Kaiserslautern in 2002. Stefan Kiessling scored another goal from a Bellarabi pass with the last kick of the game for Leverkusen’s season opening win. —Reuters

Serena plays young Townsend in symbolic US Open opener

New York, 24 Aug — Serena Williams, who opens her quest for a third successive US Open title with a meeting against fellow African American Taylor Townsend on Tuesday, said Arthur Ashe would have been proud.

On Arthur Ashe Kids’ Day that drew legions of young hopefuls to the National Tennis Centre on Saturday, Williams pondered the significance of her clash against the 18-year-old Townsend and the legacy of Ashe, whose name graces the centre court stadium. “I think he would say it’s a great opportunity to see a veteran American player play the future of American tennis,” 32-year-old Williams told reporters after her match against the 2012 Australian Open girls’ champion. “He was such an amazing guy. I had an opportunity to meet him. So I think he would be really proud and honored to see so many young African-American players… doing so well and playing so hard and just being role models for the next generation.”

Williams said she took a lot from the example set by Ashe, a three-times major winner who claimed the US title in 1968, and died in 1993 from AIDS-related pneumonia. —Reuters

Spurs rout QPR 4-0 in Pochettino’s 1st home game

London, 24 Aug — Tottenham tore apart Queens Park Rangers to produce a stylish 4-0 rout that showcased the expresssive attacking football demanded of new manager Mauricio Pochettino on Sunday, ensuring a miserable return to White Hart Lane for Harry Redknapp.

In high-tempo first-half display, Nacer Chadli seized on hapless QPR defending to score twice and defender Eric Dier made it two goals in two games at the start of his Tottenham career.

Dier also scored the late winner at West Ham in last weekend’s season opener but Tottenham was far more rampant in Pochettino’s first home game in charge. Emmanuel Adebayor completed QPR’s humiliation in the second-half with a goal on the break provided by Dier, who joined Tottenham in the offseason from Benfica for $6 million.—Internet
