UEC decides not to hold by-elections this year

Yangon, 7 Sept — The Union Election Commission Chairman U Tin Aye explained that the Union Election Commission told a parliamentary session on 20 May that the second by-elections would be held in late November or early December after ASEAN meetings, adding that the holding of by-elections needed reconsidering given the 35 vacancies.

Parliament is now occupied with constitutional and electoral reforms, which he said are critical to the country and the people. Electioneering will be a burden on political parties, some of whose representatives are members to committees and commissions tasked with constitutional and electoral amendments, he stated.

With the general elections expected to take place in August or September in 2015, political parties will face financial and political constraints as a result of standing for two separate elections.

According to the UEC chairman, the government would have to spend over K2 billion on two elections and as a result a second thought should be given to holding the elections as there is no telling whether the spending would benefit the country.

After the meeting, the UEC Chairman and officials met with media persons and explained preparations for the 2015 general elections. — MNA

Myanmar can export just over one million tonnes of rice, and will check prices offered by India before making decision on selling rice to India, according to the sources of the Myanmar Rice Federation. — MNA

Japanese woman becomes special aide to IAEA chief

VIENNA, 7 Sept—Tomiko Ichikawa, 52, hopes to “be of service to Japan and the world” in her new position of special aide to Yukiya Amano, head of the International Atomic Energy Agency.

In July, Ichikawa, who has extensive experience at various international organizations, became the first Japanese woman to be appointed to take the post at the Vienna-based nuclear watchdog.

She previously served as ambassador at the Permanent Mission of Japan to the International Organizations in Vienna.

Hailing from Saitama, north of Tokyo, Ichikawa dreamed of working abroad using English during her senior high school years. Having read a newspaper article about a woman who passed an examination to become a diplomat, Ichikawa aspired to take the same path and entered the Foreign Ministry in 1985.

In the mid-1990s, Ichikawa, then an officer with the UN Protection Force, set foot in Sarajevo, the capital of conflict-hit Bosnia and Herzegovina, with a bulletproof vest on.

The UN attempt advanced to advance a cease-fire to rural areas and forge ahead with reconstruction of local infrastructure.

But Ichikawa said their efforts "were unsuccessful in the face of a tough reality" and that she still remembers the feeling of frustration she had at the time.

Ichikawa also represented Japan in six-party negotiations aimed at de-nuclearizing North Korea for two years until the talks were suspended in December 2008.

In 2007, she joined a team to examine North Korea’s nuclear facilities and verify that disablement work was making progress as agreed by Pyongyang.

The six-party talks involving the two Koreas, China, Japan, the United States and Russia seemed at the time to be making steady progress. But they stalled later.

“Investigation quickly worsened as if we were tumbling downhill and North Korea moved to conduct a nuclear test in 2009," she said. In 2011 when a powerful earthquake struck northeastern Japan, crippled Tokyo Electric Power Co’s Fukushima nuclear power station, Ichikawa reported what was happening each day to the diplomatic corps in Japan.

But Ichikawa said she always faced a complicated reality and kept asking herself, “Is my job being any help to anyone?”

Now as a member of the IAEA, which is tackling decontamination and dismantling of nuclear re-actors in Fukushima as well as nuclear issues in Iran and North Korea, Ichikawa wants to work for the benefit of Japan and the whole world.—Kyodo News

Japan, Sri Lanka expected to agree on maritime security cooperation

COLOMBO, 7 Sept—Japanese Prime Minister Shinzo Abe and Sri Lanka President Mahinda Rajapaksa held talks on Sunday in a bid to strengthen cooperation on maritime security at a time when China is expanding its influence in the Indian Ocean country.

The two leaders are likely to agree to launch intergovernmental talks on marine pollution and environmental protection, while Abe is expected to announce that Japan will study providing patrol ships to Sri Lanka so that the island country can boost its security capabilities.

Sri Lanka has geographical importance for Japan as imports of oil from the Middle East are transported via the Indian Ocean.

Abe’s visit to the country is the first by an incumbent Japanese prime minister in 24 years.

The two leaders are also likely to agree to promote cooperation between Japan’s Maritime Self-Defense Force and the Sri Lanka Navy.

Abe arrived in Sri Lanka from Bangladesh earlier in the day. Bangladesh and Sri Lanka brought the number of countries Abe has visited since taking office in December 2012 to 49— the most for a prime minister in the history of Japanese politics.

Checkpoint skirmish kills three police, 18 militants in Afghanistan

GHANZI, 7 Sept—Three Afghan police and 18 militants were killed in exchange of fire when the Taleban launched an attack on a security checkpoint in eastern Ghazni province early Sunday morning, police said.

“Several militants raided a police checkpoint in Ogra locality in outskirts of provincial capital Ghazni city around 3:00 am local time.

The police forces responded with intense firing. The battle caused three policemen and 18 militants killed,” deputy provincial police chief Assadullah En- sadi told Xinhua.

He said four police were kidnapped by the mil- itants.

Following the attack, reinforcement forces were dispatched to the area. The security forces cordoned off the area and launched a search operation on fugitive assailants.

The Taleban claimed responsibility for the incident.

The Taleban insurgent group has intensified attacks over the past couple of months as the NATO and US forces are withdrawing the country.

The war-torn country is due to take over the responsibility for its own security from NATO-led troops by the end of year.

More than 44,000 NA-TO-led coalition troops, down from the peak of 130,000 in 2010, are stationed in Afghanistan. Some 30,700 of them are Americans and the United States plans to trim its forces to less than 10,000 next year.—Xinhua

Police violence, abiding grief for China families of missing on Malaysia jet

BEIJING, 7 Sept — Six months after Malaysia Airlines Flight MH370 went missing, relatives of those lost, desperate for any hint of what happened, say Chinese authorities have become openly hostile to-ward them.

In interviews, several relatives described how they had been detained and physically abused by police — seemingly in retaliation for publicly presssing Chinese and Malaysia Airlines authorities for information about the hunt for the plane.

“In the beginning, Bei-jing police were protecting us, but their attitude has completely changed,” said 38-year-old Cheng Liping, whose husband was on the flight.

“I can’t fathom why they’re doing this. I feel so incredibly disappointed.”

The Boeing 777 aircraft carrying 239 passengers and crew, disappeared on 8 March after taking off from Malaysia’s capital, Kuala Lumpur, bound for Beijing.

About two thirds of those on board were from China.

Investigators say what little evidence they have to work from suggests the plane was deliberately diverted thousands of kilometers from its scheduled route before eventually plunging into the Indian Ocean. But no one knows for sure, or why. A pains-taking international search has failed to find any trace.

In interviews, Beijing police were protecting us, but their attitude has completely changed,” said 38-year-old Cheng Liping, whose husband was on the flight. Police have beaten at least two people whose children were on the flight, several family members said. In one case, a woman in her fifties was hospitalized for three days. “I went to see her in hospital, I could see the injuries on her head and body,” said Zhang Yongli, 64, whose daughter was on the flight.

“The way the police acts was very extreme, it’s wrong to treat us this way,”jing police were protecting us, but their attitude has completely changed," said 38-year-old Cheng Liping, whose husband was on the flight.

After Syria and Iraq, Islamic State makes inroads in South Asia

WASHINGTON, 7 Sept — It took President Barack Obama and his top aides a week to explain that he does in fact have a strategy for confronting the Islamic State militancy. Now he has to prove that he can make it work.

Obama has embarked on building what is basically the third major US-backed international coalition of the past 23 years to take on a challenge emanating from Iraq. The other two were constructed by former presidents George HW Bush and George W Bush against the late Iraq leader Saddam Hussein.

Obama’s vision became clearer in the week since he drew criticism for a reluctance to back up his anti-jihadist rhetoric with action. The next major milestone in Obama’s strategy will come later in September when he convenes a security conference on the fringes of the UN General Assembly in New York.

“We must be able to have a plan together by the time we come to UNA, we need to have this coalesce,” said Secretary of State John Kerry. “We need a clarity to the strategy, and a clarity to who everybody is going to undertake.”

Kerry travels to Saudi Arabia and Jordan next week for talks with Gulf leaders to determine whether they are prepared to back up their anti-jihadist rhetoric with action.

Some may be able to participate in military action as they did in Libya and US officials are trying to judge how each country might be best placed to help, a senior administration official said.

Obama was buoyed by a clear unanimity from the alliance at a NATO summit in Wales, feeling it is proof that his deliberate approach works.

But the hard part will be when the allies get down to the specifics of who does what.

“Our goal is to act with urgency, but also to make sure that we’re doing it right,” Obama said on Friday.

US air strikes target militants near Iraq’s Haditha Dam

BAGHDAD, 7 Sept—The United States said it launched four air strikes against Islamic State militants threatening the Haditha Dam in western Iraq on Sunday, broadening its campaign against the fighters.

It was Washington’s first offensive into Iraq’s western Anbar province since it started air strikes on Islamic State forces in the north of the country in August.

“At the request of the Government of Iraq, the US military today conducted coordinated air strikes against Islamic State of Iraq and the Levant (ISIL) terrorists in the vicinity of the Haditha Dam in Anbar province,” said Pentagon spokesman Rear Admiral John Kirby.

“We conducted these strikes to prevent terrorists from further threatening the security of the dam, which remains under control of Iraqi Security Forces, with support from Sunni tribes.”

Iraq air strike kills seven in hospital near Kirkuk

BAGHDAD, 7 Sept — Iraq’s air force hit a hospital in a town controlled by Islamic State and other militancy groups on Saturday, killing seven patients and wounding 22 others, including children, eyewitnesses said.

The attack on Hawija, near Kirkuk city, was one strike in a series of raids by warplanes in the area, the witnesses said.

The government did not immediately respond to requests for comment.

Islamic State launched a lightning advance through northern and central Iraq in June, declaring an Islamic caliphate. With the help of US air strikes, Iraq’s army and Kurdish forces have been able to push the fighters back from some areas.

Civilian deaths are hard to quantify due to security restrictions in the roughly third of Iraq that Islamic State controls.

NATO stages major military exercise in Latvia after Wales summit

Riga, 7 Sept—NATO staged a major military exercise in Latvia on Saturday in a practical demonstration of NATO leaders’ commitment to defend its Baltic member states in the face of an assertive Russia. A NATO meeting in Wales on Friday agreed to form a new rapid reaction force and to step up exercises in eastern Europe in response to Russia’s actions in Ukraine.

Allies in the Baltics fear Russian President Vladimir Putin could use the same rationale as he used to explain intervention in Crimea — defending Russian speakers — to justify an attack, against one of the NATO countries in the Baltics, which also have Russian-speaking minorities.

On Friday night around 500 paratroopers landed at Liepāja airport, about 60 km (35 miles) from Latvia’s capital Riga, along with hundreds of vehicles and aircraft as the exercise Steadfast Javelin II simulates a deployment of NATO soldiers and equipment in another country in a crisis situation.

In total, 2,000 soldiers from nine nations are carrying out exercises across five countries — Germany, Estonia, Latvia, Lithuania and Poland from 2 September to 8 September.

“We want to assure our people that we are able to protect them,” said General Hans-Lothar Domrose, commander of the NATO military command in Brunssum, the Netherlands.

“Certainly on top of this we send a clear message to everyone who wants to threaten NATO, that it’s not a thing you should do. NATO will always defend and protect its people,” Domrose told reporters in Riga.

To demonstrate NATO’s commitment to defending the alliance’s members, other exercises will follow Steadfast Javelin – in Germany, Norway, Ukraine, Poland this autumn. NATO Allied Land Command Deputy Commander Lieutenant General Ed Davis said on Friday NATO’s decision to create the new rapid reaction force was a turning point, refocusing on the defence of member states’ territory after more than a decade of operations in Afghanistan.

He said details of the rapid reaction force still had to be worked out. The “spearhead” of that force is expected to be 4,000 to 5,000 troops who would be able to deploy within 48 hours across the alliance.

“It needs to be a relatively light force. It needs to be a force that succeeds, builds upon intelligence and agility, and precision as opposed to wait of military force. It is an agile, precise, intelligence-led rapidly deployable force,” Davis told Reuters.

Syrian warplanes hit Islamic State

State-run bakery, training camp

Beirut, 7 Sept—Syrian warplanes bombed a bakery run by Islamic State in the city of Raqqa, killing 25 people, in air raids on Saturday that also hit a major training camp used by the insurgent group for a second day running, a group monitoring the war said.

The air strikes on Raqqa, Islamic State’s stronghold some 400 km northeast of Damascus, also hit a building used as an Islamic court, and another of the group’s offices, the Syrian Observatory for Human Rights said.

Rami Abdulrahman, founder of the Observato- ry, said the bakery was run by the militant group. The Observatory, which gathers information from all sides in the civil war, said the dead included 12 civilians and nine Islamic State activists.

Islamic State, which has seized wide expanses of territory in Iraq and Syria, drove the last Syrian government forces out of Raqqa province in late August when its fighters seized an air base, capturing and later executing scores of Syrian soldiers.

In a headline bar, Syrian state TV said army units had destroyed weapons and ammunition stores used by Islamic State fighters in Raqqa, “eliminating a number of them and wounding others in a number of areas”. It gave no further details.

Raqqa is the main Syrian foothold of Islamic State. The group has been overseeing most aspects of civilian life in the city including bakeries, banks, schools, courts and mosques.

The United States is assembling an alliance to fight the group in neighbouring Iraq, US President Barack Obama said on Friday key NATO allies stood ready to join the United States in military action to defeat the group in Iraq.

The Syrian government has said it should be a partner in the fight against Islamic State. But Western states that have backed the uprising against President Bashar al-Assad have dismissed the idea of cooperating with Damascus and describe Assad as part of the problem.

The Observatory reported that six Islamic State fighters were killed in the air raid on the training camp.

Chinese Ambassador expects agreement on summit in Belgrade

Chinese Ambassador to Serbia Li Manchang has voiced the expectation that the prime minister of Serbia and China, Aleksandar Vucic and Li Keqiang respectively, will reach an agreement on holding a summit of China and 16 European countries in Belgrade this year.

In a statement to Tanjug, Ambassador Li confirmed that this will be one of the topics during Vucic’s visit to Beijing on 10-11 September, and underscored that the Chinese side attaches special importance to the visit.

I would also like the summit to be held in Belgrade, but whether that will happen— I think that depends on the visit by Prime Minister Vucic, the Chinese ambassador said.

The summit of the prime minister of China and the 16 countries of Central and South-East Europe was held in Warsaw in 2012 for the first time, and then in Romania last year. Besides Belgrade, Prague is also a candidate for hosting this year’s summit.

Prime Minister Vucic announced on Thursday that he would try to ensure that the summit is held in Belgrade in December.

He noted that this would be the biggest international event organized in Serbia since the death of the president of the Socialist Federal Republic of Yugoslavia (SFRY) Josip Broz Tito. Ambassador Li said that the prime ministers of Serbia and China will in Beijing discuss reform experiences, political issues of interest for both countries and economic cooperation.

He noted that political relations between the two countries are at a high level and that, thanks to that, they have big joint projects, and added that during Vucic’s visit another joint project will probably be launched.

Li drew attention to the fact that the Chinese companies are very active in Serbia where they are building the highway, bridge, thermal power plant in Kostolac.

He noted that eight Chinese companies have permanent branch offices in Serbia, describing this as a good start and excellent foundation for further economic cooperation, but also cooperation in other fields.

Not all time is of equal value

By Kyaw Thura

Most of us are in a habit of deliberately and automatically indulging ourselves in taking time for granted, strange as it may seem. It is in the knowledge of everyone, even with a little education, that time is irreplaceable. Even then, the absurdity is that time is still the worst managed and the least valued resource for many of us.

Eleanor Roosevelt once put it that “Yesterday is history, tomorrow is a mystery and today is a gift. That’s why they call it the present”. The problem with our use of time might result from our neglect of time management. Generally speaking, we spend eight hours sleeping, two hours cooking and eating, one hour on personal hygiene, eight hours working, and one hour commuting. They take twenty hours, all told. That means that we are left with four hours. Consequently, time management is the most important skill we need to learn without fail in our way to success. In other words, we need to take some value out of our time and invest our time in valuable activities. In fact, time management is the act of taking conscious control over the amount of time spent on specific activities.

There are some beautiful expressions of time in an old Irish literature. “Take the time to work, for it is the price of success; take the time to think, for it is the source of strength; take the time to play, for it is the secret of youth; take the time to read, for it is the seed of wisdom; take the time to be friendly, for it brings happiness; take the time to dream, for it carries you to stars; take the time to love, for it is the joy of life; take the time to be content, for it is the music of the soul.” Benjamin Franklin made it clear in his words: “Do you love life? Then don’t waste time because time is life!” That is why we should practice time management if we want to enjoy life to the fullest.

By Khaing Thanda Lwin

Dr Htoo Maung Ohn, Attending Physician in Internal and Emergancy Medicine, gave a lecture entitled “Effects of Immobilization”, calling for redoubling rehabilitaion efforts. People with a sedentary lifestyle and no physical exercise are doomed to pains, with their strength waning at the end of each day, he warned.

Daw Khin May Tun Chit, Chief Physiotherapist of Parami Hospital, clarified characteristics of professional physiotherapists and their responsibilities, and the framework of clinical leadership competency.

She urged junior physiotherapists to promote their experience in local workplace settings so as to provide high quality health services to patients, suggesting actively seeking opportunities and taking up challenges for personal growth.

The chief physiotherapist elaborated that physiotherapy is a healthcare profession that works with people to identify and maximizing the ability to move and function. Functional movement is a key part of what is meant to be healthy.

The seminar was organized by MPA in association with the Yangon University of Medicine as well.

Former French hostage says Brussels attack suspect was among his captors in Syria

PARIS, 7 Sept — A French journalist held hostage for months in Syria said on Saturday that one of his captors was a Frenchman suspected of killing four people at the Jewish Museum in Brussels in May.

The reporter, Nicolas Henin, said he recognized Mehdi Nemmouche from video shown to him as part of an investigation. He did not elaborate on the nature of the probe, but mentioned that “a judicial procedure” had been launched while he was still a hostage.

“As the arrest of Mehdi Nemmouche I have been shown a few audiovisual documents that allowed me to recognize him formally,” Henin, who was freed on 20 April along with three other French journalists, told a news conference.

He said Nemmouche beat him.

“After beating me up, he would show me his gloves. He was very proud of his motorcycle gloves. He told me he had bought them especially for me,” he said.

“I don’t know if other Western hostages were mistreated but I could hear him torture Syrian prisoners.”

Nemmouche, 29, is in custody in Belgium over the 24 May shooting attack on the Jewish Museum in Brussels in May.

After nearly a week of silence, the radical group said Ahmed Abdulle Godane, 37, was killed in the US drone attack in the Lower Shabelle region in southern Somalia.

The Islamist group named Ahmed Omar Abu Ubeyda as the new Emir of the group. Little is known about the newly-named leader of Al Shabaab.

Slovakia plans to build logistics base supporting NATO operation

BRATISLAVA, 7 Sept — Slovakia is planning to build a logistics base in Poland, eastern Slovakia, to support NATO operation, confirmed Slovak President Andrej Kiska on Saturday following the recent NATO summit.

According to Kiska, the logistics centre should be used for storing ammunition if required by a NATO operation.

“We’ve pledged to boost our presence in the headquarters in Szczecin, Poland. Furthermore, we’ve offered our airport in Sliač and the training facility in Lest, both in central Slovakia for the Alliance’s manoeuvres,” Kiska told reporters in a briefing.

In addition, Slovakia promised during the summit not to lower its defence budget. The Slovak delegation also agreed to allocate 20 percent of its defence budget on modernisation as of 2016, and by 2020 it should allocate 1.6 percent of the country’s GDP on defence purposes.

UN Security Council welcomes release of two diplomats abducted in Mali

UNITED NATIONS, 7 Sept — The UN Security Council on Saturday welcomed the release of two Algerian diplomats abducted in northern Mali more than two years ago.

In a statement issued here, the Council members strongly condemned the assassination of another Algerian diplomat and expressed deep regret about the death while in captivity. They also expressed their deep condolences to the family of the two victims as well as to the government of Algeria.

Seven Algerian diplomats, including vice-consul Tahar Touati, were kidnapped by the Movement for Oneness and Jihad in West Africa (MUJAO) on 5 April, 2012, following the eruption of chaos in northern Mali.

In mid-July 2012, the extremist group released three diplomats. However, the vice-consul was reported after being arrested in Marseille on 30 May and extradited in July. He is to appear before a Belgian court on 12 September.

Henin spoke at the Paris offices of French weekly Le Point, which early on Saturday published excerpts of a piece written by Henin in which he described Nemmouche as one of a group of French nationals who had moved in Islamic State circles in Syria.

“When Nemmouche was not singing, he was torturing.” Henin wrote in Le Point.

Le Point said it had not initially planned to go public with Henin’s information for fear of jeopardizing the safety of other hostages, but decided to go ahead when French daily Le Monde reported on Saturday morning that French intelligence identified Nemmouche as one of the captors of Western hostages in Syria. Sprint expands rural roaming program, adding 15 new carriers

WASHINGTON, 7 Sept — Sprint Corp said on Friday it was adding 15 new rural and regional wireless providers to its US roaming program, a move bolstering the company’s efforts to cheaply expand its footprint as it fights to stay competitive as a national carrier.

The program allows Sprint and its smaller partners to use each other’s networks for roaming at a mutually attractive price. A total of 27 carriers, covering 565,000 square miles and a population area of more than 36 million people, have now entered into roaming agreements with Sprint.

The 27 partnerships could save Sprint about $1.9 billion in expenditures on new cell phone towers and other infrastructure that would be necessary to bring 4G coverage to new areas on its own, based on calculations provided by a source familiar with the program estimates.

With those savings, deals with rural carriers could offer Sprint a lifetime to improve its national presence following the collapse of the merger with T-Mobile US Inc. Like T-Mobile’s, Sprint’s network has been largely concentrated around metropolitan areas while the coverage by the two biggest US carriers, Verizon Communications Inc and AT&T Inc, stretches nationwide.

Growing its footprint is one of Sprint’s major challenges as the company struggles to win back millions of customers it lost during its messy network overhaul in recent years. The task is particularly tough in a nearly saturated market and with No 4 T-Mobile pushing to leapfrog Sprint as the No 3 US carrier.

Perhaps because Sprint needs rural coverage more than its rivals, its 4G roaming agreements offer the carriers more perks and more flexibility than they have seen from other companies. Verizon’s program, for instance, largely limits partners to building networks that rely on airwaves owned by Verizon, while Sprint’s allows them to use their own spectrum.

In March, Sprint Chairman Masayoshi Son struck an agreement with the Competitive Carriers Association, which represents many US rural and regional carriers, providing the framework for a rural roaming program.

In June, Sprint announced the first 12 individual carriers to launch the rural roaming program into reality, including Virginia-based nTelos Wireless and Mississippi-based C Spire Wireless.

The 15 new partners announced on Friday include Kentucky-based Bluegrass Cellular, Idaho-based Syringa Wireless and Alabama-based Pine Belt Wireless.

Sprint’s partners also say it offers more attractive roaming rates.

Apple to add security alerts for iCloud users, says Cook

SAN FRANCISCO, 7 Sept — Apple Inc (AAPL.O) is planning additional steps to keep hackers out of user accounts in the face of the recent celebrity photo scandal and will aggressively encourage users to take stricter security measures, CEO Tim Cook told the Wall Street Journal in an interview.

Apple will alert users through email and push notifications when someone tries to change an account password, restore iCloud data to a new device, or when a device logs into an account for the first time, the report said.

Apple is moving quickly to restore confidence in its systems’ security ahead of the crucial launch of its new iPhone next week.

Cook said Apple will broaden its use of the two-factor authentication security system to avoid future intrusions, the Journal reported.

The two-factor authentication requires a user to have two of three things to access an account, which may include a password, a separate four-digit one-time code, or a long access key given to the user when they signed up for the service.

The iPhone maker said it plans to more aggressively encourage people to turn on the two-factor authentication in the new version of iOS, the daily reported. “The usability battle will always be there but could you ever imagine using your debit card at an ATM and not entering a pin? That’s a factor, something you have (a card) & something you know (a pin), and we all get along just fine,” WhiteHat Security’s Matt Johansen told Reuters.

Apple said on Tuesday the attacks that emerged over the Labour Day weekend on celebrities’ iCloud accounts were individually targeted, and that none of the cases it investigated had resulted from a breach of its systems.

Carmakers, others fund research toward cars that talk to each other

DETROIT, 7 Sept — A group of companies, including several large automakers, have joined a public-private research initiative to lay the groundwork for a system that wirelessly connects vehicles and helps smooth the flow of traffic, the University on Michigan said on Friday.

The university’s Mobility Transformation Centre will help develop and implement technology that allows vehicles to talk to each other and surrounding infrastructure like stoplights to reduce traffic congestion and vehicle accidents. The programme includes increased use of technology to automate functions like cruise control and traveling in stop-and-go driving.

The initiative hopes to implement a working connected and automated car system by 2021 in Ann Arbor, Michigan, where the university is based and testing a pilot programme, the school said.

Several companies are each committing $1 million over three years to establish the centre, including General Motors Co, Ford Motor Co, Toyota Motor Corp, Honda Motor Co and Nissan Motor Co. The center is expected to raise as much as $100 million through 2021 for the project, a spokesman said.

Others participating include auto suppliers Delphi Automotive Plc, Denso Corp and Robert Bosch GmbH, as well telecommunication group Verizon Communications Inc, printer and copier maker Xerox Corp and insurer State Farm, the university said.

In 2012, officials at the US Department of Transportation and the University of Michigan launched a pilot programme to equip nearly 3,000 cars, trucks and buses with wireless devices that track the speed and location of other vehicles, alert drivers to congestion or change a traffic light to green.

The Mobility Transformation Centre will expand the vehicle-to-vehicle and vehicle-to-infrastructure programme to 9,000 vehicles in Ann Arbor and is working with the state to support a deployment of 20,000 vehicles in southeast Michigan, the university said.—Reuters
Plane with 10 people aboard crashes in southern Colombia

Bogota, 7 Sept — Colombia’s Civil Aviation authority said on Saturday that a Laser’s company airplane with two crew members and eight passengers aboard crashed after taking off from an airport in the southern department of Caqueta.

There was no immediate report of any survivors from the crash.

The plane with the registration number HK-4755 PA 34 Navajo was reported missing at 15:00 local time (2200 GMT), after taking off from Aracuara’s airport in the Colombian Amazon rainforest, the authority said.

The Colombian Air Force is conducting reconnaissance operations over the area to locate any possible survivors, Air Commander Luis Cordoba told local media.

Serbia should be exporter of electricity

Kladovo, 7 Sept — Serbia should again become an exporter of electricity, for which it needs to build new energy capacities, Serbia’s Deputy Prime Minister Zorana Mihajlovic said on Saturday at a ceremony in Kladovo marking 50 years since the start of the construction of hydro-power plant (HE) Djerdap on the Danube River.

The realization of the strategic project aimed at building HE Djerdap 3 will certainly help meet this objective of the Serbian government, Mihajlovic said.

She noted that the construction of HE Djerdap was a major achievement, very significant for Serbia, and should serve as a reminder that new production capacities should be built.

The energy minister noted that, one year and a half ago, the first talks on the construction of HE Djerdap 3 opened with Romania, regardless of the fact that this hydropower plant will be located on the Serbian side. She added that the talks with potential partners are ahead of Serbia and noted that such a project would enable the country to even have influence on the price of electric energy in the region.

The ceremony in Kladovo brought together Serbian Energy Minister Aleksandar Antic, Russian Ambassador to Serbia Alexander Chepurin and Director of the Electric Power Industry of Serbia (EPS) Dusan Obradovic.

The hydropower and navigation system Djerdap 1 is a complex facility, built 10 km down the river from Kladovo.

The construction of the system began on 7 September, 1964, and the first power generating units came into operation on 6 August, 1970, simultaneously on the Serbian and Romanian side. This is still the largest hydropower plant on the Danube River, 1,278 metres in length, which was designed in such a way that Serbia and Romania, which are separated by the Danube River, both have the same parts of the main facility at their disposal.—Tanjug

Nearly 20,000 Beijing couples granted permit for second child

Beijing, 7 Sept— Nearly 20,000 Beijing couples have been granted a permit to have a second child since the city relaxed its family planning policy in February, according to the latest official statistics.

As of the end of August, of all the 21,249 couples who filed birth applications, 19,363 have been given the permit, according to statistics released on Sunday by Beijing Municipal Commission of Health and Family Planning.

Of all the granted applicants, around 56 percent are women aged between 31 to 35, according to the birth watchdog. It also said that another 537 are women aged above 40.

At the end of last year, China relaxed the decades-old one-child policy which was designed to curb population growth. A majority of the Chinese provinces, including the most populated, Henan, have allowed couples to have a second child if either parent is an only child.

Beijing followed suit on 21 February. Before the policy was adopted, both parents must be sole children to be eligible for a second child.

The relaxation came as the world’s second largest economy is coping with a declining labour force and an aging population. Demographic experts have said the easing will help promote balanced population growth in the country.

Under the one-child policy, many couples, particularly in China’s countryside, had abortions as they prefer boys to girls. This led to a wide gender gap of 118 male births versus 100 female births in 2010.—Xinhua

Swedish military conduct defence practices in Stockholm

Stockholm, 7 Sept — The Swedish National Home Guard conducted defence practices, including about 700 soldiers, in the city of Stockholm on Saturday, the Swedish daily Dagens Nyheter reported.

“It is conducted every year because the Swedish National Home Guard will practice protection and guarding of important community service and infrastructure in Stockholm,” said Philip Simon, the public relations officer of the Swedish Armed Forces.

To avoid unnecessary injury of the public, the practice sites were blocked. During the practice only blank cartridges were shot. There were also pickets to make sure the public would not enter practice sites.

The practice ended on Saturday afternoon. Also on Saturday, the Swedish Armed Forces had a display about the defence practices for those who want to know more about it.

Chinese shipbuilders heading for unclear waters

Beijing, 7 Sept — Chinese shipbuilding companies received more orders but saw shrinking profits in the first seven months, according to the latest data by the China Association of National Shipbuilding Industry (CANSI).

As the industry sails into the choppy seas with overcapacity and fiercer competition, the market outlook is “not optimistic”, the CANSI said, citing fewer ship transactions and limited price hikes.

New shipbuilding orders jumped 42.5 percent from last year to 45.73 million deadweight tonnes (DWT) during the first seven months, while completed shipbuilding volume fell 21.5 percent to 20.66 million DWT, according to CANSI.

By the end of July, Chinese shipbuilders had incomplete orders totaling 153.45 million DWT, up 36.4 percent year on year. China’s shipbuilding industry heavily relies on external demand for growth. Ships delivered overseas in the first seven months dropped 11.9 percent annually to 18.12 million DWT, or about 88 percent of total completed volume.—Xinhua

McKenzie lauds Australian character after last-gasp win

Australian Wallabies head coach Ewen McKenzie (L) talks with team captain James Horwill before the start of the Bledisloe Cup rugby test match against the New Zealand All Blacks at Stadium Australia in Sydney on 7 Sept—Reuters

PeRTO, 7 Sept.—Australia coach Ewen McKenzie praised his team’s character after they rebounded from a hammering by New Zealand to beat South Africa in the Rugby Championship on Saturday, even if they needed a late try to do it.

The Wallabies were destroyed 51-20 by the All Blacks in Auckland a fortnight ago and a third straight loss to the Springboks since McKenzie took charge would have put the coach and team under huge pressure a year out from the World Cup.

Trailing 23-17 with two minutes to go, though, they produced their best move of the match despite the greasy conditions to put winger Rob Horne in for his fourth test try and allow Bernard Foley to kick the match-winning conversion.

“We knew it was going to be a game of character, coming from the loss in Auckland, we knew we needed to show some character,” McKenzie told Fox TV.

“While it wasn’t an extravagant scoreboard, a win against South Africa is no easy thing and to come from behind is even better.”

After reshuffling his backline in the wake of the Eden Park debacle, McKenzie would have been delighted with the early recovery when fullback Israel Folau scored a try in the first two minutes. A series of sloppy penalties allowed the Springboks back into the game, however, and the home side were trailing 14-11 at the break.

“We were happy with the first half but came out in the second half and promptly gave the ball away five or six times so ended up playing the rest of the game in front of our posts,” McKenzie added.

“The scoreboard was getting away from us. We did well to get back into it and made the most of it with that try at the end.”

The victory gave McKenzie his first win against a team in the top four of the world rankings after four defeats and a draw against New Zealand, two defeats to the Springboks and a loss to England on the last November tour.

The match probably turned on Irish referee George Clancy’s decision to yellow card South Africa winger Bryan Habana for a high tackle on Adam Ashley-Cooper in the 65th minute.

“It was always going to be close, especially away from home, but I thought we were in control for large periods of the game,” said Springbok coach Heyneke Meyer.—Reuters

MEXICO CITY, 7 Sept.—Former Brazil and Barcelona midfielder Ronaldinho, twice the World Player of the Year, has signed a two year deal with Queretaro, the Mexican first division club said on Friday.

The 34-year-old, who has also played for Paris St Germain and AC Milan, became a free agent in July after cancelling his contract with Brazilian club Atleti-coc Mineiro.

“We are very pleased to add our ranks as of today, a player who has excelled in international football. A world champion in 2002, World Player of the Year in 2004 and 2005,” the club, nicknamed ‘Gal-los’ (roosters) said in the statement.

“We hope the fans of our city and around the country join in this celebration of having Ronaldi-

no as a Gallos who will contribute his experience and expertise to further strengthen this great team.”

Queretaro, coached by former Mexico defender Ignacio Ambriz, are curerently eighth in Liga MX after seven matches in the championship.

Ronaldinho, who was linked with numerous clubs around the world, said he would wear the number 49 shirt in Mexico as it was his lucky number.

“I’ve always been re-

cerved with affection in Mexico - I am very motivated to represent Queretaro,” he posted on his Twit-

Bradley pulls out of BMW due to infraction concerns

CHERRY HILLS BILLIAGE COLORADO, 7 Sept.—American Keegan Bradley pulled out of the BMW Championship on Saturday before teeing off in the third round because of his insequence a potential rules infraction over a drop taken in the opening round.

Bradley’s withdrawal could cost him a place in next week’s elite Tour Championship in Atlanta, the last of the PGA Tour’s four lucrative FedExCup events.

“I just feel withdrawing is the right thing to do to protect the field in the BMW Championship and the Tour Championship next week,” Bradley said in a statement released by his management company.

Bradley’s decision to pull out followed the withdrawal earlier in the day by compatriot Phil Mickelson, who had languished 14 strokes off the pace after 36 holes and said he wanted to rest for this month’s Ryder Cup. Bradley had been 11 strokes off the pace after the second round at Cherry Hills Country Club, having opened with scores of one-over-par 71 and 72.

However, he had lingered doubts over a drop taken in Thursday’s first round after his third shot at the par-four 18th had embedded in grass just above a bunker.

After taking relief under Rule 25-2 for a ball embedded in its own pitch mark, he chipped on to the green and two-putted for a double-bogey six.

A spectator later told Bradley that he seen the ball bounce before it came to a rest in the grass face above the greenside bunker at the 18th.—Reuters

I just wasn’t myself, says Djokovic after stunning loss

NEW YORK, 7 Sept — World number one Novak Djokovic had no explanation for his flat performance in a stunning semi-final loss to Japan’s Kei Nishikori at the US Open on Saturday.

“I think he just played better in these conditions than I did,” the Serb said of the 6-4, 1-6, 7-6(4), 6-3 setback in brutal heat and humidity on Arthur Ashe Stadium.

“I just wasn’t managing to go through the ball in the court,” Djokovic told reporters.

“I wasn’t in balance. Unforced errors. Even when the ball gets back to his part of the court it’s pretty short; he takes advantage of it. On the other side I didn’t. That’s it.”

“Other than that second set, my game today was not even close to what I wanted it to be. A lot of unforced errors, a lot of short balls. Just wasn’t myself.”

Straining to make sense of his showing, reporters asked seven-times grand slam champion Djokovic whether he has been distracted by the approaching birth of his first child.

“Of course, I’m in touch with my wife. Of course, I am being part of her pregnancy. It’s normal,” he said. “But it’s no different for me in terms of preparing for the match and for the tournament.”

“I had all my dedication, everything directed to this US Open. I tried to give my best and I did. Now my best today was not where I wanted it to be.”

The Wimbledon champion gave full credit to the 10-seeded Nishikori, who became the first male Asian player to reach a grand slam singles final.

“He played some great tennis. I congratulate him for the effort,” the Serb said. “He was the better player today.” — Reuters

Williams, Wozniacki put friendship aside in final

NEW YORK, 7 Sept — For Serena Williams and Caroline Wozniacki, there is a time for friendship and a time for business, and business does not get much more serious than a grand slam final.

The pair spent some holiday time together in Miami earlier in the summer but on Sunday they will be bidding for US Open glory, with very different motivations.

For world number one Williams, victory would give her an 18th grand slam title, putting her alongside Chris Evert and Martina Navratilova in the all-time list.

Former world number one Wozniacki is hoping to win her first grand slam title and complete an unlikely comeback, having recorded just one quarter-final appearance in her past 11 grand slams.

“If I was really excited to be in the final,” top seed Williams said, who is chasing her third straight US Open title.

“At the beginning of the week, I definitely wasn’t sure I would make it this long. Definitely wasn’t sure I’d be here. So I’m just elated, to be honest, to have made it this far.”

Having failed to get beyond the last 16 of the year’s first three grand slam events, Williams exicted Wimbledon under a cloud after she retired from the doubles, looking dazed and disoriented.

After later revealing she had been suffering from a viral illness, Williams rebounded in the North American summer, winning two titles and reached the final in New York without dropping a set.

“Just amazing day for me,” said Cilic, who smashed 43 winners, including 13 aces. “To be able to play like this I never dreamed of. I think today was my best performance ever in my career.”

Cilic, like Nishikori, was playing in his first grand slam semi-final.

“I think that going to be a sensational day for both of us,” said 25-year-old Cilic, the first Croat to reach a grand slam final since his coach Goran Ivanisevic won Wimbledon in 2001.

“I’m extremely happy to be in the final, the first time in my career. I’m just going to enjoy, be happy and try to win.”

The twin surprises created the first grand slam final in nine years that does not include at least one of the recent Big Three of tennis — Federer, Djokovic and Rafa Nadal — dating back to the 2005 Australian Open which pitted Marat Safin against Lleyton Hewitt.
