In his opening address, President U Thein Sein expressed his delight in the achievements of the four countries in the last 12 years, noting that the total trade of CLMV increased from 12.4 percent of the ASEAN’s total trade volume in 2013 to 14.1 percent in 2014.

Also present were Samdech Akka Moha Sena Padei Techo Hun Sen, Prime Minister of the Kingdom of Cambodia, Mr Thongsing Thammavong, Prime Minister of the Lao People’s Democratic Republic of Vietnam and Mr Le Luong Minh, Secretary-General of ASEAN.

The CLMV countries started economic cooperation in 2004 with a view to narrowing the development gap among ASEAN countries.

Cooperation key to sustainable tourism: CLMV nations

NAY PYI TAW, 22 June — Cooperation among regional neighbours is important in fostering a sustainable and responsible tourism sector, leaders from Cambodia, Laos, Myanmar and Vietnam said Monday during a summit in Nay Pyi Taw.

The four countries comprising the CLMV community collectively saw an 11.4 percent increase in tourist arrivals last year, with more than 19.6 million visitors in 2014.

In the joint statement of the 7th CLMV Summit, the leaders expressed the importance of developing the tourism industry in order to establish the CLMV Sub-region as one of the world’s top destinations.

In the joint statement, the leaders also reiterated an agreement made at the second CLMV Tourism Ministers meeting in Cambodia in 2013 to invite international organizations, financial institutions and other partners to support sustainable, responsible tourism development, and to encourage greater private sector involvement in tourism development.

As part of efforts to promote the tourism industry in the Ayeyawaddy-Chao Phraya-Mekong Economic Cooperation Strategy (ACMECS) countries, comprising the CLMV nations plus Thailand, a joint-business council called for a single-visa scheme for the five countries.

The heads of CLMV countries also welcomed Myanmar’s plan to host the third meeting of CLMV Tourism Ministers on 28 July.

Philippines steps up drills with US, Japan forces near South China Sea

A Philippine military official said there was no plan for the Philippine, US and Japanese navies to hold combined exercises on Palawan island, 160 km (100 miles) from the Spratlys, although the drills could underpin Manila’s limited naval assets.

“At some point all three forces could merge in one activity because we only have two ships and limited aircraft to take part in these exercises,” said the official, who declined to be identified.

Late on Sunday, reporters could see two P-3C Orion maritime surveillance planes, one belonging to the United States and the other Japanese, parked on a military airfield in Puerto Princesa City, the Palawan capital.

The two-day exercises with the United States began last week. The two-day drills with Japan start on Tuesday, officials said. Both will take place in Philippine territorial waters, not part of the contested South China Sea.

While the Philippines military trains regularly with US forces, it only held its first joint naval drills with Japan in May.

Tokyo has no territorial claims in the South China Sea, but it worries about becoming isolated should China dominate a waterway through which much of Japan’s ship-borne trade passes. Prime Minister Shinzo Abe has beefed up security cooperation across the China Sea.

China claims most of the South China Sea. The Philippines, Malaysia, Vietnam, Taiwan and Brunei have overlapping claims.

Beijing said last week that some of its reclamation work in the Spratlys would be completed soon but that it would continue to build facilities on the reefs it occupies.

It says the outposts will have undefined military purposes as well as help with maritime search and rescue, disaster relief, environmental protection and navigation.—Reuters

Tokyo/Seoul, 22 June — Japan and South Korea marked the 50th anniversary of normalization of diplomatic relations on Monday, with the leaders of the two neighbours set to call for building a “future-oriented” relationship in the next half a century.

South Korean President Park Geun-hye will call on Tokyo and Seoul to work together to establish a future-oriented relationship in a message to be read at a reception in Seoul later Monday to commemorate the anniversary, according to the presidential office.

The message will call for “laying down the heavy burden of past history and cooperating together for a future-oriented relationship,” spokesman Min Kyung Wook told reporters in Seoul.

Japanese Prime Minister Shinzo Abe is expected to deliver a similar message when he attends a South Korean Embassy-sponsored reception on Monday at a Tokyo hotel.

In a meeting with South Korean Foreign Minister Yun Byung Se earlier on Monday in Tokyo, Abe expressed willingness to hold summit talks with Park.

The two leaders have not held formal talks since they took office — Abe in 2012 and Park in 2013 — due to the so-called “comfort women” issue.

“Together with President Park, I would like to further improve relations toward the next half a century,” Abe told Yun in the meeting at the prime minister’s office, part of which was open to the media.

Speaking to reporters separately, Abe said, “I would like to celebrate (the anniversary) with the people in both countries.”

In a related move, Fukushiro Nukaga, a former Japanese finance minister who heads a Japan-South Korea parliamentarian group, plans to attend the reception in Seoul and hold talks with Park.

In a sign of improvement in bilateral relations, which have been soured over historical and territorial disputes, Yun and Japanese Foreign Minister Fumio Kishida agreed on Sunday to call for re-alizing talks between Abe and Park at an “appropriate” time.

Kishida and Yun, who became the first South Korean foreign minister to visit Japan in four years, also agreed in a meeting in Tokyo on a trilateral summit with China this year.

They, however, remain at odds over the issue of comfort women, including Korean, who were procured for wartime brothels for the Japanese military. South Korea has demanded Japan settle the issue in a way acceptable to those women still alive, such as through an apology and compensation.

But Japan maintains that all compensation issues were resolved when the two nations marked the 50th anniversary of normalization of diplomatic ties the same day.

Ruling coalition decides to extend Diet session until 27 Sept

Tokyo, 22 June — Japan’s two ruling parties decided on Monday to extend the current 150-day regular session of the Diet for 95 days to 27 September to make time for deliberations on controversial security legislation, coalition lawmakers said.

Prime Minister Shinzo Abe, who heads the ruling Liberal Democratic Party, and Natsuo Yamaguchi, leader of the LDP’s junior coalition partner Komeito, met in the Diet building and confirmed the extension of the regular Diet session.

The House of Representatives, or the lower house, is scheduled to vote on the extension later in the day.

Under the current Constitution, which took effect in 1947, the 95-day extension will be the longest in history, topping the existing record of 94 days in 1982.

Opposition lawmakers have stepped up criticism of the government since legal experts called into question earlier this month at a parliamentary committee on the constitutionality of the security bills that would allow Japan to engage in collective self-defence, and its Self-Defence Forces to defend allies under armed attack even if Japan itself is not being attacked.

Objections to the bills remain strong, despite Abe and Cabinet ministers spending more than 50 hours in Diet deliberations in an attempt to win support in the parliament for expanding the scope of overseas operations by the Self-Defence Forces.

The ruling coalition has judged it needs to secure enough time for deliberations of the bills to gain public support for them.

If the House of Representatives, or the upper house, fails to pass the bills within 60 days after the lower house endorses them, the ruling coalition aims to hold a revolt in the lower house, where passage by a two-thirds majority would see the legislation become law under the Constitution which gives precedence to the House of Representatives.

The main opposition Democratic Party of Japan is opposed to the bills, while the Japan Innovation Party, the second-largest opposition party, is expected to submit a counterproposal to parliament.

Iran will need to show more flexibility to reach nuclear deal — UK

British Foreign Secretary Philip Hammond

LUXEMBOURG, 22 June — Iran will need to show more flexibility to reach a nuclear deal with the six powers it is negotiating with, British Foreign Secretary Philip Hammond said on Monday, suggesting the talks might go on beyond a 30 June deadline.

“There will need to be some more flexibility shown by our Iranian partners if we are going to reach a deal, but, look, this is a negotiation, we always expected it would go right to the line and maybe beyond the line,” Hammond told reporters as he arrived for a European Union foreign ministers meeting in Luxembourg.

“So I think the serious negotiations are now getting underway and over the next week or so I hope we will start to see some real progress,” he said.

Hammond is due to hold talks later with Iranian Foreign Minister Mohammad Javad Zarif as well as the EU’s foreign policy chief Federica Mogherini and the foreign ministers of Germany and France.

Asked if it would matter if the 30 June deadline slipped by a few days, he said: “Let’s see where we get to. We are pushing hard to get there.” — Reuters

Heat wave kills more than 120 in Pakistan’s Karachi

Karachi, 22 June — An intense heat wave killed more than 120 people over the weekend in Pakistan’s southern city of Karachi, officials said on Monday, as the electricity grid crashed during the first days of the Muslim holy month of Ramadan.

The outages hit large portions of Pakistan’s financial heart and home to 20 million people, where residents lit bonfires in protest.

“Hundreds of patients suffering from the heat wave are being treated at government hospitals,” Saeed Mangnejo, health secretary for the province of Sindh, told Reuters.

Temperature soared to 44 degrees Celsius (111 Fahrenheit) on Saturday and hovered at 43 degrees Celsius (109 Fahrenheit) on Sunday, coinciding with a surge of demand for power as families observed Ramadan, when Muslims fast during daylight hours.

Both the federal government and K-Electric, the private company that supplies Karachi with power, had promised there would be no outages during the time when families gathered to break their fast at sunset.

Officials from K-Electric were not immediately available for comment on the scale or cause of the outages, which left many families without water, air-conditioning, fans and light.

One of the Karachi’s biggest hospitals, the Jinnah Postgraduate Medical Centre, reported 85 deaths from heat stroke and dehydration.

Thirty-five patients died from heat stroke in other hospitals, doctors said. Two more died from heat-related complications, Mangnejo said.

Corruption and mismanagement mean Pakistan usually suffers eight hours of daily power cuts even in its wealthy urban areas. Those in poorer areas are hit even harder.

Many wealthy or influential families and factory owners exacerbate the problem by refusing to pay their bills or cutting deals with corrupt power officials. —Reuters

China opens new land route for Indian pilgrims to Tibet

BEIJING, 22 June — China inaugurated a new land crossing into Tibet on Monday for Indian pilgrims who wish to visit one of the holiest sites in both Hinduism and Buddhism, state media said, as the two countries seek to set aside differences and improve ties.

The first group of pilgrims entered Tibet via a Himalayan pass in mid-morning for the 12-day trip to Mount Kailash, which will also take in a holy lake, the official Xinhua news agency reported.

The opening of the pass was agreed last year when Chinese President Xi Jinping visited India.

The move will “further promote religious exchanges between the two countries”, Xinhua said.

Few Indian pilgrims ever make it to Mount Kailash despite its significance, not only because of its remoteness but also because of difficulties in getting visas for China’s tightly controlled region of Tibet.

China and India have growing commercial links and long historical ties, but their recent history has been overshadowed by suspicion and they have yet to sort out a festering border dispute.

China and India proposed measures to resolve the border issues while Indian Prime Minister Narendra Modi was in Beijing in May. Beijing has sought to clear obstacles to a rapprochement that it says could change the international political order. — Reuters

EU welcomes 11th-hour Greek proposals in “forces delivery”

BRUSSELS/ATHENS, 22 June — The European Union welcomed new proposals from Greek Prime Minister Alexis Tsipras that it called a “good basis for progress” at talks on Monday where creditors want 11th-hour concessions to haul Athens back from the brink of bankruptcy.

EU chief executive Jean-Claude Juncker’s chief-of-staff spoke of a “forces delivery” as officials worked late into the night to produce a deal ahead of a summit of euro zone leaders in Brussels that they hope can keep Greece in the currency bloc.

Giving no detail of a proposal he said was also received by the European Central Bank and International Monetary Fund, German EU official Martin Selmayr tweeted: “Good basis for progress at ... Euro Summit. In German: ‘eine Zangengeburt’.”

After four months of wrangling and with anxious depositors pulling billions of euros out of Greek banks, Tsipras’s leftist government showed a new willingness at the weekend to make concessions that would unlock frozen aid to aver default. It was not immediately clear how far the new proposal yielded to creditors’ demands for additional spending cuts and tax hikes, but the offer was a ray of hope that a last-minute deal may yet be wrangled before Athens runs out of cash.

Tsipras spent much of Sunday huddled in a marathon cabinet meeting and discussed the new offer with the leaders of Germany, France and the European Commission by phone. “The prime minister presented the three leaders Greece’s proposal for a mutually beneficial agreement that will give a definitive solution and not a post-ponement of addressing the problem,” a statement from Tsipras’s office said.

He will meet European Commission President Juncker, ECB President Mario Draghi, IMF head Christine Lagarde and euro zone finance ministers chairman Jeroen Dijsselbloem at 11 am (0900 GMT), an EU spokeswomn said. Euro zone finance ministers are due to meet 90 minutes later and a summit of euro zone prime ministers and presidents is scheduled at 7 pm (1700 GMT).

EU stock futures jumped in early Asian trade on Monday on hopes for a deal. The euro also ticked up against the dollar.

European ministers have played down the prospect of a final agreement on Monday but hope a political understanding can be reached in time for a full deal by the end of June. Bonded board meeting from one to the next, each side has put the responsibility on the other’s shoulders for a final deal.

Money has drained out of Greek banks after a breakdown in talks last weekend, and Greece is likely to impose capital controls within days if there is no breakthrough.

Underlining the pressure to stem the flow of withdrawals, Bank of Greece Governor Yanis Stournaras met senior bankers on Friday and told them to brace for a “difficult day” on Tuesday if no deal is reached, two bankers at the meeting told Reuters.

Sources in Frankfurt and in Brussels said the European Central Bank’s board also discussed the liquidity of Greece’s banking sector at 0830 GMT on Monday. The sources said Greek pre-orders for bailout aid frozen since last summer, Athens is quick-running out of cash. The deputy finance minister on Sunday confirmed Athens had enough money to pay public sector wages and pensions this month.

But Athens also urgently needs access to funds to avoid defaulting on a 1.6 billion euro IMF loan that falls due at the end of the month. As the weekend wore on from one meeting to the next, each side has put the responsibility on the other’s shoulders for a final deal.

Solution can surface only if Pristina is constructive

In Brussels on Tuesday, Dacic said that Serbia was aware that there were many things we sometimes could not say were just coincidence and that there were a lot of difficult topics to deal with, but that Serbia would certainly not be making any kind of decisions under pressure.

“Serbia will be making decisions that are rational and that look at the future, but only those that offer full protection to our state and national interests,” Dacic, who also serves as OSCE chairperson-in-office, said after meeting with the candidate for his new special representative for Ukraine, Austrian diplomat Martin Sajdik.—Tanjug.

Loyalty, honesty must go hand in hand

By Aung Khin

Honesty and loyalty are keys to cementing relationships among people or organizations. However, it is more important to be both honest and loyal to all of humanity rather than an individual.

Remaining loyal to a certain person should not come at the cost of honesty to others. Instead, honesty should stand on the truth. True loyalty should mean a dedication to fair dealing with everyone.

A politician must maintain perfect honesty for the welfare of the country and people by speaking, living and loving the truth. Political careers should only be for those interested in the well-being of all people, rather than just their friends and relatives.

A good state leader is more loyal to the people and the country than the party. Even when they make a mistake, if it is honest, the people will continue to give their support and understanding.

Honesty is always the best policy. It should not be abandoned out of a misguided sense of loyalty to anyone. Loyalty without openness and honesty can be considered akin to conspiracy. We therefore need to be loyal to our country and people by maintaining perfect honesty.

An Invisible Attachment

Aye Pe (Padaung)

By the time the teachers respect paying season comes round, our old pupils busy themselves with making preparation for a welcoming reception for us old teachers with all due ceremonial on a large scale.

Especially at this time of the years, our old pupils ready themselves to pay homage to their old teachers according to their old cultural tradition. This age-old custom has been handed down from our forefathers since time immemorial.

In this Golden land of ours Buddhism has flourished since two thousand years ago. Without being goaded by anyone, we take upon ourselves responsibility to bow down to our five Gems—the Buddha, the Dhamma, the Sangha, patron and teacher without taking what they are into serious consideration. In other words they put these five Gems on a level. We are obliged to equalize them because they had all to be assumed that they are personifications of “metta” (benevolence). They are really equal to our mind and eye, and highest ideals of our Myanmar society.

Without exception, every man jack if Buddhist does not find it difficult to offer what is the most essential things of great value to these five omniscient Gems. Beyond shadow of doubt that they must be installed in a state of social purity. I have had some unforgettable events one of which I have noted down is as follows:

The day downed cool and fresh, the blue sky cleaned up. Under the magic-spelled skies. I was pacing leisurely towards my Alma Mater. When I got into the school compound, my old pupils gently and fondly held my hands and conducted me to the venue where respect paying for old, retired teachers was going to be held. Though they were in their forties, their lovely and childish features were still lustrous. That’s well discerned, and lively and dynamic. Turn to my grey-haired colleagues, some could not see things clearly far and near, some could not hear distinctly, some mumbled. When they saw the broadly smiling faces, they seemed to rejuvenate. But what cannot change up to now are four “Bandar” trees. I used to take a rest on those benches under those trees as a student as well as a teacher.

Come back old memories. As I was once a student and once a teacher of this Alma Mater nothing could measure how much deeply I am committed to my personal attachment! My dear school is my dear life, my dear life is my dear school. Both could never be separated. In this place I drove a staked into ground for a new building as I am Sunday born. I built a wooden, strong fence round the flower garden between the main building and a flag pole. The part of my life is rooted there. It puts arms around my neck when I get into depression. It gathers me to itself like a mother.

Memory is both blessing and curse. It hurts to recall the days that are over. But man needs memory. Without memory, there wouldn’t be any painters, or writers, no doctors, no engineers, no architects. Memory is what enables man to survive and progress. And it is true, but it is more than that. Man is the only creature whose emotions are entangled with his memory. Bitter or sweet, we don’t want any part of life to be really over, it should always be available if only through people who have shared it. When they go, they take a part of your life-story, even that old dilapidated wooden school building. But the roots remain. The roots that will forever keep calling you back “come home”.

The change is too much to bear. In place of old buildings are emerging new ones furnished with new electronic equipment for learning or teaching. How much is the change, no matter! We are the same. Our old pupils are the same. Our sprits are the same. The sweet tantalizing is the sameeness!

Our old pupils paid respect to us three times. We blessed them. A lot of blessings in the past, at present, will never end!

An old student-cum-Minister from one Ministry made a nosta-talgic words of grateful speech. When I heard his heart-rending speech, a nearly full recollection of old memories were rushing into my mind successively.

When new generation young girls sang a song “Myat Saya” (noble teacher) the momentum of ceremony reached its highest peak. As we “Aphogyis” (old men) became enlivened, our eyes frosted, our hearts beat faster. Why? I don’t know.

No one could feel what we feel for our pupils. In the evening of our life, we need only fondness, warmth, love, kindness, tenderness and last but not least “Metta” from our old pupils. Some old men are still going strong but some are frail in love spirits. Our Metta sanchaung (a spring of loving kindness) will never cease to flow, will never dry up. Flows on and flows on till the end of mother earth. Even “Thagyamin” (king of devas) could not stop it.

Though our attachment is invisible yet it is so strong that even that poor Thagyamin couldn’t cut it off.

Taleban attack Afghan parliament, seize second district in north

KABUL, 22 June — A Taleban suicide bomber and gunmen attacked the Afghan parliament on Monday, shattering windows, wounding at least 19 people and sending a plume of black smoke across Kabul, as a second district in two days fell to the Islamist group in the north.

Violence has spiralled in Afghanistan since the departure of most foreign forces at the end of last year as the insurgents push to take territory more than 13 years after the US-led military intervention that toppled the Taleban from power.

A series of Taleban gains, and Monday’s attack on the symbolic centre of power, have raised questions about the NATO-trained Afghan security forces’ ability to cope.

Four women were among the 19 wounded, said Sayed Kabir Amiri, a health official who coordinates Kabul hospitals.

“A suicide bomber blew himself up just outside the parliament building and several fighters took positions in a building close to parliament,” said Ebadullah Karimi, spokesman for Kabul police.

Kabul police chief Abdul Rahman Rahimi said all lawmakers were safe and that fighting was ongoing. TV pictures showed legislators calmly leaving the building which was engulfed with dust and smoke. Taleban spokesman Zabihullah Mujahid claimed responsibility.

“We have launched an attack on parliament as there was an important gathering to introduce the country’s defence minister,” he said by phone.

Lawmaker Shukria Barekzai said: “It was a huge blast that shook the building and shattered windows.”

The withdrawal of foreign forces and a reduction in US air strikes have allowed Taleban fighters to launch several major attacks in important Afghan provinces.

The second district to fall to the Taleban on Monday was in the northern province of Kunduz.

Blasts in Egypt’s North Sinai wound police, civilians — security sources

ISMAILIA, (Egypt), 22 June — At least eight policemen and civilians were wounded on Monday when explosions hit two houses in Egypt’s El-Arish, the provincial capital of the North Sinai region, security and medical sources said.

Militants planted two bombs in two adjacent houses, both inhabited by police, the sources said. The force of the explosions led to the collapse of large parts of the homes, injuring three policemen and five civilians.

The extent of their injuries was not immediately clear.

Egypt is facing a Sinai-based insurgency that has killed hundreds of policemen and soldiers since the army toppled Islamist President Mohamed Morsi after mass protests against his rule in 2013.

The most active militant group is Sinai Province, which has pledged allegiance to Islamic State, the Sunni group that controls large parts of Iraq and Syria. Egypt executed six members of Sinai Province for carrying out an attack on soldiers near Cairo last year, their lawyer said in May.

FATF urges to overhaul anti-terror finance rules to cut off funding channel for IS

SYDNEY, 22 June — Anti-terror finance rules need to be overhauled to cope with the use of social networking sites and social media fundraising that support foreigners fighting for Islamic State (IS), the Financial Action Task Force (FATF) said on Monday.

Delegates from the more than 180 members of the FATF, an intergovernmental body established in 1989 to stop money laundering, will also consider the potential danger of online, or crypto-currencies such as Bitcoin and the operation of the global financial system at it’s week-long meeting in Brisbane.

FATF President Australian Roger Wilkins, Secretary of the Australian Attorney Generals department, told Newsorp on Monday FATF wanted to expand on a report it received in February on the funding of Islamic State.

“Social networking and that sort of use of funds is something we identified in the IS report, even crowdfunding, using some of the newer forms of finance as some of the ways of anonymous supporting,” Wilkins said.

Crowdfunding involves raising money for a project from a large number of people, either through informal networks or by using websites such as Kickstarter.

The FATF meeting, which started on Sunday, will also examine the abuse of charities by terror groups and old-fashioned cash smuggling.

“The capacity of border protection people to pull up cash and ask some difficult questions, interrogate people who are caught in the act, is a little bit weak in terms of how countries enforce it,” Wilkins said.

The FATF meeting is being held in Brisbane from 21 - 26 June.

Arab warplanes continue strikes on Houthis — residents

SANAA, 22 June — More than 20 air strikes by Arab forces hit targets controlled by Houthi rebels across Yemen late on Sunday, residents said.

An Arab military coalition has been bombing the Houthis for three months to restore the country’s exiled government and fend off what they see as Iranian influence.

The Houthis took over the capital Sanaa in September and spread throughout the country in a push they view as a revolution against a corrupt government but deny any military links with their allies in Teheran.

Backed up by Arab bombings and weapons drops, local fighters in Yemen’s south and its main city Aden have resisted the heavily armed militia’s advance.

In Aden, residents reported three raids on the Houthi-controlled international airport while another bombing destroyed parts of the Ottoman-era Seera castle, a symbol of the city and the latest cultural site in Yemen to suffer damage in the war. Along Yemen’s border with Saudi Arabia, residents in Hajja province reported five air raids on buildings housing Houthi forces and their army allies, who have repeatedly clashed with Saudi forces in recent weeks. Mainly drawn from the Shi’ite Zaydi sect, the Houthis are allied to Yemen’s former president Ali Abdullah Saleh, who still has the loyalty of much of the army.

They are fighting President Abd-Rabbu Mansour Hadi, who is exiled in Riyadh, and southern separatists, tribal factions and other political groups.

Asia cheers Greece’s eleventh hour proposals to avert default

Tokyo, 22 June —

Asian shares got the week off to a strong start and US stock futures and the euro firmed on Monday, after Greece scrambled to avert defaulting on its debt with last-minute proposals aimed at appeasing its creditors.

Financial spreadbetssters expected the mood to carry over into early European trading, with FTSE 100 .FTSE seen opening up as much as 0.2 percent, Germany’s DAX DXGDAXI 0.7 percent and France’s CAC 40 .FCHI 0.4 percent.

“European equities are set to get a pop higher on the open as traders cautiously welcome developments in Greece,” Jonathan Sudaria, a dealer at Capital Spreads, said in a note.

Many investors were still cautious about Prime Minister Alexis Tsipras’ proposals because it was not immediately clear how far they yielded to creditors’ demands for additional spending cuts and tax hikes, nor whether creditors can stomach the offer.

The chief-of-staff to European Commission President Jean-Claude Juncker sent a tweet calling the latest proposal from Greece to solve its debt crisis a “good basis for progress” in talks at an emergency euro zone summit meeting later on Monday. “Today will supposedly be the last round of negotiations, so there could be a possible surprise in the form of an agreement with both parties seeing the writing on the wall,” said Shinichiro Kadota, chief Japan forex strategist at Barclays in Tokyo. “Still, it is unclear when and if an agreement will be reached, and the euro will remain sensitive to headlines over Greece.”

MSCI's broadest index of Asia-Pacific shares outside Japan .MIAPJ0000PUS was up 0.8 percent after touching a more than two-week high, while Japan’s Nikkei stock index .NE225 added 0.9 percent.

US stock futures ESc1 ticked off on 0.4 percent, while the euro EUR=.E also ticked up about 0.4 percent to $1.1393, moving back toward a one-month high of $1.1440 hit on Thursday. The greenback was nearly flat on the day at 122.71 yen JPY=.

Athens is running out of cash to repay a 1.6 billion euro IMF loan due at the end of the month, unless it secures new financing from international creditors.

Speculation is rife that, if no deal were reached on Monday, Greece would need to impose capital controls on Tuesday to avert a banking crisis as savers keep withdrawing funds from banks.

Bank of Greece Governor Yannis Stournaras met senior bankers on Friday and told them to brace for a “dif-ficult day” on Tuesday if no deal is reached, two bankers at the meeting told Reuters.

In Asia, Chinese mainland markets were closed on Monday for a holiday, after posting their biggest weekly loss since 2008 last week. Some strategists said such a correction was long overdue as Chinese shares had at one point marked gains of more than 40 percent this year. But others fret that falling stock prices could stoke concerns about a slowdown in the Chinese economy.

In commodities trading, crude oil futures edged slightly higher amid caution about Greece, and worries over high US oil product.

Brent crude LCOc1 was up about 0.1 percent at $63.07 a barrel, while US crude futures CLc1 also rose about 0.1 percent to $59.66.

Malaysia steps up health screening for MERS at entry points

KUALA LUMPUR, 22 June —

Malaysia has stepped up health screenings at all entry points into the country, after the first case of Middle East Respiratory Syndrome (MERS) was reported in neighbouring Thailand last week.

The Southeast Asian nation, which shares a 650 km (400 mile) land border with Thailand, has already begun monitoring body temperatures at the airports, Deputy Health Min-ister Hilmi Yahaya said in a statement to state news agency Bernama. “Now, we are going further to include all entry points,” he said.

Visitors entering the country would also be briefed on precautions to be taken to avoid being infect-ed with the disease, the minis-ter said in the statement. There have so far been no cases of MERS reported in Malaysia.

South Korea has been dealing with the largest outbreak of MERS outside Saudi Arabia, and on Monday reported two more deaths, bringing the number of fatalities to 27. Seoul also said it had confirmed three more MERS cases, taking the total in the outbreak to 172.

Thailand’s health minis-ter said at the weekend that 175 people were exposed to its only case of MERS, which was un-connected to the outbreak in South Korea.

MERS was first iden-tified in humans in Saudi Arabia in 2012 and the ma-jority of cases have been in the Middle East. Scientists are not sure of the origin of the virus, but several stud-ies have linked it to camels.

Isolated cases have cropped up in Asia before South Ko-rean’s outbreak.

CVC and Temasek to buy $2 billion generic drugs firm Alvogen

LONDON, 22 June —

European private equity fund CVC and Singaporean sovereign wealth fund Temasek [TEM.L.U] are to buy a controlling stake in the pharmaceutical firm Alvogen, its chairman and chief executive said. Rob-ert Wessman, former CEO of Actavis, founded the New Jersey-based generic drugs firm in 2009.

The size of the stake the consortium struck was not disclosed, but the deal values the company at around $2 billion (£1.3 bil-lion), a source familiar with the matter said on Monday.

The transaction is the latest sign of the hectic pace of deal-making in the healthcare sector, which has seen more than $250 billion of mergers and acquisi-tions so far this year, up nearly two-thirds from a year ago, according to Thomson Reuters data. Wessman sold a stake in Alvogen to the private equi-ty fund Pamplona in 2014. The new owners also in-clude US investment group Vatera Healthcare Partners, Wessman and Pamplona will retain a stake.

The fast-growing company currently has 350 gen-eric products on the market and has been pushing into the Asia-Pacific region with several acquisitions, including that of South Ko-rean’s Dream Pharma last year.

“We have grown from a small base in the US back in 2009 to a global player with operations in 35 coun-tries,” Wessman told Reu ters. “Our growth has been 76 percent a year in the past six years, a majority being organic, but with access to network and capital from our partners you should expect to see more acquisi-tions.” Generic drugmakers like Alvogen are looking to get bigger to enjoy economies of scale in manu-facturing and distribution, while CVC has an interest in health through previous deals, such as a 2012 in-vestment in Chinese drug-maker Venturepharma.

Australians overeating, choosing unhealthy food, not exercising enough: survey

MELBOURNE, 22 June —

Many Australians have admitted to regularly eating fast food, skipping breakfast and not doing enough exercise in alarming find-ings uncovered by a health and wellbeing survey released on Monday.

Participants in a Can-cer Council Victoria sur-vey revealed that they think poor eating habits are becoming “normal,” while only 85 percent of respondents think “occa-sional treats” had become everyday snack items.

The statistics showed that many Australians believe they are living a healthy lifestyle, but in re-ality they are not.

One in three Austral-i ans skip breakfast, which does more harm than good and contributes to over-eating throughout the day, while only a third are exer-cising once a week at most.

Only one in 14 of those surveyed admitted to eating the recommended amount of vegetables, while half of respondents said they reg-u larly snack on chocolate and biscuits. A quarter of the people surveyed said they eat takeaway at least every second day.

Heart Foundation Victoria CEO Diana Heg-gie said on Monday that “mindless eating” was contributing to poor eating habits and an unhealthy lifestyle.

Mourning shooting victims, Charleston anguish over ‘freshness of death’

CHARLESTON, 22 June —
Hundreds of people packed a sweltering Emanuel African Methodist Episcopal Church in Charleston for an emotional memorial service on Sunday just days after a gunman, identified by authorities as a 21-year-old white man, shot dead nine black church members.

“We are reminded this morning about the freshness of death that comes like a thief in the night,” the Reverend Norvel Goff told a mostly black congregation that swelled to about 400 people for a service remembering those killed on Wednesday in the latest US mass shooting.

Armed police searched bags at the door of the church, home to the oldest African-American congregation in the southern United States, and officers stood at intervals inside the church along the side of the nave and in the gallery.

Outside the church, a large, mostly white crowd gathered to express solidarity with those inside.

Goff’s eulogizing sermon brought people alternately to tears and laughter as the church reopened to worshippers for the first time since the shooting. They whooped, cheered and raised their hands, and ended the service with embraces after Goff, whose voice rose to a shout at times, encouraged them to “hug three people next to you and tell them, ‘It’s going to be all right.’”

The suspect, Dylann Roof, was arrested on Thursday and has been charged with nine counts of murder. Authorities say he spent an hour in an evening Bible study group at the church, nicknamed “Mother Emanuel” for its key role in US black history, before opening fire.

Federal investigators were examining a racist manifesto on a website that appeared to have been供电 by Roof. The site featured white supremacist writings and photos, apparently of Roof.

The blood of the Mother Emanuel Nine requires us to work until not only this case but for those who are still living in the margin of life, those who are less fortunate than ourselves, that we stay on the battlefield until there is no more fight to be fought,” Goff said.

Hand fans fluttered as people walked in solidarity along the Arthur Ravenel Jr. bridge in Charleston, on 21 June, 2015, after the first service at the Emanuel African Methodist Episcopal Church since a mass shooting left nine people dead.

Hacks were ground 1,400 passengers at Warsaw Airport

Warsaw, 22 June —
Around 1,400 passengers of the Polish airline LOT [LOT.LC] were grounded at Warsaw’s Chopin airport on Sunday after hackers attacked the airline’s computer systems used to issue flight plans, the company said.

The computer system was hacked in the afternoon and fixed after around five hours, during which 10 of the state-owned carrier’s national and international flights were cancelled and about a dozen more delayed, spokesman Adrian Kubicki said.

LOT was taking care of the passengers on Sunday evening and some were already able to board flights. LOT said it was providing hotels for those who needed to stay over night.

At no point was the safety of ongoing flights compromised, Kubicki said, and flights destined for Warsaw were able to land safely. No other airports were affected, he added.

“We’re using state-of-the-art computer systems, so this could potentially be a threat to others in the industry,” Kubicki said.

The attack in now being investigated by the authorities.

The airport itself was not affected, its spokesman said.—Reuters

Singaporean shooting suspect charged with unlawful discharge of firearms

SINGAPORE, 22 June —
The suspect who allegedly snatched a police officer’s revolver and fired the gun at a hospital in Singapore has been charged for unlawful discharge of firearms at the State Courts on Monday.

Under the Arms Offences Act, the suspect Muhammad Iskandar Bin Sa’at could face death penalty if convicted. He was charged with using a revolver to discharge three rounds with the intent to cause physical injury to the police officer Mohammed Sadiq Bin Razali at a care corner of Khoo Teck Puat Hospital on 20 June.

The prosecution, led by Deputy Public Prosecutor Winston Man, has asked for the accused to be remanded for a week to assist in further investigations as the charge is a “fairly serious and recent” one.

Singapore’s Minister for Prime Minister’s Office, Second Minister for Home Affairs Masagos Zulkifli on Monday said findings from the investigation on the shooting will help the authorities determine the kind of “correction” that will need to be taken to mitigate against a future occurrence.

The suspect was arrested for motor vehicle theft on 19 June and was brought to the hospital after complaining of chest pains. While inside one of the hospital’s examination rooms, the man attempted to escape but was stopped by one of the police officers. The suspect snatched the police officer’s revolver during the struggle, then the situation was brought under control swiftly, said the police.

The suspect sustained superficial injuries while the officer suffered gunshot wounds to his left thumb and right foot. The officer has undergone surgery and is currently in a stable condition.

N Korea not to participate in July’s University Games in S Korea

SEOUL, 22 June —
North Korea has informed South Korea of its decision not to participate in the University Games scheduled next month in Gwangju by South Korea’s Unification Ministry said on Monday.

The North sent its notice via e-mail last Friday to the secretary general of the International Universities Sports Federation, citing as a reason the United Nations’ planned opening of its field office in Seoul on Tuesday to investigate human rights violations in North Korea, according to a games organizing committee official.

North Korea said in March it will send a 108-member delegation to the biennial international multi-sports event for university athletes, scheduled to take place from 3 to 14 July in the southwestern South Korean city.

The Office of the UN High Commissioner for Human Rights has said it will work on monitoring and documenting the human rights situation in North Korea.

North Korea, however, has threatened to retaliate against Seoul in the event it hosts the UN field mission. The North has said it had sent an average of 45 athletes to the University Games competitions over the last 10 years.

Japan suicides down but still “serious issue” for under 40s: gov’t

Tokyo, 22 June — The number of suicides in Japan declined for the fifth straight year in 2014 but the margin of decline in suicides committed by people under 40 was relatively small, showing they “still remain a serious problem” for the younger generation, the government said in a report released on Monday.

The total number of suicides dropped to 25,427, down 1,856 from the year before and staying below the 30,000 mark for the third consecutive year, according to the white paper on suicide prevention measures.

Of the total, 68 percent were committed by men and 32 percent by women. Health problems were the top reason for their suicides, accounting for 12,920 of the total, followed by financial and family problems, the report showed.

People aged below 40 accounted for 6,581 deaths, roughly 26 percent of the total, prompting the government to call for phone counseling services in late hours as data between 1972 and 2013 showed the greatest number of suicides was committed by men in the age group around midnight.

The white paper also showed suicides by people aged 18 or younger were concentrated around early April and early September, typically the start of a school semester in Japan.

Noting the trend, the report said schools, communities and family members need to carefully monitor changes in children’s behavior after long school breaks.

Indian Navy rescues 20 people on board sinking ship off Mumbai coast

New Delhi, 22 June — The Indian Navy on Monday rescued 20 people on board a sinking merchant ship off the coast of Mumbai in a major rescue operation.

“The Indian Navy’s Seaking 42C helicopter rescued all 20 crew members, including the captain of the ship, in the Arabian Sea,” Sitanshu Kar, principal spokesperson of the Indian Ministry of Defence, said.

The operation, which was carried out in low visibility, came in the wake of the Indian Navy getting a distress call from the ship, Jindal Kamakshi, around 11:15 pm local time Sunday night. The ship sent an SIS signal after it started sinking some 40 nautical miles from the Mumbai port after the crew failed to contain the flooding.

A probe has been ordered into the incident, an official said.—Xinhua

Typhoon hit China’s Hainan, seen easing drought

Ships berth at Xingang harbor in Haikou, capital of south China’s Hainan Province, on 22 June, 2015. Tropical storm Kaijura strengthened into a typhoon in the South China Sea on Sunday, which is moving northward and likely to become the first typhoon to hit China this year.—Xinhua

BEIJING, 22 June — The first typhoon of the year to hit China is expected to make landfall on or near the southern island of Hainan on Monday, which should help ease a severe drought on the tourist center and rubber producer, state news agency Xinhua said. Typhoon Kaijura will sweep over the Paracel Islands in the South China Sea before hitting land somewhere between Wanning on Hainan and Zhanjiang in the neighbouring province of Guangdong, bringing strong winds and heavy rainfall, Xinhua said late on Sunday.

It is expected to weaken gradually after reaching land, the report added. But it should help ease Hainan’s worst drought in more than half a century, Xinhua said, which has affected about one-third of the island, a place China likes to style its answer to Hawaii or Phuket.—Reuters
“Jurassic World” stays first in North America box office

LOS ANGELES, 22 June — Universal’s 3D film “Jurassic World” retained its first place at the weekend box office in United States and Canada with 102 million US dollars, beating out the latest Disney-Pixar animation film “Inside Out”. “Jurassic World” grossed 102 million dollars this weekend with a 51 percent decline compared with the first weekend, making it the second largest 2nd weekend gross of all-time; behind only the 103 million take of 2012’s “Marvel’s The Avengers”.

“Jurassic World” has grossed 398.2 million dollars in just ten days of release in North America, which represents the largest-ten-day start of all time. It is running 25.2 million dollars and 7 percent ahead of the 373.1-million-dollar ten-day take of former record holder “The Avengers”.

Among the ticket sales in North America this weekend, “Jurassic World” grossed an estimated 11.3 million from IMAX locations, which represented 11.1 percent of the film’s overall weekend gross. This dinosaur-eat-men sequel was on track to sell 981 million dollars in tickets worldwide over its first eight days of screening, according to ticket tracking and analysis firm Rentrak.

Opening at 3,946 locations, Pixar Studios “Inside Out” ranked the second and brought in an incredible 91 million dollars. It is Pixar’s first-ever debut below first place.

All was not lost at Pixar, however, as “Inside Out” has far outperformed the predicted sales of 60 million dollars in tickets. Its good performance makes it Pixar’s second largest opening weekend, behind “Toy Story 3”, which made 110.3 million dollars in 2010. “Inside Out” got an “A” from moviemakers and a highly 96 percent positive rate from critics.

The film also posted a fantastic worldwide start this weekend and has ticket sales of 132 million dollars worldwide. Its audience breakdown skewed heavily towards moviegoers 25 years and under (60 percent) and towards female moviegoers (56 percent). Family audiences represented 71 percent of the film’s overall audience. 3D grosses represented 28 percent of the film’s overall gross this weekend.

Fox’s “Spy” was placed in a distant third with an estimated 10.5 million dollars, though it added 383 screens in North America. This Melissa McCarthy-led comedy has grossed 74.4 million dollars through 17 days.

Warner’s “San Andreas” dropped 358 screens and ended up fourth with 8.2 million dollars. It has grossed over 132.2 million dollars within 24 days since its release.

Comedy film “Dope” debuted at the fifth place with an estimated 6 million dollars this weekend. It received an “A-” rating on CinemaScore and 90 percent approval rate from critics on Rotten Tomatoes.

Rounding out the 10 most popular films in the United States and Canada were “Insidious Chapter 3” (4.1 million dollars), “Pitch Perfect 2” (3 million), “Jurassic World” (2.8 million), “Avengers: Age Of Ultron” (2.7 million) and “Tomorrowland” (2 million).

Apple bows to Taylor Swift on paying for all music streaming

LOS ANGELES, 22 June — Apple Inc (AAPL).O reversed its policy and said it would now pay artists during free trials of its new Apple Music streaming service, after pop star Taylor Swift said she would hold back her latest hit album “1989” from the service.

Apple is offering users a three-month trial of its new service and had said it would not pay artists for the use of their music during that time. Apple senior vice president Eddy Cue announced the change of heart through Twitter (@ecue). “We hear you @taylorswift13 and indie artists. Love, Apple.” Cue tweeted.

Swift, 25, said in a Tumblr post on Sunday that she would hold back her latest hit album “1989” from the service as she found Apple’s policy of not paying artists during free trial streaming and disappointing as it would hurt young artists just starting out.

After the backlash from Apple, she turned to Twitter to thank both Apple and her supporters, telling her 59 million Twitter followers: “I am elated and relieved. Thank you for your words of support today. They listened to us.”

Swift had fought with music streaming services before. She pulled her entire catalog of music from online streaming platform Spotify last November and refused to offer “1989” on streaming services, saying the business had shrunk the numbers of paid album sales drastically. However she has supported Apple’s drive to supplant advertising-based free streaming services with one funded by user subscriptions. An Apple spokesman confirmed Cue’s tweets and that the company would pay artists during the three-month trial period.

Jason Derulo tops UK music singles chart for fourth week

LONDON, 22 June — US singer Jason Derulo topped the British music singles chart for a fourth consecutive week on Sunday with his track “Want To Want Me”, the Official Charts Company said.

It becomes the fourth track this year to spend at least four weeks in the number one spot, after seeing off stiff competition from the week’s highest new entry, Deorro and Chris Brown’s “Five More Hours” which ended up at number four.

Major Lazer’s “Lean On” climbed one spot to second, swapping places with OMI’s “Cheerleader”, which dropped to third.

In the album charts, British rock band Arctic Monkeys kept the top spot for a second week with “Drones”, while Florence and the Machine’s “How Big, How Blue, How Beautiful” also held on at number two. Paul Simon’s “The Ultimate Collection” jumped three places to third.

Banks did not do enough to police FIFA transactions, says agency

Reuters

With the US investigation continuing to widen, and a separate Swiss probe gearing up into whether there was corruption involved in FIFA’s awarding of the hosting rights to Russia and Qatar for the next football World Cups in 2018 and 2022, the warning will add to banks’ concern about handling certain football accounts for organizations and individuals.

Some European and US banks had already stepped up scrutiny of FIFA-related accounts and at least one said it had stopped handling FIFA business for some time because of corruption allegations.

In a statement, that has now been removed from the agency’s website, FATF said “recent reports about alleged corruption and money laundering activities on a large scale by several high-ranking FIFA officials underscore how important it is that financial institutions identify and monitor high-risk customers.” It said that financial institutions “do not appear to have given a sufficient amount of scrutiny to the financial activities of the officials concerned, as many of these allegedly corruption-related transfers passed through the international financial system undetected.”

FATF, whose members include the US, China, Brazil, Switzerland and many other European countries, said that an “ongoing public debate about the integrity of an entity should raise flags to financial institutions. As a result they should treat customers that are related to that entity as high risk customers.”

Reuters was told about the statement, which appears to be dated 16 June, by a European official with knowledge of the FIFA case. It can be found through a Google search but is no longer accessible through the FATF website. FATF President Roger Williams told Reuters that he had taken the decision to remove the statement from the agency’s website over concerns about its phrasing and a lack of concrete evidence to support the claims.

Colombia draw 0-0 with Peru in dull Copa America tie

Temuco, 22 June — Colombia were left sweating on their Copa America hopes after a lacklustre 0-0 draw with Peru on Sunday.

The result took Peru into the quarter-finals but Colombia’s advance is dependent on the result of the day’s later match between Brazil and Venezuela.

Unlike in most tournaments, the final Copa America group games are not played concurrently and so Colombia must hope for either Brazil or Venezuela to win and leave them as one of the best third-placed teams.

“We didn’t play well and we’re suffering,” Colombia’s James Rodriguez said. “We need to look at ourselves and recognise that when we don’t score we have to take responsibility.”

Colombia were the better side and Peruvian keeper Pedro Gallese got down well to stop Radamel Falcao opening the scoring in the third minute. Pablo Armero then shot into the side netting after a defence splitting pass from Rodriguez.

Jackson Martinez missed a great chance to guarantee Colombia’s advance when he scuffed a weak shot straight at the keeper in injury time.

The draw left both Colombia and Peru with four points in Group C and ended Ecuador’s chances of progressing as one of the two best third-placed teams from Group A. The other two teams in Group C, Brazil and Venezuela, play in Santiago on Sunday night.

The winner of Group C will play Paraguay in the quarter-finals, while the team in second place will face Bolivia. The third placed team will face Argentina. Uruguay, one of the guaranteed third-placed teams, face hosts Chile.

Andy Murray says playing better than when he won Wimbledon

LONDON, 22 June — Andy Murray says he is playing better than when he won Wimbledon in 2013 and after the last few weeks, it would be no surprise if he repeats that historic feat next month. The world number three oozed confidence as he named big-serving South African Kevin Anderson 6-3, 6-4, 6-3 in a fourth title at Queen’s Club on Sunday.

That followed a semi-final run at the French Open where he lost narrowly— to Novak Djokovic and stunning play on clay where he claimed titles in Munich and Madrid.

While Roger Federer also warmed up for Wimbledon with yet another Halle title on Sunday and Rafa Nadal won a grasscourt title in Stuttgart last week, Murray is emerging as the man to beat when Wimbledon starts on 29 June.

“You know, sport and life and everything moves on. If you don’t continue to improve and get better, there is going to be people that will take your spot,” Murray told reporters when asked how his game stacks up against the 2013 version when he became the first British man to win Wimbledon for 77 years.

“I feel like I have improved. Physically I’m definitely in a better place than I was then. Obviously I was having problems with my back around that time.”

Anderson had bullied his way through the draw at Queen’s using his serve as a weapon of mass destruction. But Murray managed to serve once in each set. With Swedish nine-times grand slam doubles champion Joakim Bjorkman now part of his coaching team as main coach Amelie Mauresmo prepares to become a mother, Murray seems completely at ease, on and off the court. Former world number one Mauresmo was known for her flair, as was Bjorkman, and they appear to be the perfect complement for Murray and his vast array of skills. His second serve, sometimes a hindrance, has improved markedly while the power and accuracy he is generating from the baseline allows his to dominate opponents from the back.

“With my variety very well just now, something that maybe I wasn’t the last couple of years. That’s been good for me,” Murray said.

“It’s been a really good start, but, you know, it’s a long way to go before Wimbledon even starts, and then all sorts of things can happen during slams.”— Reuters

Aussies upset Brazil, France shine as Canada scrape through

EDMONTON, (Canada), 22 June — Australia eliminated Brazil from the Women’s World Cup on Sunday to advance to the quarter-finals along with a convincing France and battling hosts Canada.

A goal from substitute Kyah Simon 10 minutes from the end earned Australia a 1-0 win over a Brazil team who had won all three of their games in the group stage.

France reinforced the view of many that they are favourites for the title with a classy 3-0 win over South Korea, while a 52nd minute goal from Josee Belanger gave Canada a 1-0 victory over Switzerland in front of a crowd of 53,855 in Vancouver.

Australia had never won a knock-out round game in the World Cup and were up against a Brazil team that had not conceded a single goal in the group stage.

But Australia’s combination of well-organised defence, relentless work in midfield and pacy counter-attacking paid off.

The decisive goal came when substitute Katrina Gorry won the ball in midfield and sprayed the ball out wide to Lisa De Vanna, whose low shot was spilled out by Brazil keeper Luciana to Simon who slotted home.

“I think we are one of the most dangerous teams at the World Cup if not the most dangerous team going forward,” said Australian coach Alen Stajcic.

“With such a young team, you just see so much growth and development in such a short space of time. If they keep growing, we can beat anyone in the world.”

France certainly look capable of beating anyone but will need to be at their very best in the last eight, where they will face Germany.

The Koreans, without their best player Ji So-yun because of injury, were no match at all for Philippe Bergeroo’s team, who were 2-0 up within eight minutes.

Marie Laure Delie opened the scoring in the fourth minute, ending a fast-flowing move with a precise finish.

Four minutes later Elodie Thomis fired home after racing into the box to pick up a pass from Olympique Lyonnais team mate Eugenie Le Sommer. Delie added her second and France’s third in the 48th minute.

South Korean coach Yoon Desk-yeo said his side simply had not been able to deal with the fluid passing and movement of the French.

“Their speed was incredible ... and our defenders had trouble coping with that,” he said. Canada were pushed hard by World Cup debutants Switzerland and struggled to find their rhythm but their endeavour was rewarded with Ballanger’s winner.

Rhiannon Wilkinson crossed from the right and Christine Sinclair laid the ball off to Belanger, whose fierce attempt beat Swiss keeper Gaelle Thalmann.

It was a tough loss to take for a Swiss team who had created more chances in the final third, largely thanks to the inspired individual skills of forward Ramona Bachmann.

Canada coach John Herdman now faces the prospect of coming up against the country of his birth if England can beat Norway on Monday but did not consider it a potential conflict of interests.

“I’m a Geordie first and foremost and we have our own Geordie nation in the north east of England, and Canadian second, this is my country and this is my place. I’d love to see England or Norway it makes no difference.”

England face the Scandinavians in Ottawa while Monday’s other game sees the United States take on Colombia in Edmonton.

Spieth told reporters. “So for that turnaround right there, when that heat happen, I feel for Dustin.

“But I haven’t been able to put anything in perspective yet. When I finished, I was just hoping to be playing tomorrow. I can’t seem to wrap my head around the finish of today.”

Though Spieth birdied the par-five 18th to end a wildly fluctuating final round of high drama with a one-under-par 69, he then had to watch as fellow American Johnson, in the last pairing, had a 12-foot eagle putt to win it at the 18th. Johnson’s putt slid past the putting surface. It was undaunted, breaking the cape. If they keep growing, we can beat anyone in the world.”
