STATE Counsellor Daw Aung San Suu Kyi urged efforts towards a lasting peace in Myanmar, highlighting the importance of peace in the development of the country at a meeting of the Union Peace Dialogue Joint Committee in Nay Pyi Taw yesterday.

Only when peace is achieved will all people be peaceful and happy, said the State Counsellor who is also the chair of the UPDJC, pointing out that it is impossible to keep the country’s economy stable without peace, and there is even danger of economic collapse if peace is impossible.

The State Counsellor stressed the need for finding common ground on the political landscape to build a genuine Union and highlighted the importance of the consent of all ethnic minorities while building the future.

Although it is impossible to achieve a 100 percent agreement, it is required to negotiate different views to achieve positive results, said the State Counsellor, adding that dialogue should be used for the sake of all.

Next, Union Minister U Kyaw Tin Swe, vice-chairman (1) of the UPDJC, Peace Commission Chairman Dr Tin Myo Win, vice-chairman (2) of the UPDJC, P’do汗 Saw Kwe Htoo Win, vice-chairman representing ethnic armed organizations’ group, and U Thu Wai, vice-chairman representing political parties’ group, spoke on the occasion, expressing hopes of positive outcomes for lasting peace.

During the UPDJC meeting, those present discussed and approved agendas for the 21st Century Union Peace Conference, formation of a joint committee for holding the conference and matters related to the number of participants to the conference and agenda of opening ceremony and dinner.

Moreover, a review of the political dialogue framework and substitution of UPDJC representatives were also discussed.—Myanmar News Agency
Pyithu Hluttaw hears border demarcation, property ownership and submission of proposal

A Myanmar-China border agreement was ratified on 1 October 1960, the Minister of State for Foreign Affairs U Kyaw Tin told the Pyithu Hluttaw yesterday, saying that Myanmar has a 1,384-mile border with China, a 149-mile border with Laos, a 168-mile border with Bangladesh, a 1,010-mile border with India and a 1,318-mile border with Thailand.

A Myanmar-Laos border agreement was signed with a permanent border in the Mekong River on 11 June, 1994. A Myanmar-Bangladesh border agreement with a permanent border in the Naf River was established on 21 January 1964, while a land boundary was agreed upon on 12 November in 1998, added the Minister of State for Foreign Affairs.

According to the Minister of State for Foreign Affairs, a Myanmar-India border was demarcated on 10 March 1967 but 24 miles of the 1,010-mile border with India in the Kabaw valley remains to be surveyed for the setting up of nine border posts.

Regarding the demarcation of a trilateral border junction of Myanmar, India and China, a matter of nine border posts between Myanmar and India is expected to be resolved by exchanging land along the border but the trilateral border junction can be ratified when a dispute over the boundary between India and China.

Myanmar and India are set to make a field trip to plant nine border posts in Kabaw valley following a proposal given by the Indian side at a meeting of the India-Myanmar Joint Boundary Working Group on 6 January, 2016.

On a Myanmar-Thailand border, the Minister of State for Foreign Affairs said that the two sides have given a green light to a plan to demarcate the remaining border sections this season.

During yesterday’s Pyithu Hluttaw session, the Union Minister for Construction U Min Aung Khin responded to a question about a controversy regarding the demarcation of a nationwide Eco-Tourism Plan, saying that the land plot will continue to exist under its current name, Union Solidarity and Development Party.

Next, U Than Soe of the Thazi Constituency submitted a proposal to the parliament calling on the Union government to strive for ending the US’s economic sanction against Myanmar. U Sai Tun Sein of the Mongpyin Constituency seconded the motion.

While seeking a parliamentary approval, the proposal was defeated by 219 votes to 151.—Myanmar News Agency

Future of Myeik Archipelago’s eco-tourism sector to depend on regional govt

THE development of eco-tourism initiatives in southern Myanmar’s Myeik Archipelago will reportedly depend on the standing of regional government towards the callings of investment, the Myanmar Investment Commission (MIC) has announced.

The granting of government permission to implement eco-tourism projects, with both local and foreign investment, will reportedly develop regions of the archipelago as eco-tourism initiatives mitigate side-effects to the natural environment.

“[Plans] are in place to promote eco-tourism in new holiday destinations in the Myeik Archipelago as well as in existing tourist regions of the country. Furthermore, if the eco-projects are directly beneficial to local residents, then they will be permitted by the government,” said U Aung Naing Oo, director of the MIC.

Begun in 2015, the drawing up of a nationwide Eco-Tourism Plan will be completed this year in accordance with current legislation and laws.

The Department of Forestry and Ministry of Hotels and Tourism are reportedly working together to expand eco-tourism to corners of Myanmar which presently receive little to no tourists.

“The numbers of tourists visiting Myanmar is augmenting year upon year. That’s why we’re expanding the eco-tourism projects. We’ll also make it possible to survey the country’s flora and fauna in order to protect natural wildlife,” said U Tin Thwin, director of the Ministry of Hotels and Tourism.

The pristine natural beauty of one of Southeast Asia’s last untouched groups of islands is an attractive business opportunity for foreign investors as well as domestic entrepreneurs. Some other destinations around the country earmarked for ecotourism development include the Meinmahla Kyun Wildlife Sanctuary in Ayeayarwady Delta, Myaung Hay Win Elephant Camp in Yangon Region and Khakaborazi National Park in the northern most frontiers of the country which surrounds Myanmar’s highest peak.

A total of 4.7 million foreign tourists streamed into Myanmar through its international airports during last year’s 2015-16 fiscal year, while estimates put this year’s figures at reaching 5.5 million.—Myitmakha News Agency

Reducing Road Traffic crashes and deaths on the Yangon-Nay Pyi Taw-Mandalay Expressway: a multi-sector approach

AMONG Southeast Asian nations, Myanmar ranks second out of 11 countries in road traffic deaths, with 20.3 deaths per 100,000 people. This amounts to more than 10,000 deaths in 2015 due to road crashes, according to a World Health Organization report from 2015.

The increasing burden of road traffic crashes and related fatalities has become a serious public health threat in Myanmar, which must be addressed through effective preventive and corrective measures, using a multi-sector approach.

For this reason, the Ministry of Health and Sports and WHO have initiated a multi-sectoral project on road safety in collaboration with the University of Public Health of Yangon, the Road Transport Administration Department under the Ministry of Transportation, the Expressway Maintenance Unit of the Ministry of Construction and the Traffic and Highway Police departments, as well as additional public and private partners. The project aims to assess the road safety situation of the busiest Expressway in the country – the Yangon-Mandalay Highway – in order to identify gaps and facilitate necessary corrective actions, in accordance with the policy recommendations of the UN Decade of Action for Road Safety 2011-2020.

Main causes of crashes have been identified as over-speeding, tire bursting, reckless driving habits that do not respect the rules of the road and inadequate road conditions. To address this growing problem, a series of measures are being planned for implementation by the respective sectors: ---GNLM

Thai-owned illegal fishing boat seized by Myanmar authorities

AUTHORITIES seized a fishing vessel owned by a Thailand national which entered Myanmar’s territorial limit in Kawthaung District on Sunday afternoon.

According to the investigation, the boat named Lin Toe Aung carrying around seven fishermen left Yanaung in Thailand for Kawthaung last week to catch fish illegally in Myanmar territorial waters.

Under the European Union’s Illegal, Unreported and Unregulated (IUU) fishing project, Thailand authorities recently cracked down on illegal fishing in its territorial waters. As a result, some fishermen did not return to Thailand but instead hid in the west of Hsin Island and caught fish in Myanmar waters for export to the Thai market.

The fishermen and the illegal boat were handed over to the Kawthaung District Fisheries Department. Actions will be taken against the fishermen under the relevant fisheries laws passed by the Myanmar government.— Kyaw Soe (Kawthaung)

Three arrested on drug-related charges

THREE people, including an 18-year-old girl, have been arrested by Yangon police after they were found in a possession of a cache of stimulant tablets and illegal knives on Saturday.

After receiving a tip-off from a member of the public who had phoned the 199 call center, police for Yangon’s eastern district staged a raid on a house in Sithu along with two others at Ayemanda Housing in Thakayta Township.

Police found 90 yaba pills and related accessories, K32,000, three mobile devices and weapons including seven long swords, a knife and a spear with a steel handle from Bo Bo (aka Phyo Wai), Maung Maung Thet and Honey Soe.

Police are still investigating in an effort to arrest the house owner Sithu. All suspects are facing legal charges in accordance with the anti-drug law.— Kyemon

A 24-YEAR-OLD driver escaped without serious injuries after his 12-wheel truck overturned in Kyaukdaga, a township in Bago Region on Sunday.

The cargo truck loaded with cement bags heading from Mandalay to Yangon turned on the right side of the former Yangon-Mandalay highway road between mile post Nos. 117/4 and 117/5 three miles far from the Kyaukdaga Myoma Police Station after the driver lost control of the vehicle.

The truck and cement were destroyed as a result of the road accident.

Suspended timber extraction no harm to furniture businessmen

THE freeze in timber extraction has not harmed to furniture businessmen yet because they are not faced with the shortage of raw materials to operate the business, it is learnt from the furniture businessmen.

The reason why there is no problem with the freeze in timber extractive industry is that many hardwoods previously extracted in local are still remained. Therefore, the furniture manufacturers do not need to be concerned about shortage of raw materials.

Although there are criticisms of some businessmen concerning the suspended timber extraction in the forests across the nation, this action was enormously received approval by the locals and those who are engaged in the environmental conservation.

The free will last a year and the timber extraction in the forests will be resumed in 2017-2018 fiscal year, except the Bago mountain ranges. The logging in Bago mountain ranges will be banned for a decade, it is learnt.

The illegal timber production and illegal firewood and timber collection have increased along the mountain ranges in Bago region in the previous years, causing Myanmar to be third-worst country for deforestation in the world. The reason of the freeze in Bago mountain ranges for a decade is to prevent the forest from extinction. The forestry conservation and reforestation will be conducted in those stricken areas in cooperation with the organizations concerned.

About 300,000 tonnes of teaks and 1.5million tonnes of hardwoods are yearly produced over the past five years. However, about 15,000 tonnes of teaks and 35,000 tonnes of hardwoods will be allowed to produce starting from the following fiscal years. The import of the whole logs were halted starting from March.2014. Currently, only the furniture, the plywood and other finished wood products are allowed to export to the foreign countries.—200

Thailand offers lower price of fish than market price

THAI merchants are offering a lower price for fish than the market price these days, local fishermen from Kawthaung town discovered when they went to sell their fish legally at the Thai market.

Myanmar fishermen sell their fish at the Thai market with permission after paying a tax at the Myanmar Fisheries Department. However, Thailand merchants ask for the local fishermen to present documents certifying that their fish are not caught by illegal fishing methods like electrocution and health certificates to ensure that those fish are free from chemicals like formalin for preserving the fish. If the local fishermen fail to provide these certificates, Thai merchants will not purchase the fish.

Some merchants purchase the fish only if the local fishermen mention unreasonable reason to them that the aqua products caught in Myanmar water territories are actually caught in Thailand boundary. They are purchasing the fish at a lower price than the market price because of a so-called reason, it is learnt.

The United States and the European Union imposed a sanction on Thailand to curb illegal fishing practices. The locals are not doing well, earning only a small profit even though they go fishing under unfavourable weather conditions. Efforts are needed to create more international fishery markets in the areas where the fishery business prospered, said U Nyein who is involved in the protection team for fishermen.—Kyaw Soe (Kawthaung)

Mandalay gold entrepreneurs request lowering 5% commercial tax on gold buyers

Aung Thant Khaing
MANDALAY gold entrepreneurs, meeting at the Hotel Wilson, were united in signing a proposal on 14th August to lower a 5% commercial tax levied on gold buyers because imposing a commercial tax on gold purchasers might adversely affect the gold market.

The gold merchants sent this signed proposal to the Myanmar Gold Entrepreneurs Association on 15th August. The gold entrepreneurs attempted to negotiated the taxation rate down to 0.25 or 0.5% but were unsuccessful. Therefore, they have requested to impose a taxation rate at 1%. If there are virtually no buyers, the taxation will also end in vain, said U Tin Tun, the chairman of the Mandalay Gold Entrepreneurs Association.

According to the commercial tax law, the gold purchasers have to pay a tax of Ks40,000 per tickle if the gold price is Ks8 lakhs per tickle. Currently, the gold price hit a record high up to Ks850,000, causing the goldsmiths’ workshops and the gold foil businesses to stop working, he added.

Although the law has been approved by the Union Government, the Myanmar Gold Entrepreneurs Association has been planning to request the parliament to reduce the rate of taxation on gold trading since there is no by-law yet.

The legislators should have initially observed the gold market. And the tax rate should have been fairly levied to make the gold purchasers not evade the taxation, said U Maung Ko from Shwe Oak Aw goldsmiths.

An awareness campaign explaining commercial tax is also required to reach the public. The signed proposals by the gold entrepreneurs in regions and states will be submitted to the parliament at the end of this month.
Thailand detains several people for questioning over deadly blasts

BANGKOK — Thailand’s army said on Monday it had detained several people for questioning over a wave of deadly bombings in some of the country’s best-known beach resorts that killed four people and wounded dozens, including tourists.

Last week’s blasts came days after Thais voted for a military-backed constitution that paves the way for an election at the end of 2017.

No group has claimed responsibility, although police and the government have ruled out ties to foreign groups, linking the bombings to an unspecified domestic issue.

Analysts say suspicion would inevitably fall on enemies of the junta aggrieved by the referendum results, or insurgents from the south of the predominantly Buddhist country.

Several people are being held at army facilities, but none have been charged, military spokesman Colonel Winthai Suvaree told Reuters.

"Ever since the incident on 11 August, the army has used Article 44 to summon people who the state think can give useful information," Winthai said.

The legislation gives the military absolute power to take any steps needed to protect the public peace and detain people for up to seven days without a court warrant.

"They were sent to various army camps," added Winthai, who declined to say how many were detained, although rights groups fear the number runs into the dozens. "Nobody has been charged so far.

On Sunday, a deputy national police chief said attacks were carried out simultaneously by one group on the orders of one person, but gave no further details.

Can Singapore’s labour crunch spark a robot revolution?

SINGAPORE — Sherine Toh says her best days at work are when none of the 600-or-so staff at Singapore’s Tung Lok Restaurants (TGLK.SI) quits, though such days are rare.

The Chinese restaurant group is one of the thousands of businesses struggling with a labour crunch caused by foreign worker curbs, that threaten the city-state’s already feeble growth rates. "It has gotten much more tougher compared to the old days, five years back," said Toh, who has at least 20 vacancies to fill at any one time as head of human resources.

The group closed some outlets because of the shortage. "The city’s restaurants, hotels and retailers have become the biggest casualties of the labour crunch since Singapore accelerated restrictions on foreign workers in 2011 as political disquiet about immigration grew. But its high-educated locals largely shun the late hours and unglamorous work.

To address the constraints, Singapore is pushing businesses to look to non-human solutions for their human resource challenges, including greater use of automation and robots.

At Chilli Padi Nonya Cafe near a leafy university enclave, a tray-wielding robot roams the eatery, offering to collect plates from patrons in a childlike voice. Navigating its way through customers, it delivers the dirty dishes to the kitchen.

While tech powerhouses such as Japan, the US and Germany invest billions in robotics to compete commercially in the emerging sector, Singapore’s robots push is driven by a much more urgent need: the survival of some labour-strapped small and medium sized businesses may depend on them.

In the food and beverage industry, 90 per cent of the businesses face the shortage and about a third are “really struggling,” according to its lobby group. “There is an increasing number of businesses that are up for sale,” said Lim Rui Shan, executive director at the Restaurant Association of Singapore, which represents 2,200 outlets. “Some of them just shut down.”

To encourage adoption, Singapore this year announced plans to spend S$450 million (US$333 million) over three years to fund robot development and deployment.

Andrew Khaw, information development authority’s senior director of productivity growth through information and communications technology, admits the take-up of robots is slower than he would like.

But he says the lack of manpower is a new operating reality businesses now need to accept.

“It’s a bit of ‘let’s see who blinks first’. As far as the government is concerned, we can’t go back on this policy,” Khaw said.

The staff robots can be found in Singapore—in hospitals and restaurants, as waiters or cleaners—but are less ubiquitous than might be expected for the aggressively tech-oriented economy. New Nepal PM sends envoys to woo China, India

KATHMANDU — Nepal’s Maoist Prime Minister Prachanda sent one of his trusted lieutenants from the insurgency period as a special envoy to China on Monday, seeking to clear confusion over agreements signed by his predecessor.

The envoy, Krishna Bahadur Mahara, who is a deputy premier in charge of finance and a China expert, will carry a message from Prachanda that his new government is keen to develop cordial relations with China despite recent political changes.

Prachanda, 61, who led a decade-long insurgency that ended a feudal monarchy, replaced communist PM Oli this month amid uncertainty over a slew of deals made by Oli during a visit to Beijing in March, including allowing Nepal to use Chinese railways, roads and ports to trade with third countries.

Those deals signalled a shift by the landlocked Himalayan nation away from its traditional reliance on overland trade with its southern neighbour India, which grew increasingly frustrated with Oli’s rule.

“There is no doubt that the new government will continue all agreements signed by the previous government,” Mahara told Reuters before his departure.

Prachanda led the uprising in the name of the Chinese revolutionary leader, but it did not enjoy the overt backing of Beijing. The conflict ended in 2006 when the rebels laid down their arms under a peace deal.

Instability in the young republic — Prachanda is the eighth prime minister in as many years — has also raised doubts over a planned visit by Xi Jinping in October, which would be the first by a Chinese president in two decades.

Mahara said he was carrying an invitation from President Bidhya Devi Bhandari to the Chinese leader to come as planned.

Officials said Prachanda would send another deputy, Bimalendra Nidhi, a member of the Madhesi minority community, as an emissary to India this week to give reassurances that closer ties with Beijing would not come at the cost of New Delhi.

Nepal’s relations with India have remained frosty since it adopted its first republican constitution in September, triggering deadly protests by minority Madhesis in the south and leading to a border blockade that cost it $1 billion in fuel shortages.

Officials said Nidhi would extend an invitation to President Pranab Mukherjee of India to visit Nepal before Xi is due to come. Prime Minister Narendra Modi visited twice in 2014 but no Indian president has come since 1997.

“Prachanda wants to balance ties with neighbours at the same time show to India that Nepal has not slipped out of its hands,” said Gun Raj Luitel, editor of the Nagarik daily.—Reuters

Park calls for efforts toward ‘future-oriented’ ties with Japan

SEOUL — South Korean President Park Geun-hye on Monday called for efforts to forge a “future-oriented relationship” with Japan while squarely looking at the past.

“As for the relations between South Korea and Japan, we should try to establish a future-oriented relationship anew while squarely looking at history,” she said in a speech marking the 71st Liberation Day, which celebrates the end of Japanese colonial rule in 1945.

The absence of critical words directed at Tokyo in a sign of improved ties between the two neighbours following last year’s landmark deal over Korean women forced into wartime brothels for the Japanese military.

On Friday, Seoul and Tokyo reached a basic agreement on the implementation of the deal, specifying the details of 1 billion yen (about $9.8 million) that Japan plans to disburse to help the aging women.

During the speech, Park called on North Korea to “immediately” halt its development of nuclear and other weapons of mass destruction, and cease its threats of provocations against South Korea.

“Any attempt at threatening our people and the Republic of Korea will never succeed,” she said.

In addition, she defended the planned deployment of a controversial US antimissile system as a “self-defence” measure to protect the nation from North Korea’s “reckless” provocations.—Kyodo News

South Korea expresses regret as Japan leaders pay tribute to wartime shrine

SEOUL — South Korea expressed deep regret and China’s state-run news agency called on Tokyo to repent its wartime past on Monday after dozens of Japanese lawmakers visited a shrine for war dead, which Seoul and Beijing see as a symbol of Tokyo’s wartime militarism, on the anniversary of Japan’s World War II defeat.

Japanese Prime Minister Shinzo Abe sent a ritual offering but did not go to the Yasukuni Shrine. Visits to the shrine outrage Beijing and Seoul because it honours 14 Japanese leaders convicted by an Allied tribunal as war criminals, along with war dead.

Ties between China and Japan, Asia’s two largest economies, have been strained in recent days after a growing number of government ships sailed near disputed East China Sea islets.

Territory disputes and historical issues also periodically chill relations between Japan and South Korea.

“(We) express deep concern and regret that responsible political leaders ... are again paying tribute to the Yasukuni Shrine that glorifies the history of the war of aggression,” South Korea’s Ministry of Foreign Affairs said in a statement.

“China’s Xinhua news agency urged Japan to repent its wartime past or risk steering the country down a dangerous path.

“It’s in the interests of both Japan and its neighbouring countries for the former military power to truly reflect upon its past wrongs,” Xinhua said in a commentary.

Abe has not visited the shrine in person since December 2013, sending ritual offerings instead.—Reuters

Thailand risks losing 200,000 visitors after blasts — tourism office

BANGKOK — Thailand could lose up to 200,000 foreign visitors and $293 million in tourism revenue this year, the head of its tourism authority said on Monday, after a series of deadly blasts in tourist towns last week.

The wave of attacks in places including the seaside town of Hua Hin and the island of Phuket, is the biggest challenge to an industry that has weathered more than a decade of instability and bounced back from violence over recent years.

Yuthasak Supasorn, governor of the state Tourism Authority of Thailand, said the attacks could result in long-term losses in terms of tourism revenue and arrivals, mainly from other Asian countries.

“By the end year, there could be about 100,000 to 200,000 travel cancellations,” he said in a statement.

“That would cost about 5.08 billion baht ($146 million) to 10.16 billion baht ($293 million.)” Tourism accounts for 10 per cent of Thai gross domestic product and is one of the few bright spots in an economy that has struggled under the stewardship of a military government that seized power in a bloodless coup two years ago.

The Southeast Asian nation had been expecting a record 32 million visitors in 2016, with expected revenue of 2.41 trillion baht ($70 billion).—Reuters

Let’s work together with government for saving our innocent children

Aye Min Soe

An outbreak of measles which scoured some remote villages in far northwestern Myanmar’s Naga Self-Administrative Zone (SAZ) is now finally under control. Medical teams are taking further steps to prevent tuberculosis in the areas as the measles virus also attacks the lungs and respiratory system.

The outbreak brought back some of my childhood memories. I contracted measles during my time in school and was rushed to the hospital at the last minute because my parents did not distinguish measles from an ordinary fever. I narrowly escaped death.

In truth, measles is very rare in most of the rest of the world. In the case of the outbreak in Naga SAZ, it seems clear to me that vaccination coverage did not reach all the remote areas.

Medical teams rushed to the area to give treatment to the children suffering measles, and administered vaccines to the children in the high risk zones.

However, the battle is not yet over. We should learn a lesson from the measles outbreak in Naga SAZ. We should find the root cause and prepare to prevent such an outbreak in other parts of the country in the future and to provide quick response even if it happens.

According to ground reports from medical teams, local children are suffering from malnutrition and the homes traditionally constructed by the ethnic peoples do not have adequate ventilation.

After the outbreak in Naga SAZ, locals have come to understand that they should form authorities at once when such an outbreak happens.

But, it is difficult in remote areas like Naga SAZ. How can people in these areas inform the authorities when the next emergency or outbreak of disease occurs? There is no telecommunications and not internet.

This makes it difficult to get ground reports in remote areas. The time has come to provide the far-flung and inaccessible areas with mobile telecommunications.

So let’s work together with government for saving our innocent children.

Pokemon GO: Entertainment or Nuisance?

Khin Maung Myint

POKEMON GO craze took Yangon by storm. A few days ago there were photos and video clips on the social media of males and females, both young and middle-aged people walking around, without paying attention to other pedestrians, with smart phones in their palms. They were trying to catch the virtual creatures from a make-believe world, created by computer simulations, in the real-world. Everyone seemed to be oblivious to the surroundings, which in fact is the real-world, where real accidents can happen any moment.

So what is Pokemon GO? According to the Wikipedia, it is a free-to-play, location-based augmented game developed by Niantic, Inc., of USA for its iOS and Android devices. It was initially released in selected countries in July 2016. In the game, players use a mobile device’s GPS capability to locate, capture, battle, and train virtual creatures, called Pokemon, who appear on the screen as if they were in the same real-world location as the player. The game became a global phenomenon and one of the most used mobile applications instantly. In the first month of its launching in July 2016, over 100 millions had downloaded the game application worldwide. The companies, which hold shares in it are already making lucrative business out of it and I am sure our local Internet servers too are definitely going to see significant surges in their revenues.

As the main objective of my article is to point out the impact of Pokemon GO on the players, I will not be going into detail, describing the technical aspects, and would shift my attentions to discuss its pros and cons. On the advantage side, some think the game is very enjoyable and addictive; so addictive that most of the Internet games are addictive.

So just imagine what could happen to the youths of today with far more advanced and interesting online games readily available on the Internet at present. Before the Pokemon GO, the Candy Crush game was very popular. Even some elderly persons were addicted. Judging from the intensity of the Pokemon GO craze that hit Yangon in the last few days, it was unprecedented. Thus it is needless to say that the consequences of this game would be far more dangerous, given the fact that with the better accessibility to the Internet and the mobile devices, more people would become addicted.

Though the game is supposed to be free, the expenses for the players could shoot sky high. Recently there was the news from Rio, where the Olympics games are underway, of a Japanese gymnast who was supposed to bring home 3000 Bhats for every gold he wins. But, it is difficult in remote areas to provide the far-flung and inaccessible areas with mobile telecommunications.

Apart from the financial effects that could cost the player a fortune in phone bills, accidents are bound to happen. During the first month of its introduction, starting in July 2016, accidents are starting to happen in Thailand resulting in deaths and injuries. If similar scenes like the one in the front of the City Hall should continue during rush hours, accidents would happen sooner or later. In some countries there are also incidents of trespassing and causing of annoyance to the public, where the residents threw water balloons at the players entering their neighbourhoods. It is becoming an intolerable nuisance even in its infancy.

Thus the young players should use their discretions so as not get caught in a situation like that of the medical student mentioned above and avoid being in heavy debts due to exorbitant phone bills and last but not least, not to become a victim of an accident. I would also like to caution the parents of the teenagers and some pre-teens who are starting to be attracted to the game, to have a tight discipline on them if they love them. I had seen some parents and even grand parents who are very pleased and even boasting about their off-springs playing that game. They shouldn’t indulge themselves in false-pride.

In conclusion, I would like to suggest to the authorities to impose some sort of restrictions at places of worship like the Shwe Dagon Pagoda, office complexes, museums, hospitals, schools, important landmarks, cemeteries and other places that need security or privacy.

In the meantime, the rural health sector, which plays an important role in providing quick response to the outbreak of diseases, should be improved.

To achieve these objectives, it is the duty of the government to adopt short-term and long-term plans to improve the health standards in remote areas.

However, we, citizens who are close to battlefields, are obliged to share information with the authorities so that the government can plan accordingly. For the country’s people, charity should begin with the neediest people. Let’s work together with the government to save the lives of our innocent children.
K100 million-fund for disaster preparedness established in 12 regions/states by BFM

WITH the establishment of a K100 million fund for disaster preparedness in Taninthayi Region, there are now 12 regions and states that have been provided for in this way by the KBZ’s Brighter Future Myanmar Foundation.

Chief Minister of Taninthayi Region Dr. Le Le Maw accepted the donation at the ceremony to establish the fund for preparedness and quick response to disasters held at the office of the regional government yesterday in Dawei.

Daw Phyu Mar Aung, In-charge of KBZ Bank-branch in Dawei, handed over K100 million to the government on behalf of the BFM.

From June 2016, BFM has set up the fund in Kachin, Kayah, Chin, Rakhine and Shan states, and Magway, Sagaing, Bago, Ayeyawady, Mandalay and Taninthayi regions to allow authorities to better respond to disasters. BFM and other philanthropic groups carried out evacuation and relief operations in areas which were badly hit by floods and landslides last year. They did, however, face delays in sending relief aid to some areas due to poor infrastructure.

Conservationists to accelerate public awareness on bird preservation

THE MYANMAR Bird and Nature Society plans to accelerate its education programme to spread awareness about the preservation of birds among general public, according to its spokesperson.

This is part of the MBNS’s mission to protect native species of birds from extinction, said the MBNS’s Chairman Dr Thein Aung.

Raising public awareness through photography exhibitions tops the list of his bird conservation programmes, to be implemented during the term of the current government administration, he added.

“Hunting, commercial selling and consumption of birds including quail, snipe and some water birds create scarcity of birds and extinction,” he said.

“Actions need to be taken against the bird hunters and sellers.”

According to one survey, Myanmar is the natural habitat of more than 1,000 rare species of birds, reptiles, amphibians, mammals and fishes.

In early 2015, conservationists identified over 20 new species of birds including the Black-headed Bunting (Emberiza melanocephala), the White-browed Crane (Porzana cinerea) and the Little Curlew (Numenius minutus), all of which can be found in Myanmar.

Seven species of them were identified as new species for South East Asia, 13 for Myanmar and nine for the region, said bird observers.—Zar Zar

Talk of shifting funds away from Trump premature – Republican official

WASHINGTON — A senior official with the Republican National Committee on Sunday played down the prospect that the party would cut off cash and logistical support to White House nominee Donald Trump in order to shift resources toward congressional races.

Last week 70 Republicans wrote a letter urging the RNC to stop helping Trump and to focus instead on candidates for the US Senate and House of Representatives. The letter, signed by former members both of Congress and RNC staff, said Trump’s actions were “divisive and dangerous” and posed a threat to the party and the country.

Sean Spicer, RNC communications director, said in a telephone interview that abandoning Trump with nearly three months to go to the 8 November election “doesn’t make logical sense.”

Minsk deal must stay Ukraine peace process focus – Germany to Russia

MOSCOW — German Foreign Minister Frank-Walter Steinmeier told his Russian counterpart Sergei Lavrov on Monday that the Minsk deal must remain the focus of the Ukrainian peace process despite a spike in tensions in annexed Crimea, RIA news agency reported.

The two men met in the Urals city of Yekaterinburg after Russian President Vladimir Putin last week accused Ukraine of using terrorist tactics to try to provoke a new conflict and destabilise annexed Crimea. Ukraine flatly denied that.

Putin said at the time he saw no point in holding a new round of talks about the troubled peace process in eastern Ukraine on the sidelines of a G20 summit in China next month, stoking speculation Moscow might be preparing to abandon the troubled Minsk process.

But RIA on Monday cited Steinmeier as saying the Minsk deal must continue to be the mainstay of the process and Lavrov as telling university students in Yekaterinburg that Russia would fulfil its part of the accord.

Russia has repeatedly accused Ukraine of not honouring its obligations under the peace deal.

Steinmeier says for its part that Moscow is the one stirring trouble in eastern Ukraine by backing pro-Russian separatists there. Moscow denies that.— Reuters

Earthquake shakes buildings in Tokyo, no danger of tsunami

TOKYO — An earthquake shook buildings in the Japanese capital on Monday, but there was no danger of a tsunami and no immediate reports of injuries or damage.

The centre of the 5.5 magnitude earthquake was located under the sea on Japan’s northeastern coast, not far from the site of a magnitude 9 quake in 2011 that touched off a massive tsunami and left nearly 20,000 dead. The tsunami also set off the worst nuclear crisis since Chernobyl in 1986.

Earthquakes are common in Japan, one of the world’s most seismically active areas. Japan accounts for about 20 per cent of the world’s earthquakes of magnitude 6 or greater.— Reuters

Kurdish forces launch fresh thrust to retake Mosul from Islamic State

WARDAK (Iraq) — Kurdish Peshmerga forces launched a fresh attack on Islamic State control early on Sunday as part of a campaign to capture Mosul, the militants’ de facto capital in Iraq. Kurdish officials said.

The advance began after heavy shelling and air strikes by a United States-led coalition against IS forces, a Reuters correspondent reported from Wardak, 30 km (19 miles) southeast of Mosul. The militants fought back, firing mortars at the advancing troops and detonating at least two car bombs.

A Peshmerga commander said a dozen villages had been taken from the ultra-hardline Sunni militants as Kurdish forces headed towards Gwer, the target of the operation, 40 km (25 miles) southeast of Mosul.

Repairing a bridge that the militants destroyed in Gwer would allow the Peshmerga to open a new front around Mosul. The bridge crosses the Grand Zab river that flows into the Tigris. IS said in a statement on its Amnaj news service that two car bombs driven by suicide fighters were detonated in one of the villages to block advancing Kurdish forces, causing casualties among the Peshmerga.

Authorities in autonomous Kurdistan gave no toll for the fighting, other than confirming the death of a Kurdish TV cameraman and the injury of another journalist. Clouds of black smoke rose from the scene of fighting and dozens of civilians fled in the direction of Peshmerga lines, brandishing white flags. The Iraqi army and the Peshmerga forces of the Kurdish self-rule region are gradually taking up positions around Mosul, 400 km (250 miles) north of the capital Baghdad.

It was from Mosul’s Grand Mosque in 2014 that Islamic State leader Abu Bakr al-Baghdadi declared a “caliphate” spanning regions of Iraq and Syria. Mosul is the largest urban centre under the militants’ control, and had a pre-war population of nearly 2 million.

Its fall would mark the effective defeat of Islamic State in Iraq, according to Prime Minister Haider al-Abadi, who has said he aims to retake the city this year. The Iraqi army is trying to close in from the south. In July it captured the Qayara airfield, 60 km (35 miles) south of Mosul, which is to serve as the main staging post for the anticipated offensive.— Reuters

Gunman sought in killing of New York Muslim cleric, associate

NEW YORK — New York City police searched on Sunday for a gunman who killed a Muslim cleric and his associate as they went to prayers at a mosque in the borough of Queens on Saturday, a crime that sowed fear and sadness in their Bangladeshi community.

A possible suspect had been detained and was being questioned, but has not been charged, NBC News reported early on Monday, citing unnamed sources. A police spokesman could not confirm the report.

Police had yet to establish a motive and said there was no evidence the men were targeted because of their faith, but nothing was being ruled out. Residents demanded authorities treat the brazen daylight shooting as a hate crime.

The gunman approached the men from behind and shot both in the head at close range about 1:50 pm (1750 GMT) in the Ozone Park neighborhood of Queens, one of the city’s five boroughs, police said in a statement.

The victims, identified as Imam Maulama Akonjee, 55, and Thara Uddin, 64, were wearing religious garb, police said. Police found them bleeding in the street and took them to a hospital where they were pronounced dead.

“While we do not yet know the motivation for the murders of Maulama Akonjee and Thara Uddin, we do know that our Muslim communities are in the perpetual crosshairs of bigotry,” New York Mayor Bill de Blasio said in a statement. “Rest assured that our NYPD will bring this killer to justice.”

The men were attacked about two blocks from the Al-Furqan Jame Mosque where they had just left afternoon prayers.

Ozone Park, a diverse, largely working-class area, is home to a growing number of Muslims of Bangladeshi heritage.

Moulana Uddin, 57, an Ozone Park resident not related to the imam’s associate, said both men were born in Bangladesh. He said he was close to Akonjee, describing him as a “docile, calm” father of seven who was beloved in the neighborhood.

“What matters most is harmless people have been shot dead, regardless of whether this was a hate crime,” he said. “Our community’s heart is broken.”

Akonjee was carrying $1,000 with him at the time of the attack, but the money was not taken, the New York Times reported. “I have never felt this kind of tension,” said Nizam Uddin, 57, a taxi driver who said he knew both the cleric and his associate. He also was not related to the associate.—Reuters

Dubai to grow a rain forest in the middle of a desert

DUBAI — Even with the world’s tallest building and the one-of-a-kind palm-shaped islands, Dubai is unsatisfied with its uniqueness, that’s why it’s building the world’s first hotel with its own rainforest.

The indoor rain forest is designed with waterfalls, an artificial beach, a pool and legions of tropical plants. Set to open in 2018, the Rosemont Hotel & Residences is reported to cost $300 million US dollars, adding another brush against the luxurious setting of the Emirati city.

The five-star hotel will be located in two adjacent 47-story towers, offering 450 guest room to holiday makers or business travelers from around the world.

To add to the thrill, the hotel also has a pool that extends beyond its edge, where guest can enjoy the Dubai skyline while relaxing in the water.—Xinhua

Give US visa freedom in October or abandon migrant deal, Turkey says

BERLIN — The European Union should grant Turks visa-free travel in October or the migrant deal that involves Turkey stemming the flow of illegal migrants to the bloc could be ruled out, Foreign Minister Mevlut Cavusoglu told a German newspaper.

Asked whether hundreds of thousands of refugees in Turkey would head to Europe if the EU did not grant Turks visa freedom from October, he told Bild newspaper’s Monday edition: “I don’t want to talk about the worst case scenario — talks with the EU are continuing but it’s clear that we either apply all treaties at the same time or we put them all aside.”

Visa-free access to the EU — the main reward for Ankara’s collaboration in choking off an influx of migrants into Europe — has been subject to delays due to a dispute over Turkish anti-terrorism legislation and Ankara’s crackdown after a failed coup. Before conceding visa liberalisation, Brussels wants Turkey to soften the anti-terrorism law.

European Commissioner Guenter Oettinger has said he does not see the EU granting visa-free travel to Turkey for at least five years due to Ankara’s crackdown after the failed military coup.

Cavusoglu said treaties laid out all that Turks would get visa freedom in October, adding: “Can’t be that we implement everything that is good for the EU but that Turkey gets nothing in return.”

A spokesman for the European Commission was not immediately available to comment on Cavusoglu’s comments.

Last week Selim Yenel, Turkey’s ambassador to the EU, said efforts were continuing to find a compromise with the EU on visa liberalisation and he thought it would be possible to handle this in 2016. He rejected the idea that visa-free travel may be pushed back further beyond October, after missing an initial June deadline.

Turkish President Tayyip Erdogan has said he would approve the restoration of the death penalty if parliament voted for it, a move which would sink any hopes of European Union membership.

In the Bild interview Cavusoglu said Europe was acting as if Turkey had already introduced the death penalty. He said he was against introducing it but there was a lot of emotion among the Turkish people at the moment and that could not be ignored.

Asked if Turkey would leave NATO, Cavusoglu said anti-Turkish groups were talking about this but Turkey was one of the biggest supporters of the 28-nation Western defense alliance.

“But it’s clear that we also need to cooperate with other partners on buying and selling weapon systems because some NATO partners refuse to allow us to sell air defense systems for example or to exchange information,” he said.—Reuters

Disaster declared for Louisiana floods that have killed five

BATON ROUGE, (La) — US President Barack Obama issued a disaster declaration on Sunday for flood-ravaged Louisiana, where at least five people have died and emergency crews have rescued more than 20,000 people stranded by unprecedented flooding.

Governor John Bel Edwards said residents had been pulled from submerged cars, flooded homes and threatened hospitals across the southern part of the state. The already soaked region is expected to get more rain from a storm system stretching from the Gulf Coast to the Ohio Valley.

"Even with the sunshine out today intermittently, the waters are going to continue to rise in many areas, so this is no time to let your guard down," Edwards said in a statement to Baton Rouge was diverted from Memphis, Tennessee, to a shelter because of flooded roadways.

About 5,000 people had been forced to sleep in shelters overnight around the state, said Marketa Walters, head of Louisiana Department of Children and Family Services.

Louisiana State Police Colonel Michael Edmonson said helicopters were transporting food and water to those still trapped by floods. Helicopters were also transporting some seriously ill people to areas outside the high waters.

Some 1,700 members of the Louisiana National Guard have been deployed for rescue efforts.

Canada’s largest Airshow attracts more than a hundred thousand visitors

VANCOUVER — The skies above the Canadian city of Abbotsford in the outskirts of Vancouver came alive on Sunday as super-sonic metal birds ripped through the air at the Abbotsford International Airshow.

The three-day annual event which began on Friday has become the largest show of its kind in Canada and attracts more than 125,000 people to see some of the world’s historic and most famous planes in full flight.

Among the aviation fans on Sunday was Jerry Vernon, who has attended the show for more than 50 years.

“It’s great now, well with digital for one thing. You can take thousands of shots now as opposed to the old days of taking it all on film. And just take a lot of pictures and hope you get some good ones,” Vernon told Xinhua.

The airshow first took flight in 1962, launched by a local flying club to draw attention and business to the town’s airport. It later became one of the most important aviation shows in North America, drawing top pilots and airplanes from around Canada, the United States and Europe.

Jadene Mah, Abbotsford Air Show spokeswoman, said the air show has built a great reputation over the past half century.

“We’ve seen a lot of fans here at the Abbotsford International Air Show. And this is the only place where you can see an F-35, and a Boeing Super Hornet on the ramp side-by-side and we are very excited that we were the first place in Canada to display an F-35,” she said.

Lockheed Martin’s F-35 fighter jet has been in the Canadian headlines in recent years, as the government had been mulling a purchase of the stealth fighter as a replacement for its aging CF-18 fleet. The show organisers say the event has attracted a number of companies to introduce their latest models to the government and the air force.—Xinhua

Even as the state grappled with high waters, the National Weather Service forecast heavy rain from the Gulf Coast as far north as the Ohio Valley through Monday, with a threat of flash flooding.

A flash flood watch was in place until Monday morning for Houston, where rains killed at least eight people in late April.

At least five people had died in Louisiana from the high water. Ronda Durbin, a spokeswoman for Tangipahoa Parish, said by telephone that searchers on Sunday recovered the body of a man reported swept away on Friday.

The body of a woman was also recovered from a submerged vehicle in the parish, she said. On Saturday, the body of a woman was recovered from the Tickfaw River, in St. Helena Parish northeast of Baton Rouge, after a car in which she was riding was swept away. A 54-year-old man in Greensburg in the northern part of the state died when his vehicle was swept off the road, state police said.—Reuters

Rocco Ritchie celebrates birthday inside a volcano

LOS ANGELES — Rocco Ritchie, the son of Madonna and Guy Ritchie, reportedly spent his 16th birthday inside a volcano. The son of Madonna and Guy Ritchie, who was stuck in the middle of a custody battle earlier this year, travelled to the Thrihnukagigur volcano in Iceland with his step-mother Jacqui Ainsley to celebrate his big day, reported TMZ.

Jacqui, 34, posted photographs taken from 120 metres inside the volcano on Instagram, saying it was a “magical experience to journey into the Earth’s womb.”

Allied to the volcano visit, Rocco was also gifted a Kabbalah protection bracelet by his famous father, which is supposed to keep him safe.

“Guy and Jacqui had a Kabbalah wedding and they wanted something based on belief and spirituality for Rocco’s present,” a source said.

‘I won’t perform at 2017 Super Bowl halftime show’

LOS ANGELES — Oscar-winning singer Adele has revealed she has declined to perform at the 2017 Super Bowl halftime show, saying it is not a programme about music.

There had been rumours that the National Football League (NFL) was eyeing Adele for next year’s halftime performance, reported Billboard.

“First of all, I’m not doing the Super Bowl,” Adele said during her tour in LA.

“I mean, come on, that show is not about music. And I don’t really I can’t dance or anything like that. That’s very very kind, they did ask me, but I said no.”

The NFL and halftime show sponsor Pepsi responded to Adele’s comments in a joint statement, denying that they had presented a formal offer to the 28-year-old singer. “The NFL and Pepsi are big fans of Adele. We have had conversations with several artists about the Pepsi Super Bowl Halftime Show. However, we have not at this point extended a formal offer to Adele or anyone else. We are focused on putting together a fantastic show for Houston and we look forward to revealing that in good time.” — PTI

‘Suicide Squad’ tops foreign box office with $58.7 million

LOS ANGELES — “Suicide Squad” topped foreign box office charts for a second consecutive week. The super villain adventure picked up $58.7 million from 15,600 screens across 62 territories, pushing its global gross to $465.4 million.

That’s a big haul, but Warner Bros. spent lavishly on the film, shelling out $175 million to produce the movie and north of $100 million to market it. It needs to be one of the year’s biggest hits for the studio to turn a profit. To that end, the film is fighting bad reviews and poor word-of-mouth as it tries to keep bringing in crowds.

It also has been denied an entry into China, depriving it of as much as $100 million in revenue from the world’s second biggest market for film. “Suicide Squad” opened in Argentina and Italy over the weekend, picking up $2.5 million and $2.2 million, respectively. Among holdover territories, the film nabbed $6.7 million in Brazil, $5.5 million in the United Kingdom, $4.4 million in Australia, $4.3 million in Mexico, and $4.3 million in Russia.

Domestically, the film slid a painful 67% in its second weekend, earning $43.8 million. In the second place, Illumination Entertainment and Universal’s “The Secret Life of Pets” racked up $40 million from 48 territories. LONDON — Jose Mourinho believes veteran Zlatan Ibrahimovic’s vast experience will help to inspire Manchester United’s young players.

The 34-year-old Swedish striker made an impressive introduction to English football as he stoked a 25-yard strike past Bournemouth goalkeeper Artur Boruc to secure United a 3-1 win at Dean Court on Sunday.

With vast and successful experience in world football, Ibrahimovic soon appears to be a crucial figure in the Old Trafford dressing room.

“The first thing I can tell you is at his table for breakfast and for meals he is surrounded by the kids, the younger ones like (Marcus) Rashford and (Luke) Shaw,” Mourinho said.

Brilliant Van Niekerk smashes 400m world record

RIO DE JANEIRO — South Africa’s Wayde van Niekerk ran the fastest single lap in history to win the Olympic 400 meters gold medal in 43.85 seconds and break Michael Johnson’s 17-year-old world record on Sunday.

Running an extraordinary race in lane eight, the 24-year-old world champion got off to a flier and was streaking clear on the back straight before upping his pace even further to better American Johnson’s 1999 mark of 43.18 seconds.

“I believed I could get the world record,” said Merritt, who was unable to defend his title in London after suffering a hamstring injury in the heats.

“The world record was broken, the best man won.”

American Johnson, who won back-to-back Olympic titles in the event in 1996 and 2000 and is considered one of the greatest sprinters of all time, was dumbfounded by the quality of Van Niekerk’s finish.

“Oh my God! From lane eight, a world record,” Johnson said on the BBC. “He took it out so quick. I have never seen anything from 200 to 400 like that.”

Van Niekerk marked himself as the leading contender for the world title in 2008 with 44.79 — two seconds before deciding to concentrate on the 400 meters.

This year, he became the first man to run under 44 seconds in the one-lap Olympic final.

“It was a crazy race, a great moment in history,” said Merritt.

“I’m happy to be part of a race that made history,” James said. “We have put this sport on a pedestal.”

LaShawn Merritt of the United States, the 2008 Olympic champion, claimed bronze in 43.85, the first time the top three had run under 44 seconds in the one-lap Olympic final.

Banned Sharapova could return in January — tennis chief

MOSCOW — Five-times grand slam winner Maria Sharapova, banned in June for two years for doping offences, may be allowed to return in January, according to Russian Tennis Federation (RTF) president Shamil Tarpishchev.

“Everything will be decided in September. It is impossible to say for certain but I think she will start playing again by January,” Tarpishchev was quoted as saying by the TASS news agency on Monday.

Former world number one Sharapova, 29, was suspended following a positive test for the banned drug meldonium during January’s Australian Open.

RIO DE JANEIRO — For 9.81 glorious seconds on Sunday all the ills that have dogged athletics were forgotten as Usain Bolt stormed to victory in the 100 metres final to become the first man to win three successive Olympic titles on the track.

The Jamaican trailed arch-rival Justin Gatlin, roundly booed by the Rio crowd for his doping past, until the 70 metre mark but then swept past the tightening American, finding time to put his chest as he crossed the line a metre clear.

Gatlin, the 2004 champion who came into the race with the season’s fastest time of 9.80, took second in 9.89. Canada’s Andre de Grasse claimed bronze in 9.91 seconds — the same finishing order as in last year’s world championships.

Victory took Bolt a step closer to his goal of winning a historic “triple-triple” combination of gold in the 100m, 200m and the 4x100m relay in three consecutive Olympics.

“Stay tuned, two more to go,” Bolt said. “Somebody said I can become immortal. Two more medals to go and I can sign off. Immortal.

“It wasn’t perfect today but I got it done and I’m pretty proud of what I’ve achieved — nobody else has done it or even attempted it.”

Other than the 2011 world championships, when he was disqualified for a false start, Bolt has won every global championship individual sprint race since 2008.

That equates to five Olympic golds and seven in the world championships. Throw in two more Olympic and four world championship medals and the world record in all three events and that is total and utter domination.

Already assured of his legendary status on the track, Bolt also added to his reputation as sport’s number-one crowd pleaser as he took a leisurely circuit of the stadium, posing for pictures and shaking a thousand hands before taking time to satisfy the demands of the world’s media.— Reuters

Arsenal loss has Wenger bemoaning effects of Euro 2016

LONDON — Liverpool’s 4-3 win at Arsenal might have been the highlight of the opening weekend of the Premier League in terms of drama, but there were plenty of deficiencies for the managers to ponder.

Arsenal’s Arsene Wenger, bemoaning the ill effects of the European championship on his pre-season, will hope returning players give his squad a lift, even as he was given new injury headaches.

Wenger had to field an inexperienced centre-back pairing of Calum Chambers and debutant Rob Holding, with Laurent Koscielny given an extended rest after reaching Euro 2016 final with France little more than a month ago.

While the makeshift defence conceded four goals, the decision to play Euro 2016 semi-finalist Aaron Ramsey also said there was room for improvement.

“Physically, we are not ready. You are in a catch 22 situation with the Euros,” Wenger told reporters.

“When they are not ready and they play this kind of game, they get injured, like Ramsey today. Or you give them a needed rest and you start the season without many of your players.”

Wenger has been working to get new players in to solidify the defence. But he also pointed to bad luck after Per Mertesacker and Gabriel, two other options in the centre of defence, were injured in pre-season training.

Despite coming out on top of the seven-goal thriller, Liverpool manager Juergen Klopp also said there was room for improvement.

He would not be drawn on questions over the implications of the result for two of the big-gist contenders for the title and focused on his team’s tactical shortcomings.

While he did not rule out a foray into the transfer market to improve the team, Klopp said he would look to get more out of the players he already had.

“I feel very positive and not just because of the result. We knew what we were capable of and how intense they were, and they are even stronger at the end of the season.”

“The played well in the first half but were better in the second half. We created more danger, more chances and our build up play was better.”

With Neymar on Olympic Games duty with Brazil, Luis Enrique fielded Arda Turan behind Lionel Messi and Suarez in an otherwise familiar looking Barca side.

Despite a bright start, Barca struggled for long periods at the Sanchez Pizjuan and Luis Enrique was forced to make first-half substitutions as defender Jeremy Mathieu and midfield maestro Andres Iniesta were forced off with injuries.

Luis Enrique’s opposite number Jorge Sampaoli made his home debut after coming so close to beating Real Madrid to the UEFA Super Cup last week in his first competitive game in charge.

There were further signs that Sevilla have adapted quickly to the former Chile coach’s intense brand of football, although they could have fallen behind early on.

Sergio Busquets cut a pass into the path of Suarez, who turned his marker effortlessly but drilled his shot straight at Sevilla goalkeeper Sergio Rico.

That chance aside, the hosts controlled the first period, overpowered in midfield and winning several corners although also struggling to produce clearcut chances.

U RIO DE JANEIRO — Britain’s Andy Murray beat Argentina’s Juan Martin del Potro 7-5, 4-6, 6-2, 7-5 in a compelling Olympic tennis final on Sunday to become the first man to win two men’s singles gold medals.

The world number two and his Argentine opponent shared a long hug at the net, with both men trying to hold back the tears, after a punishing, see-saw, four-hour contest played out in front of a boisterous crowd at the Olympic Tennis Centre.

Murray’s consistency proved decisive. He was able to wear down Del Potro’s weaker backhand and frequently drew the fagged Argentine into the net with deftly placed drop shots as the contest wore on.

Del Potro served for the fourth set at 5-4 but Murray broke the Argentine in consecutive games to claim the match, his 18th straight victory following his second Wimbledon title in July.— Reuters

Suzanne, Munir strikes give Barca Super Cup advantage

Madrid — Barcelona took a big step towards lifting the Spanish Super Cup after second-half strikes from Luis Suarez and Munir El Haddadi sealed a 2-0 win at Sevilla in the first leg on Sunday.

Suarez, La Liga top scorer and Substitute Munir doubled the lead in the 81st barely five minutes after coming on to put Barca on top before Wednesday’s return at the Nou Camp.

“It’s a very good result, it’s not definitive, but the second leg is mapped out for us,” said Barca coach Luis Enrique.

“I feel very positive and not just because of the result. We knew what we were capable of and how intense they were, and they are even stronger at the end of the season.”

“The played well in the first half but were better in the second half. We created more danger, more chances and our build up play was better.”

“Improvement in my understanding is about training and using the quality you have. We were far away today from showing our whole quality,” he said.

“We showed a few nice signs, a few not so nice signs, that’s all.”— Reuters
