Muslims in Myanmar decry Malaysian rally

MUSLIM community in Myanmar decry Sunday’s rally led by Malaysian Prime Minister Najib Razak and expressed their disapproval of his interference on the internal affairs of Myanmar.

“We find the rally, led by Malaysian Prime Minister Dato Sri Haji Mohammad Najib bin Tun Haji Abdul Razak, was nothing but aiming at the political interests of the Malaysia’s ruling party. We affirm that the unfortunate situation facing Myanmar need not, and should not, be exploited for self-interest and political purposes,” said the announcement released by the Coalition of Myanmar Muslim Civil Society Groups.

“We also disapprove of Mr Najib connecting the situation with a religious cause. We hereby reassert that the Muslim community in Myanmar does not take it as religious persecution, but a controversial ethnic issue,” said the announcement.

But Najib has said his actions served to point out the rights abuses allegedly occurring in Rakhine.

Najib said Sunday’s rally in Kuala Lumpur was meant to send a message to the Myanmar government that “enough is enough” as he vowed to fight for the rights of the Muslim community in Rakhine.

Najib accused the international community on Friday of stoking resentment between the two communities in northern Rakhine State.

She appealed for understanding of Myanmar’s ethnic complexities, and said the world should not forget the military operation was launched in response to attacks on security forces.

“I would appreciate it so much if the international community would help us to maintain peace and stability, and to make progress in building better relations between the two communities, instead of always drumming up cause for bigger fires of resentment,” Daw Aung San Suu Kyi told Singapore state-owned broadcaster Channel News Asia during a visit to the city-state.
Pyithu Hluttaw MPs raise eight questions

MEMBERS of the parliament of Pyithu Hluttaw raised eight questions including upgrading infra-structures of the health sector and sports.

MP U Aye Naing of Dagon Myothit (South) constituency asked whether authorities have a plan to take back the sports ground in the township from the Myanmar Football Federation and Zayar Shwe Myay soccer club.

In response to the question, Union Minister for Health and Sports Dr Myint Htwe said currently, the ministry has no plan yet to take it back, saying that the ministry has leased 24 sports grounds, including the grounds in Dagon Myothit (South) Town-ship, to the Myanmar Football Federation.

The Myanmar National League for women is scheduled to be held at the sports ground in Dagon Myothit (South) Town-ship, he added.

Regarding a question on up-grading a health clinic in Anauk Kan Pyu Village in Seikpyu Township raised by MP U Aung Thaik, Union Minister Dr Myint Htwe pledged to upgrade the rural health clinic in the 2017-2018 fiscal year, expecting that the health facility would help to extend medical coverage to 16 nearby villages including Anauk Kan Pyu Village.

According to the clarification of the union minister at the parliamentary meeting yesterday, the Ministry of Sports and Health would seek budget allocations in the coming fiscal year for renovation of the Honan Station Hospital and construction of staff quarters for the staff of the station hospital in Maakume Township.

5 to 6 per cent of nursing, mid-wife training

MINISTRY of Education said it grants 5 per cent to 10 per cent of the seats in nursing and mid-wife training schools to people from remote areas on recommendation of local authorities and needs of the populace every year, said Deputy Minister for Education U Win Maw Tun.

The remarks came as the deputy minister replied to a question raised by U Ko Ko Naing of Constituency 8 in Sagaing Region at the Amyotha Hluttaw yesterday, “Nursing, midwife diploma 3-year courses & mul-ti-midwife 2-year courses are being conducted in respective training schools, and those who passed the training courses have been appointed and posted at their locations.

“For admittance to universi-ties and colleges under the higher education department, marks for admission were not limited, admitting students according to the acceptable number in major subjects in respective univer-sities. The ministry has been implementing in every way the development of the education. Arts and science disciplines have been taught at the universities by upgrading former colleges and degree colleges to universities with the aim of having access to higher education for students from less-developed and dis-tant areas. In addition, plans to supply doctorate-laureate teach-ing faculties in universities for the effective teaching are under way.”

The deputy minister went on to say, “With a view to the emer-gence of qualified doctors who were actually interested in medi-cine and who could serve the duty in their respective regions, less than 3 per cent of the successful candidates from 6 self-adminis-tered zones — Naga, Dau, Paoh, Paung, Kantok and Wa — were granted to the Institute of Medi-cine with their admission marks limited lower than the minimum admission marks in 2012-2013 academic year. Under that pro-gramme, from 2012 to 2015, 179 students in all from these areas were admitted to the institute of medicine. Previously, for the health assistant course (a degree of science on basic health) up to 150 were admitted with 200 to be admitted in the academic year—2016-2017, and until now, there is no plan to grant those from 6 self-administered zones and dis-tant areas as a special case.” — Myanmar News Agency

“It doesn’t help if everybody is just concentrating on the negative side of the situation, in spite of the fact that there were attacks against police outposts.”

The Malaysian protest is a floating of the long-standing policy of non-interference by ASEAN members in each other’s affairs.

Some critics accuse Najib, who is in the midst of a financial scandal, of using the rally to win the support of his country’s Muslim Malays ahead of general elections due in 2018, which may be held earlier.

The Muslim community in Myanmar stressed the need to take international cooperation and multi-faceted approaches to finding a lasting peaceful solution to the situation in Rakhine state saying it is a “delicate and sensitive situation.”

“At such a time, we are dismayed by poorly informed initiatives like the rally in Malaysia, which could further worsen the already difficult situation and be considered as a threat to the unity and stability of the ASEAN community,” said the announcement.

The Muslim community said they appreciated the government’s efforts, including the establishment of the Advisory Commission on Rakhine State chaired by the former United Nations Secretary-General Kofi Annan.

The community invited support that would yield positive results and respect national sovereignty, reiterating that discriminating based on religion and race would not be tolerated.—GNLM with Reuters

Product & Package Innovation Competition (PPIC) Awards 2016 held in Yangon

The Business Innovation Facility (BIF), a programme of the UK Government’s Department for International Development (DFID), has awarded support to 24 local tourism entrepreneurs from 10 states for their work in developing innovative, inclusive and socially responsible tourism products in Myanmar.

The Second Annual PPIC Award Ceremony, held on 29 November at the Inya Lake Hotel, Yangon, was hosted by BIF. BIF Country Manager Mr Sebastien Moineau explained that “The PPIC is BIF’s flagship intervention, providing grants and technical assistance to encourage innovation, showcase best practice and support entrepreneurs through networking and market access.” He added “Of course there are financial, political and technological constraints, and this is why BIF is also building local capacity through training programmes and policy interventions to enable Myanmar’s tourism industry to share its fantastic products and stories more widely.”

Daw Kyi Kyi Aye, Senior Advisor to Myanmar Tourism Federation (MTF) gave the keynote address. In her comments, Daw Kyi Kyi Aye recognised excellence in Myanmar’s growing tourism industry. She reflected that “In order to share the benefits of tourism and encourage inclusive growth, especially in rural areas, there is a need to encourage diversification of tourism products whilst also protecting the natural environment.” She observed that “tourism must be sustainable and all stakeholders are involved in creating opportunities that are both responsible and innovative.”

This year, the PPIC attracted 42 entries from across the country. The PPIC Awards are judged by a panel of industry experts who assess written submissions from tourism entrepreneurs. Tourism concepts are judged on their innovation, sustainability and social responsibility — specifically their ability to contribute to the social and economic well-being of the communities they impact.

The death toll from road accidents in Thaton District in Mon State over the past 11 months increased by nearly 40 compared to the same period last year, according to the district office of traffic police.

Between January and November of this year, 114 road accidents occurred in the district, leaving 175 people dead and 662 injured.

A total of 136 people lost their lives and 570 individuals sustained injuries during last year’s traffic accidents of 343 cases.

Automated cargo system to be used experimentally at Myawady border gate in 2017

THE Myanmar Automated Cargo Clearance System (MACCS) will be experimentally practiced at the Myawady border gate next year, according to Myanmar Customs Department.

The experiment will be conducted as a survey in Myawady, said U Win Thant, the director of Myanmar Customs Department.

The development of an e-Customs system started in July 2013 with support from the Government of Japan with MACCS adopted at international ports, Yangon Airport International Cargo Terminal, and Thilawa Special Economic Zone on 12 November in a bid to facilitate trade.

It aims to facilitate trade by automating most of the manual processes at Yangon customs, including registration, payment of fees, and tax valuations. The goal is to have exporters, importers, customs officials, and other government agency representatives gain easy access to MACCS through the internet, saving time and lowering transportation costs, said a customs official.

Since MACCS is time saving, it is better that MACCS can be systematically adopted at all customs’ entry points across the nation, said a person engaged in customs service. Japan International Corporation Agency (JICA) provided over 3,990 yens for MACCS, plus technical assistance. —Myitmakha News Agency

High-end bamboo products to be made in mid 2017

WITH an aim to export high-end products of bamboo to foreign countries, bamboo furniture orders will be accepted in mid 2017, according to the Myanmar Bamboo Growers Association.

Currently, the association cannot manage to manufacture ordered products due to a lack of ready-to-use raw materials.

The bamboo association is currently receiving furniture orders from Mandalay, Pyin Oo Lwin, Tachilek, Nay Pyi Taw, Kalaw, etc. They will accept a series of orders only after a training school is established in Mandalay, said U Kyaw Win, the secretary of the Myanmar Bamboo Growers Association.

The association aims to export high-value bamboo products to foreign countries manufacturing ready-to-install bamboo furniture. If year-old bamboo plants are systematically cut, there is not a risk of bamboo extinction, said U Kyaw Win. —Myitmakha News Agency

Trade value slumped by over US$855million compared to similar period in last FY

TRADE value as of 25th September in this fiscal year slumped by US$855.644million when compared to the similar period of last year, according to the statistics of the Commerce Ministry.

The value of trade through sea trade as of 25th September in this fiscal year was US$12,962,291million whereas that in the previous fiscal year was US$13,127,214million. The fall in this year’s normal trade was attributed to the decrease in import value.

In the same period, a total value of trade through border area was US$4,626,627million which is up from US$4,451,348million in last fiscal year.

Out of export products worth US$7,278,566million, manufacturing goods played a major role with an export value of US$3,267,738million, followed by agricultural products with an export value of US$1,735,225million and other products of US$1,136,678million.

Export of fishery products earned US$327,077million whereas the values of export were US$653,776million from mineral products and US$153,41million from forestry products and US$4,662million from livestock, according to the statistics provided by the Commerce Ministry.

Meanwhile, import value amounted to US$9,444,352million which is down from US$10,718,425million from last year. Capital goods, raw industrial goods and consumer goods are imported into Myanmar.

Currently, there is a balance of trade deficit of US$2,165,786million since exports are outdone by imports. To reduce the trade deficit, there is a plan to scrutinise luxury import products, except for essential items, according to the second five-year national development plan.

There were trade deficits of US$915.9million in 2012-2013, US$2,555.5million in 2013-2014, US$4,912.5 million in 2014-2015 and US$5,407.4million in 2015-2016 respectively, according to the statistics released by the Central Statistical Organization (CSO). About US$3.1billion is expected to show in trade deficit in this fiscal year, it is learnt from the Planning and Finance Ministry.—Mon Mon

Inle hotel zone entrance fees to be collected in US dollars instead of local currency

WITH an appreciation of the US dollar price, entrance fees to the Inle Hotel zone will be collected in US dollars instead of local currency starting 10 December, said U Zaw Htay Aung, the chair of Myanmar Tourism Association (Taunggyi Zone).

Currently, entrance fees of Ks12,500 per head are being collected and the fees will be changed to US$10, according to Myo Group, which is responsible for collecting the entrance fees for the Inle zone.

Visiting groups usually plan their trips at least a month or up to six months in advance, resulting in a problem for tour agencies from changing entrance fees when the exchange rate is unfavourable.

Therefore, there is a plan to negotiate about changing entrance fees in US dollars to avoid losses due to currency exchange rates. In the high season, local tour companies have already sold their tour packages and collected the money, said U Zaw Htay Aung.

Last February, the entrance fee was changed into kyats due to the deprecation of the US dollar. With US dollar price now rising, the plan is to change back to the US dollar, said travel tour proprietors. —200

UN chief Ban may be unwitting loser in South Korea presidential scandal

SEOUL — Besides South Korean President Park Geun-hye, the biggest casualty of the country’s mushrooming political corruption scandal may be the presidential aspirations of United Nations Secretary-General Ban Ki-moon.

Although he has not declared his candidacy, Ban was until a month ago the front-runner in opinion polls to win the election scheduled for 20 December. In 2017, a race he was widely expected to contest from Park’s conservative Saenuri Party.

But the scandal that has become known as “Park Geun-hye-Gate” and threatens Park’s presidency has sowed division in the party. An impeachment vote is set for later this week, and Ban’s standing in polls has declined, while the Saenuri has become a much less viable platform for a run.

“It doesn’t make any sense at all now for Secretary-General Ban Ki-moon to join the Saenuri Party. Unless he is stupid, he would never join Saenuri, would he?,” said Chong Byoung-gyu, a Saenuri lawmaker who co-heads an anti-Park faction that favours formation of a new conservative party.

It is not unusual for a major South Korean political party to break into factions, with the mainstream forming a new party. “If a new sound conservative party is set up, then it may be a different situation, but at this point it is too early to say,” said Chong. Ban, 72, was South Korean foreign minister from 2004-2006 under the liberal President Roh Moo-hyun, but was a non-partisan career diplomat.

He now faces the prospect of having no party to join to make use of the political machinery crucial to running a campaign. That institutional support is especially important given that Ban has been based in New York for a decade and has never run for office in South Korea.

Time is also not on Ban’s side if Park is forced to exit sooner than later. Last week, Park sought to head off calls for her immediate resignation or impeachment by asking parliament to come up with a plan and timetable for her to step down. The opposition dismissed the manoeuvre and called for an impeachment vote on 9 December.

If parliament votes for impeachment, which is not a certainty given the two-thirds majority needed would require the support of roughly 30 members of Park’s Saenuri party, the Constitutional Court would still need to uphold the motion, a process that could take months.

If Park leaves early, either by resigning or by being forced out by impeachment, a new election for a full five-year presidential term must be held in 60 days. An early election would be disadvantageous for Ban, since he cannot begin a campaign before his UN term ends on 31 December. If he had planned to run, his earlier political calculations would have been based on nearly a full year to campaign.

Ban has been evasive about his plans after his UN tenure ends, but he told Reuters in October that he was conscious of “expectations from many people in Korea that I should make myself available for a better future of Korea.” Asked to comment on his intentions given the political crisis at home, UN spokesman Farhan Haq said: “The Secretary-General has already said repeatedly that he will concentrate on his work as Secretary-General until the end of the year.”

The main opposition Democratic Party already has a crowded field of potential candidates, headed by Moon Jae-in, who lost to Park in 2012 and now leads the latestRealmeter poll with 21 per cent support, ahead of the second-placed Ban, who has 17 per cent.

Lee Jae-myung, the mayor of Seongnam just south of Seoul and a member of the Democratic Party, is a dark horse rising in the polls, with 15 per cent, putting him in third place. — Reuters

At least 11 killed in hotel blaze in Pakistan

Floods kill at least 13 people in central Viet Nam

HANOI — Floods brought by torrential rain since late November have killed at least 13 people in central Viet Nam while more heavy rain is expected in coming days, the government and state media said on Sunday.

Six people have died in floods in Binh Dinh province since Thursday and another four were killed in Quang Ngai province, while more than 10,000 homes in the two provinces were submerged, the government said.

Three children aged between four and 13 were swept away in flood waters in Quang Nam province on Saturday, the Thanh Niem (Young People) newspaper cited a provincial report as saying.

A cold snap now moving southwest is forecast to bring heavy rain to central provinces between now and next Thursday, the government report said. Floods killed 65 people since October in central provinces, submerged 200,000 homes and damaged railway and roads, with losses valued at more than 7 trillion dong ($309 million), the government said on Friday.

China says Trump clear about Taiwan, in touch with his team

BEIJING/WASHINGTON — US President-elect Trump is clear about China’s position on the Taiwan issue and China has maintained contacts with his team, the foreign ministry said on Monday, as Trump took to Twitter to complain about Chinese economic and military policy.

Trump’s unusual call with Taiwan President Tsai Ing-wen on Friday prompted a diplomatic protest on Saturday, though US Vice President-elect Mike Pence played down the telephone conversation, saying it was a “courtesy” call, not intended to show a shift in US policy on China.

In Beijing, foreign ministry spokesman Lu Kang would not say directly who China had lodged “stern representations” with about Trump’s call, repeating a weekend statement that it had gone to the “relevant side” in the United States.

Lu also said he would not speculate on what prompted the call, but described the matter of Taiwan as the most important and sensitive question between China and the United States. Trump, who vowed during his campaign to build a massive military complex in the middle of the South China Sea, would not think it’s easy to understand the relevant side.

“In fact, China has maintained contacts and communication with the team of President-elect Trump,” he added, repeating a previous assertion, though did not give details.

China blamed Taiwan for its solemn position on the Taiwan issue, and China and the United States maintaining good relations, a steadily developing relationship, accords with the consensus of both sides, and is always a highly mutually beneficial one, other wise it couldn’t have developed the way it has today, he said. “China and the United States maintain good relations, a steadily developing relationship, accords with the consensus of both sides, and is always a highly mutually beneficial one.”

China urges India not to ‘complicate’ border dispute as Tibetan figure visits

BEIJING — China called on India on Monday not to do anything to complicate their border dispute after a senior exiled Tibetan religious leader visited a sensitive border region controlled by India but claimed by China. The Karmapa Lama, Tibetan Buddhism’s third-most-senior figure who fled into exile in India in 2000, last week went to Tawang in the Indian state of Arunachal Pradesh, in the remote eastern Himalayas.

China disputes the entire territory of Arunachal Pradesh, calling it south Tibet. Its historic town Tawang, a key site for Tibetan Buddhism, was briefly occupied by Chinese forces during a 1962 war. Asked about the trip, Chinese Foreign Ministry spokesman Lu Kang said India was clear about China’s position on the eastern end of their border. We hope the Indian side can respect the relevant consensus of both sides, and not take any actions that may complicate the border issue,” Lu told a daily news briefing. Maintaining peace and stability on the border and the healthy development of relations was in both parties’ interests, he added.

China has maintained contacts and communication with the team of President-elect Trump, he added, repeating a previous assertion, though did not give details.

China blamed Taiwan for its solemn position on the Taiwan issue, and China and the United States maintaining good relations, a steadily developing relationship, accords with the consensus of both sides, and is always a highly mutually beneficial one, otherwise it couldn’t have developed the way it has today, he said. “China and the United States maintain good relations, a steadily developing relationship, accords with the consensus of both sides, and is always a highly mutually beneficial one.”

Flash flood kills at least 11 in Thailand

BANGKOK — At least 11 have died and two remain missing from the heavy flood that resulted from downpours in southern Thailand, local media reported on Monday.

The disaster started last Thursday in the ten southern provinces affected by floods in 68 districts, the Department of Disaster Prevention and Mitigation said.

With strong monsoon covering Thailand’s southern region, torrential rain has been pounding the south in the past four days.

Local media said the flood has also parallelized four train routes, damaged 2,400 hectares of farmland and caused mudslides in the affected provinces.

The government has issued an urgent directive to all public disaster prevention centres to watch out for landslides and flash floods in 68 districts and to be on standby to rush rescue and relief teams and materials to areas where they are needed.

Prime Minister Prayut Chan-o-chha has ordered local government agencies to coordinate efforts to help flood victims with utmost efficiency. — Xinhua

A mosaic of different cultures, beliefs and scenic beauties make our planet attractive

Khin Maung Oo

Nature is very strange and wonderful as known by all. Here I would like to say that we should be thankful for its fulfillment of what we ourselves can never create, for example the sun, the moon, stars, the sky, seas, mountains, natural landscape such as rivers, streams, open spaces, grasslands etc. Human beings, animals, beasts, birds and all other kinds of insects are creations of the nature. Nature gives places for us to live in, farm lands to grow, animals for us to feed ourselves as meat, beasts for us to use them as beasts of burden, mountains and beaches for us to enjoy the natural beauties and to relax ourselves there. As a matter of fact, humans are the most intelligent beings out of all living things and in the most favor of the nature because of our abilities to exploit benefits from the situations created by nature.

Storms originate in seas and oceans occasionally, but by seeing this, we cannot say that the latter are not good. We mostly rely upon those, especially for global transportation and seafood. As per human nature, we—human beings—would like to possess what we do not have and what are not similar to us. Some introduce animals and plants that are not natural to our countries from other places. We who belong to different places, races and religions meet to form unions. Why? That is because we are ready and willing to accept things of difference per se.

We have already had the Ayeyawady, but we want to enjoy the beauty of the Nile and the Ganges. And we have extinct volcano of Mt Popa but we want to watch the Mt Fuji. In fact, everywhere, everything and every being have a beauty respectively.

Each and every one of us has greed. Yet, we should keep in our mind that excessive craving can lead us to destruction. Thus, some try to rob others of their possessions, destroying our peaceful world, the place which are unavoidably destined to schematize. Keeping their interests alone in their minds, ultra-opportunist are never hesitant to kill elephants and tigers for ivory and skins. They are not above stealing other's lands and destroying natural environment such as forests and mountains. We will never accept such deeds. To put it simply, we can share pleasure and enjoyment we are having, to anyone but it is incumbent upon us to protect our land and our world in which the heterogeneous population that is said to have descended from the Four Brahmas thought to be beings superior to man and spirits inhabiting the higher celestial abodes according to Myanmar traditional beliefs.

Provided that our land, our environment and our nature remain intact by protecting them from the dangers of destructive elements, our world with a mosaic of different cultures, beliefs and scenic beauties will exist for ever.

R EADERS, please don’t be misled by the title. I am not going to promote the ridiculous game that is causing much annoyance to many people around the world as mentioned in my previous article: “Pokemon Go: Entertainment or Nuisance?” (16/08/2016 GNLM). In that article I had condemned the craze it had created, which caused disruptions of traffic flows, trespassing of private and restricted areas and public annoyances around the world.

Now, I must admit I was a bit hasty in condemning it just by judging from the nuisances it imposed on the public. However, on further studies I came to realize that because of the Pokemon Go game, I came to know about the technology that could contribute in many ways to the human society in the real world.

Apart from the fun and games that the Pokemon Go provides to it's users, I dare say that most of us are not familiar with the benefits that technology could provide. So, instead of being get drawn into the virtual world that the Pokemon Go game provides, let's explore the other usefulness of the technology behind the Pokemon Go could provide us in the real world.

That technology is called the augmented reality (AR) technology. As it is not meant to be a scientific paper I'll not be stressing on the scientific details, but try to give a rough idea so that most of the readers would be able to grasp the ideas as to what that technology is. The AR technology create virtual reality and augment or supplements it to the physical reality.

Hardware components required for AR technology are: processors, display, sensors and input device. The modern day smart phones and computer tablets have all these functions and cameras, so they are very suitable platforms for AR technology. However, as I have said above, I will not be elaborating here, how it works.

AR technology is a computer-berated technology that helps create virtual images in three dimensions (3D) and augment them to the real world environments, enabling the viewers to see them live. This technology was first used in games such as the Pokemon Go and similar ones. Later the AR technology spread to a variety of fields, namely: military, aviation, business, construction, industry, medical and many more.

The military uses AR technology to develop new training tools and provide in-depth information about the battlefields: point-pointing the locations of the mines laid and presence of the enemy laying in wait to ambush, behind covers, with the help of drones sending reality images to the special viewers designed for such purposes. It could save the lives of many soldiers.

In the aviation field, the AR technology is used in the state of the art simulators to train pilots. It also helps the pilots by providing virtual reality images of the runways augmented to the physical runway. The pilots can view them in any weather conditions and even at night. This will help greatly, not only the commercial aviation but also the military flights too.

In the business field, there are many uses of AR technology. For instance the realtor use it to provide a prospective client the preview of what the building would actually look like on completion with the use of the AR technology. Also the engineers will not need to physically check the blueprints and schematics diagrams, but they can observe them with the viewers: a pair of glasses, headsets or head mounted display (HMD), leaving their hands free to be doing other works.

In the industry field, the manufacturers could build 3D models with the AR technology and see what the finished products would look like. It would also allow them to see how their products would function in the real world when in contact with the machine parts though they may be far away from them. As for the medical field, there are varied uses of the AR technology. A surgeon would be able to explain to the patients, with the aid of images created by the AR technology how the operations will be conducted. Thus the patient would know what to expect.

The AR technology would also assist a plastic surgeon to provide the client a preview of his or her looks after the surgery.

For general purposes, some good examples of the use of AR technology are: in the cosmetic business and in emergency situations. The makeup artists would be able to show their clients how they will look after the cosmetic makeovers. The locating the nearest fire hydrants and nearest hospitals or clinics where a cardiovascular specialist or other types of specialists are in attendance at the particular moment in case of emergencies.

As the researches are still ongoing, chances are that more perfect and beneficial uses of the technology will surely emerge. I hope the goods it does for the mankind would outweigh the bads it had done and redeem itself. I admit that I was wrong to have indirectly condemned it, when I condemned the Pokemon Go game.

When I came to understand the diverse beneficial uses the AR technology could provide to mankind, I felt guilty for my rash actions. Thus I took it upon me to do justice to it by getting the records straight, so I have written this article as a redemption for my mistake. After all, Pokemon Go isn't that bad! The craze for the game was a first cut to appeal to the mass and later the AR technology, which is at the core of that game, found their ways into different fields that would benefit mankind.

New Rakhine resort to start in early 2017

KYAUKPRU Township Development Affairs Committee plans to establish a recreation resort in Kyaukpyu, a major town of Rakhine State, early in the new year, its Chairman U Than Lwin said.

The new project will be implemented by the committee in partnership with South Korea-based Daewoo Company, which vowed to contribute Ks150 million to the scheme before the end of this year.

Several discussions for the establishment of the development project were made between the South Korean group and local authorities including the Township Development Affairs Committee and officials from the township administrative bodies, with the result that all budgets will be allotted by the Korean firm this month.

The new plan will be similar to the Viewpoint, popularly known as Point, the principal attraction in the Rakhine State capital of Sittwe. The urban park provides excellent views of Sittwe beach and Sittwe harbour, and is a scenic setting to observe both the sunrise and the sunset.

Under the new project, a wide range of beach facilities will be developed along the Kyaukpyu beach and surrounding areas to attract more visitors from home and abroad.

Kyaukpyu is situated on the north-west corner of Rambare Island, and is 400 km north-west of Yangon.—200

Unsung heroes who sacrificed their lives for the countries

A WOMAN with 2-year-old son’s legs astride on her hip and concurrently 6-year-old son with her another hand, moved on to the gallant soldiers’ mausoleum situated near the northern part of the sacred Shwedagon Pagoda, with solemn steps. She, Daw Nyunt Nyunt Sein, was here to attend the ceremony held for the third time in honor of Unsung heroes who gave their lives for the nation during the reign of consecutive governments.

The ceremony was held in commemoration and honor of fallen soldiers, or rather unsung heroes, who did fight for Independence since the time before Myanmar had not gained its independence and those killed unknown to public in frontier areas while fighting internal & external foes that harmed the sovereignty, peace and stability of the country.

The mausoleum was built with the aim of honoring the national heroes who had fallen in the battles while fighting against colonists, those who fought for gaining Independence of the country from the colonialists and the soldiers who were killed in battles fighting against destructive elements trying to harm the national sovereignty until now, it is learnt.

Lt-Gen Myint Soe (Rtd), a participant in the ceremony disclosed, “Holding such ceremonies may plant seeds of spirit that they did for the Tatmataw and for the colonialists & defending independence,”

The ceremony held today, the poet named Ah Lin Yaung who prosed and recited herself the poet, “Heroes will never die” expressed her words of feeling, “I composed this poem from my vicarious feelings of soldiers’ lives and their families’ existences, aiming at honoring unsung heroes and giving message that heroes will never die.”

She went on to say, “It made me sad to see families of the fallen heroes attending the ceremony with gloomy faces.”

Those present at the ceremony saluted the National Flag, giving 2-minute salute to Bogayoke Aung San and fallen unsung heroes and releasing doves, a symbol of peace.

The gallant mausoleum was set up as a symbol of a turning point in Myanmar history on 27 September 1943 near northern part of Shwedagon Pagoda in Bahan township by Bogayoke Aung San. Later, in June 1989, 11-foot high monument made up from marble stone was built in honor of soldiers who gave their lives with noble spirits by the State Law & Order Restoration Council.

At the bottom of the monument, there is written the wording—“Heroes are saluted for their brave sacrifices in fighting colonialists & defending independence,” with the wording—“Soldiers will never die and go to hell upon death,” on the left side of the entrance and “Incomparable virtue of the noblest sacrifice,” on the right side written respectively.

U Tin Ko Win, a retired army captain, of the ceremony observance working committee said, “There was scarcity of such observance in honor of unsung heroes in previous reigns of governments, hence the arrangement to observe annually. Those killed in battles sacrificed their lives, not for getting awards and being recognized as heroes by the people. We will never forget their sacrifices and noble spirits.”

While freeing a dove, a symbol of peace, into the sky, Daw Nyunt Nyunt Sein who came to honor her husband and fellow unsung heroes expressed her wish, “May our nation to be peaceful as soon as possible, void of any fightings.”
China says Iran nuclear deal participants should stick to pact, despite internal changes

BEIJING — Iran’s nuclear deal with six major powers should continue regardless of changes in the internal situation of participant nations, China’s Foreign Minister Wang Yi told Iran’s visiting foreign minister during a meeting in Beijing on Monday.

The future of the deal to curb Iran’s nuclear programme has been thrown into jeopardy with US President-elect Donald Trump set to take office next month.

During his election campaign Trump vowed to scrap the pact, although the final details of his foreign policy strategy, including his stance on Iran, remain unclear.

“Maintaining the deal’s continued, comprehensive and effective implementation is the responsibility and common interest of all parties, and should not be impacted by changes in the internal situation of each country,” Wang said.

He did not name specific countries in his comments, carried on China’s foreign ministry website.

Iran shared China’s position, the Middle East country’s foreign minister, Mohammad Javad Zarif, said.

“The JCPOA is a multilateral agreement and all parties should respect it. Iran and China hope the same stance on this,” he said, according to the Tasnim news agency.

“We will not let any country infringe the agreement unilaterally,” he added. “But if they do, Iran has its own options.”

The ministers also discussed greater cooperation on energy, trade and infrastructure under China’s new Silk Road initiative, the Chinese foreign minister said.

Recapture of Mosul ‘possible’ before next US administration: Pentagon chief

ABOARD US MILITARY AIRCRAFT — While the fight to retake the Iraqi city of Mosul from Islamic State is going to be difficult, it is “possible” it could be complete before President-elect Donald Trump takes office, US Defence Secretary Ash Carter said on Monday.

Some 100,000 Iraqi government troops, Kurdish security forces and mainly Shia militias are participating in the assault on Mosul that began on 17 October, with air and ground support from a US-led coalition.

The capture of Mosul, the largest city under control of Islamic State, is seen as crucial toward dismantling the caliphate which the militants declared over parts of the Iraq and Syria in 2014.

“That is certainly possible and again it is going to be a tough fight,” Carter said when asked if the recapture would be complete before 20 January, when Trump starts his presidency.

Islamic State fighters retreating in the face of a seven-week military assault on their Mosul stronghold have hit back in the past few days, exploiting cloudy skies which hampered US-led air support and highlighting the fragile army gains.

In a series of counter-attacks since Friday, the jihadist fighters struck elite Iraqi troops spearheading the offensive in eastern Mosul, and attacked security forces to the south and west of the city. “Obviously there (are) always weather issues … the Iraqi security forces are prepared for any eventuality there,” Carter said.

Iraqi officials say they continue to gain ground against the militants who still hold about three-quarters of the country’s largest northern city.

But the fierce resistance means the military’s campaign is likely to stretch well into next year as it seeks to recapture a city where the jihadists are dug in among civilians and using a network of tunnels to launch waves of attacks.

Carter did not say how the recapture could be completed before 20 January in the face of resistance from Islamic State.—Reuters

Syrian government forces seize more of Aleppo from rebels

BEIRUT — Syrian government forces and their allies advanced into another rebel-held part of eastern Aleppo, a rebel official and the Syrian Observatory for Human Rights said on Monday, as the army drew closer to opposition-held parts of the Old City. A Syrian journalist in government-held western Aleppo said rebels had shelled government-held districts on Monday, especially near the frontlines, and plumes of smoke could be seen rising from an area of the Old City.

The Observatory said government forces had bombarded rebel-held areas of eastern Aleppo intensively since midnight.

Having captured swathes of eastern Aleppo from rebels in the last two weeks, the army and its allies are seeking to drive a wedge between the al-Shaar neighbourhood and the remaining part of rebel-held eastern Aleppo to the southwest. The rebels defend al-Shaar may be forced to abandon it or risk being cut off from the other areas, rebel sources say.

The Syrian army could not immediately be reached for comment. “The regime advanced (into al-Shaar) and there were clashes all night. The clashes are still going on,” said Zakaria Mala-hijji, a Turkey-based official with the Aleppo rebel group Fastaqim. —Reuters

Iraq’s military said it had taken control of a lot of the remaining ISIL-held parts of the city, as the seven-week battle to retake Mosul from Islamic State fighters entered its final phase.

The US-led coalition, which carried out air strikes in support of government forces, was also expected to announce the recapture of a key bridge in the next 24 hours, Al Arabiya news channel reported.

US Defence Secretary Ash Carter said on Monday the fight to retake the city would be a “long haul”, but said it was possible it could be completed before President-elect Donald Trump takes office, when he will be inaugurated on 20 January. —Reuters

California fire death toll rises to 33 in grim warehouse search

OAKLAND — A grim search for victims of a devastating fire that ripped through a converted warehouse in Oakland, California during a dance party entered a third day on Monday, with the list of 33 known deaths expected to grow.

The blaze, which erupted about 11:30 p.m. on Friday (0730 GMT on Saturday), ranks as the deadliest in the United States since 100 people perished in a 2003 Rhode Island nightclub fire.

As criminal investigators joined recovery efforts at the charred ruin, just east of San Francisco, firefighters found the remains of nearly three dozen victims at the weekend as they searched the debri filled shell of the two-story converted warehouse being used by an artists' collective.

The cause of the fire was still undetermined, officials said. Arson is not suspected but investigators are checking the building, often used for music performances, had a history of code violations.

Mayor Libby Schaaf said the Alameda County District Attorney's Office activated its criminal investigation team at the fire scene. A representative of the prosecutor's office is monitoring the recovery process, she said, adding she was not authorised to say if a criminal probe was under way.

The mayor said the city's first priority was finding the victims and supporting their families, adding, "We have delivered the unacceptable and horrific news of losing a loved one to seven of our families."

The warehouse, which served as a base for the Ghost Ship Artists Collective, was one of many converted lots in the city's Fruitvale district, a mostly Latino area where rents are generally lower than in the rest of Oakland.

By Sunday evening, only 35 to 40 percent of the building had been searched, said Sergeant Ray Kelly, spokesman for the Alameda County Sheriff's Office. Officials are still unsure how many people were in the building at the time.

Recovery teams had yet to search an unspecified number of mobile homes parked on the first floor, Kelly said, illustrating the scope of the task. He said people appeared to have been living in them.

The building was designated for use as a warehouse only, according to the city, which was aware of reports that people were living there, although no permits had been issued.

The recovery operation was delayed for hours as the roof collapsed and the second story fell onto the first in spots, making it unsafe to enter.

The effort has proceeded slowly due to mountains of debris, with victims apparently scattered throughout the unstable structure.

"We're finding victims in every quadrant of the warehouse," Kelly said. "We're finding victims where we least expect them." Exhaustion and the wide scale of the disaster were taking an emotional toll on crews who had been working around the clock since the fire broke out.

With many victims burned beyond recognition, families were asked to preserve items that might contain their DNA to aid identification. —Reuters

UN launches record $22.2 billion humanitarian appeal for 2017

GENEVA — The United Nations needs a record $22.2 billion to cover humanitarian relief projects next year, covering the needs of 93 million people in 33 countries, UN humanitarian chief Stephen O'Brien said on Monday.

"This is a reflection of a state of humanitarian need in the world not witnessed since the Second World War," he told a news conference, adding that 80 percent of the needs stemmed from man-made conflicts, such as those in Syria, Iraq, Yemen, Nigeria and South Sudan. —Reuters

WASHINGTON — Washington celebrated singer-songwriter James Taylor, actor Al Pacino, and gospel vocalist Mavis Staples at the annual Kennedy Centre Honours on Sunday in a night of music punctuated by the approaching end of President Barack Obama’s time in office.

Obama lauded the five honorees, including pianist Martha Argerich and rock band the Eagles, at a White House ceremony that will be his last before stepping down in January.

“The arts are always central to American life,” he said, noting a string of performances his family had enjoyed over eight years at the White House. “This is one of the perks of the job that I will miss.”

Politics and the recent election of Republican Donald Trump to the presidency influenced the atmosphere of the evening. Host Stephen Colbert opened the show with a welcome to “endangered swamp dwellers,” a reference to Trump’s pledge to drain “the swamp” of Washington when his administration begins.

The surprise appearance of former President Bill Clinton with a tribute to Taylor also underscored the results of the election, in which his wife, former Secretary of State and Democratic nominee Hillary Clinton, lost to Trump.

Still, the evening belonged to the honorees and the performers who feted them. Singers Darius Rucker, Sheryl Crow, and Garth Brooks sent up Taylor, who is known for hits such as “Sweet Home Alabama” and “You’ve Got a Friend.”

He has been and he still is the sweet and steady voice of our better angels,” Clinton said of Taylor.

Actor Pacino, star of “The Godfather” and “Scent of a Woman,” drew praise from friend and fellow actor Sean Penn for making the gods of acting smile.

“I’ll Take You There” singer Staples told reporters she was honoured to be part of the last group of awardees under Obama.

“It feels wonderful,” she said. “I’m really happy.”

Classical pianist Martha Argerich, a one-time child prodigy from Argentina, was feted by opera great Placido Domingo for her spirit.

Rock band the Eagles, famous for songs such as “Hotel California,” “Take it Easy,” and “Desperado,” were honoured with performances by singers including Vince Gill and Bob Seger. The night was shadowed in some sadness, however; band member Glenn Frey died in January.

Don Henley, Timothy Schmit, and Joe Walsh were present in his absence. “We miss him terribly,” Schmit told reporters. The program will be broadcast by CBS on February 26.

Mary Trump will deliver a speech to fill Dylan void at Nobels

LOS ANGELES — Nobel literature laureate Bob Dylan will present a speech and fellow American singer-songwriter Patti Smith will perform one of his best-known songs in his absence during Stockholm’s prize celebrations, the awards body said on Monday.

Smith will perform “A Hard Rain’s A-Gonna Fall” at the Nobel Peace Prize ceremony on Monday, while Dylan’s speech would also be read out at the event, the Nobel Prize organisers said on Twitter.

Dylan said in the wake of being awarded the $870,000 Swedish crown that he would accept the award but that he would not attend the ceremony in Stockholm.

Local news agency TT said the speech would be read by Swedish Academy member Horace Engdahl.

Other Nobel Prize winners who have not attended the prize ceremony include Britain’s Harold Pinter and Elifedre Jelinek of Austria.

LOS ANGELES — “Moana” sailed to the top of the domestic box office for the second consecutive weekend. The Disney animated adventure picked up $28.4 million to push its stateside haul to $119.9 million.

Not that “Moana” faced much in the way of competition. The weekend after Thanksgiving weekend tends to be a slow one for the movie business and this year’s edition was in keeping with that tradition. The only major new release, “Incarinate,” failed to sell many tickets, earning just $2.6 million and falling short of its expected $4 million to $5 million opening.

“Incarinate” centres on a scientist (Aaron Eckhart) who enters the mind of an 11-year-old boy to rid him of an evil spirit. The horror film is the latest offering from BH Tilt, which is trying to contain distribution costs by orchestrating more targeted marketing campaigns for certain theatrical releases. “Incarinate” used digital advertising to try to better reach younger horror fans, and debuted on 1,700 screens, substantially fewer theaters than most studio movies unfurl across. It cost $5 million to produce.

“Believe,” a faith-based drama about a Christmas pageant, grossed a quiet $602,519 from 639 locations. Freestyle Releasing backed the film.

One bright spot was the limited release debut of Fox Searchlight’s “Jackie.” The look at First Lady Jacqueline Kennedy’s efforts to put on a funeral for Jack Kennedy that honoured her husband and cemented the president’s legacy has earned raves for Natalie Portman’s lead performance and Oscar buzz. It also did strong business in five theaters, picking up $275,000 for a $55,000 per-screen average.

“Fantastic Beasts and Where to Find Them,” the Harry Potter spinoff from Warner Bros., took second place, earning $18.5 million to push its domestic gross to $183.5 million.

Paramount’s “Arrival” came in third, earning $7.3 million. The science-fiction thriller has made $73.1 million. Coming in fourth, Paramount’s “Allied” added $7 million to its $28.9 million gross. Marvel’s “Doctor Strange” rounded out the top five, picking up $6.5 million to bring its stateside bounty to $215.3 million.

Among Oscar contenders, Amazon Studios and Roadside’s “Manchester by the Sea” expanded nicely, picking up $2.4 million after moving from 48 to 156 screens. The acclaimed drama about a grieving janitor has made $4.4 million.

A24’s “Moonlight” continued to impress. The coming-of-age story made $937,750, pushing its gross to $9.9 million.

The domestic box office continues to outpace last year’s revenues, with 2016 up roughly 4% over 2015. However, the weekend totals were off 3% from the same period last year, when the horror comedy “Kumpana” debuted to a strong $16.3 million.

The movie business continues to hold its collective breath for the opening of “Rogue One: A Star Wars” story on December 16, which is expected to dominate ticket sales for the rest of the year. “This was the drama-free weekend,” said Paul Dergarabedian, senior media analyst at comScore. “It’s the calm before the storm.” — Reuters

Patti Smith and a speech by proxy to fill Dylan void at Nobels

LOS ANGELES — Nobel literature laureate Bob Dylan will present a speech and fellow American singer-songwriter Patti Smith will perform one of his best-known songs in his absence during Stockholm’s prize celebrations, the awards body said on Monday.

Smith will perform “A Hard Rain’s A-Gonna Fall” at the Nobel Peace Prize ceremony on Monday, while Dylan’s speech would also be read out at the event, the Nobel Prize organisers said on Twitter.

Dylan said in the wake of being awarded the $870,000 Swedish crown that he would accept the award but that he would not attend the ceremony in Stockholm.

Local news agency TT said the speech would be read by Swedish Academy member Horace Engdahl.

Other Nobel Prize winners who have not attended the prize ceremony include Britain’s Harold Pinter and Elifedre Jelinek of Austria.

Severe rain causes flooding in southern Spain, one woman dead

MADRID — The heaviest rainfall in years along Spain’s southern coastline has flooded the streets of the city of Malaga and nearby towns, killing one woman and prompting the Spanish government to issue a public safety warning.

A 26-year-old woman was found dead in the town of Estepona on Spain’s Costa del Sol, a spokeswoman for Malaga’s local government said.

Spain’s meteorological service on Sunday issued a “red alert”, its highest level of warning for “extreme risk”, although it since lowered the warning one level to “important risk.” TV footage showed rainwater cascading down streets in towns such as Estepona, reaching as high as the tops of cars. The local government said more than 600 emergency incidents had been reported due to weather and 300 rescue workers were working on Sunday to help people. — Reuters

Viet Nam to host one of Asia’s largest fireworks festivals

HANOI — Viet Nam is expected to host an international fireworks festival in central Da Nang city in 2017, one of the largest fireworks festivals in Asia.

According to People’s Committee of Da Nang city, some 600 km south of capital Hanoi, organisers of the event said it would take place from 29 April to 24 June, 2017 under the theme “Shining Ngu Hanh Son (Five-Ele-ment Mountains).”

The festival is expected to draw participation of eight teams from countries and regions with strong firework arts like the United States, Canada, Viet Nam, France and China.

Inspiring from Da Nang’s iconic Ngan Hanh Son mountains, the event will include a series of five fireworks nights named Hoa (Fire), Thu (Soil), Kim (Metal), Thuy (Water) and Moc (Wood).

All fireworks nights will be broadcast live on Viet Nam’s state-run television.

The organisers set a target to lure some 2 million visitors to the festival, with some 300,000 people expected to attend each night. — Xinhua

China’s Spring Festival travel frenzy to see 3 billion trips

SHANGHAI — China’s transport ministry said on Monday it expects travelers to make nearly 3 billion trips during the upcoming Spring Festival, putting road, rail and air links through their hardest test during the country’s most important holiday.

The ministry predicted that 2.98 billion trips would be made during the 40-day period, which includes the Lunar New Year, up 2.2 per cent compared with last year. The holiday is set to begin on 13 January.

The railway network is likely to see a 9.7 per cent jump in trips against 2015, while airlines will accommodate about 58.3 million trips, up 10 per cent, the ministry said in a statement on its website.

The majority of travelers will take to the roads to make an expected 2.52 billion trips, it said.

The ministry also said it expected further pressure on the transport network from stronger-than-usual winter and spring demand for freight transport for coal, grain and fertiliser.

It said it would look to add capacity over the period by adding trains and flights, and would strengthen measures to guard against the sale of fake tickets. — Xinhua

St. Nicholas, bringer of sweets, reaches Brussels

BRUSSELS — Children gathered with parents in Brussels’ medieval main square on Saturday to await the arrival of St. Nicholas, a pre-Christmas tradition in Belgium, the Netherlands and other parts of northern Europe held in honour of the legendary gift-giver.

Every year in early December parades are held in towns across Belgium and the Netherlands, at which thousands of children cheer St. Nicholas, who sports a bushy white beard and carries a staff, as he parades in with his entourage.

His arrival in the capital cities of the two countries is especially picturesque. In maritime Amsterdam, St Nicholas floats on a boat down the city’s canals, while in Brussels he parades through the city’s medieval streets, handing out sweets and chocolates along the entire route.

But one part of the tradition is under pressure to change. Traditionally St. Nicholas arrived accompanied by Black Pete, his young sidekick, played by an actor wearing black facepaint — a tradition increasingly seen as racist.

In recent years, parades have regularly been interrupted by protests against the practice of having blacked-up actors portray Pete, raising hackles among defenders of what they see as a harmless Christmas tradition.

One legend has it that Pete’s black facepaint represents the soot he picks up climbing down chimneys to deliver children’s presents. Others say it is a racist practice derived from 17th century Dutch Golden Age paintings depicting the fashion for wealthy families to keep a black house slave. But defenders of Black Pete say it is the back foot. In Belgium, most municipalities have agreed that Pete will no longer wear black facepaint from next year.

In the Netherlands, too, his arrival in the capital cities of the two countries is usually accompanied by Black Pete’s black facepaint from next year. His arrival in the town of Estepona on Spain’s Costa del Sol, a spokeswoman for Malaga’s local government said.

Liverpool and United thwarted in dramatic finales

LONDON — Premier League heavyweights Liverpool and Manchester United were caught by late sucker punches in two games that finished far more dramatically than they began on Sunday.

Juergen Klopp’s Liverpool wasted a chance to return to second place in the table, a point behind Chelsea, twice surrendering a two-goal lead before losing 4-3 in added time in a thriller at Bournemouth.

United dropped two points at Everton after Marouane Fellaini conceded an 89th-minute penalty soon after the former Goodison Park favourite had come on as a substitute.

Third-placed Liverpool’s defeat was their first in any competition since August and looked highly improbable when they built on a slow start to cruise into a 2-0 lead midway through the first half.

Sadio Mane and Divock Origi, starting his first league game of the season, scored for the visitors from successive attacks.

Although Bournemouth had strong claims for a penalty turned down as Roberto Firmino challenged Nathan Ake, they did not threaten until the introduction of Scotland Under-21 international Ryan Fraser 10 minutes after halftime.

He had been on for barely a minute when he won a penalty that Callum Wilson converted.

Emre Can restored Liverpool’s two-goal cushion but they were stunned when, in the space of three minutes, Fraser drove in Wilson’s centre and then defender Steve Cook brought down Fraser’s cross like a striker before driving home the equaliser.

In the third minute of added time Bournemouth secured one of the best wins in their history — and first against Liverpool — as goalkeeper Loris Karius fumbled a shot from long range and Ake poked the ball in.

Bournemouth manager Eddie Howe said it was “a very special day” for his 10-placed team.

“It would have been easy for our players to give up and see out time but our group knows not to give up,” he added.

Klopp said his side gave the points away although he was surprisingly sanguine about the outcome.

“Of course this can help us,” the Liverpool manager explained. “If we learn, then it’s OK.”

“No road is without rocks and stones. It’s three points, no more, these things happen. The base is pretty good but we need to use our quality more.”

United manager Jose Mourinho also tried to dwell on the positives after he had sent on Fellaini against eighth-placed Everton.

The Belgian produced a clumsy tackle on Idrissa Gueye and could only watch as defender Leighton Baines beat the previously defiant David De Gca from the penalty spot.

Earlier, Zlatan Ibrahimovic continued his run of goals for sixth-placed United with a clever lob via the bar and post as goalkeeper Maarten Stekelenburg unwisely rushed out of the penalty area.

“We are not getting what we deserve,” said Mourinho. “In every one of our draws we deserve to win.”

“You have (other) teams playing defensive and counter-attacking football but getting results.”

“I’m happy my team is playing extremely well. But this season what matters is the results.”

With six draws in the last eight league games and only one victory, results are not going United’s way, leaving them nine points behind Manchester City who are in fourth spot.— Reuters

Matsuyama wins Hero World Challenge, Tiger Woods 15th

TOKYO — Hideki Matsuyama hung on to his overnight lead to win the Hero World Challenge in the Bahamas at 18-under-par 270 on Sunday, while tournament host Tiger Woods finished 15th.

The victory was the first for the 24-year-old in the 72-hole stroke-play event which benefits the Tiger Woods Foundation, and Matsuyama took home the $1 million winner’s check despite a round that featured only two birdies against a bogey and a double bogey.

“It means a lot to me that I was able to win in Tiger Woods’ tournament. I am really happy,” said Matsuyama.

Matsuyama has won four of five individual play events since October, including the Japan Open in Inzumo, the HSBC Champions in Shanghai and the Taiheiyo Masters in Gotemba. He finished second at the CIMB Classic in Kuala Lumpur in October.

In the final round at Albany Golf Club, Matsuyama managed to overcome the threat from Sweden’s Henrik Stenson by saving par on the par-4 18th after two poor shots for a 1-over 73.

Stenson finished two shots behind in second place while three Americans, including Rickie Fowler, finished tied for third at 275. Woods, who was without a playing partner in the second round after Justin Rose withdrew due to a back injury, shot a 76 — his worst score of the four rounds for a 4-under 284.

“I’m determined to win and am doing my very best, and that’s maybe why the results are starting to show. My goal is to win the Masters, and I hope to win as many events as possible until then,” Matsuyama said of the prestigious golf tournament held every spring.— Kyodo News

Wheelchair tennis: Kamiji loses at NEC Masters final

LONDON — Rio Paralympic bronze medalist Yui Kamiji suffered a straight-sets defeat to Rio gold medalist and world No. 1 Jiske Griffioen 6-4, 6-4 in the women’s singles final at the NEC Wheelchair Tennis Masters on Sunday.

Kamiji, who led the Japanese delegation as the flag bearer at the opening and closing ceremonies in Rio, fought hard against her Dutch opponent but Kamiji was the more consistent, enabling her to secure the win.

“We are not getting what we deserve,” said Mourinho. “In every one of our draws we deserve to win.”

Extra value for Madrid’s Classico draw as ote title rivals slip up

MADRID — Sergio Ramos scored a last minute header to give Real Madrid a share of the points and keep them six points ahead of FC Barcelona following the ‘Classico’ in Barca’s Camp Nou Stadium on Saturday.

Madrid were the better side in the first half, but failed to take their chance and paid the price when Luis Suarez headed Barca into a 33rd minute lead.

The introduction of Andres Iniesta on the hour saw Barca play their best football of a tense, but at times scrappy game, but Neymar and Leo Messi missed good chances to add a second goal and it was Barca’s to pay the price when Ramos headed home a 90th minute free kick to ensure it ended honours even.

Sevilla wasted a great chance to close the gap at the top of the table as they lost 2-1 away to Granada, who had started the day bottom and without a win in 13 games.
