REVISED VOTING LISTS TO BE RELEASED ON 17TH MARCH

Ko Moe

REVISED voting lists for the by-election on 1 April will be released on 17 March, according to U Hla Thein, Chairman of the Union Election Commission, who was attending the cooperative meeting on educating voters held at Park Royal Hotel yesterday.

If there are errors found in the revised voters’ lists to be released on March 17, voters can make claims for amendment up until March 25, according to UEC.

“The UEC took only three months for preparation of voters’ lists in previous elections, whereas in the by-election of 2017 it took 6 months to prepare for the list, so as to lessen errors as much as possible,” said U Tin Tun, director-general of the UEC.

He added, ‘Those eligible to vote are urged to take out the identification cards. One can come to take all ID cards on behalf of all. By-elections in 2017 cannot be held in all regions where elections were not held due to insecurity of the area in the 2015 general elections, except in Mongshu and Kehsi townships in Shan State.’

It is learnt that UEC released the first-time voters’ lists from February 1 to February 14. In previous elections, there were several problems in many places on account of the inadequate time for preparation, immaturity of the commission and poor management.

For similar errors not to occur again in the by-elections to be held in 2017, the UEC is making arrangements in connection with local civil societies as well as with Australian Aid, UK Aid, USAID and the International Foundation for Electoral Systems.

In the 2017 by-election, 19 vacant parliamentarian posts will be chosen in 22 townships, in the Regions and States, it is learnt. 96 representatives representing 24 political parties will contest with those eligible to vote amounting to 2.1 million voters.

We need to work, cooperate each other to improve the medical standard: Prof Aung Ye Oo

YANKIN Children’s Hospital has successfully conducted about 1,200 heart surgeries as from 2012.

A medical team led by Cardiac surgery specialist Prof Aung Ye Oo and professors from Myanmar also achieved a further historic landmark on 5th March, with successful operation on Yangon Region Chief Minister U Phyo Min Thein.

Ministry of Health and Sports arranged the operation, providing assistance to it.

Regarding the operation, Myanmar News Agency interviewed Union Minister for Health and Sports Dr Myint Htwe and Prof Aung Ye Oo.

Union Minister Dr Myint Htwe

Q: How did the Ministry of Health and Sports provide to this operation?
A: We received good ideas from Dr U Tin Myo Win because he is also a surgeon and we drew a detailed plan to arrange this operation. Not only this operation, specialists and surgeons from the US, England, Singapore, Korea and Germany have conducted surgeries and liver and kidney transplant operations in Myanmar. Our ministry has a plan to step up our efforts for providing such kind of health care services to the people.

Professor Aung Ye Oo

Q: How did you prepare for cardiac operation of Yangon Region Chief Minister U Phyo Min Thein?
A: First, Ministry of Health and Sports contacted me to carry out cardiac surgery for the Yangon Region Chief Minister after discussing with Chairman of Peace Commission Dr Tin Myo Win, Dr Than Htike Aung and Prof Daw Win Win Kyaw. I received health records of the Chief Minister. After discussion, we decided to conduct the operation in Yangon.

Q: How did you cooperate with each other to achieve success in this operation?
A: Team work plays an important role in carrying out major operations. Planning is also important for that. Thanks to the detailed planning and preparations made by the Health Department and doctors and nurses of the Yankin Children’s Hospital, we achieved success in this operation.

Q: How is the condition of the Yangon Region Chief Minister following the operation?
A: He is in good condition. Today, he is practicing respiration exercises and he is even walking today. He will be discharged from the hospital after five or seven days.

Q: Please let me know your opinion about differences between the health care services in Myanmar and foreign countries.
A: I see more equipment in Myanmar today compared with four to five years ago because I have carried out operations here occasionally since four to five years ago.

Staff of the hospital have worked hard, but still need to improve their skills compared with the professionals in England and western countries. Some equipment are required for the hospital. The most important thing is we need to work and cooperate with each other as a team to improve the medical standard of Myanmar. But, I have seen that health care in Myanmar is getting better.

Q: Please let me know if you teach and disseminate knowledge on medical services to others during your stay in Myanmar.
A: I graduated from the Medical College-1 in Yangon in 1988 and went to England. My father is a retired specialist surgeon. His name is Dr U Ye Myint. Whenever I visited my father living in Myanmar, I was thinking to help Myanmar. When Prof Daw Win Win Kyaw started to carry out cardiac surgery operations at the Yangon Children’s Hospital, I came here and helped them. I taught cardiac surgery to others from one to three times a year in Myanmar. I also taught post-graduate doctors in Myanmar and conducted examinations. I also gave talks on health at conferences in Myanmar.

Q: Do you think that the ratio between the heart patients and cardiac specialists in Myanmar is okay?
A: In Myanmar which has a population of more than 50 million, there are less than 10 cardiac surgeons. In England which has a population of 66 million, there are more than 350 cardiac surgeons and 36 cardiac care units. Myanmar needs to draw 20-year or 30-year long-term plan to produce professionals in medical care field related with heart.—Myanmar News Agency

The CDNG listed 11 books for students, one manual for kindergarten teachers, one manual for primary teachers, one manual for middle school teachers, one manual for high school teachers and one analysis on the teaching of civics. The CDNG submitted this to the Ministry of Education in schools, and it did not urge any schools or institutions to teach it, the CDNG said. At the trainings, they suggested that they could leave out the unnecessary portions of the book in teaching it in their regions and could substitute stories and matters that will suit their areas. Hiring of Myanmar orchestras for novitiation ceremony in rural areas dropping

THE hiring of Myanmar traditional orchestras (Sine Wine) for religious events such as novitiation ceremonies and donations in rural areas is dropping as a result of the low incomes of the farmers.

Previously, Myanmar people eagerly celebrated the religious events and received donations on a grand scale enabling the hiring of a traditional orchestra including various musical instruments. However, the unfavourable market and the low yield of crops have taken a financial toll on the rural people.

An orchestra is hired at over Ks600,000 and it costs about Ks1million if transportation costs and the hiring of an actress are included. Therefore, the donors who individually cannot afford to hire Sine Wine make a contribution to the charity or events.— Ko Lwin (Swar)

Yangon Region Hluttaw to discuss supplying power at a reasonable price

A motion on supplying power and fuel at a reasonable price will be discussed at the Regional Hluttaw at the end of March, said Yangon Region Electricity, Industry and Transportation Minister Daw Nilar Kyaw.

“Before discussing that issue at the Yangon Parliament, we will make pre-discussions with the public. Then, we will submit the proposal to the Hluttaw,” she added.

The Yangon regional government has invited international companies to invest in the electrical power and energy sector. Local and foreign companies are also allowed to invest in accordance with the law to distribute the fuel.

“On the media network, people are saying that the government will increase meter charges three times starting from 1 April. It is not true. It is only a rumour. This issue is not included in the meeting of the Yangon Region Chief Minister and the Hluttaw MP,” said Daw Nilar Kyaw.

Currently, the Yangon region consumes 50 per cent of the country’s power supply. The Yangon regional government will discuss it with transparency the current situation of the Yangon Electricity Supply Cooperation (YESC) and to develop distribution of the private electricity sector because of more foreign investment, development of the industry sector and more consumption of power supply.

Production of electricity costs about Ks135 per unit in the Yangon region. The Government sets the fee for power, with Ks35 per unit for 100 units, Ks40 per unit for 101-500 units and Ks50 per unit for over 200 units. Business meter charges cost Ks75 per unit for less than the 500 units, Ks100 per unit for less than 1,000 units, Ks125 per unit for over 2,000 units and Ks150 per unit for over 10,000 units.

Production of agricultural with Good Agricultural Practices system workshop held

A workshop on the Good Agricultural Practices (GAP) system was conducted at the meeting hall of the Agriculture Department in Nay Pyi Taw on Sunday to encourage farmers and agricultural agents to produce safe crops. The workshop was jointly held by the Ministry of Agriculture, Livestock and Irrigation, the Agriculture Department, the vegetable and plant bio-technology branch and the Nay Pyi Taw Region Agricultural Department Office with the aim of establishing free trade with international countries, attaining the GAP certificate for the crops and for the public to consume nutritious vegetables.

“Currently, the paddy and bean market are losing in the market because the land is not being used efficiently. We need more agricultural good practice,” said U Hla Myint Aung, the Deputy Director-General from the Agriculture Department, in his opening speech.

Good Agricultural Practices (GAP) is a voluntary audit that verify that fruits and vegetables are produced and packed as safely as possible to minimise risks of microbial food safety hazards. Some farmers are using fertilizer and pesticide when they are growing crops and vegetables. Some people consuming those crops and vegetables are becoming unhealthy. If we are growing the crops and vegetables with the use of GAP system, we have to test the heavy metal content of the land and water, said U Hla Myint Aung.

“We do not mean that in the GAP system is not allowed to use the fertilizer and pesticide. But we should use fertilizer and pesticide in the right way. So that people can consume healthy food as well as so we can penetrate the international market,” said U Tin Oo Kyine, a regional officer.

Currently, paddy, sesame, green bean, urad bean, corn, onion, watermelon, tomato, melon, cabbage, mango, pomelo, avocado, chili and coffee crops have already had GAP protocol processing from the agricultural department. The agriculture department will offer training courses and discussions to farmers across the country about how to use the GAP agricultural system.—Ko Pauk

Abe, Trump agree N Korea’s missile threat entering “new phase”

TOKYO — Japanese Prime Minister Shinzo Abe said on Tuesday he and US President Donald Trump agreed that North Korea’s test-firing of ballistic missiles appeared to be a “clear challenge” to the region and the international community and that the country’s missile threat has entered a “new phase.”

Abe told reporters that he and Trump agreed that the missile firing was a clear violation of UN Security Council resolutions banning North Korea from developing and testing nuclear and clear ballistic missile technologies, adding that Japan will work closely with the United States and South Korea to deal with the North Korean threat.

“Japan and the United States confirmed that the latest missile firing by North Korea...is a clear challenge to the region and the international community, and that its threat has entered a new phase,” Abe said at the prime minister’s office.

With the Trump administration reportedly reviewing US policy toward North Korea, including putting the country back on a list of state sponsors of terrorism, Abe told Trump that Tokyo views positively his administration’s move, according to the official.

The Japanese leader also told his US counterpart that Japan is ready to assume a “large role and responsibility” for the challenge to the region and the international community and that the country’s missile threat has entered a “new phase.”

Three of them fell within Japan’s exclusive economic zone, a 200-nautical-mile offshore zone where the country has sovereignty to explore and manage natural resources. No damage to ships or aircraft was reported.

Japanese Prime Minister Shinzo Abe meets with reporters at his office in Tokyo on 7 March, 2017, after holding telephone talks with US President Donald Trump. Abe said the two leaders agreed that North Korea’s test-firing of ballistic missiles the previous day poses a “clear challenge” to the region and the international community and that the country’s missile threat has entered a “new phase.”

Malaysia says foiled attack on Arab royalty ahead of Saudi king’s visit

KUALA LUMPUR — Malaysia’s authorities said they had arrested four Yemenis on Tuesday, allegations to be planning an attack on “Arab royalties.”

A senior police source said the four Yemenis belonged to a Huthi insurgency group that has been fighting Yemeni forces backed by a Saudi-led military coalition for two years.

The Saudi monarch arrived in Kuala Lumpur on February 26 with a 600-strong delegation for a four-day visit, at the start of a month-long Asia tour. He is currently in Indonesia. Between 21 and 26 February, Malaysia arrested one Malaysian and six foreigners — one Indonesian, four Yemenis and one East Asian — for suspected links to militant groups including Islamic State. Police had said in a statement on Sunday.

Police seized multiple international passports from the four, along with 270,000 ringgit ($60,742.41) in different currencies, which were suspected to be channelled to the insurgent group. The United Nations has said Yemen now poses the largest food insecurity emergency in the world, with an estimated 7.3 million people needing immediate help, while more than 10,000 people have been killed in the conflict.

The Yemenis were arrested in Serdang and Cyberjaya — near the capital Kuala Lumpur — for suspected links to a Yemeni insurgent group, Malaysian police said on Sunday.

Southeast Asian nation has already been on high alert since suicide bombers and gunmen linked to Islamic State launched multiple attacks in Jakarta, the capital of neighbouring Indonesia, in January. A grenade attack on a bar on the outskirts of Kuala Lumpur in June last year wounded eight people. Islamic State claimed responsibility for the attack.

Two of the seven arrested in late February — a Malaysian and an Indonesian — were planning to launch a large-scale attack using a “vehicular-borne improvised explosive device,” the police have said. — Reuters

Bangkok — A leader of Thailand’s “red shirt” opposition group was jailed for two years on Tuesday for insulting the monarchy during a street protest in 2010. The Supreme Court said he had upheld the ruling of a lower court that Yosvaris Chukdorn, also a comedian, was guilty of the crime of lese majeste, which can carry a penalty of up to 15 years for each offence.

The military government has made increasing use of the royal insult law against critics since taking power in 2014. Although Yosvaris did not name the king in his speech in 2010, at a time the red shirts were in opposition, the court ruled that his gestures had made the insult clear. He had said he had no intention of insulting the king. Neither he nor his lawyer made any comment after the Supreme Court’s ruling. — Reuters
North Korea bars Malaysians from leaving as murder row boils

SEOUL — North Korea barred Malaysians from leaving the country on Tuesday, sparking tit-for-tat action by Malaysia, as police investigating the murder of Kim Jong Nam in Kuala Lumpur sought to question up to three men hiding in the North Korean embassy.

Malaysia was outraged by the murder of the North Korean leader’s estranged half brother at the Kuala Lumpur International Airport on 13 February by assassins using VX nerve agent, a chemical listed by the United Nations as a weapon of mass destruction.

Police have identified eight North Koreans wanted in connection with the murder, including a senior North Korean diplomat and a state airline employee — two of the three believed to be hiding in the embassy. The only people charged so far are a Vietnamese woman and an Indonesian woman.

As the row escalated on Tuesday, North Korea’s foreign ministry issued a temporary ban on Malaysians leaving in order to ensure the safety of its own diplomats and citizens in Malaysia.

“All Malaysian citizens in the DPRK will be temporarily prohibited from leaving the country until the incident that happened in Malaysia is properly solved,” the state-run Korean Central News Agency said, quoting a foreign ministry official.

“In this period the diplomats and citizens of Malaysia may work and live normally under the same conditions and circumstances as before,” Malaysia reacted swiftly, condemning Pyongyang’s action as hostage-taking and responding by barring all North Koreans from leaving the country.

“This abhorrent act, effectively holding our citizens hostage, is in total disregard of all international law and diplomatic norms,” Malaysian Prime Minister Najib Razak said in a statement, adding that he has summoned an emergency meeting of the National Security Council.

Najib said he has also instructed the police “to prevent all North Korean citizens in Malaysia from leaving the country until we are assured of the safety and security of all Malaysians in North Korea”.

Before the murder, North Korea could count Malaysia as one of its few friends outside of China. But Malaysia has since stopped visa-free travel and on Monday it expelled North Korea’s ambassador for questioning the impartiality of the murder investigation.

There are 11 Malaysians in North Korea, according to a Malaysian foreign ministry official, including three embassy staff, six family members, and two others.

Hundreds of North Koreans are believed to be in Malaysia, most of them students and workers. The focus, however, was on its embassy staff.

“We are trying to physically identify all the embassy staff who are here,” deputy home minister Nur Jazlan Mohamed told reporters outside the North Korean embassy.

He said staff would not be allowed to leave the embassy “until we are satisfied of their numbers and where they are”.

By early afternoon, Malaysian police had removed the tape and police car blocking the North Korean embassy driveway in a sign of easing tensions.

Speaking at a news conference in Kuala Lumpur on Tuesday, Malaysia’s police chief said three of the North Koreans sought in connection with the murder had holed up at the embassy in the Malaysian capital.

“How much longer do they want to hide in the embassy...it is a matter of time before they come out,” police chief Khalid Abu Bakar said.

“We will not raid the embassy building, we will wait for them to come out. We have got all the time,” Khalid said.

Aside from the suspects said to be hiding in the embassy, police have said four other North Koreans left Malaysia in the hours after the murder.

The only North Korean suspect to be apprehended was deported on Friday, released due to insufficient evidence.

US officials and South Korean intelligence suspect North Korean agents were behind the assassination of Kim Jong Nam, who had been living in Macau under China’s protection.

He had spoken out publicly against his family’s dynastic rule of North Korea.

North Korea has refused to accept that the dead man is leader Kim Jong Un’s half brother, and has suggested the victim died of a heart attack.

No next of kin have come forward to claim the body, but the Malaysian police chief said he was confident of obtaining DNA samples to formally identify the murdered man.—Reuters

South Korea says to “actively” consider filing WTO complaint against China

SEOUL — South Korea will consider filing a complaint against China to the World Trade Organization over what it described as trade retaliation for the deployment of a US anti-missile system outside of Seoul, the ruling party said on Tuesday.

South Korea in July decided to install the Terminal High Altitude Area Defense (THAAD) system in response to missile threat from North Korea, despite China objecting that THAAD’s radar can penetrate its territory.

South Korean companies in China have since reported cyber attacks, store closures and fines, while state-controlled media has called for a boycott of South Korean goods and services.

“We will actively consider whether China’s action is in violation of the South Korea-China free trade deal, while stepping up efforts to minimise damage on South Korean industries,” Lee Hye-jung, chairman of the Liberty Korea Party’s policy committee, said after meeting senior government officials.

Chinese foreign ministry spokesman Geng Shuang, when asked about the matter on Tuesday, reiterated China’s stance that law-abiding foreign companies are welcome and will be protected.

In the latest instance of suspected discrimination, China has rejected applications from airlines including Jeju Air Co Ltd to add charter flights between the two countries this month, Yonhap News Agency reported on Tuesday.

This adds to similar rejections for January and February. No reasons have been given for any of the rejections.

A Jeju Air spokesman confirmed the March rejection when contacted by Reuters. Chinese foreign ministry spokesman Geng Shuang in a briefing said he was not aware of the charter flight issue.

The rejections would be the second blow in a matter of days for South Korean travel companies, after the Chinese government last week ordered tour operators in China to stop selling trips to South Korea.

Lee said on Tuesday the Seoul government had since agreed to provide $35 billion worth of “special loans” for tourism firms experiencing difficulties due to the order.

Chinese authorities have also closed retail stores belonging to Lotte Group following inspections. The number of closures had reached 39, and one store has received a fine, a Lotte Mart spokesman said on Tuesday.—Reuters

What is a MOOC?
A Massive Open Online Course (MOOC) is an online course aimed at unlimited participation and open access via the web. Many MOOCs provide interactive user forums to support community interactions among students, professors, and teaching assistants. MOOCs are a recent and widely researched development in distance education which were first introduced in 2008 and emerged as a popular mode of learning in 2012. The first MOOCs emerged from the Open Educational Resources (OER) movement. MOOCs from private, non-profit institutions emphasized prominent faculty members and expanded existing distance learning offerings (e.g., podcasts) into free and open online courses.

As MOOCs have evolved, there appear to be two distinct types: those that emphasize the connectivist philosophy, and those that resemble more traditional courses. To distinguish the two, Stephen Downes proposed the term “cMOOC” and “xMOOC.” He considers these so-called cMOOCs to be more “creative and dynamic” than the current xMOOCs, which he believes “resemble television shows or digital textbooks.”

The new term MOOC (Massive Open Online Course) has immediately attracted the masses even though it is a public labor for a diversity of different online learning scenarios and methodologies that were already developed and implemented more than 5 years before.

Nowadays, different types of MOOCs (so called cMOOCs and xMOOCs) are discussed but the focus is still on the masses, technology and promised innovations that are not easy to discover.

A MOOC is a model of educational delivery that is to varying degrees, massive, open, online, and a course. Most MOOCs are structured similar to traditional online higher education courses in which students watch lectures, read assigned material, participate in online discussions and forums, and complete quizzes and test on the course material.

A massive open online course (MOOC) is generally delivering learning content online to any person who wants to take a course, with no limitation on attendance. Much of the attention to MOOCs has focused on the ability to reach millions of learners worldwide. However, the on-campus impacts have gone far beyond moving lectures from the podium to the laptop or mobile device. Faculty members are improving materials and activities in their classes, crafting better assessments to measure student learning, and experimenting with new pedagogies to increase engagement and learning. The extent to which MOOCs have led faculty members to increase on-campus student access to online learning materials. These materials help reinforce what students learn in class and let them review difficult material.

One of the most exciting impacts of MOOCs on teaching at Duke University has been the programs that signals that students and the public at large also see online and blended options as increasingly attractive.

The work is accessible. Take the course without paying.
The work is shared.

“AN oar is broken while rowing a boat,” as a Myanmar saying goes, and we also say that “We will row with our arms, if the oar is broken.” These two sayings seem to be different, but if carefully considered, they are found to be closely related. The first one describes a current situation and the second urges us not to stop looking for the means to proceed to the better or the more we grow and as more we grow older. Every animal has to do two kinds of jobs: one is to search for food for its survival and another is to serve humans as animals of prey and beasts of burden. There seems to be an element of predetermined assessments claim that even a newly-born baby has two jobs. One is crying. Crying can be said to be searching for food for her mother, the milk, for their survival. Another is to give parents, brothers and sisters, pleasure and happiness. Whenever they see faces of newly-born babies, and hear them cry, they are greatly pleased, by saying that their babies have stentorian voices. Ac demic disciplines are not different from traditional courses. To look for food. Unlike those animals, we—human beings, unavoidable have a great burden, the knowledge, the information, the education. A student will go to the university for the knowledge, for the information, for the education. MOOCs (so called cMOOCs and xMOOCs) have started to develop the framework for opening up education. Thus, MOOC (Quality of Massive Open Online Courses) has started to develop a common Quality Reference Framework for improving, assessing and comparing the quality of MOOCs in the future. There is no doubt that MOOCs in Myanmar. In Myanmar, we need to collaborate and cooperate with local and international institutions and organizations to make things work.

We will make MOOCs better !

Massive Open Online Courses (MOOCs)

(3) The time and effort required from participants may exceed what students are willing to commit to a free online course
(4) Once the course is released, content will be reshaped and reinterpreted by the massive student body, making the course trajectory difficult for providers.
(5) Participants must self-regulate and set their own goals
(6) Language and translation barriers

These general challenges in effect MOOC development are accompanied by criticism from journalists and academics. MOOCs have been criticized for a perceived lack of academic rigor as well as the monetization strategies adopted by providers.

MOOCs and the Future of Higher Education
MOOCs could help students who are at Universities, especially in lower income communities where they cannot afford extra tutorials. But, because of the different approaches to education, especially in developing countries, there is not encouragement to take or promote MOOCs, or other online assistance.

Now that Smart Phones are in the hands of many people, in many countries, and MOOCs are also available on Smart Phones, it should become more popular. The feedback especially via Facebook, should help the comments to be country sensitive, because what works in one country may not always work in another, and with many people in the group, they can make things work, or help to make things work.

A closer look at higher education in Asia and the Pacific reveals that more and more people are becoming aware of the importance of attending university and getting at least an undergraduate degree, which increases the chances of getting employed. The five best MOOC providers are Coursera, Edx, Udacity, and Stanford University’s Open Education.

In 2025 and beyond we will use mobile, digital technology to learn. The classroom will be in our hands. We will have access to knowledge, lessons, and learning technology anywhere, anytime. We will learn in the moment. Our learning will include immersive, multi-sensory experiences that simulate reality. Human educators will some-least not the high drop-out rates have raised the question of quality for MOOCs and several international conferences had a special focus on MOOCs. On the other hand MOOCs have prepared the future path for opening up education. Thus, MOOC (Quality of Massive Open Online Courses) has started to develop a common Quality Reference Framework for improving, assessing and comparing the quality of MOOCs in the future. There is no doubt that MOOCs in Myanmar. In Myanmar, we need to collaborate and cooperate with local and international institutions and organizations to make things work.

Challenges
The MOOC Guide suggests the possible challenges for cMOOCs:
(1) Relying on user-generated content can cause a chaotic learning environment
(2) Digital literacy is necessary to make use of the online materials
(3) The time and effort required from participants may exceed what students are willing to commit to a free online course

DURING one-year period when the incumbent government took office, State-owned newspapers—the Myanmar Alinn, the Kyemon (the Mirror) and joint-venture the Global New Light of Myanmar are operating as a linking machinery between the People and the Government, by making reforms. Especially, form of collecting news, presentation and lay-out forms, quality of a newspaper and economic policies were managed to be changed successfully in one year. Success was achieved due to subscribers’ increasing demands for more copies, because of satisfying designs of the logos and news presentation patterns. People’s voices and breaking news of performances of 3 major panels of the State — administerative, judicial and legislative sectors including the Government have been described on these pages in a new type.

News correspondents, editors, news-room staff and nation-wide reporters were made to develop their abilities by making local and overseas veteran newsmen, legal experts, writers and photographers conduct trainings, for human-resource development. And, some were sent abroad to attend overseas trainings. This resulted in more inclusion of news and information that are worth knowing, articles and news features, news analysis and exciting news.

As regards international news, news critics and breaking news had been presented to the public. Exchange of news with foreign news agencies, purchase of news and information from Reuters by making a one-year contract for US $ 19,200 for a financial year can make our papers use international breaking news timely. Since the time of taking office of the new government, the government-owned papers opened the new page of the Myanmar newspapers’ history with reformed logos in accord with the current situations. People’s papers are daily striving for their best to give education, information and entertainment for people and for making papers more attractive pages in describing political, economic and social affairs. Simultaneously, they are making effort to expand publication of pages on national ethics through their branch press-houses in local areas. Presently Mawlamyine Branch has been publishing news written in Mon, Sakaw Karen, Pae Karen and Pao languages weekly, with Mandalay expanding Mandalay pages weekly, describing Mandalay news and articles.

State-owned papers always take care to abide by media ethics and avoid news writing that can cause conflicts and disputes. Accuracy of news, guarantee and simplicity of presentation are the dignity of a newspaper. Compared to privately-owned papers, they can be said to lag behind, in presenting news earliest. But opinions, trust and concepts over the newspapers, of those reading newspapers are found to differ. News and information printed on government-owned newspapers are thought to represent the government. Out of the government-owned enterprises, the successful “News and Periodicals Enterprise of the Ministry of Information,” is void of ultra-opportunism in every phase of the process, found proudly to be paying charges even in the sector of the transportation. It pays fully commercial tax and 25% of the profit as income-tax to the State. In addition, 20% of the profit is given to the finance of the State with 55% of the profit saved for the capital of the enterprise. Now that saved money has amounted to the extent of considerable amount, annual expenditure was no longer disbursed from the State Fund Finance Category.

U Ye Naing, General-Manager of the News and Periodicals Enterprise said, “Our newspaper are describing policies and performances of the government, simultaneously expressing people’s desires, attitudes and experiences. We are striving for our best to be a successful place for serving the benefit of the people and to survive as a fruitful enterprise. And, we are carrying out our operation for the Mirror and the Myanmar Alinn to exist as the accurate and prestigious state-owned papers and for the Global New Light of Myanmar published in English language, being circulated as a joint-venture enterprise to stand tall as an English Version Newspaper.”

There are included platforms for people’s opinions, pages for things to be amended transparently, columns for letters to the editor, pages for those who would like to express their grief and woes, difficulties and demands for reforms in the Myanmar Alinn and the Mirror dailies. This resulted in direct effectiveness almost every day.

In the Mirror daily, the page, “Platform for new generation,” is being expressed for the emergence of young writers and for the improvement of love for literature. In answer to this, youths and students from different levels are encouraging and influx of scripts is being received almost every day. Sunday cartoon program intended for developing the reading habits for children caused children to speed up their reading, lifting the courage, morality and artistic creation in children. Increasing the number of subscribers, the best-selling dailies and voluminous trust of the readers can attract more advertisements. Depending on the income from advertisement sector, a copy of the newspaper can be sold at 50 kyats.

The Global New Light of Myanmar Daily that is being published by the News and Periodicals Enterprise was managed to be set up as a joint venture enterprise in a short period of time. It is also being sold at 50 kyats per copy.

During the role of the new government, the NPE is implementing to spread its papers across the country including remote areas timely. Extraordinarily, the NPE is striving for its best, for the state-owned papers to post online very soon, for the people to be able to read news and information earlier, with the developing information technology. So, our readers can read the papers in bi-lingual versions.

The papers are presenting news and information in accord with the media ethics to give true news to readers. In the world of Myanmar media which had developed with great momentum, the Myanmar Alinn daily which had existed for over 100 years, the Mirror daily which had lasted for over 60 years and the GLNM which has been presenting in new form are trying to present people’s favorite sectors to readers.

US starts deploying anti-missile system in South Korea after defiant North’s latest test

SEUL — The United States started to deploy the first elements of President Donald anti-missile defence system in South Korea on Tuesday after North Korea’s test of four ballistic missiles, US Pacific Commander Admiral Harry Harris said Tuesday, despite angry opposition from China.

The announcement came as North Korean state media said leader Kim Jong Un had personally supervised Monday’s missile launches by an army unit that is positioned to strike US bases in Japan, stepping up threats against Washington as US troops conduct joint military exercises with South Korea.

“Continued provocative actions by North Korea, to include yesterday’s launch of multiple missiles, only confirm the prudence of our alliance decision last year to deploy THAAD to South Korea,” US Pacific Commander Admiral Harry Harris said in a statement, referring to the Terminal High Altitude Area Defense (THAAD) anti-missile system.

The move by the US military is likely to deepen the brewing conflict between South Korea and China, which says the THAAD deployment destroys the regional security balance.

The four ballistic missiles fired by North Korea landed in the sea off Japan’s northwest, angering Seoul and Tokyo, days after Pyongyang promised retaliation over the military drills that it sees as preparation for war.

US President Donald Trump and Japanese Prime Minister Shinzo Abe discussed the launch by the nuclear-armed North during a phone call on Tuesday.
US Navy ship changes course after Iran vessels come close — US official

WASHINGTON — Multiple fast-attack vessels from the Iranian Revolutionary Guard Corps came close to a US Navy ship in the Strait of Hormuz on Saturday, forcing it to change direction, a US official told Reuters on Monday.

The official, speaking on condition of anonymity, said the boats came within 600 yards (metres) of the USN Invincible, a tracking ship, and stopped. The Invincible and three ships from the British Royal Navy accompanying it had to change course.

The official said attempts were made to communicate over radio, but there was no response and the interaction was “unsafe and unprofessional.” The IRGC could not immediately be reached for a comment.

Syrian army advances on IS-held water supplies for Aleppo — monitor, military source

BEIRUT — The Syrian army has advanced to the outskirts of an Islamic State-held village in northern Syria, where a key water pumping facility for Aleppo city is located, a monitor said on Tuesday.

The Syrian Observatory for Human Rights, a Britain-based war monitoring group, said the army and allied forces made gains east of Aleppo, as Syrian government and Russian forces pounded the areas.

The army and its allies moved closer to the al-Khafsa area where the water supplies are located, and to the al-Jarrah military airport, the Observatory said. A Syrian military source said the army had advanced to areas “very close” to both.

New Israeli law bars entry to foreigners supporting Israel boycott

JERUSALEM — Israel’s parliament on Monday passed a law barring for-egnors who publicly support an anti-Israel boycott from entering the country.

“In recent years calls to boycott Israel have been growing,” parliament said on its website after the law was approved. “It seems this is a new front in the war against Israel, which until now the country had not prepared for properly.”

Individuals or representatives of groups pub-
lcally calling for a boycott — excluding Israeli citizens and permanent residents — will not be granted visas, according to the law.

It was unclear when the new policy would take effect, and the law said ex-cceptions could be made.

The vote passed 46 to 28, with some in the opposition saying it was better to engage detractors, and that the new law will play into the hands of those attacking Israel. Israel has long decried groups like the Boycott, Divestment and Sanctions (BDS) movement who want to isolate Israel over policies towards the Palestinians. Peace talks between Israel and the Palestinians broke down in 2014.

Germany to buy Triton drone to replace cancelled Euro Hawk — sources

BERLIN — Germany’s defence ministry has decided to buy high-altitude MQ-4C Triton unmanned surveillance planes built by US weapons maker Northrop Gruman Corp for deliveries after 2025, ministry sources said on Tuesday.

The new drones will replace the Euro Hawk programme, which Berlin cancelled in May 2013 after it became clear that it could cost up to 600 million euros to get the system approved for use in civil airspace.

The sources confirmed a story originally reported by the Sueddeutsche Zeitung.

The plan, which must still be approved by parliament, calls for Germany to buy the new drones from the US Navy, which awarded Northrop a contract to design the unmanned aircraft in April 2008. Sources for the new aircraft are to be built by Airbus, as planned under the previous programme, the sources said.

It was not immediately clear how many planes the ministry would buy, or at what cost. Under the cancelled programme, it had planned to buy five Euro Hawk aircraft for 1.2 billion euros.

Experts do not expect the new programme to run into any problems of obtaining aviation approval for the new aircraft, which is launched from land and is programmed to fly autonomously as high as 60,000 feet to gather a wide array of intelligence data.

Then-Defence Minister Thomas de Maiziere came under pressure after he was forced to cancel the previous Euro Hawk programme in 2013 after it became clear it would cost hundreds of millions of euros to win aviation approval for the aircraft.

Ursula von der Leyen was moved into the defence minister job later that year, and took office as defence minister job later that year, and took office as defence minister in 2019. The Ministry of Defence then awarded Northrop a contract to design the Triton, a marine-based variant of its initial Global Hawk surveillance drone, for the US Navy. Ministry sources said the aviation approval for Triton would be less costly because it was baked in from the start of the programme. — Reuters

Asian nations restrict US poultry imports over bird flu

SEOUL/CHICAGO — South Korea, Japan, Taiwan and Hong Kong have limited imports of US poultry after the United States detected its first case this year of avian flu on a commercial chicken farm, South Korea’s government and a US trade group said on Monday.

South Korea will ban imports of US poultry and eggs after a strain of H7 bird flu virus was confirmed on Sunday at a chicken farm in Tennessee, South Korea’s agriculture ministry said.

Japan and Taiwan will block poultry from the state, while Hong Kong will restrict imports from the Tennessee county where the infected flock was located, said James Sumner, president of the US Poultry & Egg Export Council, a trade group.

The limits will reduce the potential for major US chicken companies, such as Tyson Foods Inc and Pilgrim’s Pride, to sell poultry overseas.

The Tennessee farm infected with avian flu was contracted to sell birds to Tyson.

South Korea’s import ban took effect on Monday, while the agriculture ministry said in a statement. Livestock and eggs are subject to the ban, while heat-treated chicken meat and egg products can still be imported, the statement noted.

South Korea, Asia’s fourth-largest economy, has been importing eggs from the United States as its worst-ever bird flu, or avian influenza (AI), outbreak has tightened the country’s egg supplies.

The latest moves do not affect China, which introduced a ban on imports of US poultry and eggs in late 2015. So far this year South Korea has shipped nearly 1,049 tonnes of US eggs, according to ministry data, accounting for more than 98 per cent of its total egg imports as of 3 March. — Reuters

Ed Sheeran’s new album to redefine his career

LONDON — Singer Ed Sheeran says his new album will be career-defining for him as he finds it is much better than his previous efforts.

The 26-year-old singer, whose third LP “Divide”, a few days ago, strongly believes people will remember this record far more than his previous chart-topping efforts, reported OK! magazine.

“I think it’s an improvement on the last two records. They have been successful for me but when you look back at Bruce Springsteen’s career or Bob Dylan’s, you can pinpoint the albums they went (crazy) for. “I don’t think I’ve had that yet. Like Adele with ‘21’. I think this is the album I’m going to be known for,” Sheeran said.

The “Castle on the Hill” hitmaker says he always plays his new music for his father and his opinion matters a lot to him.

“I play them to four or five people. And if they all go for it, it’s usually a good song. My dad is always a good one to play songs to...My father says, ‘This song is not very good.’ It upsets me but in the long run, it’s a good thing.—PTI

“I don’t follow trends when it comes to picking a film: Anushka Sharma

MUMBAI — Anushka Sharma has managed to stand out with her work as an actress and a producer in her nine-year-long career and she says it is because she does not believe in following trends.

The actress made her acting debut with 2008 rom-com Rab Ne Bana Di Jodi, before featuring in hit movies like satirical comedy PK, sports-drama Sultan and romantic drama Ae Dil Hai Mushkil.

Anushka ventured into production with 2015 thriller NH 10 and is now gearing up for her banner’s (Clean Slate Films) next project Phillauri. “I don’t let myself be influenced by what others might think. I don’t follow trends or what is in (and what is not), when it comes to picking a film or producing one I follow my instincts and continue to do what I feel is right for me,” Anushka told PTI. “I follow my heart and focus on being part of a good story. I believe that’s why turning producer has worked out for me,” she says. Phillauri stars Diljit Dosanjh and Suraj Sharma alongside Anushka. There have been reports that NH10 fame director Navdeep Singh has roped in Diljit and Arjun Kapoor for his next film Kaneda to be produced by Anushka’s production house Clean Slate Films.—PTI
Stella McCartney brings dance to Paris Opera for fashion week

PARIS — Stella McCartney livened up the catwalk at Monday with dancing models wearing her signature over-sized clothes in trade-mark neutral shades with splashes of unusual colors. The British fashion designer, known for her sharp tailoring and for mixing luxury and sporty looks, unveiled her autumn/winter 2017-2018 women’s collection which mixed in burgundy, bottle green, sky blue, white and silver.

Her models gave the penultimate day of the show a relaxed but effortlessly elegant vibe in trench-coats and jackets, ultra-wide, high-waisted trousers, all-in-one jumpsuits and overalls, and turtle-neck mini-dresses with super-sized sleeves.

About 65 per cent of women were found to be literate, compared with 82 per cent of men, according to the 2011 report. Education experts and researchers have cited outdated attitudes toward women, including a preference for male children over females, and child marriages as main reasons for the lower female literacy rate. At Aajibaichi, afternoon classes in the one-room school are held six days a week for two hours. The lessons are timed so the women can finish their chores, or their work in the fields, before attending class. One of the few requirements is that all students are at least 60 years old.

“My knees hurt, so I can’t sit on the floor for long. That’s the only problem. But I still go every day,” said Keshavtunge. Clad in pink saris, their school uniform, the women walk every afternoon along dusty village paths to their lessons. “First I finish all my house work, then I go to school. It’s good we have this in our village,” said 70-year-old Drupada Pandurangkedar. Her eight-year-old granddaughter goes to school. It’s good we have this in our village.”

The show, at the Paris Opera, was inspired by “faith, love, energy,” McCartney’s Twitter feed said, with dancing to “Faith” by the late singer George Michael in the finale.

It was watched by a star-studded crowd including Mexican-US actress Salma Hayek and her French businessman husband Francois-Henri Pinault, chief executive of the Kering group, which has a 50 per cent stake in Stella McCartney.

Canadian-American actress Pamela Anderson, Vogue’s editor-in-chief Anna Wintour and Charlotte Casiraghi, the daughter of Princess Caroline of Monaco were also there.

A long-time vegetarian who does not use leather or fur, McCartney’s fabrics included fake leather and suede, velvet, checkered tweed, denim, pleated organdy, loose cotton, chiffon with horse prints or lace-like embroidered details.

Models wore oversized hand-held or strap-over bags, wide belts, casual sporty pumps juxtaposed by elegant but flat fronted and wide-heeled, steel toe capped shoes.

Stella McCartney is one of the most active fashion brands on Instagram, with 3.7 million followers and her show was live-streamed on social media.

FANGANE (India) — Aa- jibaichi Shaala is not your ordinary school in India.

The students at “grandmothers’ school” in the village of Fangane are elderly women who are getting the chance to learn to read.

“I love going to school,” Kamal Keshavtunge, 60, told Reuters as she washed clothes outside her home in the village, 120 km (75 miles) east of the financial capital, Mumbai.

India’s literacy rate grew to 74 per cent in the decade to 2011, according to the latest census, but female literacy continued to lag the rate for males by a wide margin.

Saint Laurent told to modify ad campaign after uproar in France

PARIS — France’s advertising watchdog on Monday said it had asked fashion house Yves Saint Laurent to modify two ads from its latest campaign after receiving 50 complaints that they were “degrading” to women.

One of the ads features a reclining woman in a fur coat and fishnet tights with her legs spread wide and the other shows a model in a leotard and roller skate stilettos bending over a stool.

The ads caused uproar on social media where people called on Yves Saint Laurent to withdraw them. The complaints were brought to the attention of the advertising watchdog the Autorite de Regulation Professionnelle de la Publicite (ARPP), which then asked the label to change them.

“We asked the brand and the ad displayer to make changes to these visuals as soon as possible,” ARPP head Stephane Martin told Reuters. He said the ads were a serious breach of rules set by the advertising industry to maintain “digest and respect in the representation of the person.”

Martin also said the fact that the models featured in the ads were very thin was also a concern because of the impact on fashion-conscious teenage girls.

Saint Laurent, part of luxury group Kering, could not be immediately reached for comment.

The advertising ethics jury, a body tied to ARPP and independent from the advertising industry, will rule on the complaints on Friday. The ethics committee can ask Yves Saint Laurent to withdraw the ads if it decides there are grounds for the complaints. Britain’s Advertising Standards Authority banned a Saint Laurent ad in 2015 that featured a very thin model whose ribs were showing.

Former world champion Fury says will fight again in May

LONDON — Britain’s former world heavyweight champion Tyson Fury has said he will make a comeback against an unnamed opponent in May, even though he is under a provisional suspension from the sport.

“Breaking news. Return of the MAC. 13th May working on an opponent, more news to follow,” he tweeted on Monday.

The 28-year-old has not fought since beating Ukrainian Wladimir Klitschko to become world champion in November 2015, subsequently pulling out of a rematch twice.

He vacated his WBO and WBA belts last year, revealing he was seeking medical help, after telling Rolling Stone magazine that he had taken cocaine to help his depression.

Fury’s licence was suspended pending further investigations by the British Boxing Board of Control. He was also charged with a rule violation by UK Anti-Doping after a urine sample from February 2015 showed traces of the banned stimulant nandrolone. He has denied any wrongdoing.

A provisional UKAD suspension was lifted on appeal but Fury faces an anti-doping tribunal, though no date has been set.

Chelsea ease past West Ham thanks to Hazard and Costa

LONDON — Chelsea brushed aside London rivals West Ham United with a 2-1 away win that restored their 10-point lead at the top of the Premier League on Monday.

Eden Hazard gave them the lead after a swift 25th-minute counter-attack before Diego Costa bundled the ball home shortly after the break to put the Blues in control at London Stadium.

West Ham’s Manuel Lanzini grabbed a consolation in added time, but the result was never in doubt.

Mid-table West Ham, who knocked Chelsea out of the League Cup this season when crowd trouble marred the match, offered little threat for most of the game as the west London side surged on towards the title.

Antonio Conte’s team, who have won 21 of their 27 league matches this season, have 66 points ahead of second-placed Tottenham Hotspur.

Chelsea were content to sit deep and draw West Ham’s sting for the opening 20 minutes in which the home side enjoyed plenty of the ball without troubling goalkeeper Thibaut Courtois. Striker Andy Carroll got a bloody nose for his efforts as he made his presence felt in the box but Chelsea were unruffled. When the opportunity presented itself, Chelsea took control after that and might have secured the points before halftime had they been a little more clinical.

Another breakaway ended with Victor Moses, who was on loan at West Ham last season, finding a winner five minutes before full-time.

Ibrahimovic, Mings charged with violent conduct

LONDON — Manchester United’s Zlatan Ibrahimovic and Bournemouth defender Tyrone Mings were charged with violent conduct by the Football Association on Monday.

Mings landed on the United forward’s head with his studs and Ibrahimovic caught Mings in the face with his elbow soon afterwards during the teams’ 1-1 Premier League draw at Old Trafford on Saturday. “The players were involved in two separate incidents in or around the 44th minute which were not seen by the match officials at the time but caught on video,” the FA said in a statement.

The players have until 1800 GMT on Tuesday to reply to the charge and face minimum three-match bans if found guilty.

Swede Ibrahimovic, who has 26 scored goals in all competitions for United this season, could miss the FA Cup quarter-final trip to Chelsea next Monday.

Mings could face an increased ban for his offence.

“The FA has submitted a claim that the punishment would otherwise apply for the misconduct committed by the Bournemouth defender is ‘clearly insufficient’,” the FA said.
