Quake destroys several buildings in Taikkyi

A MONDAY evening earthquake that measured 5.8 on the Richter scale destroyed three buildings in Taikkyi, Yangon Region. There were many minor injuries but no reported deaths, local authorities said yesterday.

Be alert after an earthquake

DAW Hla Hla Aung, a patron of the Myanmar Earthquake Committee, said that the earthquake that hit near-by Taikkyi in Yangon Region Monday night was a relatively strong one compared to the quakes which have hit the country so far this year.

"The preceding ones were not strong compared to this and relatively small in magnitude. In the surrounding Yangon area, there were many of these earthquakes. Now the quake reached a big magnitude on the Richter scale — the biggest in all," she said.

An official with the earthquake branch of meteorological and seismological department in Nay Pyi Taw warned that people, especially in the Yangon Region, needed to be alert during an earthquake. According to meteorological and seismological department, there were 17 earthquakes in Myanmar between 1st January and 13th March, eight in January, four in February and five this month.

By assigning the committees in the Hluttaw to the ministries that formed them during the cur- rent government term, the Hluttaw committees and related min- isteries can communicate quickly with each other for activities, she said.

As regards to the frequent quakes, Daw Hla Hla Aung of Myanmar Earthquake Committee pointed out that more earthquake monitoring machines have been installed in recent years, informing us of small tremors nearly all the time.

“It is difficult for us to say whether a strong earthquake might follow tremors. Tremors did not tremble from the same fault. Tremors are coming from many faults, so it is difficult to relate one to the other. If I were asked if there was a possibility of imminent quakes, my answer would be ‘Yes.’ Care and alertness is needed, especially in big cities. The Yangon populace felt a lot for the effect of Taikkyi earthquake. Especially, Yangon city dwellers must be careful about earthquakes which will come from the Sagaing Fault,” said Dr Myo Thant, vice-chairman of the Myanmar Earthquake Committee.

He added, “There is the West Bago Yoma fault nearly. It is assumed that tremors came from that fault, but there have never been any records of tremors reaching over a magnitude of 5 on the Richter scale.”

The Myanmar Earthquake Committee made studies of the interior of the Kabaw fault in concert with international experts.

The Chauk Earthquake in August 2016 did not ruin buildings apart from the many religious pagodas and stupas, which are buildings of great importance. There used to be strong earthquakes in Myanmar about once in a century. Dr Myo Thant assessed that a Bago earthquake is expected to hit between 80-100 years.

“Yangon is over-crowded with the populace, so Yangon city dwellers need to be careful,” Dr Myo Thant said.

To monitor earthquakes and alleviate earthquake-related danger, the Kabaw-Aye Earthquake Observatory Center was set up in 1961, the Mandalay centre in 1966, the Sittwe centre in 1984 and the Dawei center in 1985.

After a big earthquake, there can be dangerous tremors, risk of fire and damages to dams, the possibility of volcanos eruptions, landslides and tsunamis.

Vehicle registration at RTAD has risen

WITH advanced income tax levied on cars with registration slips starting in April, the vehicle registration at the Road Transportation Administration Department (RTAD) has reportedly risen.

Prior to the imposition of advanced income tax, between 50 to 100 cars with slips are daily applied for registration at RTAD.

Advanced income tax was previously levied on individually imported cars or permit free cars or brand new cars. Starting from 1st April, cars with slips which were returned after deregistration of old and scrapped cars will have to be paid advanced income tax.

The initial vehicle registration will be issued in the presence of advanced income tax receipts beginning 1st April. Previously, there were 50 cars applying for registration a day, at the very most. And now, the number of registered cars has reached up to 100 daily, said an official from the RTAD.

The advanced income tax was imposed on permit free cars starting in May 2016. According to 2016 Union Tax Law, the cars worth below Ks30 million are set at 15 per cent while 20 per cent are paid for cars worth from Ks30 to Ks100 million and 30 per cent, for the cars worth above Ks100 million.

Myanmar pea price fluctuating from India’s tax news

THE news of taxation on imported items in India prompted the prices of Myanmar’s peas to fluctuate over the past few days in the local market, said an official from Myanmar Pulses, Beans & Sesame Seeds Merchants Association.

The pea price is positively related to demands from India as it is the main buyer of Myanmar’s peas. The news of taxation has made Indian merchants hesitate to purchase the peas, merchants said.

India has granted a tax exemption on peas, their staple food. The government extends the tax break yearly but the tax exemption will end soon, triggering rumours of no extension in the market. As a result of this, some Indian merchants suspended their trade, said those engaged in border trade.

The pea prices in the first week of March were on the rise with the high demand from India, but plunged in the second week. However, the prevailing pea prices on 13th March were up by about Ks20,000 to 30,000 per tonne, with the prices of around Ks1,100,000 per tonne of mung bean and about Ks760,000 per tonne of pigeon peas, according to the Bayintnaung commodity depot.—Mon Myint

Two more gas fields to be extracted in Rakhine offshore

NATURAL gas is being extracted from the Shwe natural gas field situated offshore from Rakhine State, and two more gas fields will be further extended to produce gas in the coming years, according to Kyaukpyu Rural Development Association.

These gas fields were discovered by Daewoo and Posco-Daewoo Corporation has been conducting Environmental Impact Assessment (EIA) in a bid to extract the gas. The newly discovered gas fields are Shwe Phyu and Mya natural gas fields, at offshore gas block (A-1) and (A-3).

These blocks are located near Shwe Gas block, (A-4), it is learnt.

Currently, Shwe Natural gas block is producing up to 560 million cubic feet of gas a day in Rakhine offshore and the gas is being sold to China. The gas from Shwe Phyu and Mya will also be reportedly shipped to China. —200

Pepper growers faced with difficulty because of price fall

THE local pepper growers from Rakhine State are being faced with difficulty because pepper prices are set to fall and demand for pepper seeds declines, it is learnt.

Previously, pepper in Rakhine state is sold for around Ks 45,000 or Ks 60,000 per baskets dependent on the pepper quality. The price of pepper has decreased to between Ks35,000 and 38,000 per basket this year.

“The price of pepper seeds is directed to decline this year. The regular customers are not buying any more and they are waiting for the pepper market to raise its head in the raining season. We don’t export the pepper on a manageable scale through the border gate. That’s why the price of pepper is on the decline,” said a local pepper grower from Ponnyayun township.

The local people from Ponnyayun township are growing the pepper on a commercial scale while local people from Kyauktaw, Mrauk-U, Taungup and Ann townships grow on a manageable scale. “The price of pepper has decreased compared to last year by Ks 15,000 or Ks 20,000 per basket. People are buying the pepper only for house use not for selling them back,” said a local pepper grower from Mrauk-U township.

According to the 2016-2017 fiscal year statistics, there were over 26,000 acres of pepper field in Rakhine State.

The pepper yield was around 5 to 7 baskets per acre. The local growers export the pepper to Bangladesh on a manageable scale, according to the local pepper growers. —200
Performances in One-Year Period

Our audit is at the service of our country

Thura Zaw (MNA)

FINANCIAL records and accounts are born out of the establishment of a business, so the origin of accounts can be said to be a business. Provided that accounts or financial records are emphatically examined, the result is less effective. Accordingly, the Office of the Auditor General of the Union had changed its modus operandi, that is, came to lay stress on examination of the business which was of more importance. Therefore, fruitful results were achieved. That is the greatest change of the Office of the Auditor General of the Union.

The OAGU has been examining and releasing reports to be able to assess how much effect, performances of governmental organizations in a financial year have brought for the country and its people.

The OAGU was formed as the Supreme Audit Institution—SAI, as just and fair assessment free from the influence of the government is essentially needed so as to know whether the government’s managements on natural resources, financial managements and all projects underway comply with people’s hopes and desires, or not. The OAGU has been serving the interest of the people by auditing.

According to Daw Khin San Oo, permanent secretary, the OAGU’s performances in one year remarkably developed, compared to those of previous years. She added that the good result was attributed to effective revision of “Pareto Rule 80:20.” One does 80% of a work by oneself, but 20% of work hard is achieved as a result. From that situation, one changes his modus operandi. He works 20% main part that is actually worth doing, out of the whole work but his work results in 80 percent success.

Good Habit

The Auditor General of the Union had formed 386 offices in all, including OAGU across the nation, employing staff amounting to more than 6500 to examine 15240 organizations.

Examinations of accounts were made twice in the financial year 2015-2016 for the first 6 months period and second 6-month-period. Generally in the financial year 2016-2017, examination was targeted to do once a year, but depending upon complicated conditions of works, enormous sizes of business and assessment of potential dangers, some departments and organizations are required to undergo two-time-examination process, according to the OAGU.

Examination of financial records is internationally done once a year. All are accepting this as a good habit. Currently, the OAGU’s budget allotment restriction cannot employ more staff to run its routine in accord with its set-up and get permissions to fill the vacant posts. So, the OAGU will emphatically perform examinations of project implementation by performing examinations of financial records and work performances combined with the existing staff, according to one of the old service-men.

Categories of examination/audit are being extended from the examination of financial accounts and examination of following rules and laws to the examination of performance audit.

And, extension of audit types and performance of finding out qualified audits are being transformed with a view to examining effectively departmental managements of spending finance and implementation of works.

The OAGU is the organization that audits accounts of state-owned enterprises. So, it is mainly carrying out financial audit, performance and compliance, in auditing accounts in accord with Lima declaration and Mexico declaration, which all international offices of auditor general abide by.

In auditing work performance, spending of governmental departments which depend upon taxes collected from the people are being examined from the perspective of value for money, frugality, success acquired and capacity.

The Auditor General of the Union had formed 386 offices in all, including OAGU across the nation, employing staff amounting to more than 6500 to examine.
Performance Connected

By doing so, it will be helpful for auditing practically, by understanding facts included in contracts, international experiences, spheres to be specially noticed, co-relation among departments and organizations.

A retired auditor disclosed, “Incompetency of spending public finance in the sectors of oil and natural gas, mining and wastage can be found out. And, by auditing work performances in oil, natural gas and mining sectors, matters on politics, social affairs and economy are to be given care more than ever, leading to the protection of public wellbeing.

Similarly, being a member country of ASEAN, Myanmar held a workshop on auditing for government sectors’ purchase by ASEAN’s OAG, in Nay Pyi Taw from 31 October, 2016 to 6 November, 2016, as a host country.

The OAGU is making efforts to make a big change for operating in accord with the IPSAS, in the nationalized sector.

To upgrade the capacity of OAGU, a workshop was held from 20/7/2016 to 5/8/2016 in co-operation with ADB, with two projects underway with the ADB’s aid practically tried to be audited at the Ministry of Electric Power and Energy and Ministry of Construction.

Previously, B.Com graduates and fresh graduates who gained high marks were allowed to attend Certified Public Accountant courses. Starting from 42 intake, B.Com. Act, BBA graduates entitled to proceed to master degrees, fresh graduates entitled to attend master classes and graduates who passed entrance exams were allowed to attend. Selection

In the CPA class intake 43, graduates of B.Com, B.Act, BBA, those who passed Diploma in Accounting (part2), graduates who completed ACCA Fundamental Skills Level and CIMA Management Level will be allowed to join the courses straight. It is also learnt that any graduates will be granted to attend the class after taking entrance exams.

An accountant said, “In the past, these courses were able to be studied only at training schools opened by Myanmar Accounts Council, with able to study at private accountancy schools allowed by MAC.”

Seeing the truth

Only if accounts are correct, can taxes and revenues worth receiving be collected, to be spent for the development of the country. The OAGU is auditing for the accuracy of accounts in government sector whereas MAC is making audits through the supervision of private accountant firms for the accuracy of accounts in private sectors. It is necessary to produce accountants & professionals in accountantcy that will abide by international standards and ethics for accountants.

Try using internationally standardized accounts

Studies are being made for making use of internationally standardized accounts in privately-owned banks in combination with GIZ. In doing so, 3 Pilot Banks have been chosen for trying using. As regards making use of internationally standardized accounts, the OAGU made initial survey, choosing companies and financial institutions through sampling method for scrutiny. Studies shows that internationally standardized accounts are being used by 60% of all institutions.

The OAGU is dealing with the particulars needed for transferring Cash Basis to Accrual Basis in accord with the International Public Sector Accounting Standard.

Sharing Knowledge

In governmental organizations and departments, in-house accountant posts have been created. Those appointed in these posts are being made to attend the training which are being opened in Nay Pyi Taw, to master the accountancy theoretically, and from them sharing knowledge was made in the financial year 2015-2016. Auditor General of the Union, high-ranking officials and service personnel attended workshops, seminars and meetings held overseas, whereas other service-men are continually being sent to overseas trainings and workshops and three more staff were sent to attend post-graduate degree courses at the two universities.

Two projects underway with the ADB’s aid practically are tried to be audited at the Ministry of Electric Power and Energy, and Ministry of Construction.

Japan lays groundwork for free education policy to help economy

TOKYO — Japan is laying the groundwork for a free education programme for some households that will cover a student’s costs from pre-school to college to ensure the country maintains a highly skilled workforce.

The programme, still in its early stages, is expected to feature in the government’s economic strategy due sometime around June, which is part of Prime Minister Shinzo Abe’s economic agenda, commonly called “Abenomics.”

The government invited Joseph Stiglitz, an economist and a Nobel laureate, to speak at its top advisory panel on Tuesday about investing more in education by introducing universal access to a college education.

A ruling Liberal Democratic Party panel is also debating the scope of the plan and how to fund it, with an eye on helping low-income families.

“Stiglitz has many ideas that agree with some of the things that we are trying to do in the second stage of ‘Abenomics,’” Abe said after the panel met.

Stiglitz also recommended that Japan raise salaries for workers in education and healthcare to draw more workers into the services sector, raise minimum wages, raise public-sector wages and increase productivity. — Reuters

South Korean prosecutors to summon ousted president Park

SEOUL — South Korean prosecutors will summon ousted president Park Geun-hye for questioning as a suspect in a corruption case that led to her impeachment, a prosecution official said on Tuesday, amid a political crisis that has gripped the country for months.

The prosecutor’s office would notify Park on Wednesday when she will be summoned and would not negotiate on the timing, said the official who declined to be identified.

There was no immediate comment from Park. Her legal representatives were not available for comment.

The Constitutional Court dismissed Park from office on Friday when it upheld a parliamentary impeachment vote over an influence-peddling scandal that has shaken the political and business elite. Park has denied any wrongdoing.

She became the country’s first democratically elected president to be removed from office.

Park left the Blue House presidential palace in Seoul on Sunday to return to her private home in the city as an ordinary citizen, stripped of her presidential immunity that has shielded her from prosecution.

Park said through a spokesman that she felt sorry about not being to complete her term but added that the truth would come out, striking a defiant tone about the prospect of facing an investigation.

A special prosecution team had earlier accused Park of colluding with a friend, Choi Soon-sil, to pressure big businesses into contributing to foundations set up to support her policy and allowing her to exert influence on state affairs.

Park and Choi both denied wrongdoing while she was president, Park declined to answer prosecutors’ questions.— Reuters

China waits to hear why Japanese warship going to South China Sea

BEIJING — China said on Tuesday it was waiting for an official word on why Japan plans to send its largest warship on a three-month tour through the South China Sea, but that it hopes Japan can be responsible.

China claims almost all the disputed waters and its growing military presence has fuelled concern in Japan and the West, with the United States holding regular air and naval patrols to ensure freedom of navigation.

The Izumo helicopter carrier, commissioned only two years ago, will make stops in Singapore, Indonesia, the Philippines and Sri Lanka before joining the Malabar joint naval exercise with Indian and US naval vessels in the Indian Ocean in July, sources told Reuters.

Chinese Foreign Ministry spokeswoman Hua Chunying said she did not know if the ship was going to visit countries in Southeast Asia or if there was another aim.

“We have not yet heard what Japan says officially,” she told a daily news briefing.

“If it’s only a normal visit, going to several countries, and passing normally through the South China Sea, then we’ve got no objections, and we hope this kind of normal exchange between relevant countries can play a role promoting regional peace and stability,” Hua said.

“But if going to the South China Sea has different intentions, then that’s a different matter,” she added.

Japan had been stirring up trouble on the South China Sea issue of late, and China hoped it can play a constructive role in peace and stability, Hua said.

Taiwan, Malaysia, Viet Nam, the Philippines and Brunei also claim parts of the sea which has rich fishing grounds, oil and gas deposits and through which around $5 trillion of global sea-borne trade passes each year.

Japan does not have any claim to the waters, but has a separate maritime dispute with China in the East China Sea.— Reuters

Healthy diet good for climate change

US-based research has found that even a modest switch to a more vegetable-based diet could lead to a significant reduction in greenhouse gas emissions.

Today developed and developing countries are trying to reach the highest position of the totum pole of the global economy. Not to be outdone, they are all devoting themselves in their respective fields. On careful analysis of their attainment of their present status, their success and progress can be said to be attributed to their arduous efforts under peaceful political systems. Without peace and stability, they could not have reached their leading roles in the international arena. Among them, we may take Japan as an exemplary nation we should emulate. The world has recognized Japan as an advanced country that had risen, like a phoenix, from the ashes of World War II. Since then, Japan has made concerted efforts only to develop its economy, averting her attention from warlike ideas. To put it simply, our country, as it is, lagged behind our neighbors. Civil wars and poor administration during the rule of successive governments were scourgery that made the country plunge into misery. Some of us are trying out our luck by buying State Lottery tickets every month. However, we need to work more than now, so that we can keep abreast with advanced, developed and some developing countries who are ahead of us. Procrastination is the thief of time, as the saying goes. We must bring about nationwide peace. Without peace, foreign investors will find it difficult to make foreign direct investments in our country. Without peace in the areas of our national brethren, there will hardly be progress in those areas.

Generally, government service personnel are working five days a week, with company staff working six days a week. All the civil service personnel in our country are having 24-25 or so public holidays, just like in other neighboring countries. These days, almost everywhere we go, we hear the same story, that is, about Thingyan festival holidays. To be exact, the voices are full of displeasure and annoyance. According to human nature, every individual never wants to abandon the thing in their hands easily. I am not blaming them for this. As for them, they have changed their position to go to their native places in advance. Furthermore, long holidays will be more convenient for them. Meanwhile, we should notice that soldiers, policemen, firemen, and some personnel from some departments always work without any complaints, having holidays, less than other servicemen. We need to fully understand that long vacations will be inconvenient for foreign embassies, overseas companies and enterprises, foreign and local banks giving financing services and settlement of payments; hospitals and private health care centers and Ministries which have to deal with international affairs. In fact, it is not our inborn right, just a right given by a government occasionally. It would be good for us if our government can arrange for our civil service personnel to be able to travel conveniently at fair prices as a privilege, during Thingyan festival holidays, if not in this year, then certainly in future years.

Scientists have worked out how to combat climate change and improve human health, one mouthful at a time. The answer is a familiar one: they calculate that a relatively modest switch towards a more vegetable-based diet could, in the US at least, lead to a reduction of 222kg in greenhouse gas emissions per person per year, while cutting the relative risk of coronary heart disease, colorectal cancer and type 2 diabetes by 20% to 40%.

It could also reduce US healthcare costs by at least $77bn a year and possibly $83bn. The US spends $3tn on healthcare every year – 1% of gross domestic product – and a significant proportion of health costs are associated with obesity and illnesses linked to diet.

Meat diet

Researchers have repeatedly linked some health risks to a diet of red and processed meats, and environmental scientists have repeated identified cattle and other livestock as an expensive way – in terms of emissions of the greenhouse gases that drive global warming – to deliver calories and proteins that are more efficiently available from grains and pulses.

Not only does livestock farming deliver higher volumes of greenhouse gases, but the consequent global warming imperils grain yields, and in turn hopes of a healthier diet. China, in particular, has declared an ambition to reduce meat consumption in the national diet.

The latest research, in the journal Climatic Change, models the impact of a dietary shift both on the climate and on human health in one country.

“To my knowledge, this is the first time anyone has done this,” says David Cleveland, a geographer and research professor at the University of California at Santa Barbara, who directed the study.

“People have looked at what effect diets have both on climate and on health, but they’ve never examined the potential to mitigate climate change through the food system and the healthcare system together.”

Food production in the US accounts for about 30% of total US greenhouse gas emissions. The researchers, from Oxford in the UK and Lund in Sweden as well as California, used data already available on the links between diet and disease.

They gathered research on the consequences of healthier diets and the impact on emissions. They also looked at what a change of diet could do for health costs. They then took the standard recommended 2,000 calorie daily diet and simulated changes in the source of about half the calories. They reduced the levels of red and processed meats, doubled fruit and vegetable intake, and proposed peas and beans to replace the reduced meat proteins.

They replaced refined cereals with whole grains. They left alone the levels of added sugar along with dairy, eggs, fish and white meat. These changes would be enough, they calculated, to reduce greenhouse gas emissions per person by 222kg to 826kg a year.

National health costs

The researchers found that the more stringent of their proposed diets – one without red meat or processed meat – made a substantial difference to national health costs, particularly for colorectal cancer, coronary heart disease and type 2 diabetes.

“There was a saving of $95bn out of the total annual cost of $230bn for those three diseases,” says Professor Cleveland. “That’s not huge compared with the $3tn total in healthcare costs, but it’s a start. Results like these can also help motivate individual and policy changes.”– Climate News Network

Myanmar Railways to stop running RBE trains during Thingyan

MYANMA Railways plans to stop operating some Rail Bus Engine (RBE) trains in the circular and suburban rail-road sections during the Thingyan Water Festival, the most widely celebrated public holiday in Myanmar.

Train schedules will be reduced by half on the holidays, as the MR predicts a decline in its passenger numbers during the festival period every year. The key objective of the plan is to avoid probable damage to trains during the water festival, said U Zaw Lwin, region manager of the MR’s Transport Division.

Although the MR plans to decrease its train schedules, the trains will still stop at all stations. The MR is now operating its rail transport services to almost 100,000 commuters on a daily basis through 23 trains and 255 scheduled routes.

The MR puts forth continuous efforts to offer better services to the passengers through several railway improvement projects.

Several railway improvement projects including repair of rail-roads, replacement of carriages and installation of modern signals and communication systems to run all railways yards and workshops to full capacity have been implemented by the MR in collaboration with Japanese International Cooperation Agency (JICA).

The MR estimates that the number of commuters is likely to increase after the current projects are completed.—200

Sinn Fein wants vote on N Ireland leaving UK “as soon as possible”

BELFAST — Northern Ireland’s largest Irish nationalist party Sinn Fein on Monday said it wanted a referendum on splitting from the United Kingdom “as soon as possible”, hours after Scottish First Minister Nicola Sturgeon demanded a new independence vote.

Sinn Fein has been regularly calling for a vote for Northern Ireland to leave the UK and unite with the Republic of Ireland since Britain voted to leave the European Union last June while most voters in Northern Ireland voted to remain.

Under a 1998 deal that ended 30 years of sectarian violence in the province, the British government can call a referendum if it appears likely a majority of those voting would seek to form part of a united Ireland.

But Northern Ireland’s Secretary of State James Brokenshire said in July last year that he did not believe the conditions for calling a referendum had been met.

Opinion polls in the past have shown a majority of people in Northern Ireland want to remain part of the United Kingdom — in an IPSOS-MORI poll in September, only 22 percent of 1,000 voters questioned said they would support a united Ireland while 63 percent said they would prefer to remain part of the UK.

However, there has been no poll in recent months and Sinn Fein saw a surge in its support at assembly elections a week ago.

“Brexit will be a disaster for the economy, and a disaster for the people of Ireland. A referendum on Irish unity has to happen as soon as possible,” Sinn Fein’s leader in Northern Ireland Michelle O’Neill told reporters in Belfast.

Fifty-six percent of voters in Northern Ireland voted to remain in the European Union in June last year, but 52 per cent of the United Kingdom as a whole voted to leave.

The British government “are continuing to refuse to listen to the majority view and they are refusing to honour their commitments and agreements,” O’Neill said. — Reuters

Arkansas obtains lethal injection drug ahead of eight executions

LITTLE ROCK — Arkansas has acquired a new supply of a drug needed for its lethal injections ahead of next month’s scheduled executions of eight men over four nights, a state corrections spokesman said on Monday.

Arkansas, which has not put an inmate to death since 2005, is one of several states where executions have been on hold because of legal battles and problems in procuring lethal injection drugs after a sales ban by major pharmaceutical makers.

The state’s stock of potassium chloride expired on 31 January. Retired Governor Asa Hutchinson signed an order for the executions about a month later, despite the lack of the drug.

A new batch of the drug arrived in the state last Wednesday, Arkansas Department of Correction spokesman Solomon Graves said by phone. He would not disclude how the state got it, citing an Arkansas law prohibiting disclosure of the source of drugs used for executions.

“I can confirm that we have obtained an additional amount of potassium chloride sufficient to carry out the executions scheduled by the governor,” Graves said.

A spokesman for the governor said Hutchinson had maintained confidence in the correction department’s ability to procure the drug.

Hutchinson acted after the US Supreme Court rejected appeals from the eight inmates, who contended they were entitled to know the source of the drugs in order to avoid unnecessary pain during the executions.

Arkansas uses potassium chloride in combination with vecuronium bromide and midazolam. The latter drug is intended to render the inmate unconscious before the other two chemicals are administered to paralyze the lungs and stop the heart. Death penalty opponents contend midazolam is not effective, citing several executions in three other states in which the condemned appeared to writhe in pain before succumbing. The lethal injections in Arkansas are set to take place in pairs from 17 to 27 April. No state has executed more than two men in a single month in the past 20 years and none has performed eight executions in 10 days, according to the Washington-based nonprofit Death Penalty Information Centre. — Reuters
Accomplishments in addressing the challenges and changes during one year period

Khin Yadanar

If someone wants to see the most extended Region embossed with gloomy and overcasted Naga Ranges, lush green meadow and tropical plain, Sagaing Region is the perfect example of the sort.

Peacefulness, breath-taking scenic beauties and combination of physiographic charms are the epitome of the Sagaing Region.

It has 6,010 villages, 11 towns, 10 districts including Naga Self-administered Zone.

Relentless effort with strong determination for the development of the life of the people of the region were made in one year period of the new government.

The successful results were gained through the collective struggle of the people against all challenges of the nature and challenges in the sectors of health, social and economy.

Onset of the challenges
“We had faced the natural disasters such as storm, floods, hailstorm and mild earthquake. The avian flu that spooked people around the country occurred in Monywa was overcome by the consummate performance of the Region Government” said Dr. Myint Naing, Chief Minister of Sagaing Region.

Unprecedented Measles Outbreak
Sixty-two villagers died of measles at Htankanwlama village, Lahe Township, Naga Self-administered Zone. Immediately after getting the information, Minister for Social Affairs together with the responsible persons of Region Public Health Department went to the place of incident and gave necessary measures in keeping the disease under control.

Since the outbreak of measles is due to the lack of regular vaccination, vaccination were carried out in 5 villages of Nan Yun Township and 76 villages in Lahe Township.

Besides, 56 staffs of Region Health Department were assigned to Naga Self-administered Zone to engage in mass vaccination for Measles and German Measles.

Prevention of Natural Disasters
It was reported that the preparatory measures for quick response to natural disasters with a view to alleviate the impact were discussed and confirmed in the meeting of Natural Disaster Management Committee, Sagaing Region.

The programmes has been set to disseminate the knowledge pertaining to natural disasters.

Since the outbreak of measles is due to the lack of regular vaccination, vaccination were carried out in 5 villages of Nan Yun Township and 76 villages in Lahe.

Over 61.7 Million Kyats
401 villages, 44 wards and 19 townships of Sagaing Region were inundated by the overflow of Chindwin and Ayeyawady rivers in 2016. Region Relief and Resettlement Department could assist 61.7 Million Kyats to the people of affected area apart from providing 2,546 Million Kyats, rice, cooking oil and bottled water after removing the people to the area free from inundation.

Gale (strong wind) also occurred in the region and caused damages in which 836 houses were disappeared.

Flood plain (marshland) disappeared
As one of the causes of inundation in Sagaing Region was discovered as widespread expansion of illegal fishponds on the flood plain (marshland), seven illegal fish pond owners, 4 fields, 18 lease holders, 17 ponds, 16.65 acre of paddy field, 15.7 farm land were filed a lawsuit.

Sagaying Region Government could bring back the 270 inhabitants of Sagaying Region who were detained in 11 detention camps in Malaysia and sent them to their respective family.

Illegal loggers were exposed and arrested and their 8618.5868 tons of logs confiscated are sold to the people to use in building religious edifices, school, hospital, dispensaries, bridges and other development works.

Transparent Mining

Systematic management of mining in Sagaying Region is put in place exposing illegal mining and taking action on the mine owners. 14 mining companies which are not abiding by the mining law, regulations and practices were taken action by the government and 23 illegal and ownerless implements for gold mining were confiscated.

Overseeing and supervising teams are standing in these activities and are watching mine activities whether they are in line with the EIA/RIA. Sagaying Region Government, Minister for Agriculture, Livestock and Irrigation, Minister for City Development, MPs of Hlutkyaw and district and township administrative bodies made ground inspection tour on Myanmar-Wonpaung Copper Mine Project and held coordination meetings to address the problems of the local people. Monthly meeting of Joint Implementation Team is regularly held in order to assess the CSD works relating to Letpadaung Taung, Sabe Taung and Kyesin Taung copper mining works including the lingering problems on expropriated lands of the local farmers and farm lands lost under the coverage of tailing waste earth.

99.9 per cent of projects in Sagaying Region accomplished

Out of 1,728 projects budgeted by the Sagaying Region Government, 1,622 have been accomplished and 117 are under construction. Meanwhile, 92 projects are being implemented with the budget of the Union Government and two failed. There are 3,495 investment projects in the Sagaying Region in the 2016-2017 Fiscal Year and 99.9 per cent of them have been accomplished while 6 per cent are being implemented and 0.1 per cent failed.

Thanks to practicing the tender system for development projects in the region in the 2016-2017 Fiscal Year, Sagaying Region Government could save more than K4 billion. Besides, Sagaying Region sets its GDP target of more than K7,889 billion, with 8.2 per cent increasing rate in the 2017-2018 Fiscal Year. Meanwhile, in the same fiscal year, Sagaying Region has an investment target of more than K103 billion in the state-owned sector.

The government is currently preparing to build a small-scale hydropower plant over the Honggyi Creek about 22 miles north-west of Kamti and the plan is expected to produce 2.4 Mega Watt.

Water Purifying Plant

Chindwin River water pumping station and purifying plant are currently constructed in Monywa to supply clean water to the people. Besides, in the 2016-2017 Fiscal Year, the government drilled tube-wells and built lakes and water supply facilities.

However, when we carried out reforms on the ground, we worked our best following the majority decision,” said Sagaying Region Chief Minister Dr Myint Naing.

While carrying out development works and settling issues including land disputes in the region with transparency and accountability, the Sagaying Region Government continues its reforms.
Arctic ice loss driven by natural swings, not just mankind — study

OSLO — Natural swings in the Arctic climate have caused up to half the precipitous losses of sea ice around the North Pole in recent decades, with the rest driven by man-made global warming, scientists said on Monday.

The study indicates that an ice-free Arctic Ocean, often feared to be just years away, in one of the starkest signs of man-made global warming, could be delayed if nature swings back to a cooler mode.

Natural variations in the Arctic climate “may be responsible for about 30–50 per cent of the overall decline in September sea ice since 1979,” the US-based team of scientists wrote in just Nature Climate Change.

Sea ice has shrunk steadily and hit a record low in September 2012 — late summer in the Arctic — in satellite records dating back to 1979.

The ice is now among the smallest for mid-March, rivaling winter lows set in 2016 and 2015.

The study, separating man-made from natural influences in the Arctic atmospheric circulation, said that a decades-long natural warming of the Arctic climate might be tied to shifts as far away as the tropical Pacific Ocean.

“If this natural mode would stop or reverse in the near future, we would see a slow-down of the recent fast melting trend, or even a recovery of sea ice,” said lead author Qinhua Ding, of the University of California, Santa Barbara.

But in the long term the build-up of man-made greenhouse gases would become an ever more overwhelming factor, he wrote in an e-mail.

“Looking ahead, it is still a matter of when, rather than if, the Arctic will become ice-free in summer,” said Ed Hawkins, of the University of Reading, who was not involved in the study.

The melt of the Arctic is disrupting the livelihoods of indigenous peoples and damaging wildlife such as polar bears and seals while opening the region to more oil and gas and shipping.

Professor Andrew Shepherd, of Leeds University, who did not participate in the study, welcomed it as pinning down the relative shares of natural and man-made influences.

“Nobody’s done this attribution before,” he said.

The findings could help narrow down huge uncertainties about when the ice will vanish.

In 2013, a UN panel of climate scientists merely said human influences had “very likely contributed” to the loss of Arctic ice, without estimating how much.

It said that the ice could disappear by mid-century if emissions keep rising. —Reuters

German police raid flats, shut mosque visited by Berlin truck attacker

BERLIN — German authorities on Tuesday raided apartments linked to a mosque in the city of Hildesheim visited by Tunisian failed asylum seeker Anis Amri, who drove a truck into a Berlin Christmas market in December and killed 12 people.

The local state interior ministry said more than 300 police searched the apartments of eight people and shut down the mosque and the association which ran it, saying it recruited young Muslims to join Islamic State militants in Iraq and Syria.

“The ban of the association breaks up a hot spot of the radical Salafist scene in Germany,” Lower Saxony Interior Minister Boris Pistorius said, referring to Muslims who espouse a strict interpretation of Sunni Islam.

Authorities raided the mosque in the summer of 2016 over suspicions that it was radicalizing Muslims and encouraging them to travel to war zones in Syria and Iraq.

Rupert Grint admits he almost quit acting after Harry Potter

The 28-year-old actor, who achieved massive success with his turn as the wizard, Ron Weasley, says he wanted to live his life “a little bit” after being constantly busy with his film commitments, reported Entertainment Weekly.

“We had such an intimate and intense few years in this bubble. When I started, (acting) was never something that I aspired to do. I did acting with school plays and stuff like that. But it was never something that I actively dreamed of.

“I mean, I fell in love with it while I was doing it. But I definitely did think. Is this really what I want to do? I wanted to live a little bit. I felt like I’d missed out on a lot,” says Grint. “The actor, who is back on the scene after shooting two British TV shows “Sick Note” and “Snatch”, says he enjoyed his time away from the arc lights.

“Being in that adult environment from such an early age, it was nice to just be away from it and not have any kind of commitments at all, and just be a bit free,” says the actor.—PTI

Britain’s Ed Sheeran storms US Billboard charts

NEW YORK — Ed Sheeran stormed the US charts on Monday, taking the top spot on the Billboard 200 with his new album “Divide” and also topping the digital songs chart, with lead single “Shape of You.”

The British singer-songwriter sold an overwhelming 451,000 units of “Divide” in its debut week, giving him the biggest US sales week for any album so far this year.

His US success follows an even bigger start for “Divide” in his native Britain, where Sheeran, 26, had the fastest selling album by a solo male artist in British chart history on Friday.

The singer also made news this week when the makers of HBO TV series “Game of Thrones” announced he would be making a guest star appearance in the upcoming seventh season of the fantasy adventure, which arrives in July.

The Billboard 200 album chart tallies units from album sales, song sales (10 songs equal one album) and streaming activity (1,500 streams equal one album). Sales of rock band Metallica’s album “Hardwired... To Self-Destruct” jumped more than 200 percent to take the No 2 spot on the Billboard 200 with 81,000 units sold for the week. The jump followed a promotional deal linked to the band’s upcoming US tour.

Last week’s top spot, Atlanta rapper Future’s “HNDRXX” album, slipped to No 5.

On the digital songs chart, which measures online singles sales, Sheeran’s “Shape of You” sold another 115,000 units for the week, nine weeks after its release. Sheeran also saw his new single “Perfect” take the No 8 spot.

Peace, love and ‘Barbecue,’ a global film ode to grilled meat

AUSTIN, Texas — The primal confluence of food, flames and family simmers in high definition in “Barbecue,” a globe-trotting new documentary and cinematic love letter to cooking meat over an open fire.

The feature-length movie filmed in 12 countries had its global premiere at the South by Southwest film festival in Austin, Texas, not far from some of the barbecue joints that inspired Australian filmmaker Matthew Salleh and his partner Rose Tucker to explore the globe’s shared barbecue culture.

“Barbecue is this perfect combination of tradition, community and culture,” Salleh said in a weekend interview shortly after the film’s debut.

“We just started talking to people and everyone was passionate about their country’s version of barbecue,” Salleh said over a plate of barbecued brisket, beef rib and sausage in Austin.

“In the six or seven months that we researched it, we were pitched by people who said ‘you have got to come to my country,’” he said, adding they are shopping for a distributor for the film.

He and Tucker went on a 200-day shoot that took them from Sweden to Uruguay, with stops including Armenia, Mongolia, Japan and a refugee camp on the Syria-Jordan border.

While the barbecue craft varied from the hot stones used to cook marmot in Mongolia to the pit used to grill goat in Mexico, the message in each trip was the same. Communities and families came together around the food.

“We have vegetarians who have seen the film and you cannot deny the cultural significance in the world of eating meat over the fire,” Salleh said.

The film starts in South Africa, where racial divides of apartheid still scar the country, and shows the separate and similar barbecue tradition among blacks and whites. It includes Filipino family gatherings around roast pig and exiled Syrians trying to recapture a bit of home at a shawarma shop in a refugee camp.

After their trek, Salleh and Tucker says they have received gentle ribbing from people asking why their country’s barbecue did not make the cut and a persistent question of what barbecue was best.

“At this point we begin the politically correct process of saying how we loved them all,” Salleh said. Tucker added the answer could be more about the experience, then the taste.

“We had some of the best experiences in Armenia where you drink vodka with the first bite of meat,” she said.—Reuters

Japan’s decluttering guru Kondo now has an app for tidying up

AUSTIN (Texas) — The newest tool for internationally acclaimed organizing guru Marie Kondo in her global battle against messy rooms is an app.

“My goal is to have as many people as possible who can get the job done in tidying up,” she said in an interview after speaking at the South by Southwest technology conference in Austin, Texas, over the weekend.

“To achieve that, I’m implementing various measures, one of which is the app to support decluttering,” said the woman whose name has been turned into a verb by followers who clean out clutter at home and say that it lowers who clean out clutter at home.

Kondo is known to global audiences for her best-selling books, including “The Life-Changing Magic of Tidying Up: The Japanese Art of Decluttering and Organizing,” which has been translated from Japanese to more than 40 languages, with more than 7 million copies sold worldwide.

The app called “KonoMari,” was launched a few months ago and gives out organizing tips, allows people to share before and after pictures, and provides a platform for her followers to socialize.

The followers of the woman who earned a spot on Time magazine’s 100 Most Influential People list in 2015 call themselves “Konverts.”

But her critics see her as an irritating presence with a cult-like following, harping on the glaringly obvious need to be better organized.

Kondo has made an art of folding clothes into optimal shapes for storage and her KonMari disciples see her words as a philosophy about seeking a happier life by putting their homes in order.

Kondo spends 80 percent of her time outside of Japan, but with the help of technology, she wants to knock on the doors of more homes around the world.

“Tidying up is a broad theme that is relevant to anyone in any country,” said Kondo, who has a knack for decluttering her quotes.

KENT (England) — An album containing never-before-seen candid photos of German Nazi party leader Adolf Hitler and party members will be auctioned on Wednesday, according to the auction house.

The photo album found in April 1945 in the bedroom of Hitler’s longtime companion Eva Braun could fetch up to more than 15 thousand pounds sterling (roughly $18,340 dollars), said C&T Auctions consultant Tim Harper.

“The pictures are very personal,” said Harper, who noted the item is currently owned by an unknown collector.

The auction will take place at Royal Tunbridge Wells, a town in Kent, England.

Harper explained that Hitler kept tight control over what information could be released publicly in order to protect his image, and that of the Nazi party.

“Hitler’s image, particularly his photographs, were controlled. They had to be approved,” Harper explained.

Georgie Brauer, who noted the album from there, Harper added.

Misery for Mourinho as Chelsea beat United to reach Cup semis

LONDON — Antonio Conte got the better of Jose Mourinho for the second time this season as Chelsea beat 10-man Manchester United 1-0 at Stamford Bridge to reach the FA Cup semi-finals on Monday.

N’Golo Kanté’s 51st minute goal was enough for Conte’s double-chasing side to break United’s resistance after the visitors had Ander Herrera sent off after 35 minutes for a second yellow card—both for crude fouls on Eden Hazard.

United, who face a Europa League last 16 tie on Thursday against Russian club Rostov, were missing the suspended Zlatan Ibrahimovic and injured Wayne Rooney and offered little threat once Kanté had beaten David de Gea with a precise low shot.

While Mourinho was spared the humiliation of the 4-0 thrashing his old club dished out in October’s Premier League meeting—his first return to Stamford Bridge since being sacked last season—he was again found wanting as Chelsea’s fans delighted in chanting the name of his successor Conte. Mourinho’s frustration boiled over at times and the Portuguese and Italian Conte had to be separated after an angry exchange shortly after Herrera’s sending off left United facing a mammoth task.

Chelsea could have won by more, although holders United did have their moments and came close to an equaliser in the second half when Marcus Rashford was foiled by keeper Thibaut Courtois.

Wilshere puts Bournemouth survival ahead of Arsenal future

LONDON — Bournemouth’s Jack Wilshere has delayed a decision on his Arsenal future as the on-loan midfielder focuses on helping the south coast club to retain their place in the Premier League.

Once regarded as one of the brightest young hope in English soccer before a series of injury setbacks, Wilshere has a year remaining on his Arsenal contract but British media reported on Monday that the north London club are yet to open talks regarding a new deal with the 25-year-old.

“I’m not thinking about my future,” Wilshere told British media.

“My main concern at the moment is trying to keep Bournemouth in this league. I’ve got a year left at Arsenal. As soon as the season ends, I’ll sit down and I’ll think about it.”

Bournemouth, who ended an eight-game winless run in the league in Saturday’s 3-2 victory over West Ham United, are still in danger of being dragged into the relegation battle, with just six points separating them from the bottom three.

Wilshere, who left Arsenal in search of more game time, has been relegated to the bench in Bournemouth’s last two league games. “No matter what happens next year — if I’m here, if I’m not — if I’m at Arsenal, I’m not going to let that affect me, my focus is trying to help Bournemouth stay up,” he said.

Former Chelsea midfielder Essien joins Indonesia’s Persib

JAKARTA — Former Chelsea, Real Madrid and AC Milan midfielder Michael Essien has joined Indonesia’s Persib Bandung, the club announced on social media on Tuesday.

The 34-year-old Ghanaian is the highest profile signing for Indonesian club Persib Bandung since Cameroon World Cup hero Roger Milla and Argentine World Cup winner Mario Kempes played in the country in the 1990s.

Essien, who has been a free agent since leaving Greek club Panathinaikos at the end of last season, won the Champions League, two Premier League titles and four FA Cups during nine seasons at Chelsea.

He also played at two World Cups for Ghana, who he represented 58 times, before retiring in the wake of the 2014 tournament in Brazil. Persib posted photographs of a shirt bearing the number five, the number he made his own at Chelsea, with Essien’s name across the back before publishing further pictures of the player posing with club officials.

Based in Bandung in West Java, Persib are one of the best supported clubs in Indonesia and finished third in the recently completed President’s Cup.
