The following is the address delivered by State Counsellor Daw Aung San Suu Kyi at the 2nd anniversary of the signing of the Nationwide Ceasefire Agreement (NCA).

NATIONWIDE CEASEFIRE AGREEMENT

WE are gathered here today to mark an important event in history. Today we celebrate the second anniversary of the signing of the Nationwide Ceasefire Agreement (NCA).

When our Government took over responsibility of the State in 2016, there were already some signatories to the NCA. Pursuant to the NCA, the Joint Ceasefire Monitoring Committee (JMC) was established. The JMC is tasked to coordinate the compliance of all signatories to the NCA. The NCA also established the Union Peace Dialogue Joint Committee (UPDJC) which is responsible for drafting a framework for political dialogue and provides a necessary platform for this undertaking.

I am happy to report that we have successfully established in a systematic manner the monitoring mechanism both at the State and Local levels, while increasing the participation of civilians in the JMC. On political dialogue, we have successfully launched the Union Peace Conference-21st Century Panglong which has brought about the agreement of 37 fundamental principles on Federalism signed as Part One of the Union Accord.

Despite criticism of the NCA, there has been noticeable progress. We have successfully decreased conflicts in the regions of the Ethnic Armed Organizations signatories and as a result, the socio-economic lives of the local people have significantly improved. It is our ethnic peoples who are enjoying the fruits of peace.

Although the JMC is not a perfect mechanism, the existence of the JMC alone is a step towards the culture of negotiation to settle disputes among armed groups. We need to assess and reform the process of JMC and dispute settlement mechanisms on this second anniversary of the NCA.

On Political Dialogues, the UPDJC has successfully launched the Union Peace Conference-21st Century Panglong with wider participation and inclusive of the various groups ie. Government, Parliament, Tatmadaw, Ethnic Armed Organisations, Political Parties, National Races representatives, stakeholders, and Civil Society Organisations.

STOCK-TAKING

If we take stock of our post-independence history, you will see that we have experienced the Parliamentary era, Revolutionary Council era, Burma Socialist Programme Party era, State Law and Order Restoration Council/State Peace and Development Council era, U Thein Sein Government era and our current Government era. It is during our current era that political dialogue has been initiated and political agreements have been successfully negotiated. Based on the experiences and lessons learnt from the past, we strongly believe that political dialogues are the way forward. The current political dialogues, however, are still far from perfect. It needs the participation of all remaining ethnic armed organizations. After the second session of the 21st Century Panglong, the Government, ethnic armed organizations and political parties have respectively taken stock of these political dialogues and have agreed that there is a necessity to review these dialogues for enhanced engagement.

We also now have a more systematic approach regarding the NCA such as the monitoring and dispute settlement mechanisms. This said, there is still room for improvement and enhanced coordination since this is our first experience. Although the political dialogue has been initiated for the first time in our history and political agreements have been reached, we still need to work together to achieve positive results based on our experiences.

NON-SIGNATORY

When the government initiated the peace process, some groups were still under negotiation and some had not accepted the NCA yet. For those non-signatory groups, we are ready to welcome them and look forward to initiate peace negotiations. Our political dialogues were aimed to achieve fundamental principles acceptable to all. Our government welcomes all non-signatory groups to participate in the process of formulating the principles towards a Democratic Federal Union in the future. In fact, the NCA is not an end in itself, but just the first step towards national reconciliation in the country.

I would like to reiterate today that the NCA opens the door for political dialogues which will pave the way to the Union Peace Conference. Taking this opportunity, I would like to express my appreciation to everyone who made great efforts leading to the establishment of the NCA including former President U Thein Sein.

The previous government initiated the negotiations that led to the signing of the NCA. Our government proudly carries on this process. With full accountability, we have adapted the peace process to make the best of the existing circumstances after holding several discussions with the ethnic armed groups, political parties, civil society organizations and stakeholders who are deeply involved in the peace process. Our main objective is to achieve the age-old dreams of peace and national reconciliation of the people.

This is the second anniversary of the signing of the Nationwide Ceasefire Agreement and we have held the second session of the 21st Century Panglong Peace Conference. We aim to conduct the third session of the Peace Conference this year and have started preparations. The Peace Conference will continue to discuss the unfinished fundamental principles on Federalism as raised at the 2nd session as well as to formulate new principles. We plan to hold two sessions of the Peace Conference in 2018.

At the upcoming sessions of the Peace Conference, I urge all of you to finalize all the fundamental principles on Federalism. Once we have agreed on the fundamental principles, we can continue to discuss and elaborate on their details.
Myanmar’s trade with EU hit over US$ 1 billion in first five months of this FY

Myanmar’s trade with members of European Union over past five months in current FY amounted to over US$1 billion, comprising $665 million worth of export and $362 million worth of import, according to the statistics released by the Ministry of Commerce last Friday.

Since April, Germany was ranked first among EU countries having the largest trade value of $354 million with Myanmar, followed by Britain at the second place with about $145 million.

France was listed at the third place with trade values of about $140 million while Italy stood at the fourth place with estimated $99 million and Myanmar’s trade with the Netherlands reached about $82 million.

Beyond regional trade regime, Myanmar has established trade links with EU member countries.

The country mainly exported rice, pulses, tea leaf, coffee, apparel from garment sector on Cut-Make-Pack basis and fish while cosmetic, food and beverages and consumer goods were imported into Myanmar.

Rice exports delayed due to stormy rains

May Thet Hnin

Myanmar’s rice exports to foreign countries delayed due to stormy rains during these days, local wholesalers from Bayintnaung Market say.

This comes from the meeting between U Aung Htoo, Deputy Minister for the Ministry of Commerce, and the Myanmar Rice Federation (MRF) and Bayintnaung Wholesale Market on October 14.

U Than Oo, secretary of Bayintnaung Wholesale Market, said, “Rice production of farmers has been impeded by severe weather; with the result that the market sees the little inflow of rice as farmers can’t harvest in time. There is a shortage of old rice in the market as the old rice is sold in advance before the harvest of new paddy.”

He continued to say that more time is required to meet the current target to export three million bags of rice to foreign trade partners.

In the past, the Bayintnaung Market sold nearly 100,000 bags of rice per day. At the present time, it receives only around 20,000 bags of rice a day.

“About six export vessels arrived at the port to ship low quality rice to Africa and Banglades. Currently, it is difficult to export because of shortage of the product. It is likely to damage the country’s image as other countries may make bad comments on Myanmar’s market. However, rice production may reach the export target soon,” said U Kyaw Oo, a domestic rice exporter.

The prices of rice increased suddenly by almost Ks1,000 per bag, with the traders suffering a loss of 10 per cent a bag, he added.

Efforts to seek the best solutions for this problem will be made by the Commerce Ministry in cooperation with a committee including 11 members from the MRF beginning on October 15.

“Some exporters prolong the sale of rice at a high price, waiting for the prices to drop,” said U Than Oo.

U Hla Win, rice grower from Labutta Township in Ayeeyawady Region, said, “Growers are waiting for suitable time to harvest their rice because of rains. They hesitate to harvest paddy due to consecutive rainfall. Currently, the market is facing scarcity of raw materials because of late harvesting, resulting in slight increase of rice prices in domestic market.”

According to prediction of Meteorologist Dr Tun Lwin, there is likely to be a series of storms in South China Sea and Bay of Bengal before the end of this year. Storms mostly occur in October and November as the highest sea temperatures are typically reached during these months.
Commercer Ministry allows export of live cattle starting this month

THE Ministry of Commerce has given the nod for exports of live cattle to foreign countires as of October 9 through its order No. 48/2017 issued on October 12.

The move is aimed at ensuring the emergence of official export market for live cattle as well as generating income and creating more employment opportunities for farmers and protecting their interests, according to the ministry’s announce-ment.

U Khin Maung Lwin, as-sistant secretary of Ministry of Commerce, said that the main purposes are to raise the country’s revenue in-come by officially export of live cattle, to ensure exports of live cattle via official route. He continued to say that working cattle which are still useful for the country’s farming sector are restricted to be exported.

Systematic inspection will be carried out on the export of live farm animals. Those wishing to export cattle have to carry out buying, collecting and transportation of the farm animals as well as veterinary physical examination in line with rules and regulations of the Trade Department under the Ministry of Commerce and the Livestock Breeding and Veterinary Department under the Ministry of Agri-culture, Livestock and Irriga-tion.—Shin Min ■

Myanmar’s foreign trade up by $2.8 bln this FY

DESPITE a continued decline in border trade, the total external trade value between Myanmar and international countries as of 6 October went up by US$2.864 billion than that of last year, the Ministry of Commerce reported on Friday.

Between 1 April and 6 Oc-tober, the value of foreign trade exceeded $16 bln, including over $7 bln from the export and over $9 bln from the import, with $2.040 bln in trade deficit.

Eighty percent of Myanmar’s exports were accommodated by sea ports. The country’s external trade by sea rose by $2.952 bln since April. However, its border trade decreased by $87 million.

This time last FY, the coun-try’s exports were valued at $5.9 bln while it import amounted to $7.717 bln, resulting in a trade deficit of $1.7 bln.

Myanmar exports agricultural products, livestock, fishery products, forest products, minerals, manufacturing and other products while capital goods, consumer goods and raw indus-trial products are imported into Myanmar.

Among the factors to blame for the trade deficit are increases in luxury imports. The trade au-thorities are putting concerted efforts to cut the trade deficit by promoting the country’s export sector and seeking new markets and business links for local products.—Swe Nyein ■

Export value increases by $1.3 bln this year

THE export value of Myanmar with foreign countries totalled US$7.232 billion as of October 6, an increase of $1.3 million matched against the same peri-od of last year, according to the Ministry of Commerce’s latest report. This time last year, the country exported $5.922 bln worth of a wide range of products to the international trade partners.

Since this April, the coun-try exported $1.527 bln worth of agricultural products, $8.265 million worth of animal products, $303.395 mln worth of fisheries products, $676.496 mln worth of mineral products, $116.368 mln worth of forest products, $3.333 bln worth of manufacturing goods and others worth $1.266 bln. This year, $4.698 bln worth of products went to foreign countries through private sector while the govern-ment sector exported products worth $2.533 bln. The country exported $1.940 bln from govern-ment sector and $3.981 bln from private sector to foreign buyers last fiscal year.—Shwe Khine ■
Conflicts must be resolved within democracy framework

The following is the address delivered by Commander-in-Chief of Defence Services Senior General Min Aung Hlaing at the 2nd Anniversary of the signing of NCA.

I have said matters related to NCA at the ceremonies, discussions and meetings concerning the peace. In this regard, I would like to mention the first point that “NCA is the main fundamental fact in the peace process which the country urgently needs,” the second point that “without implementing the fundamental fact or all our peace processes without ending a noise of gunfire may not be rest assure and it may return to armed struggle line,” and the third point that “the NCA was drawn by the government, the Tatmadaw and all armed ethnic organizations based on initial proposals of armed ethnic organizations, not by individual or single organization.” Moreover, it can be found no agreement was signed through coordination with many organizations in the history of Myanmar’s peace processes. So, I would like to note that the NCA was conducted in a democratic way which means agreement of majority and cooperation. As such, cooperation in NCA is hoped for the sake of the State and the people in the peace process which is of great importance for the nation and the people as part of implementing the people’s desire in a democratic way.

Firstly, the basic principle of the NCA was agreed “to build the Republic of the Union of Myanmar as the Union based on democracy and federal system in line with the result of the political dialogue with full rights and guarantees of democracy, national equality and self-administration in accord with the Panglong spirit depending on liberty, equality and justice by upholding the non-disintegration of the Union, non-disintegration of national solidarity and perpetuation of national sovereignty.” To restore long-term existence of peace, the political dialogues with participation of stakeholders based on wish and attitude of the ethnicities must be held in designated places of armed ethnic organizations. I would like to say that the agreement is more meaningful than the word of ceasefire. Moreover, the NCA includes the facts how ways and means will be practised in detailed implementation of abiding by the disciplines and enjoying rights.
NCA aims at solving political problem through peaceful political dialogue

The Union based on democracy and federal system which people aspire to, opposing democracy, having desire for armed ‘anarchy’, and disregard the interests of the Union and its people.

The objective of establishing the Union in harmony after Bogyoke Aung San and the ethnic leaders signed the Panglong Agreement on 12 February 1947 is the setting up of a Union where there is mutual respect and recognition among all the ethnic natives of the Union and where democracy, equality and self-determination are guaranteed.

It has been two years since the NCA was signed between the Government of the Republic of the Union of Myanmar and the armed ethnic groups. We all signed the NCA on equal terms. The aim is to build a lasting peace by finding an answer to the political problem through peaceful political dialogue without applying military means for ending all armed conflicts erupted in the Union since we regained independence.

The objective of establishing the Union in harmony after Bogyoke Aung San and the ethnic leaders signed the Panglong Agreement on 12 February 1947 is the setting up of a Union where there is mutual respect and recognition among all the ethnic natives of the Union and where democracy, equality and self-determination are guaranteed.

After the Panglong Agreement was signed for all the ethnic peoples of the Union to live in harmony and peace, the country restored her independence and established the Union. Sadly, the country cannot fully realize the Panglong Agreement till now, especially, the self-administration and self-determination for all the ethnic races guaranteed in the Paragraph 5 of the Agreement. Likewise, democratic rights assured in the Paragraph 7 cannot be fully materialized till today. So, in the view of the ethnic races, the internal strife that continues till today is the result of the failure to totally implement the Panglong Agreement. Peace process is the best means to end the internal strife. Besides, all-inclusive political dialogue is a must. The joint implementation of the NCA on equal terms within the NCA framework is the only way towards solving the political problems through the political means.

The Union based on democracy and federal system which not only today’s armed ethnic organizations but also other ethnic organizations demand has been agreed in the first basic principle of the NCA. In this regard, somebody asks about the type of federal system. The first basic principle guaranteed “the Union based on democracy and federal system with full rights and guarantees of democracy, national equality and self-administration.” It is the federal system that all our national people wish or the Union system. It is the aim for the federal Union and rights for all national people. To have this aim and rights, what do we adhere to? We must adhere to three Universal Truths—liberty, equality and justice. And then, it needs to adhere to Our Three National Causes for serving interest of the Myanmar nationals. A point of the agreement means “it needs to build the process for responsibilities, rights and aims in detail in line with the result of political dialogue” which is a democratic peace method called the negotiation way.

All armed ethnic organizations must sign the NCA. Some organizations said it does not need to sign the NCA because there is no firing and attacks. In fact, the NCA means an agreement of ceasefire. Actually, its essence is wider and deeper. So, I firmly ask you to sign the NCA. No provision in this agreement limits or restricts the rights of people, but provide every possible right for them. It is therefore fair to assume that continued ignoring of this fact amounts to resisting the federal Union which people aspire to, opposing democracy, having desire for armed ‘anarchy’, and disregard the interests of the Union and its people.

We need to go in line with law in building a Union based on democracy and federal system. And rule of law is also necessary to build such a Union we aspire to. There are different views about the rule of law. Legal scholars focus on stability to proceed with justice, and building the new things. We should be aware that it is building rather than revolution that is being practised in the world today.

In conclusion, I would like to urge—

- all groups to take a broader look at the NCA, which absolutely guarantees the rights of national brethren, rather than viewing it as a mere ceasefire framework, and participate without hesitation.

- every citizen to accept and believe in multi-party democracy system, which is the wish of the people, and practise and abide by all democratization works in line with law.

- to proceed with justice, freedom and equality in building a democratic federal Union, which is the hope and wish of people, while safeguarding Our Three Main National Causes—our national interests.

Let’s take part in implementing the tasks of peace, stability and national development

Khin Maung Oo

Myanmar is one of the countries in the world which is held together as a Union since independence. 135 ethnic races have been living here in unity and oneness with peace and stability, overcoming throes and woes. Though being different from each other in their own characteristics, they co-exist with the spirit of brotherhood like a big family. Different beliefs and colors cannot split their unity and co-existence at any time. This proves that they have descended from the same source many years ago.

Current situations in Rakhine State occurred quite differently. Together with national ethnic people such as Rakhine Kaman, Khamee, Daingnet, Maramagyi, Mro and Thet who had lived here since time immemorial. Then, newcomers the Bengalis came to live here. Being typical land owners, national ethnic races accepted them with hospitality, free from any hatred. As time went by, these national ethnic races decreased in number, especially in northern Rakhine State. As if other etiolated plants cannot grow well when wild grass are exuberantly growing, increasingly growing numbers of people tend to influence the others minorities, pushing away the weaker ones to other places.

Now, 95 percent of the population of northern Rakhine State are made up of Bengalis, with only 5 percent of the local population being national ethnic people. The whole world should have known the truth. In such a situation extremist terrorists killed the remaining minorities in the attacks. Now the minorities have been killed and displaced by increasing alien residents.

In addition to local ethnic races, extremist terrorists inhumanely slaughtered the local residents—Hindus amounting to over 100. This event should have been known by the whole world, especially international figures.

Yet, they are saying quite the opposite, may be knowingly or without knowledge of the truth. The actual facts can be known by taking time to observe true events on the ground. We welcome with open arms for them to be able to do so in just-and-fair-minded ways. We have opened our doors for them. Extremists are spreading their propaganda in different languages, for example broadcasting false news in English through R-Visions and RTVs, with a view to agitating the world community.

For those who are well convinced of Myanmar’s historical background and terrorists’ strategy of spreading propaganda, their invented news can be well-assessed. Had the global community ascertained that majority Muslims were applied by killing local nationals and Hindus, they would be well convinced that events which recently happened in northern Rakhine State were caused by ARSA extremist terrorists.

Last but not least, the international community should distinguish violation of human rights from terrorism, majority from minority, aggression from protecting the sovereignty, and simultaneously they should take part in implementing tasks of peace, stability and our national development, with genuine and pure minds.

“It is time we take care of our soil”

Khaing Min Thant

Among all the impacts resulting from human activities ranging from global warming to environmental pollutants, soil losses and degradation is an important issue that is not commonly well known among our societies. Soil is central to our very existence as there can be no life without soil. Our most immediate need, food for instance, comes from soil and without soil, we would not be able to grow anything. Soil provides many goods and services such as environmental interactions, supporting food and fibre productions, habitats and biodiversity, providing the physical and cultural environment for mankind and providing raw materials (Nortcliff, 2000). Soil is also a vital resource for human and ecosystem health and plays a critical role in resolving global issues i.e. food, water security and climate regulation. “Do you know that it takes 1000 years just to form 1 cm of fertile soil naturally?” It is a very long period beyond our life time. All of us must realise that soil is a finite resource and fundamental to life. Without it, we simply cease to exist from the universe.

Today, we are witnessing degradation and losses of soil at a rapidly increasing rate. The primary global drivers of soil losses and degradation are human population and economic growth. Every year, forest and land are cleared to make agricultural land and with unsustainable approach to land use management, all leading to soil losses and degradation. FAO estimated that globally, 13 million hectares of forest are cut down every year between 2000 and 2010 (FAO). Forest and plants provide a basic cover for soil and once they are cleared, soil is eroded by wind and water with different climate conditions. Also, due to urbanization, soil is being sealed with housing and infrastructure development and those soil sealed under the various buildings would no longer be able to provide its valuable functions. Losing soil imposes serious problems such as climate change, food & water security, energy sustainability, ecosystem service delivery and biodiversity protection.

Continuing global population and its demand of consumption for food is steadily increasing and it is one of the key threats to soil. We have witnessed extraordinary population and economic growth which was often associated with agricultural revolution. Current world population is 7.6 billion and it is projected to reach 9 billion by 2050 (World Population Clock Real Time). Still, we are witnessing nearly 1 billion people go to bed hungry every day. Our activities, particularly land use management have a major impact on soil losses and degradation. The production of more than 90% of our food depends on the essential ecosystem services provided by soil and other natural resources. Today intensive agricultural practices and the over application of fertilizers and pesticides is leading to soil degradation. Globally, more than half of the agricultural land resources are already considered degraded. According to the U.N. Millennium Ecosystem Assessment, approximately 40% of the world’s agricultural land is seriously degraded. Soil degradation costs annually 10.6 billion USD worldwide. We must look for a global strategy to ensure sustainable and equitable manner of our soil and land usage while we ensure global food security. We must provide a future for incoming generations which the availability of fertile soil is very much dependent for their existence.

Another key threat to soil is land grabs. Fertile soil is becoming scarce and the global rush for land grabs is increasing across the globe. We need to look at equitable distribution of land among the population and it is one way to protecting our soil. Business companies and corporations are grabbing land which are often facilitated by certain governments for development purposes and these lands are turned into monoculture plantations, constructions of housing and establishment of special economic zones often accompanying with unsustainable practices of land use management. Securing land rights for small scale farmers would ensure equitable distribution of land and would contribute to global food security. Without strategic investment in soil rehabilitation and protection, particularly poor and food insecure households will be left behind therefore, post a serious threat to protecting soil.

“It is time we take care of our soil”

Finally, lack of certain policies and laws that protect soil is threatening our very human existence. We need to look at certain global policies and laws that would protect soil from further degradation and losses. The good news is that we now have certain global agendas, inter alia, SDGs and the Paris agreement on climate change (2015), all are striving to achieve sustainable use of soil. Certain frameworks such as EU Soil Framework Directive (SDF) is already in place although it is yet to be ratified by EU member states. We also know now to a certain degree how important is our soil for mankind and many scientific researches is already underway to increase our knowledge on soil and its different ecosystems. However, many countries especially developing countries still lack proper policies and laws that protect soil. The country where I am from, Myanmar, a developing country for instance, lacks such policy and laws in protecting soil. Soil should be central and be mainstreamed into many environmental conservation laws, policies and regulations. We must put every effort into advocating governments in protecting soil so that we have sustainable future everyone can look forward to.

I believe education and public awareness raising play a pivotal role in shaping our future in protecting soil. Since protection of soil and why the need to protect soil is not well known among us, we need to start using various information and communication technologies, as well as providing trainings and capacity building programmes for younger generations so that effective measures can be taken in protecting our valuable soil in the years to come.

In conclusion, soil is a vital non-renewable resource and we need sustainable management of soil to ensure our future that includes viability of food productions, nutrient retention and cycling and filtration of water etc.

“It is time we take care of our soil. It is up to us to find ways to apply our knowledge and skills so that we do no end up losing our feet from the ground”.

Political dialogues are the way forward

We will need to continue our dialogue on the division of power, allocation of resources and revenue between the Union, States and Regions, and the powers as described in the additional tables to the Constitution. These are about how we will divide our state powers in our future Federal Union. If we are able to conclude the discussion on fundamental principles during the upcoming sessions of the Union Peace Conference, we would have a strong foundation for the Federal Union.

We all accept that the root cause of the ongoing internal armed conflicts in the country is the result of not solving political problems by political means. We all agree that a federal system is the only solution for the internal armed conflict which has been unresolved under successive governments. The opportunity to end the conflict by political means is in our hands right now. Part (1) of the Union Accord reached at the 2nd session of the Union Peace Conference proves that crucial political agreements can be reached if all political partners negotiate on the basis of mutual understanding and mutual trust. The people of Myanmar have great expectations on the upcoming 21st Century Panglong.

The nature of political dialogue is that there will always be ups and downs. Like any peace talks that are being held across the world, there will be times when peace is within reach and then fade away. The national reconciliation and peace efforts of our country cannot be perfect all the time. Difficulties and challenges will remain. In spirts, the strong wins; however, in marathons, only those who are determined and committed emerge victorious. Our road to peace is a marathon, and to successfully complete it, we need determination, good attitude and in addition, a will.

We need the will for our future generations. In the upcoming decades we need to think about what kind of country or what kind of Union we want our children to inherit. We need to think whether we should leave a country besieged with armed conflicts and differences, which is deprived of happiness due to lack of national reconciliation or peace, and looked down upon for lagging behind other countries.

We need to face our future, and we need to be brave both in our thoughts and in our actions. Let us walk towards an end to all wars and conflicts in our Union where we have not had a single moment of complete peace since Independence. Let us try our best to continue the ceasefire mechanisms. Let us cooperate with every organization which desires peace to resolve political problems through dialogue for eternal peace. Let us work together to show how much we love and value peace and to face the judgment of our next generation and history without guilt and with honour.

Conclusion

In conclusion, it is our inherent responsibility to work towards national reconciliation. Even though we come from different groups, we have held political dialogues based on the Union spirit of “One Team, One Vision”. We all have been walking on the same path together. We will achieve our ultimate goal of peace if we collaborate with each other with mutual trust and understanding.

It has been two years since we signed the NCA. There is no reason to retreat. We only need to go forward and pave our way towards our desired goal. We need to support each other with consideration and empathy whenever we face hardships and challenges during our journey. It depends on all of us to build a Democratic Federal Union which will bring about national reconciliation and peace. We need to be cautious that, if we fail to grasp this chance to work together towards our goal, our people’s expectations will be in vain.

I would like to conclude by wishing that today’s anniversary will be a source of empowerment and renewed strength for our journey towards peace.

Thank you all.

Harvey Weinstein expelled from Academy of Motion Pictures

LOS ANGELES — The Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences expelled producer Harvey Weinstein on Saturday, after allegations that he sexually harassed or assaulted a number of women over the past three decades, a sharp smack for a Hollywood mogul known for powering a string of films to Oscar gold.

The academy said in a statement that its 54-member board of governors “voted well in excess of the required two-thirds majority to immediately expel him from the Academy.”

A representative for Weinstein, Sallie Hofmeister, had no immediate comment.

The expulsion from the film industry’s most prestigious organization follows allegations reported by The New York Times and The New Yorker from a number of women that Weinstein sexually harassed or assaulted them in incidents dating back to the 1980s, including three who said they had been raped.

Reutters has been unable to independently confirm any of the allegations. Weinstein, 65, has denied having non-consensual sex with anyone.

For Weinstein, who made a name for himself and his studio with the critical and commercial success of a number of small-budget independent films, the expulsion was just the latest fallout — both professional and personal — from allegations that have rocked an industry that has often looked the other way when confronted by reports of sexual misconduct.

In announcing the decision to oust Weinstein, the academy said it was also telegraphing a broader goal.

“We do so not simply to separate ourselves from someone who does not merit the respect of his colleagues, but also to send a message that the era of willful ignorance and shameful complicity in sexually predatory behaviour and workplace harassment in our industry is over,” the academy said.

“What’s at issue here is a deeply troubling problem that has no place in our society,” it said. “The board continues to work to establish ethical standards of conduct that all Academy members will be expected to exemplify.”

The New York Police Department said this week it was investigating an allegation of sexual assault from 2004 against Weinstein.

His accusers included the actress Gwyneth Paltrow, who told The New York Times that she was sexually harassed by Weinstein more than 20 years ago, and actress and director Angelina Jolie, who told the publication that she “had a bad experience with Harvey Weinstein in my youth and as a result chose never to work with him again.” —Reuters

We are closer than ever to 1930s-style totalitarianism: Atwood

FRANKFURT — The world is closer to the dark days of the 1930s than at any time since, Canadian author Margaret Atwood said on Saturday in Frankfurt, where she was due to receive a prestigious German literary award.

Atwood’s dystopian novel “The Handmaid’s Tale”, first published in 1985, has shot back up the bestseller lists after being made into an award-winning TV series depicting a totalitarian future in a United States where women are forced into sexual servitude. Donald Trump’s election as US president has, for some critics, brought that vision closer to reality as he uses social media to browbeat opponents, and lawmakers in a number of states seek to restrict women’s reproductive rights.

“It feels the closest to the 1930s of anything that we have had since that time,” the 77-year-old Atwood told a news conference, drawing parallels with the fascist and communist regimes which then ruled parts of Europe.

Atwood was attending the annual Frankfurt Book Fair, where she receives the Peace Prize of the German Book Trade on Sunday. The award citation praises Atwood’s “political awareness and alertness for developments beneath the surface”.

Past winners include Turkish novelist Orhan Pamuk, American writer and film-maker Susan Sontag and Mario Vargas Llosa, the Peruvian-born writer and politician. —Reuters

I hope one day to get a best actor Oscar: Jackie Chan

LOS ANGELES — Action star Jack Chan has said hopes to win the Academy Award for Best Actor one day.

The 63-year-old star already has the Oscar for Life Achievement in his kitty, which he received last year.

Chan, who is a crowd-puller to the theatres, said at this point in his life he wants to concentrate on the content in his films. “Right now, for me, it’s not about box office. What’s more important is the audience. I’ve been working so hard for all these years in the film business. I wanted to prove that I’m a good stunt man, I’m a good stunt coordinator, I’m a good director, I’m a good producer, that I can write.

“Now, I want them to say, ‘That Jackie, he is a good actor.’ After I got a life achievement Oscar, I want to get — I hope one day to get — a best actor Oscar,” he told The Hollywood Reporter.

“The Foreigner” actor said today with advanced technology in Hollywood, anyone can transform into an action star. “How many action stars today stay in the film business? They’re gone. Look at Hollywood today and the technology they make. Everybody’s superwoman, they can make everybody an action star. Even some stars, they don’t know how to fight, but they can make them like an action stars.

One day, when I’m old and I cannot fight anymore, they still can make me action star. But acting is still important,” he said. —PTI

Asian universities stand out in world rankings for engineering and technology

LONDON — Four universities in Asia are among the top 20 in a world university ranking covering subject of engineering and technology, according to the Times Higher Education (THE) ranking published Friday.

China’s Peking University enters the top 10 for the first time in the eight-year history of the ranking, after climbing five places to 7th, followed by the National University of Singapore.

The Nanyang Technological University, another university from Singapore, ranks 18th and Hong Kong University of Science and Technology is on the 18th place.

The top three universities are Stanford, CIT and Oxford.

Phil Baty, editorial director of THE global rankings, said the engineering and technology subject rankings employ the same rigorous and balanced range of 13 performance indicators used in the overall 2018 World University Rankings, but the methodology has been recalibrated to suit the individual fields.

“The ranking, which has been expanded to include 500 universities, up from 100 last year, highlights the universities that are leading across electrical, mechanical, civil, chemical and general engineering subjects...Overall a staggering 132 universities in Asia make the top 500, meaning that the continent now has more world-class institutions for engineering and technology than North America which has 127.”

The THE World University Rankings are the only global performance tables that judge research-intensive universities across all their core missions: teaching, research, knowledge transfer and international outlook. — Xinhua

Held in the famous Human Rights and Alliance of Civilizations Hall of the Palais des Nations at Geneva, the concert was described as “a true encounter between East and West.”
