At a meeting of local people at Pantawpyin Village, she offered to provide vocational training, and gave suggestions to grow not only rice but also other crops as the area contains fertile soil.

The State Counsellor has focused government efforts on northern Rakhine and launched a project last month to help rehabilitation and resettlement in Rakhine.

Before her visit to the conflict areas, State Counsellor Daw Aung San Suu Kyi met with the Youth Humanitarian Coordination Group (YHCG) at Sittway Airport. The YHCG is composed of youths from different races and religions who carry out voluntary services for the local people.

100 geological research papers and monographs at Breaking New Frontiers Conference

May Thet Hnin

THE two-day Breaking New Frontiers Conference held at Hotel Novotel in Yangon on 2nd and 3rd November showcased more than a hundred geological research papers and monographs written by local and foreign geologists.

This conference was organised by the Myanmar Applied Earth Science Association (MAESA). At the conference, geologists from 16 countries addressed over 70 papers and local geologists read 40 monographs.

Experts chaired each session under topics such as: The Genesis of ORE Deposits and Exploration; Sedimentary basins and reservoirs: characterisation and modelling; Marine geology and oceanography; Engineering geology and geophysics; earthquake and seismic studies; applied tectonics and Gondwana dispersion; applied mineralogy and gem deposits; geo-hazards; disaster management and environmental sustainability.

“Capacity building relating to geology and earth science needs to be established for young people. This event also aims to encourage science and technology research and training. Also, this is an opportunity to promote collaboration between foreign and local experts. Those young people can also get in touch with the experts,” said Professor U Khin Zaw, co-founder of MAESA.

Professor Sang Mook Lee, Associate Professor from Seoul National University, said that “this conference gives enormous benefits. Myanmar has been a closed society from the western world and other international countries. Now, the country is opening up. It will give us great chance to explore the geology of Myanmar, especially the Indian Ocean. Myanmar possesses a great marine geology environment, and the world has a lot to learn from the marine geology of Myanmar.”

Dr. Myo Thant, the vice chairman of the Myanmar Earthquake Committee (MEC), said that “four research papers produced by the Myanmar Earthquake Committee were submitted to the conference, including situations prior to earthquake measuring above 6 on the Richter scale, a monitoring system of seismic activity, geographical studies of Lake Inle, and analysis of seismic waves”.

Local and foreign geologists, university lecturers, officials from the Department of Meteorology and Hydrology, Yangon Engineering Society and other organisations attended.

Research activities for 2018 Pwint Thit Sa report commences

THE Myanmar Centre for Responsible Business (MCRB) launched research activities for the 2018 Pwint Thit Sa report yesterday to survey the transparency of Myanmar’s businesses. The MCRB joins hands with Yever business consultancy operating in Myanmar in order to carry out those activities.

“This type of report was initiated in 2014 and more companies will join in this research. More rules and questions will be added in this survey. The research primarily determines transparency, as it can build trust with foreign partners and boost business production”, said Daw Phyu Phyu Zin, a Programme and Communications Officer from MCRB.

The Pwint Thit Sa report will analyse five policies on anti-corruption, employee handbooks, company ownership and senior management, and information about how the company addresses human rights risks including health, safety and environment, with 74 criteria in line with the ASEAN Corporate Governance Scorecard practiced in Thailand, the Philippines, Indonesia, Singapore, and other countries with international standardisation, said Dr. Vicky Bowman, director of MCRB.

In a bid to analyse information of the businesses to determine their score, MCRB’s extended its criteria in line with ASEAN Corporate Governance Scorecard so that large enterprises and public companies will join, Dr. Vicky Bowman continued.

Nicolas Delange, co-founder and managing director of Yever, raised a question concerning business practices of Myanmar companies because the business report helps build trust with business partners.

The MCRB sends details relating to research activities and policies to those companies which will be benchmarked. Also, it will send a draft score analysed by Yever and remarks will be included. That report is slated to be published in end of March 2018.

The MCRB was established in 2013 to provide an effective and legitimate platform for the creation of knowledge, capacity and dialogue concerning responsible business in Myanmar based on local needs and international standards, which results in more responsible business practices.

FROM 14 to 20 October, 5,780 tons of fisheries with an estimated value of over US$6 million were exported through checkpoints between Myanmar and Thailand.

The figure was up by 788 tons against the previous week. Myawady and Kawthoung gates handled the increased amount of export volume despite the slight decline at the Myeik gate.

Myanmar’s border trade with neighbouring Thailand flows in and out of these gates — Tachileik, Myawady, Kawthoung, Myeik, Hteekhee, Mawtaung and Maese. Myawady, the largest trade gate between Thailand and Myanmar, saw $477 million worth of trade, but this was a decrease of $22 million.

Cosmetics, machinery, food products, agricultural equipment, and trucks are imported into Myanmar, while fish, crabs, prawns, squid, eels, onions, sesame seeds, turmeric, corn and dried tea leaf, etc are exported to Thailand. — Ko Htet

Inflation rate in September shows a slight decrease against August

THE annual rate of inflation in September based on the Consumer Price Index (CPI) was recorded at 4.66 per cent, which shows a slight decline against August, according to a recent announcement released by the Central Statistical Organization (CSO) under the Ministry of Planning and Finance.

The year-on-year inflation rate was 3.40 per cent in September 2017 compared to September 2016. The consumer price index in September was up by 0.87 per cent against that in August.

Rakhine State recorded the highest inflation rate of 9.07 per cent as of September 2017, while Chin State showed the lowest inflation rate of 1.62 per cent.

Yangon had a 4.94 per cent rate of inflation rate while Mandalay had 4.65 per cent and Nay Pyi Taw, 2.36 per cent.

Previously, the inflation rate was evaluated based on a 2006 survey and then, the base year switched to 2012. The Central Statistical Organization conducted a Household Income and Expenditure Survey in 82 townships in November 2012.

The inflation rate in the first five-year plan from 2011-2012 FY to 2015-2016 FY rose. And thus, in a bid to reduce the inflation rate, the authorities concerned are making efforts in a second five-year plan based on the policies of finance, currency, trade and foreign currency control, according to the second five-year National Development plan. — Ko Htet

MYANMAR was recently awarded the Star Reformers Award by the World Bank group at the Investment Competitiveness Forum held in Vienna, Austria from 25 to 27 October.

The Star Reformers Award is on the ability to attract investment, the ease and simplicity in fulfilling legal requirements, obtaining technology from foreign investment and sharing this with local businesses and internationally recognisable reforms being successfully implemented.

The Directorate of Investment and Company Administration (DICA) Director General U Aung Naing Oo was interviewed by Myanmar News Agency. The following is a transcript of the interview.

Q. World Bank was said to have awarded Myanmar with the Star Reformers Award. What are the conditions to achieve this award?

A. The World Bank reviews reforming nations to see if a good investment environment has been created. The first criterion is the level of support a country’s reforms have made to development. The second is to have clearly visible results or outcomes from the reforms. The third is based on the points achieved in a World Bank assessment. Of the reforming countries reviewed, Myanmar and Ethiopia was selected by World Bank to be awarded the Star Reformers Award.

Q. There was more investment after the investment law was enacted. Tell us about the status of investment in Myanmar.

A. The announcement of related rules and notifications immediately followed the enactment of the investment law on 16 October 2016. While the announcements were made, reforms were conducted at the same time to increase investment. Noticeable result was the investment amount reaching more than US$4.1 billion between 1 April and the end September in this fiscal year after the investment proposals were permitted and approved. This year’s target was $6 billion, and to achieve more than $4.1 billion in six months is indeed a noticeable result. The new investment law is also making it easier for investors. Interest was increased, resulting in an increase in investment.

Q. Investment increased after this law was enacted. Is the award achieved because of this?

A. This is also correct. There were many things that they reviewed. The basic thinking is on how obvious the achieved results were due to the reforms.

Q. What more will the investment commission do after achieving this award?

A. Actually, there is no end to reform. It needs to be done continuously. The MIC (Myanmar Investment Commission) as a government agency will continue to make the rules, regulations and work processes clear and concise, and have strong laws that enable and ensure investors make investments that are in accord with the law and are beneficial to the country. Another thing is to make the enacted laws come alive. More important is for MIC to continue promotion. Promotion is related to how easily businesses can conduct their work. In the future, the MIC will work in four main areas. These are to enable rules and regulations to be business friendly and ensure that businesses follow them. It will make the laws effective and develop the private sector. And the last is to ensure that businesses in Myanmar can conduct their businesses more easily than now.

Q. What sort of promotions will be made in relation to recently opened investment branches in Rakhine State and Chin State?

A. The Rakhine State branch office was opened on 30 October. It was opened because Rakhine State had many good opportunities. Stability in the state was also achieved. But for the opportunities to be realised and the state to progress, both local and foreign investment is required. By opening a branch office in the state, investors and businesses in the state need not go to Yangon and Nay Pyi Taw anymore. Companies can be registered in the state. Investments in the state can be approved. No need to go to Yangon to submit anything to MIC. It can be submitted to a state branch office and the state branch office will forward it to the head office. It is to ease the burden of the businesses. The other aim is to provide investment support to state government. The State office will implement the opportunities of the state. A Chin State office will be opened on 20 November. At the present moment, Chin State does not have any foreign investment. Local investment is poor. By opening an office, matters relating to increasing and inviting investment can be conducted. The directorate will assist in this. The aim is to be able to start a business in the least amount of time and money and to support state development.

Q. What about the tax exemptions for local and foreign companies coming to invest in this region?

A. This is already included in the investment law. Townships of Rakhine and Chin States are in zone 1. According to MIC investors, investing in zone 1 will have seven years of tax exemption. Both local and foreign investors are given a seven-year tax exemption. Only a three-year tax exemption is provided for investors investing in Yangon.

Q. What would you like to say on Myanmar getting this award for the first time?

A. Actually we didn’t work with an aim to get this award. The government wants investors to enter the country with ease, with clear understanding and with benefit for the people. It was for these aims that things needed to be done and amended by MIC with the guidance and instruction of the government. We were not expecting to get this award. We didn’t even know there was such an award. We only found out about this award when the World Bank informed us by letter about the country being considered, and then selected for the award. While trying to develop the country’s economy and make it easier for investment to enter the country, we get this award. Looking from the viewpoint of our work, more foreign investment came into the country. Compared to last year, it is distinctly higher. We are happy about this. It is becoming easier for local and foreign businesses to invest in Myanmar. We were getting good responses and are happy about this. We are happier as World Bank recognised our work and gave this award. The MIC will continue to do what it needs to do for the economic development of the country.

Q. What sort of countries receive this award?

A. There is no limit to the number of countries to be given this award. There are many member countries of the World Bank that were undergoing reform and the award winners were selected from all such countries. Myanmar was among the two countries that got the highest marks in the assessment.

Q. What is your view on the requirements for Rakhine region development in addition to investment?

A. Actually the government is taking systematic steps in this. Regional stability is being developed. As certain stability is achieved, reconstruction works are being conducted. Once it is stable and reconstruction is complete, the investment sector needs to become involved. The investment sector is very important for the future of Rakhine State. There are many projects being implemented by Rakhine State government. There are many projects to be implemented for the development of Rakhine State.

Those projects could not be conducted by the government alone. If private sector investment participates in these projects, the momentum will increase. Rakhine State can be seen to have achieved a certain amount of stability and reconstruction works has started. It is taking the step toward development. The state is turning toward a better situation. They can foresee development soon.

Q. Is there anything you want to add?

A. The Myanmar Investment Commission is letting the people know in a timely manner of its work by posting it on its website. We met with the media and explained this. We coordinate matters if businesses face difficulties. Use the MIC for your businesses. Offices were opened in states and regions and businesses can visit those offices anytime to solve any problems they face in forming and expanding their businesses.

World Bank gave three types of awards – the Star Reformers Award, the Strong Reformers Award and the Aspiring Reformers Award. The Star Reformers Award is the highest award given to countries that conducted the most visible reform works.
At least 15 killed in Afghanistan tanker explosion

Iraq cannot try Islamic State's atrocities in Mosul - UN

GENEVA — Iraq is not capable of trying atrocities committed by Islamic State during the battle for Mosul so it must find other routes to justice such as the International Criminal Court (ICC), a UN human rights report said on Thursday.

At least 2,521 civilians were killed during the nine-month battle including 741 people who were executed, the report said. Most died as a result of Islamic State attacks.

“Iraqi courts and tribunals do not have jurisdiction over international crimes (such as genocide, crimes against humanity and war crimes) — and prosecutors, police investigators and judges lack capacity to … (investigate), charge and try persons in relation to such crimes,” it said.

In addition, Iraqi law did not do enough to guarantee due process or fair trials, it said.

Accepting the jurisdiction of the Hague-based ICC and finding other ways to ensure crimes were tried by a competent court “would reassure the international community that Iraq is serious about ensuring the accountability of individuals who have committed international crimes”, it said.

Ensuring justice was key to rebuilding trust and reconciliation, it said.

The UN report also called on Iraqi authorities to investi-gate alleged human rights violations committed by Iraqi-backed forces during the operation, and called for a separate investigation into air strikes by the international coalition.

It said the UN had recorded 461 civilian deaths from air strikes during the most intensive phase of the battle, from 19 February.—Reuters

Federal Union to be built up with national unity

By Khin Maung Oo

With the strength of peace and development of a nation, the national dignity of that country’s citizens as well will rise up automatically. To put it simply, as addressed by the State Counsellor, Daw Aung San Su Kyi, the nation would be able to stand tall in the midst of all the countries of the world so that no nation would dare to insult us. The State Counsellor herself said that the fundamental requirement to achieve Union Peace, based on National Reconciliation. If there is National Unity, there will be Union Peace. The nearly-70-year-long internal armed conflicts would come to an end only if political agreements will be achieved through the dialogues of the Union Peace Conference - 21st Century Panglong. The Union Government, the Tatmadaw and all the armed national ethnic groups had the unanimous conception that the only goal of holding political dialogues is to establish the Federal Union. That belief has created the hope for the future Federal Union. Accordingly, the target of holding political dialogues is none other than laying down fundamental principles relating to the Federal Union. Especially, the State Counsellor gave guidance to exert efforts for laying down fundamental principles regarding the Federal Union as a foundation during the period till the year 2018 from now on.

The State Counsellor instructed that reviews and reforms on the framework of political dialogues must be performed to perfection provided that we are really desirous of grasping the aim of the political dialogues, simultaneously emphasizing that it is of great importance to draw the SOP—Standard Operating Procedures needed for success and effectiveness in practically implementing the agreements. It was also pointed out that impractical SOP’s would be only as words written on paper.

Furthermore, the State Counselor stressed that the efficiency and competency in office works plays an important role for the successful performance of the UPDJC leading to the success of the political dialogues. The State Counsellor highlighted that office workers need to be competent in office routines and also have the right spirit for work. To sum it up, we humbly request all our national forces to firmly grasp the need for national unity through negotiations, keeping in our minds the State Counsellor’s speech that the door to the political negotiations table is always open for all the armed national ethnic groups to take part in signing the Nationwide Ceasefire Agreement, for the successful establishment of the Federal Union.

In the life time of Gotama Buddha, the most extra-ordinary event of tragedy took place in the Kingdom of Magadha, where King Bimbhisara reigned. The King’s son Prince Ajatasattu unfortunately became a devout pupil of Ashin Devadatta who was the staunch opponent of Gotama Buddha. Under the influence and ill advice of his master Ashin Devadatta, Prince Ajatasattu attempted to get the throne by force, knowing as he did that he would surely succeed his father. Instead of waiting for the death of his father in old age he could immediately get the throne, by persecuting his father and killing him. So Prince Ajatasattu after touring and persecuting the royal father committed the greatest crime of patricide, in spite of the protest and appeal of his mother. After that crime, a son was born to him. He loved his son very much and asked his mother whether his father loved him. She explained that Prince Ajatasattu in his boyhood had a whitlow disease on his finger, his father kept the finger in his mouth to relieve the pain. When whitlow burst out bad blood, his father swallowed it instead of moving out the finger from his mouth for fear of waking up the son now in sound sleep. Prince Ajatasattu who now was the King repented very much for killing his father. In his remorse he could not sleep. He was always restless.

On consultation with royal physician Doctor Jivaka, who knew that it was a serious phychological case which doctor Jivaka, who knew that it was a serious psychological case which he could not sure. So he recommend that King Ajatasattu should go to Lord Buddha who was residing at the Vihara monastery which Doctor Jivaka built in his mango Forest Park. So King Ajatasattu with his retinue of courtiers went to Lord Buddha on the Full moon night of the month of Tazaung mon (November).

From the Palace to the Vihara monastery the royal journey was brightly illuminated with colourful torches under the full moon night sky. Upon seeing Lord Buddha the King paid homage to Buddha and requested to cure his long suffering disease of sleeplessness.

Whereupon Lord Buddha gave him Samannaphala Sutta, a discourse on the benefits of being ordained monk. Now King Ajatasattu found a true master who gave him a true teaching i.e. dhamma King Ajatasattu became the most devoted person of King’s conversion to truth i.e. Buddha Dhamma.

Regarding the King’s former master Ashin Devadatta he was suddenly swallowed up by the earth, as soon as he got down from his palanquin and his feet touched the earth for his bad act of Pannanantiya kamma. which means Five acts that immediate retribution. These Five acts are

1. Matughataka, killing one’s mother or matricide
2. Pitughataka, killing one’s father or patricide
3. Arahantaghataka, killing an Arahant saint
4. Lohituppadaka, raising a blister on a Buddha
5. Causing a schism in the Sangha Order (Lord Buddha foretold that though Ashin Devadatta was immediately retributed by being swallowed up by earth, but he would finally emerge as an Arahant saint monk when he found truth- the Dhamma.)

In our younger days at primary, middle and high schools, our teachers in their moral instruction in the classes, often told us the story of Ajatasattu and his bad master Ashin Devatta. They also quoted and explained the relevant passages from Mingala Sutta such as “Asevana ca balanam Panditpana ca sevana Puj a ca puja neyyanam Etam mangala muttamaam Not associate with fools To associate with the wise And to honour those who are worthy of honour This is the highest blessing”.

In today’s crimes of stealing, killing, drug abuse and drunkenness as well as sexual abuses, the major cause is the association with fools in younger days. At tender age, young ones are tempted to copy their associates. Therefore, the writer would like to suggest that Buddhist Sutta like Mingala Sutta and others should be reintroduced in the curricula for primary, middle and high school teachings. We are glad to hear quite often in dhamma lectures for the public by our Buddhist Dhamma kahtika monks touching upon the importance of good character training of young generations with references to and quotations from Mingala Sutta and recounting of the story of Ajatasattu and his bad teacher Ashin Devadatta. In Myanmar Visual and Performing arts such stories of good character training of young generations are depicted in the mural paintings and other Visual art media as well as reenacted in the Performing arts of music, song, dance and drama by both human actors and puppets.

Moscow wants Iran nuclear deal saved despite US attacks: Russian deputy FM

MOSCOW — Moscow wants the Joint Comprehensive Plan of Action (JCPOA), commonly known as the Iran nuclear deal, to remain in place despite US threats to abandon it, a senior Russian diplomat said Wednesday.

“There is no doubt that those in the United States who wish to continue widening the spiral of anti-Iran sanctions in spite of everything, in defiance of common sense and (the) logic of the JCPOA, are rather strong,” RIA Novosti news agency quoted Russian Deputy Foreign Minister Sergei Ryabkov as telling reporters. Ryabkov said it was imperative to maintain the JCPOA and avoid imposing sanctions against Iran.

“We must act in accordance with the JCPOA, and this is precisely the message that Iran, Russia, China and European countries are transmitting to Washington,” Ryabkov said.

On 13 October US President Donald Trump alleged that Iran had committed “multiple violations” of the accord and threatened to abandon the JCPOA if it was not amended.

Ryabkov said he saw no room for amendments to the agreement, which, according to him, reflected a “very well-measured and delicate balance of interests and compromises.”

The responsibility for the potential collapse of the JCPOA will rest entirely with the American side, Ryabkov said. The JCPOA was signed in 2015 by Iran, China, France, Germany, Britain, Russia and the United States.

Under the deal, Iran agreed to halt its nuclear weapons programme in exchange for economic aid and partial lifting of international sanctions.

Trump calls for ending visa programme after NY attack, blasts Democrats

WASHINGTON — President Donald Trump on Wednesday seized on the deadly New York City truck attack to step up demands for stricter US immigration laws, asking Congress to end a visa programme that let the Uzbek suspect into the country and saying he might send him to Guantanamo Bay.

In a day of harsh recriminations over Tuesday’s attack that killed eight people in America’s largest city, Trump appeared to assign some blame for an incident that authorities have labelled as terrorism to top Senate Democrat Chuck Schumer, who accused Trump of politicizing a national tragedy.

Trump said he would consider sending the suspect, identified by authorities as Sayfullo Saipov, to the military prison at the US naval base at Guantanamo Bay, Cuba, which his Democratic predecessor Barack Obama tried but failed to shut. No detainee has been sent to the Guantanamo prison since 2008.

White House spokeswoman Sarah Sanders later told reporters that Trump considers Saipov an “enemy combatant,” a designation that would curtail his legal rights. Trump called the suspect “this animal” and lambasted the US justice system for terrorism suspects as “a joke” and “a laughingstock.”

Since taking office in January, Trump has sought to increase deportations of illegal immigrants and limit legal immigration. The Department of Homeland Security said Saipov entered the United States in 2010 through the so-called diversity visa programme, designed to provide a path to US residency for citizens from countries with historically low rates of immigration to the United States.

Authorities said Saipov drove a rented truck along a bike path in lower Manhattan, mowing down cyclists and pedestrians that we’re afraid to do anything.”

Russia wants $2 billion from Turkey for S-400 air defence missiles

The deal with Turkey, a NATO member, has caused some disquiet in the United States. Turkey originally awarded a $3.4 billion contract for a defence system to China in 2015 but cancelled that two years later, saying it would concentrate on developing a system domestically.

Germany records surge in refugees as Merkel seeks new migrant policy

BERLIN — The number of people seeking refuge in Germany has more than doubled in the last two years to 1.6 million, with most fleeing Syria, Afghanistan and Iraq, the Federal Statistics Office said on Thursday.

Asylum figures are a hot issue in Germany due to a migrant crisis which peaked in 2015. Voters punished Chancellor Angela Merkel for her open-door policy in a September election, with her conservatives suffering heavy losses to the far-right.

Agreeing on migrant policy is one of the biggest hurdles facing conservative Merkel in her attempt to form an awkward three-way coalition with the Free Democrats (FDP) and Greens.

The Statistics Office said on Thursday the 1.6 million people seeking protection by the end of last year was a 113 per cent increase from the end of 2014 and was equivalent to 16 per cent of the foreign population in Germany.

Included in the figures are people from abroad staying in Germany for humanitarian reasons, people still going through the asylum process, those granted refugee status or subsidiary protection status and failed asylum seekers who stay.

More than half of the 1.6 million people had by the end of 2016 been granted permission to stay in Germany while some 158,000 were rejected asylum seekers, said the Office.—Reuters

Colombia’s FARC unveils presidential candidate for 2018 race

BOGOTA — The former Revolutionary Armed Forces of Colombia (FARC), the largest guerrilla group in Colombia, said Wednesday that its ex-commander Rodrigo Londono will run for president in 2018.

In early September, the disarmed rebels officially entered the realm of politics, renaming itself as the Revolutionary Alternative Common Force, a party that preserves the group’s acronym and objective of fighting for social justice.

At a press conference here, the FARC said Londono, also known by his nom de guerre “Timochenko,” will run with Imelda Daza as his running mate. Londono is currently in Cuba receiving medical treatment. Daza is a member of Voces de Paz (Voices of Peace), a political movement created to follow up on the peace accords signed in 2016 between the Colombian government and the rebels, which brought five decades of fighting to an end.—Xinhua

Catalan secessionist leaders to appear in court, without Puigdemont

MADRID — Catalonia’s secessionist leaders will appear before a court in Madrid on Thursday to answer charges of rebellion and sedition, though the region’s former president Carles Puigdemont said he would not turn up.

Prime Minister Mariano Rajoy sacked Puigdemont and his government on Friday, hours after the Catalan parliament made a unilateral declaration of independence - a vote boycotted by the opposition and declared illegal by Spanish courts.

Puigdemont said on Wednesday he would ignore the court order to answer charges over the region’s push for independence, but he was ready to testify from Belgium, where he had travelled with four other members of his sacked cabinet.

The other 15 due to testify from 9 am (0800 GMT) are Puigdemont’s former vice-president Oriol Junqueras, eight other members of his sacked cabinet and six senior regional lawmakers, including the speaker of the Catalan parliament, Carme Forcadell.

Puigdemont and his former team were summoned by the High Court while Forcadell and the other lawmakers were summoned by the Supreme Court.

Rescue team frees ‘Glory Amsterdam’ freighter from German sandbar

BERLIN — A rescue team freed the grounded freighter “Glory Amsterdam” from a sandbar near the North Sea island of Langeoog and ruled out an oil leak, German authorities said on Thursday.

Two large towing ships pulled the freighter to deep water and 16,000 tons of ballast water were pumped out of it, said Simone Starke, spokeswoman for Germany’s Central Command for Maritime Emergencies.

Environmental and fishery groups warned of dire consequences to the Wadden Sea, a UNESCO World Heritage site, if the ship began leaking 1,800 tonnes of heavy oil and 140 tonnes of marine diesel on board but there was no damage to the hull, authorities said.

“No leaking was found during the towing process. An oil monitoring plane will accompany the barges towards Wilhelmshaven,” said Starke.

Shallow waters of the island had forced officials to revise initial plans to dislodge the 225-metre (742-foot) freighter, which ran aground during a storm on Sunday that killed at least six people in Germany, Poland and the Czech Republic.

After rescuing the ship, the 22 crew members and 7 advisory experts went on board and 3 ships were connected with the freighter to lead it to Wilhelmshaven port in the Northern Sea.

Ministry checks misconduct prevention steps at 2 more Nissan plants

TOKYO — The transport ministry on Thursday inspected two more Nissan Motor Co. factories to examine measures introduced to prevent unqualified workers from conducting vehicle safety inspections in violation of government rules.

The Ministry of Land, Infrastructure, Transport and Tourism checked steps at the two plants in Kanagawa Prefecture near Tokyo and Fukuoka Prefecture in southwestern Japan, following an inspection at another Nissan plant in Fukuoka on Wednesday.

If the ministry endorses the preventive measures prepared by the scandal-hit automaker, Nissan is set to resume production and shipment of new vehicles for the Japanese market.

On 19 October, Nissan said it will halt car shipments and production at all six of its car assembly plants in Japan, having found that invalid inspections had continued at most of the plants even after the misconduct surfaced in September.

Nissan said it will finish reviewing its safety inspection processes at the remaining three plants by Friday.

To prevent further misconduct, the automaker said it will carry out final inspections of their new vehicles in an isolated, enclosed area, which only certified inspectors are allowed to enter.

Nissan also said it will conduct external audits once a week to check such inspections are held appropriately for the time being.—Kyodo News

Dolphin dies after 43 yrs under human care, longest in Japan

SHIZUOKA, Japan — A female bottlenose dolphin under human care for around 43 years, the longest in Japan, has died at an aquarium in central Japan, according to the facility operator.

Nana, whose age was estimated at somewhere between 45 and 47, had lost her appetite since 4 October and was found drowned in the facility’s natural cove on Tuesday, according to Shimoda Aquarium in Shizuoka Prefecture.

After being hunted off the coast of Ito city in November 1974, Nana lived in the aquarium in the city of Shimoda. By 1994, she had given birth to eight calves. On 4 October, her days in captivity reached 15,666, surpassing the previous longest record held by Kamogawa Sea World in Chiba Prefecture, east of Tokyo. “We feel sorry as we were hoping she would live longer. We will use the experience gained by rear- ing her for this long period to take care of other dolphins,” said an aquarium official.—Kyodo News

Environmental documentary starring Jackie Chan starts shooting

XINING — Filming of a three-part documentary has begun in Zadoi, the source of one of China’s largest rivers in northwest China’s Qinghai province.

The documentary, Jackie Chan’s Green Heroes, is a joint project by the action movie star and the National Geographic Partners LLC. The series will feature green innovation to inspire and educate a new generation of green action heroes, Chan said.

The first hero Chan found was Arthur Huang, 38, a structural engineer from National Geographic Society of Emerging Explorers. Huang is a specialist in post-consumer trash recycling.

In the first episode, they will show Trashpresso, a mobile waste recycling machine.

The series will be aired on the National Geographic channel in April 2019.

Located in a wide valley, Zadoi is administered by Tibetan Autonomous Prefecture of Yushu. It is the source of Lancang (Mekong) river at an average altitude of about 4,000 above sea level.

It has practiced trash sorting for many years, but as the population is growing, the county faces challenges in recycling plastic waste.—Xinhua ■

Actor accuses Kevin Spacey of harassment during London theatre stint

LONDON — Roberto Cavazos, an actor who worked at a London theatre where Kevin Spacey was artistic director between 2004 and 2013, said he had encounters with the Hollywood star at the time “that verged on what you could call harassment”.

Spacey has publicly apologised to another actor, Anthony Rapp, who accused the filmstar of trying to seduce him in 1986, when he was 14.

Spacey said he did not remember the incident, but that if it happened it was “deeply inappropriate drunken behaviour”.

Reutters was unable to independently confirm the accusations made by both actors.

Spacey “is taking the time necessary to seek evaluation and treatment” and “no other information is available at this time,” representatives of the actor said in an email late on Wednesday to Reuters.

Spacey’s decision to use the apology statement to go public about being homosexual angered many in the gay community and beyond, who said he had made his personal announcement to deflect attention from Rapp’s account.

Spacey is one of several big names in the entertainment business to be accused of sexual misconduct by people coming forward in the wake of allegations against movie producer Harvey Weinstein.

Cavazos, a Mexican actor who appeared in productions at London’s Old Vic theatre during Spacey’s time, said he had experienced “a couple of unpleasant encounters with Spacey that verged on what you could call harassment”.

“There are many of us who have a ‘Kevin Spacey story’,” Cavazos wrote in Spanish on social media site Facebook.

“It seems that we only needed to be men under 30 years old for Mr Spacey to feel free to touch us,” he wrote. —Reuters ■

Facing backlash, Rolling Stone writer posts second apology for ‘hurtful’ book

LOS ANGELES — A Rolling Stone writer who has come under fire for a 17-year-old book that critics say depicts his own mistreatment of women at a newspaper office made a second apology on Wednesday, saying he wrote “hurtful things but did not sexually harass anyone.”

Matt Taibbi posted the lengthy repentance on his Facebook page hours after an event intended to promote his latest book was scrapped in Washington, DC without explanation.

The future over Taibbi’s early work comes as a string of accusations against film producer Harvey Weinstein have galvanized outrage over abuse of women that has been covered up or ignored.

Weinstein has denied engaging in sexual misconduct by people coming forward in the wake of allegations against movie producer Harvey Weinstein.

Cavazos, a Mexican actor who appeared in productions at London’s Old Vic theatre during Spacey’s time, said he had experienced “a couple of unpleasant encounters with Spacey that verged on what you could call harassment”.

Beyonce, James Earl Jones set for live-action remake of ‘The Lion King’

LOS ANGELES — Beyonce, actor James Earl Jones and comedian John Oliver are joining the cast of Walt Disney’s new live-action film version of the “The Lion King”, the studio said.

Directed by Jon Favreau, the movie follows the storyline of the 1994 animated film, in which a young lion named Simba grows up on the African savanna after his uncle Scar conspires to usurp his father Mufasa’s place as king.

Jones reprises his role as Mufasa, while the young Simba is voiced by Donald Glover, who recently starred in “Solo: A Star Wars Story”. Chiwetel Ejiofor, lead actor in “Twelve Years A Slave”, takes the role of the villainous Scar.

Beyonce plays Simba’s childhood friend and love interest Nala, while Golden Globe-winning actress Alfre Woodard voices the character of Simba’s mother Sarabi.

Comedian Seth Rogen takes on the character of Simba’s warthog friend Pumbaa, while Oliver plays Zazu, the hornbill adviser to Mufasa.

“It is a director’s dream to assemble a talented team like this to bring this classic story to life,” said Favreau, who has also directed Disney’s “The Jungle Book” live-action remake, which saw actors interacting with characters enhanced by computer-generated imagery. The film is expected to hit US theatres on 19 July 2019. —Reuters ■
Nazi art trove goes on display at Swiss museum, heir to Gurlitt collection

BERN — Some 150 art works from a massive trove amassed by a German collector during the Nazi era went on public display for the first time on Wednesday in the Swiss capital, amid lingering questions about the origins of the collection.

German art dealer Hildebrand Gurlitt built up the collection after being enlisted by the Nazis to sell so-called “degenerate” modern art they had seized from German museums.

His son Cornelius Gurlitt inherited the art and then kept it stored in his Munich apartment for decades. The Kunstmuseum Bern was stunned to learn in May 2014, the day after Gurlitt’s death, that it had been named as the sole heir to 1,500 works, including paintings by Pablo Picasso and Henri Matisse.

Its exhibition “Degenerate Art - Confiscated and Sold” is composed mainly of drawings, lithographs and paintings confiscated by the Nazis from museums and acquired by Hildebrand Gurlitt. “For the most part we know exactly when the works were confiscated, from which German museum,” Nina Zimmer, director of the Bern Art Museum, told Reuters Television.

“We only have taken works where we are 100 per cent sure they were not looted (from private owners),” she said, adding that a further 300 “degenerate” works were awaiting clarification of their ownership as intensive research continued.

“Art, after 70 years, needs to see the light of day and the public needs to reconnect with the art works,” Zimmer said.

A separate exhibition of works from the Gurlitt collection will open in the German city of Bonn on Friday with the title “Nazi Art Theft and Its Consequences.” — Reuters

Australia’s famed Uluru outback monolith to be closed to climbers

SYDNEY — Australia’s world-famous Uluru, formerly known as Ayers Rock, will be closed to climbers from 2019, its management board said on Wednesday, ending a decades-long campaign by Aborigines to protect their sacred monolith in the Northern Territory.

A board of eight traditional owners and four government officials voted unanimously to close the rock to climbers, a spokesperson told Reuters.

“The climb is a men’s sacred area, the men have closed it,” chairman Sammy Wilson added in a statement. “It has cultural significance that includes certain restrictions.”

The UNESCO World Heritage-listed 348-metre (1,142 ft) rock, known for its shifting red-ochre colors, is a top tourist drawcard, attracting around 300,000 visitors each year, despite its remote desert location near Alice Springs. — Reuters

Last round for 'beer bikes' as Amsterdam curbs unruly tourists

AMSTERDAM — The “beer bike,” a 12-seat rolling bar popular among partying tourists in Amsterdam, is no longer welcome along the city’s picturesque canals.

An inner-city ban went into effect on Wednesday, following a court ruling a day earlier that sided against four businesses offering the service.

The court agreed with the city that the beer bikes disrupt public order and block traffic in narrow streets, with riders shouting and urinating in public.

“The ban is justified because of the combination of traffic congestion, disorderly behaviour and crowded city centre,” it said in its ruling.

Amsterdam is well known for its “red light” district with brothels and “coffee shops” selling marijuana, but the millions of annual visitors have long been a nuisance for residents. — Reuters
MFF says goodbye to Myanmar women team head coach

The Myanmar Football Federation bid farewell to Mr. Roger Reijners, the head coach of the women's national team, as his contract expired and a mutual agreement was reached for his departure, according to a post yesterday on the MFF website.

The Dutch coach has led the women's national team since February 2016.

“I want to thank the MFF, especially president Mr. Zaw Zaw, for giving me the opportunity to work for the national women's team of Myanmar. I was very honoured to work with a very enthusiastic team and staff. Also thanks to all fans of Myanmar. Especially the matches, last year in Mandalay, were overwhelming. I wish the team, staff, MFF and all the fans all the best for the future. We will meet each other again somewhere” Mr. Reijners told the MFF.

Mr. Reijners coached the team to third-place finishes in the 2016 AFF women Championship and 2017 Malaysian SEA Games.

Matic holds key on return to old stomping ground

LONDON — Chelsea’s decision to sell Serbian midfielder Nemanja Matic to title rivals Manchester United raised more than a few eyebrows and the consequences may be felt when the sides clash in the Premier League on Sunday.

Matic left the London club after three and a half years to re-join former Chelsea manager Jose Mourinho at Old Trafford. He has played every minute in the league since, helping United to second place in the table, five points behind Manchester City.

Mourinho’s capture of Matic is looking shrewder every week, prompting former United defender Phil Neville to say after Chelsea’s 3-0 Champions League drubbing at AS Roma this week that selling the Serb was the main reason why Chelsea are struggling defensively.

His absence from Chelsea’s midfield will be highlighted further should NGolo Kante fail to recover from a hamstring injury.

The Frenchman is back in training but if he misses out against United, Chelsea will be without both members of the central midfield pairing that guided them to the title last season.

In their place, Cesc Fabregas and Tiemoue Bakayoko bring creative attacking qualities, but do not provide the extra cover Conte-craves and United’s pacy forwards could have the freedom to seriously threaten a fragile Chelsea defence that has conceded 10 league goals this season.

United’s main striker Romelu Lukaku has gone six games without a goal, however, and Mourinho must decide whether to play Marcus Rashford and Anthony Martial together in the hope their raw speed and trickery can unsettle the Chelsea rearguard.

Earlier on Sunday, Manchester City bid to extend their record-equalling start to the campaign at home to Arsenal.— Reuters

Dortmund heading out of Champions League after APOEL draw

BERLIN — Borussia Dortmund managed only a frustrating 1-1 draw at home against APOEL Nicosia in the Champions League on Wednesday to see their hopes of a knock-out spot all but evaporate with two matches left in Group H.

Raphael Guerreiro put them ahead in the 29th and the Germans, 2013 finalists, should have scored several more in the first half before the restart.

The result did neither team a favour with both on two points from four matches, five behind second-placed Real Madrid, who lost to group leaders Tottenham Hotspur. Dortmund, who host Tottenham on 21 November before travelling to Madrid for their final group game, had four shots on goal after only 10 minutes.— Reuters
