Two Mayyu Mountain roads to support development in Maungtaw region

Two roads passing through Mayyu Mountain range are expected to complete before the rainy season which starts in mid-May.

The two roads are being constructed by Road Management Department, Ministry of Construction.

Commenting on the construction of the two roads, Road Management Department’s Director-General U Ohn Lwin said “Our Road Department will complete two out of four Mayyu Mountain roads during this open season. The first is Zedipyin-Indin-Kyaukpondu road and the second is Kyeinchaung-Gopi road. Construction of these roads will support Maungtaw region development.”

Zedipyin-Indin-Kyaukpondu road connects Zedipyin in Yathedaung Township with Kyaukpondu in Maungtaw Township and is being constructed by Road Special team 17 and is 10 miles and 7 furlong in length. Using 26 road construction machinery, an initial 34 ft. wide earth road is being constructed and gravels 8-inch thick will be laid on top. SEE PAGE-6

Clear and concise news and information vital for peace and harmony between two different societies

UNION Enterprise for Humanitarian Assistance, Resettlement and Development in Rakhine (UEHRD) Vice-Chairman Union Minister for Social Welfare, Relief and Resettlement Dr Win Myat Aye attended and addressed the opening ceremony of the second training course on conducting social works among societies in conflict held yesterday morning at the Social Welfare training school in Mayangon Township.

The Union Minister said conflicts are occurring in many countries of the world and conflicts are threatening our country. This is a country where differences exist but were being united and exist as a union. If the problems are resolved with union spirit, there’ll be harmony among all and successes will be achieved. It is easy to achieve harmony if it is based on union spirit. There are problems that can be resolved within a country as well as problems that will have to be resolved among countries in the region and by working together with the countries of the world. Problems occur because there are differences between two societies. Inequalities are the source of the problems and it affects the development. Resolving the problems is the issue of the people and people should participate in it. Those attending this training are to coordinate in obtaining peace between two different societies. There is a need to remove the suspicions and hatred between the two societies and build trust and love. Especially in order to achieve social harmony between the two societies social service personnel must ensure the spreading of clear and concise news and information and avoid long term conflicts. UEHRD projects are being implemented to resolve the problems existing in Rakhine State with union spirit. The aims of the union projects are to avoid long term conflicts and preventing conflicts from occurring again.

There is a need for people with experience to give training and that is why this training is being conducted. When social welfare personnel went to rural areas to serve, they are to use the social welfare knowledge they had learnt to prevent conflicts from occurring again, said the Union Minister.

Community and Family Services International (CFSI) Executive Director Mr Steven Muncy then explained about the aim of conducting the training. The five-day training course is conducted for 30 social welfare personnel who will serve in Rakhine State. The training was implemented with a Memorandum of Understanding (MoU) between Social Welfare Department and CFSI and similar trainings on achieving harmony in societies with conflicts and problems will be conducted in the future, it is learnt. — Myanmar News Agency

The Heritage Hotel Kempinski Yangon to be opened in 2018

THE Heritage Hotel Kempinski Yangon which is located on the Stand Road in Kyauktada township will be opened in 2018, according to a report in the Myawaddy Daily yesterday.

The turning of over 90-year-old building into a 5-star hotel faced opposition from the Lawyeans Net-work. Currently, the construction of inside parts of hotel is near complete. The outside of hotels is underway.

Flying Tiger Engineering Company has got the permission from Myanmar Investment Commission (MIC) for the renovation of old building. The company has already paid premium fees of US$ 14.4 million for land use.

The company also agreed to pay five per cent of the monthly tax income after the renovation of hotel.

The Flying Tiger Engineering Company hires the building under a 50-year contract.

The company will operate the hotel under a joint-venture agreement with a Singapore company. Kempinski Company was established in 1897 and now manages a set of 77 five-star hotels and residence in 33 countries and continues to add new hotels in Europe, the Middle East, Africa, Asia and The Americas. It has opened Kempinski Hotel Nay Pyi Taw in Myanmar.

MRF exploring new export market with increasing rice production

WITH rice production increasing, Myanmar Rice Federation (MRF) is making efforts to gain new markets, according to yesterday’s report of Myanma Alin.

According to statistics of Agriculture Department, there were 2.46 million acres of rain and summer paddy last FY. About 10 million tons of paddies are in surplus after discarding paddy seeds for next cultivation season, wastages and consumption. The rice is exported only if there is a glut of rice in the local market, said the merchants.

We need to make adjustment between local market and export market. We have to control the local market not to scale up the rice price when the export volume increases. We must consider the whole supply and demand chain including the farmers, millers and consumers, said U Ye Min Aung, official from MRF.

About 2.5 million tons of rice and broken rice is likely to be exported to foreign trade partners in current fiscal year. We will also manage to control the local rice price, he added.

This FY has more than 17.7 million acres of paddy throughout the year across the country. There are more than 5 million acres of paddy in Ayeyawady; 2.9 million acres in Bago Region and 2.1 million acres in Sagaing Region, according to the Agriculture Department.

U Yan Naing Tun, the director-general of the Trade Department said that we inquire the Ministry of Agriculture, Livestock and Irrigation for rice supply and they respond that there is a self-sufficiency in the country.

About 1,308 million baskets of paddies were produced in 2016-2017 FY and 58 per cent of supply is from Ayeyawady, Bago and Sagaing regions. The growers extended paddy cultivation as a substitution of pulses. Also, there are 150,000 acres of paddies under contract farming in cooperation with farmers. Therefore, export volume is expected to increase this FY.

About 2.2 million tons of rice and broken rice were exported to foreign countries from 1st April to 1st December, with estimated earnings of US$673 million.

This figure is up by 1.4 million tons compared to that in similar period of last FY. The drop in onion cultivation land is attributed to the high price of seeds and shortage of water supply for summer crops in some townships. We would like to request the government to provide sufficient irrigation water supply to the farm lands to extend the cultivation areas, said U Gyi Myint, an onion grower.

More than 2,000 acres of onion cultivation are yearly found in Tatkun, Dekkhinathiri, Lewe, Ottarathiri, Pobbathiri, Pyinnma and Zabuthiri townships. Winter onion cultivation accounts for 1,300 acres. The onion seeds fetch Ks100,000 per small basket (similar to eight condensed milk cans). Some growers cannot afford to buy onion seeds and so, they have to buy the seeds under short-term loan system. In this system, the price increases up to Ks110,000 per small basket.

If a small basket of seeds is broadcasted, it can cover around 10-15 acres of land. Additionally there is another method of onion cultivation from onion bulb.

Onions are highly demanded by local consumers. They are exported to foreign countries when there is a glut in the market. Onion production was recorded at 1.1 million tons in 2013-2014 FY, 1.25 million tons in 2014-2015 FY and 2015-2016 FY. Last FY saw onion productions of 1.15 million tons. –Zar Lin Thu (AMIA)
Senior General Min Aung Hlaing attends ceremony to handover new building to No. 1 Latha school

A ceremony to transfer a four-story school building in Basic Education High School No. 1 Latha (BEHS 1 Latha) was held yesterday in the school in Latha Township, Yangon yesterday afternoon and was attended by Tatmadaw Commander-in-Chief Senior General Min Aung Hlaing, Yangon Command commander; officials from Ministry of Education, headmaster, teachers, former students, students and donors.

First, Tatmadaw Commander-in-Chief opened the new school building by pressing a button and then sprinkled scented waters on the commemorative plaque. Next, he delivered a short speech explaining the reason for donating the new school building.

Afterwards, U Tun Aung Hlaing, chairman of the Old Students Association transferred the new school building to Sayamagyi Daw Myint Myint Than, Director of Planning and Finance from the Basic Education Department, Yangon Region.

Cartoon U Sein Gyi of the Post-war (Second World War) Old Students Association presented the Tatmadaw Commander-in-Chief with a commemorative painting.

Earlier in the day, former students of (Central) BEHS 1 Latha who attended the school from 1965 to 1985 held their Silver Anniversary of paying respects to their teachers in the school’s central hall.

65 teachers were present for the ceremony to pay respects to teachers by former students who had attended the school from 1965 to 1985 together with Tatmadaw Commander-in-Chief Senior General Min Aung Hlaing who attended the school from middle school to high school. Sayagyi U Aye Thein delivered a speech on behalf of the teachers who were paid respects.

Tatmadaw Commander-in-Chief and former students then presented gifts to the teachers in person.

Two Mayyu Mountain roads to support development in Maungtaw region

Afterwards, 18 ft. wide concrete road will be laid on top of the gravel road. A total of 75 bridges are also being planned to be built along this road.

The second Mayyu Mountain road is the Kyetimauk-Gopi road. The road which is being constructed by Road Special team 17 is on the northern part of Maungtaw region.

It is 15 miles long and the construction is being undertaken with 15 road laying vehicles. A total of 52 bridges of various sizes are also being planned to be built along this road. An initial 34 ft. wide road is being constructed and then will have gravels 8-inch thick laid on top. And then, there’ll be 18 ft. wide concrete road on top of it all.

Mayyu Mountain range faces the Bay of Bengal and Naf River and ran from north to south. As such, even though Buthidaung, Maungtaw and Yathedaung townships border each other, the Mayyu Mountain range is like a natural obstacle between them.

The roads will connect the eastern and western part of the mountain range allowing more transport and communications which will support the development, security and peace of the region.—Myint Maung, Zeya

China calls for constructive efforts to ease Korean tensions

BEIJING — China called on Monday for all countries to make constructive efforts to ease tension after North Korea said the latest UN sanctions against it are an act of war and tantamount to a complete economic blockade.

The UN Security Council unanimously imposed new sanctions on North Korea on Friday for its recent intercontinental ballistic missile test, seeking to limit its access to refined petroleum products and crude oil and its earnings from workers abroad.

The US-drafted resolution also caps crude oil supplies to North Korea at 4 million barrels a year and commits the Council to further reductions if it were to conduct another nuclear test or launch another intercontinental ballistic missile (ICBM).

In a statement carried by the official KCNA news agency, North Korea’s foreign ministry said the United States was terrified by its nuclear force and was getting “more and more frenzied in the moves to impose the harshest-ever sanctions and pressure on our country”.

The new resolution was tantamount to a complete economic blockade of North Korea, the ministry said.

In another development, the UN Security Council to ratchet up pressure on North Korea on Friday for its recent intercontinental ballistic missile test, marking a round imposed after its sixth and most powerful nuclear test on 3 September constituted genocide.

The United States has demanded a halt to what it called “brutal sanctions”, saying a round imposed after its sixth and most powerful nuclear test on 3 September constituted genocide.

Philippines’ Duterte’s son quits as vice mayor of hometown Davao

MANILA — Philippine President Rodrigo Duterte’s eldest son quit as vice mayor of the southern city of Davao on Monday, citing his being linked to a drug smuggling case by opponents of the president, has repeatedly called for calm and restraint from all sides and for a return to talks.

Paolo Duterte’s marriage with a former beauty queen has been beset by controversy. His father, who has denied any involvement, has repeatedly called for calm and restraint from all sides and for a return to talks.

In a statement made available to media, Paolo said it successfully tested a nuclear force” despite “short supply. Paolo has denied any involvement.

More recently, he has been involved in an online spat with Isabelle, his 15-year-old daughter from his first wife. Paolo has called her “embarrassing” on Facebook after she complained about how he has been involved in an online spat with Isabelle, his 15-year-old daughter from his first wife. North Korea says new UN sanctions an act of war

BEIJING/SEOUL — The latest UN sanctions against North Korea are an act of war and tantamount to a complete economic blockade against it, North Korea’s foreign ministry said on Sunday, threatening to punish those who supported the measure.

The UN Security Council unanimously imposed new sanctions on North Korea on Friday for its recent intercontinental ballistic missile test, seeking to limit its access to refined petroleum products and crude oil and its earnings from workers abroad.

The UN resolution seeks to ban nearly 90 per cent of refined petroleum exports to North Korea by capping them at 500,000 barrels a year and, in a last-minute change, demands the repatriation of North Koreans working abroad within 24 months, instead of 12 months as first proposed.

The US-drafted resolution also caps crude oil supplies to North Korea at 4 million barrels a year and commits the Council to further reductions if it were to conduct another nuclear test or launch another ICBM.

In a statement carried by the official KCNA news agency, North Korea’s foreign ministry said the United States was terrified by its nuclear force and was getting “more and more frenzied in the moves to impose the harshest-ever sanctions and pressure on our country”.

The new resolution was tantamount to a complete economic blockade of North Korea, the ministry said.

“We define this ‘sanctions resolution’ rigged up by the US and its followers as a grave infringement upon the sovereignty of our Republic, as an act of war violating peace and stability in the Korean peninsula and the region and categorically reject the ‘resolution’,” it said.

“There is no more fatal blunder than the miscalculation that the US and its followers could check by already worn-out ‘sanctions’ the malicious advance of our people who have brilliantly accomplished the great historic cause of completing the state nuclear force”, the ministry said.

North Korean leader Kim Jong Un on 29 November declared the nuclear force complete after the test of North Korea’s largest-ever ICBM test, which the country said puts all of the United States within range.

Kim told a meeting of members of the ruling Workers’ Party on Friday that the country “successfully realized the historic cause of completing the state nuclear force” despite “short supply in everything and manifold difficulties and ordeals owing to the despicable anti-DPRK moves of the enemies”.” — Reuters

Just Russia party not to nominate its candidate for president, to support Putin

WASHINGTON — The Just Russia party will not nominate its candidate for Russian president but will support Vladimir Putin, the party’s leader, Sergei Mironov, said on Sunday. “The Just Russia party will not nominate its candidate, we will support Vladimir Putin’s candidacy,” he told journalists after a meeting of the party’s Central Council Presidium.

“The presidium has passed a political decision and this decision will be tomorrow recommended to the congress,” he said. “I am sure the congress will support it.”

According to Mironov, few have doubts that Putin will win the upcoming elections. “This candidate is the winner. So, if we know the outcome beforehand, why should we nominate our candidate to be in the company of outsiders enjoying miserable support,” he said. “We are a socialist party and three basic decisions of the president of the past six months are literally our party’s program provisions. He hears us, we see the tendency.”

He said that his party’s representatives would be commissioned to Putin’s election headquarters to help work “on the future agenda.” “If the party’s congress decides to support Putin, it will mean that two out of four parliamentary parties are going to support the incumbent president,” Mironov said.

Nevertheless, the Just Russia leader vowed his party would stay in opposition to the ruling United Russia party. The party congress that is to pass this decision will be held in Moscow on 25 December. Presidential elections in Russia are scheduled for 18 March, 2018.—Tass

Pentagon must give access to American detained in Iraq — US judge

WASHINGTON — A federal judge has ordered the Trump administration to give the American Civil Liberties Union (ACLU) access to an American suspected of fighting for Islamic State and held in secret US military detention in Iraq for more than three months.

In a ruling issued late on Saturday, US District Court Judge Tanya Chutkan denied a government request to dismiss an ACLU challenge to the unidentified man’s detention, rejecting the claim that the organization has no standing in the matter.

Chutkan ruled that the Defense Department should provide the ACLU with “temporary, immediate and unmonitored access” to the man to determine if he wants the organization to pursue a habeas corpus petition on his behalf and provide him with legal advice.

Using such a petition, a person can ask a court to review the legality of their detention.

The man surrendered in mid-September to US-backed Syrian Kurdish fighters pursuing an offensive against Islamic State’s former stronghold of Raqqa, in northeastern Syria. He was turned over to the US military, which classified him as an “enemy combatant,” and transferred him to a secret location in Iraq, according to Chutkan’s ruling.

Aside from two visits by the International Committee of the Red Cross, the detainee has had contact only with US government officials, according to the ruling. The judge pointed out that in a 30 November brief, the Defence Department disclosed that in an interview with FBI agents, the detainee said that he felt that he wanted an attorney present.—Reuters

Peru’s president pardons ex-leader Fujimori, citing his health

LIMA — Peruvian President Pedro Pablo Kuczynski pardoned former authoritarian leader Alberto Fujimori late on Sunday, clearing him of convictions for human rights crimes and graft before completion of a 25-year prison sentence.

Kuczynski’s office said in a statement that a medical review showed that Fujimori, 79, who governed Peru from 1990 to 2000, suffered from “a progressive, degenerative and incurable disease.” The pardon comes just days after a faction of Fujimori’s supporters in the opposition-controlled Congress saved Kuczynski from a motion that would have forced him from office in the wake of a graft scandal.—Reuters
Israel praises Guatemala over Jerusalem embassy move

JERUSALEM/GUATEMALA CITY — Guatemalan President Jimmy Morales drew praise from Israeli officials on Monday for deciding to relocate the Central American country’s embassy to Jerusalem, a move in step with US policy in a dispute over the city’s status.

In a statement issued through the group’s Amaq news agency, Islamic State said it was also behind Monday’s attack.

In Kabul, security officials said the explosion was caused by a suicide bomber who approached the agency’s entrance on foot before blowing himself up. All the casualties reported were of civilian passersby.

Najib Danish, a spokesman for the interior ministry, said at least five people had been killed and two wounded.

Islamic State’s local affiliate, which first appeared in eastern Afghanistan near the border with Pakistan in early 2015, has become increasingly active and has claimed several recent suicide attacks in Kabul.

It has frequently fought Taliban militants and has been heavily targeted by US air strikes and Special Forces operations in its main stronghold in Nangarhar province.

But there remains considerable uncertainty about how the group operates and the exact nature of its connections with Islamic State in Iraq and Syria. — Reuters

Syrian, Iranian backed forces advance in border area near Israel

AMMAN — Syrian army forces backed by Iranian-backed militias pushed deeper into the last rebel-held enclave near a strategic border area with Israel and Lebanon in a new expansion of Tehran’s influence in the war-torn country.

The army and the Shi’ite forces advanced east and south of the Sunni-rebel held bastion of Beit Jin backed by some of the heaviest aerial bombing and heavy artillery shelling since a major assault began over two months ago to seize the area, rebels said.

The Syrian army said it had encircled the village of Mughr al Meer at the foothills of Mount Hermon as troops moved toward Beit Jin amid fierce clashes.

The enclave is the last rebel bastion left in the south west of Damascus known as the Western Ghouta that had since last year fallen under government control after months of heavy bombing on civilian areas and years of siege tactics that forced rebels to surrender.

A western intelligence source confirmed rebel reports that Iranian-backed militias including the powerful Lebanese Hezbollah Shi’ite group were playing a major role in the ongoing battles.

“The Iranian backed militias are trying to consolidate their sphere of influence all the way from southwest of Damascus to the Israeli border,” said Subaib al Ruhail, an official from the Liwa al Furqan rebel group that operates in the area.

Worried by Iran’s expanding influence in Syria after the defeat of Islamic State, Israel has in the last few weeks stepped up its strikes against suspected Iranian targets inside Syria.

Early this month an Israeli strike on a base near Kiswah, south of Damascus was widely believed to be an Iranian military compound, according to a Western intelligence source.

Israel has been lobbying both big powers to deny Iran, Lebanon’s Hezbollah and other Shi’ite militias any permanent bases in Syria, and to keep them away from the Golan, as they gain ground while helping Damascus beat back Sunni-led rebels.

The southwest of Syria is part of a de-escalation zone in southern Syria agreed last July between Russia and Washington, the first such understanding between the two powers.

The area has not seen Russian bombing unlike other cease-fire areas in Syria.

Diplomatic sources say several thousand Shi’ite fighters who have been amassing from outside the Quneitra province are pitted against hundreds of Islamist and mainstream Free Syrian Army (FSA) rebels closing ranks under the banner of Jund al Aqsa, which first appeared in Gaziantep in the south western border with Turkey.

With the army and Iranian backed offensive widening, the rebels have called on youths to enlist as mosque imams in Beirut and Jerusalem to take up arms and fight the army.

The rebels still have a sizeable presence in central and southern Quneitra, in the Syrian Golan Heights.

Western diplomatic sources say the crushing of the Sunni rebel presence in areas they have been in since 2013 will allow Lebanon’s Hezbollah to open another secure arms supply line to its border in southern Lebanon into Syria.

Since the beginning of the conflict in Syria, Iran has had a growing presence in the country, deploying thousands of Shi’ite fighters who have fought against both mainstream Sunni rebel groups and more militant groups. — Reuters

Trump’s Christmas wish: ‘We’ve got prosperity. Now we want peace’

PALM BEACH, Fla. — On Christmas Eve, US President Donald Trump took calls from children, asking them what they wanted most from Santa, and revealing what was on his own wish list.

One boy wanted building blocks. Another wished for his grandma to get out of the hospital. And as for Trump — who has sent a series of combative tweets since arriving at his Florida vacation home — he said he wants “peace for the country.”

“We’ve got prosperity — now we want peace,” Trump told a child named Ryan, who called the North American Aerospace Defence Command (NORAD) to check on Santa’s progress.

Every year on Christmas Eve NORAD purports to track the flight of Santa and his reindeer-pulled sleigh, a tradition since 1955 when a department store misprinted a phone number, sending a flood of calls to a NORAD colonel, who played along.

Sitting in a gold chair beside first lady Melania Trump in an ornate, tapestried great room, the president enthusiastically chatted with youngsters and their parents. Reporters in the room could hear only the president’s side of the conversation.

In his trademark brash style honed during a career in the New York real estate world, Trump predicted the kids would have the greatest Christmas ever.

“I’ll make a prediction — Santa is going to treat you well. Really well. The best he’s ever treated you,” he told one child from Mississippi, throwing in an invitation to come to the Oval Office sometime.

Casper from Arlington, Virginia, was a child after Trump’s own heart. “Building blocks! That’s what I always liked too,” the president exclaimed.

“I predict that Santa will bring you building blocks, so many you won’t be able to use them all,” he said.

As for Ryan, he told Trump he wanted his grandmother to come home from the hospital.

“That is great. That’s better than asking for some toy or something,” Trump said.— Reuters

Israel regulator seeks to ban bitcoin firms from stock exchange

JERUSALEM — Israel’s markets regulator said on Monday he will propose regulation to ban companies based on bitcoin and other digital currencies from trading on the Tel Aviv Stock Exchange (TASE).

Shmuel Hauser, the chairman of the Israel Securities Authority (ISA), told the Calcalist business conference he will bring the proposal to the ISA board next week. If approved, it would be subject to a public hearing and then the TASE bylaws would need to be amended.

“If we have a company that their main business is digital currencies we would not allow it. If already listed, its trading will be suspended,” Hauser said, adding the ISA must find the appropriate regulation for such companies.

Bitcoin, valued by 30 percent to below $12,000 on Friday as investors dumped the cryptocurrency after its sharp rise to nearly $20,000. It recouped some losses to trade above $14,000 on the Bitstamp platform, down 9 percent on the day.

“We feel that the prices of bitcoin behave like bubbles and we don’t want investors to be subject to that volatility and uncertainty,” Hauser said. “There is an importance to signal to the market where things are... Investors should know where we stand.”

Earlier this month, Hauser had said bitcoin-based companies would not be included in TASE indexes and that there was a need for a suitable regulatory framework for such instruments given that the global market value of all digital currencies grew in 2017 to $300 billion from $18 billion.

The proposal will likely be the last for Hauser, who will step down next month after 6-1/2 years as ISA chief.

“But once it’s on its way it will continue to be pursued,” said Hauser, who will be replaced by Anat Guetta.

He said he hopes she will promote easing capital gains taxes and focus on regulatory enforcement.—Reuters

US Treasury’s Mnuchin sent gift-wrapped box of horse manure — reports

WASHINGTON — A gift-wrapped package addressed to US Treasury Secretary Steven Mnuchin’s home in a posh Los Angeles neighborhood that was suspected of being a bomb was instead filled with horse manure, police told local media.

The package was found Saturday evening in a next-door neighbor’s driveway in Bel Air, the Los Angeles Police Department told the Los Angeles Times and KNBC television, the NBC affiliate in Los Angeles. The package also included a Christmas card with negative comments about President Donald Trump and the new US tax law signed by Trump last week. Reuters could not reach LAPD officials for comment on Sunday.

An LAPD bomb squad X-rayed the package before opening it and found the horse manure inside, police told local media.

Aerial footage from KNBC showed officers investigating a large box in wrapping paper, then dumping a large amount of what they later identified as the manure and opening the card that was included inside.—Reuters

Driver rams German party headquarters in apparent suicide bid

BERLIN — A man drove a car at the entrance of the Berlin headquarters of Germany’s Social Democratic Party (SPD) late on Sunday evening, lightly injuring himself in what police said was an apparent suicide attempt. Police said the car, which crashed through the first set of glass doors of Willy Brandt House, the SPD’s headquarters, was laden with petrol canisters and gas cartridges. The building’s sprinkler system extinguished the resulting blaze.

Authorities did not identify the man, saying only that he was 58 years old. It was unclear why he had chosen the SPD, which is about to start negotiations on governing for another four years in coalition with Chancellor Angela Merkel’s conservatives, as his target.—Reuters

Japan foreign minister embarks on Middle East tour

JERUSALEM — Japanese Foreign Minister Taro Kono arrived in Israel on Monday on the first leg of a Middle East tour that will also take him to Palestine, following US President Donald Trump’s controversial decision to recognize Jerusalem as Israel’s capital. During his six-day tour, Kono is expected to tell both sides that Japan does not agree with the US decision and urge them to move the peace process forward, according to Foreign Ministry sources.

Kono’s second trip to the region in less than a month follows Trump’s announcement that the United States is recognizing Jerusalem as the capital of Israel and will transfer the US Embassy there from Tel Aviv.

In Jerusalem on Monday, Kono is scheduled to meet with Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu and other officials.

Later in the day, Kono is expected to visit Ramallah, the administrative capital of the Palestinian authority in the West Bank, where Palestinian protesters and Israeli troops have clashed since Trump’s decision.

A meeting with Palestinian President Mahmoud Abbas is also being arranged. —Kyodo News

Chinese foreign minister pledges better diplomacy for China, world development

BEIJING — Chinese Foreign Minister Wang Yi has pledged better diplomatic work to serve the development of China and the world.

As the largest developing country, the diplomatic work of China should serve the creation of a better external environment for the country’s modernization, Wang said in an interview with journalists of the People’s Daily, the flagship newspaper of the Communist Party of China (CPC).

“The other hand, we also need to take our international responsibilities and make new contributions to the development and progress of humanity,” he said in the interview, which was published in the Monday edition of the newspaper.

Wang said China will make every possible effort to host the Boao Forum for Asia, the Shanghai Cooperation Organization summit, the Forum for China-Africa Cooperation and the China International Import Expo next year to “open a new chapter” for win-win cooperation between China and other countries.

He also said China will promote the healthy development of China-US relations, maintain high-level strategic coordination with Russia, consolidate the sound momentum for relations with European countries, and work to build a framework for major-country relations featuring overall stability and balanced development.

He said China will deepen its friendship with neighbors and seek political settlement regarding issues such as the Korean peninsula and Afghanistan.

Wang said that in 2018, China will implement the results reached at the Belt and Road Forum for International Co-operation and put in place mechanisms to boost cooperation.

The foreign minister said China will also participate in global governance, make economic globalization more open, inclusive and beneficial to more people, and advance international cooperation in responding to climate change and fighting terrorism.

Moreover, he said China will participate in making rules regarding emerging sectors, such as cyberspace and outer space, and will oppose all forms of protectionism.

To better serve the country’s development, Wang said China will expedite communication and exchanges among Chinese and foreign personnel, improve consular services and explore building a safety network for overseas Chinese.— Xinhua

The Republic of the Union of Myanmar has received financing from the World Bank to implement the National Community Driven Development Project (NCDD) under the Department of Rural Development (DRD) of the Ministry of Agriculture, Livestock and Irrigation. The Government needs to apply the funds to finance the hiring of consultants for Township Technical Assistance (TTA) for new townships to be covered in the next five years of project implementation, e.g. around April 2018.

The TTA consulting services (the “Services”) include:

- Assisting township DRD offices in planning, implementing and monitoring project activities in the respective townships in line with the procedures contained in the Project Operations Manual and directions received from the DRD union office.
- Assisting villages and village tracts in (i) the preparation and annual revision of development plans; (ii) sub-project technical design, cost estimation, review and approval; (iii) sub-project implementation, including adherence to environmental and social safeguards outlined in the Project Operations Manual, procurement of labor and materials and supervision during implementation; and (iv) organization of annual social audits.
- Assisting village tracts or project support committees to manage project funds in a transparent and accountable manner.
- Where applicable, providing technical support as needed to existing project townships within the State/Region.

The Services will be procured in three separate contracts, covering the geographic areas outlined above and are scheduled to start at the town level in April 2018, for two years. Depending on performance, project needs and the availability of funding as will be assessed at the end of these two years, the contract may be extended for another two years. Based on the same criteria, the contract may also be increased into additional townships of which the number remains to be determined.

The consultant teams will be based in the township(s) and include five full time experts: (i) team leader/training specialist, (ii) finance officer, (iii) procurement officer, (iv) monitoring and evaluation officer, (v) communication/social accountability/gender officer. Furthermore, there may be short-term inputs by a national CDD program advisor by an international CDD expert to support the township team. In addition, the Consultant will also recruit locally community facilitators and technical facilitators to be based in the indicated township(s). This team shall be in place for a first contractual period of two years starting expectedly from March 2018 with the mission to support all aspects of the implementation of the NCDD Project and to upgrade the capacity of the local DRD offices in the townships concerned.

The Department of Rural Development now invites eligible consulting firms or NGOs (“Consultants”) to indicate their interest in providing these TTA services. Interested Consultants should provide information demonstrating that they have the required qualifications and relevant experience to perform the services in one or more of the township clusters mentioned.

Consultants may associate with other NGOs in the form of a joint venture or a sub-consultancy to enhance their qualifications.

Expressions of Interest must be submitted in a written but preferably electronic form to the address below by MONDAY 16 January 2018 and clearly indicate the township cluster(s) in which the Consultant is interested.

Following a review of Expressions of Interest, DRD will invite short-listed consultants to prepare full proposals. Consultants will be selected in accordance with the QBS method set out in the Consultant Guidelines. Contracts will be structured primarily as lump sum payments against agreed outputs. The short-listing criteria are:

- Past experience with community development activities in similar conditions as in Myanmar, with prior experience in Myanmar desirable;
- Size of relevant assignment contracts over the past five years.

Further information and detailed sample terms of reference may be obtained from the NCDD Project webpage: http://www.cdd.drdmyanmar.org or the address below during office hours from 09h00 to 16h00, Monday through Friday, except public holidays.

Queen praises husband’s humour in Christmas message

LONDON — Britain’s Queen Elizabeth will pay tribute to her husband Prince Philip in her Christmas message, and praise his “support and unique sense of humour”.

The 96-year-old prince, also known as the Duke of Edinburgh, has been at the queen’s side throughout her 65 years on the throne, and has regularly grabbed the headlines with his off-colour comments.

He retired from regular royal duties over the summer, but has continued to make occasional appearances, most recently walking to the Christmas Eve church service on the royal family’s Sandringham estate.

The queen will also talk about the importance of home in her message, and the sense of community in London and Manchester after the capital’s devastating Grenfell Tower fire and the militant attacks in both cities. “We think of our homes as place of warmth, familiarity and love… there is a timeless simplicity to the pull of home,” she will say, according to excerpts from her speech released by Buckingham Palace.

“This Christmas, I think of London and Manchester, whose powerful identities shine through over the past 12 months in the face of appalling attacks,” she will add in the message which will be broadcast at 1500 GMT. Elizabeth, the world’s longest reigning monarch, very rarely talks about her husband.

On their golden wedding anniversary in 1997, she said he did not take easily to compliments but had been her “strength and stay all these years”. Philip, who has carried out more than 22,000 solo engagements, developed a reputation for his comments, including his remark about “slitty eyes” on a visit to China in the 1960s. In the following decade, he said “aren’t most of you descended from pirates?” to an islander in the Cayman Islands and asked a driving instructor in Scotland: “How do you keep the natives off the booze long enough to pass the test?”

The seasonal royal message dates back to King George V in 1932 and was first televised 60 years ago in 1957. — Reuters

Jennifer Lawrence visits children’s hospital on Christmas

LOS ANGELES — Keeping up with her annual tradition over holidays, Jennifer Lawrence has visited a children’s hospital in her hometown of Louisville, Kentucky.

The 27-year-old actor visited Norton’s Children’s Hospital on Christmas eve.

The medical facility took to its official Instagram, where they thanked Lawrence for taking some time out of her busy schedule and celebrating the holiday season with the kids.

“Louisville’s own Jennifer Lawrence stopped by Norton Children’s today to visit with patients, families, and staff. “This visit has become a tradition for Lawrence each Christmas. Thank you, Jennifer! You sure do bring a smile to all!” the post read, alongside the “mother!” actor’s picture at the hospital.

Lawrence has visited the same medical centre over the Christmas holiday every year since 2013, when it was named Kosair Children’s Hospital, E! Online reported. — PTI

“Star Wars: The Last Jedi” dominates North American box office for second weekend

LOS ANGELES — The Force of “Star Wars: The Last Jedi” continued to dominate the North American box office for a second weekend in a row, raking an estimated 68.48 million US dollars.

Disney’s release of Lucasfilm’s “Star Wars: The Last Jedi” is on track to take in a whopping 365.1 million dollars through Sunday and 397.3 million dollars through Christmas Day. Combined with an estimated international cume of 389.3 million dollars, the epic space opera’s global cume stands at a mighty 745.4 million dollars through Sunday, according to the studio figures collected by comScore.

Directed by Rian Johnson, the eighth installment in the “Star Wars” saga follows Rey as she receives Jedi training from Luke Skywalker in hopes of turning the tide for the Resistance in the continued fight against Kylo Ren and the First Order.

Sony’s action adventure comedy film “Jumanji: Welcome to the Jungle” opened in second place with an estimated 34 million dollars through Sunday and 47.5 million dollars through Christmas Day.

Directed by Jake Kasdan and stars Dwayne Johnson, Jack Black, Kevin Hart and Karen Gillan, the sequel to 1995’s “Jumanji” follows four teenagers who are transported into the video game world of Jumanji and must work together to beat the game in order to return to the real world. —Xinhua
Indian girls orphaned by tsunami, saved by soccer

A group of colorfully dressed girls performed an energetic traditional welcome dance for Japanese artist Takashi Murakami, who was visiting their elementary school in Banda Aceh, the capital of Indonesia’s westernmost province of Aceh, for a tree-planting event on Friday morning.

After planting trees with other volunteers in 16 locations in the Tohoku area of northeastern Japan that was devastated by a tsunami in March 2011, Murakami came to Aceh, which experienced an even worse tsunami in December 2004, to do the same.

But instead of planting cherry trees, or “sakura,” as part of the Sakura 3-11 Project that he co-founded, he and the Acehnese students planted champak trees, locally known as jeumpa, whose fragrant flowers are popular in Aceh, just like sakura blossoms are in Japan.

Right after the planting, he handed off a sakura baton, such as used in a relay race, to one of the students, while noting it is the 17th school he has visited to plant trees and the first outside of Tohoku. “By seeing the planted sakura trees, it is expected that it will remind the later generation about the story of the tsunami experienced by the previous generation,” he said. “Just like sakura planted in Tohoku, jeumpa will also remind the current and future generation of Aceh about lessons from tsunami in the past.”

He said The school in Baro village of Meuraxa subdistrict, located only some 2 kilometres away from the coast, was selected by the Sakura 3-11 Project because it was flattened to the ground by the tsunami on 26 December, 2004 that killed more than 160,000 people in Aceh Province alone.

Of the school’s 180 students then, only 15 survived, according to Anshari Yahya, a former village official whose granddaughte r was one of the dancers who welcomed Murakami.

Japan-Indonesia art project connects tsunami-hit Aceh, Tohoku

Cuddalore, (India) — When the Cuddalore district in the South Indian state of Tamil Nadu was devastated by a massive tsunami on 26 December, 2004, many lives were lost — and even more lives were changed forever.

For a group of girls from impoverished families studying at a local government school, the way forward seems made for a Bollywood film, its plot a cross between Slum Dog Millionaire and Bend It Like Beckam.

What kept them moving on was the sport of soccer; and their coach Subramanian Mariappan, a retired school headmaster. On the 13th anniversary of the tsunami, Mariappan took responsibility for not only training a big group of girls from poor families in soccer, but even supporting them as his own family members.

Mariappan was the physical education teacher at a government school in Cuddalore, where he coached the boys’ soccer team, when some girls asked to play as well.

“These girls used to peek from the classroom windows while I trained the boys. I was a very strict teacher and nobody dared to talk to me, but one day some of the girls approached me saying that they also wanted to play this sport,” recalls Mariappan, now 64.

But in the wake of the 2004 tsunami, Mariappan took responsibility for not only training a big group of girls from poor families in soccer, but even supporting them as his own family members.

Many of the girls were orphaned when the 2004 tsunami struck Cuddalore, located on the coast of the Bay of Bengal about 29 kilometres south of Puducherry, the former French colonial settlement known as Pondicherry.

It’s believed the name Cuddalore comes from the Tamil word “koodalur,” meaning confluence, which explains why the damage there was so severe from the tsunami triggered by a massive 9.1 magnitude earthquake hours earlier off the west coast of Sumatra, Indonesia.

The earthquake was one of the largest ever recorded, and the tsunami it created swept away entire communities around the Indian Ocean, including along the southern coast of India and the nearby island nation of Sri Lanka.

The town of Cuddalore is straddled by two rivers, the Then Pennai and the Gadilam, providing natural pathways for the tsunami to penetrate far inland.

After the tsunami, the girls lived at a government home for the poor, but could only stay there through the senior secondary grade of school, or grades 11 and 12 when students are typically 16 to 17-year-olds.

“They had a dedication to football (as soccer is called in the former British colony) motivated me to take responsibility for them,” Mariappan recalls matter-of-factly. “I used to spend all my salary on them. Now after retirement, I receive a pension somewhere around $457, which helps me take care of them.”

And there were others around Cuddalore who also stepped up to take care of the 33 girls.—Kyodo News

Lukaku proves he can offer more than just goals for United

LONDON — Manchester United have created fewer chances than Southampton in the Premier League this season, but after Romelu Lukaku’s performance as a creator against Leicester City, Jose Mourinho may have found a new way for United to stay in the title race.

United made a blistering start to the season, winning four of their opening five league games, scoring 16 goals in the process, with the attack spearheaded by new striker Lukaku.

However, after scoring in his first nine games in all competitions, the goals have dried up for the Belgian, with Mourinho’s side now trailing league leaders Manchester City by 13 points.

United welcome Burnley to Old Trafford in the league on Tuesday with a busy festive schedule kicking in — the perfect time for Lukaku to have found a new facet to his game when not scoring.

On Saturday, the striker fulfilled an unfamiliar role, with no other player at the King Power Stadium creating more chances for team mates.

“Lukaku’s role has been different,” former United defender Gary Neville said. “The chances that he has created should have killed the game off. His contribution will please Mourinho.”

Lukaku created two big chances for Martial and Jesse Lingard with defence-splitting passes, but both were not converted which cost United as Leicester snatched a last-gasp point.

Such profligacy against Burnley would mean that United’s hold on second place in the standings would be under threat, as Chelsea lurk three points behind in third.

Lukaku proved he can offer more than just goals for United
