Pyithu Hluttaw discusses age limit for civil servants, pollution

The 2nd Pyithu Hluttaw’s 7th regular session sixth-day meeting was held yesterday morning in the Pyithu Hluttaw meeting hall, Nay Pyi Taw.

At the meeting, Union Civil Service Board (UCSB) Chairman Dr. Win Thein replied to a question raised by Daw Ni Shwe Hla-an of Thanluttang constituency on reducing the age limit criteria in appointing government servants for remote and far-off places.

The UCSB Chairman said the board does not set the age limit criteria in appointing public servants and has no plans to do so. Instead, it selects and appoints public servants according to criteria set by the relevant ministries. These criteria are also dependent on the nature and scope of the work of the relevant ministries. It is more appropriate for the ministries to set the criteria according to their requirements rather than have the UCSB set them. Next, Union Minister for Natural Resources and Environmental Conservation U Ohn Win responded to a question raised by Dr. U Aung Khin of Pyin Oo Lwin constituency on plans to enact an air-pollution control law to reduce the ill effects of air pollution in Myanmar. The union minister said there are currently no plans to enact such a law, but national air-quality standards were being set and announced, adherence to the standard was being monitored and assessed by the relevant ministries, and the standard was being amended and corrected based on advances in science and technology as well as for the benefit of the people. These efforts will continue to control air pollution, the union minister noted.

Similarly, questions raised by Daw Nan Kham Aye of Namu constituency, U Toe Thaung of Mongnitt constituency and U Nay Htat Win of Sinhaungwe constituency were also answered by Union Minister for Natural Resources and Environmental Conservation U Ohn Win.

Afterwards, a bill on explosive materials was submitted to the Hluttaw by Union Minister for Natural Resources and Environmental Conservation U Ohn Win and the Pyithu Hluttaw Bill Committee report on the bill was read by committee member U Zaw Win of Htanluttang constituency. Pyithu Hluttaw Speaker U Win Myint requested Hluttaw representatives who wished to discuss the bill to enroll their names.

A motion tabled by Dr. U Aye Min of Kayan constituency urging the government to award outstanding government servants with honours, titles, rest, recreation and study tours and foreign (scholarship-based) training to raise the morale and performance of these public servants, was then discussed and supported by U Ne Lin Aung of Mindat constituency, Dr. U Tin Aung of Kyaukse constituency, U Tun Naing of Kani constituency, Daw Cho Cho of Ottwin constituency, U Myint Lwin of Twante constituency, U Tin Hway of Waw constituency, U Myint Wai of Gyaing constituency, U Tin Ko Ko Oo of Bilin constituency, U Saw Victor Clyde of Thandaunggyi constituency, Tatmadaw Hluttaw representative Lt-Col Kyaw Thittha and Major Min Zarni Htaw, Dr. Daw Thein Thein Khang of Daung constituency, U Kyaw Swe Win of Kawhmu constituency, U Win of Minbu constituency, Daw Ni Shwe Hlyan of Thantluttang constituency and U Maung Maung of Htigyaung constituency.

Responding to the discussion by the Hluttaw representatives, UCSB Chairman Dr. Win Thein was obtained, and Amyotha Hluttaw Speaker Mahn Win Aung Thay announced the approval of the Hluttaw. The 2017 bill to amend the vacant, fallow and virgin lands management law was then discussed by Daw Myaung Thiida Tun of Mon State constituency (5), Naw Chris Tun @ Dr. Arr Kar Moe of Kayin State constituency (7), U Thet Naing Soe of Tanintharyi Region constituency (2), U Ba Myo Thein of Yangon Region constituency (5), Naw Chit Tun @ Dr. Arr Kar Moe of Kayin State constituency (7), U Thet Naing Soe of Tanintharyi Region constituency (2), U Ba Myo Thein of Yangon Region constituency (5), Dr. Win Myint Chit of Bago Region constituency (8), U Soe Thein @ U Maung Soe of Tanintharyi Region constituency (10), U Hla San of Magway Region constituency (1), Dr. Win Myint of Bago Region constituency (11) and U Win Zaw of Kachin State constituency (7).

Lawmakers discusses upgrading Yangon-Mandalay Highway

At the 2nd Amyotha Hluttaw’s 7th regular session sixth-day meeting, held yesterday morning, Ministry of Construction Deputy Minister U Kyaw Lin explained the plan to obtain international loans and special funds under a new programme in addition to the use of union funds to upgrade the Yangon-Mandalay expressway.

Plans are underway to roll out this strategy under a Public Private Partnership programme. The deputy minister was responding to a question raised by U Lal Min Htan of Chin State constituency (10) on the plan to lay a final layer of asphalt on the Yangon-Mandalay expressway as a priority task before the end of fiscal year 2020-2021.

The deputy minister explained that the Yangon-Mandalay expressway stretches for 366 miles and 3 furlongs; when considering it both ways, it has a total length of 722 miles and 6 furlongs. As of fiscal year 2016-2017, a 25-foot-wide asphalt-concrete section of the road was completed, for a total length of 149 miles and 5 furlongs. A further 25-foot-wide section of 13 miles and 7 furlongs will be completed in fiscal year 2017-2018. By the end of fiscal year 2017-2018, 560 miles of asphalt-concrete road work will still be pending. Approval from the union government’s economic committee has been obtained to complete the addition of a final layer of asphalt, 2.5-meter asphalt-concrete road shoulders on both sides of the road, and an interchange in Baungmyaingyi, as well as for the completion of road safety work during the 2018-2020 fiscal year on the Yangon-Mandalay expressway, in the 8 miles to 36 miles section (Yangon-Bawmeltkyi section), with loans from Asia Development Bank and the ASEAN Infrastructure Fund. Both of these loans were submitted at the union government meeting. Once the Cabinet approval is obtained, it will be submitted to the Hluttaw, explained the Deputy Minister.

In response to a question by Daw Htu May of Rakhine State constituency (11) on the plan to upgrade the strategic Yanbye-Kyauknimaw (25 miles and 5 furlongs) section to a concrete road, using the union fund in fiscal year 2018-2019, Deputy Minister for Construction U Kyaw Lin said that the Yanbye-Kyauknimaw road is owned by the ministry of construction’s road department and managed by the (Rakhine) state government. It is a smooth gravel-surfaced road. In fiscal year 2017-2018, a total of Ks967.779 million in state government funds was used to lay an 18-foot-wide road section stretching 4 furlongs in Yanbye, provide gravel surfacing for a road stretching 11 miles and 2 furlongs, construct the 180-foot-long reinforced concrete Thitpote Chaung bridge, complete earth work for the bridge’s approach road, lay asphalt on the bridge and construct two wooden bridges.

As the Yanbye-Kyauknimaw road is managed by the state government, no work has been earmarked for completion with the union fund. In 2018, from 1 April to 30 September, an 18-foot-wide and 1-mile-long concrete road in Yanbye, a 14-foot-wide 2-mile-long gravel road, a 10-foot-long rock-lined approach road and two reinforced concrete bridges are planned for construction using state government capital funds of Ks563.4 million. In addition, in fiscal year 2018-2019, the construction of a 12-foot-wide 3-mile-long road and reconstruction of the 39-foot-long Myebon and 49-foot-long Khamamaung wooden bridges into reinforced concrete bridges are being planned, for which Ks660 million has been requested from the state government fund. The road department has no plans to upgrade the Yanbye-Kyauknimaw road with union government funds; instead, it is requesting the state government fund to upgrade it, explained the deputy minister. An additional question by U Kyaw Kyaw of Rakhine State constituency (4) on the plan to construct a new reinforced two-lane concrete bridge in place of Myaungbwe bridge in Mrank U Township was also answered by Deputy Minister for Construction U Kyaw Lin.

Next, the decision of the Hluttaw on a bill to repeal the municipal law, returned without amendment by Pyithu Hluttaw, was obtained, and Amyotha Hluttaw Speaker Mahn Win Aung Thay announced the approval of the Hluttaw. The 2017 bill to amend the vacant, fallow and virgin lands management law was then discussed by Daw Myaung Thiida Tun of Mon State constituency (5), Naw Chris Tun @ Dr. Arr Kar Moe of Kayin State constituency (7), U Thet Naing Soe of Tanintharyi Region constituency (2), U Ba Myo Thein of Yangon Region constituency (5), Dr. Win Myint Chit of Bago Region constituency (8), U Soe Thein @ U Maung Soe of Tanintharyi Region constituency (10), U Hla San of Magway Region constituency (1), Dr. Win Myint of Bago Region constituency (11) and U Win Zaw of Kachin State constituency (7).

THE Ministry of Industry held an event to disclose the small and medium enterprise (SME) policies and loan plans of Myanmar Economic Bank (MEB) yesterday in Loikaw Town.

Officials from the Kayah state government, as well as the State Auditor General, SME agency representatives, and officials from the concerned departments were in attendance.

SMEs help boost the country’s production and enhance import substitution.

MEB’s SME loan plan provides up to Ks300 million for a three- to five-year term to SMEs, with an interest rate of 9 per cent. Priority will be given to businesses in the manufacturing, import and export, recycled energy savings, technical-based production and service industries. However, the loan plan requires a mortgage to be taken for movable and immovable properties and various types of insurance.

SMEs that fail to present a mortgage as required are only entitled to the loan plan if they participate in the Credit Guarantee Insurance (CGI) system, linked with Myanmar Insurance. SMEs that accept a loan under the CGI plan must pay a premium, along with the interest payment. Currently, these enterprises only qualify for a maximum loan of Ks20 million. —GNLM

The ASAN-India Dialogue Partnership was established as a Sected Dialogue Partnership in 1992, and the relation was promoted to a full dialogue partnership in 1998 through mutual understanding and friendship. The relationship has progressed even further. The first ASAN-India Summit was held in Phnom Penh, Cambodia, in 2002. Since then, the summit between ASAN and India has been held annually. The 15th ASAN-India Commemorative Summit and the celebration of the 69th Republic Day of India was held in India, with ASAN-member countries in attendance. (Editorial Team)

A Brief Study on Anti-Corruption Drive in today’s World

The following are the best 9 countries in the world at fighting corruption.

9. Denmark: 5.27 — In 2015, Denmark was voted the most transparent country in the world by Transparency International, and it scores highly in the World Economic Forum’s analysis. It is the lowest ranked of four Scandi navian countries on this list.

8. Singapore: 5.27 — The city-state of Singapore is one of the most highly developed nations in Asia, and has made huge efforts to fight corruption, spearheaded by its Corrupt Practices Investigation Bureau.

7. Switzerland: 5.32 — In Switzerland, companies can be criminally prosecuted and ordered to pay a fine of up to Swiss Franc 5 million for acts of corruption committed by individuals working on its behalf.

6. New Zealand: 5.36 — According to Hong Kong’s Independent Commission against Corruption “New Zealand does not have any one single agency tasked with fighting corruption.” “Rather it has a number of agencies that focus on the different elements in the fight against corruption.”

5. Norway: 5.39 — “Corruption does not represent a constraint to trade or investment, and administrative corruption and petty bribery are almost non-existent. The Norwegian Penal Code criminalizes active and passive bribery, trading in influence, fraud, extortion, breach of trust and money laundering,” according to Generative Adversarial Networks (GAN’s) business anti-corruption portal.

4. Finland: 5.42 — Finland has consistently ranked as one of the world’s least corrupt countries. However, a recent report from the Police University College asserted that corruption increased 10 per cent from 2011-2014.

3. Sweden: 5.50 — “Corruption in Sweden is policed by the country’s National Anti-Corruption Unit, part of the Swedish Prosecution Authority. In the Scandinavian state, corruption is defined as “the abuse of power” by any official.

2. Japan: 5.57 — Japan is one of the least corrupt countries in the world, however, according to Generative Adversarial Networks “there is a traditional practice (known as amakudari) of assigning retired government officials to top positions within Japanese companies. Amakudari employees are particularly common in the financial, construction, transportation and pharmaceutical industries.”

1. Luxembourg: 5.62 — Luxembourg tops the World Economic Forum’s ranking despite recent revelations in The Guardian that former prime minister, and current European Commission President Jean-Claude Juncker “spent years in his previous role as Luxembourg’s prime minister secretly blocking EU efforts to tackle tax avoidance by multinationals.”

The author have the opportunity staying in Singapore for about three months, and really and truly in love with the corrupt free environment and society.

Therefore, the writer takes the liberty to share as the third aspect on the fight of corruption in Singapore. How Singapore fought corruption or 4 regulatory steps to a successful state

In the mid-50s the British left Singapore (British colony back then) and Singaporeans were left with weak legislative framework, almost uneducated population, low wages, opaque economy, endemic corruption and quite vague prospects. Lee Kuan Yew, together with his party “People’s Action” won the election, and became the symbol of the fight against corruption, the slogan of which was: “You want to fight corruption? Then, be ready to send to jail your friends and relatives”.

1. The anti-corruption campaign consisted of 4 elements, the first of which was the establishment of a strong independent service for the fight against corruption.

2. Denying officials’ immunity: All officials and their families were deprived of immunity. Agents of the Bureau of Corruption Investigation (BCI) had the right to check bank accounts, property, not only belonging to the officials, but also their children, wives, relatives and even friends.

3. Live within your means: Singapore (British colony back then) and Singaporeans were left with weak legislative framework, almost uneducated population, low wages, opaque economy, endemic corruption and quite vague prospects. Lee Kuan Yew, together with his party “People’s Action” won the election, and became the symbol of the fight against corruption, the slogan of which was: “You want to fight corruption? Then, be ready to send to jail your friends and relatives”.

4. Mass Media Factor: The fourth element stands on the formation of independent, objective media, covering all found cases of corruption. The officer caught in excessive costs, bribes, immediately becomes the “hero” of the front page.

5. Norway: 5.39 — “Corruption does not represent a constraint to trade or investment, and administrative corruption and petty bribery are almost non-existent. The Norwegian Penal Code criminalizes active and passive bribery, trading in influence, fraud, extortion, breach of trust and money laundering,” according to Generative Adversarial Networks (GAN’s) business anti-corruption portal.

6. New Zealand: 5.36 — According to Hong Kong’s Independent Commission against Corruption “New Zealand does not have any one single agency tasked with fighting corruption.” “Rather it has a number of agencies that focus on the different elements in the fight against corruption.”

7. Switzerland: 5.32 — In Switzerland, companies can be criminally prosecuted and ordered to pay a fine of up to Swiss Franc 5 million for acts of corruption committed by individuals working on its behalf.

8. Singapore: 5.27 — The city-state of Singapore is one of the most highly developed nations in Asia, and has made huge efforts to fight corruption, spearheaded by its Corrupt Practices Investigation Bureau.

9. Denmark: 5.27 — In 2015, Denmark was voted the most transparent country in the world by Transparency International, and it scores highly in the World Economic Forum’s analysis. It is the lowest ranked of four Scandinavian countries on this list.

In Davos, Merkel says isolation not the answer

DAVOS, (Switzerland) — German Chancellor Angela Merkel told the World Economic Forum (WEF) in Davos on Wednesday that isolationism and protectionism were not solutions to the economic challenges facing countries around the world.

Merkel also told the audience that she was open-minded about what kind of partnership the European Union would develop with Britain after Brexit, but noted that there could be no compromise on the EU’s core principles in those talks. “We want a close partnership with the United Kingdom,” she said.

Mnuchin says weaker dollar helps US trade in short term

US Treasury Secretary Steven Mnuchin said on Thursday that a weaker dollar benefited US trade balances in the short term but that he believed in the long-term strength of the currency.

“Think I’ve been quite consistent on the dollar. Previous secretaries have talked up the dollar. What I’ve said is that first of all we support free trade of the currency,” Mnuchin said at the World Economic Forum in Davos, Switzerland.

However, he added that he was happy with the current level. “Where the dollar is is not a concern of mine.”—Reuters

At least 3 dead after train derails near Milan — fire brigade official

MILAN — A train derailment near Italy’s financial capital Milan killed between three and five people on Thursday, a fire brigade official at the city’s control room said.

State train firm Ferrovie dello Stato said in a statement a regional train, operated by Trenord, derailed at the Pioltello Limito station, some 40 kilometres from Milan, without giving details on potential casualties.

“There are between three and five dead in the accident from what we know at the moment,” the fire official told Reuters.

TV channels RaiNews24 and SkyTG24 reported at least two people had been killed and 10 seriously injured, citing emergency services.

Television footage showed fire brigades trying to free people trapped inside the wagons of the train, which were bent by the impact.

Trenord is a joint venture between railway operator FNM and one unit of state railway operator Gruppo Ferrovie dello Stato.

In a statement FNM confirmed the accident had happened at Pioltello and said its Chairman Andrea Gibelli was on his way to the site. FNM did not give any detail on casualties.”—Reuters

UK’s Hammond says inflation peaking, sterling appreciating

DAVOS, (Switzerland) — British Chancellor of the Exchequer Philip Hammond said inflation was peaking and sterling appreciating as the economy recovered from the initial shock of the Brexit vote in 2016.

“It looks as though inflation has peaked now ... I would expect inflation to begin to decline,” he told the World Economic Forum in Davos, Switzerland on Thursday.

Hammond sat beside US Treasury Secretary Steven Mnuchin, who sent the US dollar tumbling on Wednesday with his remark that a weaker greenback helped US trade. Hammond talked of a rebound in sterling and turned to Mnuchin: “And we seem to be recovering quite a bit more, Steve, thanks very much.”—Reuters

Four US citizens killed in 20 January attack on Kabul hotel

WASHINGTON — Four US citizens were killed and two injured in Saturday’s attack by the Taliban on the Intercontinental Hotel in Kabul, the US State Department said on Wednesday.

“We can confirm that there were four US citizens killed and two injured. We offer our deepest condolences to the families and friends of those who were killed and wish for the speedy recovery of those wounded,” State Department spokeswoman Heather Nauert said in a statement.

Glenn Selig, a spokesman for Trump campaign adviser Rick Gates, was among the Americans who were killed, according to a statement from Selig’s company, Selig Multimedia.

Mujahid said in a statement. “Glenn was in Kabul on a potential success story involving Afghanistan and its steps to battle extremism. The focus was highlighting the country’s new president and constructing a democracy forum event for Afghani women,” Selig Multimedia said.

At least 20 people were killed when five gunmen dressed in Afghan army uniforms stormed the Kabul hotel on Saturday night. Seven Ukrainians and one German were among the dead.

The Taliban, which attacked the same hotel in 2011, claimed responsibility for the attack, spokesman Zabihullah Mujahid said in a statement. —Reuters
Russia’s upgraded Tu-160 strategic bomber started flight trials last week — source

MOSCOW — Russia’s upgraded Tupolev Tu-160 (NATO reporting name: Blackjack) strategic missile-carrying bomber with Factory No. 0804 produced at the Kazan Aircraft Enterprise started flight trials last week, a source in the Russian defense sector told TASS on Wednesday.

“The 804th plane made using Soviet aircraft break-throughs took to the skies for the first time last week and has been performing evaluation flights since then. The missile-carrying aircraft will be delivered to the Aerospace Force until the end of this year,” the source said.

Commenting on various media reports, the source said the new plane was not a modernized bomber prototype.

“The plane underwent only small-scale upgrade while its airframe and the engines have remained the same. Fully digitalized documentation on the new missile-carrying aircraft will be issued no sooner than the middle of this year and the work on building the Tu-160M is impossible without it,” the source noted. TASS has not yet received an official confirmation of this information.

As was reported earlier, a ceremony was held at the Kazan Aircraft Enterprise on 16 November, 2017 to roll out the upgraded Tu-160 missile-carrying bomber. On the same day, Deputy Prime Minister Dmitry Rogozin overseeing the defense sector in the Russian government told Russia’s President Vladimir Putin that the debut flight of the upgraded strategic missile-carrying bomber was scheduled for February 2018.

Tu-160 bomber and its upgrade

The Tu-160 is the Soviet strategic missile carrier armed with cruise missiles that can carry nuclear warheads. Along with the Tu-95MS missile carrier, the Tu-160 makes part of Russia’s strategic nuclear forces along with the ground-based missile systems and submarines.

After the disintegration of the Soviet Union, several unfinished Tu-160 planes remained at the Kazan Aircraft Enterprise at various degrees of their readiness but the work on them was put on hold due to economic woes. As a result, the construction of one plane had been finished only by 2000 and the other by 2008. It was reported in 2015 that Russia had made a decision to resume the production of Tu-160 bombers in their upgraded Tu-160M2 modification and reschedule the development of the new-generation bomber PAK DA (Perspective Airborne Complex of Long-Range Aviation) for a later term.

The Russian Defense Ministry reported that the serial production of Tu-160M2 bombers should begin in 2023. The Russian Aerospace Force intends to purchase no less than 50 such aircraft. Aerospace Force then-Commander-in-Chief Viktor Bondarev said in June 2017 that the Tu-160M2 might take to the skies for the first time already in late 2018.

The Tupolev Aircraft Company has launched work on developing heavily-upgraded Tu-160M bombers, which are scheduled to take to the skies in 2019. The upgrade programme supervised by Russia’s Defence Ministry envisages fully replacing the bomber’s onboard avionics. This measure is expected to boost considerably the efficiency of using the aircraft system according to its designation. — TASS

Ex-UK PM Thatcher statue proposal rejected by Westminster planners

LONDON — A second attempt to erect a statue of Britain’s former Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher outside parliament, just six months after a first proposal was thrown out over vandalism fears, has failed after councilors rejected a revised plan.

They said the proposed statue of Thatcher wearing the robes of a member of the House of Lords was not the right depiction of Britain’s first female Prime Minister.

“We would welcome future proposals for a more appropriate statue of Baroness Thatcher, depicting her as Prime Minister, rather than the current design...,” said Westminster planning committee chairman Richard Beddoes.

Thatcher, who ruled Britain from 1979-1990, died after suffering a stroke in 2013. She was the country’s first woman premier, its longest-serving prime minister of the 20th century, and won three consecutive national elections for the Conservative Party. But her attempts to arrest Britain’s post-war decline by smashing the trade unions and privatizing the country’s national assets made her a deeply divisive figure. Another sculpture of her was deactivated in 2002 at Guildhall Art Gallery in London by a man who attacked it with a metal pole.

The plan had been to erect a life-size and a half statue of Thatcher by sculptor Douglas Jennings in Parliament Square, alongside those of figures such as Winston Churchill and Nelson Mandela. To deter vandalism, it would have been erected on a climb-proof four-metre plinth which could have been quickly boarded up if needed. Westminster council officials said objections had been received on the basis of possible vandalism, that the subject was too divisive to have a statue erected in her honour and that there was already a statue of Thatcher in the nearby House of Commons. But the planning committee did not rule out approving future plans for a Thatcher memorial.

“Baroness Thatcher is a hugely significant figure in British history and in principle the council is in favour of a statue commemorating her in Parliament Square, but it must be the right statue, with an appropriate design and the support of her family,” Beddoes said in a statement. The proposed new 300,000-pound ($414,000) work was commissioned by the Public Memorials Appeal charity after Thatcher’s death. — Reuters

Southeast Asian states launch intelligence pact to counter Islamist threat

JAKARTA/NUSA DUA, (Indonesia) — Six Southeast Asian nations launched an intelligence pact on Thursday aimed at combating Islamist militants and improving cooperation on security threats, overcoming what analysts described as a high level of distrust.

Under the “Our Eyes” initiative, senior defence officials will meet every two weeks to swap information on militant groups and develop a common database of violent extremists.

The intelligence sharing arrangement comes after insurgents aligned to Islamic State laid siege to the southern Philippine city of Marawi last year.

Dozens of foreigners — most notably Indonesians and Malaysians — were among hundreds of militants who seized large parts of Marawi and engaged in a ferocious battle with Philippine forces that left much of the city in ruins and more than 1,100 people dead, according to government figures.

Some of the foreign fighters are believed to have travelled to Marawi via the porous maritime borders of the Sulu Sea, next to Indonesia, Malaysia and the Philippines.

“This is something that seems so simple, but the effect is extraordinary,” said Indonesian Defence Minister Ryamizard Ryacudu at the “soft launch” in Bali.

Ryacudu said intelligence sharing would help ensure another incident like Marawi did not occur and prevent the region from “becoming like the Middle East”.

He added that the intelligence sharing was “specifically for (combatting) terrorism and radicalism”.

While led by military forces, the intelligence sharing would “involve all parties”, including police, he said.

Along with Indonesia, Malaysia, the Philippines, Singapore, Thailand and Brunei — all members of the Association of Southeast Asian Nations — have signed up to the pact.

“It’s a significant development,” said John Blaxland, an intelligence analyst from the Australian National University.

“ASEAN has long struggled with getting beyond superficiality when it comes to collaboration on security matters.”

Blaxland said relations among ASEAN states had been bedevilled by a “high level of distrust” around intelligence cooperation.

“Operational imperatives are overcoming that and you are seeing that come to fruition with this mechanism.”

Another security analyst, who declined to be named, said a “pact was better than not having a pact” but added that entrenched mistrust between nations, fueled by different counter-terrorism agencies within nations, had to be overcome for it to be effective.

North Korea calls for unity with South as hockey players begin Olympics training

SEOUL — A delegation of North Korean officials and ice hockey players crossed the heavily guarded border into South Korea on Thursday for joint Olympics training, as Pyongyang called for all Koreans to seek unification of the two nations.

The group included 12 North Korean players who will form a combined women’s ice hockey team with their southern counterparts at next month’s Winter Olympics in the South Korean mountain resort of Pyeongchang.

After going through South Korean checkpoints at the border, the team travelled to a national training centre in Jinchon, 90 km (56 miles) south of Seoul.

Stepping off a bus, the athletes ignored questions as they were mobbed by throngs of media. They wore puffy winter jackets in the white, blue and red colours of North Korea’s flag, with “DPR Korea” emblazoned on the back, referring to the country’s official name, the Democratic People’s Republic of Korea.

In Jinchon, the athletes were met by South Korean head coach Sarah Murray, who previously called the government’s decision to form a joint team a “tough situation.”

Under an agreement worked out during the first official talks between the two Koreas in two years, the joint team will wear unity jerseys and march under a unified peninsula flag at the Games’ opening ceremony on 9 February.

South Korea has prepared “all contingency scenarios” in case North Korea makes any provocative moves during the Olympics, but the games remain an opportunity for “peaceful engagement,” South Korean foreign minister Kang Kyung-wha told Reuters in an interview on the sidelines of the World Economic Forum in Davos, Switzerland.

“We just need to make the best of it.”

Early on Thursday, North Korea sent a rare announcement addressed to “all Koreans at home and abroad”, saying they should make a “breakthrough” for unification without the help of other countries, its state media said. All Koreans should “promote contact, travel, cooperation between North and South Korea” while adding Pyongyang will “smash all challenges against reunification of the Korean peninsula. North and South Korea remain technically at war after their 1950-53 conflict ended in a truce rather than a peace treaty. Tensions escalated dramatically last year as the regime of Kim Jong Un stepped up its programme aimed at developing a nuclear-tipped missile capable of striking the United States. —Reuters

Dresses felt like college experience, says Heigl

LOS ANGELES — Actor Katherine Heigl said working on her hit film “27 Dresses” felt like a “college” experience to her. The 39-year-old actor reminisced about her days working in the Anne Fletcher-directed film, which also starred James Marsden, Malin Akerman, Edward Burns and Judy Greer.

“We started filming in Rhode Island, and whenever you shoot on location, you tend to bond so quickly with your cast. Wed only have each other to go to dinner with and eat lunch with. You become this super close knit group, and I was working with some of the greatest,” Heigl said, according to Female First. “I had so much fun with James, Edward, Malin and Judy. These guys were the best. We were just thrown into it together. I never had a college experience, but I think maybe thats what it feels like. You become so bonded so quickly and do everything together,” she added. — PTI

Goodbye yellow brick tours; Elton John announces farewell world concerts

NEW YORK — Elton John on Wednesday announced a three-year farewell world tour, saying he would quit traveling afterward to focus on life with his family.

The 70-year-old singer, one of the best-selling recording artists in the world over a 50-year career, told a news conference in New York that his priorities have changed after becoming a parent to two children with his husband David Furnish. “I love them so much. I don’t want to miss them and I don’t want them to miss me,” he said. “I’ve had a good run.” He said his last tour, called “Farewell Yellow Brick Road,” would start in 2018 in the United States and would last through 2021, taking him all around the world.

“It will be a wonderful way to thank people,” he said. “It’s a way of going out with a bang. I’m not the kind of guy to go out with a whimper.” John made the announcement after a live performance of his hits “Tiny Dancer” and “I’m Still Standing.” With a penchant for flamboyant stage costumes and an ear for piano rockers and ballads, John has dominated the pop industry for decades with hits like “Your Song” and “Candle in the Wind.”

On Wednesday, he denied British media reports that he was quitting touring because of ill health. But he said he had been on the road since he was 17, adding: “I can’t physically do the traveling anymore. I want to be home with my children more.”

John and Furnish married in 2014 and the couple are raising two sons, Zachary, 7, and Elijah, 5, who were born through a surrogate mother.

“I never thought that I could love anything as much as I love my sons... I never thought I could be a father, I thought I’m too selfish, too set in my ways,” he said. “But I never thought I could love anything as much as I love my sons... I never thought I could be a father, I thought I’m too selfish, too set in my ways,” he said.

John is due to perform at the Grammy Awards in New York on Sunday. On 30 January, musicians including Miley Cyrus, John Legend, Chris Martin and Sam Smith will pay tribute to his music and career at a previously announced concert in New York.

The Bastille band member also expressed his desire to collaborate with Sia, Rihanna for an upcoming track. “I really want to collaborate with Sia. I do quite a bit of writing outside of the band as well, so there’s a lot of people I want to write with,” Smith said according to Contactmusic. “I love writing pop music, so yeah well see. Sia’s just an interesting one of a kind. Id love to write with her. That’d be cool,” he added.

Japanese photographer brings “cinema stars” to Africa

TOKYO — A project that began with a simple idea to deliver the magic of cinema to children in Africa has not only led to a cultural exchange but to an unlikely collaboration — the production of a music video by Japanese and Ugandan elementary school children.

“Cinema Stars for Africa,” a roaming theater project traveling mainly around northern Uganda, was launched in 2016 by photographer and writer Naoko Sakuragi to give some African children their first-ever taste of the silver screen.

An exchange of letters and video messages between students from a Tokyo elementary school and children in northern Uganda, who had been kidnapped and forced to fight in the country’s decades-long civil war.

“It was a very serious performance and the children wrote the script themselves, but in the end, they talked about the importance of peace,” Sakuragi said in a recent interview, referring to the play performed at Toyotama Minami Elementary School in northwest Tokyo’s Nerima Ward.

“The children continued the video letter exchanges and then imagined the idea of collaborating on a music video project.”

In 2017, her voluntary group, whose predecessor had created in 2013 a scholarship trust fund for “smart Ugandan children who are in need,” held movie screenings and art workshops in Edea, located on Cameroon’s Sanaga River, and Uganda’s Gulu, which endured more than two decades of civil war from the early 1990s.

Sakuragi, 40, who has been taking photos in Africa since 2001 and published a photo essay in August 2011 about children living through Uganda’s civil war, said she embarked on the cinema stars project after getting financial backing from people moved by the photos and poignant stories from her essay. It was during her travels to the region amid the raging civil war that she had a light-bulb moment — the idea that cinema could replicate the soothing effect bonfires had on the children who would take refuge in a shelter built in northern Uganda by a Japanese NGO.

Some of the children in the shelter had been abducted by guerrillas in the past. It is estimated that the Lord’s Resistance Army abducted and forced near- ly 38,000 children to serve as soldiers, or in the case of girls, soldiers’ “wives,” during the war.

“They could be kidnapped and used as child soldiers. They were frightened, couldn’t sleep and would take refuge at night in a safe place with us. We would make bonfires every night and watch them with the children while singing and dancing. They were separated from their parents and the bonfires had a calming effect.”

The children’s fire gazing reminded her of the rapid expressions often seen in a cinema — the projector light, like the bonfires in Uganda, acting as a salve to heal the wounds of war. Cinema could also be a tool to educate, she said.

But the cinema stars project would not materialize until several years after the conclusion of the civil war, many of the survivors of which were now young adults with children of their own, struggling to support their families and reintegrate into society. Sakuragi crowdfunded over 1.5 million yen (about $13,500) for the project. “These children were really happy to watch movies for the first time, and many of them talked to us about their impressions and their own future possibilities as actors, for example, or even movie directors. During the war it was sad because they couldn’t even conceive of a future; they had to struggle just to survive. Now they can see a different life.”

Over two years, around 700 African children have watched movies with cinema stars. They have been shown titles including Kenji Miyazawa’s children’s international award-winning animation “Kaze no Matsuaburu,” among others. Since the project’s inception, nearly 1,000 kids, about 500 each from Japan and Uganda, have corresponded.

In July 2017, sixth graders at the Tokyo school began production of the “Under the Stars” music video with their counterparts in Uganda, enlisting help from professional musicians. Musician Gen Nagahara, 45, composed the lyrics and produced the arrangement and recording. The video was filmed separately in each country. Nagahara’s Kenyan friend, who performs African dance, showed the Japanese children some moves, but the sixth graders decided to use their own choreography in the end.

He said the song itself signifies being “one under the stars,” regardless of country.—Kyodo News

Gandamar, University play to a draw in KBZ Bank Women’s League match

Kyaw Zin Lin

GANDAMAR FC and University Women FC battled to a 2-2 tie in KBZ Bank Women’s League match at Aung San Stadium in Yangon yesterday evening.

The game was hotly contested, as both teams were about equal in tackling ability and football skills. There were no early goals for either team.

Early on, every opportunity created by both teams were thwarted just ahead of the goal line by accurate blocking and proper positioning of the defense lines.

The first goal was garnered by the University team when Mie Mie Lin scored at 44 minutes. In restarting after the goal, Tint Tint Tun from Gandamar equalized for her team.

In the second half, just after the starting whistle, Niang Zann scored at 66 minutes for Gandamar. Nuam scored the second and go-ahead goal for Gandamar. At the 74-minute mark, Aye Aye Thant from University equalised for her team and the match ended in a 2-2 tie as the players from both teams seemed to be out of energy.

Real Madrid humbled by Leganes in King’s Cup

MADRID — Real Madrid suffered a humiliating 2-1 home defeat by Leganes on Wednesday to exit the King’s Cup at the quarter-final stage on away goals.

A much-changed Real side, missing the likes of Cristiano Ronaldo and Gareth Bale, held a 1-0 advantage from the first leg but their troubled season hit a new low as they were outplayed by a team lying 13th in La Liga.

Leganes started brightly and Claudio Beauvue sent a free kick against the post in the opening exchanges.

The visitors were deservedly level on aggregate after half an hour as a mishap between Achraf Hakimi and Nacho allowed Javier Eraso the space to produce a stunning finish from outside the box. Beauvue sent a volley into the side netting on the stroke of halftime as a shell-shocked Real were jeered off the pitch at the break. That appeared to bring about a reaction from the home side and Karim Benzema produced a neat finish from an acute angle immediately after the restart to put Zinedine Zidane’s men ahead on aggregate.

Leganes centre-back Dimitris Svoras missed a gilt-edged chance as he headed back across the six-yard box with the goal gaping, but moments later Gabriel Pires made no mistake as he thumped home a header to put Leganes through on away goals.

They joined Valencia, who defeated last season’s finalists Atletico Madrid on penalties earlier on Wednesday, and Sevilla, who knocked out Atletico Madrid on Tuesday, in the draw for the last four.

Halep outlasts Kerber in thriller to reach final

MELBOURNE — World number one Simona Halep quelled a tenacious Angelique Kerber fightback and saved two match points to reach her first Australian Open final with a 6-3, 4-6, 9-7 victory in a compelling scrap on Rod Laver Arena on Thursday. A wildly unpredictable match veered one way, then the other, before Halep finally broke Kerber’s resistance to claim victory on her fourth match point when her exhausted opponent fired a backhand over the baseline.

When Halep won the first five games it seemed the expected battle royal between two of the game’s most ferocious competitors would turn into a damp squib. —Reuters
