Union minister, diplomats enjoy Thingyan Festival in Yangon

UNION Minister for International Cooperation U Kyaw Tin, diplomats and personnel from the UN agencies and their families participated in the Thingyan Festival in Yangon yesterday.

They arrived at the pandal of the Yangon City in downtown and were welcomed by Yangon Region Chief Minister U Phyo Min Thein and his wife Daw Khin Mi Mi Kywe, Speaker of Yangon Region Hluttaw U Tin Maung Tun, Deputy Speaker U Lin Naing Myint and members of the Yangon region cabinet.

They also visited the Splash Walk along the Maha Bandoola Garden Street.

Dato Paduka Haji Abdu'r Rahmani Bin Dato Paduka Haji Besir, patron of the Diplomatic Corps in Myanmar, sang “Latee,” a song depicting the traditional bonfire festival of the Shan ethnic people, to entertain the dignitaries and the audience.

The dignitaries also enjoyed the entertainment provided by prominent vocalists, including Nwe Yin Win and Haymar Nay Win, and the performance of traditional dance troupes.

Chief Minister U Phyo Min Thein and his wife hosted a luncheon in honour of the visitors.

“Diplomats and personnel from UN agencies and INGOs (international non-governmental organisations) enjoyed the festival here for the third time since we took over office. We organised this programme to convey our happiness and friendship,” said U Maung Maung Soe, mayor of Yangon City.— Zaw Gyi

Dr. Win Myat Aye meets Bangladesh ministers

By Thura Zaw

Dr. Win Myat Aye, Union Minister for Social Welfare, Relief and Resettlement, spoke about the repatriation of displaced persons (DPs) with Bangladeshi Minister for Foreign Affairs Abul Hassan Mahmood Ali, MP and Minister for Home Affairs Asaduzzaman Khan MP at the National Guest House in Dhaka on 12 April.

At the meeting, the Union Minister explained that Myanmar was ready for the repatriation process, and he had met with DPs in Cox’s Bazar, who mentioned they were yet to receive the forms for the repatriation process. He told the Bangladesh ministers that the forms received by Myanmar for 8,032 individuals were not the physically arranged ones agreed upon by both countries. The DPs did not produce signed documents stating they were returning of their own free will, nor fingerprints and individual photographs in the documents sent to Myanmar, he stated.

The Union Minister said it was difficult for Myanmar to check and verify data owing to the lack of information. He said Myanmar had informed Bangladesh about these problems thrice, and so far, the Myanmar authorities have confirmed 675 individuals as having lived in the country before. He said the list had been sent to the Bangladesh authorities, but they have not responded yet.

The Union Minister said both countries have to work together for the repatriation of DPs settled in the border areas. As the handling of the border areas can cause misunderstandings, it is important for the relevant departments in both countries to discuss these issues transparently, he noted. He said Myanmar was working with the United Nations Development Programme and the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees for the development and resettlement projects in Rakhine State.

Later, Prof. Dr. Aung Tun Thet, Chief Coordinator of the Union Enterprise for Humanitarian Assistance, Resettlement and Development in Rakhine State (UEHRD), explained in detail the repatriation process, development projects and the prospects for Rakhine State.

The Bangladesh Foreign Minister said they would send information about the DPs using the forms agreed upon by both countries as soon as possible.

The Bangladesh authorities will collaborate with Myanmar to handle the sensitive border area issues, he stated.

Union Minister Dr. Win Myat Aye and Minister Abul Hassan Mahmood Ali MP then met the press and answered all the questions posed by the media.

Present at the meeting were UEHRD Chief Coordinator Prof. Dr. Aung Tun Thet, Myanmar Ambassador U Lwin Oo, Chairperson of Myanmar Women’s Affair Federation Dr. Thet Thet Zin, Director-General of Department of Disaster Management Dr. Ko Ko Naing, and Director-General of International Organizations and Economic Department U Kyaw Moe Tun.

Later, the Union Minister visited the Myanmar Embassy in Dhaka and met responsible officials of the UN agencies and discussed the implementation of advice given by the Rakhine Advisory Commission on the development in Rakhine, Myanmar’s readiness for repatriation, humanitarian aid provided in Rakhine State, the development efforts facilitated by the UEHRD, the construction of residential buildings, opening of vocational training classes, easy access to education and healthcare, and the planned closing of DP camps opened since 2012.

The Union Minister and the delegation had lunch at the Myanmar Embassy in Dhaka.

Government of the Republic of the Union of Myanmar Ministry of the Office of the State Counsellor PRESS RELEASE

(13th April 2018)

The Government of Myanmar expresses serious concern on the news regarding the application by the International Criminal Court (ICC) Prosecutor to claim jurisdiction over the alleged deportation of the Muslims from Rakhine to Bangladesh.

Myanmar is not a party to the Rome Statute. The proposed claim for extension of jurisdiction may well reap serious consequences and exceed the well enshrined principle that the ICC is a body which operates on behalf of, and with the consent of State Parties which have signed and ratified the Rome Statute. This consensual approach is underlined throughout the ICC Statute.

There is an important principle of law or legal maxim “Ubi lex voluit, dicit; ubi noluit, tacit” i.e. “if the law means something, it says it; if it does not mean something, it does not say it”.

Nowhere in the ICC Charter does it say that the Court has jurisdiction over States which have not accepted that jurisdiction. Furthermore, the 1969 UN Vienna Convention on International Treaties states that no treaty can be imposed on a country that has not ratified it.

The extension of jurisdiction to non-parties may have a reverberating effect to all non-parties in the world and challenges long established legal principles such as legal certainty. What the Prosecutor is attempting to do is to override the principle of national sovereignty and non-interference in the internal affairs of other states, in contrary to the principle enshrined in the UN Charter and recalled in the ICC Charter’s Preamble.

Myanmar reiterates that it has not deported any individuals in the areas of concern and in fact has worked hard in collaboration with Bangladesh to repatriate those displaced from their homes. Several bilateral agreements have been signed such as the “Arrangement on Return of Displaced Persons from Rakhine State” dated 21 November 2017 between the Governments of the Republic of the Union of Myanmar and the Government of the People’s Republic of Bangladesh. All requirements for repatriation are in place.

Work is proceeding steadily on this front. The Union Minister for Social Welfare, Relief and Resettlement has just visited Bangladesh to meet displaced persons—DPs and brief them on the development, resettlement process, food supply, housing projects, vocational training, easy access to education and healthcare in Rakhine State and that Myanmar is ready for repatriation.

Thingyan Water Festival in border town attracts Thingyan revellers

Chief Minister of Kayah State U L Phung Sho celebrated the third day of Myanmar’s Traditional Thingyan Festival at a pandal in Mese, a border town in Kayah State yesterday morning.

The Chief Minister was joined by Auditor-General of Kayah State U Sai Kyaw Zan, departmental officials, Bawlake District Deputy Commissioner U Mo Htet, Mese Township Administrator U Myo Thant, staff families and local people. The Chief Minister and officials awarded cash to dance troupes that performed entertainments to Thingyan revelers.

Seven traditional dance troupes are taking part in a dancing contest marking Thingyan celebration in which first, second and third prize winning teams will be awarded on Ate T Day, the fourth and last day of Myanmar’s Traditional Thingyan Festival. Next, the Chief Minister donated offertories to the monks and elderly people.

Myanmar earns Ks12.5m from community-based tourism in Pa-O region this year

MYANMAR earned Ks12.5 million from community-based tourism projects in the Pa-O region, southern Shan State, during the past three months, according to the Ministry of Hotels and Tourism.

The Pa-O region is rich in tourist attractions. The area has ancient structures, places of rest and relaxation, forests and mountains and other natural beauty. The tourism authorities implemented the eco-tourism plans to benefit the residents.

The community-based tourism projects were initiated in Ht Nae and In Nae villages since 2015. The Pa-O Region CBT Committee started receiving visitors under the programme the following year.

The CBT project was also implemented in Loikaw Village in 2017. The committee has taken on the responsibility of bringing customers to the village, hosting them at the community houses, serving food and beverages, and organising entertainment and community learning activities.

According to official statistics, some 597 tourists visited the villages in 2016. The figure rose to 694 in 2017. The number of tourists who visited the villages this year reached 296.

The country earned Ks23.3 million from the CBT projects in 2016 and Ks28.3 million in 2017. Myanmar received the social responsible tourism award for the Pa-O region at the ITB Berlin 2017, an international travel trade show held in CityCube Berlin, Germany, in March 2017.—GNLM

136 foreign enterprises invest in manufacturing sector last FY

THE manufacturing sector absorbed foreign direct investments (FDI) worth US$1.76 billion through 136 projects in the last fiscal year (FY). The figure accounts for more than 30 per cent of the overall foreign investments made last FY. The real estate sector ranked second in the foreign investment sector line-up, attracting FDIs worth $1.26 billion.

Nearly $1 billion of the FDIs were brought into other services. Eight enterprises were given the green light to invest in the transport and communication sector; with an FDI of $982 million.

The hotel and tourism sector ranked fifth in the foreign investment line-up with five enterprises injecting capital worth $177 million.

The agriculture and power sectors got estimated capital of $135 million and $406 million, respectively. The livestock and fisheries sector also attracted seven enterprises with FDIs worth $27.6 million, while the industrial estate sector attracted investments worth $34 million.

The Myanmar Investment Commission (MIC) permitted 222 foreign projects from last April to March this year, with estimated investments worth $3.7 billion.

Export value of forest products down by over $35 million

The export value of forest products at the end of the 2017-2018 financial year (FY) topped US$211 million, registering a decline of more than $35 million compared with the previous FY, the Commerce Ministry reported. From last April through the end of this March, the country exported a wide variety of forest-based products, including bamboo and other non-wood products. The country’s total earnings from the export of forest products included some $13.657 million in the public sector and $197 million in the private sector.

The export value of forest products was $247 million in the 2016-2017 FY. According to the ministry, Myanmar’s total bilateral exports with international traders reached $14.675 billion, including $5.95 billion via the government and $9.624 billion through the public sector.

Currently, domestically-produced bamboos and bamboo-based products are being exported mainly to Bangladesh, Pakistan, South Korea and Singapore. This FY, the country exported agro products worth nearly $3.08 billion, animal products worth $690 million, marine products worth $697 million, minerals worth $1.779 billion, manufactured goods worth $6.794 billion and other products worth $2.05 billion. — Kyine Khant

CPI declines slightly in March

The consumer price index (CPI) recorded a slight decline of 0.12 per cent in March, compared with February, on account of the high prices of tobacco, liquor, food items, and costs in the transport and communication sectors.

The CPI slipped slightly in Kayin, Chin, Rakhine and Mon states; the Taninthayi, Mandalay, Ayeyawady and Sagaing regions; and Yangon city and Nay Pyi Taw in March. Kayah State, Magway Region and Shan State and the Yangon Region recorded a small increase in CPI according to statistics recently released by the Central Statistical Organisation (CSO), operating under the Ministry of Planning and Finance.

Next, the annual rate of inflation in March 2018, based on the 2012 survey, was recorded at 4.03 per cent, showing a slight decrease against February. The inflation rate in February 2017 was recorded at 7.99 per cent, and it dropped to 2.3 per cent in July 2017. The rate climbed from August last year and fluctuated in February 2018. The year-on-year inflation rate was 5.42 per cent in March 2018 against March 2017. Rakhine State recorded the highest inflation rate of 8.24 per cent, as of March 2018, followed by Mandalay city with 7.26 per cent and Kachin State with 5.27 per cent. Chin State registered the lowest inflation rate at 2.09 per cent.

Yangon city recorded an inflation rate of 3.12 per cent, while in Nay Pyi Taw it was 3.49 per cent. Previously, the inflation rate was evaluated based on the 2006 survey, but the base year was changed to 2012. The CSO conducted a household income and expenditure survey in 82 towns in November 2012. The inflation rate in the first five-year plan from the 2011-2012 FY to the 2015-2016 FY rose. In a bid to reduce the inflation rate, the authorities concern are making efforts, based on the policies of finance, trade and foreign currency control, according to the second five-year national development plan. — Ko Htet

Bilateral trade with Japan exceeds $1.5bn last FY

The value of trade between Myanmar and its development donor Japan last fiscal year (FY) reached US$1.5 billion, according to figures released by the Commerce Ministry. Myanmar’s exports to Japan fetched $746 million, whereas imports were worth $812.6 million.

The bilateral trade value with Japan was worth some $2.03 billion in the 2016-2017 FY, $1.84 billion in the 2013-16 FY, $2.3 billion in the 2014-2015 FY, $1.8 billion in the 2013-2014 FY, $1.49 billion in the 2012-2013 FY and $822 million in the 2011-2012 FY.

Agro products, including rice and broken rice, various types of peas, soybeans, sesame seeds, ginger, fruits and apparel from the garment sector on cut-make-pack basis are exported to Japan, whereas machinery, garment raw materials, consumer products and electronic tools flowed into Myanmar.

Japan brought in foreign investments worth some $384 million into Myanmar during the last FY. Additionally, more than 45 Japanese companies invested in Thilawa so far, primarily in the manufacturing businesses. — Ko Htet

Capital goods imports down by $270 million

The import value of capital goods in the current fiscal year (FY) topped US$6.294 billion, registering a decline of $270 million compared with the same period last FY, according to the Commerce Ministry.

From last April to mid-March of this year, the private sector imported capital goods worth $5.567 billion from international traders, which saw a decline in value by $354 million, whereas the import of similar products by the public sector was valued at $727 million against last FY, registering an increase in value by $84 million.

According to the ministry’s statistics, the country’s total import value went up by $270 million compared with the previous FY, the Commerce Ministry reported. The import value of capital goods in the current fiscal year (FY) reached US$1.5 billion, whereas imports were worth $1.023 billion, while the private sector bought $16.795 billion worth of products from overseas traders.

Beware of health hazards during Thingyan Festival

Myanmar's traditional New Year water festival, known as "Thingyan Festival", is celebrated during the time when the country suffers its highest levels of extreme heat. The weather in the middle of April is uncomfortable, and also potentially dangerous. Reveling while getting wet for three to four days can make one sick.

Precautions in the changes in the body temperature from hot to cold cause skin and muscle damage. Cold and flu commonly occur during the Thingyan water festival due to frequent changes in the body temperature from hot to cold especially when it is cold after water is used.

People should be aware of the diseases and risks that are common during the water festival.

Respiratory diseases, heat stroke from the high ground, diseases that cause skin and muscle damage and various other health risks can occur during the water festival.

According to dermatologists, during Thingyan, the skin is exposed to the sun directly. Sun exposure is a measure of protection against the sun.

This season as the temperature rises, people must be made aware of the importance of drinking water and being hydrated. In this season, people must not drink contaminated water (2). Untreated water may lead to adverse effects.

Dhaja, Myanamar's traditional cosmetic paste is also known to contain germs or bacteria and untreated, can be fatal.

Lor Buddha had left his prediction that the time is nearing for Buddha Sasana guarded by Sakka Deva (Thunder god).

It is better to have faith and practice Four Brahma caritas and Fire moral precepts (Piyasla) Sn. Sakka Deva descends to the Earth - human world. He drives Thigyan(Thingyan) Festival and ritual viz. the third week of April. Usually there are three days of Thingyan Festival and ritual viz. 1. The day Sakka Deva descends to Earth for inspection 2. The Inspection day 3. The Sakka Day ascends (returns) to his Celestial Kingdom (Tavatimsa).

As assigned by Lord Gota-ma Deva, Sakka Deva comes down to human world on earth to inspect (Sakka Deva) beings are behaving well according to the teachings of Lord Buddha.

Sakka Deva gives four precepts (1) Abstain from killing (2) Abstain from stealing (3) Abstain from lying and (4) Abstain from (telling) lies. Sakka Deva gives special feed and treatment.

The Gold Book is to record the second week of April and the third week of April. Usually there are three days of Thingyan Festival and ritual viz. the third week of April.

On domeday, a Board of Deva presided by Sakka Deva judged and sent those in the Dog Skin Registran Book to deva kingdom above and those in the dog Skin Registran Book are cast down to hell. The most notorious ones are immediately punished by Sakka Deva by killing with his Thunder Deva.

Some years there are two days of inspection. So Thingyan Days last 4 days. The day after Sakka Deva returns or ascends to Tavatimsa is marked a New Year Day (Thowng may not be so on calendar.). The New Year Day is the Day of merit making. Old year with its all evils are driven out by chanting Paritattva (Protective Buddha Sutta) Sutta and recitation of the Sutta. People pray for their intelligence of Buddha Sasana guarded by Sakka Deva.
US, France, Britain launch new UN bid for Syria chemical weapons probe

UNITED NATIONS (United States) — Hours after striking Syria, the United States, France and Britain on Saturday launched a new bid at the United Nations to investigate chemical weapons attacks in Syria.

The three allies circulated a joint draft resolution at the Security Council that also calls for unimpeded deliveries of humanitarian aid, enforcing a ceasefire and demands that Syria engage in UN-led peace talks, according to the text obtained by AFP.

The move signaled the West’s resolve to return to diplomacy after a one-night military operation that hit sites Western officials said were linked to Syria’s chemical weapons programme.

Among the contentious proposals, the draft resolution would establish an independent investigation of allegations of toxic gas attacks in Syria with the aim of identifying the perpetrators.

Russia in November used its veto three times to bury a previous UN-led inquiry which found that Syrian forces had dropped sarin on the town of Khan Sheikhun in April last year.

The measure would instruct the Organization for the Prohibition of Chemical Weapons (OPCW) to report within 30 days on whether Syria has fully disclosed its chemical weapons stockpile.

The West has accused Syria of failing to live up to its commitment to scrap its chemical weapons programme, under a 2013 deal reached between the United States and Russia.

On the humanitarian side, the measure demands medical evacuations and safe passage for aid convoys to be allowed to all areas.

The text calls for a ceasefire resolution adopted in February but which never materialized to finally take hold and “demands” that President Bashar al-Assad’s government engage in peace talks “in good faith, constructively and without preconditions.”

Several rounds of peace talks held under UN auspices in Geneva have failed to yield progress, deadlocked over demands that Assad make way for a political transition.

Getting Russia aboard

Negotiations on the draft resolution are set to begin on Monday, but diplomats said it remained unclear when the council would vote on the proposal.

Western diplomats said they were ready to allow time for negotiations to make every effort to bring Russia aboard.

Russia has used its veto 12 times at the Security Council to block action targeting its Syrian ally. The new diplomatic push came after a stormy Security Council meeting called by Russia, which branded the military action an “aggression” against Syria and sought condemnation.

That bid however failed, with only China and Bolivia voting alongside Russia to condemn the air strikes. Eight countries opposed condemnation while four abstained. Addressing the council, US Ambassador Nikki Haley said the United States was confident that the military strikes had crippled Syria’s chemical weapons programme.

Haley warned that the United States was “locked and loaded,” ready to strike again if any new chemical attack was carried out in Syria.

Russian Ambassador Vassily Nebenzia accused the West of “hoolliganism” and demanded that it “immediately end its actions against Syria and refrain from them in the future.”

“You are not only placing yourselves above international law, but you are trying to re-write international law,” Nebenzia said.

The United States, Britain and France launched air strikes in response to a suspected chemical attack in the rebel-held town of Douma a week ago that killed at least 40 people. The council has met five times this week on Syria amid repeated pleas from UN Secretary-General Antonio Guterres to end divisions over Syria.—AFP

France warns of ‘new disaster’ looming in Syria’s Idlib

PARIS—French Foreign Minister Jean-Yves Le Drian warned on Sunday that a new humanitarian disaster was looming in Syria, in the rebel-held region of Idlib, seen as the next possible target of the regime’s fightback.

In an interview with Le Journal du Dimanche weekly a day after the US, Britain and France carried out strikes in Syria, Le Drian said: “There are 2 million people in Idlib now, including hundreds of thousands of Syrians evacuated from rebel towns recaptured by the regime.”

“There is a risk of a new humanitarian disaster.”

Held by an array of jihadists and rebels, Idlib province is the last in Syria largely beyond government control.

Speaking in Damascus this week, a senior Iranian official said he hoped Idlib would be the next area to be “liberated” by Iran ally President Bashar al-Assad, after the Syrian army’s recapture of the Eastern Ghouta region near Damascus with Russian backing.

The scorched-earth battle for Eastern Ghouta wound up shortly after a suspected chemical attack killed over 40 people and which the West blamed on Assad’s forces — allegations Assad and Russia flatly denied.

Le Drian said he hoped Saturday’s strikes, aimed at punishing the regime over its alleged use of toxic gas, would convince Russia to pressure Assad into negotiations on ending the seven-year war.

“We hope that Russia understands...we must combine our efforts to promote a political process in Syria that favours an end to the crisis.”

“France is ready to work towards this. Except that currently the one blocking the process is Bashar al-Assad himself. It’s up to Russia to put pressure on him,” he said.

Le Drian said the first step would be “to begin with a ceasefire which is really respected this time.”

He was referring to a 30-day ceasefire called by the UN in February to facilitate the delivery of aid and medical evacuations, which was never really implemented.

On Saturday, the US, France and Britain on Saturday launched a new push at the UN for a ceasefire.

In a draft text seen by AFP they also called for a mechanism to probe chemical attacks — and also ascribe blame for them — and demanded that Syria engage in stalled UN-led peace talks.—AFP

Western countries should not label Russia as enemy — German president

BERLIN—German President Frank-Walter Steinmeier has pointed to the need to make sure there is no animosity between people in Western countries and Russia amid growing tensions in the world.

“We should not designate Russia in general, the country and its people, as an enemy,” he said in an interview with the Bild am Sonntag newspaper published on Sunday.

Steinmeier noted that the Salisbury incident gave rise to concern. “On the other hand, we should be equally concerned about the rapidly growing alienation between Russia and the West, with the consequences going far beyond the scope of that incident,” he stressed.

“Countering this dangerous alienation—that’s the challenge and objective of responsible politicians,” the German president stated. In his view, Europe should not reject criticism of Russia’s actions.

“However, we should not give up attempts to do so through direct dialogue,” Steinmeier added.—Tass
Israel says destroys tunnel from Gaza that crossed barrier

JERUSALEM — Israel’s army said on Sunday it had destroyed a Hamas tunnel crossing from the Gaza Strip into its territory after more than two weeks of tension along the border of the Palestinian enclave.

Defence Minister Avigdor Lieberman said it was the longest and deepest Gazan tunnel discovered by Israel.

The tunnel crossed into Israeli territory by several metres (yards) but did not yet have an exit point, military spokesman Jonathan Conricus told journalists.

Israel destroyed the tunnel — which it said connected to several others within Gaza and could have been used for attacks — by filling it with material to make it inoperative.

“We filled the tunnel with material that renders it useless for a very long period of time,” Conricus said. Explosives were not used.

“According to our early assessments, this tunnel reaches kilometres, several kilometres, into the Gaza Strip.”

The tunnel came from the area of Jabaliya in the northern Gaza Strip and was being dug in the direction of the Nahal Oz community in Israel, he said.

It was the fifth Gazan tunnel destroyed by Israel in recent months, Conricus said. Israel destroyed it over the course of the weekend.

The operation comes after protests along the Gaza border since March 30 that have led to clashes in which Israeli forces have killed 34 Palestinians and wounded hundreds of others.

Israel alleges Hamas is seeking to use the protests as cover to carry out violence and said the tunnel destroyed could have been used for that purpose, saying it comes from near an area where demonstrators have gathered.

Israel has faced criticism over its use of live fire along the Gaza border since March 30, while the European Union and UN chief Antonio Guterres have called for an independent investigation.

“The fact-finding team arrived in Damascus on Saturday and is due to go to Douma on Sunday,” Deputy Foreign Minister Ayman Soussan told AFP.

A delegation of experts from the Organisation for the Prohibition of Chemical Weapons, based in The Hague, is tasked with investigating an April 7 attack on Douma, just east of Damascus.

Western powers say chemical substances, most likely chlorine and sarin, were used in the attack and killed at least 40 civilians.

The alleged attack, which Damascus and its Russian ally have denied ever happened, prompted an unprecedented wave of missile strikes by the United States, France and Britain on Saturday. Soussan reiterated a pledge by the Syrian government that chemical experts would be allowed to investigate unimpeded.

“We will ensure they can work professionally, objectively, impartially and free of any pressure,” he said.—AFP

Chemical inspectors to begin work in Syria’s Douma

DAMASCUS (Syria) — Inspectors from the OPCW chemical watchdog will begin their investigation Sunday at the site of an alleged chemical attack near Damascus, a senior official said.

“The fact-finding team arrived in Damascus on Saturday and is due to go to Douma on Sunday,” Deputy Foreign Minister Ayman Soussan told AFP.

At destroyed Syria lab, workers deny producing toxic weapons

DAMASCUS — Plastic gloves and face masks lay scattered in the rubble of a Syrian research lab destroyed by Western strikes on Saturday, where an official denied the centre was developing chemical weapons.

US, British and French strikes slammed into a series of targets around Damascus that the Western countries said were linked to the Syrian government’s chemical weapons programme.

One multi-storey complex, in the capital’s northern district of Barzeh, had been completely reduced to rubble, AFP’s correspondents saw during a government-sponsored tour on Saturday.

Its roof had been punched down and several walls appeared on the verge of collapse.

Even hours after the strikes wrapped up, plumes of smoke wafted lazily up from the building and a burning smell still hung in the air.

“The building had three stores: a basement, ground floor, and second floor,” said Said Said, an engineer who identified himself as head of the centre’s paint and plastics department.

“It had labs and departments that were unfortunately completely destroyed, with all their equipment and furniture. Thank God, no one was here,” he told AFP.

The bombardment, including both cruise missiles and air-to-surface strikes, hit Syria around 4:00 am on Saturday (0100 GMT), jolting people awake in the capital’s nearby residential neighbourhoods. Syrian state news agency SANA reported several missiles hit a research centre in Barzeh, “destroying a building that included scientific labs and a training centre”.

‘Children’s toys’

The site, according to Western powers, was part of the Syrian government’s “chemical weapons infrastructure.”

But Said told AFP only non-lethal research and development was under way at the centre.

“As we work in civilian pharmaceutical and chemical research, we did not expect that we would be hit,” he said.—AFP
British PM faces backlash for bypassing MPs on Syria

UNITED KINGDOM—British Prime Minister Theresa May faced a backlash from the domestic opposition after launching military strikes on Syria without consulting parliament. As the Conservative leader explained her rationale for the air strikes, opposition parties claimed the attacks were legally dubious, risked escalating conflict and should have been approved by lawmakers.

“The bombs won’t save lives or bring about peace,” said Jeremy Corbyn, the veteran leftist leader of the main opposition Labour Party. “This legally questionable action risks escalating further... an already devastating conflict. “Theresa May should have sought parliamentary approval, not trailed after Donald Trump.”

Corbyn has written to May seeking assurance that there would be no further bombing raids and urged the government to negotiate a pause in the Syrian civil war.

The British, US and French bombings on Saturday followed an alleged chemical weapons attack on the rebel-held town of Douma on 7 April.

May’s government has insisted the punitive strikes were legal, releasing a statement that said they were aimed at alleviating the “extreme humanitarian suffering” of the Syrian people by reducing the chemical weapons capabilities of President Bashar al-Assad’s regime.

“The UK is permitted under international law, on an exceptional basis, to take measures in order to alleviate overwhelming humanitarian suffering,” the statement said.

It added that it believed the Syrian government had committed a “war crime and a crime against humanity” with chemical weapons use and that attempts to find a unified international approach through the United Nations had been blocked by Damascus-ally Moscow.

May will face questions from MPs on Monday, when parliament reconvenes after a break.

Stop the War, a pacifist coalition once chaired by Corbyn, has called a demonstration outside the British parliament on Monday to protest against the strikes.

The group said it “strongly condemned” the action and accused May of “sanctioning killing” at Trump’s behest.

‘Dangerous escalation’

Deploying the armed forces is a prerogative power, meaning the prime minister can launch action without backing from MPs.

But after the Conservatives entered office in 2010, the government suggested that since the 2003 vote on Iraq, a convention had emerged that MPs should have a say, except in cases of emergency.

British MPs voted against taking military action against Damascus in 2013, in what was widely viewed as an assertion of parliamentary sovereignty on the use of force.

David Cameron, who was prime minister in 2013, tweeted on Saturday: “As we have seen in the past, inaction has its consequences”.

Lawmakers backed action in Iraq in 2014, and again in Syria in 2015, strictly limiting strikes in both countries to targets of the Islamic State jihadist group.

Four British Tornado jets fired Storm Shadow missiles at a Syrian military base suspected of holding chemical weapons components. The strikes at 0100 GMT were 15 miles (24 kilometres) west of Homs.

Scottish First Minister Nicola Sturgeon said Syria’s use of chemical weapons could not be tolerated but questioned whether the strikes would halt their use or contribute to ending the civil war.

“This action risks not just further escalating the civil war in Syria but also a dangerous escalation of international tensions,” said the leader of the left-wing Scottish National Party, the third biggest force in the British parliament.

Both Syria and Russia have denied all responsibility for the alleged chemical attacks. —AFP

Brazil AG files racism suit against far-right presidential candidate

BRASILIA — Brazil’s top prosecutor has filed a complaint against far-right firebrand and presidential candidate Jair Bolsonaro for “racism” against Afro-Brazilians, indigenous peoples, refugees, women and members of the LGBT community.

The formal complaint, filed on Friday by the attorney general’s office, will now head to the Supreme Court.

Should the court find him guilty of racism before October’s presidential election, Bolsonaro could be barred from the vote. The ex-army captain has been polling a distant second behind Lais Mococa Aluia da Silva, Brazil’s recently-jailed ex-president.

However, the slow pace of Brazil’s judicial system was likely to weigh in the 63-year-old’s favor, according to the JOTA news website, which specializes in legal matters.

If convicted he could face a prison sentence of between one and three years, said the attorney general’s office which has also asked he be fined a minimum of $117,500 (95,000 euros) for “collective moral damages.”

Bolsonaro, a veteran right-wing congressman who has praised the use of torture as well as Brazil’s two-decade-long military dictatorship, has denounced the lawsuit as an “unfounded attack.”

Bolsonaro has run a campaign heavily focused on his tough-guy approach to law and order, and has worked hard to capitalize on the widespread dislike of Lula.

At an event in Rio’s Hidracla Club in April 2017, Bolsonaro “used expressions of a discriminatory nature, inciting hatred,” the complaint said, citing remarks about women, homosexuals and the descendants of Afro-Brazilian slaves, known as quilombolas, whom he spoke about “as if they were animals.”

In response, Bolsonaro’s spokesman decried the “unfounded attacks” aimed at generating “sensationalist news” by smearning “the greatest political phenomenon Brazil has seen in recent years.”

Bolsonaro will have “no difficulty in showing in court that he is not racist,” the spokesman said.

In 2017, Bolsonaro was ordered to pay damages to leftist deputy Maria do Rosario for saying he wouldn’t rape her because she was “ugly” and “not worth it.” —AFP

Canada’s Trudeau defends controversial pipeline project

PARIS—Canadian Prime Minister Justin Trudeau on Sunday defended his government’s backing of a controversial pipeline project, saying the world could not afford to choose between the environment and the economy.

In an interview with French business daily Les Echos ahead of a visit to Paris, Trudeau acknowledged that environmentalists were “concerned” by the Trans Mountain pipeline.

But he said, “Canadians and people around the world know that we cannot choose between what is good for the environment and good for the economy.”

“You have to do both at the same time, and above all, you have to find the transition towards reduced use of fossil fuels.”

On Thursday, the Liberal premier cut short a visit to Peru to try defuse a threatened constitutional crisis over expanding a 1,150-kilometre (715-mile) pipeline to move 890,000 barrels of oil per day from landlocked Alberta’s oil sands to the Pacific coast.

Opponents of the pipeline point to the risk of oil spills at sea and say it fouts Trudeau’s commitments to cut greenhouse gas emissions.

“We cannot change everything in our economies overnight,” Trudeau said.

“It’s clear that people on the left and ecologists are concerned but there are also people on the right who do not like the idea of a carbon tax.” — AFP

China FM visits Japan for talks on N Korea, regional issues

TOKYO—Chinese Foreign Minister Wang Yi was due in Tokyo on Sunday for a visit seen as a sign of a gradual thaw between the Asian rivals, amid flurries of diplomacy over North Korea.

Shortly after his arrival, Wang will meet with his Japanese counterpart Taro Kono with their talks expected to touch on key subjects such as economic relations, territorial disputes in the East China Sea, and ways to push North Korea to give up its nuclear weapons, Japanese officials have said.

Kono met Wang in China in January when he became the first Japanese foreign minister to visit the country in nearly two years.

Bon Jovi, Nina Simone enter Rock and Roll Hall of Fame

CLEVELAND—Bon Jovi, the Moody Blues, Dire Straits, the Cars, Nina Simone and Sister Rosetta Tharpe joined music royalty on Saturday as they were inducted into the Rock and Roll Hall of Fame.

Richie Sambora, the original guitarist for arena-packing rockers Bon Jovi reunited with the band for a rousing set at the Public Auditorium in Cleveland that included hits “You Give Love a Bad Name” and “It’s My Life.”

R&B-infused progressive rockers the Moody Blues took the stage to perform “Your Wildest Dreams,” while New Wave pop songwriters the Cars played “Just What I Needed.”

Soul legend Nina Simone and Sister Rosetta Tharpe, the gospel inspiration for early rockers, both of whom were posthumously inducted, and British rockers Dire Straits rounded out the 2018 Hall of Fame class.

The shrine to rock culture surveyed some 1,000 historians and music industry players to select the new inductees.

Bon Jovi, the hard rockers from New Jersey led by name-sake Jon Bon Jovi, came out on top in a survey that drew 6.8 million fans, whose preferences were taken into account to give an extra vote to five acts.

With a string of quickly memorable hits such as “Livin’ on a Prayer” and “Wanted Dead or Alive,” Bon Jovi became kings in the 1980s, packing arenas on their exhaustive tours full of pyrotechnics.

Simone, who won induction on her first nomination, was widely considered one of the most influential singers of the 20th century who brought the sensibilities of classical music to gospel and jazz.

Raised in segregated North Carolina, Simone became a passionate advocate for racial equality, with her best-known song perhaps the civil rights anthem “To Be Young, Gifted and Black.” She died in self-exile in France in 2003.

Tharpe, who died in 1973, was chosen for her early influence on rock.

With her confident stage presence and distortion on her guitar, Tharpe took gospel music to new audiences in the 1930s and 1940s, helping set the stage for rock ‘n’ roll after World War II.

Dire Straits, led by Mark Knopfler, emerged from Britain’s so-called pub rock scene of the 1970s, which emphasized blues roots and no-frills musicianship in an era of angry punks and flamboyant glam bands.

In its citation, the Hall of Fame credited the London band with its revival of Americana, saying, “Dire Straits dragged rock kicking and screaming back to its gritty, country roots using beefy guitar licks and bluesy vocals.”—AFP

Controversy builds over German rappers accused of anti-Semitism

BERLIN—Outrage has grown in Germany after a rap duo accused of anti-Semitism over lyrics comparing themselves to Auschwitz prisoners was awarded a music prize on Holocaust Remembrance Day. German rappers Kollegah and Farid Bang reference the Nazi death camp in their song “0815”, saying their bodies are “more defined than an Auschwitz prisoner.” Despite the controversy which followed, on Thursday they won the Echo Music Award’s Hip-Hop/Urban prize after selling more than 200,000 copies of their album “Young, Brutal and Handsome 3.”

Also on Thursday, Israel marked Yom HaShoah, its Holocaust Remembrance Day, dedicated to the six million Jews killed by the Nazis during World War II.

Both rappers have said they reject all anti-Semitism, and Kollegah has offered free “lifetime” tickets to the duo’s Jewish fans.

But the lyrics have sparked a heated debate in Germany, which is still haunted by lingering memories of World War II.

Germany’s Justice Minister Heiko Maas said such “anti-Semitic provocations” were “simply repugnant.”

“It is shameful that this prize was awarded on Holocaust Remembrance Day.”

Ronald Lauder, head of the World Jewish Congress group, told the Bild newspaper: “In Germany, you now get rewarded for despising women, glorifying violence and mocking Auschwitz victims!”

A spokesman for Jerusalem’s Yad Vashem Holocaust memorial told Bild that “the use of terminology or images out of their historical context is memory-based violence”.

“That musical industry officials reward such comments under the cover of art and freedom of expression is scandalous,” said Josef Schuster, the head of the Central Council of Jews in Germany. Before the rappers won the Echo prize, the International Auschwitz Committee said their presence at the awards ceremony was a “slap in the face for Holocaust survivors.”—AFP

Suspect charged in France over Kardashian gunpoint robbery

PARIS—A French court charged an eleventh suspect Friday over the gunpoint robbery of US reality TV star Kim Kardashian in Paris in 2016, a source involved in the investigation told AFP.

The 28-year-old man has been charged with armed robbery, criminal conspiracy and holding Kardashian against her will, the source said.

Ten people had already been charged over the 2 October, 2016 robbery at a luxury residence where Kardashian was staying during Paris Fashion Week.

Five men tied her up, gagged her and locked her in a bathroom, before making off with jewels worth nine million euros ($10.6 million), including her four-million-euro diamond engagement ring.

The robbery was the biggest of an individual in France in the past 20 years. One of the robbers fleeing the scene on a bicycle dropped a diamond-encrusted cross worth 30,000 euros, which was found by a passer-by a few hours later.

It remains the only piece to be recovered from the heist.—AFP

‘Godfather’ of gambling: Macau magnate Stanley Ho

HONG KONG—Macau gambling tycoon Stanley Ho, who has announced his retirement from his flagship company SJM, made his riches by transforming neighbouring Macau from a sleepy Portuguese outpost into the world’s biggest casino hub.

Known as the “godfather” of Macau casinos, 96-year-old Ho was instrumental in turning the city on China’s southern coast into a gambling boomtown, with gaming revenue surpassing Las Vegas.

Ho is the great-nephew of one of Asia’s first tycoons, Robert Hotung, among Hong Kong’s wealthiest individuals at the turn of the 20th century and an influential Eurasian businessman and philanthropist.

Ho made his fortune smuggling luxury goods into China from Macau during World War II, before securing the only gaming licence in the then-Portuguese colony in 1962.

A flamboyant entrepreneur, Ho first married in 1942 but subsequently had three other partners, one of whom is a lawmaker in Macau. It is unclear whether or not he married all the women he called wives.

He has said that he had never wagered a bet, even as his casinos continued to rake in billions in revenues annually. The keen ballroom dancer cultivated a playboy lifestyle, fathering at least 17 children, one of whom, Lawrence, runs rival casino and hotel operator Melco International in Macau.

The billionaire monopolised Macau’s gaming industry until 2002, when the government introduced foreign investors, sparking a boom which saw casino takings produced foreign investors, sparking a boom which saw casino takings

But his casino-hotel business took a dive after Chinese President Xi Jinping launched a high-profile corruption crackdown in 2014 which triggered a dramatic decline in high-rollers in the city. Ho’s hotel giant Sociedade de Jogos de Macau Holdings (SJM) saw its net profit for 2014 drop 13 per cent and saw an even steeper profits fall of 63 per cent for 2015. Profits continued to decline in 2016, which saw a 6 per cent decrease from the year before, and continued to fall by the half-year point of 2017.

The lower profits were compounded when his nephew Alan Ho, executive director for the company’s Hotel Lisboa, was caught along with 96 sex workers in 2015 after police broke up a prostitution ring. He spent 14 months in jail. SJM Holdings is trying to lure back visitors with the sprawling new Grand Lisboa Palace complex, which will feature Versace and Lagerfeld hotels, reportedly due to open in 2019 in a bid to diversify from gambling and attract more mass-market tourists. —AFP

Musical time travel: recreating Mozart-era pianos in Czech wood

DIVISOV, Czech Republic—The sign on the old sunlit house reads “Machine Factory” but now handwork reigns in this workshop where replicas of fortepianos once played by world’s greatest musical geniuses are created.

Since 1998, more than 200 copies of pianos played by Wolfgang Amadeus Mozart, Joseph Haydn or Frederic Chopin have left the house in the village of Divisov; some 40 kilometres (25 miles) southeast of the Czech capital, Prague.

“Authenticity. There can be no other purpose in replicating these instruments,” says their builder Paul McNulty, a 64-year-old American of Irish descent, whose small round glasses liken him to John Lennon. “I want to raise no eyebrows if the original builder walks past my instrument,” he adds with a chuckle.

Italian Bartolomeo Cristofori invented the piano around 1700, and fortepianos were made until the 19th century, serving a number of Classicist and Romantic composers. The replicas are now placed by the heavier modern piano with a metal frame.

McNulty first studied guitar, then switched to piano tuning before embarking on his career as a fortepiano builder at a Boston workshop.

“I got my degree and I went to this man and I said, ‘I’ll work for you for one dollar per hour’. He couldn’t say no. He showed me how to sharpen the blade and some osmosis happened,” says McNulty.

His entire house is packed with copies of pianos originally made by Johann Andreas Stein, Jean-Louis Boisselot or Mozart’s piano builder Anton Walter.

McNulty himself produces between 10 and 15 pianos a year, spending 800 to 6,000 hours on each of the instruments, whose prices start at 30,000 euros ($37,000) apiece, lifetime warranty included.

- ‘Detective work’ -

McNulty moved to the Czech Republic in 1995 via the Netherlands, in search of quality spruce logs for his instruments.

“The Schwarzenberg forest in the Czech Sarmava (mountains) is the original source” of wood for fortepiano makers in Vienna and elsewhere, says McNulty, who recently received Czech citizenship.

“I get the tree and I saw it up into eights and they sit out in the garden for five or 10 years and then I slice it up on a saw into soundboard pieces,” he told AFP.

Besides the soundboard wood, McNulty uses iron strings, not steel, and the hammer heads are covered with the skin of hair sheep, an old breed with shorter hair than the thick wool of their modern cousins.

“I don’t use (modern) sheep hair because sheep have been bred out of resemblance to the sheep of the 18th century. They have more wool now so the skin texture has changed,” he says. —AFP

Tokyo Disneyland marks 35th anniv. with reopened popular attraction

CHIBA, Japan—Tokyo Disneyland marked its 35th anniversary on Sunday with the reopening of renovated popular attraction “It’s a Small World.”

The operator, Oriental Land Co, held a ceremony with Mickey Mouse and his Disney friends at the theme park, which first opened to the public on 15 April, 1983. “We would like to create the new Disneyland with everyone for a new dream,” Toshio Kagami, chairman of Oriental Land, said at the ceremony.

The park plans to run special anniversary event “Tokyo Disney Resort 35th ‘Happiest Celebration’!” through 25 March next year with the new parade “Dreaming Up!” to celebrate the anniversary. Oriental Land also plans to open a new area inspired by the “Beauty and the Beast” film by 2020.

Ryoichi Miyawaki, operating officer in charge of corporate planning, told reporters the company is considering expanding one of the two parks.

“Whenever I come here, I feel like I’m in my dream. I hope the park will keep creating new pleasures,” said Yu Kuroki, 34, who visited the park with her family. Tokyo Disneyland and its adjacent Tokyo Disney Sea, which opened in 2001, had attracted a combined 720 million customers as of the end of March. —Kyodo News

Man City on verge of title after bouncing back at Spurs, Salah hits 40

LONDON — Manchester City moved to within touching distance of a fifth English league title after bouncing back from a bitterly disappointing week to beat Tottenham Hotspur 3-1 at Wembley on Saturday.

Defeat for Spurs handed Chelsea a glimmer of hope in the fight for Champions League places after they came from 2-0 down to beat Southampton 3-2, but Liverpool strengthened their position in the top four as Mohamed Salah scored his 40th goal of the season in a routine 3-0 win over Bournemouth.

City blew the chance to seal the title by losing 3-2 at home to local rivals Manchester United last weekend, and were then dumped out of the Champions League at the quarter-final stage 5-1 on aggregate by Liverpool in midweek.

However, Pep Guardiola’s men showed why they have been compared with the all-time great teams of the Premier League era by inflicting Spurs’ first league defeat since the sides last met at the Etihad in December.

“I said after 10-15 minutes we will be champions,” said Guardiola of his side’s fast start.

“After what happened and how the people reacted, these guys are fantastic. They are awesome, they are incredible.”

“What they lived in the last week was so unfair but they deserve (to win the league) and now we have a match ball. We had the first one against United, we could not do it and now we have another one against Swansea with our 60,000 people and we are going to try to be champion.”

City host Swansea next Sunday but could even be confirmed as champions as early as Sunday if United lose at home to rock bottom West Brom.

Gabriel Jesus raced in behind an unsettled Spurs defence to drill home the opener on 22 minutes and Ilkay Gundogan slotted home the second from the penalty spot three minutes later as Hugo Lloris wiped out Raheem Sterling, although replays suggested the contact took place outside the area.

Just like against United last weekend when a 2-0 half-time lead disappeared in 16 minutes, City threatened to let another promising position slip away when Christian Eriksen brought Spurs back into the game just before the break with a bit of fortune when Aymeric Laporte’s clearance ricocheted off the Dane and past the helpless Ederson.

However, this time there was no second-half collapse as City should have run out even more convincing winners.

Jesus and Sterling passed up huge chances to add to their lead before Sterling—who also missed two great opportunities when City were 2-0 up on United last weekend—finally found the roof of the net after Lloris parried another Jesus effort.

Salah has the ‘wow’ factor

City’s Champions League conquerors moved ever closer to sealing their place in the competition next season as Liverpool cruised past Bournemouth with Salah again taking centre stage.

“What a number. Wow!” exclaimed manager Jurgen Klopp on hearing Salah is the first Liverpool player since Ian Rush 31 years ago to score 40 in a season.

“Mo knows what this means and the way he plays suits him,” added Klopp. “For him, for the boys, it’s fantastic and today he certainly didn’t look like he doesn’t want to score in the next few games.”

All of Liverpool’s prolific front three were on target as Sadio Mane and Roberto Firmino struck either side of Salah’s deft header to take their combined tally for the season to 82.

Chelsea kept their faint hopes of Champions League football next season alive by closing to within seven points of Spurs with a stunning eight-minute fightback to deepen Southampton’s predicament in the bottom three.—AFP

Johnson seeks ATP US Clay crown repeat against Sandgren

LOS ANGELES—Defending champion Steve Johnson outlasted fellow American Taylor Fritz 7-5, 6-7 (7/4), 6-2 on Saturday to reach the ATP US Clay Court Championships final.

The US sixth seed will play for his third ATP title and second in a row on Houston clay against American eighth seed Tennys Sandgren, who made a stunning run to the Australian Open quarter-finals in January.

Eighth-seeded Sandgren, ranked five spots behind Johnson at 56th, advanced to his first ATP final by downing Croatia’s 39-year-old Ivo Karlovic 7-6 (7/2), 7-6 (7/4). Johnson, whose ATP titles came in 2016 at Nottingham and Houston last year, broke Fritz to claim the first set in 59 minutes, but dropped four of the last five points in the tie-breaker to force a third set, which Johnson dominated to book his first match against Sandgren.

Fritz had beaten Johnson en route to his only ATP final in 2016 at Memphis.

Sandgren broke Karlovic to level at 4-4 in the opening set, denied the Croatian on a break chance in the ninth game and then dominated the tie-breaker, scoring five of the last six points.

Sandgren broke for a 2-1 edge in the second set but Karlovic broke back to level at 3-3, setting up the final tie-break. Sandgren took his lone point off Karlovic’s serve for a 5-3 lead, then held twice on his next serves for the 97-minute triumph.

With a victory, 88th-ranked Karlovic would have become the oldest ATP finalist since Ken Rosewall won the 1977 Hong Kong title at age 43.

Karlovic settled for being the oldest ATP semi-finalist since Jimmy Connors in 1993 at San Francisco.—AFP

‘Emotional’ Nehwal grabs badminton gold in all-India thriller

GOLD COAST — Saina Nehwal made up for her disappointing Rio Olympics as she defeated fellow Indian and rival PV Sindhu to win her second Commonwealth Games badminton singles gold on Sunday.

In a tense final, the Delhi 2010 champion staged a second-game comeback against Sindhu, the Olympic silver-medallist, to grasp a thrilling victory 21-18, 23-21.

Former world number one Nehwal, 28, a poster girl of Indian sport, used her great experience to peg back the 22-year-old Sindhu and the decisive moment came at 18-18 in the second game when a mammoth rally went Nehwal’s way.

Both players were left hunched over gasping for breath as the Gold Coast crowd rose to its feet in applause.

Nehwal, the London Olympic bronze medallist, had heavy strapping on her right shin and revealed afterwards she had been playing through pain throughout the competition.

“It was a very pressurised tournament, a lot of top competition from the Malaysians, it was a very challenging tournament,” said Nehwal, ranked 12 in the world to Sindhu’s three. Asked how this gold ranked to her already impressive haul, she replied "Much more tough because the pressure is always there when you already have gold, so there is a lot more expectation.—AFP
