Boost production of mills and factories

At present, the government is building factories and mills that produce new items and import-substitute factories. Meanwhile, it is placing emphasis on the establishment of industrial zones and industrial regions, thereby contributing much to development of the industrial sector.

With the industrial development, mills and factories with high technology and production have emerged in different industrial regions. This has resulted in bringing about new production methods and job opportunities for local people.

And efforts are being made to meet the demand of power supply necessary for running mills and factories in the industrial zone and industrial regions at full capacity. At the same time, steps are being taken for the welfare and safety of blue-collar and white-collar workers of mills and factories.

In the meantime, efforts are being made for running over 2,000 mills and factories in the industrial zones of Yangon Division at full capacity. A lens factory capable of manufacturing a variety of lenses has emerged in Mingaladon Industrial Zone and it has gone into commercial operation since 2004. The factory is providing training courses to its workers for uplift of their efficiency.

In like manner, with the assistance of some companies, the finished wood products and furniture are being produced in the Wood Based Industrial Zone in Shwepyitha Township in order to build durable houses for storm victims.

With huge investment in new mills and factories, systematic measures are to be taken for boosting production. Only then, will the tasks for national development and uplift of the living standard of the people be possible.

Obama proposes new tax on oil companies

WASHINGTON, 23 June—US Democratic presidential candidate Barack Obama outlined his new tax on oil companies Sunday should he be elected president, as a way to strengthen government oversight of energy traders.

“My plan fully closes the Enron loophole and restores commonsense regulation as part of my broader plan to ease the burden for struggling families today while investing in a better future,” the Illinois Senator said in a statement.

The Enron, a Houston-based energy trading giant, collapsed in 2001 after it was discovered having vastly overstated its income. “Enron loophole” was referred to a 2000 legislation that allowed unfettered oil trading on electronic markets, which was blamed for allowing speculators to run up the fuel cost by operating outside federal regulations and the skyrocketing oil prices as a result that reached 135 US dollars a barrel on Friday. Obama blamed former Republican Senator from Texas Phil Gramm, who serves as an economic adviser of his presidential rival, John McCain, for inserting a provision into the bill in 2000 “at the behest of Enron lobbyists” that exempted some energy traders from government oversight.

A regulatory battle over a radio broadcast of his “Filthy Words” routine ultimately reached the US Supreme Court.

The Egyptian-broke refereed ceasefire eventually took hold after months of indirect talks between Hamas, which controls the Gaza Strip, and Israel.

S Korean public fear of US beef not completely eased

SEOUL, 23 June—The Republic of Korea has been promised with extra health safeguards from the United States on beef imports, but it is still not clear whether the latest deal will completely eliminate public fear of American beef.

The weeks of mass protests have rocked President Lee Myung-bak’s government, the Yonhap news agency quoted local observers as saying on Saturday.

Earlier in the day, South Korean Trade Minister Kim Jong-hoon said an age verification system will ensure that US beef from cattle aged more than 30 months will not be exported to South Korea, and the system will be in place until South Korean concerns over American beef ease.

South Korea has been seeking to maintain the 30-month age limit for over a year to relieve public concerns about safety, while Washington wants to keep the age restriction for 120 days.

South Korea, once the world’s third-largest buyer of US beef, banned imports of the American meat in 2003 after a case of mad cow disease was found in the state of Washington.

India floods push people onto trees, alligators flee

Bhubaneswar (India), 23 June—Flood victims in eastern India took refuge on treetops as monsoon rains swamped homes and continued to spread misery among millions.

Swelling rivers continued to break through mud embankments in the country’s east and northeast on Friday, killing at least 50 people in the past 10 days and affecting more than three million.

Air force helicopters dropped food packets in the eastern state of Orissa, as hundreds of villagers climbed trees, hoping to be rescued as their homes got washed away, officials said. “I have seen hundreds of people living on trees and pleading to be rescued,” Jayanarayan Mohanty, a community leader, said.

In the eastern city of Jamshedpur, three alligators and a crocodile slipped out of a zoo after heavy rains flooded the park, officials said. The crocodile was later caught, but a park official said the missing alligators were a danger to the people.

Heavy monsoon rains also had an impact on coal mining in eastern Jharkhand state, with production at the state-run Central Coalfield Limited down by over 50 per cent.

Jordan returns stolen antiquities to Iraq

Amman, 23 June—Iraq took delivery on Sunday of more than 2,000 ancient artefacts seized by Jordanian border officials after being looted from archaeological sites and Baghdad’s national museum during the US-led invasion in 2003.

At a ceremony, Jordan’s Tourism Minister Maha al-Khatib, who presented the pieces to Iraq’s Antiquities Minister Mohammed al-Uraibi, said the handover showed the effective measures to prevent its borders being used as a conduit for smugglers. Amira Iidan, head of Iraq’s antiquities and heritage office, said the archeological items recovered were rich in “human and cultural value” and belonged to periods from 7,000 to 200 BC.

The most prized was an ivory relief stolen from the national museum that dates to the first millennium and came from the ancient Assyrian city of Nimrud. Uraibi told reporters that improved security conditions in Iraq, referred to as the cradle of civilization, would allow authorities to better protect the country’s heritage.

Uraibi said 15,000 items had been stolen during the wholesale looting of the national museum in 2003, of which 5,000 to 6,000 items had been returned.

Panama incinerates over 6,000 kilos of cocaine

Panama City, 23 June—Panamanian authorities incinerated 6,351 kilos of cocaine Friday in eastern Panama City, said the national police.

The drug haul was transferred from the police headquarters to the Cerro Patacon dump under strict security measures by agents of the Judicial Investigation Directorate (DIJ). The burning of drugs will be performed more often due to the large quantity of illegal substances seized in recent weeks in different parts of the country,” assistant manager of the DIJ Javier Carrillo said.

Carrillo said the drugs burned were seized in an operation jointly launched by the police, the National Air Force Service and the National Marine Service as well as the Drugs Prosecutor Offices on 9-10 June.

The police also seized two speed-boats during the operation carried out on the island of Coiba in the Pacific Ocean.

Gun teen jailed after father tips off police

London, 23 June—A teenager was jailed on Friday for possessing a gun after his father handed him in to police when he found the weapon and bullets in his home.

Paul Metcalfe, 19, of Nelson, in Lancashire, was jailed for three years after his father, Neil, 45, turned him over to the authorities. He had faced a maximum five-year term but he pleaded guilty to firearm offences at an earlier hearing.

The teenager hid the weapon—a reactivated semi-automatic pistol with 11 live bullets—for some older men because he was frightened of them.

After sentencing, his father said he had no regrets, although he did think the sentence was too long. “I think I did the right thing,” he told reporters outside court. “I don’t think he should have walked out of court, but 18 months or two years maybe — people get less for GBH.”

At least 12 dead in Mexico nightclub crush

Mexico City, 23 June—At least 12 people died and 18 were injured on Friday when hundreds of young party-goers rushed to get out of a crowded nightclub in the Mexican capital during a raid on under-age drinking, police said.

Nine youths, including several minors, and three police officers were asphyxiated in a scramble to leave the News Divine disco after a tip-off from its owner that police were in the building, police and the city’s top prosecutor said. “More than 1,000 people left a stampede for the emergency exit. The exit is very small … and that’s why people were asphyxiated,” Mexico City police chief Joel Ortega told the Televisa network.

The emergency exit was partly blocked by boxes, Ortega said. — MNA/Reuters
US Salmonella outbreak illnesses climb to 552

WASHINGTON, 23 June — US food safety inspectors will head to Florida and Mexico this weekend to examine tomato farms and distribution chains, hoping to pinpoint the source of a widening Salmonella outbreak that has sickened more than 550 people, officials said on Friday. At least 552 people in 32 states and the District of Columbia have become sick in an outbreak linked to certain kinds of tomatoes, according to the US Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC).

That marked a big increase from the more than 350 illnesses in 30 states that the CDC reported on Wednesday. Investigators believe the numbers could go higher because the outbreak is probably still underway, David Acheson, director of food safety for the US Food and Drug Administration, told reporters. Some 53 people have been hospitalized, CDC officials said.

No deaths have been blamed on the outbreak, although one elderly man who died of cancer was infected at the time of his death. Officials said the infection may have played a role in his death.

A new cluster of illnesses was reported in Texas, with 265 identified cases there, the CDC said on Friday. None have have been reported in Mexico.

Officials said this may be the largest US outbreak of Salmonella infections from tomatoes.

Shells from Pakistan hit Afghan bases, NATO fires back

KABUL, 23 June — Artillery shells fired from Pakistan landed in an Afghan Army compound and close to an international military base in Afghanistan on Saturday and NATO forces returned fire, the alliance said.

Elsewhere in Afghanistan, an improvised explosive device (IED) killed four US-led coalition soldiers in the southern province of Kandahar, the scene of a large anti-Taleban offensive and an insurgent jail break.

Tension has mounted between Afghanistan and Pakistan in the last week after Afghan President Hamid Karzai threatened to send troops across the frontier to hunt down Taleban militants based in Pakistan’s lawless border region.

Poll shows Obama widens lead over McCain

WASHINGTON, 23 June — Democratic presidential hopeful Barack Obama has opened up a double-digit lead over Republican John McCain two weeks after he clinched the nomination, a new poll published on Friday showed.

The nationwide poll conducted by Newsweek showed Obama leading McCain by a margin of 51-36 per cent, indicating that he might have got a bounce from his recent primary victory over Hillary Clinton. Newsweek said the survey of 1,010 adults nationwide on 18 and 19 June and, 2008 has a margin of error of 4 points.

Obama’s edge in the latest poll is larger than in other recent surveys. A Reuters/Zogby poll released on Wednesday found Obama had only a five-point lead.

Obama was tied at 46 per cent with McCain in a previous Newsweek poll completed in late May, when he was still battling Clinton for the nomination, Newsweek said.

Obama triumphed in early June in a grueling five-month Democratic nomination fight with Clinton. McCain clinched the Republican race in March. McCain and Obama have clashed sharply on economic and security issues in the campaign’s early stages.

WTO adopts cotton ruling, Brazil ponders sanctions

GENEVA, 23 June — The World Trade Organization (WTO) adopted a final ruling in a dispute over US cotton subsidies on Friday, clearing the way for Brazil to seek up to four billion US dollars in sanctions on US imports.

In a statement, Brazil said it hoped the decision in the case dating to 2002 “provides sufficient incentive for the United States to amend its legislation and ensure compliance with the rulings of the WTO’s Dispute Settlement Body”. Without full compliance, “Brazil will pursue the established procedures in order to obtain from the (Dispute Settlement Body) authorization to take counter-measures vis-a-vis the United States”, it added. Brazil argues that US subsidies to cotton farmers unfairly boost American production and depress world prices, squeezing developing-country farmers out of the market.

The people of some areas in Yangon and Ayeyawady divisions came under the strike of the storm Nargis, which was the most destructive natural disaster of its kind in the course of Myanmar history.

In compliance with the guidance of the Head of State, the National Disaster Preparedness Central Committee led by Prime Minister General Thein Sein held a meeting while the natural disaster was raging to carry out rescue and rehabilitation tasks in the storm-affected areas. Chairman of the Central Committee Prime Minister General Thein Sein and ministers made trips to respective areas on 3 May 2008. Since then, they have been carrying out the rescue and resettlement tasks with added momentum.

The government, well-wishers from states and divisions, industrialists, companies, servicemen, social organizations and religious associations are making generous donations of kitchen provisions including rice, edible oil and salt, vegetables, purified water, clothes, and relief supplies such as household utensils to the storm victims.

Witnesses are full of admiration for individuals who are donating supplies right in the hands of the victims, and artists, athletes, members of Red Cross, Union Solidarity and Development Association and Fire Brigade and servicemen who are contributing voluntary services. It is believed that everyone can weigh the accreditations and find out the true conditions if the firsthand experiences of those who made trips to the storm-hit areas in Ayeyawady and Yangon divisions are stated with profound evidence.

I am neither a politician nor a government employee. I am just a public member who earns his right livelihood freely and who devotes his life to the religious faith he professes. The committee for providing assistance to cyclone “Nargis” victims to which I am a member was formed on 8 May 2008 to provide supplies to victims, irrespective of race and religion with the participation of entrepreneurs under the supervision of the four major Islam religious organizations.

Kurbani Supervisory Central Committee (2007) handed over K 100 million to the committee to provide the storm victims and K 5 million to the State to set up trust funds. The committee for providing assistance to cyclone “Nargis” victims collected more than K 300 million including the donations of well-wishers. So far, the committee has donated about K 200 million including the cash donations for rice, edible oil, clothes and rehabilitation tasks right in the hands of the victims in the seven natural disaster-hit townships in Ayeyawady Division.

The committee planned to donate five water purifiers in Yangon Division. It has planned to donate four of them—two to Dalla Township, one to Kungyangon Township and one to Kayan Township. It is now coordinating with local authorities concerned to designate the most appropriate place to donate the last water purifier.

In donating supplies for rescue and rehabilitation of the storm victims, we committee members did not face any prohibition or restrictions. During our trip to the rural areas in the storm-hit township, we witnessed that schools, hospitals, dispensaries, markets and buildings were being reconstructed. Farmers were making arrangements to resume their businesses with the use of power-tillers and draught cattle, while fishermen, with the use of fishing boats and fishing nets.

Likewise, the authorities concerned gave a helping hand to the storm victims in going back to their native villages when the task to help them go back to their native regions has come into shape, and there was no forced relocation but they were sent back to their regions according to their own wishes.

Meantime, the authorities concerned are providing all the necessary assistance to the organizations and individuals to the most possible degree so that they can make donations to storm victims of their own accord. However, some individuals made unsystematic donations with ulterior motives to tarnish the nation’s image by dropping foods from the moving vehicles to the ground. Consequently, the authorities concerned had to deter them from doing such an improper and unacceptable act. Without knowing about it, some were making accusations and criticizing that there were impediments of the government over the donation of relief items to storm victims. Such accusations should not be made at all.

Here also, the accusations that the government imposed restrictions on and hampered the flow of relief items into the nation should not be made at all. Such an undesirable act should be avoided out of consideration. Committing the undesirable act amounts to accusing the government of refusing the relief aid provided by the international community and of being unkind to the people and misguiding the international community so that their generosity toward the nation may diminish.

As a matter of fact, the government only refused such kind of donations of international community that it was with strings attached and could harm sovereignty and territory of the nation. It is safe to say that such kind of donations that were brought into the country by military aircraft and warship is unusual. This being so, Chairman of National Disaster Preparedness Central Committee Prime Minister General Thein Sein disclosed frankly that the government thanked any aid provided by the international community with the exception of those carried by military planes and warships.

In the meantime, the prayer saying ceremonies dedicated to the persons who perished in the storm and storm survivors were held by Buddhists on Kaba Aye Hill at 10 am, by Christians at a church at the corner of Shwedagon Pagoda Road and Bogyoke Aung San Street in Pabedan Township at 11 am, by Muslims at Cholma Jaryar Mosque on Bo Stumpy Street in Pabedan Township at 11.15 am and by Hindus at a temple on Bo Aung Kyaw Street at 2 pm on 14 May 2008. Minister for Religious Affairs Brig-Gen Thura Myint Maung himself attended the ceremonies. This has reflected the great loving-kindness and compassion of the government toward the storm victims.

Furthermore, Head of State Senior General Than Shwe and Vice-Chairman of the State Peace and Development Council Vice-Senior General Maung Aye themselves made field trips right down to villages where relief camps were set up and consoled the storm victims and fulfilled the requirements of officials who were engaged in relief and rehabilitation endeavours. This has highlighted the goodwill of the government toward the people.

To sum up, the storm victims in Ayeyawady and Yangon Divisions have now been able to enjoy the food, cloth and shelter needs through the contributions of the government, national people of various strata and the international community including the United Nations and they will be able to enhance their socio-economic life in the very near future.

Castro says ruling party has no internal struggle

HAVANA, 23 June—Former Cuban leader Fidel Castro said Saturday that there was no internal struggle within the ruling party.

In an article published on the Cuban official website Cubadebate, Castro said he could not make a conclusion that the island nation’s Communist Party has an internal struggle, as he is not and will not be the head of any faction or group. Castro said his remarks on the European Union (EU)’s decision to lift sanctions against Cuba did not cause divergence among the leadership.

In a previous article published on the Internet Friday, he accused the 27-nation bloc of “enormous hypocrisy” and called its actions “disparaging”.

“I wrote the article because I am still fighting, I did this in the name of the faith for which I have defended in my lifetime,” Castro said.

The EU agreed Thursday to lift its five-year-old sanctions against Cuba, which include limits on high-level official visits and the role of EU diplomats in Cuba’s cultural events. But the bloc also demanded the country improve its human rights record.

Castro, 81, has not been seen in public since he was ill two years ago. He resigned as president in February this year, leaving the post to Raul Castro.

Microsoft targets engineers at Yahoo

LOS ANGELES, 23 June—Microsoft intensified its recruitment campaign on Saturday to woo Yahoo’s technical talent as turmoil in Yahoo intensified with a stream of new reports about departing executives.

“There is just great search talent here,” said Doug Free, a Microsoft spokesman, who noted that the company has been expanding in the Silicon Valley for years.

Microsoft Chief Executive Steve Ballmer may have given up on the idea of acquiring all of Yahoo, but he still wants Yahoo’s technical talent and is fighting hard to get it, sources at Microsoft said.

Free said Microsoft currently controls about one million square feet of office space in the San Francisco Bay Area. He said Microsoft plans to keep adding both square feet and employees. Nearly 2,000 people work for Microsoft in Silicon Valley.

Acquiring Yahoo would have given Microsoft about 5,000 engineers and about two million square feet in additional Bay Area real estate.

Microsoft withdrew its offer for Yahoo on 3 May, after raising its bid to around 47.5 billion dollars. Yahoo said the bid undervalued its business and subsequently rejected a follow-up proposal by Microsoft to buy Yahoo’s search business. Instead, Yahoo announced last week it would outsource some search advertising to Google.

Recruiting experts said Yahoo’s decision sent the wrong message to its search engineers and created an opportunity for Microsoft.—MNA/Xinhua

Expert says world not fully prepared for flu pandemic

KUALA LUMPUR, 23 June—The world is far from being fully prepared for a flu pandemic, a leading US infectious diseases expert said on Saturday, warning there were big gaps in surveillance and basic knowledge.

Experts have long warned that the H5N1 bird flu virus could trigger the next pandemic and kill millions of people if it becomes easily transmissible among humans.

“We are a long way from being fully prepared. We do not have a vaccine that will provide universal protection.

We don’t have surveillance in every country. We don’t have control of the virus in animal reservoirs,” said Julie Gerberding, director of the US Centres for Disease Control and Prevention.

“We have huge gaps in our basic understanding of influenza and what will be the trigger that allows it to move onto its next host and potentially become more transmissible among humans,” she told a news conference in Kuala Lumpur on the sidelines of an infectious diseases conference.

H5N1 remains essentially a disease among birds. But while it has infected only 385 people around the world since late 2003, it has killed 243 of them, World Health Organization (WHO) figures show.

Humans have no natural immunity against it and any pandemic caused by this virus is widely expected to be catastrophic.

More Swedish students eye Asia for studying overseas

STOCKHOLM, 23 June—An increasing number of Swedish students have travelled to Asia to pursue their studies overseas in the past five years, local media reported Friday.

According to Torbjorn Lindqvist, an inspector with Sweden’s Higher Education Bureau, only 400 students from the Nordic country went to Asia to further their studies during the 2001-2002 school year.

But the number more than quadrupled during 2006-2007, reaching 1,700 and accounting for one seventh of the Swedish students studying abroad.

Lindqvist said Asia’s fast economic growth led by China and India is the main reason for many Swedish students to choose it for their further studies overseas, Lindqvist said, adding that Asia has become an important market for Sweden.

Garuda Indonesia, SIA start sharing journeys

JAKARTA, 23 June—Flag carrier Garuda Indonesia and Singapore Airlines (SIA) have signed an agreement under which the carriers will benefit from joint marketing and promotion, code sharing and special rate agreements.

The two airlines will begin the code sharing with an additional daily flight between Denpasar and Singapore starting 2 August.

Initially, the SIA will assume the role of operator by providing the flight, while Garuda will act as marketer and sell the seats. In the future, the companies will share the services, the English-language daily The Jakarta Post reported Saturday.

The memorandum of understanding was signed Friday in Jakarta by Garuda Indonesia president Emirsyah Satar and SIA chief executive officer Chew Choon Seng. “The industry has become more competitive and the increasing fuel price has put extra pressure on us, so we have to cooperate to increase efficiency and service (quality),” Emirsyah said.

The new flight will increase Garuda’s capacity, as passengers from Saigon or Beijing can go directly to Bali from Singapore.

Currently, Garuda operates 11 flights per week for the Denpasar-Singapore route, while SIA operates eight per week.—MNA/Xinhua

French PM hails “transformation” in Algeria ties
Algiers, 23 June—France and former colony Algeria signed defence and civil nuclear power accords on Saturday in a move described by Paris as a sign of a “transformation” in the countries’ ties.

Making the first visit by a French premier in 22 years, Prime Minister Francois Fillon declared French firms would not be driven out of the north African country by armed groups, following the death of a Frenchman in a bombing this month.

“We will not give in to threats,” El Watan newspaper quoted him as saying in an interview marking his two-day visit to France’s largest trading partner in Africa, which still suffers sporadic attacks by rebels fighting for purist Islamic rule.

Al-Qaeda’s north African wing said it was behind twin bombings that killed a French engineer in Algeria on 8 June east of Algiers and vowed more attacks against “Crusaders”.

Mohamed Hassan Al-Mujammam, head of safety and flight operations in Sudan’s Civil Aviation Authority (CAA), said the suspension had nothing to do with a Sudan Airways crash earlier this month which killed 30 people at Khartoum airport.

“The air operator certificate is hereby suspended from Monday,” he told Reuters.

He cited violations such as the general manager doing two jobs and a failure to operate operations manuals as required.

Hizbollah says not to disarm even if Israel quits Shebaa
BEIRUT, 23 June—A Hizbollah-allied lawmaker said the Shiite militant group will not give up its arms even if Israel pulls out of the Shebaa Farms in south Lebanon, local daily Al-Akhbar reported Friday.

“Any Zionist withdrawal from Shebaa Farms would be a big achievement for the resistance, and would be the outcome of its role and pressures,” Hizbollah MP Hassan Fadlallah was quoted as saying.

Hizbollah was the only Lebanese group which did not have to hand over its weapons in 1989, according to the Taef accord which ended Lebanon’s 15 years of civil war.

Hizbollah has been holding onto its arms despite the pretext of resisting Israel and liberating all Lebanese territories.

Asian doctors warn parents over HFMD

KUALA LUMPUR, 23 June— Doctors warned parents in Asia on Friday not to take hand, foot and mouth disease (HFMD) lightly as it is increasingly associated with complications like encephalitis, which can be fatal. HFMD affects mainly children under 10 years old. In the past, it was mostly caused by the coxsackievirus A16 and complications were rare. But another little-known agent, enterovirus 71 (EV71), has crept onto the scene over the past 10 years in Asia, experts told an infectious disease conference in Kuala Lumpur. “The ecology has changed and this has become a very important pathogen (infectious agent) in this part of the world, especially for HFMD, and people have to realize that,” said MH Ooi, an expert on the disease at Universiti Malaysia Sarawak. “Children may have a few days of skin rash, yet they can collapse suddenly of cardio-respiratory failure. The disease can progress very fast. We have seen patients die at home and in GP clinics. It’s very traumatic for parents and doctors.”

Ooi and his colleagues have been monitoring outbreaks of HFMD in Sarawak, Malaysia, since 2000. Sarawak suffered three outbreaks of HFMD involving a total of about 1,400 patients in 2000, 2003 and 2006. EV71 was the predominant cause in all three outbreaks, of which about 20 per cent resulted in complications involving inflammation of the brain. Ooi said. — MNA/Reuters

British prime minister Gordon Brown has committed Britain to getting 10 per cent of its electricity from renewable sources by 2010, and a real determination by the government plans for a “green revolution” to be set out next week. Energy Minister Malcolm Wicks said the plans, which may include measures to force homeowners to improve the energy efficiency of their homes, were aimed at dramatically increasing Britain’s energy supplies from renewables by 2020. “That is a green revolution.”

Brown said Britain gets less than 5 per cent of its electricity from renewables, mainly wind. The government has committed Britain to getting 10 per cent of all its energy from renewable sources by 2010, and under a European Union deal last year it is also committed to quadrupling that a decade later. — MNA/Reuters

Smokers offered food money if they quit

LONDON, 23 June— Smokers in deprived parts of one of Scotland’s biggest cities are being offered food vouchers worth 50 pounds a month if they give up smoking, the National Health Service said on Saturday. They will have to pass weekly carbon monoxide breath tests at their local chemist to prove that they have kicked the habit. NHS Tayside said. During the three month trial, they will receive money credited to a card that can be used to buy groceries. However, they won’t be able to use it to buy cigarettes or alcohol.

Paul Ballard, deputy director of public health with NHS Tayside, said he hoped the cash incentive would help persuade more people to try to stop smoking. “After Glasgow, Dundee probably has proportionally the biggest smoking problem in Scotland,” he told the Scotsman. “It’s going to cost around 1,200 pounds per person, but when you compare that to the cost of treating smoking-related diseases, then it is a drop in the ocean.” A similar scheme arranged for pregnant women in the area last year was a success, he added. — MNA/Reuters

Medvedev says Russia must act now on environment

MOSCOW, 23 June— Parts of Russia will be uninhabitable within the next three decades if the country does not take better care of the environment, Russian news agencies quoted President Dmitry Medvedev as saying on Saturday. Medvedev, addressing law students in his home city of St Petersburg, said Russians had been more concerned about survival than the environment in the 1990s.

“As a result, there are now many places in Russia on the brink of an adverse ecological situation,” agencies quoted Medvedev as saying in response to a question. “If we fail to deal with the ecological situation now, then in 10, 20, 30 years large parts of Russia will be unfit for life,” he said. — MNA/Reuters

Casillas thanks lucky stars after shootout victory

VIENNA, 23 June — Spain goalkeeper Iker Casillas has suffered the pain of a quarter-final penalty shootout defeat and he admitted that being on the winning side against Italy on Sunday was more a question of luck than judgement.

“Every player has good and bad experiences with penalties,” the Spain captain told reporters after his side’s Euro 2008 quarter-final victory over the world champions. “We knocked Italy out of the competition and lost to South Korea in the 2002 World Cup and this time we were lucky to go through. They are a complete lottery.”

A cagey, tactical duel at the Ernst Happel stadium went to penalties after extra-time ended 0-0. Casillas saved spot kicks from Daniele De Rossi and Antonio Di Natale and although Spain striker Dani- el Guiza missed his, Luiz Aragones’s side went through 4-2 with Cesc Fabregas netting the final penalty. — MNA/Reuters

Spain win shootout to reach semis at last

VIENNA, 23 June — Spain beat Italy 4-2 on penalties after a goalless Euro 2008 quarter-final on Sunday to end their shootout hoodoo and reach the last four of a major tournament for the first time in 24 years.

They will now face Russia, who they thrashed 4-1 in their opening group game, thanks to substitute midfielder Cesc Fabregas who scored the decisive spot kick after Iker Casillas had saved two of Italy’s penalties. It is the first time Spain have reached the last four since they got to the European Championship final in 1984 and came after they had lost three previous quarter-final shootouts in major tournaments, all on 22 June.

The victory was also their first over Italy at a major tournament outside the Olympic Games. — MNA/Reuters

Turkey still have 50-50 chance of making final

VIENNA, 23 June — Injury and suspensions may have wreaked havoc on Turkey’s squad but they still have a 50-50 chance of beating Germany in Wednesday’s semi-final in Basel. Midfielder Hamit Altintop said on Sunday.

“Germany are the favourites but we have a good team and if we continue as we started we have a lot of self-belief,” he told reporters at a training session.

“We are not worried about the injuries and suspensions. We have other good players who will give them all and, let’s be frank, when you are in the semi-final of course you want to play in the final. I think the chances are 50/50.”

The Turks’ never-say-die attitude has brought some thrilling finales to their matches. They beat Croatia on penalties in their quarter-final on Friday after equalising with the last kick in extra time following a late Croatian goal. — MNA/Reuters

Donadoni’s future to be discussed soon

VIENNA, 23 June — Roberto Donadoni’s position as Italy coach will be discussed in the coming days after the world champions were eliminated in the Euro 2008 quarter-finals on Sunday. Italian soccer federation chief Giancarlo Abete said.

Italy stuttered through the tournament and lost 4-2 on penalties to Spain after a 0-0 draw. Donadona, who took over from Marcello Lippi after the 2006 World Cup triumph, signed a two-year contract extension just before the tournament but an escape clause allows the coach or the federation to terminate the deal now. “After the game, not right after the game, we will assess the Euro campaign and decide what will happen,” Abete told a news conference. — MNA/Reuters

Decisive late goals’ send UAE, Qatar through

BANGKOK, 23 June — Qatar and the United Arab Emirates grabbed the remaining places in the final round of World Cup qualifiers with late goals in their decisive matches on Sunday.

Qatar kept alive their dreams of reaching the finals and buried those of Iraq when Sayd Ali Bechir scored with a header 13 minutes from time to clinch the second qualifying spot behind Australia, with Iraq needing only a draw to advance.

The UAE’s passage to the final round also went right to the wire, with Ismail Matar’s 80th-minute spot kick putting them through on goal difference at the expense of part-timers Syria. “We didn’t take the chances that came our way and nearly paid for it,” said UAE’s French coach Bruno Metsu.

Briton quizzed over burning body-in-suitcase murder

London, 23 June — Detectives were questioning a man on suspicion of murder on Saturday after a woman’s body was found dumped in a blazing suitcase by the side of a main road, police said.

A truck driver rang 999 after spotting flames coming from a lay-by on the A1301 near the village of Hinxton in south Cambridgeshire, about 40 miles northeast of London.

Police named the victim as Rahmona Ahmedin, 23, a Swedish national who lived in London. She was reported missing last Saturday.

“She had been placed in a suitcase which was then set alight,” a police spokesman said. A post mortem examination found she had died from a stab wound to the chest. The Metropolitan Police said a 24-year-old man was arrested on Friday after walking into a south London police station.
