Boost production of quality products for industrial development

Industrial development is at the core of the drive for building a modern nation. With this concept, plans are under way for development of the agriculture sector and agro-based industries to strengthen the economy of the nation.

Thanks to the government’s encouragement to establish industrial zones and industrial regions, a large number of modern factories and import-substitute product factories have emerged throughout the country. Cumulative development in the industrial sector has led to establishment of more and more factories and workshops in the industrial regions. As a result, industrial zones and industrial regions have gained many new production methods and created job opportunities.

The number of factories and workshops of the industrial zones in Yangon Division is on the rise. All the factories and workshops need to run at full capacity.

Huge investments are being made in Shwepyitha Industrial Zone to construct a great number of factories. A factory producing bulbs and fluorescent lamps has launched its production since 2000. Now, it produces more than 11 million fluorescent lamps a year.

The wood-based industrial zone in Shwepyitha Township produces finished wood-based products and furniture. Some companies in the zone are now producing new items designed to build houses for the people in the storm-hit areas.

The industrial regions and zones are spreading their wings to boost production of vehicles, machines, personal goods, medicines and foodstuff. That is a sign of industrial development. Industrialists on their part should place more emphasis on innovative measures to produce and distribute quality products and low-cost products extensively in order to meet the demands in markets and win the customer satisfaction.

Half of UK forces 'ready to quit'

LONDON, 10 July—Almost half of UK military personnel are ready to leave the forces, a Ministry of Defence survey suggests.

Some 47% of Army and Royal Navy respondents and 44% of those in the RAF said they regularly felt like quitting. Among the concerns raised by the 9,000 servicemen and women surveyed were the frequency of tours, levels of pay and the quality of equipment and housing. The Ministry of Defence said the survey revealed "areas of concern".

The first survey to assess attitudes across the Army, Royal Navy, Royal Marines and the RAF revealed high levels of concern over morale, equipment and pay. The Regular Army is already short of some 5,000 soldiers, amid worries that experienced young officers and senior NCOs are leaving at an increasing rate. A sense of overstretched was reflected in all three services, with 36% saying they were not happy with the level of separation from family and friends.—Internet

Northwest cuts jobs and ups fees

MINNESOTA, 10 July—Minnesota-based Northwest Airlines is to cut 2,500 jobs because of the "unprecedented" rise in the cost of jet fuel, the company said.

It is the latest carrier to reduce its operations after the price of fuel doubled in the last year. The cuts amount to 8% of Northwest's total workforce and will hit both frontline staff and management. The airline, which is about to merge with Delta, is also introducing a fee for the first bag checked in.

Northwest passengers will have to pay $15 for their first piece of luggage. Fees to change tickets will also rise.

The airline expects to earn up to $300m ($150m) a year from the new and higher charges.

Delta Air Lines and Northwest Airlines have both recorded multi-billion dollar losses for the first three months of 2008, hit by crippling fuel costs.

With the US economy on the brink of recession, Delta Air Lines — like most of its domestic rivals — has a tough time filling internal flights and plans to aggressively scale these back.—Internet

Attacks kill US soldier, 20 Iraqis

BAGHDAD, 10 July — Several bombings and attacks by gunmen Wednesday killed 20 Iraqis and a US soldier, officials said.

A suicide car bomber killed eight civilians and wounded 41 in an attack on a military convoy carrying a senior Iraqi commander in the northern city of Mosul, the Iraqi military said.

In the former Sunni Arab insurgent stronghold of Fallouja, west of Baghdad, a bomb exploded outside a bank, killing four policemen and a civilian and wounding 15, Iraqi police said. An initial blast occurred at 6:30 am, drawing police and onlookers to the site, then a second bomb detonated, causing the casualties, police said.

In Samarra, north of Baghdad, a bomb hit a US convoy, killing one American soldier and wounding two, the US military reported.

In Baghdad’s western Abu Ghraib neighborhood, a gunman entered a mosque late Wednesday and opened fire on worshippers, killing six and wounding eight, a police official said. Iraqi forces were searching for the gunman.

Assailants killed a policeman in a drive-by shooting in Mosul, where many insurgents are believed to have relocated after facing intense military pressure in Baghdad and other urban centers.

Police in Ramadi, west of Baghdad, said workers rebuilding a school had discovered 22 bodies, most of them under concrete in a playing field. Police said the remains were believed to have been buried more than a year ago.—Internet

US military deaths in Iraq war at 4,116

Dutch cat suckles abandoned panda

AMSTERDAM, 10 July—A Dutch tabby cat has adopted a red panda cub, which was abandoned by its mother at a zoo in the Netherlands.

The panda, Gladys, rejected two cubs after they were born on 30 June. The Artis zoo in Amsterdam initially kept them both on an incubator. But the zookeeper’s cat had just given birth to four kittens, and allowed the pandas to join the litter. One of the cubs died last week. Red pandas are a rare species only distantly related to giant pandas.

When fully grown, they are not much bigger than a domestic cat.

“The young panda is doing well in the circumstances,” the zoo said in a statement.

“For it to survive, it is very important that it gets enough food and grows. We will see if this is the case over the next few weeks.”

The cub does not have a name yet, but the zoo says that anyone willing to sponsor her will be allowed to name her.

The red panda is an endangered species that lives in Himalayan regions in China, Bhutan, Nepal, India, and Myanmar.

Pakistan rejects foreign troops

NEW YORK, 10 July—Pakistan’s top diplomat Wednesday rejected the idea of any foreign troops operating inside Pakistan, reinforcing its refusal to accept US military aid in battling insurgents near the Afghan border.

Pakistan Foreign Minister Shah Mahmood Qureshi’s comments during a UN Security Council session on Afghanistan’s future could deal a blow to the United States’ efforts to kill or capture al Qaeda leaders.

“Pakistan will not allow its territory to be used against other countries. However, no foreign troops will be allowed to operate inside Pakistan,” Qureshi told the 15-nation council. “The new democratic government in Pakistan cannot but be sensitive to the sentiments of our people.”—Internet

United Nations Secretary-General’s message on World Population Day (11 July 2008)

Forty years ago, world leaders proclaimed that individuals have a basic right to determine freely and responsibly the number and timing of their children. Millennium Development Goal 5, improving maternal health, affirms this right and yet shows the least progress to date. On World Population Day, let us focus on the critical importance of family planning if we are to successfully achieve the Millennium Development Goals.

The rate of death for women as they give birth remains the starkest indicator of the disparity between rich and poor, both within and among countries. We already know what needs to be done to meet the basic health needs of women throughout their life cycle, especially during the reproductive years. We also know what works to reduce maternal mortality and achieve universal access to reproductive health by 2015. Let us devote greater attention and resources to the work to improve the health and quality of life for all people.—UN

Three suicide bombers enter Pakistan’s capital

ISLAMABAD, 10 July—Three suicide bombers have entered Pakistan’s capital Islamabad to target important political and religious personalities, Daily Times reported on Wednesday.

Pakistan’s Interior Ministry has banned the holding of rallies and processions near sensitive places in Islamabad, the newspaper said.

Meanwhile, the security has also been beefed up in eastern Pakistan’s Punjab Province following reports of the presence of explosive-laden vehicles in the province.

The whole Pakistan has been placed under a state of “high alert” following a suicide bombing in Islamabad over the weekend after a rally marking the first anniversary of the government’s raid on the Lal Masjid (Red Mosque), and a series of seven blasts in Karachi on Monday.

The blasts are considered to be a setback for local militants for the government’s military operation in northwestern Pakistan’s tribal areas.—MNA/Xinhua

D-8 countries support to speed accession of Iran into WTO

KUALA LUMPUR, 10 July—The Developing 8 countries (D-8) reaffirmed their support of the speedy accession of Iran into the World Trade Organization (WTO), the grouping said in a declaration adopted here on Tuesday.

International financial and trade system is an important component of international cooperation and should be fair, transparent and non-discriminatory, according to the Kuala Lumpur Declaration adopted at the end of the 6th D-8 Summit.

It should take into account the differences in the conditions of developing countries, particularly in ensuring equal access into the global economy and international economic organizations, the declaration said.

“In this context we reaffirm our full support of the speedy accession of the Islamic Republic of Iran into the WTO,” it noted.

“We consider this summit as a turning point in history of D-8 cooperation while celebrating the 10 Year Anniversary of the organization adopting the 10 year Roadmap and other basic documents to enhance cooperation and solidarity among ourselves,” the declaration said.—MNA/Xinhua

S Korea seeks 7-year jail term for ex-Samsung head

SEOUL, 10 July—South Korean prosecutors demanded on Thursday a seven-year jail term for former Samsung Group (SAGR.UL) chief Lee Kun-hee, who is facing trial on charges of tax evasion and breach of trust, Yonhap News reported.

They also sought a 350 billion won ($350 million) fine from Lee, one of South Korea’s most influential businessmen, who led the country’s biggest conglomerate for nearly 20 years.

Lee would likely escape any prolonged jail time because judges have often been lenient towards corporate leaders convicted of white collar crimes on the view putting them behind bars could hurt South Korea’s economy, analysts said.

World Food Day 2008 theme meaningful

ROME, 10 July—Rarely has World Food Day assumed greater meaning than at the present time, as rapidly rising food prices risk increasing the number of hungry people, the UN Food and Agriculture Organization (FAO) said on Monday.

World Food Security, the challenges of Climate Change and Bioenergy, is the theme of this year’s World Food Day on 16 October, the day that FAO was founded in Quebec City in 1945, and now observed annually in some 150 countries.

With the number of undernourished people currently estimated at more than 850 million, high food prices are not only putting at greater risk the hungry but those also on the brink of poverty, according to FAO.

The implications of soaring food prices and related issues were considered at the recent High-level Conference on World Food Security, involving the UN Secretary-General, 181 governments and 41 Heads of State or Government, that took place at FAO headquarters from 3 to 5 June.

Last December, FAO also launched an Initiative on Soaring Food Prices, to help farmers in some of the poorest countries through the provision of seeds, fertilizers, and other tools they need to boost agricultural production for the coming planting seasons through 2009.

“Special” flight checks to be made ahead of Olympics

BEIJING, 10 July—Civil Aviation Administration of China (CAAC) announced on Monday to start “special” security checks at 19 airports to guarantee a safe Olympic Games. The CAAC said “special” checks would start from 20 July, but did not detail the checks. The 19 airports would include the Beijing Capital International Airport, airports in Xinjiang Uygar Autonomous Region and Tibet Autonomous Region as well as airports of other 15 cities, including five Olympic co-host cities on the Chinese Mainland—Shanghai, Qingdao, Tianjin, Shan- yang and Qinhuangdao. This was CAAC’s latest move to better protect flight safety after the administra- tion banned liquids, lighters and matches from carry-on luggage on board and required passengers in the country to remove their shoes for safety checks.

Russian AF to equip new generation fighter jets in 2013

MOSCOW, 10 July—The Russian Air Force is expecting to put into service the new fifth-generation fighter jet in 2013, the Air Force commander Colonel General Alexander Zelin said on Monday following the test flight of a new type of fighter jet.

“We will begin test flights (of the new fighter) in 2009, and hope to receive the aircraft in 2013,” RIA Novosti news agency quoted Zelin as saying.

The new fighter aircraft, tentatively designated as the Sukhoi PAK FA or T-50, will be built at the Komsomolsk-on-Amur aircraft manufacturing plant in Russia’s Far East, RIA said.

The two-engine F-35 fighter is expected to be more swift and stealthy to ensure air superiority and precision in destroying ground and sea targets.

Observers say that the PAK FA fighter was designed to compete with the United State’s F-22 Raptor and F-35 Lightning II, the world’s first fifth-generation fighter jets.

Dutch girls to be vaccinated against cervical cancer

Brussels, 10 July - As of September 2009, all 12 years old girls in the Netherlands will be vaccinated against the human papilloma virus (HPV), which is responsible for most cervical cancer cases. Dutch paper Algemeen Dagblad reported on Wednesday.

Dutch Health Minister Ab Klink had announced the government decision on Tuesday. He said he also wants to lunch a catch up vaccination programme for girls between the ages of 13 and 16.

The HPV vaccine should be included in the national vaccination programme so that it is offered free to every, the minister said.

HIV is a sexually transmitted disease and responsible for 70 per cent of cervical cancer cases, according to the Algemeen Dagblad report. The vaccine must be administered before a girl becomes sexually active.
Natural disaster, irresponsible media and global opportunists

Hlaing Aung

When a natural disaster occurs, a lot of people have to run into trouble. Particularly, developing countries with poor economy are vulnerable to such a disaster facing loss and damage in great numbers as they are weak in their preventive measures and preparedness.

Although the disaster-hit countries have to be in trouble, reporters on their part, as the situation is a great opportunity for them, try to cover and write the disaster news amid many difficulties such as battered transportation, debris and health problems. When they have no chance at all, they gather all pieces of less important news, add the things that can happen in the face of a disaster to the news and write make-up news stories in order to catch the reader’s attention.

Generally, man is more interested in bad news than in good news. So priority is given to writing tragic news from a disaster-hit place. When the news about a natural disaster that has happened in a coastal area comes out, such news usually features scenes of dead bodies, carcasses of cattle and animals floating in the water, scenes of public scare about infectious diseases, scenes of survivors disconsolately sitting in the debris with no shelters and food and scenes of victims in great trouble as relief and rescue teams have not reached them yet. A few days later, news is written again featuring the young children with diarrhea, dysentery and encephalitis and deaths of tens of thousands of people due to the diseases.

News writings also describe that the disaster victims are becoming disheartened with no hope to stand on their own feet and that their situation will worsen if outside assistance such as medicine, expertise and relief workers does not come in bulk immediately.

Such news stories are written on an incidental basis. In practice, make-up and imaginative news stories are contrary to prevailing objective conditions, says WHO, an organization that studies and analyzes the occurrences of natural disasters. On a page of its website titled “Myth Vs Reality”, the WHO has described in detail that make-up and imaginative writings are contrary to prevailing objective conditions.

The first point is that it is not true that disease can be infected from a dead body. Second, accepting the idea of suffering infectious diseases following a natural disaster is not true. The most important thing is to keep oneself personally hygienic and give public health education, says WHO.

Another point is that as regard the coming of foreign doctors, nurses and medical teams, if local communities concerned could have taken first aid measures, the disaster-hit region only needs specialists to give follow-up treatment. WHO argues the point that international aids should arrive as soon as possible is not true, either. Without thorough analysis of needs, immediate international aids may cause a complicated situation, WHO points out. It is better to render international assistance only after thorough needs analysis.

It is not also true that the people of disaster-hit regions are in fear and helpless. Indeed, people always try their utmost to overcome any difficulties in times of emergency.

The above-mentioned points are only some of the WHO’s explanations on its website. Such points can usually be seen as news stories whenever a natural disaster happens. Let alone the cyclone Nargis that hit Myanmar, invented news stories were written and broadcast in the storm that hit Bangladesh in 1991 causing about 150,000 deaths and in the storm that hit India in 1999 leaving 3,000 dead.

News reports described that in the aftermath of the Bangladeshi storm, skinny child victims with hollow eyes were waiting with empty bowls and containers for water and food but no one came up to help them. If international aids would not arrive, tens of thousands of survivors would have died soon. In the aftermath of the Indian storm also, news stories reported that the victims had nothing to eat and drink for four or five days and had to drink sea water as no one appeared to help them.

All news stories about the natural disasters reported that severe diseases would occur, there was mismanagement of governments, international aids were misappropriated and famine would break out as crop plantations were washed away.

Actually, all mediamen have had their codes of conduct such as fairness of news writings without bias, accuracy, reliability and honesty. The value of a news report is its accuracy. False news is not news, indeed. It is a slander as well as a rumour. It is not the essence of news although the ability to catch the reader’s attention and to get the scoop is important.

However, newspapers and journals are economically dependent upon the readers. Their main aim is to have a lot of readers. So news writers write their news stories highlighting tragic news if the readers want to know and see the troubled people from disaster-hit regions.

In hunting such news, there might be transport difficulties, barriers and other limitations to travel to the disaster-hit areas. Encountering those difficulties, news writers created news stories based on a guess about what might usually happen in a natural disaster to make the public readers heartbroken.

If their fictions were good enough to catch the public attention, they could even win Pulitzer Prize. It was a shame that a news report about a young person who fell prey to heroin carried in The Washington Post by correspondent Janet Cooke in 1981 was disclosed as a fabrication only after the winning of Pulitzer Prize. Other world’s famous publications such as the Times and the New York Times have lost their face for their make-up news photos, stolen news stories and mock interviews.

When cyclone Nargis occurred in Myanmar, a correspondent of the New York Times based in Bangkok, Thailand, created news stories about the farmers of the storm-affected villages of Pyapon, Kawhmu and Dedaye Townships starving as they had nothing to eat and outbreaks of diarrhoea by mentioning that the news reports were collected from such-and-such person of such-and-such village.

No wonder, such news stories are not reliable. Even if the news a journalist has covered is a true story and he wants to release it, he has to take into consideration whether the news might adversely affect the persons who are involved in the event. Maybe, the news will serve the interests of the majority of the people, but that should not harm the dignity and interest of the involved persons. Out of desire to get scoops, some journalists ignore their social obligations.

For instance, when Sudan came under starvation in 1994, the photo of an unknown photo journalist Kevin Carter of South Africa shocked the world, and he won Pulitzer Prize for that photo. The photo showed a very hungry and weak child aged about two or three years trying with great difficulties to stand up after he had fallen down to the ground on his way to the food supply camp, while a vulture was resting on the ground near him with the hope of food.

(See page 7)
Natural disaster, irresponsible media and global opportunists

Kevin Carter took about 20 minutes to get a photo of the vulture spreading its wings. But, the vulture did not make any movement, and he took the photo as the child and vulture were at that time. He admitted that after taking the photo, he was abusing marijuana sitting under a tree without giving any help to the helpless child. No one knew whether the miserable child reached the food supply camp. The New York Times bought the photo and released it as a news photo, and the photo became worldwide well-known. Kevin Carter won Pulitzer Prize. Some praised him, whereas many criticized that he was even crueler than the vulture because he ignored the hungry child in order to get a good photo. Despite winning the prize, he felt very depressed and committed suicide shortly thereafter.

Therefore, journalists are under social obligations in writing and releasing news stories about natural disasters. If a journalist takes photos of and writes unpleasant scenes only with the intention of tarnishing the image of a government or a nation, there will be a great gap between the news and the truth. And if such a news story has an impact on the goodwill of the donors, that will harm the interests of the storm victims. If a journalist makes up a news story and releases it, he is an inhumane journalist.

It goes without saying that there have been so many invented and exaggerated news stories, photos and video tapes about the storm ‘Nargis’ that hit Myanmar. There was an excuse that why such made-up stories came out was due to poor transport resulting from the natural disaster and the government’s prohibition on international journalists. Actually, some unscrupulous journalists collected only fabricated news stories with the intention of tarnishing the image of the nation.

Many of the expatriates as well as political opportunists who committed anti-government movements and absconded abroad are working for the radio stations under the control or influence of the governments of western countries. So, I would say such radio stations are not in a position to release news without partiality.

The majority of Myanmar people who catch up with the prevailing situations do not believe such news. However, the exaggerated news stories somewhat made persons who do not have any knowledge about Myanmar misunderstand the situations. Some unscrupulous elements took advantage of that point by claiming that the government prohibited international relief supplies, neglecting hundreds of thousands of storm victims, so the government committed massacre; that so the Myanmar government should be put on trial; and that under humanitarian duties, force should be used. In truth, some politicians from the countries of the West Bloc exploited the sufferings of storm victims for political gains.

The majority of the developed countries often claim humanitarianism, but in practice their assistance is a pittance for lives. Powerful countries have spent hundreds of billions of dollars on the Iraqi and Afghanistan war, a pittance for lives” that appeared in 15-5-1991 issue of a newspaper.

Powerful countries have spent hundreds of billions of dollars on the Iraqi and Afghanistan issue. How much will they spend on rehabilitation of the victims of the storm ‘Nargis’?

Myanmar people are accepting relief supplies donated with generosity. Why I pointed out that is just to let them know that Myanmar people are not artless. It is because I just want to point out the nature of some big countries, not because of my being ungrateful to their assistance.

Every country is preoccupied with their internal affairs, but they have shown their humanitarianism. So, the victims could continue to survive, staying in the tents and consuming instant noodle and purified water. Myanmar people will never forget their assistance.

Myanmar people will have to try their best to rise from the catastrophe and stand on their own feet in the long run.

Now, thanks to the efforts the government, the people and the Tatmadaw are exerting in concert, victims no longer need to stay in public rest houses, prayer halls of pagodas, and monasteries en masse and they have owned durable houses roofed with corrugated iron sheets. They are ploughing fields that were flooded with seawater, with Leya-16 brand power-tillers. Fishermen are having a good time with new fishing boats and fishing nets. Ravaged school buildings have been reconstructed, and those schools are now lively with voices of studies.

However much internal elements who are unhappy with national development and place too much reliance on their masters, and political opportunists are hatching plots, the entire people will continue to work hard in the interests of the nation and their own in accordance with the sermon of Shwehintha Sayadaw:

“In serving public interests
Do not deviate from own way
Because of slanders
Just carry it on”.

Participation of Inland Water Transport in rehabilitation tasks

Thanks to the harmonious efforts of the government, the people and the Tatmadaw, the remarkable success has been achieved in a short time in carrying out rehabilitation tasks by overcoming hardships caused by the storm.

Managing Director U Soe Tint of Inland Water Transport

In taking the rehabilitation measures, the Inland Water Transport under the Ministry of Transport significantly showed off departmental capabilities. Under the supervision of Minister for Transport Maj-Gen Thein Swe, Managing Director U Soe Tint of IWT together with departmental personnel strove for undertaking the salvage of sunken vessels and tub boats and pulling back of the boats washed ashore by the storm, transport of relief supplies and rehabilitation tasks in addition to carrying out the passenger transport and ensuring speedy flow of commodities. As a result, the Inland Water Transport resumed its functions as usual in a short time.

In an interview, Managing Director U Soe Tint of IWT explained, “Yangon-Dalla passenger boats resumed their runs on 4 May after the storm. Ferry boats are transporting about 30,000 passengers per day. The arrangements were made to enable the boats to transport the passengers to go to their works daily. At the same time, workers of the department made efforts for salvage of sunken boats and pulling back of vessels and tub boats from the banks, and the plans were realized to promptly resume the runs.”

The IWT has been making managements for running of 305 vessels with engines and without engines and these vessels yearly transported 25 million passengers and 4 million tons of commodities on average. Up to now, the transport fare of the vessels has been fixed at one mile per K 3 for passengers and at one mile per K 6 for one ton of cargo. In the passenger transport of ferry boats, the department fixed the fare at K 10 per head. Indeed, the government has been spending a large amount of money on running of vessels to ensure smooth transport of the passengers.

The IWT saved money and time in salvaging the sunken vessels. By applying the systems of inflating the tyres beside the vessels and lifting the vessels, the salvage work could be undertaken as quickly and safely as possible, we all are striving for the salvage of sunken vessels.

Minister for Transport Maj-Gen Thein Swe inspects new pontoons to be transported to Pyapon, Bogale, Mawlamyinegyun and Labutta.

Managing Director U Soe Tint continued to explain, “Among 40 sunken vessels and 32 vessels that were washed ashore, a total of eight sunken vessels and tub boats have so far been salvaged from the water and 32 vessels were pulled back into the water from the banks. Service personnel and workers from the branches of the department, namely, Ayeyawady Branch (Mandalay), Chindwin Branch (Monywa), Rakhine Branch (Sitway) and Thanlwin Branch (Maw-lamyine), Yangon-based Delta Branch and the Commodities Transport Branch harmoniously participated in the salvage and pulling back of vessels with the use of 11 ships under Ayeyawady Branch.

In accord with the instructions of the Prime Minister who stressed the need to cooperate with private technicians in applying the best technology for undertaking the salvage task as quickly as possible, we all are realizing the aim of the work under the supervision of Minister for Transport Maj-Gen Thein Swe. I am conducting management for the salvages of the sunken vessels and rehabilitation of the storm victims with goodwill.”

The IWT has been sending its vessels to the storm-affected regions to conduct management of the salvages of the sunken vessels and tub boats. Therefore, it is necessary to spend the reasonable amount of money on salvage of sunken vessels and tub boats. However, it is necessary to sporadically carry out such salvages of the vessels and tub boats as almost all the vessels have successfully been pulled back into the water from the banks. All transport runs have resumed as usual. Likewise, buildings and dockyards of the department have been repaired. New pontoon jetties were located and the sunken jetties were salvaged,” said Managing Director U Soe Tint of IWT.

Russian, British leaders fail to thaw relations

Toyako (Japan), 10 July — The first meeting between Russian President Dmitry Medvedev and British Prime Minister Gordon Brown failed on Monday to thaw bilateral relations that are at their lowest point since the Cold War.

The meeting on the sidelines of the Group of Eight rich nations summit in Japan had fuelled hopes it could ease a row over a 38-billion-US-dollar oil joint venture, TNK-BP, or problems for Britain’s cultural outpost in Russia, the British Council.

Medvedev and Brown smiled and shook hands, praising great potential for Russian-British ties, but made no substantial headway in the thorny issues souring relations.

“The President proposed to focus on elevating relations to a normal level,” Medvedev’s chief foreign policy adviser Sergei Prikhodko told reporters.

“Brown outlined his own ideas about problems in bilateral ties, including the British Council, some major oil companies,” he said. “Medvedev gave explanations and drew Brown’s attention to the need to work out a long-term approach to cooperation.” — MNA/Reuters

Israel ends curfew on Palestinian town

Ramallah (West Bank), 10 July — Israel lifted on Tuesday a curfew it imposed last week on the Palestinian town of Nilin, where violent protests had erupted against Israel’s West Bank barrier.

“It was lifted early this morning,” a military spokeswoman said. “The villagers promised not to protest and to keep the village quiet.”

The town’s mayor confirmed the curfew, which was clamped on Nilin on Friday after violence erupted during protests at a barrier construction site, had ended and said the Israeli army had pulled out.

“We woke up and luckily we did not see their presence in all of the town and now we are inspecting the damage they have inflicted on us,” Mayor Ayman Nafi told Reuters by telephone. — MNA/Reuters

US, UK forces end Gulf exercise amid Iran threat

Dubai, 10 July — US and British naval forces wrapped up their military exercises in the Gulf on Tuesday and dismissed that they were related to tensions with Iran.

The exercises took place against a backdrop of high tensions between Iran and the West over Tehran’s nuclear activities.

Speculation about a possible attack on Iran has risen since a report last month said Israel had practised such a strike. Iran on Tuesday vowed to strike shipping in the world’s largest oil exporting region if it is attacked.

The US Fifth Fleet, which is based on the Gulf Arab island of Bahrain, said “Exercise Stake Net” took place in the central and southern Gulf and was part of ongoing training aimed at protecting the region’s oil infrastructure from any attack.

“This exercise is in no way related to reported tensions with Iran… Coalition exercises happen with a great deal of regularity.” Lieutenant Nathan Christensen, a Fifth Fleet spokesman, told Reuters by telephone. — MNA/Reuters

S Korea beef protests cost economy $2.5b

Seoul, 10 July — More than two months of protests in South Korea against a US beef deal and the policies of the new president have cost Asia’s fourth-largest economy about 2.5 billion US dollars, a study released on Tuesday said.

South Koreans have clogged the streets of central Seoul on a near-nightly basis since early May, in protests that have caused a crisis for President Lee Myung-bak and his four-month-old government.

The report, from the Korea Economic Research Institute, said the total damage to the economy was about 2.6 trillion won (2.52 billion US dollars).

The figure included 668.5 billion won in direct losses through lost sales, decreased production and public spending on items such as deploying police to the protests. — MNA/Reuters

G-8 frets over oil prices, to study averting spikes

Toyako (Japan), 10 July — The Group of Eight industrialized nations said on Tuesday they were very worried about soaring oil prices and pledged to create a forum that will discuss ways of avoiding future spikes.

The G-8 said the high costs of both oil and food threatened a global economy already facing uncertainty amid continuing economic strain.

Oil fell more than a dollar to below 140 US dollars a barrel on Tuesday, down from a record rally that elevated prices to an all-time high of 145.85 US dollars last week. It is still up almost 50 percent this year.

“We express our strong concern about elevated commodity prices, especially of oil and food, since they pose a serious challenge to stable growth worldwide, have serious implications for the most vulnerable and increase global inflationary pressure,” the G-8 said in a statement.

“Concerted efforts are needed to address the underlying causes for the benefit of all. On the supply side, production and refining capacities should be increased in the short term.”

At the behest of British Prime Minister Gordon Brown, leaders agreed to convene a world energy forum, which will be held in Japan this September to discuss energy efficiency and new technologies. Canada said the meeting would also address ways of avoiding future shocks. — MNA/Reuters

MEXICO CITY, 10 July—Mexico City’s police chief and its top prosecutor resigned after a botched disco raid killed 12 people last month, the capital’s mayor said on Tuesday, vowing a major overhaul of public security.

Police in the capital burst into the News Divine nightclub, which was packed with teen-agers celebrating the end of the school year, on 20 June in an operation to clamp down on underage drinking.

After an investigation into the deaths, Mayor Marcelo Bonomo went into details that Royal Jordanian Airline landed at 9:30 pm (0730 GMT) on 9 June, but actually extended the deadline until 11 July.

British police quiz man over murdered French students

LONDON, 10 July—British police were given extra time to question a man on Tuesday in their widening probe into the brutal murder of two French students killed last week in a frenzied knife attack and then burned in a London apartment.

The 33-year-old man turned himself in on Monday but was taken to hospital to receive treatment for severe burns before questioning began.

Detectives later said magistrates had granted them an extra 36 hours to quiz the suspect.

Bio-engineering students Laurent Bonomo and Gabriel Ferez, both 23, were bound, gagged and repeatedly stabbed in Bonomo’s south London apartment. Police called it the most frenzied, brutal and horrific murder they have investigated.

Bonomo was stabbed nearly 200 times, with up to 80 of the wounds inflicted after he was dead. Ferez had nearly 50 knife wounds. The killer or killers then set fire to the apartment in an attempt to destroy evidence.

It can also collect data and transmit reliable video images. The plane will work with the NDRC’s remote-sensing platforms to help facilitate the evaluation and relief work in disaster-hit sites.

909 killed, wounded in Afghan suicide blasts this year

KABUL, 10 July — A total of 909 people, including 712 civilians, have been killed or wounded in suicide blasts across Afghanistan this year, a NATO civilian spokesman said here Wednesday.

As many as 228 civilians were dead and 484 more were wounded in deadly suicide bombing attacks in the war-battered country in 2008, Mark Laity, NATO civilian spokesman in Kabul, told a news briefing.

Moreover, he said in the capital Kabul there were 255 casualties inflicted by suicide bombs this year, out of which 246 were civilians, including 54 killed and 192 injured.

Asked to comment on who might be responsible for the suicide attack on Indian Embassy in Kabul, Laity said the related investigation, as an Afghan presidential spokesman has said, is underway and “speculating on the outcome” before investigation is complete is “dangerous”, Peter Petronzio, Commanding Officer of US 24th Marine Expeditionary Unit (MEU), attended the news conference Wednesday to update reporters on the MEU mission in Garmir, a known logistic hub for Taliban-led militants in southern Afghanistan.

The 24th MEU with around 2,200 service members began counter-insurgency operation in Garmir District of Helmand Province on April 28 and since then have killed some 400 militants, Petronzio said, quoting figures from Helmand government officials.

According to an Indian government official, 23 Indians were killed and 55 wounded in the attack.
