Strive for success of modern farming

Agriculture sector plays extensive role in the economic growth of the country. The government is implementing plans to develop agriculture including reclamation of new land, availability of water for agricultural purpose, boosting per acre yield and production of high quality products.

Local farmers in cooperation with entrepreneurs are making endeavours to introduce modern farming after establishing agricultural zones in Dagon Myothit region, Yangon Division, which has a lot of fallow and vacant lands. Reclamation of lands, digging of canals and land preparations are being carried out with the use of heavy machinery.

If we study each region we will see agriculture contributes towards not only sufficiency of food but improvement of socio-economic life of the local farmers. The farmers will surely enjoy benefits through reclamation of fallow and virgin lands, cultivation of quality high-yield paddy strains and application of modern cultivation methods.

The government on its part is providing conducive environment for agricultural development through supply of adequate irrigation water, minimizing loss and wastage of crops, wide utilization of farm implements.

Considering the population and consumption, the country has rice surplus. However, continued efforts are to be made for boosting production of paddy like other rice-exporting countries.

It is needed to focus not only on paddy but also on other marketable crops such as beans and pulses, corn and sesame. Making use of the government’s assistance for agriculture, local farmers are to cultivate quality high-yield strains with the application of modern cultivation methods in order to develop national economy.

Three Iraqis killed, dozens injured in Baghdad bombings

BAGHDAD, 17 Dec—Three Iraqis were killed and 23 others injured in three attacks in Baghdad on Tuesday, an Interior Ministry source said.

A roadside bomb detonated in the afternoon near the convoy of Ra'ad Fahmi, Iraqi Minister of Sciences and Technology, while traveling near the rear gate of Babel Hotel in the Jadriya neighborhood in central Baghdad, the source told Xinhua on condition of anonymity.

It was unknown whether Fahmi was in the convoy during the attack, which wounded one of the minister’s bodyguards and two bystanders, the source said. In separate incident, a roadside bomb struck a police commando patrol near the University of Technology in the al-Sina’a street in eastern Baghdad, killing two policemen and a civilian and injuring 17 people, including two policemen, he said.

Also in the day, a roadside bomb went off near a police patrol close to the al-Andalus Square, injuring three policemen and two bystanders, he said, adding one of the patrol’s vehicles was damaged by the blast.

Despite security gains in recent months in Iraq, there are still sporadic bombings, which shape set back to the Iraqi government.

Afghan police say three die in checkpoint clash

KANDAHAR, 17 Dec—Taliban fighters killed two Afghan police officers in a checkpoint attack in southern Afghanistan, police said on Tuesday. One of the attackers also died.

Monday night’s attack occurred about 2 miles (3 kilometers) south of Helmand Province’s capital of Lashkar Gah, Police Chief Asadullah Shirzad said.

A British soldier was killed “as a result of enemy fire” in a separate incident in Helmand, according to a statement from Britain’s Defence Ministry. The ministry did not provide further details.

Also Monday, coalition and Afghan troops captured two local Taliban chiefs who had organized attacks in eastern Oruzgan Province, along with another militant the US military said in a statement. They were caught during a strike in the city of Jalalabad.

In central Oruzgan Province, three insurgents planting a bomb along a road were killed when the device exploded, the US military said in another statement.

Residents reported the blast to Afghan security forces, who discovered two bodies and a third man who later died after being taken to a US-led coalition medical facility for treatment, the statement said.

Afghan supply line fine, but drivers cite risk

BAGRAM AIR BASE, 17 Dec—Traveling in a convoy of 30 supply trucks escorted by security guards, the young Afghan driver hauled bottled water through Afghanistan’s dangerous south to a US outpost in Helmand Province.

Stanekzai then headed back to the main American base at Bagram—without an armed escort. Halfway home on the country’s main highway on Monday, he heard gunfire tear into his rig. He stepped on the gas and prayed.

“I was afraid. I was bracing for a rocket-propelled grenade, because they usually fire those, too, but fortunately they didn’t,” the 22-year-old said on Tuesday, standing beside his pockmarked truck.

Attacks are trying to put the squeeze on supplies reaching US and NATO troops, with attacks on trucks in both Afghanistan and the Khyber Pass of neighboring Pakistan. American commanders insist attacks have had a minimal impact, but they also say they are exploring new routes.

Canadian soldiers likely to face escalation of violence in Afghanistan

KANDAHAR, 17 Dec—‘There will be violence.’

That, in a nutshell, was the blunt assessment today of what Canadian troops both in Afghanistan and at home can expect in 2009 as Canada’s seven-year-old Afghan mission enters another uncertain new year. The warning came from Lieutenant-General Michel Gauthier, the head of the Canadian Expeditionary Force Command, or CEFCOM, after several days of meetings with military and political leaders in Afghanistan.

With an expected influx of US troops, the year ahead promises to be a rough one, Gauthier—the commanding officer for all Canadian soldiers deployed overseas—acknowledged in a frank discussion with reporters at Kandahar Airfield.

However, with the expected surge in troops and an anticipated uptick in violence will also come clear signs that the situation in Afghanistan is getting better, he predicted.

UN gives OK to land, air attacks on Somali pirates

UNITED NATIONS, 17 Dec—On the same day Somali gunmen seized two more ships, the UN Security Council voted unanimously on Tuesday to authorize nations to conduct land and air attacks on pirate bases on the coast of the Horn of Africa country.

Secretary of State Condoleezza Rice was on hand to push through the resolution, one of President George W Bush’s last major foreign policy initiatives.

Rice said the resolution will have a significant impact, especially since “pirates are adapting to the naval presence in the Gulf of Aden by traveling further” into sea lanes not guarded by warships sent by the US and other countries.

The council authorized nations to use “all necessary measures that are appropriate in Somalia” to stop anyone using Somali territory to plan or carry out piracy in the nearby waters traversed each year by thousands of cargo ships sailing between Asia and the Suez Canal.

That includes the use of Somali airspace, even though the US appeared to push through the council action. “These acts of piracy are categorically unacceptable and should be put to an end,” he said. Internet

Abbas says he’ll call Palestinian vote ‘very soon’

RAMALLAH, 17 Dec—Palestinian President Mahmoud Abbas said on Tuesday he’ll call general elections “very soon,” signaling that he’s ready for a new showdown with the Islamic militant Hamas.

Hamas, which wrested control of Gaza from Abbas 18 months ago, contends that his term as president ends on 8 January. Abbas initially said he has another year, but polls indicate most Palestinians disagree with him.

A call for elections appears to be the only way for Abbas to retain legitimacy. However, it remains unclear whether he actually intends to hold them, or just plans to call for a vote as a tactical move, with the expectation that Hamas would refuse to go along.

Hamas spokesman Fawzi Barhoum said on Tuesday that Hamas opposes holding elections before the rivals have worked out their differences. Hamas could block elections in Gaza, and it’s not clear whether Abbas would agree to hold elections only in the West Bank since that would deepen the split between the territories.

Abbas aide Saeb Erekat it would be a bad idea to hold elections only in the West Bank, adding that he is expressing his personal view.—Internet

Oil prices rise to above $44 before OPEC meeting

SINGAPORE, 17 Dec—Oil prices rose above $44 a barrel on Wednesday in Asia as investors waited to see how big a production cut OPEC will announce at a meeting later today in Algeria.

Light, sweet crude for January delivery was up 82 cents to $44.42 a barrel in electronic trading on the New York Mercantile Exchange by midday in Singapore.

The contract fell overnight 91 cents to settle at $43.60 despite signs the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries planned to announce a significant reduction of output quotas.

Saudi oil minister Ali Naimi said on Tuesday that OPEC, which accounts for about 40 percent of global supply, would likely cut production by about 2 million barrels per day.—Internet

At least 26 die as Israeli bus tumbles into ravine

ELAT, 17 Dec—A bus, filled with Russian tourists, guides crashed through a roadside barrier on Tuesday and tumbled down a steep ravine in southern Israel, killing at least 26 people in Israel’s worst traffic accident.

The blue bus lay on its side at the bottom of the slope, its windows smashed and a path of debris strewn along its path down from the road. Soldiers and other rescue workers lined up bodies in white bags. Nearby, rubble was tossed into a pile. Officials said the 60 passengers on the bus had just arrived from St Petersburg, Russia, to visit potential spots for tourism and were heading for Elat, a popular Red Sea resort.

The vehicle sped by in a no-passing zone, broke through a guard rail and rolled down the slope, said Rami Vazana, the driver of the bus that was passed. Dozens of wounded and dead were strewn along the slope. Most of them were thrown from the bus as it rolled,” medic Gabi Baribo said.

Israel’s rescue service said 24 people were declared dead at the scene, and Elat’s hospital said two more died later of injuries. Hospital officials said several more people were in critical condition.

The Russian ambassador to Israel, Pyotr Stegnii, told Russia’s Vesti-TV that 30 people were killed. Internet

Russia claims US plans new bases for Central Asia

MOSCOW, 17 Dec—Russia’s top military officer warned that Moscow felt threatened by US policy in ex-Soviet Central Asia and claimed that Washington was attempting to establish new military bases there, news agencies reported on Tuesday. Gen Nikolai Makarov, the chief of the Russian military’s general staff, said Washington planned to establish a foothold in Kazakhstan and Uzbekistan, Interfax and ITAR-Tass reported. US officials denied there were plans.

Makarov also said US support for bids by Georgia and Ukraine to join NATO made Russia feel threatened. He cast doubt that relations between the countries would improve under Barack Obama.

“According to our information, it (the US) is planning to establish military bases in Kazakhstan and Uzbekistan,” Makarov was quoted as saying. He did not elaborate. Internet

HK signs tax pact with Vietnam

HONG KONG, 17 Dec— Hong Kong and Vietnam on Tuesday signed an agreement for the avoidance of double taxation and the prevention of fiscal evasion on tax and income, says a press statement issued here by the Hong Kong Special Administrative Region (HK SAR) government. The agreement was signed by HK SAR government Financial Secretary John Tsang and Vietnam Vice Minister of Finance Do Hoang Anh Tuan in Hanoi, capital of Vietnam, says the statement. At the signing ceremony on Tuesday, Tsang was quoted as saying that the agreement will boost bilateral relations between Hong Kong and Vietnam.

“The agreement represents tax savings and a higher degree of certainty on taxation rights for investors from both Vietnam and Hong Kong. It also fosters economic co-operation and protects both our governments’ revenue base,” said Tsang. Any Hong Kong tax paid by Vietnam residents or companies will be allowed as credit against any tax payable in respect of the same income in Vietnam. Royalties withholding tax will be capped at 7 percent where payment is made for the use of patents, designs or models, plans, secret formulas or processes. The interest withholding tax will be reduced from the current rate of 10 percent to nil if the recipient is the HK SAR Government, the Hong Kong Monetary Authority or other recognized institutions as mutually agreed.—

Canada to lose 600,000 jobs if Big Three automakers collapse

OTTAWA, 17 Dec— The collapse of the Big Three automakers would be catastrophic to Canada’s economy, with nearly 600,000 jobs expected to disappear in the country within five years, according to a report released on Tuesday.

The report was prepared for the Ontario Manufacturing Council, an advisory panel of industry and labor representatives. It predicts that effects on employment would be felt right away, with Canada losing 323,000 jobs if production ceased immediately, 281,800 in Ontario Province alone. Those figures would climb in five years to 882,000 jobs nationally in 2014, 517,000 of those in Ontario.

A cut in production by 50 percent would eliminate 157,400 jobs nationally immediately, 141,000 in Ontario. By 2014, 296,000 jobs would be lost, 269,000 in Ontario.

The depreciation of the Canadian dollar, lower interest rates and lower production costs will eventually help the economy to partially recover but the loss of the Detroit Three will leave a permanent dent in Canada’s economy in terms of jobs and output, the document says. The collapse of the Big Three would have far reaching effects, including a reduction in production by the Canadian automotive parts industry of 80 percent, the report predicts.—

European new car sales down by 25.8% in November

BRUSSELS, 17 Dec— New car sales in Europe fell by 25.8 percent in November compared to the same month of last year, declining for the seventh month in a row, the European automakers association ACEA said on Tuesday.

It was the largest monthly drop since 1999, which ACEA said should be blamed on the financial and economic crises.

Markets in Western Europe and the new European Union (EU) member states contracted at a similar pace, down by 26 percent and 22.6 percent respectively. All national markets in Europe decreased except Finland, Poland and the Czech Republic.

In Western Europe, a total of 854,698 new passenger cars were registered in November. The downturn hit all countries except Finland, ranging from 3.5 percent in Portugal to 55.9 percent in Ireland.

Markets in the new EU member states echoed the November drop recorded in Western Europe. The central and eastern European markets had long showed more resilience, in relative terms, because of the greater number of first-time buyers as opposed to the replacement market of Western Europe. —

Kyaw Ye Min

The developing countries do not suffer much impact of the global financial crisis directly, but they are facing indirect losses in trade, foreign investments, foreign loans and assistance, domestic banking system, finances, government budgets and some sectors. The countries that do not have much link with the global financial system suffer less, however no countries escape from the consequences of the global financial crisis.

Half the total exports of Latin American countries go to the US. So, the US financial crisis has led to those countries suffering economic deficits, following decrease in demand of their exports. Moreover, African countries have come under economic decline due to a fall in Foreign Direct Investment (FDI), Official Development Assistance (ODA) and remittance. Some countries on the edge of industrial development such as China, India, Brazil and South Africa announced its plan to spend 26 billion Euros for its economic recovery. In like manner, China has announced its plan to spend four trillion yuan (nearly US$600 billion) for boosting its economy. It is a global knowledge that oil price went up to 147 US dollars a barrel in July, but it fell steeply to 43.6 US dollars on 16 December. World countries and regional organizations are struggling for grappling with the global issue.

Heads of developing countries are dissatisfied with the point that they were invited to the conference but were not vested with the rights to express their views. The conference did not reach any agreements, and arguments were running high between one group and another till it ended. Overall, prospects for unanimous remedies to address the issue effectively are still dim despite the fact that countries and regional organizations are trying individually and in group to leave behind the global financial crisis. The crisis is still highly debatable at the international scene.

Meanwhile, two points smile on Myanmar. The first point is that oil prices are going down, and the second point is that India and China, Myanmar’s main trading partners, suffer economic downturn less. Myanmar is in a position to stand on its own feet regarding basic needs of the people. In addition, it is an agrarian-based nation which relies on foreign countries just for small size of import. So, it does not have much shortage in foreign exchange. Therefore, it can be deduced from those points that Myanmar will not face adverse effects of the crisis on a large scale.

The government has taken necessary measures in that regard in accordance with the advice of economists. Without any doubt, every government works hard to serve the interests of their mother countries. Myanmar has got and overcome such experiences.

I think the monetary crisis that took place in 1997 is still fresh in the mind of all. The whole ASEAN region suffered economic meltdown and the financial markets of the region were in disorder due to George Soros of the US who speculated in foreign exchange. The property market of Thailand collapsed first. Then, its currency rate fell sharply, and the financial crisis spread to other parts of ASEAN like forest fire. All the regional countries suffered great losses, following high unemployment rates, economic deficit, and instability of currencies. Some countries suffered adverse political effects triggered by the financial issue. Then, the financial crisis spread to Russia and Brazil. The whole ASEAN region suffered a lot, but Myanmar did not face great problems in that case. The nation soon managed to take control over the issue and overcome it without any great difficulties. Myanmar is a nation that can stand on its own feet with sufficient number of infrastructures. So, it could stand more firmly than other countries that were relying on alien countries.

Similarly, the financial crisis of local private banks that occurred in the early 2003 is still fresh in my mind. The issue was that the financial issue of general services enterprises spread to some private banks. In the incident, there was liquidity shortage when the people were desperate to withdraw their savings from the private banks due to the rumours based on the problems of the general services enterprises. Other two causes were that some private banks were weak in following the orders and directives promulgated by the Central Bank of Myanmar, and depositors did not place enough trust in banking services.

The government formed the Banks Supervisory Committee and supervised banking services in time to be able to escape a financial crisis. Furthermore, the Central Bank of Myanmar even encounter less effect of the global financial crisis in the financial markets, but the crisis does not spare them, dealing a severe blow to their productivity, trade, tourism industry and transport sectors.

I dare say that our country does not need to worry about the global financial crisis.

Regional organizations such as EU, Mercosur commercial group of Latin America, OPEC, African Union, and ASEAN are now holding emergency meetings to work out the issue. G-7 and G-20 have held summits many times to seek solutions to the international challenge.

Most of G-7 countries take interest in extensive trade between regional countries or with other developing or nearly industrialized countries in order to remedy the decline in trade with the West Bloc, setting up region-wide funds to address the financial crisis, and for the developing countries reduction in financial and economic reliance on the US and West Bloc. That plans are designed to regenerate the global financial market and the world economy. The G-20 summit focused on programmes for economic recovery and dealing with loan problems. It is learnt that reforms in IMF and rules and regulations on the international financial market are put off till the new US President takes office. The meeting of APEC are in support of the majority of the ways G-20 will implement. ASEAN+3 including Myanmar will establish a fund of about 150 billion US dollars.

According to the latest developments, France has level. The World Bank forecast that the global economic growth rate will drop to 2.5 per cent in 2008, and 0.9 per cent in 2009 compared with 5 per cent in 2007. According to some economists, one per cent decline in the world economic development means 20 million more poor people.

I would like to touch upon to what extent Myanmar would suffer the effect of the global financial crisis. Myanmar is a developing country that hardly has economic dealings with the US and West Bloc. So, it can be deduced that the nation will suffer just a little effect of the crisis. However, it deals a lot with regional countries like Singapore in foreign exchange and export and import. So, Myanmar would suffer indirect effects when those countries face financial losses.

As to the trade sector, Myanmar’s largest trade partners are India, China and ASEAN countries, so the nation is forecast not to experience strong negative impact. There may be a decrease in remittance of Myanmar workers in foreign countries, and it is required to create job opportunities for the Myanmar workers who will fall victim to job cuts there. The hotel and tourism industry may be the sector that comes under the adverse effects of the crisis first. And there will be a fall in unnecessary imports such as luxurious and fashionable textiles and garments along with domestic garments that are exported in transit to developed countries, and export of marine products such as fish and prawn.

provided securities of 59.90 billion kyats to help some private banks out of financial problems address their issues. The amount was not sufficient, so 50.68 billion kyats more from the Central Bank of Myanmar and the Myanmar Economic Bank was disbursed as credit line to 13 private banks in line with Lender of Last Resort, totaling 110.58 billion kyats. The banking crisis came into existence in February 2003, but all the private banks returned to normal in January 2004 winning again public trust thanks to the intervention of the government. Why I am presenting these points is to make it clear that our country is capable of addressing and has experienced such issues, and stands firmly by the people in times of emergency.

I would like to present another profound evidence about a devastating blow that was worse than financial crisis. In early May 2008, the cyclone “Nargis” hit hard Myanmar. All have known the size of death and destruction of the catastrophe. The natural disaster is the most violent of its kind in Myanmar. So, the nation was in a position to be shocked to the core and yield to the natural disaster. Alien media with negative attitude to Myanmar forecast that Myanmar would never return to normal, that the Myanmar government was incapable of addressing such a great issue; that the victims would suffer hunger and epidemics would follow due to the mismanagement of the government and hundreds of thousands of victims more would lose their lives; and that Myanmar economy would go to bust very quickly. Nonetheless, the victims have managed to make full recovery from the strong wind owing to the measures the government, the people and the Tatmadaw have taken in harmony. Generous donations by the people, cooperation of local companies and relief supplies of international donors led to smooth operation of relief and rehabilitation tasks. When the tasks were reinforced by long-term preparedness plans in compliance with the guidance of the Head of State, the people in the storm-hit areas have enjoyed higher living conditions than before the natural disaster in accordance with the expression that goes everthin bricks must be replaced with stone ones.

The amount of funds on rescue and rehabilitation tasks, regeneration programmes, and long-term preparedness measures against natural disasters were very formidable. The government provided an initial capital of 88.44 billion kyats, and local well-wishers contributed 42.32 billion kyats, totaling 130.76 billion kyats. Besides, bank loans and eight billion kyats were disbursed for regeneration of salt farming. So, the total amount of the cash assistance was 138.76 billion kyats. That is not all. The government will have to provide more funds in that regard. Myanmar deserves praise and recognition for its brilliant performances and assistance in times of emergency, despite not being a rich country.

Therefore, there has been tangible evidence that the nation has been able to overcome a demanding task for dealing with dire straits caused by Nargis through the collaborative efforts of the people. I believe that the nation will be able to cope with any forms of difficulty if the government, the people and the Tatmadaw remain united. That is why I dare say that our country does not need to worry about the global financial crisis.

Walt Disney, Media-One form JV to Launch Disney-Branded Free-to-Air TV Channel in Russia

Moscow, 17 Dec—The Walt Disney Company (NYSE:DIS - News), through one of its subsidiaries, and Media-One Holdings Limited, a broadcaster operating assets in the regions of Russia, are forming a joint venture to launch a Disney-branded television channel in Russia.

The joint venture plans to launch the new family-oriented entertainment channel on 30 stations throughout Russia currently owned and operated by Media-One. Anchored by Disney programming for kids and family, the channel also plans to air original Russian programming. In addition to programming the TV channel with acquired content, the joint venture also has plans to produce its own programs which will occupy more of the schedule as the company matures.

The launch of the predominately free-to-air national network is slated for 2009.

In return for a 49% stake in the joint venture company, Disney will invest cash and provide programming and marketing expertise and content acquisition support.

China may send ships to tackle Somali piracy

BEIJING, 17 Dec—China may send naval ships to the seas off Somalia to help the fight against piracy there, state media on Wednesday quoted a Vice Foreign Minister as saying at the United Nations.

“China is seriously considering sending naval ships to the Gulf of Aden and waters off the Somali coast for escorting operations in the near future,” the official Xinhua news agency quoted He Yafei as saying. He, speaking at a Security Council ministerial meeting, said that China welcomed global cooperation in the fight against Somali piracy, and supported efforts by other countries to send ships to the region, Xinhua reported.

Earlier this month a prominent Chinese military strategist, Major-General Jin Yinan, urged the government to send ships, in comments reflecting debate about combating piracy in a country which has generally confined its navy to waters near home.

Jin told a Chinese radio interviewer that “nobody should be shocked” if his government one day decided to send Navy ships to deal with the pirates, whose recent victims have included ships from Mainland China and Hong Kong.

Dams in Magway Division under...

Myittha Dam is under construction on Myittha River. The earth embankment with the height of 205 feet and the length of 29,750 feet will be the longest in the country. The dam can store 377,600 acre-feet of water. A total of 170 million kilowatt hours can be generated yearly from the dam with the use of two 20-megawatt generators. The dam will irrigate 12,000 acres of farmlands.

In the afternoon, they proceeded to Manipura Multi-purpose Dam Project being built on Manipura River by Construction-4 of Irrigation Department. After inspecting construction of water intake tunnels, they attended to the needs. In implementing the project, the embankment that measures 2,444 feet by 527 feet with a storage capacity of 1.26 million acre-feet of water will be filled with gravel. It will be the highest embankment in Myanmar.

The dam of the project will generate 1,903 million kilowatt hours yearly through four 95-megawatt generators. On completion, the dam will prevent flooding Myittha Plain and overflow of Chindwin River downstream Kalewa and it will irrigate about 50,000 acres of farmlands.

In Gangaw, the commander and the ministers viewed construction of a two-storey RC ward and a new operation theatre at Gangaw Hospital (100-bed) and presented cash assistance to the patients.

At the office of Gangaw District PDC, the commander, the ministers and party met local authorities, social organizations and townelders and gave instructions on regional development.—MNA

Two large bridges on Monywa-Yagyi-Myoma-Kalewa Road contributing to regional development

In few years, I had made trips by express bus three times along new Monywa-Yagyi-Myoma-Kalewa Road that crosses Taungdwinchaung region of Mingin Township.

Taungdwinchaung region that measures nine miles from the west to the east and 30 miles from the south to the north is situated in the area between 1,200 feet high Shwethamin mountain range in the east and Ponnya mountain range in the west.

In the past, people faced poor transport in the region. For development of Taungdwinchaung region, the government constructed Monywa-Yagyi-Myoma-Kalewa Road.

The road stretches 115 miles from Monywa to Kalewa. An old road namely Kalewa-Thetkeikyin-Taze-YeU-Monywa Road is 170 miles long. The 45 miles shorter new road can save time and money of the travelers. A total of 174 small and large bridges were built on Monywa-Yagyi Road.

Moreover, the government built two bridges on Monywa-Yagyi-Myoma-Kalewa Road. The first one is Chindwin Bridge (Monywa) across Chindwin River and the next one is Myittha Bridge (Kalewa).

Chindwin Bridge (Monywa) is located at Mindaunt freight handling jetty near mile post 89/6 of Monywa-YeU Road. The bridge is 4,730.18 feet long and it has one 28-foot-wide motor road.

The bridge can withstand 60-ton loads. After carrying out construction tasks during two years and four months period, the bridge was inaugurated on 7 April 2003.

The second bridge on Monywa-Yagyi-Myoma Road is Myittha Bridge (Kalewa) spanning Myittha River. The 1,320 feet long bridge is of steel frame suspension bridge.

The bridge was built with two-lane motor road, and the bridge can bear up 60-ton loads of single vehicle.

On 11 April 2005, I was heading home from Mandalay to Kalay through Monywa-Yagyi-Myoma-Kalewa Road crossing Myittha Bridge (Kalewa) that was opened 10 months ago.

Along the route, I passed Myittha Bridge and Monywa Bridge on Monywa-Yagyi-Myoma Road have provided Taungdwinchaung Region of Mingin Township with better transport.

The road and two bridges link Sagaing Division and Chin Sate and contribute towards the border trade activity between Myanmar and India in the region.

Nowadays, the local people of Kalay, Kalewa, Tamu and villages in Taungdwinchaung region of Mingin Township are enjoying the fruits of development thanks to construction of the road and two bridges.

Indian parliament debates tougher anti-terror laws

NEW DELHI, 17 Dec—India’s parliament on Wednesday opened debate on tougher anti-terrorism laws and a plan to set up an FBI-style agency designed to plug gaping security holes exposed by last month’s Mumbai attacks.

The legislation includes provisions allowing police to hold suspects for up to 180 days, rather than the current 90 days, and allows for a financial clampdown on suspects. The setting up of a National Investigations Agency, styled on the US Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI), also comes after decades of opposition from India’s 29 states who had argued such a body would decrease their local law enforcement powers. Home Minister Pali-inaapam Chidambaram argued that the new legislation will enable the “speedy investigation, prosecution and trial of cases related to terrorism.”

Indian security agencies, long criticised for lacking a cohesive counter-terrorism strategy and poor intelligence gathering and analysis, came under renewed fire after the Mumbai attacks.

Faced with seething public anger, the federal government had apologised for the government’s inability to detect the Mumbai plot. —Internet

Spain arrests 34 in crackdown on child pornography

MADRID, 17 Dec—Spanish police said on Monday they had arrested 34 people in countrywide raids for suspicions of owning, distributing and buying child pornography images on the Internet. Police conducted searches in more than 20 provinces, seizing 88 hard discs, and more than four million files of child pornography, including pictures and videos of the abused victims.

German and British police also participated in the raids. More than 400 people have been arrested in Spain on charges of child pornography this year. Investigations have centred on people who use credit cards to buy and distribute child pornography images. MNA/Reuters

UK Teenager found guilty of Rhys Jones murder

LONDON, 17 Dec—A teenager was found guilty on Tuesday of murdering schoolboy Rhys Jones, the 11-year-old boy shot dead as he walked home from football practice in a crime that stunned the country. Rhys was hit in the neck by one of three bullets fired across a Liverpool pub car park by 18-year-old Sean Mercer who had been aiming at members of a rival gang.

The shooting of the keen Everton supporter at the back of the Fir Tree Pub in Croxteth in August last year shocked the local community and the nation and increased concern about gang crime.

Prosecutor Neil Flewitt said the shooting was the result of a violent rivalry between Croxteth’s Crocky Crew, which counted Mercer among its members, and nearby Norris Green’s Strand Gang. —Internet

Whistler, 17 Dec—More than 50 people were evacuated from about 30 gondola cars after a tower supporting the cables partially collapsed on Tuesday at Canada’s Whistler ski resort.

Police said there were no serious injuries at the resort, which is to host the alpine events of the 2010 winter Olympic games. Thirteen people were sent to the Whistler Health Care Centre but all had been released by late Tuesday night, said Anna Marie D’Angelo, a spokesperson for Vancouver Coastal Health, a regional health services agency.

Graeme Bell said he was in a car that hit the ground. “It was pretty freaky. We heard the noise of the tower collapsing and then the cabin started shaking and down it went,” Bell told CTV television. “It hit the ground. It basted one of the windows and we jumped out.”

Bell said passengers were complaining of sore backs and one man had a bloody head.

Aborigines win court fight against Swiss miner

SYDNEY, 17 Dec—Australian Aborigines won a court fight on Wednesday against Anglo-Swiss mining giant Xstrata’s plans to divert a river and expand one of the world’s biggest zinc mines.

The Federal Court ruled the government did not follow the proper process when it approved the 110 million Australian dollar (74 million US dollar) project to expand the McArthur River Mine in northern Australia in late 2006. Several kilometres (miles) of the McArthur River have already been diverted and the local Aboriginal group is now demanding that it be restored to its original course, the Australian Broadcasting Corporation reported.

Aboriginal leaders, some crying with happiness, were applauded after the ruling, the broadcaster said.

“We just need the river back. We don’t know how. They put it there, they can put it back,” said Archie Harvey, a representative of the traditional owners of the land.

“We’ve got to live on that river for a long time, our kids got to live on it.” —Internet

Late-night Calif Mayor must leave City Hall by 11

Fed up with the nocturnal work habits of its mayor, a California city council has approved a curfew limiting how late she can work at City Hall.

South El Monte council members say they have safety and liability concerns for Mayor Blanca Figueroa, who frequently works until the wee hours of the morning. She must now leave the building by 11 pm.

The mayor — a self-described night owl — calls the restriction petty. She says she needs to stay late because her daytime schedule is filled with meetings and her inbox is overflowing with letters from residents affected by the worsening economy. South El Monte is a city of 21,000 about 14 miles east of downtown Los Angeles. Council members approved the curfew on Wednesday.

Arkansas woman says dog saved her life

An Arkansas woman said her dog Miley saved her life when she persisted in waking her up from a carbon monoxide stupor. Stacie Pitts, 30, said her 1-year-old pet was sleeping next to her and woke her up in the early morning hours of on 7 December. Pitts said she had a headache and went back to sleep, but Miley persisted and woke her up again. Pitts said she was overcome with nausea and realized then that something was wrong.

“I couldn’t hold anything down. I ran to the bathroom throwing up,” Pitts said. “And wasn’t throwing anything up but chemicals. It tasted like medicine in the back of my throat.”

Her fiance, Richard Childers, woke up with a headache and woke up Pitts’ 6-year-old stepdaughter.

90 arrested in raids to thwart Mafia regrouping

Rome, 17 Dec — Italian police staged sweeping raids on Tuesday to arrest about 90 suspected mobsters and prevent the hobbled Sicilian Mafia from forming new command structure and strategy, authorities said.

The blitz ordered by Palermo prosecutors was one of the largest in recent years and was billed as striking at the heart of the nascent hierarchy. It prevented possible bloodshed among bosses competing for control in a new ruling commission, police said.

“The operation has thrown the Mafia into a very serious crisis,” said Francesco Messineo, the chief prosecutor in Palermo who ordered the arrests.

The Sicilian Mafia has been trying to overcome disarray in its ranks ever since top mobster Bernardo Provenzano was arrested in April 2006. Many of his encrypted notes were cracked, shedding light on Cosa Nostra’s organization and leading to the arrests of some of his closest aides.

“If that operation ... brought Cosa Nostra down to its knees, this prevented it from getting up again,” said the national anti-Mafia prosecutor, Pietro Grasso.

Tuesday’s operation—called Perseus, after the Greek mythological hero who beheaded Medusa—“severed all the strategically important heads of a new ruling structure and strategy, authorities said.

“The virtues and risks of the technique, called carbon capture and storage, were hotly debated at UN climate talks in Poznan, Poland, earlier this month.

“A hundred million dollars is a large sum for anybody, but we had to start somewhere,” said Michael Mossman of the British oil firm BP PLC, who heads the venture with Norway’s Statoil and Algeria’s national oil firm, Sonatrach.

“The Algerians were very receptive to the project,” he said on Tuesday, as journalists toured the site ahead of a conference by the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries, OPEC, in the northwestern town of Oran this week.— Internet

EU customs seize millions of illegal medicines

BRUSSELS, 17 Dec — The European Commission announced here on Tuesday the results of the “Medi-Fake” action, which targeted customs control on illegal medicines entering the EU.

On the basis of a risk profile disseminated by the commission, customs from the 27 member states of the European Union put special focus over a two-month period on coordinated action to stop illegal medicines from entering the bloc. Among the products which were intercepted were antibiotics, anti-cancer, anti-malaria and anti-cholesterol medicines, as well as pankillers, Viagra and drug precursors.

This first EU coordinated action had “tremendous results,” with more than 34 million illegal medicines seized.

It also highlighted a number of ways of improving the fight against trafficking in illegal, dangerous or counterfeit goods, paving the way for future similar actions.

“It (the action) multiplies the effectiveness of customs controls, thereby better protecting citizens and legitimate business from new and increasing security and safety threats. Cooperation between customs and legitimate business proved vital,” said Laszlo Kovacs, commissioner for Taxation and Customs.

Low dose of caffeine when pregnant may damage offspring’s heart for lifetime

WASHINGTON, 17 Dec — Drinking just two cups of coffee during pregnancy may affect fetal heart development and then reduce heart function over the entire lifespan of the child, showed a new study by US researchers.

The study was conducted by a group of researchers from Yale University and published on Tuesday online in the journal of the Federation of American Societies for Experimental Biology. In addition, the researchers also found that this relatively minimal amount of exposure may lead to higher body fat among males, when compared to those who were not exposed to caffeine.

Although the study was in mice, the biological cause and effect described in the research paper is plausible in humans, said the authors.

“Our studies raise potential concerns about caffeine exposure during very early pregnancy, but further studies are necessary to evaluate caffeine’s safety during pregnancy,” said Scott Rivkees, a senior researcher on the study.

Scientists find hole in Earth’s magnetic field

LOS ANGELES, 17 Dec — Recent satellite observations have revealed the largest breach yet seen in the magnetic field that protects Earth from most of the sun’s violent blasts, researchers reported on Tuesday. The discovery was made last summer by Themis, a fleet of five small NASA satellites. Scientists have long known that the Earth’s magnetic field, which guards against severe space weather, is similar to adrafty old house that sometimes lets in violent eruptions of charged particles from the sun. Such a breach can cause brilliant auroras or disrupt satellite and ground communications.

Observations from Themis show the Earth’s magnetic field occasionally develops two cracks, allowing solar wind—a stream of charged particles spewing from the sun at 1 million mph—to penetrate the Earth’s upper atmosphere.

Last summer, Themis calculated a layer of solar particles to be at least 4,000 miles thick in the outermost part of the Earth’s magnetosphere, the largest tear of the protective shield found so far. — Internet
Defiant Gamba eye Man Utd upset at football Club World Cup

YOKOHAMA, 17 Dec—A defiant Gamba Osaka insist they are not afraid of Manchester United but the Japanese team face a daunting task against the European champions in their Club World Cup semi-final on Thursday.

It will be one of the biggest games in Gamba’s history, but they are handicapped by injuries to attacking midfielders Takahiro Futagawa and Hayato Sasaki, who were stretchered off during their win over Adelaide on Sunday. Nevertheless, captain Satoshi Yamaguchi believes they have what it takes to tame the likes of Cristiano Ronaldo and Wayne Rooney.

“We have nothing to lose and we’ll go all out, leaving everything out there on the pitch,” he said.

“We don’t want to be thinking after the match that we should have done this and that, and as long as we’re playing them, we’ll play to win. But we need to make sure we don’t play like we did against Adelaide.”

Eduardo makes successful return to action

LONDON, 17 Dec—Arsenal’s Croatian international striker Eduardo made a successful return to action after being out for 10 months after suffering a broken left leg.

The injury cost both Arsenal and the player dear as they were stretchered off during their win over Adel- elle on Sunday. Nevertheless, captain Satoshi Yamaguchi believes they have what it takes to tame the likes of Cristiano Ronaldo and Wayne Rooney.

“We have nothing to lose and we’ll go all out, leaving everything out there on the pitch,” he said.

“We don’t want to be thinking after the match that we should have done this and that, and as long as we’re playing them, we’ll play to win. But we need to make sure we don’t play like we did against Adelaide.”

Giliano Berbatov sick, Rooney injured ahead of Gamba football match

YOKOHAMA, 17 Dec—Dimitar Berbatov is sick and will not play in Manchester United’s Club World Cup match against Gamba Osaka on Thursday, while Wayne Rooney is a doubt after picking up an injury in training.

Coach Sir Alex Ferguson said record-signing Berbatov picked up a virus on the plane journey from London and has been in bed since they arrived on Thursday, providing more ammunition for critics who think the trip is a waste of time.

“Berbatov won’t play on Thursday,” he said. “He has been ill since we arrived after picking up a virus. He is not well at the moment,” he said.

“Rooney was injured in training on Tuesday but we hope he will be fit. Other than that everyone else is fit.”

While Berbatov will be missing, Ferguson said the veteran trio of Ryan Giggs, Paul Scholes and Gary Neville would all play, as will Cristiano Ronaldo.

New 60 million-dollar indoor facility opens at US Open site

NEW YORK, 17 Dec—It’s not a dome over Arthur Ashe Stadium, but the US Tennis Association announced on Tuesday that it is about to open a new 60 million-dollar indoor facility on the grounds of the US Open tournament.

Completion of the 12-court facility after three years of construction will allow the organization to expand existing tennis development programs and is a major upgrade of prior indoor facilities.

The area features modern locker rooms, a fitness centre, pro shop, classrooms, retail sales and warehouse areas, hospitality areas and a food commissary to support the US Open.

The facility could one day become a regional training centre such as one located in Los Angeles and a national centre located in Boca Raton, Florida.

“This dynamic new building will help fill a void in player development,” USTA player development general manager Patrick McEnroe said. — Internet

Harrington voted PGA Tour player of the year

THOUSAND OAKS, 17 Dec—Winning back-to-back majors was the highlight of Padraig Harrington’s career. He felt winning the PGA Tour player of the year award on Tuesday was just as significant.

Harrington, only the fourth player to win the British Open and PGA Championship in the same season, became the first European player to win the PGA Tour award since it began in 1990.

“It has been a fantastic season individually out there, winning a couple of majors,” Harrington said in a conference call from Ireland. “At the time you win them, you certainly feel that nothing could compare to it. But to be honest, there is no greater accolade than to receive an award from your peers.

“Because it’s the players, because it’s my peers, because they’re people that I care and am concerned about their opinions deeply, for them to choose me as their player of the year is very special,” he said. “It compares equally to winning a major championship.”

Galatasaray’s Kewell comfortable after hernia surgery

SYDNEY, 17 Dec—Star Australian footballer Harry Kewell expects to return to training within a month following a hernia operation in Sydney, according to national team coach Pim Verbeek.

The former Liverpool player injured himself last month playing for Turkish club Galatasaray and returned home for the minor surgery.

Dutchman Verbeek said the Socceroo was now resting in Sydney after the operation earlier this week.

“Harry is fine and is aiming to start training again in three to four weeks’ time,” Verbeek said in a statement. Kewell could have delayed the surgery but decided to treat the problem because Galatasaray are already through to the latter stages of the UEFA Cup and the Turkish league is about to take a winter break.

“Harry’s a tough customer and is used to playing with, and through, injury over most of his career,” Verbeek said. — Internet
Russian 2008 arms exports to exceed $8B

MOSCOW, 17 Dec—Russia’s arms exports will exceed eight billion US dollars this year despite the global financial crisis, an increase of one billion US dollars from 2007, Russian media quoted Deputy Prime Minister Sergei Ivanov as saying on Tuesday.

Russia’s portfolio of military orders from foreign states will reach 33 billion US dollars by the end of this year, local news agencies quoted Ivanov as telling a prize-giving ceremony for Russia’s military-industrial enterprises.

Ivanov had said earlier that Russia’s arms sales abroad totalled more than seven billion US dollars in 2007. “I want to put a special stress on the fact that even in conditions of the global financial crisis this market has so far seen no decline,” he said.

“Despite the complicated economic situation in the world, none of our partners has expressed willingness to revise or cancel any contracts.”

Poll shows UK Conservatives’ lead over Labour narrows

LONDON, 17 Dec—Britain’s opposition Conservatives’ victory over the ruling Labour Party narrowed to 5 percentage points from 15 over the past month, an ICM opinion poll showed on Tuesday.

The poll, published on the Guardian newspaper website, showed that Conservative support had fallen to 38 per cent from 45 per cent in the same poll last month, while Labour support had risen to 33 per cent from 30 per cent.

Prime Minister Gordon Brown must call an election in the next 18 months. The Guardian said if the poll results were repeated in an election, both parties would most probably get similar numbers of seats, leaving neither with a majority to form a government.

The opinion poll, which was based on a telephone survey of 1,003 adults between December 12-14, showed support for the centre-left Liberal Democrats at 19 per cent, up a point. Support for other parties—such as Scottish, Welsh and Northern Irish regional parties—rose 2 percentage points to 10 per cent. Polls by other organizations have shown a similar narrowing in the Conservative lead over Labour in recent weeks, as voters increasingly doubt the Conservatives would handle Britain’s economic difficulties better than Labour.—MNA/Reuters

Four workers killed in Spain’s Mallorca hotel collapse

MADRID, 17 Dec—At least four workers were killed on Tuesday when the upper floors of a hotel on the Spanish island of Mallorca collapsed after torrential rain, local officials said.

Rescuers searched the wreckage after the top four floors of Hotel Son Moll—a nine-storey beachside tower in Cala Rajada, a resort on the eastern tip of the island popular with German tourists—fell apart.

Rescuers found two bodies from the rubble, and later found the bodies of two other workers in the debris, a spokesman for the local authorities in the Balearic Islands said.

“The hotel was being refitted and was closed to the public,” an emergency services spokesman said.

A local government official, who asked not to be named, said pre-iminary investigations suggested the building’s foundations had weakened during two days of heavy rain, leading to the collapse of four of the building’s nine storeys.

Arshavin sets sights on Manchester United, Chelsea, Barcelona

ST PETERSBURG, 17 Dec—Russian international Andrei Arshavin is targeting a move to Premiership stalwarts Manchester United or Chelsea after being given the green light to leave his current club Zenit St Petersburg.

Tottenham Hotspur were close to signing the Euro 2008 star during the summer. However the clubs failed to agree upon a fee for the Russian playmaker.

Arshavin claimed that he wanted a move to Spain or England with Barcelona his favourite destination in Spain and Manchester United and Chelsea in England.

“I still have a desire to play abroad and I’d like to play either in Spain or England,” he said in The Sun.

“Barcelona are my favourite team and in England there is Manchester United and Chelsea.”—Internet

Tel Aviv tourism sees all-time high

TEL AVIV, 17 Dec—The Israel Hotel Association (IHA) reported Monday that the year of 2008 saw an all-time high in incoming tourism to the city of Tel Aviv.

So far, the number of tourist stays in 2008 has totaled 2.15 million nights. A significant rise of more than 10% in tourist stays in Tel Aviv was recorded in the month of November as well, despite the global financial crisis.

The rise in the number of tourist entries derives from a significant increase in the amount of tourists coming from Russia after Israel eliminated their visa requirements, and from a 60% rise in the number of tourists from Germany compared to last year.

Eti Gargir, CEO of the Tel Aviv Tourist Association, noted that in order to reach these results the association invested more than NIS 25 million (about $6.53 million) in efforts to market the city.

According to Gargir, the multiple tourist entries create an income in the city’s recreation, culture, food and shopping industries.—Internet
