The entire national people are to actively participate in the drive for environmental conservation launched by the government in order to see to it that there is no environmental degradation caused by air pollution, water pollution, land pollution and deforestation.

PERSPECTIVES

Actively participate in the drive for environmental conservation

Today, with global warming, there has been a change in the weather. Globally, there occurred natural disasters such as storms, floods, drought, heat-wave and heavy fogs that trigger environmental degradation. Experts assessed that 90 per cent of global warming is attributable to man-made causes. According to the world meteorology and temperature records, it is learnt that the global temperature has risen since 1990, and the year 2008 was the hottest ever. Meanwhile, the improper exploitation of natural resources and the disposal of litter and rubbish and sewage are the main causes of environmental damage. Smoke coming out of factories and mills, automobiles and machinery as well as out of smoking and other foul smell are also a contributing factor for air pollution. This could harm man, plants and animals. This being the case, every nation is placing emphasis on environmental conservation in order to ensure that there is no environmental degradation. Trees and forests contribute not only to wellbeing of human beings but also can generate heavy fogs that trigger environmental degradation. Trees and forests including teak and Pynkadoe are a reliable source for economic development of the State, and play a vital role in greening the region, maintenance of flora and fauna and conservation of endangered species of trees and flowery plants. Therefore, the entire national people are to actively participate in the drive for environmental conservation launched by the government in order to see to it that there is no environmental degradation. Trees and forests are also a reliable source for economic development of the State, and play a vital role in greening the region, maintenance of flora and fauna and conservation of endangered species of trees and flowery plants.

Iran warns US over sending more troops to Afghanistan

BEIRUT, 22 Dec—Iran Sunday warned the US over the dispatch of a further 30,000 troops to Afghanistan early next year in support of some 30,000 troops already involved in the conflict with the Taliban. Iranian Foreign Minister Manouchehr Motaki said in a press briefing in Tehran that the US should be careful of the consequences of its new policies in Afghanistan and not make the same mistakes as in Iraq. US media Saturday reported that Defence Secretary Robert Gates ordered the deployment of an additional combat aviation brigade, equipped with attack and transport helicopters.

Three or four combat brigades would follow in late spring or early summer in response to the request by General David McKiernan, commander of NATO-led troops in Afghanistan for at least 20,000 extra troops.

Britain may boost troops in Afghanistan

KARUL, 22 Dec—Britain may increase its troop strength in Afghanistan to augment a similar increase by the United States, Defence Secretary John Hutton said Sunday. Hutton said Britain would consider any request from the United States for more of its troops. The United States plans to add up to 30,000 soldiers to its existing strength in Afghanistan by next summer, the Scotsman reported.

When we receive such a request, obviously we would look at it very, very carefully. We need more security in Afghanistan, that’s quite clear,” Hutton was quoted as saying. NATO has asked its members to commit more of their forces in Afghanistan to support the US effort.

“We want to ensure that as the US increases we have a proper balance between what the Americans are doing and what the other allies are doing—both for military and political reasons,” NATO spokesman James Appathurai was quoted as saying.

Britain’s opposition Foreign Secretary William Hague, while noting that sending more British troops to Afghanistan should not be ruled out, told the BBC, “We have got to bear in mind that the British troops have borne a disproportionate share of the burden so far and many other NATO nations have not engaged in the serious fighting British troops have had to do.”—Internet

Baghdad vendors seek shelter in neighbourhoods

BAGHDAD, 22 Nov—When life endangered and business hardly survived, Hassan left his shop in a battlefield in western Baghdad and built a small shop inside the garden of his own house in the Khadraa residential neighbourhood.

“Few months ago, security forces built in front of my shop a three-meter high wall that separated my business from the main streets, and I could hardly sell anything thereafter,” says Hussam Hassan, a 53-year-old vendor of the Ameriya neighborhood.

Despite both US and Iraqi forces have claimed a relative security gain in general since last year, small vendors in the war-torn country are facing an ever-harder time since violence and sectarian strife are still prevalent after more than five years since the US-led invasion. —Internet

Iran warns US over sending more troops to Afghanistan

TEHERAN, 22 Dec—Iran Sunday warned the US that the US should be careful of the consequences of its new policies in Afghanistan and not make the same mistakes as in Iraq.

Four people were killed as missiles hit the vehicle and an adjacent, fortlike house, while four others died and one was injured in the second vehicle five miles (eight kilometres) away by dirt track. Janan said an unexploded missile was found on the ground near the first vehicle. Yar Mohammad, a villager, said local Taleban pulled out bodies from the rubble while cordoning off the scene about 10 miles (15 kilometres) south of Wana, the main town in the South Waziristan tribal area near the Afghan border.

The US has carried out a series of more than 30 missile strikes since August in Pakistan’s lawless, semiautonomous tribal areas, targeting al-Qaeda and Taleban militants blamed for attacks in Afghanistan. While the missile strikes have killed scores of militants, Pakistani officials have criticized them as an infringement of its sovereignty and say they undermine their own war on terror. —Internet

Oil edges above $43 on US auto bailout, rate cut

SINGAPORE, 22 Dec — Oil prices rose above $43 a barrel Monday in Asia as investors looked for signs that US interest rate cuts and a government bailout of two key automakers could help cushion what may be the worst recession in decades.

Light, sweet crude for February delivery gained 72 cents to $43.08 a barrel in electronic trading on the New York Mercantile Exchange by midday in Singapore. The contract fell Friday 69 cents to settle at $42.36.

Investors were somewhat encouraged by Friday’s announcement of Washington’s $78.4 billion bailout of ailing car giants General Motors Corp and Chrysler LLC and by the Federal Reserve’s move Tuesday to cut its federal funds rate target to a range of zero to 0.25 percent.

“The rate cut shows the concern around demand in the US,” said Gerard Burg, minerals and energy economist with National Australia Bank in Melbourne.

“We’re in a period of demand weakness that we haven’t seen in at least a decade, and economic conditions don’t look particularly encouraging.”

UK Marine killed in Afghanistan

LONDON, 22 Dec — A Royal Marine has been killed in an explosion in southern Afghanistan, the Ministry of Defence has announced.

The serviceman, from the Commando Logististics Regiment Royal Marines, died on a routine mission north-west of Lashkar Gah, Helmand province.

Next of kin have been informed of the death on Sunday, the 135th suffered by UK troops in Afghanistan since 2001.

Cdr Paula Rowe said:

“The loss of this Royal Marine will be keenly felt by the whole of Task Force Helmand.”

“Our sincere and deepest sympathies go out to his family, friends and comrades at this terrible time.”

“This serviceman’s life was taken while helping bring peace and security to Afghanistan,” said Capt Mark Windsor.

“We have lost a valuable member of our team. We will continue to fight for the cause for which he made the ultimate sacrifice.”

Last week, Prime Minister Gordon Brown announced a 300-strong increase in troop numbers planned for March, to take the total Afghan deployment to 8,300.

Earlier today, Defence Secretary John Hutton said further increases in UK troop numbers could not be ruled out.

One al-Qaeda slain, 25 arrested in Iraq

BAGHDAD, 22 Dec — US-led coalition forces say their troops killed an alleged al-Qaeda member and detained 25 others in separate Iraq military operations this weekend.

US forces said in a statement they conducted a raid Sunday against a militant position in Mosul, and after a bloody confrontation, the alleged al-Qaeda operative was killed, KUNA, the Kuwait news agency, reported.

Elsewhere in Iraq, 25 people were reported arrested during raids in Tikrit, Mosul, Abu Ghraib, Samarra, Tarmiyah and al-Huwaijah, officials said.

They said most of the detainees were involved in financing terrorists attacks while others allegedly had ties with al-Qaeda leaders.

‘Kiss of death’ kills Iraqi army officer

MOSUL, 22 Dec — A suicide bomber used a “kiss of death” to kill an Iraqi army officer who was guarding a roadblock in the northern city of Mosul yesterday, security officials said.

The bomber approached the officer with a big smile and gave him a hug as if he was a friend, then blew himself up, police officer Hamid al-Juburi said.

Another two soldiers and two civilians were wounded in the blast, army colonel Ahmad Saeed said.

The US military considers Mosul, Iraq’s third largest city, to be the last urban stronghold of al-Qaeda in Iraq, which has been behind hundreds of bombings since the 2003 US-led invasion to topple Saddam Hussein.

Magnitude-4.1 quake shakes central California

HOLLISTER, 22 Dec — Geologists say central California has been shaken by an earthquake measuring magnitude-4.1, strong enough to be noticed but without producing any reports of damage or injuries.

It was focused at about four miles beneath the surface.

A dispatcher for the San Benito County sheriff’s office said the quake was felt, but no one complained of any damage or injuries.

Cuban Govt calls for increased food production

Havana, 22 Dec— Cuba’s first Vice President Jose Ramon Machado Ventura on Sunday called for an increase in food production in 2009 to recover from three recent hurricanes. Describing 2009 as a “decisive” year for Cuba, Machado said it will demonstrate whether Cuba is capable of recovering from three devastating hurricanes that struck in less than one month and will show what can be done in the future. “The current crisis in the world affects Cuba, and we must make sure that the country is endeavoring to minimize the impacts of this crisis,” Machado said during a meeting with representatives of the agricultural sector. If Cuba can import 80 percent of its food or agriculture equipment, and that cost be reduced to 50 percent of the total expense, it would be an economic relief, Machado said. According to official numbers, food purchases represent 20 percent of Cuba’s imports, at a cost of about 2 billion US dollars. —Xinhua

A local official said some of the victims were soldiers. Thousands of troops have been deployed across Mexico in anti-drug smuggling operations. Nine heads were found earlier in plastic bags close to a supermarket.

Police since December 2006 against the drugs cartels. But Mexico's top prosecutor has said that the violence is likely to worsen in 2009 as drug gangs split and fight for turf.

Officials say the increasingly gruesome nature of the violence shows that the drug gangs are being squeezed, intensifying their internal squabbles.

Zoo life is killing elephants, study finds

The average African female elephant lived to be just under 17 in a zoo but female elephants living natural lives in Amboseli National Park in Kenya lived an average of 66 years, they found.

Stress and obesity are the likely killers, Ros Clubb of Britain's Royal Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals and colleagues found.

"In zoos, the welfare of African elephants (Loxodonta africana) and Asian elephants (Elephas maximus) has long caused concern," they wrote in Friday's issue of the journal Science.

Tiny tribe claim Ethiopian allegiance in border row with Eritrea

DOHAN, 22 Dec — Groups of children giggling as they walk home from school in the shadow of Mount Asimba and the timeless stillness of Ethiopia's northeastern highland convey a deceptive sense of peace.

After living in this region for more than 700 years, the tiny Irob ethnic group is torn, in its heart, by the border with Eritrea and engaged in a futile struggle for recognition dwarfed by the regional conflict pitting the two rival nations.

A few miles from the front line, where tens of thousands of Ethiopian and Eritrean troops have been facing off for years, on the brink of war, children return from school on a dusty trail.

The mountainous region in northeastern Ethiopia was ravaged by the border conflict that left some 80,000 dead between 1998 and 2000.

The border subsequently drawn by an international UN-backed commission in a bid to end the war left the bulk of the Irob territory on Eritrea's side.

Scientist says ancient technique cuts greenhouse gas

An ancient technique of ploughing charred plants into the ground to revive soil may also trap greenhouse gases for thousands of years and forestall global warming, scientists said.

Heating plants such as farm waste or wood inarguably produces a high-carbon substance called biochar, which can store the greenhouse gas carbon dioxide and enhance nutrients in the soil.

Plants absorb carbon dioxide from the atmosphere as they grow. Subsequently storing that carbon in the soil removes the gas from the atmosphere.

"I feel confident that the (carbon storage) time of stable biochar is from high hundreds to a few thousand years," said Cornell University's Johannes Lehmann, at an event on the sidelines of UN climate talks in the Polish city of Poznan.
Pyawbwe-Pyayangasu Railroad reflects victory of local people

Article: Tin Htwe (MNA); Photos: Thar Nyan (MNA)

Pyawbwe-Pyayangasu Railroad branches off from Pyinmana-Thazi Railroad at Pyawbwe Station. And it links with Thazi-Shwenyaung Railroad at Phayangasu Station without passing through Thazi.

“Due to that railroad, people can travel directly by train between Nay Pyi Taw Pyinmana and Shwenyaung. It is 16.19 miles long. Pyawbwe-Thazi-Phayangasu Railroad is 31.75 miles long. That reduces the distance by 16.56 miles. Trains can run directly from Pyawbwe to their destination. So, passengers can save time.”

U Myint Oo of Lintsingon Village, said, “Here we produce rice, beans and pulses, chilli, onion, sesame and cotton and so on. In the past, we transported our agricultural produce by bullock cart, then by car to Pyawbwe.

But now, we can transport our produce directly from Lintsingon Station to Pyawbwe. So, we can make a save of time and money. Bus fare for the distance between Lintsingon and Pyawbwe is 300 kyats, but train fare is only 40 kyats.”

Junior Assistant Teacher U Tun Wai of the same village said, “Here, we are all happy with the new railroad. I am sure our region will enjoy greater development than ever. And the youth of our region will get an opportunity to broaden their horizons and enjoy better conditions in various sectors especially in the education and health sectors. Previously, it took us about an hour to travel one mile, but now it takes us only 10 minutes to travel the same distance. So, our region has changed a lot since it was in our youth. I never hoped such a great change, so it is like a dream. Our village has a population of over 500, and their relatives did not have much dealing with them. Now, transport has become smooth and they can meet their parents and relatives in the village easily. And it is convenient for their children to go to school in Pyawbwe. We all thank the Myanma Railways for the new railroad.”

U Aung Htay, Station Master of Pyawbwe Station said, “We have two up-trains: Nay Pyi Taw-Shwenyaung and Nay Pyi Taw-Loikaw and two down-trains: Shwenyaung-Nay Pyi Taw and Loikaw-Nay Pyi Taw daily. The trains go through the new railroad, so it does not have affect to current train schedules.

“Now, people of Pyawbwe are happy because they can go to Shwenyaung and Loikaw directly. To go to Phayangasu from Pyawbwe, train fare is only 90 kyats, but bus fare is 500 kyats. In the past, products from Shan State had to be transported Pyawbwe via Thazi. But now a direct train transport can be made between the same places, and so people can save time and money.”

Pyawbwe-Phayangasu Railroad Project was launched on 15 January 2007. The 16.19 miles long facility has 34 railroad bridges, three of which are above 100 feet long, 14 railroad bends, and three stations and a level crossing.

Thanks to Pyawbwe-Phayangasu Railroad, local people of Shwenyaung and Namhsan, Mongnai of Shan State (South) and Loikaw of Kayah State enjoy smooth transport with a swift commodity flow. Moreover, local people along the railroad will enjoy social and economic development. Therefore, the opening of Pyawbwe-Phayangasu Railroad reflects the victory of the Myanma Railways and local people.

Article: Ei Wah; Photos: Soe Nyunt (Kyemon)

Ngapali Beach in Thandwe, Rakhine State, is a household name at home and abroad thanks to its natural scenic beauty and a long history. The beach has silvery sand. Sea waves moving ashore are clear and gentle. So, the beach sees a constant flow of local and foreign tourists all-year round. Its surrounding areas are really eye-catching. So, visitors recognize it as a pleasant and attractive beach.

Indeed, Ngapali Beach is full of breathtaking views. In front of the beach is the large sea that stretches out as far as one can see. Green and lush woodlands really add to its beauty. The beach is surrounded by mountain ranges, archipelagos and islets. Fishing boats are seen in the sea, netting fish.

Ngapali Beach is also a really awe-inspiring view from an aircraft, according to the firsthand knowledge of our media team from the Mirror Daily. Gazing awestruck at the beach from the plane, I lost myself in a thought about Ngapali. Long ago, Ngapali was behind other regions in development. Owing to the daunting plans the government has been putting into action for ensuring equitable development of all parts of the nation, Ngapali has now developed considerably with smooth transport, advanced communication, and education and economic infrastructures. It has daily flights. The regional development has led to an increase in the number of visitors to Ngapali Beach alongside development of its tourism services. Its surrounding regions are also enjoying development with a boom in fishing and agricultural farming. Ngapali being a seaside region, fishing is the main source of business of local people.

Myanmar has many interesting places including beach resorts which tourists, local and foreign, can visit for relaxation. There are a huge number of beach resorts around the world. The beach resorts in Myanmar are lovely and fascinating in a different way as they are decorated without harming their natural beauty. Now, it has international level hotels with first-class service, and it magnetizes visitors.

The decoration of Aureum Palace Resort in Ngapali Beach Resort is somewhat different from other hotels. It is built of logs and timber. The buildings and bungalows in the resort compound are decorated with Myanmar traditional artistic works. The resort is made up of 42 rooms of three types: sea view, garden view, and executive sweet. There, seafood is recommended. It provides good service for the comfort and convenience of its customers. The resort has a wonderful view over the beach and sea. And visitors can enjoy the beauty of sunset from the resort. As a result, it gains customer satisfaction. The tourism season of Ngapali Beach is from November to March. Tourists to Ngapali Beach are mostly Europeans. Along the beach are 11 hotels. The resort has seen hotel service since 1960. On a trip to Ngapali Beach, tourists can visit the elephant station, weaving workshop, Phayathonzu, Thandwe Market, fishing village, and nearby islets. Thandwe is in the shape of a flying bird if it is viewed from Nandaw Mountain.

Now, Myanmar’s leisure season has set in since November. With a large number of interesting places, Myanmar has become an alluring magic for foreign tourists. Tourists are welcome to Ngapali Beach for rest and recreation.

DPRK official newspaper calls for building deterrent to US dominance

Pyongyang, 22 Dec—The Democratic People’s Republic of Korea (DPRK) should build a powerful deterrent to US dominance of world affairs, the official Rodong Sinmun daily said Monday.

The United States, while talking about “nuclear disarmament” on the Korean Peninsula, is still seeking modernization of its nuclear weapons, the newspaper said in a commentary.

“The US imperialists’ moves for the modernization of nuclear weapons compel the Korean people to heighten their revolutionary vigilance and the DPRK to build a powerful deterrent to cope with them,” it said.

Without a strong military deterrent, no country can safeguard its national security and strategic interests, it added. The latest round of the six-party talks, aimed at dismantling nuclear programs on the Korean Peninsula, ended earlier this month without a deal on nuclear verification, as the DPRK and the United States differed over related issues.—Internet

Pakistan PM says nation united to defend country

Islamabad, 22 Dec—Pakistani Prime Minister Yousaf Raza Gilani said Monday that the whole Pakistani nation is fully united and ready to defend the country.

Gilani’s remarks came as Pakistan-India tensions were heightened as the Indian side accused Pakistan-based militant groups of involvement in last month’s Mumbai terror attacks, which killed more than 170.

“The country is in safe hands. We have a highly professional and pro-democracy army. The army and the civil government are united and we are ready to defend the country,” Gilani told reporters in southern port city of Karachi.

The tensions between the two nuclear-armed countries has put the four-year peace process on hold.

Indian External Affairs Minister Pranab Mukherjee said Monday in New Delhi that India has kept all options open and urged Pakistan to do whatever it has committed.

Pakistan Air Force (PAF) said in a statement Monday that it has enhanced its vigilance “in view of current environment.”—Internet

Turkey plans to purchase 32 strike helicopters from Russia

Ankara, 22 Dec—Turkey plans to buy 32 Mi-28 strike helicopters from Russia with a cost of some one billion US dollars, Turkish daily Vatan reported on Monday.

The deal was reached with Russia after the US Department of State declined the Turkish Armed Forces’ request to buy 10 second-hand Cobras from the US before receiving the first T129 helicopters, co-produced with Italy’s Agusta Westland.

The US side declined the Turkish request citing the absence of available helicopters of this type according to the report.

Dollar retreats vs euro in thin market after jump

The US currency rose 0.8 percent to 90.04 yen, off a 13-year low of 87.13 yen touched last week. Data on Monday showed Japan's exports fell by a record in November from a year earlier as a deepening economic recession and tourism slump was too much too overdone.

Experts from France Telecom Marine arrived at the site of the damage to the SEA-ME-WE4 and SEA-ME-WE3 lines on board the cable ship, Raymond Croze, at 1330 GMT on Sunday, spokesman Louis-Michel Aymard said.

NASA celebrates Apollo 8’s moon mission 40 years on

HOUSTON, 22 Dec — The US space agency on Sunday marked the 40th anniversary of the historic Apollo 8 mission that brought three astronauts to orbit the moon for the first time.

On 21 Dec, 1968, Apollo 8 blasted off from Cape Canaveral, Florida and three days later, Frank Borman, James Lovell and William Anders became the first humans to enter lunar orbit.

The mission ultimately led to the first footsteps on the moon when Neil Armstrong took his “one small step” in 1969. Apollo 8 also marked a rare moment of unity in the United States in a tumultuous year marred by the assassinations of Martin Luther King, Jr and Robert Kennedy, violence peaking during the Vietnam War and riots across American cities.

Shortly after entering the moon’s orbit, astronauts aboard the Apollo 8 witnessed Earth rising above the moon, “Earthrise,” a photograph of the event taken by Anders, became one of the most famous images of the 20th century.

The International Space Station (ISS) crew paid homage to Apollo 8 in a video message broadcast from space this week.

“Forty years ago, a trio of astronauts ... set out on what was at that time humanity’s boldest journey,” said Commander Michael Fincke, who heads Expedition 18, the current ISS mission.

Cough medication may treat prostate cancer

SAN DIEGO, 22 Dec — An ingredient used in a common cough suppressant may be useful in treating advanced prostate cancer, US researchers said.

The study, published in the journal Anticancer Research, found that noscapine — used in cough medication for nearly 50 years — reduced tumor growth in mice by 60 percent and limited the spread of tumors by 65 percent without harmful side effects.

Dr Israel Barken of the Prostate Cancer Research and Educational Foundation in San Diego, Moshe Rosogeniczky of MedInsight Research Institute and Dr Jack Geller of The University of California, San Diego said noscapine, a naturally-occurring, non-addictive derivative of opium, cannot be patented, which has limited the potential for clinical trials.

Rosogeniczky explained that drug companies are generally unwilling to underwrite expensive clinical trials without being able to recoup their investment. A synthetic derivative of noscapine, has been patented but has not yet reached the clinical testing phase.

Since noscapine is approved for use in many countries as a cough suppressant, it is available to doctors to prescribe for other uses as well. This “off-label” use of noscapine is increasingly being used to treat a variety of cancers, Barken said. Extra vitamins have no effect on cancer

LOS ANGELES, 22 Dec — Taking supplemental vitamins and minerals won’t prevent cancer, strokes or heart disease results of long-term trials suggest. The trials counter a widespread belief held since the 1990s that taking vitamins and minerals could play a key role in preventing ailments, especially in older people, the Los Angeles Times reported Sunday.

In some cases, taking supplements can be unsafe, said doctors, noting a healthy diet provides all that most people need.

“These things are ineffective, and in high doses they can cause harm,” said Dr Edgar R Miller of Johns Hopkins University School of Medicine in Baltimore.

“People are unhappy with their diets, they’re stressed out and they think it will help. It’s just wishful thinking.”

Study finds pesticides in fruit drinks

LONDON, 22 Dec — Britain had the highest level of pesticides among 15 countries whose fruit juice drinks were tested, say researchers at the University of Jaen in Spain. University researchers tested a total of 102 drinks bought in, among other countries, the United States, Russia, Italy, Germany, France, Switzerland and Britain, The Sunday Times of London reported.

The drinks purchased in Britain, on average, had pesticide levels 34 times higher than the levels permitted in drinking water in the European Union. Even with those pesticide levels, however, the drinks were not considered a safety risk, said the European Food Standards Agency.

The study showed the average pesticide level was 17.4 micrograms per liter in the British drinks, 12.3 micrograms in the Spanish drinks and 4.9 micrograms in the French drink, with the lowest pesticide levels found in the drinks purchased in the United States, Russia and Morocco, said the report in the journal Analytical Chemistry.

Milan dazzle in front of watching Beckham

Rome, 22 Dec—AC Milan seemed inspired by the presence of new loan signing David Beckham watching on from the stands as they blew away hapless Udinese 5-1 at the San Siro on Sunday night.

That ensured they moved into the three-week winter break, after which they will be able to call on the services of the former English captain, in third place in Serie A, nine points off leaders Inter Milan. In between the bitter city rivals stand Juventus who cut Inter’s lead to six points earlier in the day as they won 3-1 at Atalanta.

Pato and Kaka both bagged a brace for for Milan and Dutch veteran Clarence Seedorf rounded things off while Wayne Rooney, seen here leaping for the ball, came to the rescue as Manchester United beat South American champions Liga de Quito 1-0 to win the Club World Cup and lift one of the few trophies to have eluded them.—INTERNET

Mourinho says Ibrahimovic is better than Ronaldo

Rome, 22 Dec—Cristiano Ronaldo may have been crowned champion of England, Europe and the world as well as picking up the Ballon d’Or this year but Inter Milan coach Jose Mourinho still doesn’t think he’s the best.

Mourinho believes that his own Inter forward Zlatan Ibrahimovic or Sweden is one of those that are better than his countryman.

Speaking to Italian TV hostess Simona Ventura, Mourinho said there were several players better than the Manchester United winger.

“When I think about how a player should be what comes to mind is players like Kaka, Ibrahimovic and Lionel Messi, who is a phenomenon and in two or three years will win the Ballon d’Or,” he said.—INTERNET

Triumphant United face Premier League reality

Yokohama, 22 Dec—Manchester United began the long trip back to England on Monday in a triumphant but sober mood, with a Boxing Day fixture against Stoke City looming and jetlag to deal with.

Winning the Club World Cup on Sunday gave the team one of the few pieces of silverware to elude them and the players were clearly delighted at being crowned world champions to go with their European and English titles.

Wayne Rooney scored the only goal as they beat Ecuador’s Liga de Quito 1-0.

But they suffered a blow when Nemanja Vidic was sent off, meaning he will miss their Champions League first leg against Inter Milan in February. Now they face the reality—a grueling flight back to London with a connection to Manchester and then Stoke, knowing that a defeat on Friday would be disastrous.—INTERNET

Arsenal can still win the title insists defiant Wenger

London, 22 Dec—Arsene Wenger insists Arsenal can still win the Premier League title despite his side’s failure to close the gap on leaders Liverpool.

The Gunners remain eight points behind Liverpool after Sunday’s 1-1 draw against Rafa Benitez’s team at the Emirates Stadium.

It is a substantial deficit, especially considering Arsenal still have daunting trips to Anfield, Old Trafford and Villa Park to come, but Wenger is adamant Liverpool will slip up and he expects his team to take advantage.

“We are not out of the race because the title is won in May and we are in December,” Wenger said. “Mathematically we will fight until the end. I believe Liverpool will drop many points and I am convinced of that.

“They had four draws at home. That means they dropped eight points, why shouldn’t they drop eight more in the second half of the season?”—INTERNET

China protests latest US trade case at WTO

BEIJING, 22 Dec — China said on Sunday it had consistently respected the rules of the World Trade Organization and would work with the WTO on a suit lodged against it by the United States aimed at halting export subsidy programmes. The United States began legal action at the WTO on Friday to halt Chinese government subsidies programmes to boost the sale of Chinese-branded goods around the world.

The subsidies benefit a wide range of Chinese industrial sectors, including household electronic appliances, textiles and apparel, a range of light manufacturing industries, agricultural and food products, metal and chemical products, medicines and health products, the US Trade Representative’s Office said.

The subsidies include cash grant rewards for exporting, preferential loans for exporters and payments to lower the cost of export credit insurance, the USTR said. However, China’s Commerce Ministry, in a short statement on its website (www.mofcom.gov.cn), said China respected the rules. “China has all along respected the rules of the WTO, and opposes trade protectionism,” it paraphrased an unnamed official as saying. “China will deal with (the suit) in accordance with WTO rules.”

Switzerland may send soldiers to protect ships off Somalia coast

GENEVA, 22 Dec — Switzerland may place soldiers aboard Swiss merchant ships sailing in waters near Somalia to fend off the threat of pirates, local media reported on Sunday.

“There is no other solution than to send soldiers if our ships are threatened,” Swiss President Pascal Couchepin was quoted as saying by the Sonntags Zeitung newspaper. Couchepin, who is also the country’s interior minister, said the Swiss Cabinet had not made a final decision, but its position was clear on this issue.

He said the Swiss Government was now reviewing “what legal, financial and practical consequences” such an action would have.

Somali pirates have recently made frequent attacks on merchant ships sailing in the Gulf of Aden and the Indian Ocean. Given the seriousness of the threat, the UN Security Council has authorized states to take actions to fight piracy in nearby waters of Somalia.—MNA/Xinhua

Pyawbwe-Phayangasu Railroad reflects victory of local people

Just as the train left Pyawbwe Station to make the first run to launch Pyawbwe-Phayangasu Railroad, a large number of local people standing on both sides of the railroad waved their hands out of joy to officials on the train.

The train stopped for a while at Lintsingon Station between Pyawbwe and Phayangasu Stations and again at Phayangasu Station in response to the rousing welcome offered by local people waving commemorative pennants to the accompaniment of an entertainment programme of dances and songs, the officials on the train greeted them.

The opening of Pyawbwe-Phayangasu Railroad constructed by the Myanma Railways under the Ministry of Rail Transportation took place on 30 November morning. When asked about the new transport facility, Project Engineer U Lwan Thu told (See page 7)...

New model explains movements of the Moon

MADRID, 22 Dec — Two researchers from the universities of Valladolid and Alicante are developing a mathematical formula to study the rotation of the moon, taking into account its structure, rotational dynamics of the Earth and its satellite, and which the scientific community will be able to use to obtain more precise measurements in order to aid future NASA missions to the moon.

Juan J. A. Getino, from the Applied Mathematics Department of the University of Valladolid, and Alberto Escapa, from the Applied Mathematics Department of the Higher Polytechnic School of the University of Alicante, suggest in their work that the Earth and the moon should be considered as “multi-layered” systems.

Geoscientists drill for secrets of Earth's ancient climate

COLOGNE, 22 Dec — In the next few days, a convoy of bulldozers and trucks will set out from a remote airport in Siberia, heading for a frozen lake 62 miles north of the Arctic Circle, but the trip isn’t a holiday visit to the North Pole.

Instead, the trucks will deliver core-drilling equipment for a study of sediment and meteorite-impact rocks that should provide the longest time-continuous climate record ever collected in the Arctic.

A bulldozer with payload bound for Lake El’gygytgyn on a previous research foray. For this logistically difficult study, scientists spent 10 years taking test core drill samples, measuring lake ice movement and other key factors in order to maximize the chance for scientific success and personnel safety.—INTERNET
