Avert fires through prevention

Now, it is in early summer in Myanmar, and more fires break out in the hot season than any other season. So, fire prevention merits immense consideration.

In accordance with the public caution that goes ‘Avert fire through prevention’, the people have to take constant care in using fire as irresponsible use of fire may be costly.

Fire is the best friend, as well as the worst enemy. Fire gives us light and heat. Man uses fire in cooking.

The majority of fires are due to negligence. Some other causes of fire are unsystematic use of stoves, natural fire, and electric circuit shock. In many cases, fires break out when nearby inflammable objects catch fire from live embers inside a stove. So, it is to make sure that remnant embers are put out after the cooking.

Moreover, it is careless to set and leave burning candles and mosquito coils nearflammable materials while the user is away from the site.

In 2008, Myanmar saw 719 fires that burnt down 6234 houses and buildings, 15 factories and workshops, and 33 godowns, and claimed lives, possessions, and works of cultural heritage.

Members of the Fire Services Department are occasionally issuing public notices, making inspection tours, and practising fire drills to improve their skills of extinguishing fires. The people on their part have to take care in using fire.

The people are therefore urged to take preventive measures against fire, and bear in mind mottos and public reminders to be able to avert fires and avoid adverse effects that hurt community peace and regional stability.

‘Friendly fire fears grow’ in Afghanistan

LONDON, 28 Feb — Allied troops will use separate battlefield identification technology in Afghanistan, sparking fears of friendly fire incidents, Sky News has learnt. The 17,000-strong US surge will outnumber UK forces in the region two to one, increasing the risk of what the military calls “blue-on-blue” incidents.

After having to borrow American GPS-based tracking in Iraq, the Ministry of Defence has developed its own independent system, to be mounted in vehicles and carried by every infantry platoon. But despite costing tens of millions of pounds, GrATs, as it is called, will not network directly with the older US technology.

Brigadier Neil Couch, director of Information and Communication Systems, explained why. He said: “Had we bought into the US system, we wouldn’t have had control of the system that allows us the operational flexibility to suit it and to prioritise it through our own British forces’ operation.” Also, we wouldn’t have had a system that we could use on other operations in the future.

Small transponders each beam forces’ locations to NATO HQ, but it will be up to commanders then to let units know of the near presence of friendly forces. Another worry is that neither the American or British system can communicate directly to aircrew.

US military deaths in Afghanistan region at 588

WASHINGTON, 28 Feb — As of Friday, 27 Feb, 2009, at least 588 members of the US military had died in Afghanistan, Pakistan and Uzbekistan as a result of the US invasion of Afghanistan in late 2001, according to the Defence Department. The department last updated its figures Friday at 10 am EST.

Of those, the military reports 433 were killed by hostile action.

Outside the Afghan region, the Defence Department reports 67 more members of the US military died in support of Operation Enduring Freedom. Of those, three were the result of hostile action. The military lists these other locations as Guantanamo Bay Naval Base, Cuba; Djibouti; Eritrea; Ethiopia; Jordan; Kenya; Kyrgyzstan; Philippines; Seychelles; Sudan; Tajikistan; Turkey; and Yemen.

US troops say Iraqis ready for Obama timetable

CAMP SPEICHER, 28 Feb — At a sandstorm-battered base near Saddam Hussein’s hometown, US Army Chief Warrant Officer Swati Spikes agrees it’s nearly about time for combat troops to leave Iraq.

He hopes the Iraqis are ready for it. It was dinnertime at the sprawling Camp Speicher in north-central Iraq, and Spikes was in the chow hall, glued to one of several wide-screens TVs showing President Barack Obama outlining his plan for withdrawing combat troops by 31 Aug, 2010.

“I like his approach to it because I think we need to start turning over the country to the Iraqis,” said Spikes, a 33-year-old Hawaiian serving his third tour here in nearly six years. “I would like to think they are ready. I think we have done a good job training them. Now they need to apply it and sustain it.”

“I think they will be OK,” he said. Many US soldiers at the base appeared lining his plan for withdrawing combat troops by 31 Aug, 2010.

Soldier guilty of murder in Iraqi detainee killing

FORT CAMPBELL, 28 Feb — An Army officer who shot and killed an Iraqi detainee during an interrogation was convicted of murder Friday night by a military jury.

First Lt Michael Behenna of Edmond, Okla, avoided conviction on the more serious charge of premeditated murder in the death of the detainee he took aside for questioning last May. A military panel of seven officers at Fort Campbell also found him guilty of assault but acquitted him of making a false statement after three hours of deliberation.

A sentencing hearing was scheduled for Saturday, and Behenna faces up to life in prison on the murder conviction. The more serious premeditated offense would have resulted in an automatic life without parole sentence.

Behenna has testified that he was trying to defend himself when he shot Ali Mansour Mohammed and that the detainee reached for his gun in a secluded railroad culvert near Beiji, Iraq. Behenna said he hadn’t intended to kill him.—INTERNET
Man arrested over HIV blood sent to Obama

CHICAGO, 28 Feb—A man has been arrested for allegedly sending Barack Obama and his staff envelopes containing HIV-infected blood. Saad Hussein, an Ethiopian refugee in his late 20s, sent a number of items to the offices of the Illinois government in the weeks before the US President’s inauguration, according to court documents.

One envelope contained a letter with reddish stains and an admission ticket for Mr Obama’s election night celebration in Grant Park, Chicago. Court documents claim Hussein told FBI agents he is “very sick with HIV” and cut his fingers with a razor so he could bleed on the letter. Hazardous materials teams were called in after the envelope addressed to “Barack Obama” was opened.

Days after the first letter was sent, Hussein allegedly placed two more letters in the mail, one addressed to “Emanuel”, an apparent reference to the President’s chief of staff, Rahm Emanuel. The two letters contained what appeared to be dried blood, the court documents said.

Hussein, who is being treated for a mental illness, was arrested last month. An affidavit filed at the time accused him of “knowingly” posting letters “containing HIV-infected blood, with the intent to kill or injure another”. —Internet

Cooler weather a relief for Australian firemen

SYDNEY, 28 Feb—Australian fire crews took advantage of cooler conditions Saturday to prepare for dangerous weather forecast for early next week. Four major blazes continued to rage in the scorched southeastern state of Victoria, where 210 people lost their lives in a devastating firestorm three weeks ago.

More than 100 extra firefighters have been flown to Victoria amid fears that forecast higher temperatures and winds could boost the fire threat. But authorities said cooler weather late Friday had given the crews a much-needed reprieve.

“It provided us a good opportunity to keep building and strengthening containment lines in those existing fires,” an environment department spokesman said.

“With the cool temperature we have seen fire activity slow down, which allows us to get in and do a lot of work and containment before Tuesday... (which) is predicted to be very warm, with strong to gale-force winds.” —Internet

US citizen stabbed in Cairo tourist area

CAIRO, 28 Feb—An attacker stabbed a US citizen in front of his wife in a popular Cairo tourist area on Friday in the second attack on foreigners in the Egyptian capital in less than a week, security sources said.

They said the American, a teacher in his fifties in an American school in the coastal city of Alexandria, was with his wife and a friend when he was lightly wounded in an unprovoked attack in a tourist area that is home to the 14th century Khan el-Khalili market.

The assailant, who was arrested at the scene, told police he attacked the American out of hatred for foreigners, particularly after Israel’s recent offensive on the Gaza Strip, one security source and state media said.

Chinese e-cigs gain ground amid safety concerns

BEIJING, 28 Feb—With its slim white body and glowing amber tip, it can easily pass as a regular cigarette. It even emits what look like curlies of white smoke.

The Ruyan V8, which produces a nicotine-infused mist absorbed directly into the lungs, is just one of a rapidly growing array of electronic cigarettes attracting attention in China, the US and elsewhere — and the scrutiny of world health officials.

Marketed as a healthier alternative to smoking and a potential way to kick the habit, the smokeless cigarettes have been distributed in swag bags at the British film awards and hawked at an international trade show.

Because no burning is involved, makers say there’s no hazardous cocktail of cancer-causing chemicals and gases like those produced by a regular cigarette. There’s no secondhand smoke, so they can be used in places where cigarettes are banned, the makers say.

Health authorities are questioning those claims. The World Health Organization issued a statement in September warning there was no evidence to back up contentions that e-cigarettes are a safe substitute for smoking or a way to help smokers quit.—Internet

World-famous British restaurant shuts in poisoning scare

LONDON, 28 Feb—The Fat Duck, considered one of the very best in the world, has been temporarily closed due to a food poisoning scare, owner Heston Blumenthal said on Saturday. The restaurant in Bray, Berkshire, which has three Michelin stars, was closed as a precaution after customers reported feeling unwell.

Between 30 and 40 people are understood to have complained of illness over the last two to three weeks. The Fat Duck was named the best restaurant in the world in 2005 by Restaurant magazine and has been in second place since then in their annual poll of international chefs and critics.

Tests by celebrity chef Blumenthal’s own food safety consultants and environmental health officers from the local authorities have so far proved inconclusive.

“It’s so weird — we haven’t found anything. But I can’t take the risk of keeping open until we have exhausted every single avenue,” Blumenthal told The Times.—Internet

Malaria control measures making advances in fight against deadly disease

UNITED NATIONS, 28 Feb—Although progress has been made toward reducing malaria deaths, currently around 1 million a year, to near zero by the end of 2015, the international community needs to intensify its efforts to reach the goal, said a United Nations report published here on Friday. The report noted that more than 40 percent of the population in sub-Saharan Africa now have access to long-lasting insecticide-treated mosquito nets (LLINs), compared with 10 percent in 2005. The figures indicate a considerable leap in the number of people benefiting from the protective cover of the nets in the continent, which accounts for more than 90 percent of all malaria deaths. UN Secretary-General Ban Ki-moon’s target of providing universal malaria control coverage by the end of 2010 to all endemic African countries is within sight, according to the report, with the distribution to date of more than 140 million mosquito nets, protecting nearly 300 million people in the region. —Xinhua

Japan ordered to pay $58m for US warplane noise

Tokyo, 28 Feb — A court ordered the Japanese government to pay 5.6 billion yen ($57.7 million) to compensate people whose lives are disrupted by the noise of warplanes at a US air base on the southern island of Okinawa, the Defence Ministry said.

The Fukuoka High Court ruling doubled the 2.8 million yen compensation awarded in 2005 to the people living around Kadena Air Base, and upheld the appeals of 5,540 residents, Defence Ministry spokesman Katsushi Toyoda said.

The plaintiffs said the noise from aircraft at the Kadena base exceeded bearable levels and caused insomnia and other psychological pain. Tokyo has long insisted the noise levels are bearable and do not cause health problems among nearby residents.

“The court did not fully understand the government position,” Toyota said, adding that the ministry would “examine the ruling carefully” and decide whether to appeal the ruling.

Collecting ancient coins is a serious hobby that requires considerable knowledge as they boast a long and colourful history within China.

In China, there’s perhaps nothing smaller than the ancient coin that can fuse history and culture so perfectly.

China was one of the first countries to use metal coinage that can be traced back more than 2,000 years. Despite the country’s often turbulent history, there remain several well-known ancient coins.

Fossil of 10 million-year-old bird found in Peru

Paleontologists have found the fossil of the head of a bird that lived 10 million years ago in what is now Peru, scientists said on Friday after returning from the dig site on the country’s desert coast.

The species of bird had a wing span of 19.7 feet (6 meters) and fed mostly on fish from the Pacific Ocean. It first appeared 50 million years ago and went extinct about 2.5 million years ago because of climate change, said paleontologist Mario Urbina of Peru’s Natural History Museum.

“The cranium of the bird, from the Pelagornithidae family, is the most complete find of its kind in the world. Its fossil remains are hard to find,” he said.

Masked teens spark major police alert

Two masked children pretending to be members of Germany’s elite military force triggered a major police operation in the German city of Aachen, police said on Monday.

Neighbours alerted the police after they spotted two “dodgy-looking figures” clad in black balaclavas on a factory site and the police promptly dispatched eight police cars, complete with dogs, to seal off the area.

After surrounding the site, the policemen carefully moved in and ordered the masked suspects to stand still as they were crawling underneath some shrubs and heading toward a fence.

The two boys stopped in their tracks, raised their arms and took off their masks to reveal their identities as one 12-year-old and one 13-year-old boy.

US military weaning Iraq’s army from support

Taji, 28 Feb — There was the time the Iraqis spent millions of dollars on ammunition from Romania, only to discover that it was defective or didn’t fit their US- or Russian-made weapons. Or when the Iraqis bought portable kitchens which didn’t work in the field.

The US military has put in countless hours training Iraqi security forces in battlefield and police tactics. But the Obama administration’s apparent plans to withdraw combat troops by the end of August 2010 — and the remaining service personnel by the end of the following year — has some commanders concerned about something else: Iraq’s ability to equip and maintain its own forces.

“They are at the basic level. They can feed themselves. They can fuel themselves. They can arm themselves,” said Australian Brig Gen David McGahey, who heads the US-led task force aimed at helping the Iraqi armed forces fend for themselves after the eventual pull out.— Internet

Emergency plane landing in Romania; all 51 safe

TIMISOARA (Romania), 28 Feb—A Romanian plane carrying 51 people made a safe emergency landing in western Romania on Saturday and all the occupants escaped injury, officials said. The Carpatair flight’s front landing gear became stuck and the plane circled for almost two hours, using up its fuel to avoid a potential fire before it landed on a 200-yard (200-meter) long bed of foam laid out by firefighters, officials said.

At least 10 ambulances and three fire engines were waiting for the stricken plane, the emergency department said. Dan Andrei, the airline’s vice president, said, “the plane came down on the side wheels; it braked sharply and at a low speed it came on its front belly, while the front landing gear remained stuck.”

The company said the two Moldovan pilots — Iurie Oleacov, 37, and Leonid Babischi, 47—were highly experienced. The Saab 2000 aircraft was carrying 47 passengers and four crew members on its flight from the Moldovan capital, Chisinau, to Timisoara, airport spokeswoman Carmen Stoica said. Romanian border police, who deal with international customs, said the plane was carrying 11, Romanians, 23 Moldovans, nine Italians, two Greeks and two Germans. The crew is Moldovan. Timisoara ambulance chief Iancu Leonida said no one was hurt, but people were very frightened. “There are no injured people, although some might have minor scratches, but they are very scared and traumatized,” he said. “They are being given medical care.” —Internet

Montenegro police arrest 25 people in drug bust

Podgorica, 28 Feb—Montenegro police arrested 25 people suspected of smuggling tonnes of marijuana from Albania, an official said on Friday, in the latest big drug bust as the two countries clamp down on crime in their bid to join the EU.

Both countries have stepped up border security and the joint activities of law enforcement agencies in the last few months.

Media reports on Friday said a police officer and a low ranking government official were among those arrested in the biggest single drug bust in the Balkan country since December.

The suspects, belonging to seven crime clans, smuggled 2.5 tons of "extra strong marijuana also known as skunk" from Albania via Montenegro to neighbouring Serbia and Bosnia, police spokeswoman Tamara Popovic said.

Popovic said in a joint action, Albanian police recently arrested another six people in connection with the case. She did not elaborate further.

In December Montenegrin law enforcement agencies arrested 19 people and seized some 550 kilos of narcotics.

The mountainous border between Montenegro and neighbouring Albania is frequently used for trafficking drugs, weapons and people.

Kurdish ‘grave sites’ to be dug

ISTANBUL, 28 Feb—A Turkish prosecutor has ordered the digging up of several sites where it is believed the bodies of Kurds killed in the 1990s may have been dumped. Hundreds of people disappeared at the height of the fighting in the mainly Kurdish south-east.

Lawyers say many were last seen with security forces members. The Kurdish conflict, which began in the 1980s when insurgents started fighting for a separate Kurdish state, still continues today. Close to 40,000 people have been killed.

More than 70 families applied to a prosecutor in the town of Silopi after information emerged suggesting the location of their relatives’ bodies. The prosecutor has ordered the excavation of two old wells shafts behind an abandoned roadside restaurant.

Another site to be dug is on the grounds of the Botash oil company. Lawyers also want to examine parts of a municipal cemetery where they believe a mass grave of the missing could be found.

Mediterranean nations top EU’s climate change risk list

BRUSSELS, 28 Feb—Italy, Spain and Greece could bear the brunt of climate change in Europe this century, with heatwaves and wildfires hitting tourism earnings and food production, according to a draft European Commission report.

The economic impact of climate change could be 6.2 billion euros (7.9 billion US dollars) a year by 2020 if the EU’s 27 nations do nothing to adapt, says an early draft of the “Adapting to Climate Change” report, seen by Reuters on Friday.

That could rise to 54-63 billion euros a year by 2060, depending on the success of measures to cut emissions, says the draft, which has not yet been approved by Europe’s environment commissioner and will not be officially adopted until April.

“The studies show a strong directional pattern of effects predicted across Europe, with a significant trend towards more negative potential effects in southeastern Europe and the Mediterranean,” said the draft.

The report did not specifically name Spain, Italy and Greece, but six accompanying maps showed heavy impacts on crop yields and availability of fresh water in all three countries.

They also highlighted increased risks from wildfires in the eastern Mediterranean and Balkans and dangerous heatwaves in Spain.

Cambodia to build first automobile assembly plant

PHNOM PENH, 28 Feb — One Cambodian company is putting the pedal to the metal after having received the approval from Prime Minister Hun Sen to begin construction on the country’s first automobile assembly plant, national media reported Friday.

The 60-million-US-dollar factory will assemble cars for the South Korean automobile maker Hyundai, which will supply vehicle parts, Lim Visal, assembly plant coordinator for Camco Motor Company was quoted by the Cambodia Daily newspaper as saying.

“The assembly factory will be constructed on 16.5 hectares of land in the Special Economic Zone in Koh Kong Province and a car showroom will be opened in Phnom Penh,” Lim Visal said, adding that the target date for the start of production is the middle of 2010.

Lim Visal said 500 workers will be hired for the construction of the plant, 1,000 after the construction is complete and possibly a total of 3,000 in the next 10 years. “The company plans to hire locally to man the plant and some of those hired will be sent to South Korea to train,” he said.

Suspected al Qaeda operative charged in US court

WASHINGTON, 28 Feb—President Barack Obama on Friday ordered suspected al Qaeda operative Ali al-Marri transferred to the US court system to face newly filed criminal charges after 5-1/2 years in a military prison in South Carolina. The Obama administration’s decision to move Marri into the US judicial system marked a significant policy shift from the Bush administration, which had argued that Marri could be held indefinitely without being charged. Marri is suspected of being an al Qaeda “sleeper” agent sent by Osama bin Laden and by Khalid Sheikh Mohammed the mastermind of the September 11 attacks, to disrupt the US financial system by hacking into bank computers. He is the last of three terrorism suspects who had been held by the military in the United States without charges as an “enemy combatant.” The case could signal the Obama administration will prosecute in US courts at least some of the terrorism suspects held at the US military prison at Guantanamo Bay in Cuba. There are 245 detainees at Guantnamo. The administration also asked the US Supreme Court to dismiss Marri’s challenge to his indefinite imprisonment by the military without charges on the grounds the criminal indictment announced on Friday made his appeal to the high court moot.—INTERNET

Leonardo “Codex” reveals youthful self-portrait

ROME, 28 Feb—A sketch obscured by handwriting for five centuries in one of Leonardo da Vinci’s notebooks may be a youthful self-portrait, according to Italian experts who Piero Angela, who will present images of his discovery on Italian state television RAI Saturday.

Studying a high quality facsimile of the codex, Angela first detected the faint form of a nose behind the heavy black text of the codex’s tenth page, he told a news conference on Friday. He enlisted the help of art historians, Carabinieri police forensic experts and RAI’s graphic department to turn the black text covering the sketch white, thus the same tone as the paper.

Over months of micro-pixel work, graphic designer Giovanni Stililiano gradually “removed” the text and revealed the drawing underneath. What emerged was the face of a young man with a short beard and a penetrating gaze.

The features were first compared to all known portraits and sketches of young men by Leonardo, but no match was found.—INTERNET

Baby died from mum’s cold sore kiss of death

LONDON, 28 Feb—An 11-day-old baby girl died after her mother unwittingly infected her with the virus which causes cold sores, probably through a kiss on breastfeeding, a British coroner has ruled. An inquest found newborn Jennifer Schofield died from Herpes Simplex Virus (HSV).

Her mother Ruth, 35, probably caught it late into her pregnancy, the coroner said, most likely for the first time in her life, meaning she had not developed immunity and nor had her child. The virus attacked the baby’s major organs and she died within days.

Ms Schofield fell ill with flu-like symptoms a few days before giving birth, and was treated for several mouth ulcers. Her daughter subsequently became unwell and was admitted to hospital because she was sleepy and not feeding.

Coroner James Adeley said no one could be blamed for failing to identify the virus. Ms Schofield is now campaigning to raise awareness of the condition which she said kills six babies a year in Britain.—INTERNET

British tourists fall to death in the Alps

LONDON, 28 Feb—Two British tourists have died after falling down a steep valley following a night out in a ski resort in the French Alps. The pair went missing after leaving a bar late at night in the resort of Deux Alpes on Wednesday. But their bodies were not discovered until Friday, police said.

The victims, who were aged 28 and 29 and came from York, have not yet been named. In another part of the Alps, climbers recovered the body of a British teacher who went missing during a hiking expedition more than seven months ago. Christopher Hilton’s body was found in a frozen waterfall at the foot of a 50-metre cliff. The 32-year-old appeared to have fallen to his death after slipping. Mountain rescuers were sent to recover the body from the waterfall near the town of Villard-Notre-Dame.—INTERNET

Slumdog Millionaire film sparks surge in Indian child sponsorship

LONDON, 28 Feb—Anti-poverty charity ActionAid says there has been a surge in Indian child sponsorship inquiries in Britain since the Oscar triumph of Slumdog Millionaire. The charity said it had to rush the contact details of scores of Indian children to its offices in the UK. It normally fields around 500 inquiries a week for child sponsorship, but the number of inquiries soared to 1400 on the back of Slumdog Millionaire’s accolades.

“We’re calling it the Slumdog effect,” said fundraising director Richard Turner. “We haven’t seen such a high level of interest in one country for a long time.” Slumdog Millionaire, a rags-to-riches tale of children from the slums of Mumbai, won eight Oscars this week, including the best picture academy award. It was directed by UK director Danny Boyle.

“Child sponsorship has transformed the lives of hundreds of thousands of children and is one of the most rewarding ways of giving,” Mr Turner said. “Sponsor’s money helps towards securing a decent education, better health care and economic security for children and the communities in which they live.”
Espanyol look to dent Real’s title aspirations

BARCELONA, 28 Feb — Having already slain the apparently invincible Barcelona giant killers, Espanyol now turn their attention to Real Madrid, who have reduced the gap at the top of the table to seven points with a nine-match winning run in the league.

Last weekend then bottom of the table Espanyol were given little or no chance before facing Barca but an astute tactical performance pressing the home side’s defence and closing down the midfield, combined with the tiredness of their opponents led them to inflicting only Barca’s second defeat of the season.

Espanyol forward Luis Garcia believes that the visit of Real — who enter the match on a low after being beaten 1-0 by Liverpool at home in their Champions League clash on Wednesday — has come at the perfect time.

“They are exactly who we want to face at the moment, we know that Real Madrid are on a good run but we have to think of our own situation and we have to take the game to them thinking about what we achieved at the Nou Camp,” he said. — Internet

Italian teams looking to forget Euro disappointment

MILAN, 28 Feb — After the Italian teams’ poor showing in European competition in midweek it’s back to the domestic grindstone as Inter Milan look to maintain their nine-point lead in Serie A.

The Champions League did not prove a happy hunting ground for Italy’s three remaining representatives as they failed to score a goal between them. Roma lost 1-0 to Arsenal and Juventus went down by the same score against Chelsea. Only Inter staved off defeat in a 0-0 draw against Manchester United which could easily have ended in a heavy loss.

Now Inter need to quickly forget Tuesday's game in which they were largely dominated and readapt to their position as kings of Italy. They host Roma in the plum tie of the weekend and they will be keen to reassert their domestic authority. — Internet

Bayern must repeat European passion play in Bundesliga

BERLIN, 28 Feb — Luca Toni insists Bayern Munich must use the same passion they showed in their Champions League hammering of Sporting Lisbon in midweek to get their Bundesliga campaign back on track in Bremen this weekend.

The Italian forward, who fired a hat-trick in Lisbon as Bayern routed the home side 5-0 in the round of 16, first-leg tie and are virtually guaranteed a Champions League quarter-final berth.

But Bayern’s progress in Europe is a far cry from their Bundesliga form where they have lost three of their last four games and are down to fourth in the table - four points behind leaders Hamburg.

“We showed the real Bayern Munich in Lisbon,” said Toni. “We’ve shown what we’re capable of. The decisive factor was the whole team playing with passion and resolve, because we want to get out of a difficult situation together. ‘Now we need to start winning again in the Bundesliga.’” — Internet

PARIS, 28 Feb — After an enterprising performance in the first leg of their Champions League round of 16 tie against Barcelona, French champions Lyon return to league action on Sunday buoyed by a six-point lead at the Ligue 1 summit.

Experts say new drugs needed to fight flu pandemic

Hong Kong, 28 Feb—Experts on Friday urged governments on Friday to diversify their stockpiles of drugs and called for more new medicines to fight what could be the world’s next flu pandemic caused by the H1N1 bird flu virus. Many advanced countries stock up on oseltamivir and zanamivir, two varieties of the same class of drugs that stop the H5N1 virus from multiplying. But oseltamivir has proven to be largely useless in fighting the H1N1 seasonal human influenza virus and experts are questioning how well, and how long, the drug would stand up against the H1N1 virus, should it unleash a pandemic.

“We have been extremely foolish on our policies of stockpiling drugs. We have been stockpiling two varieties of the same drug,” virologist Robert Webster of the St Jude Children’s Hospital in the United States said at a medical conference in Hong Kong. He said the resistance of the H1N1 virus to oseltamivir was as high as 98 per cent worldwide.—MNA/Reuters
