Chin State to be promoted as tourist site

Measures are being taken to develop tourism in Chin State after it saw a surge in number of foreign tourists last year, said the Ministry of Hotels and Tourism.

Following the political and economic reforms, the number of foreign tourists to Myanmar has increased, said the Union Minister for Hotels and Tourism U Hlay Aung on his tour of Chin State to help develop tourism there.

The Union minister added over one million foreign tourists visited Myanmar in 2013 and the number is going to rise in 2013. The Hotels and Tourism Ministry is planning to expand the tourist routes and Chin State is among them to be built as a tourist site. Required courses will be conducted in Chin State, helping to start the untapped new business model of tourism there for its economic growth.

Chin State stands at an altitude of over 5000 feet and is a picturesque place with mountains and eucalyptus forests. Especially, Reed Lake is the landmark of Chin State. The better transportation has increased in number of visitors to Chin State.

Plans to improve the hospitality will help develop the smokeless industry there. It is expected that up to two million international tourists will come and visit Myanmar yearly in coming years. Through Myanmar used to receive Asian tourists most in the past, it now sees more and more visitors from Western Europe.

More arrivals of local pilgrims, foreign visitors pushes sales of Shinmataung Thanatkhar in Pakokku

PAKOKKU, 9 March — Thanks to increased local pilgrims and foreign visitors in open season and smooth transportation, there has been a boom in Thanatkhar market of Pakokku. Arrival of more visitors to Pakokku prompts sales of Shinmataung Thanatkhar this year. Every visitor to Pakokku buys Thanatkhar logs as a souvenir of their visits to Pakokku.

With a robust sale of Thanatkhar logs, sellers are doing a brisk trade. A Thanatkhar tree is priced from K 30,000 to K 50,000. The Thanatkhar plants are being grown on a commercial scale in villages and monasteries in Pakokkuregion. According to the number of plants and its age, a farm is priced at K 50 million. “Mix and double cropping can be made in Thanatkhar plantations. When the price of Thanatkhar is going up, thefts of the plants are frequent. So guards are needed to protect them,” a Thanatkhar grower said. Apart from the compound of U Marga monastery in Pakokku, northern part of Myoma market is crowded with Thanatkhar vendors. As Thanatkhar price goes up, local growers generate more income from sales of Thanatkhar logs.

CARACAS, 9 March — Venezuelan Vice President Nicolas Maduro was officially sworn in on Friday as the country’s acting President, following the death of President Hugo Chavez on Tuesday. In the special session of the National Assembly, Maduro took an oath of office at the legislative palace as acting president.

“I swear in the name of our children, of our farmers, swear in the name of absolute loyalty to commander Hugo Chavez. We will enforce the Bolivarian Constitution. I swear,” he said. Afterwards, National Assembly Speaker Diosdado Cabello Cabello conferred the presidential band and necklace of Simon Bolivar, the symbol of the presidency, to Maduro. The participants sang the national anthem and offer congratulations to him. “Pardon our sorrow and our tears, but this band belongs to Hugo Chavez, the presidency corresponds to Hugo Chavez,” Maduro said while sobbing.

The acting president arrived only minutes earlier before the ceremony, accompanied by government ministers, amid chanting supporters. Cabello said swearing in a president in charge after the death of Chavez is “mandatory and constitutional,” refuting opposition leader Henrique Capriles, who condemned the Supreme Court’s ruling to allow Maduro to swear in as acting president and run for president without leaving his office as a constitutional fraud. Capriles lost to Chavez in last year’s presidential election.

“While the country is mourning, the Supreme Court is contending with political content, constitutional fraud, and I think it is important that the world knows these abuses,” Capriles told a press conference. But the court argued that its verdict was made based on Article 233 of the Constitution, saying, “The executive vice president becomes acting president and ceases his previous post.” The electoral organization can admit the acting president to participate in the presidential election, the verdict added. “During the electoral process of electing the president, the acting president is not obliged to withdraw from the post.” — MNA/Xinhua

MALAYSIA ARRESTS 50, RELEASES MORE PICTURES OF DEAD MILITANTS IN SABAH STANDOFF

LAHAD DATU, 9 March — Malaysian police on Friday arrested at least 50 people and released more pictures of dead militants as security forces continued to hunt down the remaining Filipino intruders in a deadly standoff in Malaysia’s Sabah state.

Police chief Ismail Omar said at least 50 people, including women, have been detained in Sabah under the Security Offences Act a new law that has been used to arrest suspected terrorists for alleged links to the militants. He told a press conference that security forces are continuing to mop up the remaining militants in enforced security areas, and showed media the photos of militants shot dead by the security forces and their seized weapons.

Defence minister Ahmad Zahid Hamidi had two days ago released photos of 13 dead bodies believed to be of the militants. Malaysian forces and the Filipino militants have been fighting for a week in an intense standoff that left at least 60 people dead, including eight Malaysian policemen. The militants had come in a group of more than 180 who arrived in the east coastal town of Lahad Datu in Sabah from southern Philippines on 9 February to claim territorial rights to the land.

They were followers of a self-proclaimed Sulu Sultan Jamalul Kiram III who insisted Sabah belongs to his sultanate.

The Filipino government has asked Malaysia to ensure “humean treatment” of the Filipinos detained on Friday and that the Philippine national flag be given full access to the detainees. Malaysian armed forces chief Zulkifeli Mohd Zin said the Sulu militants showed no signs of surrender.

Washington, 9 March — President Barack Obama spoke about his second-term goals for the booming energy sector at a private meeting with some energy executives on Thursday, and will speak more on the issue at an Illinois event next week, the White House said on Friday. The private meeting came ahead of a trip planned for 15 March to the Argonne National Laboratory of Chicago that will focus on energy, White House spokesman Josh Earnest told reporters.

On Thursday, Obama met with top executives from oil and gas producer Anadarko Petroleum Corp, renewable power producer NextEra, power producer Sempra, and shipping giant FedEx Corp, one of the world’s biggest fuel consumers. Obama discussed the role of natural gas and opportunities for renewable energy, and his interest in public-private partnerships to reach energy and climate goals, Earnest said.

More than a dozen people were at the meeting, which also included executives from Southwest Gas, energy data firm Opower, wind turbine parts-maker Winergy, as well as several academics and advisers. Obama has said addressing climate change is among his priorities for his second term, and often speaks about how the boom in US energy production has helped the country’s economy. — Reuters

KABUL, 9 March — A suicide bomber blew himself up at a Defence Ministry gate in Kabul on Saturday killing nine civilians during a visit to Afghanistan by US Defence Secretary Chuck Hagel, lining the insurgent threat as NATO troops prepare to leave.

Hagel was nowhere near the explosion, a spokesman for Afghanistan’s NATO-led International Security Assistance Force (ISAF) said. A US Defence official said Hagel was in a safe location at an ISAF facility.

An Afghan Defence Ministry official said at least nine people, all civilians, were killed. Fourteen people were wounded in the attack, carried out by an insurgent on a bicycle.

Roads around the ministry building, which is near the presidential palace, were closed as emergency officials cleared the area of debris and washed blood and other materials.

Senegal worried about risk of militants entering from Mali

CAMBRIDGE, 9 March — Senegal is stepping up monitoring of its borders and mounting a public education campaign in an effort to ensure that Islamist militants from neighbouring Mali do not disrupt life in the West African nation, Senegalese President Macky Sall said on Friday. Senegal, one of Africa’s most peaceful countries, is keen to remain insulated from violence in northern Mali, where a French military offensive has reclaimed most of the territory seized by militants nearly a year ago.

“There is a risk of sleeper cells as everywhere else. If you will, the map of terrorist presence is a global map,” Sall, who has been in power almost a year, said in an interview at Harvard University in Cambridge, Massachusetts. “Senegal being a neighbouring country to Mali, it of course pays very close attention to these developments,” said Sall, who noted that Dakar was focused on preventing militants from crossing into Senegal and dissuading Senegalese residents from working with any who did.

Senegal has contributed several hundred troops to an African force deployed to Mali, and Islamist rebels have threatened to strike back at any country that supports that mission. France launched a ground and air operation on 11 January to break the rebels’ hold on the northern two-thirds of Mali, saying the militants posed a risk to the security of West Africa and Europe. — Reuters

Russian scientists may have found new life under Antarctic ice

Moscow, 9 March— Russian scientists believe they have discovered new life forms sealed off for millions of years in a subglacial lake deep under the Antarctic ice, the RIA news agency reported on Thursday.

After more than a decade of stop-and-go drilling, Russia pierced through Antarctica’s frozen crust last year and took back samples of water from a vast lake that has lain untouched for at least 14 million year.

Scientists say the icy darkness of Lake Vostok, under some 12,139 feet of ice, may provide a glimpse of the planet before the Ice Age and clues to life on other planets.

‘After excluding all known contaminants, bacterial DNA was found that does not match any known species in world databases,” Sergei Bulat of the Petersburg Nuclear Physics Institute told RIA.

“If it (the bacteria) had been found on Mars, then without a doubt we would have said there is life on Mars — but this is DNA from Earth,” he said. “We are calling this life form unidentified or unclassified.”

Scientists from the United States and Britain are close on Moscow’s heels to probe what life may exist in one of the most extreme environments on Earth.

This year, a US expedition said they had seen living cells under a microscope in field samples taken from the shallower subglacial Lake Whillans, but more study is needed to determine what kind of bacteria they are and how they live.

A British effort to reach a third body, Lake Ellsworth, was called off in December because of problems drilling.

What life is found in the icy depths may provide the best answer yet to what life can exist in the extreme conditions on Mars or Jupiter’s moon Europa.

Menlo Park, 9 March— Facebook doesn’t want to be dismissed as an Internet has-been before its social network even enters its adolescence.

In an effort to remain hip, it is focusing the focal point of its website with a more dynamic look and additional controls designed to empower its 1 billion users to sort streams of photos and other material into more organized sections that appeal to their personal interests.

The changes unveiled Thursday are an attempt to address complaints that Facebook’s “hub” —the News Feed — is degenerating into a jumble of monotonous musings and disjointed pictures.

This has come as users’ social circles have widened from a few dozen people to an unwieldy assortment of friends, family, businesses, celebrities, co-workers and fleeting acquaintances.

That evolution requires more nuanced control over what comes into users’ news feeds, and more space to display photos and video. Facebook CEO Mark Zuckerberg hopes the makeover turns the News Feed into something like a newspaper tailored to fit the particular interests of each user on every visit to the website.

“This gives people more power to dig deeper into the topics they care about,” a Facebook spokesman said while discussing the makeover at Facebook’s Menlo Park, Calif, headquarters.

Study shows fatty acids could lead to flu drug

Washington, 9 March— A compound derived from fats found in fish oils prevents death in influenza-virus-infected mice, even at advanced stages of disease, according to a study published on Thursday in the journal Cell.

Flu viruses are a major cause of death and sickness around the world, and antiviral drugs currently do not protect the most seriously ill patients. The study offers a promising strategy for the treatment of patients with severe influenza virus infections.

Currently available antiviral drugs inhibit influenza virus replication, but they are not typically effective when given to patients as little as two days after infection. In an attempt to discover more effective drug targets for influenza, scientists have recently identified several genes and molecules that are crucial for influenza virus replication.

However, until now it was not known whether naturally occurring lipids, such as those derived from omega-3 polyunsaturated fatty acids (PUFAs) found in fish oils, might also be involved in influenza virus infections. To answer this question, researchers at Akita University in Japan screened for PUFAs-derived lipids in influenza-virus-infected human lung cells. When they treated infected cells with these lipids, they found that protecting DPI (PDI) was the most effective at inhibiting the replication of viruses, including H5N1.

In addition, low levels of PDI in the lungs of influenza-virus-infected mice were associated with severe infection and highly pathogenic viruses, such as H5N1.

Treatment with PDI in combination with an approved antiviral drug improved the survival of influenza-virus-infected mice that had been prevented death, even when given two days after infection. “Our findings suggest that PDI could serve as a biomarker as well as a much needed antiviral drug for severe and lethal influenza virus infections,” the researchers said.—Xinhua

“This was surprised when we launched in India how well the Z10, which is a high-end device, sold,” said Heins. “We shipped into the channel product that we thought would be good for at least five days and I got an emergency call from our manager in India, saying that they were sold out in two days.”—Reuters
Processed meats linked to premature death

London. 9 March—Sausages, hams, bacon and other processed meats are linked to an increased risk of dying young, European researchers reported on Wednesday.

British journal BMC Medicine reported that a study with half a million participants from 10 European countries revealed links between processed meat and cardiovascular disease and cancer as chemicals used in the preservation of meat may damage health.

In nearly 13 years when participants were followed, researchers found that the risk of dying from any cause was 44 percent greater for high processed meat consumers, and rates of premature death rose with the quantity of processed meat eaten. Researchers pointed out that high processed meat consumption led to a 72 percent higher risk of dying from heart disease, and an 11 percent higher risk of dying from cancer.

“Overall, we estimate that 3 percent of premature deaths each year could be prevented if people ate less than 20 grams of processed meat per day,” said Sabine Rohrmann from the University of Zurich in Switzerland, who lead the research.—Xinhua

BoFA looks to play catch-up in Asia corporate banking

Hong Kong. 9 March—Bank of America Corp (BAC.N) will seek more lending and cash management business with companies in Asia and elsewhere outside its US home turf, Chief Executive Brian Moynihan said on Friday.

While China is only allowed to market for growth.

“Inside the US we’re number one in cash management, but outside it, against some of our competitors, we’re less than we want to be,” Moynihan said in an interview with Reuters on Friday. “We might get 70 percent of our revenues from a company inside the US, when only 50 percent of their revenues are made there, so we’re missing opportunities,” he said.

The US-based lender won’t be jostling with competitors, however, for securities business in China, where most big names in global banking have been eagerly setting up joint ventures.

“It’s not sensible to have a minority stake with no path to control,” said Matthew Koder, Bank of America’s Asia Pacific president. Foreign banks in China are only allowed to offer investment banking services through an onshore partner.

“Right now, everyone’s losing money in China,” Koder said. When Bank of America, the second-largest US lender, announced its fourth-quarter results in January, the improvements in mortgage lending and home loan figures showed the bank is finally moving past its disastrous 2008 purchase of subprime lender Countrywide Financial. But with total revenue down 25 percent, Bank of America faces the same problems as its peers—then lending margins and tough new capital rules—and looking at outside its home market for growth.—Reuters

China’s economy shows signs of recovery

Beijing. 9 March—China’s economy has shown clear signs of recovery since the fourth quarter of 2012, and is developing as planned, a senior economic planning official said on Friday.

US childhood obesity fight sees some success

Washington. 9 March—US companies and other groups that have made attempts to reverse the nation’s rising childhood obesity rate are starting to see results as more American kids exercise and have better access to healthy foods, they said on Thursday.

More than 1,700 US cities have promoted exercise to get nearly 3 million more kids moving in the last year, according to a report by the Partnership for a Healthier America, a nonprofit that works to get private companies and organizations to pledge specific action to fight the weight epidemic.

Still, if left unchecked, about half of all Americans will be obese by 2030, according to the group, whose partners range from Darden Restaurants Inc and Walmart Stores Inc to YMCA and the US Olympic Committee.

Some health advocates welcomed the findings but said more effort was still needed, including government action.

“Already, one in three US youth are obese and another third are overweight. Experts are worried because heavier children are more likely to remain overweight as adults and suffer a higher incidence of diabetes, heart disease and other conditions.”—Reuters

Rupiah on trend of appreciation

Jakarta. 9 March—The Indonesian central bank Deputy Governor Halim Alamsyah said on Friday that rupiah has been on a trend of strengthening against the US dollar as the country trade deficit gap is relatively low.

The Deputy Governor said that the rupiah has shown a trend of appreciation and the appreciation is expected to continue as he forecasts exports to rise in the second half of this year.

Halim said that rupiah appreciated by 0.31 percent to 9,680 against 1 US dollar at present from the position at the beginning of this year. Improving global economy which may increase demand of commodity exports is expected to narrow Indonesian trade deficit gap, he said. Indonesian trade deficit narrowed to 170 million US dollar in January from 1.5 billion US dollar in October as Indonesian exports increased, according to the national statistic bureau. The central bank on Thursday kept its benchmark interest rate at record low 5.75 percent for the 13th months.

As for inflation, he said at the central bank office, “the central bank will take steps to bring the inflation figure back into the range of target (of central bank) which is tolerable for our economy.”

The statistic bureau announced on Saturday that annual inflation in February accelerated faster to 5.31 percent from 4.57 percent in January due to foods and electricity prices increases.—Xinhua
UN chief hails new border agreements between Sudan, South Sudan

UNITED NATIONS, 9 March—UN Secretary-General Ban Ki-moon on Friday welcomed an agreement signed by Sudan and South Sudan, which aims to strengthen border security and lead to the permanent resolution of outstanding issues between the two countries. The signed agreement concerns “the establishment of a safe demilitarized border zone, the deployment of a joint border verification and monitoring mechanism and the activation of agreed security-related mechanisms as of 10 March 2013,” said a statement released by Ban’s spokesperson.

Sudan and South Sudan on Friday signed the agreement in Addis Ababa, Ethiopia, for translation into action of the security agreements reached on 27 September last year, which is a key framework agreement for cooperation on security, the common border and economic relations. In Friday’s statement, Ban said there should be “no further conditions” in the way of immediate implementation of the 27 September agreements, including the agreement on oil. “The UN chief also reiterated the UN’s readiness to “support the operations of the Joint Border Verification and Monitoring Mechanism and assist the parties in the implementation of these agreements,” the statement said. The peace between the two countries has been threatened by armed clashes along their common border and outstanding post-independence issues that have yet to be resolved, notably the status of the oil-rich area of Abyei.

UN hails govt pledges to end violence against women

UNITED NATIONS, 9 March—Michelle Bachelet, Executive Director of UN Women, said on Friday that fifty governments have signed pledges to stop violence against women. These governments have “pledged actions to end violence against women and girls, and guarantee access to critical services and justice,” she said. Bachelet made the remarks at a UN event marking the International Women’s Day held on the sidelines of the 57th Conference on the Status of Women (CSW).

“Together we must keep the promise so women and girls can, one day, in this century, live free of fear and violence,” said Bachelet. “There can be no peace, no justice, no security, no development, without women. There can be no peace, no justice, no security, no development, without women. Women are at the heart of every household and family, and the most valuable asset to any nation. Women are a key driver of economic growth and development, and so it is staggering that seven in ten women worldwide will be beaten, raped, abused or mutilated in their lifetime, or within intimate relationships. Women are the cornerstone of families, of communities, of societies.”

The pledges are part of an initiative called COMMIT by UN Women, which was launched last November urging governments to instill more robust legislative framework to protect women. “UN Women applauds these commitments but we must do even more,” noted Bachelet. “If we act with courage, conviction and commitment, we can change violence against women from being the most pervasive violation of human rights to being a rare occurrence that is considered unacceptable and no longer tolerated,” she said.

The current situation of violence against women is staggering. Seven in ten women around the world will be beaten, raped, abused or mutilated in their lifetime, often within intimate relationships. By 2020, according to the UN Women statistics, women will be beaten, raped, abused or mutilated in their lifetime, or within intimate relationships.

Chinese parties in talks for stake in stake in NYC’s GM building

NEW YORK, 9 March—A group of Chinese investors including Zhang Xin, the Chief Executive of commercial real estate developer Soho China Ltd (0410.HK), are in talks to buy a 40 percent stake in the iconic General Motors building in Manhattan, two sources familiar with the matter said. The deal would value the GM building at $3.4 billion, the sources said, making the 50-story office building on Fifth Avenue near Central Park the most valuable office building in the United States.

The sellers are a group of Middle Eastern investors that own 40 percent of the building, said one of the sources. The other 60 percent is owned by landlord Boston Properties Inc (BXP.N), which paid $2.8 billion to acquire the GM building from Macklowe Properties in 2008. The sovereign wealth funds of Qatar and Kuwait invested in that deal through a Goldman Sachs Group Inc (GS.N) entity, as did a private-equity firm affiliated with the ruling family of Dubai.

Zhang has shown more interest in US properties than other Chinese investors, who have generally avoided direct purchases of US real estate even as other foreign buyers have been active. He is investing in the GM building with his own personal wealth, not Soho China’s funds, one source said. Zhang’s family acquired a 40 percent stake in Park Avenue Plaza in 2011 for nearly $600 million and was also part of a group that acquired Sony Corp’s (6758.T) U.S. headquarters in New York, the Wall Street Journal reported.

Renzi big beneficiary of Italy vote, tops poll for premier

ROME, 9 March—The big winner in Italy’s election was populist leader Beppe Grillo, but young Florence mayor Matteo Renzi is emerging as a less obvious beneficiary of a high protest vote that threatens to destroy the old political system. Renzi, a telegenic, 38-year-old American-style politician who toured Italy in a campervan before Grillo did the same in his campaign, is the opposite of colourless center-left leader Pier Luigi Bersani, the election’s biggest loser. Whereas Bersani’s oratory can leave an audience yawning, Renzi is an electric, fast-talking and articulate performer who paces the stage in his shirt sleeves pushing just the right buttons to whip up a crowd.

He has already demonstrated an acid wit in poking fun at Grillo, a shaggy-haired comedian more than 20 years his senior who mobilised public rage against Italy’s discredited political cians to make his party Italy’s biggest in the vote. Bersani’s drab campaign threw away a 10-point opinion poll lead to just scrape victory in the lower house of parliament ahead of Silvio Berlusconi’s “center-right,” but is short of controlling the Senate—essential for government. No other party has a majority either.

Now Renzi is waiting for his moment as Bersani fights for survival, desperately trying to reach an agreement with Grillo that will allow him to form a minority government with backing from the anti-establishment 5-Star Movement. With Grillo pouring insults on Bersani at every opportunity, the 61-year-old centre left leader looks to have only a tiny chance of success, despite near unanimous backing from his Democratic Party (PD) leadership this week. The market-friendly Renzi challenged Bersani in party primaries back in November, threatening to “scrap” Italy’s old leadership.

Ayadaw Township uses solar for rural electricity supply

At present, Ayadaw Region is undertaking rural development and poverty alleviation to supply electricity to the rural people by spending its own fund. A plan is being implemented to install solar panels at each villages of Ayadaw, Kani and Myinmu Townships of 38 townships in the region.

At first, Township Administrator U Sein Htay and departmental officials handled 320 sets of solar panel, over 12-volt battery, three five-watt bulbs and inverter to each houses of Phokkon Village and 23 lamp-posts to village administrator U Maung Soe on 15 February evening.

The people used electricity in limited time.
Spending two years straight in translating the nation into the one that has achieved international recognition as well as trust of own people for his reform processes, President U Thein Sein, during his tour of five EU countries, made a vow that interregnum strife that the country has faced since gaining her independence must stop through political dialogue at the negotiating table. So his bold move to the peace surged to hopes for a lasting peace of all citizens including landmine sufferers and those who are at risk of stepping on anti-personnel mines in the areas believed to be silent from gunfire.

Only successful political dialogue could not only bring trust among all stakeholders but also help start mine action in the mine-ridden areas, allaying fears of civilians. According to the report of Landmine Monitor, landmine casualties in Myanmar have reached 32,424 during the period from 1999 to 2011. A recent news report indicates that Myanmar has ranked the third highest number of mine victims globally.

So long as the internal armed conflict exists, no one is safe from mine risk in the mine-affected areas. Despite seeing a lower level of incidence of new mine use as of mid-2012, there arises an urgent need to take priority over landmine clearance for the sake of innocent people.

Regrettably, views on the safety of landmines are held no one can deny that they can remain risky many years after a conflict ended, threatening to claim lives of civilians living on the landmine-contaminated soil. The onus is on all of users to take this issue into serious consideration on the humanitarian ground for the desperate plight of the civilians whose livelihood depends on the farmlands and forests. From now on, a comprehensive plan should be laid down to end the use of landmines and to start the removal of landmines and rehabilitation of mine survivors in the affected areas. So an agreement is required for all active users to cease the use of mines in unison.

Being members of civilized world, all active users are to abandon mine use according to both humanitarianism and religion, ensuring innocent civilians full safety and creating a safe place for them to some extent. Moreover, much attention is to be given to landmine clearance as soon as possible in the areas where peace was restored.

Eco and Cultural touristic attraction Sacred Hpo Win Taung hill range Part II

Despite its wealth of legends and extraordinary tales, Hpo Win Taung hill range possesses an abundance of rock-cut sculptures in the forms of caves, tunnels, shrines, temples, pagodas, images, statues, figures with decorative visual arts, belonging to different centuries and historic periods of the past and also of the present. Undoubtedly it is an archaeological site of the country but no digging has ever been thought of or attempted there since the first visit of Mr Charles Durosselle, the superintendent of the Epigraphic Office, Burma State which was earlier in 1912. Mr J.P. Hardiman, I.C.S. Deputy Commissioner, settlement officer wrote a four-page account of “Po Win Daung” hill in Burma Gazetteer, Lower Chindwin District Vol A, which he compiled. He did not say that the place was the site for archaeological digging, but he only described the hills and its legends, insipiring the reader to visit and preserve it.

Mr. Durosselle’s visit resulted in the publication of his 13-page learned article that appeared in the annual Report 1914-1915 of the Archaeological Survey of India. The Article was entitled “The Rock-Cut Temples of Po Win Daung” illustrated with 6 large plates of black and white photographs.

Mr. Durosselle points out the unique features of the rock-cut temples of “Po Win Daung” by comparison with other rock caves in the country such as those in the Shan State, those around Hpa-an in Kayin State and those around Mawlamyine in Mon State which are small natural caves in large mountain, rock stone excavated by the action of the sea or rain torrents or drips at no very remote geological period. [e.g. Kyaukkyo Umin etc], and those at MraukU in Rakhine State.

The caves at “Po Win Daung” are hollowed out places of worship, not for residence. They are man-made rock-cut temples extending over a period of about a thousand years from the 9th to the 20th century. It would take at least a week to make a cursory study of these rock-cut architectures, sculptures and all visual arts adorning them, at “Po Win Daung” and other neighbouring rock hills. No inventory has been attempted yet and the visitor, after his tour of these hills, would be obliged to believe the legendary figures of 444,444 caves, shrines, temples, pagodas, images and statues which were created in the time period of the two paper of these rocky ranges—King Buddha images dedicated by King Bandava, five are prominent, landmarking the five great events of his life – (1) Thet Taw Buddha Image [life longevity Buddha] to commemorate the long live of the king, (2) Thet Taw Ya Buddha Image [Revival of life] to commemorate the revival of the chief queen after a long unconsciousness, (3) Hsu Taung Pyi Buddha Image [Answering prayers Buddha Image] to commemorate that all royal prayers were answered. (4) Ta Taing Pyi Buddha Image [wish-fulfilling Buddha Image] to commemorate the fulfillment of all royal prayers. (5) Ta Pyi Daung Pyi Buddha Image [Answering all royal needs that were asked Buddha Image] which pilgrims believe, are still potent to give these boons to the worshippers.

Wingaba cave is a large cave. Like a maze, many small aisles shoot off from the main corridor. Beams of light passing through the doorways, falling on the statues and images inside sharply contrast the darkness of inside. Paintings on the ceilings and walls are scenes of the Buddha’s birth stories and the renunciation of his monkhood. The entrance area is dark with the darkness of inside. Lotus blooms and floral designs adorn the cave in bright colours. NATHO Taung or the hill of the Bull has the white washed figure of a bull with the crescent moon as head. The legend has it that the chief queen of King Bandava, inspired by a religious fervour, dedicated all her jewelleries and treasures for the building of a monastery for Arimathu, the up-coming Buddha. At the water-pouring ceremony, a sudden darkness befell and all her dedicated jewelleries and treasures disappeared. So the legend has it that the chief queen of King Bandava asked Buddha Image [Giving all royal needs that were asked Buddha Image] to commemorate the fulfillment of all royal prayers Buddha Image [Answering all royal needs that were asked Buddha Image] to commemorate the fulfillment of all royal prayers. (4) Ta Taing Pyi Buddha Image [wish-fulfilling Buddha Image] to commemorate the fulfillment of all royal prayers. (5) Ta Pyi Daung Pyi Buddha Image [Answering all royal needs that were asked Buddha Image] which pilgrims believe, are still potent to give these boons to the worshippers.

Bandava or Pyu Min Pyone Min. If later additions are included in the list, the total would be astronomical! There are three categories of rock-cut architecture.

Three categories of rock-cut architecture

For a general study, these caves may be broadly classified into three categories: (1) small shallow caves, dug a few feet into the face of a living rock. They have only one entrance each, usually square or imperfect round, each measuring 7 feet to 12 feet, or 13 feet high and 5 feet to 6 feet deep. Images of seated Buddha were hewn on the altars or temples’ niches that were also hewn. (2) Medium size caves - a sort of narrow gallery, each 15 to 70 feet long and 10 to 25 feet high and 6 to 11 feet deep. The long altar or the main chamber for three quarters of the space within. There are 5 to 16 entrances to each cave with teak wood doors elaborately carved. (3) Large size caves, cut deep into the heart of the rocks. They are in fact rock temples. Ornaments of sculpture, carvings, and frescoes are amazing. By old method of measurement with locally made iron tools, the local sculptors have been creating these beautiful votive objects since days of yore. Among countless Buddha images dedicated by King Bandava, five are prominent, landmarking the five great events of his life – (1) Thet Taw Buddha Image [life longevity Buddha] to commemorate the long live of the king, (2) Thet Taw Ya Buddha Image [Revival of life] to commemorate the revival of the chief queen after a long unconsciousness, (3) Hsu Taung Pyi Buddha Image [Answering prayers Buddha Image] to commemorate that all royal prayers were answered. (4) Ta Taing Pyi Buddha Image [wish-fulfilling Buddha Image] to commemorate the fulfillment of all royal prayers. (5) Ta Pyi Daung Pyi Buddha Image [Answering all royal needs that were asked Buddha Image].

The stone bull comes to life to charge at thieves or robbers who dare to take the hidden treasures. Some local legends say that figures of an elephant, a goat and a bull were made to watch over the queen’s dedicated treasures. There is a finely sculpted figure of Matali deva at this hill. He was recording in his register parakebie [folding papers] the good and bad deeds of humans.

Eight ogres cave is 46 feet long, 9 feet high outside. Inside, it measures 43 feet long and 11 feet 9 inches broad. It has 6 entrances, with 6 doors, and is 9 feet by 7 feet 6 inches. A long alter hewn at the back of the cave is nearly 7 feet broad on which is a reclining Buddha Image of 34 feet 8 inches long. There are 8 statues attending on the Buddha Image, of which 6 on the left, judging by their styles and dresses, belong to the 16th or the 17th centuries.

The most strikingly artistic rock-cut architecture at Hpo Win Taung is “Myint Mo Taung” the legendary Mt. Meru of Buddhists cosmography. This mount is said to be at the centre of the Universe, with seven ranges of mountains and seven seas encircling it, and four continents at the four cardinal directions namely (1) Pubbavada, the Eastern Continent, (2) Apragayaona, the Western Continent (3) Dekhina, the Northern Continent and (4) Jabudupa, the Southern Continent. On the summit of Mt. Meru are six celestial kingdoms of which that Patoda in which the Chaitya houses the Buddha Image.

This design of Buddhist cosmography is presented in detail in this rock-cut hill of Meru. Sulamani Kyaung, the temple on the right hand, which is a great stupa built by King Bandava in the 17th century dedicated to the Buddha Image. In the upper region of the pagoda in which the hair of the Bodhisattha, Prince Siddhatha was enshrined, and all deities, mythical creatures, naga serpents, garudas, kumbhadantas, Kuntimakautara, human headed birds etc with floral motifs were hewn and sculpted out of the living rock. One of the oldest shrines on Hpo Wun Taung is the Kunzidang Temple. Sometimes it is called Ko-sint Taung [Nine steps]. The rock into which this temple was hewn is 60 feet high. Five doorways of square arches separated by four pillars of rock admit you into the temple. Each door is 3 feet wide and 11 feet 6 inches high. Each pillar is 6 feet 3 inches thick and 4 feet 4 inches wide.

Pillars are plain. But there are guardian deities “Dvarapalas” at the pillars. The Temple is 36 feet long, 25 feet wide and 18 feet high. Inside the Temple, to support the heavy weight of rock above, two columns were hewn. They are octagonal without base and capital, gradually they taper to the top, each is 15 feet 6 inches tall. They are painted with vermillion and adorned with gold floral designs.

The altar inside was hewn, measuring 6 feet 8 inches long and 6 feet 5 inches wide with three seated Buddha Images hewn from the rock. The mural paintings on the walls serve as a beautiful background. Their styles suggest that they belong to the past 100 or 150 years. There are niches in the walls on the east and west sides, in which were hewn sitting Buddha Images of each 5 feet 5 inches to 2 feet 7 inches high.

Queen’s Cave: There is a long cave dedicated by the chief queen of King Bandaw, hewn out of a big rock. Inside it on a stone altar is a reclining Buddha Image hewn out of the same rock. The thick teakwood doors were carved with elaborate figures of devas, Indra, and Brahma.

The extraordinary ingenuity of these doors leaves was that they produced melodious voices of cranes and karawen birds on opening and closing them. Today these doors are seen no more, perhaps they are in the show cases of some museums abroad.

Shwe Ba Taung Hill: Shwe Ba Taung is a separate hill range about three quarter of a mile distance from Hpo Wun Taung Range. Named after U Shwe Ba who was appointed by King Bandaw as superintendent of royal religious works on Hpo Wun Taung Range. Being a wealthy and influential man of the locality and inspired by the religious deeds of his master, the king, he developed this hill range as a shrine of worship and religious meditation. Many caves, temples, shrines and Buddha Images were hewn out of the rocks of the hill range. Today, several later additions hcnobyck this rocky range and they belong to the last two centuries - the 19th and the 20th. They have names of their donors, their ranks, occupations, addresses, and the expenditures entailed which are either hewn in the rock, carved, stuccoed or inlaid in the paintings of their respective dedications. They vary from individual to family, pilgram party, from laity to clergy. Some were royal descendants, some land owners, some merchants, traders, brokers, some government serivcenom, some monk saydaw, some farmers, peasants and craftsmen. Here is a wealth of data for researchers to work on the economic, social and cultural life of Myanmars of the time.

Ingyin Taung Hill: On the way to Yinnabin, there lies Ingyin Taung hill, another rocky hill range where there are rock-cut sculptures in the hollowed out caves. Their styles of architecture, sculpture and religious tradition. Many caves, temples, shrines and Buddha Images are hewn out of the rocks of the hill range. Today, several later additions hcnobyck this rocky range and they belong to the last two centuries - the 19th and the 20th. They have names of their donors, their ranks, occupations, addresses, and the expenditures entailed which are either hewn in the rock, carved, stuccoed or inlaid in the paintings of their respective dedications. Some were royal descendants, some land owners, some merchants, traders, brokers, some government serivcenom, some monk saydaw, some farmers, peasants and craftsmen. Here is a wealth of data for researchers to work on the economic, social and cultural life of Myanmars of the time.

NAT Spirits and Monkeys: The description of Hpo Wun Taung Hill range would be incomplete if nat spirits and monkeys are left out. The only relevant nat spirits of Hpo Wun Taung Hill Range are the original brother and sister guardian spirits of the Treasure Trove, Maung Po Lan and Ma Hnin Cho and later Saga Meidaw or Hpo Wun Shinna [The Lady Hpo Wun Taung] whose figures are found riding astride a tiger. But today nat figures from the Pantheon of 37 nat spirits are also found in their respective shrines almost everywhere on the hill range. Due to believers in nat spirits among the visitors, nat spirit mediums mostly women are making a good earning with their nat spirit idols and shrines, especially at the festival times.

Regarding wild monkeys on the hill range, they are the descendants of the original dwellers. Their faces are pink. They are wild living among shady and leafy trees like banyan and jack fruit trees.

They can survive on fruits and nuts that grow wild and plentiful on the range. Unlike their counterparts at Mt. Popa, these four legged animals at Mt. Wun Taung hill range are no longer desolate and deserted as they used to be in the past.

Today Hpo Wun Taung hill range and its associate hill ranges have become not only places of Buddhist pilgrimage but also some of the centres of tourist attraction because of their ecological and cultural heritages. Every year quite a number of photographic books on Hpo Wun Taung in English, French and Spanish appear on the book stalls at the world airports. But no serious academic study has ever been made regarding these sacred hill ranges.

Archaeologists and art historians across the world who have visited Hpo Wun Taung have been clamouring for the inclusion of these rock-cut caves in the World Cultural Heritage List.

WASHINGTON, 9 March — US investigators tracked Suleiman Abu Ghaith, a son-in-law of Osama bin Laden, for about 10 years before he was detained in Jordan and brought by the FBI to New York City in the past few days, US officials said.

Abu Ghaith, a top al-Qaeda commander, was reportedly involved in the September 11 attacks and was believed to be living in the United States for crimes connected to the 11 September attacks. He was captured on 28 February and brought secretly to the United States on 1 March, prosecutors said in court.

Law enforcement sources say he was detained in Jordan by local authorities and the FBI after he was believed to have been expelled from Turkey. But it was in Iran where Abu Ghaith is believed to have spent most of the past decade, having taken refuge there following 11 September 2001, with a group of other associates of bin Laden, the al-Qaeda leader killed by US forces in Pakistan in 2011.

Current and former US officials said that group, known to US investigators as the al-Qaeda “Management Council,” was kept more or less under control by the Iranian government, which viewed it with suspicion. Along with Abu Ghaith, members of the group included Saif al Adel, one of al-Qaeda’s top military commanders, and Saad bin Laden, one of bin Laden’s sons. A former US official said that in late 2002 and early 2003, CIA officers held secret discussions in Europe with Iranian officials regarding the possible expulsion to Saudi Arabia or another country of Abu Ghaith and fellow al Qaeda operatives in Iran.

At the time, the United States had information indicating the al-Qaeda figures in Iran might be in contact with militants in Saudi Arabia who posed potential threats to Saudi interests. But the secret discussions fell apart when Iran suggested that, in return for its expulsion of the al-Qaeda operatives, the United States should crack down on the Mujahedhin-e-Khalq, an Iranian exile group that until recently was the target of US and European sanctions for its alleged involvement in violence, the former official said.

Nearly 10,000 Cambodians die of smoking annually

PNNOM PENH, 9 March — Nearly 10,000 people died of smoking every year in Cambodia, Secretary of Labour, social affairs and youth and sport, Prak Sokong, Executive Director of Cambodia Movement for Health (CMH), said on Thursday.

Speaking in a consultative workshop on tobacco smoke at the Ministry of Social Affairs, he said that it was estimated that Cambodian smokers spent about 99 million US dollars a year for buying cigarettes and tobacco.

Also, he said the expense on medical treatment for cancer patients caused by tobacco is much higher than that of tobacco expense.

“According to a preliminary study by the kingdom’s Khmer Soviet Friendship Hospital, the cancer treatment for a cancer patient cost about 10,000 US dollars,” he said.

Tobacco is seriously harmful to the health of smokers and other people when their smoke drifts around, other people breathe it in, he said.

An Suongbeer, Minister of Social Affairs, said according to a study by the National Institute of Statistics, 80 percent of Cambodian children and 75 percent of woman are living in houses that have at least one family member as smoker.

The country has the population of about 14.5 million. Of the number, 7.5 million people are adults. According to a National Adult Tobacco Survey 2011, some 1.4 million adult Cambodians smoke cigarettes and other 550,000 people use smokeless tobacco (betel quid).

The United States urges Iran to help with locating missing FBI agent

WASHINGTON, 9 March — The US government on Friday pressed Iran for help to locate a former agent of the Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI) who went missing six years ago in the Islamic country.

In a statement on the sixth anniversary of the disappearance of the agent, Robert Levinson, the White House said that finding Levinson “remains a high priority for the United States, and we will continue to do all that we can to bring him home safely to his friends and family.”

“The Iranian government previously offered assistance in locating Levinson and we look forward to receiving this assistance, even as we disagree on other key issues,” the statement said.

In order to find Levinson, who went missing during a business trip to Iran’s Kish Island on 9 March 2007, the FBI offered a 1-million-US-dollar reward last year for information leading to his safe return.

This year, we again reaffirm our commitment to bringing him home to those who love him,” the White House added.

US Secretary of State John Kerry also issued a statement on the disappearance of Levinson, a father to seven children and a grandfather of two.

“The United States continues to welcome the assistance of our international partners in this investigation and calls on the government of the Islamic Republic of Iran to uphold its offer to help find Mr Levinson and return him safely to his family,” Kerry said.

The top US diplomat said that he met with Levinson’s wife and son on Friday “to reiterate that the US government remains committed to locating Mr. Levinson and repatriating him safely with his family.”

The United States and Iran have been facing off over Tehran’s nuclear program, which Washington regards as an attempt to make nuclear weapons despite Iran’s repeated claim of the peaceful nature of its nuclear program.

The Obama administration, which has imposed crippling economic sanctions against Iran, refuses to exclude the use of force to prevent Tehran from acquiring a nuclear bomb.

China unveils plan to help small firms

BEIJING, 9 March—China on Friday unveiled a detailed plan to support the country’s small and micro-sized enterprises as they still face many challenges.

One missing, several injured in collision accident in Singapore’s offshore area

SINGAPORE, 9 March—A collision accident involving a local ferry and an Indonesian-registered coaster craft happened on early Saturday morning, leaving one person missing and 4-5 several injured after the coaster craft sank in the West Keppel Fairway. Search and rescue operations for the missing man is underway.

The ferry named Sea Hawk was proceeding from Singapore’s Pasir Panjang Ferry Terminal to Pulau Bukom, carrying 200 passengers when the incident happened.

The Maritime and Port Authority of Singapore (MPA) said there are eight passengers suffered injuries, which all was sent to the hospital right now.

On the other hand, five crew members onboard have been rescued however one person was reported missing in the smaller sink coaster craft, Budi Jasa 18. “MPA is currently co-ordinating the search and rescue operation, involving two MPA and two Police Coast Guard craft.”

Divers have also been activated, the authority said in a statement.

They also added that the MPA “has issued navigational broadcasts to vessels in the vicinity to keep clear of the SAR area and to report any sighting of the missing person. Port operations are unaffected.”

Investigation of the accident is also underway.—Xinhua

Pakistan supply routes open, but move gear slowly into Afghanistan

WASHINGTON, 9 March—It is the least expensive way to get food and fuel to US troops in Afghanistan. But eight months after Pakistan reopened its ground supply routes for the NATO war effort, hardly any new cargo has taken that path into the landlocked country. Instead, supplies have been moving almost entirely along far more expensive routes, one of several factors that have prompted senior Pentagon officials to warn that Afghan war costs are higher than projected at a time of increasingly tight budgets.

In what was hailed as a diplomatic breakthrough, the United States and Pakistan agreed to reopen the supply lines last July after Washington issued a reluctant apology for an air attack that killed 24 Pakistani soldiers along the Afghan border in November 2011. But restoring the Pakistani supply lines to full service after a seven-month closure has taken time. The United States has cleared upward by 5,000 of the 7,000 pieces of backlogged cargo in the supply routes.

But data from the US Military’s Transportation Command show that only 40 containers of new cargo have moved across Pakistani ground routes since July. At the same time, about 28,000 20-foot containers came through alternate pathways, known as the Northern Distribution Network, into Afghanistan from July 2012 through last month. General William Fraser, head of Transcom, said the situation was improving. After months of working to clear a backlog of supplies and deal with procedural issues, cargo movement on the Pakistani supply lines has improved and officials are ready to use them more heavily, he said. “It’s all moving in the right direction,” Fraser told Reuters. “Now we’ve just got to put the rate.”—Reuters

China says cyber space needs rules and cooperation, not war

BEIJING, 9 March—Chinese Foreign Minister Yang Jiechi on Saturday said “cyber space needs rules and cooperation, not war.”

The citing China is vulnerable to cyber attacks and suffers such attacks most. Yang made the remarks at a Press conference on the sidelines of the annual session of the National People’s Congress, China’s top legislature. “The international community is closely interconnected on the Internet, therefore cyber space needs rules and cooperation, not war,” the foreign minister said. “We oppose to turn cyber space into another battlefield, or capitalize on virtual reality to interfere in other countries’ internal affairs,” Yang said.

China always advocates a peaceful, secure, open and cooperative cyber space, supports relevant international rules under the framework of the United Nations, and proposes concrete initiatives, Yang said. “We hope irresponsible rebuke or criticism (against China) would end,” he said. Yang was commenting on western media reports saying that their computer networks were under Cyber-attacks originated from China and backed by government or military. Late last month, US cyber security firm Mandiant released a report which alleged that a secret Chinese military unit in Shanghai was behind years of cyber attacks against US companies.

The report was followed by a wave of Western media criticism of hacking by China. “Those reports may have caught eyes of many people, but actually they are built on shaky ground,” Yang said. “What is black is black, and what is white stays white. Anyone who try to fabricate or piece together a sensational story to serve political motive will not be able to black the name of others or whitewash themselves,” he added. He said Chinese government opposes hack-er-attack activities and laws have been promulgated to explicitly prohibit and fight such activities.—Xinhua

Iran’s leader says next round of nuclear talks with P5+1 to be “test for West’s sincerity”

TEHERAN, 9 March — Iran’s Supreme Leader Ayatollah Ali Khamenei said on Thursday the next round of talks between the world powers and the Islamic republic over the latter’s nuclear programme will be a test for the West’s sincerity, semi-official Fars news agency reported.
Khamenei said that the P5+1 group (the five permanent UN Security Council members plus Germany) represented only minor delegates plus German representatives.
Fars news agency said that the P5+1 group over Iran’s disputed nuclear programme concluded on 27 February in Almaty and both sides agreed to meet in expert level in Istanbul, Turkey on 17 to 18 March, followed by another high-ranking meeting in Almaty again on 5 April.
On Thursday, Khamenei said the enemies are angry at the Iranian nation’s “wonderful breakthroughs over the past years, adding that the country’s problems will certainly be solved and there are numerous signs of hope.”
He described nuclear issue as one of the challenges that the Islamic establishment is facing, stressing that “Of course the challenge has not been harmful to us and it will never be.” —Xinhua

Austin, 9 March — Comedians Jim Carrey and Steve Carell brought a touch of magic to the opening day of the South by Southwest Festival in Austin, Texas on Friday, with the premiere of their new film “The Incredible Burt Wonderstone.”

They soon find their skills and friendship tested in a constantly evolving world of magic and entertainment, as audiences demand something new with the arrival of edgy illusionist Steve Gray (Carell). Carrey, decked out in a red jacket and silver shoes on Friday’s red carpet, told Reuters that despite playing a magician, he resented magic. “I’ve always had this weird relationship with magic. I think it’s fascinating and yet it annoys me because I can’t figure it out,” Carrey said. Sharapova and Kuznetsova win at Indian Wells

INDIAN WELLS, (California), 9 March—Former champion Maria Sharapova cruised into the third round of the BNP Paribas Open with a ruthless 6-2, 6-1 demolition of Italy’s Francesca Schiavone on Friday. Despite tricky court conditions on a chilly and misty afternoon at the California desert venue, the Russian delivered a superb display of deep, accurate groundstrokes to seal victory in just over an hour. Second-seeded Sharapova, champion here in 2006, broke Schiavone’s serve three times in each set and will next face Carla Suarez Navarro, a 6-1, 6-1 winner over fellow Spaniard Silvia Soler Espinosa.

Svetlana Kuznetsova also advanced to the third round, recovering from a poor start after discarding her long tights in favour of Melbourne’s Soler Espinosa. Kuznetsova, a member of Canada’s gold medal-winning team at the 2010 Vancouver Olympics where he finished second in team scoring with seven points.

TORONTO, 9 March—The Anaheim Ducks and captain Ryan Getzlaf agreed to an eight-year contract extension on Friday, taking the bruising forward off the market ahead of next month’s trade deadline. Financial terms of the deal were not disclosed by the Ducks but local media reports said it was worth $66 million.

Getzlaf, who leads Anaheim this season with 27 goals, was set to become an unrestricted free agent in the offseason, sparking speculation that the Ducks might try to move the two-time All-Star before the 3 April trade deadline.

“We are very happy to have Ryan committed to this franchise long-term,” Ducks General Manager Bob Murray said on the team’s website. “He has often expressed his interest to stay in Anaheim for his entire career, a goal we share.”

MIAMI, 9 March—Rory McIlroy remains well down the leaderboard but the Northern Irishman’s swing troubles seem to have eased with his first under-par round of 2013 at the WGC-Cadillac Championship on Friday. While the 23-year-old was struggling to put his swing back in place during Thursday’s opening round, McIlroy was solid off the tee with Friday’s three-under 69, despite being let down by some misses with his irons and errors on and around the greens.

But the fluent and confident swing off the tee, which had alarmingly dissipated during his poor start to the year, made a welcome re-appearance. After hitting just three fairways in his first round, McIlroy was solid off the tee for 14 of 18 holes as he made six birds in glorious sunshine on Friday. “I had a really good range session last night and felt like I hit the ball quite a lot better, definitely not the way I know I can hit it but it was better,” said McIlroy, who was tied for 32nd and 11 shots off the lead.

“I saw a lot of positives. I hit a really good six iron into the eighth hole and hit a great three wood off the 10th. I saw a lot of good signs out there,” McIlroy said his range session taught him that he needed to make sure he was getting in the right places during his swing. “I found everything I was doing, I’m having to exaggerate. So I think I’m taking it inside, I have to take it inside.”

BIRMINGHAM, 9 March—Malaysian ace player Lee Chong Wei secured his position in last four on Friday, one more step closer to his third All England Open title. With progression of the championships, Lee was regaining his dominance. His 21-17, 21-19 victory over seventh seed Tien Minh Nguyen only took him 34 minutes.

Lee grabbed the lead from the first shot, maneuvering the shuttle to different corners and earning points with forceful smashes and kills at the net. Although he made a few mistakes which allowed his rival to save four match points, he managed to finish the match with a jump smash. However, he was dissatisfied with his own performance. “I still couldn’t fully control the tempo,” Lee said. “I made some simple mistakes, but I must forget about it and move on.” Currently his biggest opponent could be Chinese shuttler Chen Long, who edged out Indian Kashyap Parupalli 21-16 and 21-10.

London, 9 March—No one would have blamed American ice dancers Meryl Davis and Charlie White if they had thrown a hissy fit and yelled at the top of their lungs that they had been robbed of the 2012 world title. After all it was a tactic that worked well for Yevgeny Plushenko. Having picked up silver following a wobbly free skate at the 2010 Vancouver Games, the rousing Russian went about declaring he was “the true Olympic champion” and promptly received a telegram from then Russian Prime Minis- ter Vladimir Putin declaring his victory. “Your silver is worth gold.”

Yet petulant tantrums are not what Davis and White want to be known for, even if they have every right to feel aggrieved because instead of chasing a hat-trick of world titles in London, Ontario next week, they will be aiming for a second. “I don’t have to look at those results and feel bad about them,” Davis told Reuters in a telephone interview before dissolving into laughter. “But it seems to work for him,” White added: “(Making a fuss) goes against what Meryl and I are as people. We are very competitive but people at the end of the day if we can sit down and look each other in the eye and say we did everything that we could, we’re gone to be happy and we’re not going to feel the need to belittle anyone or disagree publicly with anyone.”

Every man, woman and squealing child sitting inside Nice’s Acropo- lis Arena last March had thought the Americans eclipsed their friends, rivals, training partners and Olympic champions Tessa Virtue and Scott Moir to win their second successive world title after the Cana- dians produced a routine which even they described as being littered with “bobbles” and “stumbles.”

Woods in charge at Doral after classy 65

MIAWI, 9 March — Looking fully in charge of his game, Tiger Woods fired an outstanding seven-under-par 65 to open up a two-shot lead over Graeme McDowell after the second round of the WGC-Cadillac Championship on Friday.

Woods has 17 birdies from his opening 36 holes for the first time in a PGA Tour event, helped by some outstanding work on the greens on the Blue Monster course at Doral.

“It felt like I finally got into a feeling where I needed to have it,” said the world number two of his round. Woods stands at 13-under for the tournament with Northern Ireland’s McDowell two strokes back in second place after a bogey-free 65 in good scoring conditions.

McDowell has not made a bogey in his 36 holes so far and, unlike his compatriot and world number one Rory McIlroy, looks very much at ease with his game. McIlroy, however, will take heart from a much more solid display on Friday, his three-under 69 contained six birdies but was slightly spoilt by three-putting for a bogey on the 18th. The world number one looked far more comfortable from the tee in particular but paid the price for some sloppy work on and around the greens.

Tied in 32nd place and at two-under for the tournament, McIlroy is 11 shots off the lead but will take some comfort after breaking 70 for the first time this year.

“It’s about the ball striking and it’s getting there. Days like today are very pleasing because it shows that I’m going in the right direction,” he said.

Kvitova overcomes serving woes to win at Indian Wells

INDIAN WELLS, 9 March — Former Wimbledon champion Petra Kvitova survived 10 double faults and an erratic second set to beat Olga Govortsova of Belarus 6-4, 3-6, 6-3 in the second round of the BNP Paribas Open on Friday.

The big-serving Czech, seeded fifth in the elite WTA event at the Indian Wells Tennis Garden, sealed victory after a marathon encounter lasting two hours and 21 minutes — a marathon encounter lasting two hours and 21 minutes.

Kvitova, who clinched her 10th WTA singles title in Dubai last month, will next face Ukrainian Lesia Tsurenko, a 6-1, 3-6, 6-1 winner over Kazakhstan’s Yaroslava Shvedova earlier in the day. In mainly overcast and blustery conditions at the California desert venue, the opening set went with serve until world number seven Kvitova was surprisingly broken in the fifth game, after double-faulting, to trail 2-3. However, the pony-tailed Czech immediately broke back, then steadily took control before clinching the set in 49 minutes with a raucous forehand service return as the Belarusian lost serve for a second time.

Govortsova, ranked 67th, took advantage of Kvitova’s serving troubles in the second set, breaking her opponent in the third and ninth games to level the match.

But the left-handed Czech, who claimed her first grand slam crown at Wimbledon in 2011, recovered form in the third, breaking Govortsova’s serve in the seventh and ninth games to wrap up the win.

Keeper Howard set to miss US World Cup qualifiers

MIAMI, 9 March — United States goalkeeper Tim Howard looks set to miss crucial World Cup qualifiers against Costa Rica and Mexico later this month after his English club Everton said he had two fractured bones in his back. Howard sustained the injury against Oldham Athletic in the FA Cup fifth round replay ten days ago and Everton manager David Moyes said he would be out for several weeks.

“He has broken two bones in his back. We don’t think he will be out for the season,” Moyes told the team’s official website. “We are not sure how long Tim will be out for because, obviously with a goalkeeper, he has to dive around and hit the ground. “I have let him go away for a few days. It might be that, if everything goes well, he misses next week’s game as well and then because of the international break he might be close after the rest because that would be four weeks.”
