Asterisk-marked questions
The first question of the day was raised by U Sai Ngaung Hsai Hein of Maukmai constitu-ency who asked whether there was a plan to make the owner name registered in the car registration booklet to be taken as evidence in a law court for the legal ownership of the car.

Deputy Minister for Transport and Communications U Kyaw Myo said this was not possible at the moment but the depart-ment considers the discrepancy between the present owner and the registered owner of the car as a problem to be overcome. This could not be done by the ministry alone and that they were coordinating with relevant departments. Once the coordination and discussions were completed the registered ownership and address of the car will be true and correct explained the Deputy Minister.

Dr. U Maung Thin of Meik-tila constituency next asked the law under which the Ks 6,426 million from the special fund of the Office of the President was being used to monitor social me-dia, to what extent the monitor-ing was conducted, what sort of action would be taken, whether the action was in accordance with existing laws under the Constitution and whether it was in accordance with the policy regarding the usage of the special fund from the Office of the President.

Deputy Minister for Trans-port and Communications U Kyaw Myo answered that although the Ks 6,426 million fund to purchase equipment and machineries for the Social Media Monitoring Team was not included in the fiscal year 2017-2018 budget, it was an emergency requirement for State security, rule of law, peace and tranquility works. The Office of the President submitted this matter to the Union government to utilize this fund in accordance with the Constitution as well as existing laws while the purchase of equipment and machineries were in accordance with the policy regarding the usage of the special fund of the Office of the President, explained the Deputy Minister.

The formation of the Social Media Monitoring Team-SMMT, monitoring and controlling were in accordance with the Constitu-tion as well as existing laws.

Second Amyotha Hluttaw’s tenth regular session holds fifth-day meeting

By Aung Ye Thwin

THE Second Amyotha Hluttaw’s tenth regular session held its fifth-day meeting in Nay Pyi Taw yesterday. During the meeting, asterisk-marked questions were asked and answered, an amendment bill was discussed, and a report was read out before the Hluttaw.

During the session, U Soe Thane of Kayah Constituency 9 asked the government about its plans for making the use of Myanmar currency compulsory for all transactions in the country to make the Kyat stronger and to curb illegal hoarding of money.

Deputy Governor of the Central Bank of Myanmar, U Bo Bo Nge, replied that the CBM is making efforts to raise the value of the Kyat and prevent dollarization. The bank is making extensive use of dollars in the market to bolster the Kyat, he added.

The government has allowed the opening of currency exchange counters in all the states and regions of Myanmar. However, it has been found that cash payments are being made using foreign currency at hotels, restaurants, private schools established by foreign investors, for flat rentals to foreigners, and in souvenir shops,” he said.

“The ministries, dollars are being used for land leases and joint venture investments. That’s why the Ministry has resorted to currency exchange in terms of the union ministries, states, and regional governments, city development affairs committees in Nay Pyi Taw, Yangon, and Mandalay,” said U Bo Bo Nge.

Under Section 63 of the Central Bank of Myanmar Law and Section 8 of the Foreign Exchange Management law, for transactions and payments, ordinary account holders are permitted to pay only in Myanmar currency, and not foreign currency.

“If needed, payments can be made in foreign currency with the permission of the CBM. We have found that consumers find it easier to make payments in dollars than in Myanmar currency. If they do not abide by the laws, notifications will be made and implemented according to the laws.

In order to tackle the currency problem, cooperation between the states and regional governments is of great importance. Plans are under way to take action against those who don’t obey the prescribed laws,” he said.

U Wai Sein Aung of Rakhine State constituency 1 asked if the government plans to start a Masters Degree in English at the Sittway University. The Union Minister for Education, Dr. Myo Thein Gyi, said that plans are under way to start Masters Programs for those students who meet the eligibility criteria in the 2018-2019 academic year.

“On completion of their Masters Degree, they will have to pursue further studies in order to conduct lectures. The Ministry of Education will open a Masters Degree Programme in English at the Sittway University during the 2019-2020 academic year. For the purpose, the Ministry of Education has arranged for local English teachers to improve their English proficiency at the Yangon University,” he said.

U Siang Awer of Chin State constituency 2 asked if the government has any plans to edit and review scientific and technical terms and publish updated dictionaries. The Union Minister for Education replied that the Department of Higher Education and Universities’ Printing Press and the Translation and Publication Department are working with academicians and education experts from different universities to update dictionaries.

The Union Minister also answered questions raised by Dr. Sai Hsai Kyaw of Shan State Constituency 6 and U Mang Law Maung of Chin State Constituency 8.

Afterwards, Hluttaw representatives discussed the Literature and Art Copyright Bill, sent with amendments by the Pyithu Hluttaw. Daw El El Pyone of Ayeyawady Region constituency 8 and Dr. Pyae Phyo of Ayeyawady Region’s Constituency 7 participated in the discussion. Later, Amyotha Hluttaw bill committee member Dr. Myo Aung read out and explained the Occupational Safety and Health Bill, sent with approval and amendments by the Pyithu Hluttaw. The Amyotha Hluttaw Speaker then asked representatives who want to discuss the bill to register their names.

The sixth meeting of the Second Amyotha Hluttaw’s tenth regular session will take place on 27 November.

By Nyein Nyein

THE Yangon Region Transport Authority (YRTA) held its third workshop for YBS entrepreneurs at the YRTA meeting hall on 20 November. The workshop was conducted in collaboration with the Japan International Cooperation Agency (JICA).

The workshop focused on vehicle maintenance, driver behavior and driving skills, said U Aung Nyi Nyi Maw, a member of the YRTA.

“Through this workshop, I would like to urge YBS bus line companies and other bus line in charges to apply the results emerging from the workshop. A motor vehicle’s fitness, driving skills of the drivers and their attitude are important for passengers,” said U Aung Nyi Nyi Maw.

Very few YBS companies have vehicle repair workshops, said Mr. Seki Yusui, the deputy team leader of JICA Bus Project. “I found out for the first time that YBS buses are operating through car companies, and only some of them have vehicle repair workshops,” he said.

The YRTA has formulated four main policies for YBS operations, carried out in cooperation with the JICA. The policies include making YRTA supervision of buses more efficient, handling complaints properly, conducting workshops, and ensuring safe and smooth transport to passengers, said Yoshihiko Takami, a vehicle maintenance specialist with JICAs project for improving the public bus service in Yangon.

Currently, there are over 100 bus lines operating under YBS with over 4,500 buses plying daily in the Yangon region.

China’s demand for peanut increases in Mandalay

CHINA’S decision to restrict importation of rice, sugar, corn, and some agro products last month has led to a suspension of trade. But, recently, a high volume of peanut purchases by Chinese merchants has been witnessed in the Mandalay market.

“Due to last month’s trade suspension, goods meant for export to China are piling up in warehouses. But lately, Chinese merchants have been visiting villages to purchase peanuts. Lately, they are buying all the peanuts that the growers can supply,” said U Soe Win Myint, a depot owner from Mandalay.

With the increase in demand, the price of red peanuts has risen from Ks7,700 to Ks9,000 per viss (1.6 kg).

At present, it is peanut harvest season in Magway, Kyaukpyu, Taungweingyi, and Natmauk, while in upper Myanmar, Madaya, Singu, Htiyyaing, Pakokku, and Yesuung townships, the planting season has begun.

“The prices will not drop as some growers are purchasing peanuts to plant them, and there’s a high demand from Chinese merchants. Peanuts have a steady yield. Growers are happy with the regular demand at a high price,” said U Soe Win Myint.

While the Mandalay pulses market has cooled at present due to low demand from China, a high demand from China has pushed prices of black sesame seeds to a high of Ks270,000 per three-hast-kot bag. —Min Htet Aung (Mandalay Sub-printing House) ■ (Translated by Ei Myat Mon)

MSME Master plan to be released next month

By May Thet Hnin

THE MSME Master Plan, a practical framework for the development of Myanmar’s micro, small, and medium enterprises, has been drawn up and will be released next month, said Daw Aye Aye Win, the director-general of the Directorate of Industrial Supervision and Inspection.

The master plan was implemented between 2019 and 2030. It has been in the making for a period of six months, with assistance from Germany. Now, it is in the final stages and a finished plan will be released soon.

“The SMEs have been found following informal practices. They are following manual processes, but such practices are far from practical. To build a smart business and strengthen business performance, SMEs will be set up in line with the master plan,” said Daw Aye Aye Win.

The master plan has been developed with a view to promote the capacity of micro-, small-, and medium-sized businesses, increase their access to finance, knowledge, sharing digital transformation, create a happy and healthy working environment, improve supply chains, and formulate better policies.

The plan will focus on support for the formation of value-added chains for local products and for calculating net profit, number of SMEs across the country, and labor force.

Online training and mentoring programmes will be offered to help small and medium enterprises grow. While the relevant department has been providing support, and both the government and development partners have come together to help SMEs get better financial access, some SMEs have been slow to adopt best practices.

They also need to increase capacity so they can manage well and expand their businesses globally,” she said.

At present, SME development action plans are being drawn up by the region and state SME departments.

The SME Development Department is endeavouring to get technical assistance from international organizations and link businesses with more markets. It has been holding business-matching events in collaboration with its Korean, Japanese, and Malaysian counterparts. The departments planning to level up efforts to connect local businesses with their counterparts in European countries.

At present, the SME Development Department has joined hands with the Matrix Institute for potential financial access and quality assurance for SMEs. It recently trained its seventh batch of SME entrepreneurs in Magway and Ayeyawady regions. Next, it plans to unveil an online learning site for SMEs entrepreneurs on 1 December.

The SMEs are the backbone of the country’s economy. Currently, most businesses are facing a slew of challenges concerning capital, technology, market share, and skilled workers, said entrepreneurs.

There are 53 branches of the SME Development Department providing services to SMEs in the regions and states. SME education programmes have covered more than 40,000 entrepreneurs.

While SMEs constitute over 90 per cent of the businesses in the country, only 70,000 of them are currently registered.

El Niño event is expected to develop from November this year, according to the meteorological and climate forecasting centres. While the resulting weather conditions are expected to be as intense as in 2013-2015, Myanmar can expect a warm and dry summer next year. It is imperative that local governments prepare to limit the impact of any El Niño recurrence.

According to weather experts, El Niño brings extreme temperatures during the post-monsoon season in Myanmar.

In mid-November, a stronger-than-average sea surface temperature was recorded near the Equator in the East Central Pacific Ocean. As per forecasts, the mean sea surface temperature is expected to rise from November to January, which may give rise to moderate El Niño conditions.

The percentage of El Niño condition is likely to be at 75% in November, December, and January. It may decrease to 50% in February, according to the Pacific Climate Prediction Centre.

Myanmar experienced El Niño weather in 2015-2016 winter and 2016-2017. The 2013-14 El Niño was one of the strongest ever recorded, causing widespread drought, with 2015-16 entering the record books as the warmest year.

El Niño is an oceanic and atmospheric phenomenon that affects weather patterns globally. It is characterized by a warming of the surface waters of the equatorial Pacific Ocean, which can lead to changes in wind patterns and atmospheric pressure, affecting weather conditions in different parts of the world.

El Niño can have significant impacts on Myanmar, including unusual rainfall patterns, acute water shortages, and disasters for a country. A prolonged drought can compromise not only freshwater supplies but also other resources.

In the context of climate change, El Niño events may become more frequent and intense, leading to more extreme weather events that can cause severe damage to agricultural and fisheries industries. Food security and economic stability can be threatened by these events, affecting the livelihoods of the people.

Therefore, it is crucial for local governments to prepare and strategize to mitigate the impacts of El Niño events, ensuring resilience and adaptability in the face of such challenges.

The people of Myanmar must work with the regional governments and non-governmental organizations to limit the impact of a new El Niño effect.

Nowadays, there are a lot of challenges: local or abroad and from all directions. Unity is essential. We need to keep a look out for the economy and for the long term. The people of Myanmar must work with the regional governments and non-governmental organizations to limit the impact of a new El Niño effect.

Myanmar Politics and I

By Prof. Dr Aung Tuy Thet

S a man of over 70, I have lived in a life considering something related with Myan- mar Politics. I have gone through five political periods: first parliamentary democracy under the Prime Minister U Nu; I remember it at that time, I was a student. First I attended Lardy Paw Bon’s nurseschool; the school principle was an English and her husband was Sir PWM, a Balinese national. Then he was Prime Minister during post-war years. The late brother and now to the teaching school. We had a lot at my mother’s cousin; my aunt’s husband was Col. Kaj Han. His two nephews, Thaung Kyaw Nyone and Aung Kyaw Nyone, were two son of Deputy Prime Minister U Nu. My then father worked in the War Office as Myanmar’s Tatmadaw’s first war secretary.

Remembrance

I was too young to remember al1, but I still remember the location of the school; it is situated on Pyidaungsu Avenue right in front doing research and later I also of the Children’s Hospital. Then we moved to the English Methodist School, then St Paul School No 1, Dagon. Some of my friends like to keep contacting me.

Besides, democratic systems, economy was given top priority under the 21st century, social, educational and health systems improved; economy kept going on despite pro-war and insurgence. We worked with private sectors, serving as an advisor for the Union of Myanmar Federation of Chambers of Commerce and Industry (UMFCCI). I gave a lot of advice to companies. Frankly speaking I was pleased that the NLD took power after 2015 elections. I have designed many more career in real estate. During that time, new township appeared near Yangon; three sat-elville townships –Thaketa, south and north Okkalapa—appeared.

One of those El Niño event looms, authorities must prepare to limit impact.

The people of Myanmar must work with the regional governments and non-governmental organizations to limit the impact of a new El Niño effect.

New barricades at US-Mexico border as migrant caravan arrives

TLJUANA (Mexico) — Huge metal or concrete barricades and walls of concertina wire went up on Monday on both sides of a bustling US-Mexico border crossing as a caravan of US-bound Central American migrants pours into Tijuana, the last stop before California.

US authorities went so far as to briefly close the San Ysidro Port of Entry altogether — it is one of the busiest land border crossings in the world — as the new barriers were set up, triggering total gridlock for vehicles and pedestrians going from Tijuana across into San Diego.

“It was as if time stopped. Nothing is moving. Neither cars, nor people, nor my business,” said Armando Lopez, who sells newspapers, cigarettes and candy on the Mexican side.

US Customs and Border Protection “suspended operations to safely place impediments at the port of entry that would restrict access to a large group attempting to run through the border crossing,” the agency said in a statement, referring to the migrant caravan.

President Donald Trump has characterized the caravan’s journey as an invasion, making it a central plank of his anti-immigrant platform.

The thousands-strong group set out more than a month ago from Honduras, fleeing poverty and gang violence and sometimes forcing its way across borders as the migrants head toward the US. Some 3,500 migrants have arrived so far in Tijuana and another 3,000 are expected to start flowing in as of Tuesday. Most of those making the trek are Hondurans.

The big question is whether, once they are all together, they will try to cross over as they did from Guatemala into Mexico — by force — or opt instead for the long and tedious process of requesting asylum in the US.

Economy in danger

After putting the new barriers in place at the border crossing, the authorities reopened it partially to northbound traffic.

On the Mexican side, too, metal barricades and concertina wire were put up. Federal police and soldiers patrolled the area.

“I am OK with these defenses,” said Arturo Gonzalez, a 35-year-old American who was losing his patience as he sat in his black pickup truck waiting to get into California.

He works as a janitor in a school in the US but lives in Mexico because the rent is cheaper there. “Because of those Hondurans, we are paying the price. They should be thrown out,” Gonzalez said.

Walking swiftly through the pedestrian conduit toward California, Ana Maria Gutierrez, who is Mexican, was in a hurry to get to her job as a nurse in a psychiatric facility in San Diego.

“They do not realize the impact of closing the border,” she told AFP.

Mexico and the United States share a border that stretches along more than 3,000 kilometers (1,800 miles) of desert and is crossed by undocumented travelers, drugs and weapons.

But a million people also cross over legally each day while trade across the frontier totals a million dollars a minute, according to government figures. At the San Ysidro port alone, 70,000 vehicles make their way into California each day, as do 15,000 students and 25,000 workers.

“Economy is in danger”

The big question is whether, once they are all together, they will try to cross over as they did from Guatemala into Mexico — by force — or opt instead for the long and tedious process of requesting asylum in the US.

Troops to the border to forestall the arrival of the caravan.

During the campaign leading to his election in 2016 he referred to Mexican migrants crossing over as rapists and “bad hombres.”

Trump has also issued a new order under which people who do not cross at official points of entry can no longer apply for asylum. This was challenged in court and a judge Monday night temporarily barred the Trump administration from enacting the ban.

At another border crossing, between Laredo, Texas and Nuevo Laredo, US soldiers have also set up many reels of concertina wire. Amelia Prados, a Mexican who works in a bank in Tijuana, said the migrants were simply seeking to escape violence and find a better life.

“The United States is defending itself from a danger that does not exist,” she said. — AFP

Multiple victims after shots fired at Chicago hospital: police

CHICAGO Police officers monitor the area outside of the Chicago Mercy Hospital where a gunman opened fire in Chicago on 19 November, 2018. PHOTO: AFP

CHICAGO (United States) — A gunman opened fire Monday at a hospital in the US city of Chicago, police said, adding that there were reports of “multiple victims” including a wounded officer in “critical condition.”

“Reports of shots fired in the vicinity of 26th and Michigan near Mercy Hospital. Avoid area. Heavy police response incoming,” Chicago Police spokesman Anthony Guglielmi tweeted. At least “one possible offender” had been shot and there were “multiple” other victims, he added.

A Chicago Police officer has been shot in the active shooter incident at Mercy Hospital. He is in critical condition but receiving excellent care. Please send your prayers,” Guglielmi later added. TV footage showed people filing out of the hospital into a parking lot with their hands in the air.

“We were going about our business and waiting for our results and then I heard shots fired,” an unnamed witness told the local CBS affiliate.

“I turned around to my right and I see a man shooting someone on the ground, shot him multiple times.

“And then almost immediately an officer was already coming in an SUV and he exchanged fire at them and then reloaded and shot the person on the ground again and then he made his way into the hospital and more shots were fired.”

The shooting came less than two weeks after a gunman killed 12 people in a California music bar packed with college students.

That rampage followed the worst anti-Semitic attack in modern US history, when a gunman opened fire on worshippers at a synagogue in the US city of Pittsburgh on October 27. The incidents have added to the growing outcry over gun safety in the United States, where there have been more than 300 mass shootings this year. — AFP

Two dead, four missing, in Portugal marble quarry collapse

LISBON (Portugal) — At least two people were killed on Monday and four were reported missing in a landslide that collapsed part of a road running through a marble quarry in southeast Portugal, emergency services said.

“The two victims are quarry workers,” civil protection spokesman Jose Ribeiro told journalists of the accident in Portugal’s Borba region, well known for its marble quarries.

The four individuals reported as missing were in two cars traveling along the road that collapsed into a crevice 50 metres (164 feet) deep. — AFP

Police officer injured in Brussels knife attack

BRUSSELS (Belgium) — A Brussels police officer was injured in a knife attack in front of the city’s main police station early Tuesday, a spokeswoman said.

The attack took place on the second day of a state visit to Belgium by French President Emmanuel Macron with memories of the Paris and Brussels attacks running high.

An assailant stabbed the officer outside the central police station at 5:30am (0430 GMT), police spokeswoman Ilse van de Keere told AFP.

“A police officer was stabbed and slightly wounded” and taken to hospital, she said.

Xi visits Philippines to cozy up to historical US ally

MANILA (Philippines) — Chinese President Xi Jinping arrived in the Philippines on Tuesday for a key state visit to a long-time US ally, aiming to boost blossoming ties with potentially billions in backing for mega-projects.

Philippine President Rodrigo Duterte has proven a willing recipient of Beijing’s attentions, declaring shortly after his election in 2016 his nation’s “separation” from former colonial master the US.

Since then Beijing has promised billions of dollars in investment and loans for major infrastructure that the developing nation of 105 million deeply needs, but over two years later nearly none of it has arrived.

Xi landed in Manila to a red-carpet welcome at the airport for the first visit from a Chinese president in 13 years, which Manila hopes will finally net those investment deals.

China has dispersed tens of billions of dollars in loans since 2013 as it expands its political influence globally, countering the American hegemony that characterised the post-World War II order, especially in Asia.

Duterte has enthusiastically embraced Xi, even setting aside a key 2016 ruling from an international tribunal that declared as without basis Beijing’s territorial claims in the disputed South China Sea.

The dispute over the resource-rich South China Sea, a key transit route for billions in trade, led to a freeze in Manila-Beijing relations, which thawed with Duterte’s pivot.

"Duterte taken for a ride?" China subsequently pledged $24 billion in loans and investments, but just a tiny portion has come through, prompting critics to say Duterte was tricked.

Meanwhile, others have warned of a “debt trap” citing China’s lending record with the rest of the developing world.

Filipino analyst Richard Heydarian said China’s pledges induced Manila to “soft pedaling” on the South China Sea issue, but Beijing failed to hold up its end of the bargain.

“We know there was a geopolitical calculus,” he told AFP. “What is the incentive to rush if Duterte has been giving them what they want?”

Filipino Budget Secretary Benjamin Diokno conceded last week the delays were partly due to China’s unfamiliarity with the Philippine bidding process on big infrastructure projects, but didn’t hide his wish for things to accelerate.

“The visit of the head of state of China will put pressure on the team (in Beijing),” Diokno added.

Gregory Wyatt, director for business intelligence at PSA Philippines Consultancy, said big projects face many barriers in the Philippines, like right of way issues, regulatory approvals and political dissent.

“The foreign investment has come, the infrastructure loans have not,” he added.

Chinese investments in the Philippines surged more than five-fold in the first six months of the year after a 67 per cent expansion last year, Foreign Minister Wang Yi said during a Manila visit last month.

Two-way trade also topped 10 per cent over both periods, he added.

Chinese investors poured money into online gaming, real estate, service providers and stakes in existing Filipino firms, but not into large-scale infrastructure or manufacturing, Wyatt said.

While there was support in government for the latter, “that doesn’t mean that everybody is artrecrating, local politician, and the general public enthusiastically jumps on board”, Wyatt said.—AFP

South East Asia Disaster Risk Management Project

Project ID: P160931

Assignment Title: Component 3 Preparation of Detailed Engineering Designs and Bidding Documents for the seismic retrofitting of 20 buildings in Yangon, and Construction Management and Supervision of the Works

Reference No. C3 CS1-2

The Government of the Republic of the Union of Myanmar has received financing from the World Bank toward the cost of the South East Asia Disaster Risk Management Project, and intends to apply part of the proceeds from the Works for seismic retrofitting of 20 buildings in Yangon and the cost of Consulting Services.

The Consulting Services ("the Services") shall consist of two stages: Stage 1 covering Detailed Design; and Stage 2 covering Contract Management and Construction Supervision. A single proposal (technical and financial) covering both stages will be requested. Separate contracts will be awarded for each stage with award of the contract for Stage 2 being conditional on satisfactory performance on Stage 1. Stage 1 shall include carrying out a risk assessment of the targeted buildings, detailed structural analysis and engineering designs for the retrofitting of 20 buildings (all of which are of heritage significance), preparation of an environmental and social impact assessment (ESIA) in conformity with an existing Environmental and Social Management Framework (ESMF); detailed cost estimates; prioritization of retrofitting works; proposals for procurement packaging and preparation of Bidding Documents for a number of priority bid packages using World Bank Procurement Guidelines and Standard Bidding Documents. Stage 2 shall cover Contract Management and Construction Supervision of the works including assisting Yangon City Development Committee (YCDC) with overall coordination, including during the Defects Liability Period of the works.

The duration of services for Stage 1 and Stage 2 are estimated at about eleven (11) months and twenty-four (24) months respectively excluding Defects Liability Period. The Defects Liability Period is expected to be 12 months.

The budget available for the priority seismic retrofitting works is approximately US$18 million.

The Yangon City Development Committee with the Engineering Department (Buildings) (EDB) will be implementing the project and now invites eligible consulting firms ("Consultants") to indicate their interest in providing the Services. Interested Consultants must provide specific information demonstrating that they have the required qualifications and relevant experience to perform the Services.

The shortlisting criteria: (1) At least 10 years of experience in the field of seismic structural analysis and design and retrofitting of existing structures; (2) At least 3 projects of similar scope and nature; (3) Substantial experience in developing construction documents, bidding documents and plans; (4) Substantial experience in the management of large construction projects, including supervision of construction activities and contractual financial management processes; (5) Prior experience in inspecting and monitoring effective QA programs and compliance with records; (6) The ability to interact with a varied set of stakeholders, ranging from government partners to the private design community; (7) Experience developing and delivering capacity and knowledge transfer programs; (8) Proven experience in carrying out similar assignments within the past 5 years.

Interested Consulting firms are requested to provide specific information and past project examples to demonstrate their ability to meet each of the shortlisting criteria above. Individual CV’s of proposed ‘team members’ need not be supplied at this stage (individual team members will be evaluated at RFP stage) and will not be taken into consideration. Proven ability to undertake seismic analysis, detailed design (for retrofitting) and project/construction management activities are of critical importance and must be clearly demonstrated. Examples of past project experiences (including contract reference and scope undertaken) should be provided. Failure to do so may result in Consulting Firms not being evaluated.

The attention of interested Consultants is drawn to paragraph 1.9 of the World Bank’s Guidelines: Selection and Employment of Consultants [under IBRD Loans and IDA Credits & Grants] by World Bank Borrowers dated January 2011 and revised in July 2014. (“Consultant Guidelines”), setting forth the World Bank’s policy on conflict of interest. Consultants may associate with other firms in the form of a joint venture or a sub consultancy to enhance their qualifications. The “association” may take the form of a joint venture or a sub consultancy. In case of a joint venture (JV), all members of the JV will be evaluated jointly for the purpose of short listing and shall be jointly and severally liable for the assignment and shall sign the contract jointly in case of award is made to that JV. Interested consultants should clearly indicate the structure of their “association” and the duties of the partners and sub consultants in their application. Unclear expression of interests in terms of “in association with” and/or “in affiliation with” and etc. without indicating the status of the partnership and designation of the lead partner may not be considered for short listing.

A Consultant will be selected in accordance with the Quality and Cost Based Selection (QCBS) method set out in the Consultant Guidelines. Further information can be obtained at the address below during office hours (9:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., Monday to Friday).

Humanity faces simultaneous climate disasters

PARIS (France) — By century’s end, many parts of the world may have to cope with up to six climate catastrophes at once, ranging from heat waves and wildfires to diluvian rains and deadly storm surges, researchers warned on Monday.

“Human society will be faced with the devastating combined impacts of multiple interacting climate hazards,” said co-author Erik Franklin, a researcher at the University of Hawaii’s Institute of Marine Biology.

“They are happening now and will continue to get worse,” he told AFP.

Overloading the atmosphere with carbon dioxide, methane and other greenhouse gases has unleashed a maelstrom of life-threatening forces.

It begins with rising temperatures, which — in normally dry regions — lead to drought, heatwaves and deadly wildfires, such as those ravaging California. In wetter climes, the result is heavy rainfall and flooding. Over the oceans, global warming creates larger superstorms whose destructive power is enhanced by rising seas.

Up to now, scientists have mostly studied these climate change impacts one-by-one, obscuring the possibility — and so the likelihood — that human communities will be hammered by more than one at a time, the study found.

Last year, for example, Florida experienced extreme drought, record-high temperatures, more than 100 wildfires, and Hurricane Michael, the most intense drought, record-high temperatures, more than 100 wildfires, and Hurricane Michael, the most powerful storm to ever hit its Panhandle.

“A focus on one or few hazards may mask the impacts of other hazards, resulting in incomplete assessments of the consequences of climate change on humanity,” said lead author Camilo Mora, a professor at the University of Hawaii. — AFP

Flagging Victoria’s Secret announces new lingerie CEO

NEW YORK (United States) — US lingerie giant Victoria’s Secret announced on Monday that it had appointed fashion executive John Mehah as new lingerie CEO, hoping to boost its ailing fortunes.

Mehah will take over in the New Year, replacing Jan Singer, who resigned with the brand under fire for slamming sales, idealized glamazonian femininity and reluctance to put larger and transgender models on the catwalk.

His appointment was announced as Victoria’s Secret parent company L Brands reported third-quarter results with a net loss of $42.8 million compared to net income of $86 million last year.

“Our number one priority is improving performance,” said L Brands chairman and chief executive officer Leslie Wexner.

“Our new leaders are coming in with a fresh perspective and looking at everything... our marketing, brand positioning, internal talent, real estate portfolio and cost structure,” he added.

“I am confident that, under John’s leadership, Victoria’s Secret lingerie... will continue to be a powerhouse and will deliver products and experiences that resonate with women around the globe.”

Mehah comes to Victoria’s Secret, the lingerie market leader in the United States, from Tory Burch, where he is currently president.

He previously led Club Monaco for 13 years as president and CEO. He has also worked at The Gap and the department store chain Bloomingdale’s.

Singer had been on the job since September 2016. No reason has been publicly announced for her departure.

Earlier this month, Victoria’s Secret marketing director Ed Razek provoked uproar on social media for telling Vogue that there was no need for transgender or plus-size models in this year’s fashion show.

“No, I don’t think we should. Well, why not? Because the show is a fantasy. It’s a 42-minute entertainment special,” he said.

Razek subsequently issued a public apology. Victoria’s Secret hired some of the world’s most famous models and filmed their annual fashion show in New York on 8 November. It will be aired globally next month.

In the United States, the show provoked ire for its uniform use of slender models at a time when US women feel increasingly empowered by the #MeToo movement and with lingerie brands that promote all shapes and sizes — such as Rihanna’s new Savage X Fenty line — making inroads.

“Heidi Zak, co-CEO of one such rival brand, ThirdLove, published an open letter in The New York Times saying she was “appalled” by Razek’s “demeaning comments.”

“You market to men, and sell a male fantasy to women,” she said.

“Women wear bras in real life as they go to work, breastfeed their children, play sports, care for ailing parents and serve their country,” she wrote.

I want to thank me, rapper Snoop Dogg on getting Hollywood star

LOS ANGELES (United States) — Rap great Snoop Dogg thanked himself on Monday as he received a star on the Hollywood Walk of Fame just days before the 25th anniversary of his debut album "Doggystyle."

“I want to thank me for believing in me,” the 16-time Grammy nominee said after the star was unveiled on the famed walk.

“I want to thank me for doing all this hard work. I want to thank me for having no days off. I want to thank me for never quitting. I want to thank me for always being a giver, and trying to give more than I receive. I want to thank me for trying to do more right than wrong. I want to thank me for just being me at all times,” the West Coast hip-hop legend known for his wry sense of humor added.

Snoop — real name Calvin Broadus — rose to fame in 1992 when he was featured on Dr Dre’s solo debut album “The Chronic.”

He has since sold over 35 million albums worldwide.

He also is a regular star of films, from “Scary Movie 5” (2013), to “Starsky and Hutch” (2004) and “Training Day” (2001).

"Doggystyle," released on 23 November, 1993, debuted at number one on the Billboard 200 and sold more than 11 million copies worldwide through November 2015.

His other well known works include “Gin & Juice.” “Who Am I? (What’s My Name?),” and “Drop It Like It’s Hot.”

Attending the ceremony on Monday were talk show host Jimmy Kimmel, record producer Quincy Jones and fellow rapper Dr Dre. —AFP

Unrealistic to compare shelf-life of heroes and heroines: Preity Zinta

MUMBAI — Preity Zinta says if female actresses devote as much time as their male counterparts to the film career, it would be possible for heroines to have a longer shelf-life.

The 43-years-old actress said the fact that the society is still patriarchal makes it tough for women to pursue their careers and same is the case with movie stars.

“If a female actress dedicates that many years then she would also get that kind of stardom. Lot of actresses get married, have children, take a break. I personally took quite a few years of break. One has to compare apples to apples. You can’t compare apples to oranges. The moment an actress gets married and has children she is taking care of the children, she is out of circulation,” Preity told PTI in an interview.

“Having said that, it is a patriarchal society but the real test of time will be with newer bunch of actors who is getting married and still working to see how things go. It is unrealistic to compare heroes and heroines as their lifespan is different,” she added. The actress believes the approach towards women has changed both on-and off-screen today.

“Who would have thought ‘Veere Di Wedding’ with all women do Rs 90 crore (business)? Nobody. It is the most exciting time for an actor like me as well. There are interesting roles out there and I would not like to do what I did 20 years ago. I want to grow and do progressive roles.” Expressing her views on India’s MeToo movement, which has seen many a starwah such as Nana Patekar, Alok Nath, Sajid Khan, Subhash Kapoor, Vikas Bahl, Subhash Ghai, Aan Malik and Rajat Kapoor fall, Preity said Hollywood is “very safe” for women. “People treat you the way you want to be treated. If I am ready to say I am ready to do anything, then why would a guy not do anything. But when I say this is my work, keep it all professional... No guy has ever misbehaved with me. Having said that, I don’t want to talk about ignorance. I became successful in my first attempt, ‘Dil Se’, ‘Soldier’ became blockbuster, ‘Kya Kehna’ became a game changer.

“All these films were commercial hits. Nobody messes with you as now you have already succeeded. You can be a ‘no nonsense’ girl but if you are not successful, maybe there are people in position of power who can misuse it. But if you are not willing to fly with it, no one is going to force themselves (on you), that’s what I think. maybe there are some creepy people,” she said. —PTI

NASA picks ancient Martian river delta for 2020 rover touchdown

TAMPA (United States) — NASA has picked an ancient river delta as the landing site for its uncrewed Mars 2020 rover, to hunt for evidence of past life on Earth’s neighbouring planet, officials said on Monday.

Even though the Red Planet is now cold and dry, the landing site, Jezero Crater, was filled with a 1,500-foot (500-metre) deep lake that opened to a network of rivers some 3.5 to 3.9 billion years ago.

“The delta is a good place for evidence of life to be deposited and then preserved for the billions of years that have elapsed since this lake was present,” Ken Farley, Mars 2020 project scientist at NASA’s Jet Propulsion Laboratory, told reporters on a conference call.

Experts believe the 28-mile (45-kilometre) wide basin could have collected and preserved ancient organic molecules and other signs of microbial life.

At least five different kinds of rocks, including “clays and carbonates that have high potential to preserve signatures of past life,” are believed to lie in the crater, just north of the Martian equator, the US space agency said in a statement.

Perilous landing

But first, the rover has to make it to the surface intact and upright, dodging a field of boulders, sand traps and the edges of the delta.

Mars 2020 will use the same sky crane landing that successfully delivered NASA’s unmanned Curiosity rover to a location called Gale Crater on Mars back in 2012.

Gale Crater, with its many layers of sediment, was chosen to tell the story of how Mars transitioned from a warm, wet planet to the frigid and dusty one it is today.

The landing site of Jezero Crater is different because of its abundant carbonate rocks and what they can hopefully reveal about early habitability on Mars, NASA said.

Instead of having an analytical laboratory on board — like Curiosity has — Mars 2020 is designed to look at rocks on a finer scale, seeing what biosignatures are preserved.

It will then pile them in a cache for further study back on Earth. A separate mission, yet to be defined, would bring the rocks back to Earth.

‘Expand our presence’

Knowing more about the ability for life to exist on Mars in the distant past could inform us about how life evolved on Earth.

“Mars is one of four terrestrial planets in the solar system and it actually has the best record of what was going on in the first billion years of planetary formation,” said Michael Meyer, lead scientist for NASA’s Mars Exploration Programme.

“During the same time that life started on Earth, life could have started on Mars,” he added.

Carbonate rock is produced by the interaction of water, atmospheric gases and rock, and leaves clues about habitable environments, said Farley.

Scientists have debated where to land the rover for the past four years, and whittled down their decision from more than 60 possible sites.

The $2.5 billion rover is planned to launch in July 2020, and land in February 2021.

Mars 2020 is designed to land inside the crater and collect samples that will eventually be returned to Earth for further analysis, perhaps by the later 2020s.

NASA has vowed to send people to Mars by the 2030s, but industry experts say it could take longer — at least 25 years from now — before humans could survive on the Red Planet. —AFP

MDMA drug makes you nicer, but not naive: study

PARIS (France) — MDMA, the main ingredient in ecstasy, makes humans more likely to cooperate — but only with trustworthy people — researchers said Monday in the first study into how the drug impacts our willingness to help others. Despite its status in Britain as a Class A drug, MDMA is widely consumed due to the heightened sense of energy, empathy and pleasure it arouses in users. It contains neurotransmitters — chemical messengers for the brain — that are known to be linked to behaviour and mood, and scientists currently understand very little about how these affect social interactions.

Researchers at King’s College London studied 20 healthy adult men who were given a typical recreational dose of MDMA or a placebo pill and then asked to complete a set of tasks while images of their brain activity were taken with an MRI scanner.

One of the mind exercises they were given was the Prisoner’s Dilemma — an example of so-called “game theory” in which an individual is asked to choose between cooperating or competing with another, unknown person. Both players get an equal share of the points on offer if they choose to cooperate, but if one player chooses to compete they get all the points, while the other player gets nothing. They however risk getting nothing if the other player chooses to compete.

The team found that participants on MDMA were more willing to cooperate than those given the placebo. But, to their surprise, the MDMA takers only became more cooperative with players they perceived as trustworthy, based on observations of the previous choices of the other player.

“We thought MDMA might make you think that other people are more trustworthy. And we were wrong,” Mitul Mehta, from King’s Institute of Psychiatry, Psychology and Neuroscience, told AFP—AFP

Higher risk links between kidney disease, type 2 diabetes: Aussie report

SYDNEY — More than one-third of Australians with type two diabetes will develop chronic kidney disease (CKD), raising their risk of cardiovascular mortality to “exceptionally high,” scientists said on Monday.

In an editorial published in the Medical Journal of Australia, Professor Vlado Perkovic, executive director of the George Institute for Global Health Australia, and Ph.D. candidate Dr. Brendon Neuen, said that even more concerning was that the relative likelihood of cardiovascular disease-related death is substantially higher for younger patients.

According to the report, it’s worrying that the burden of type 2 diabetes in young people is rapidly increasing worldwide. In little more than a decade, the number of people aged 20-39 with type 2 diabetes has almost tripled, rising from 23 to 63 million.

At present, clinical trials aimed at reducing the risk of cardiovascular events and death in patients with CKD have proved unsuccessful.

The report called for a re-doing of efforts to increase the number and improve the quality of trials. “We also need to urgently identify treatments that slow the loss of kidney function and prevent cardiovascular disease in people with diabetes, especially those with established nephropathy,” the scientists said.

Vlado and Brendon also suggested broader health strategies to prevent type 2 diabetes in the first place.

“We should embrace opportunities to take a lead role in advocating policies that recognize the environmental and behavioural drivers of diabetes and other chronic health conditions,” they said. —Xinhua

AFF Suzuki Cup: Myanmar, Viet Nam match ends in draw

THE clash between Myanmar and Viet Nam ended with a 0-0 draw at the ASEAN Football Federation’s (AFF) Suzuki Cup 2018 group play match at the Thuwunna Stadium in Yangon yesterday.

Myanmar lined up with Goalkeeper Kyaw Zin Htet, Zaw Min Htun, Nanda Kyaw, Soe Moe Kyaw, Win Moe Kyaw, Haing Bo Bo, Lwin Moe Aung, Htet Phyo Wai, Si Thu Aung, Maung Maung Lwin, and Aung Thu. Team Myanmar was led by head coach Antoine Hey.

Both teams played energetically from the kickoff, and the scoreless result indicates their defence lines were strong. Both teams went all out to score, but the indecision of the strikers cost them goals at yesterday’s match.

Myanmar dominated the first half, getting more goal chances than Viet Nam. Myanmar’s Aung Thu and Maung Maung Lwin’s passes and shots drove the crowds into a frenzy. Myanmar missed a goal chance at the 45-minute-mark as Aung Thu’s free kick slipped a bit near the goal bar. The first half ended 0-0. Viet Nam were better with their tactical changes in the second half. Myanmar’s Aung Thu, Haing Bo Bo, and Maung Maung Lwin again threatened Viet Nam’s defence line in the early minutes of the second half. Viet Nam returned the attack with speedy play, but Myanmar’s midfielders and defenders scoured Viet Nam’s chances.

The match became more exciting as the clock ticked closer to the end, with both teams trying to score the opening goal. But neither scored.

Barca’s Dembele should be ‘more responsible’, says Luis Suarez

SAINT-DENIS (France) — Luis Suarez, a three-time bitter of opposition players, said on Monday that Barcelona teammate Ousmane Dembele should be “more responsible” after he reportedly missed training following a marathon nocturnal video gaming session.

Dembele was dropped by the Spanish champions for last week’s shock 4-3 home defeat to Real Betis, following what coach Ernesto Valverde called a “sporting assessment”. But sports daily As reports that the Catalans are worried not only that he might be addicted to gaming, but also that it might ruin his career at the club.

And Suarez, no stranger to disciplinary issues himself, says that the 21-year-old France international, signed for an initial fee of 105 million euros, needs to follow the more virtuous example set by some of his Barça colleagues. “Ousmane knows that he has to behave more and be more responsible regarding certain things,” the Uruguay striker told reporters ahead of his country’s clash with France at the Stade de France on Tuesday.

“There are examples of professionalism at Barca that he can draw inspiration from. He’ll continue to learn, with that self-confidence that will enable him to succeed at Barcelona.”

Suarez has attracted controversy throughout his career. He was banned for biting players during his time at Ajax — where he was nicknamed “Cannibal” by the Dutch press — and Liverpool.
